"The Golem," classic horror tale of a creature twelve feet tall, will also be produced at Universal City. From the Middle ages comes the story of this monster who was reputed to have been the handiwork of a Jewish rabbi. Today "The Golem" is a legendary figure of terrifying proportions. Kurt Neumann will direct "The Golem," and bring the monster up-to-date. Three English actors who appeared in the stage production of "The Golem," will be imported for the picture. Karloff again may be starred.

Besides these pictures, Carl Laemmle, Jr. has ideas for others of the imaginative type. We have found by experimenting," Laemmle, Jr. said, "that the theatre-going public like the unreal, the weird and the uncanny and we are preparing to cater to this great audience with colorful, imaginative stories. I think there will be more of this unusual type of pictures next year than ever before, because it has been shown to have such a striking appeal to the public's fancy.

Here is the cast of "Pirate Treasure" looking at the map which will lead them to the climax of this interesting Universal serial. Pictured here are: Richard Talmadge, reading the map, and over his shoulder you see Lucille Lund, the leading lady, William Desmond, Pat O'Malley, William E. Thorne and Al Ferguson.

Hirschfield Makes Debut

Noted Humorist Will Make First Movie Appearance in Mentone-Universal Picture.

HARRY HIRSCHFIELD, Broadwayite, cartoonist and radio commentator, will make his debut in a Mentone production which will be completed next week for Universal release. The title is "Vaudeville on Parade." Assisting the wise-cracking Hirschfield will be Harold Stern's Hotel Biltmore Orchestra, Hal Forde, the Albertina Rasch girls, Gypsy Nina, Eddie Peabody, Charles Collins, Jack McLellen, De Dio's Animal Circus, and Sybil Krinny.

These Mentone's are right in the spirit of the Carl Laemmle Anniversary Jubilee.

✚ ✚ ✚

Richard Talmadge in "Pirate Treasure"

"PIRATE TREASURE," the Richard Talmadge serial which is the fourth on the Universal chapterplay lineup for this season, was finished at Universal City just prior to the vacation period there, and in time for release of its first episode on January 29th.

The exciting adventure story, written by Ella O'Neill, with continuity by George Plympton, Basil Dickey and Jack Nelson, was directed by that veteran serial producer, Ray Taylor, who can always be depended upon to inject plenty of thrills, romance and color into his pictures. In "Pirate Treasure" you'll see Richard Talmadge, great screen daredevil, crash automobiles into speeding trains, lead villains in the wildest of chases, smash his speedboat against a buoy, leap from a six-story building, plunge at fifty miles an hour in an automobile from a dock—all in quest of pirate gold and priceless jewels. Throughout the twelve chapters Talmadge is aided in his search for the treasure by the beautiful blonde Lucille Lund, winner of the All-American Girl contest, who is his leading lady in the serial, and by a cast consisting of Pat O'Malley, Walter Miller, William Desmond, Ethan Laidlaw, William E. Thorne and Al Ferguson.

A special ship was chartered for the motion picture company's expedition in "Pirate Treasure," which was fourteen weeks in production. The locale of most of the story is a semi-tropical island where the hunt for the treasure is conducted, and this locale was of course somewhere in the Pacific Island, off the coast of California, not too far away from Hollywood.

BIG PICTURES
for BIG PROFITS
•
Carl Laemmle
ANNIVERSARY
JUBILEE
Jan. 6—Mar. 10

HOLIDAY GREETINGS BY WESTERN UNION

FA61 40 NL-SANFRANCISCO CALIF 24
UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP
730 5 AVE NYK
CHRISTMAS GREETINGS FROM THE GOLDEN GATE THEATER SANFRANCISCO ARE THAT COUNSELLOR AT LAW OPENED TO TWENTY FOUR HUNDRED AND THIRTY DOLLARS AGAINST EXCELLENT SIXTEEN HUNDRED OPENING OF ONLY YESTERDAY STOP THIS IS BEST CHRISTMAS EVE BUSINESS IN HISTORY OF THEATER

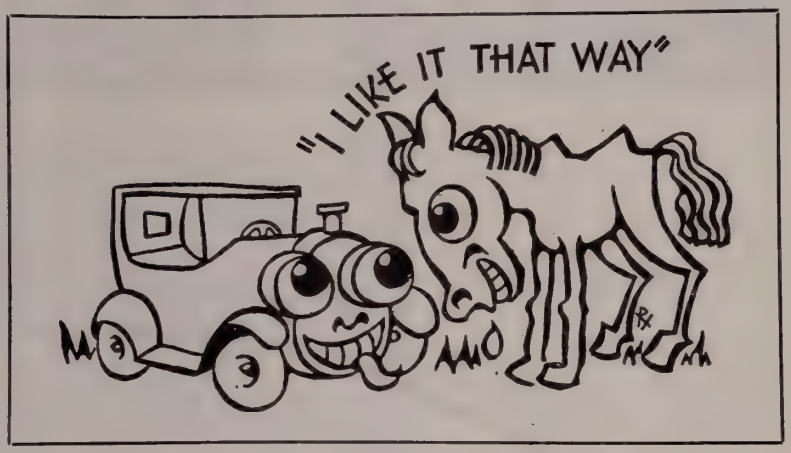
BEN WESTLAND

Athlete Now Exhibitor

Alvin H. Hables Takes Over the Reel Joy Theatre of King City, Cal.

King City, California Dec. 20, 1933

Alvin A. Hables has taken a five year lease on the Reel Joy Theatre here. "Ike," as he is better known is one of the holders of the world's record in the mile relay. He was on the team composed of Ben Eastman, Maynor Shove, Leslie Hables and Alvin Hables, that represented Stanford University at the Fresno relays when they broke the record. He is on the dotted line for a Universal contract and thinks it is his best bet for the year.



"Back Street" Runs An Entire Year

World Record for Talking Pictures Will Be Established Next Week at the Caumartin Theatre in Paris, where "Back Street" opened A Two-A-Day Run on January 4, 1933.

ON Thursday, January 4th, a world-record for a talking motion picture will be set. For the first time in history a talking picture will have run for an entire year in the same theatre. That picture is "Back Street" and the theatre is the Caumartin in Paris, where "Back Street" opened on January 4, 1933. The Caumartin is a new theatre built only last year, seats almost five hundred people, and has a two-a-day clientele. It is one of the smartest theatres in Paris and its patronage is from the most fashionable class of theatre-goers.

When "Back Street' opened, it was considered a stroke of business for the Caumartin to book the very latest sensation to hit Paris. Any Fannie Hurst story is a good draw in the Parisian capital. The competition for the picture, however, put the price of the film rental at a figure which most theatre men in Paris regarded as ruinous. However, the production has proven intensely profitable not only to Universal Pictures, but to the theatre as well. With the exception of the summer months, the theatre has been practically sold out at every performance. During July and August attendance fell to a point where there was some hesitancy about continuing the run, but in September business again went to capacity and has so continued.

There is no disposition on the part of the theatre to stop the run after the year is up, so there is no telling how far this record will go.

In the old days of silent films there were a number of runs longer than this run of "Back Street" at the Caumartin Theatre in Paris. But since the advent of sound, there is no picture in the civilized world which has run anywhere near an entire year at any kind of theatre. "Back Street' is having equal success in its foreign showings in England, in Sydney, Australia, in India, Japan and in South America. Its only near rival for length of run seems to be "Be Mine Tonight," which has achieved a number of phenomenal runs in the United States and is duplicating these runs in foreign countries. Many of them are for twenty or more weeks.

✚ ✚ ✚

"BOMBAY MAIL," NEW YEAR'S RELEASE

UNIVERSAL'S New Years picture will be "Bombay Mail,' the mystery drama starring Edmund Lowe. The picture will be released nationally on January 1st. In the supporting cast of "Bombay Mail" are Shirley Grey, Ralph Forbes and Onslow Stevens. L. G. Blochman, novelist, wrote the story and screenplay for this picture of murder on Indian train.

The novel from the presses of Little Brown will make its appearance on the bookshelves at the same time. Blochman is an authority on India and his novel and movie are both graphic and unique. The entire action takes place on an express train between Calcutta and Bombay.

ALL ABOARD FOR "BOMBAY MAIL"

Norman Krasna On "Countess" Dialogue

UNIVERSAL has borrowed from M-G-M the services of Norman Krasna to do the dialogue for "The Countess of Monte Cristo." This picture will star Gloria Stuart and will be directed by Kurt Neuman if he recovers from his operation in time; otherwise by Ernst L. Frank. Henry Henigson, newly appointed associate manager will supervise the production. It is possible that Gloria Stuart, who has just returned from Berkeley to spend the Christmas holidays, will sing in the production, as she did in several of her pictures, notably in "The Secret of the Blue Room" and "I Like It That Way."

Posters That Smash A CROSS COU

The More Yo Spend In Advertisin
The Mor
You Get
In Profits!

ross A Box-Office Pull!

See Your Copy Of The Campaign Book For Complete Line Of Paper – Also Lobbies, Stunts, Ad Mats, Etc.

TRY CRUISE

KEN MAYNARD PULLS

"STRAWBERRY ROAN:" Ken Maynard—This thing is a big feature and should be played as such as its name is pre-sold to millions. Get on it and collect plenty. It's a natural anywhere westerns still go.—H. J. Brown, Majestic and Adelaide Theatres, Nampa, Id. General patronage.

"STRAWBERRY ROAN:" Ken Maynard—This is a bang up western and this star pulls. Don't let anyone tell you that the westerns are passe if they are any good at all. The cheap ones are no good, the trouble has been that they just slapped them together without rhyme or reason and branded them westerns. I am speaking only for the small towns, but it is my guess that good westerns with a popular star will again be a bet, when and if the farmer comes into some money. — A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

"THE TRAIL DRIVE"—Ken Maynard—One of the very best western pictures I have had in a long time. Running time, seven reels. Played Nov. 25.—J. A. Verchot, Opera House, Abbeville, S. C. General patronage.

MOTION PICTURE HERALD

WHAT THEY T

Harrison Likes "Horse Play"

GOOD comedy. It starts off rather slow, but it develops into a slapstick farce with many situations that will arouse hearty laughter. The real fun begins when Slim and Andy find themselves in English society. Of course, the comedy is rather silly, but one cannot help laughing at the funny situations both Slim and Andy get themselves into. One really funny situation is the one in which the two titled ladies come to visit Slim and Andy and after a few drinks forget their haughty manners; also the situation in which Slim and Andy arrive at the castle, and are puzzled at the manner in which they are greeted, not realizing that it was a costume ball. One of the funniest scenes is where some ants crawl under Slim's costume of armor and he is frantic until the costume is removed by a blacksmith. The closing scenes are fast, and fairly humorous.

Suitable for children, adolescents, and Sundays.

AN "EXPLOITATION NATURAL" AND A "M

Ford Bratcher
Edwin Rivers

GRANADA - REX THEATRES

Lewiston,
Idaho

UNIVERSAL FILM EXCHANGES
Seattle, Washington
Dear Mac:

You have an exploitation natural in "Invisible Man," and don't let anyone tell you otherwise.

When did we get a Thur., Fri. gross like this one? Not for a long time. So long I can't remember.

The boys who think that it's a Frankenstein or Dracula horror-picture and therefore won't do business—are skyrewy. It's NOT a horror picture. It's a "fantastic sensation"—something weird and different.

And don't think they're not curious to find out how you filmed an "Invisible Man"—and what they'd do if they could make themselves invisible, etc. We used H. G. Wells name very big. Think he's well enough known to give it a stamp of authenticity and class.

Cordially,

Eddie Rivers

NK OF UNIVERSAL

"MYRT AND MARGE" WIN CHUCKLES IN FIRST FILM

By Marion Stixrood in the Seattle Post Intelligencer

MYRT AND MARGE appear to be headed for as popular a career in the films as they have enjoyed for so long before the microphone.

Their first picture, titled appropriately "Myrt and Marge," came to the Roxy yesterday and gave their admirers ample opportunity to discover that "Personality" on the air isn't necessarily dissipated on the screen.

In a story of the tribulations of a road show troupe, Myrt is cast as the leading lady who, realizing her limitations, gracefully resigns to manage the fortunes of the company when financial difficulties suddenly make it a community affair. Marge, seen as the daughter of a small-town boarding house keeper, has stage aspirations, joins the troupe and, under the aegis of Myrt and the juvenile lead, develops talent that makes the show a success even in New York.

The picture is an out and out comedy — how could it be otherwise with Eddie Foy, Jr., Ted Healy and his pugilistic stooges, and the inimitable Ray Hedges as Clarence in the cast? But there is pleasant romance and some delightful music running through it, too, and the occasional very racy dialogue is too funny to be offensive.

Marge is an exceedingly pretty girl who has charm in keeping with her seductive voice. Grace Hayes, Thomas Jackson, Trixie Friganza, J. Farrell MacDonald and a clever commedienne called Bonnie, cast as members of the theatrical troupe, add to the fun and Universal has supplied the Colinette Ballet for a background of pulchritude.

WHERE'S ELMER?

"Where's Elmer" looks like a fair enough caption, and an envious one. Sure enough, where is he? The whole country has been excited for the last six months over this innocent sounding question, and Universal took it upon itself to answer the question. With Vince Barnett as the star, it produced a picture to answer this question,

"WHERE'S ELMER?"

Sure enough, it is a Warren Doane.

UNIVERSAL TWO REEL COMEDY

NIFICENT THRILLER" IN "INVISIBLE MAN"

Mr. Carl Laemmle, President
730 Fifth Avenue
New York City

GAZZETTA DEL MASSACHUSETTS

298 Hanover Street
Boston, Massachusetts

My dear Mr. Laemmle:

Of all the utterly impossible and magnificently constructed pictures I ever had the good fortune to see, your most recent master thriller "THE INVISIBLE MAN" certainly gets my vote and everlasting admiration. All I can say is: How did you ever do it? It was splendidly directed, more splendidly acted by that brilliant English star Claude Rains, and most assuredly, deliciously and thrillingly conceived by H. G. Wells. I saw the picture five times, and my impatient ego obliges me to see it five times more.

Gloria Stuart was delicately beautiful, and though her acting may not have been as sterling as that of the other leading members of the cast, nevertheless her beauty and wistfulness helped much with the success of the picture. Please congratulate Miss Stuart on my part.

I noticed our own Boston E. E. Clive. His acting is as refreshing as it is original. He, too, won the admiration of the patrons. Better and bigger parts for the future will suit him well.

As for you, sir, I have only my sincerest and warmest wishes for continued success. Both you and your son deserve praise in respective fields, and also for the manner in which you both go about the selection of fine plays and stories.

Thank you, and luck to you.

Most cordially yours,
Alfred K. Lucarotti (signed)
Feature Editor

Alfred K. Luc/MC

'Twas the week b and the Albee, Brooklyn, goes

OVER AVERAGE!*

*Variety Reports: "Albee (RKO) 'Counsellor at Law.' Good attendance and due to get $20,000, over average."

John BARR

COUNSELL

efore Christmas —

YMORE in
OR AT LAW

AD MATS—A

on a marvelous bo See your copy of book for comple

She knew how to get what she wanted — and all she wanted from men was the secrets they could divulge! . . . See the romance of a woman as ruthless as she was beautiful; as cunning as she was alluring, and as dangerous as she was clever! . . . It's a swift-moving drama that plunges you among the innermost secrets of men and women in high places!

HOW does a beautiful woman obtain secrets of state ?

MADAME SPY

with

FAY WRAY—NILS ASTHER

She used her beauty as a lure to snare the innermost secrets of men and nations! . . . See the love story of a ruthless adventuress!

Madame SPY

with

FAY WRAY
NILS ASTHER

Edward Arnold, John Miljan, Noah Beery, Robert Ellis, David Torrence. Produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr. A UNIVERSAL PICTURE presented by Carl Laemmle.

Madame SPY

She knew how to get what she wanted...and all she wanted from men was the secrets they could divulge!...See the thrilling love story of a beautiful but ruthless adventuress!

with

FAY WRAY
NILS ASTHER

Edward Arnold, John Miljan, Noah Beery. Screenplay by William Hurlbut. Original by Max Kimmich, Johannes Brandt, Joseph Than. Produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr. Directed by Karl Freund. Presented by Carl Laemmle. A UNIVERSAL PICTURE.

LL SIZES,

office picture.
he campaign assortment.

BEAUTIFUL
—but dangerous!
ADORABLE
—but deceitful!
GLAMOROUS
—but treacherous!
—yet first and last of all—
A WOMAN!

Madame SPY

FAY WRAY • NILS ASTHER

Edward Arnold, John M... Torrence. Produced by C... pres...

Foolish men believed her lies! Madame SPY

With Edward Arnold, John Miljan, Noah Beery. Screenplay by William Hurlbut. Original by Max Kimmich, Johannes Brandt, Joseph Than. Produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr. Directed by Karl Freund. Presented by Carl Laemmle. A UNIVERSAL PICTURE.

Foolish men believed her lies...and liked it!

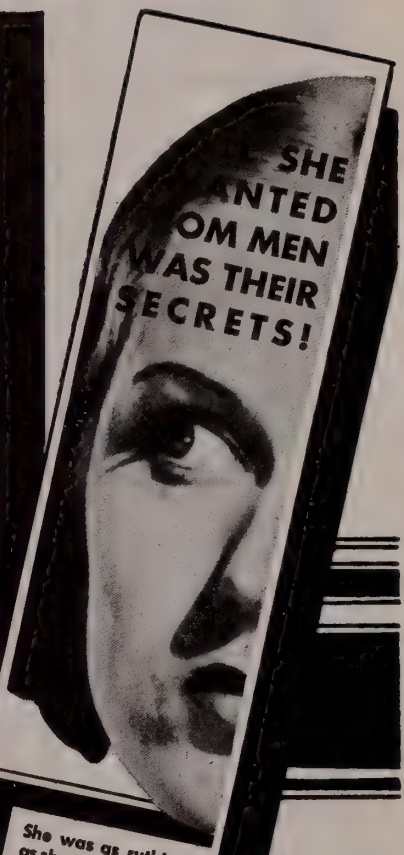
Madame SPY

See the story of a ruthless adventuress who becomes a loving wife, only to be plunged back into the role of adventuress!

with

FAY WRAY NILS ASTHER

Edward Arnold, John Miljan and others. Screenplay by William Hurlbut. Original by Max Kimmich, Johannes Brandt, Joseph Than. Produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr. Directed by Karl Freund. Presented by Carl Laemmle. A UNIVERSAL PICTURE.



SHE ANTED OM MEN WAS THEIR SECRETS!

She was as ruthless as she was beautiful; as cunning as she was alluring, and as dangerous as she was clever!... See the love story of an adventuress!

Madame SPY

with

FAY WRAY NILS ASTHER

Edward Arnold, John Miljan, Noah Beery. Screenplay by William Hurlbut. Original by Max Kimmich, Johannes Brandt, Joseph Than. Produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr. Directed by Karl Freund. Presented by Carl Laemmle. A UNIVERSAL PICTURE.

HOW does a beautiful woman obtain secrets of state? See—

Madame SPY

with

FAY WRAY NILS ASTHER

Edward Arnold, John Miljan, Noah Beery, Robert Ellis, David Torrence. Produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr. A UNIVERSAL PICTURE presented by Carl Laemmle.

BEAUTIFUL
—but dangerous!
ADORABLE
—but deceitful!
GLAMOROUS
—but treacherous!
—yet first and last of all—
A WOMAN!

madame SPY

with

FAY WRAY NILS ASTHER

Edward Arnold, John Miljan and others. Screenplay by William Hurlbut. Original by Max Kimmich, Johannes Brandt, Joseph Than. Produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr. Directed by Karl Freund. Presented by Carl Laemmle. A UNIVERSAL PICTURE.

Another Hit from Universal!

Yes, sir! Universal's clicking 'em out one after the other! "Only Yesterday," "Invisible Man," "Counsellor at Law," "By Candlelight," . . . AND NOW . . . BOMBAY MAIL, the most exciting, the most novel, the most colorful mystery drama of the season . . . a great screen story with its locale on a train speeding across India! Unusual characters, unusual backgrounds, unusual treatment, AN UNUSUAL PICTURE!

EDMUND LOWE

CARL LAEMMLE presents

BOMB

NOTE:

You can reproduce this drawing of Edmund Lowe directly from this page for your newspaper ads., or enlarge and color it for your lobby. Or you can get it in one, two and three - column mats from your exchange.

With Ralph Forbes, Shirley Grey, Hedda Hopper, Onslow Stevens, Tom Moore, John Wray, Brandon Hurst. Screenplay by Tom Reed from the novel by L. G. Blochman. Produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr. Directed by Edwin L. Marin

AY MAIL

Ready For Carl Laemmle Anniversary Jubilee

Here is McIntyre and his "down under" bunch of go getters in the most successful Convention of Universal salesmen ever held in Australia. McIntyre is in the center of the bottom row. Seems as though Carl Laemmle's business was in good hands—judging by their faces and by their record.

What They Say Of Mentone Musicals

"THE BIG BENEFIT"—"It is an enjoyable variety revue"—Film Daily.

"THE BIG BENEFIT"—"It provides considerable entertainment"—Motion Picture Herald.

"THE BIG BENEFIT"—"Has plenty of laughs—Motion Picture Daily.

"THE BIG BENEFIT"—"Novel at the outset . . . there's nothing wishy-washy about this short" —Variety.

"ALL AT SEA"—"An entertaining subject, Mentone's first production and a good start"—Motion Picture Daily.

"BIG CASINO"—"A lively two-reeler . . .with plenty of varied night club entertainment put over in a new atmosphere."—Film Daily.

The Mentone Productions, released by Universal, have been receiving wide critical praise lately. It is of interest to note what the leading trade journals say of several of the latest of these two-reel featurettes.

"ON THE AIR AND OFF"—"Entertaining capacity of the subject is sufficient to insure its favorable audience reaction."—Variety.

"THE BIG BENEFIT"—"Absolutely the most entertaining two-reeler on the market. Music and dancing that will please all. More favorable comments on this than most good feature pictures."—H. E. Newbury, Y.M.-C.A. Theatre, Ware Shoals, S.C.

✚ ✚ ✚

DOUBLE APPEAL IN "BELOVED"

(Continued from Page 5)

original compositions by Victor Schertzinger, who directed the picture. That in itself is an event in motion pictures. But in addition, "Beloved" is a fine, absorbing drama, painstakingly cast. It is real entertainment. Trade paper reviews have been unanimous in these conclusions.

John Boles sings in "Beloved." This pair, appearing together for the first time, is expected to create a great demand for the Boles and Stuart brands of drama. Aside from these two stars, "Beloved" boasts a cast that rivals "Only Yesterday" in its high quality. Edmund Breese, Mickey Rooney, Mae Busch, Jimmy Butler, Lucille La Verne, Dorothy Peterson, Ruth Hall and Neysa Nourse all appear in the picture.

Paul Gangelin wrote the story of "Beloved," which details the lifetime struggles of a composer. The turn from symphonic music to jazz, the conflict of generations, are themes which run through the picture. Beauty, pathos, and love all comingle. "Beloved" is a B. F. Zeidman production.

OSWALD
The LUCKY RABBIT
The Star Who Never Disappoints!

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY SHOWMANSHIP SECTION

A DIGEST OF THE BEST EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

GET READY FOR A GREAT SHOWMANSHIP YEAR!

THE New Year is here! A lot of folks have a habit of doing a bit of housecleaning at the beginning of each New Year. Most of this is purely physical . . . which is all right, too; but it might not be a bad idea to make this an occasion for some mental housecleaning.

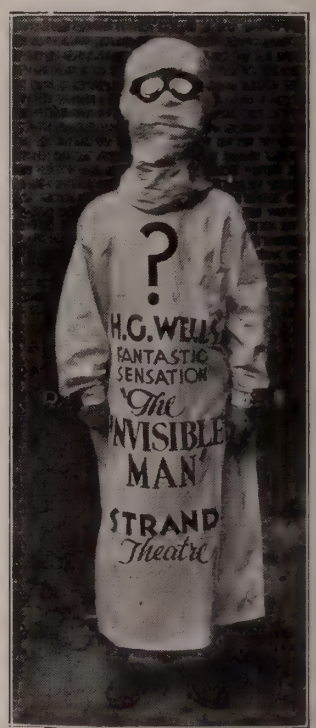
When you clean up your files and desk and begin to prepare your plans for the coming year's work why not clean the mental files at the same time.

It is quite likely that you will discover there are a lot of old ideas lodged in the hidden corners of your mind which have overlapped from times that do not anly longer exist . . . ideas that should be chucked in the wastebasket!

Every New Year is always a New Year in every sense of the word in show business. New trends, improved conditions, and a different spending attitude on the part of the public are all challenges to your originality and aggressiveness . . .and demand a new order of thinking and action.

Throw out the old ideas or revamp them to meet the new order. Clean up the mental attic and get ready for a great year of showmanship. There will be a lot of business for everybody this new year . . . but the greater share, as always, will go to those with the greatest vision . . . and the men who have the courage to take the lead in new movements. Vim and vigor, physically, are important assets . . . but thought comes before action where successful results are to be expected.

A. J. SHARICK



This adaptation of a pressbook suggestion, created an eye-catching sidewalk ballyhoo for Flynn Stubblefield, manager of the Strand Theatre, Louisville. See story on next page.

An unusual front at the Alhambra Theatre for "THE INVISIBLE MAN." Stanley Meyer created this attention getting display. Side panels feature magic mirrors.

SHOWMANSHIP AWARDS!

Three wide-awake theatre men join the ranks of certificate winners this week through outstanding showmanship on Universal Pictures. Here they are:

HAROLD KAPLAN, manager of the Minnesota Theatre, Minneapolis, Minn., for his elaborate, advance lobby on "ONLY YESTERDAY."

WILLIAM S. WILDER, Managing Director of the Newport Theatre, Norfolk, Va., for showmanship tactics in exploiting "ONLY YESTERDAY."

SIDNEY LARSCHAN, manager of the Park Theatre, Brooklyn, N. Y., for his "PERILS OF PAULINE" campaign.

Congratulations! Your certificates, signed by Mr. Laemmle, are in the mail!

ST. LOUIS "DEBS" HELP PLUG "ONLY YESTERDAY"

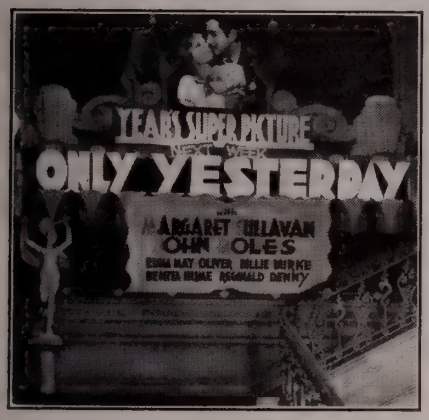
When George Tyson and Christy Wilbert, handling the "Only Yesterday" campaign for the Ambassador, St. Louis, previewed the picture for a group of local debutantes, they netted their campaign a lot of swell co-operation. The society girls were so enthused over Margaret Sullavan and the picture, they voluntarily sent out a flock of postal cards selling the picture to all their friends. They also made several personal contacts boosting the attraction. And to cap the climax the newspapers went for the preview stunt and played it up with plenty of art and stories.

Ready written post cards for patrons to use in recommending the picture to their friends, were used throughout the run. Two girls stationed in the foyer made a telephone campaign of the entire city. Large signs advised patrons that they could have any of their friends called and told about the picture without cost.

The Lux tie-up netted a prominent ad in the Times on opening day, in addition to five hundred special snipes that were used by dealers for window displays.

Tire covers were used on the rear of two hundred taxicabs. Special art panels were planted in book store windows obtained through the book tie-up. A newspaper limerick contest was conducted by the Star-Times. Extra newspaper space rounded out the successful campaign.

The Ambassador Theatre, St. Louis, provided free phone service for patrons who wanted to tell their friends not to miss "ONLY YESTERDAY."



Giant advance display used on stairway of the Ambassador Theatre, St. Louis. Credit George Tyson and Christy Wilbert for this "eye-catcher."

STUBBLEFIELD MAKES LOUISVILLE "INVISIBLE MAN" CONSCIOUS

Flynn Stubblefield, manager of the Strand Theatre, Louisville, recognizing the big money making possibilities of "INVISIBLE MAN" doubled his campaign budget and turned the town upside down with a smash campaign.

On the third and fourth days prior to the opening, one column by twenty line teaser ads were scattered throughout all the newspapers. In addition, the space for the regular ads were considerably increased.

Extra quantities of window cards, one, three, six and twenty-four sheet posters were spotted in prominent locations throughout the city. Three thousand each of three different style teaser cards were distributed ten days in advance of the opening. At the same time, six hundred accessory teaser snipes were posted.

Attractive displays in vacant store windows were made up by using the 22 x 28's and poster cut-outs. Numerous displays in book store windows were obtained through the book tie-up. Specially prepared cards were planted in public and circulating libraries.

Additional highlights of Stubblefield's effective campaign were, a special preview of the picture for critics and a handpicked audience—the use of a magic mirror in the lobby and the walking "invisible man" ballyhoo, adaptations of pressbook suggestions. Duke Hickey, Universal exploiteer assisted on the campaign.

Edwina Preetorius, Betty Thomas and Norma Engle, the St. Louis "debs." who arranged a special preview for local society girls and mailed hundreds of post cards recommending the picture.

CASH IN ON THIS GREAT NATIONAL ADVERTISING!

A Few of Carl Laemmle's Personal Column Ads in The Saturday Evening Post

For over ten years Carl Laemmle has been telling millions of readers every month about Universal pictures through his personal column in the Saturday Evening Post. This great national advertising appearing consistently over this long period of years has built up a tremendous following of steady readers and an invaluable amount of good will! Are you taking advantage of this powerful sales aid? Its main job is to help you sell seats! Why not cash in on it? Play Universal pictures and let your public know about them. Use the Universal trade mark on your ads; in your lobby displays use the line: "A Universal Picture." Clip the ads as they appear in the Post, make a fan of several of them and mount them on a board with this copy: "These Universal Pictures Are Coming to This Theatre. Watch for Them In Our Advance Program!"

Not only is Universal giving you the pictures and telling the millions about them, but it is giving you pictures that are box-office successes. Already "Only Yesterday," "Invisible Man" and "Counsellor at Law" have proven their worth. Set for release in the next two months are "Bombay Mail," "Madame Spy," "Cross Country Cruise," "I Like It That Way" and "Beloved," pictures that will add to the growing list of Universal hits. And there are others to come. Pictures that promise to make new screen history and set new records that will challenge the industry to break.

Book these pictures now and then let your public know they are coming to your theatre.

ANNIVERSARY JUBILEE IS BIG OPPORTUNITY FOR EXHIBITORS!

Every showman will want to be in on the CARL LAEMMLE ANNIVERSARY JUBILEE not only to take part in this demonstration for the industry's greatest leader, but because it means that he will play some of the greatest exploitation pictures ever released!

What other company has given you hit after hit the way Carl Laemmle has done this year? What other company has given you such swell opportunities to cash in on your showmanship ability? Three in a row as a starter isn't bad! It's more than the average company releases in a whole year! "ONLY YESTERDAY," "INVISIBLE MAN" and "COUNSELLOR AT LAW" are hits, definite hits everywhere they have played, and the real showmen who have played them have revelled in the big campaigns they have inspired!

JOIN THE BIG-HIT CELEBRATION
•
Carl Laemmle
ANNIVERSARY
JUBILEE
Jan. 6—March 10

During the Jubilee, from January 6th to March 10th, releases such as "BOMBAY MAIL," "MADAME SPY," "CROSS COUNTRY CRUISE" and "I LIKE IT THAT WAY," a departure in musical comedy screen entertainment, will add other hits to this list, "BELOVED," the musical romance of the century, is also due for release during this period, and has already been placed in the big hit class by advance reviewers.

And the best is yet to come! Scheduled for production on the second half of the year's product are Fannie Hurst's "IMITATION OF LIFE," Charles G. Norris' "ZEST" and "LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?" a Frank Borzage production from the story by Hans Fallada. There never have been three stories to beat this trio!

Every one of these pictures will be backed by a strong exploitation campaign. Seat selling accessories, stunts, contests, lobby display suggestions, display lines and every other item necessary to help you put them over to satisfactory box-office results, will be provided.

As in the past the pages of the Showmanship Section of the Universal Weekly will give you the details of successful showmanship as used on these productions. Everything possible will be done to help you put over successfully the greatest product of the year!

Join the big-hit celebration! Play Universal pictures every week during the jubilee. Take you hat off to Carl Laemmle and cash in on the greatest series of hit pictures ever released by any company on one year's program.

THE SMALL TOWN'S BIG BET RIGHT NOW!
S·O·S
ICEBERG

HERE'S TYSON'S SHOWMANSHIP AD CAMPAIGN FOR THE AMBASSADOR, ST. LOUIS "ONLY YESTERDAY" RUN

I LIKE IT THAT WAY

From

UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP

730 FIFTH AVENUE

NEW YORK CITY

LARRY EDMUNDS, INC.
CINEMA BOOKSHOP
HOLLYWOOD, CALIF.

ROBERT B WENNER
22 CROSS ST
MALDEN MASS

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
Paid
Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

"McNAMEE MEANS MONEY IN OUR BOX-OFFICE"

–Harry Spiegel, Family Theatre,
Scranton, Pa.

UNIVERSAL NEWSREEL

Printed in U. S. A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

VOL. 34 FEB. 3, 1934 NO. 8

You're walking right into the money when you
STEP OUT
WITH UNIVER
SHO

SAL

RTS

THINK ABOUT

No. 758 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

Keep this issue of the Universal Weekly.

Study it.

It deals largely with short product — and that is a subject you don't give half enough attention to, whether you admit it or not.

Look through the ads on our short product and imagine each and every one of these pictures in your own theatre.

Do some real thinking about each one.

Don't make the serious mistake of tossing this off as a minor subject. Short subjects are minor in length only. If they are good, they round out your show to perfection and sometimes they even prove to be the thing your patrons talk about.

Whether it is a newsreel or a cartoon or a novelty or a short comedy, you should devote as much thought to the selection of it as you do to your feature, because you never can tell when a good short will make the fan satisfied with the money he paid to get into your theatre.

YOUR SHORTS

Universal at one time made about twice as many shorts as it does today.

We cut down on the quantity, but we added even more to the quality. To give you the kind of short subject you need in these days, we have to spend much more per subject than we ever did before — and I'm not talking about 60-cent dollars, but 100-cent dollars.

The best features in the world seldom satisfy EVERY-ONE in your audience. But the very man who is disappointed in your feature picture will find something satisfying in your shorts, if you select them with a great deal of care and demand the best.

Universal offers you every kind of short that is GOOD. We offer variety enough for any theatre to select from.

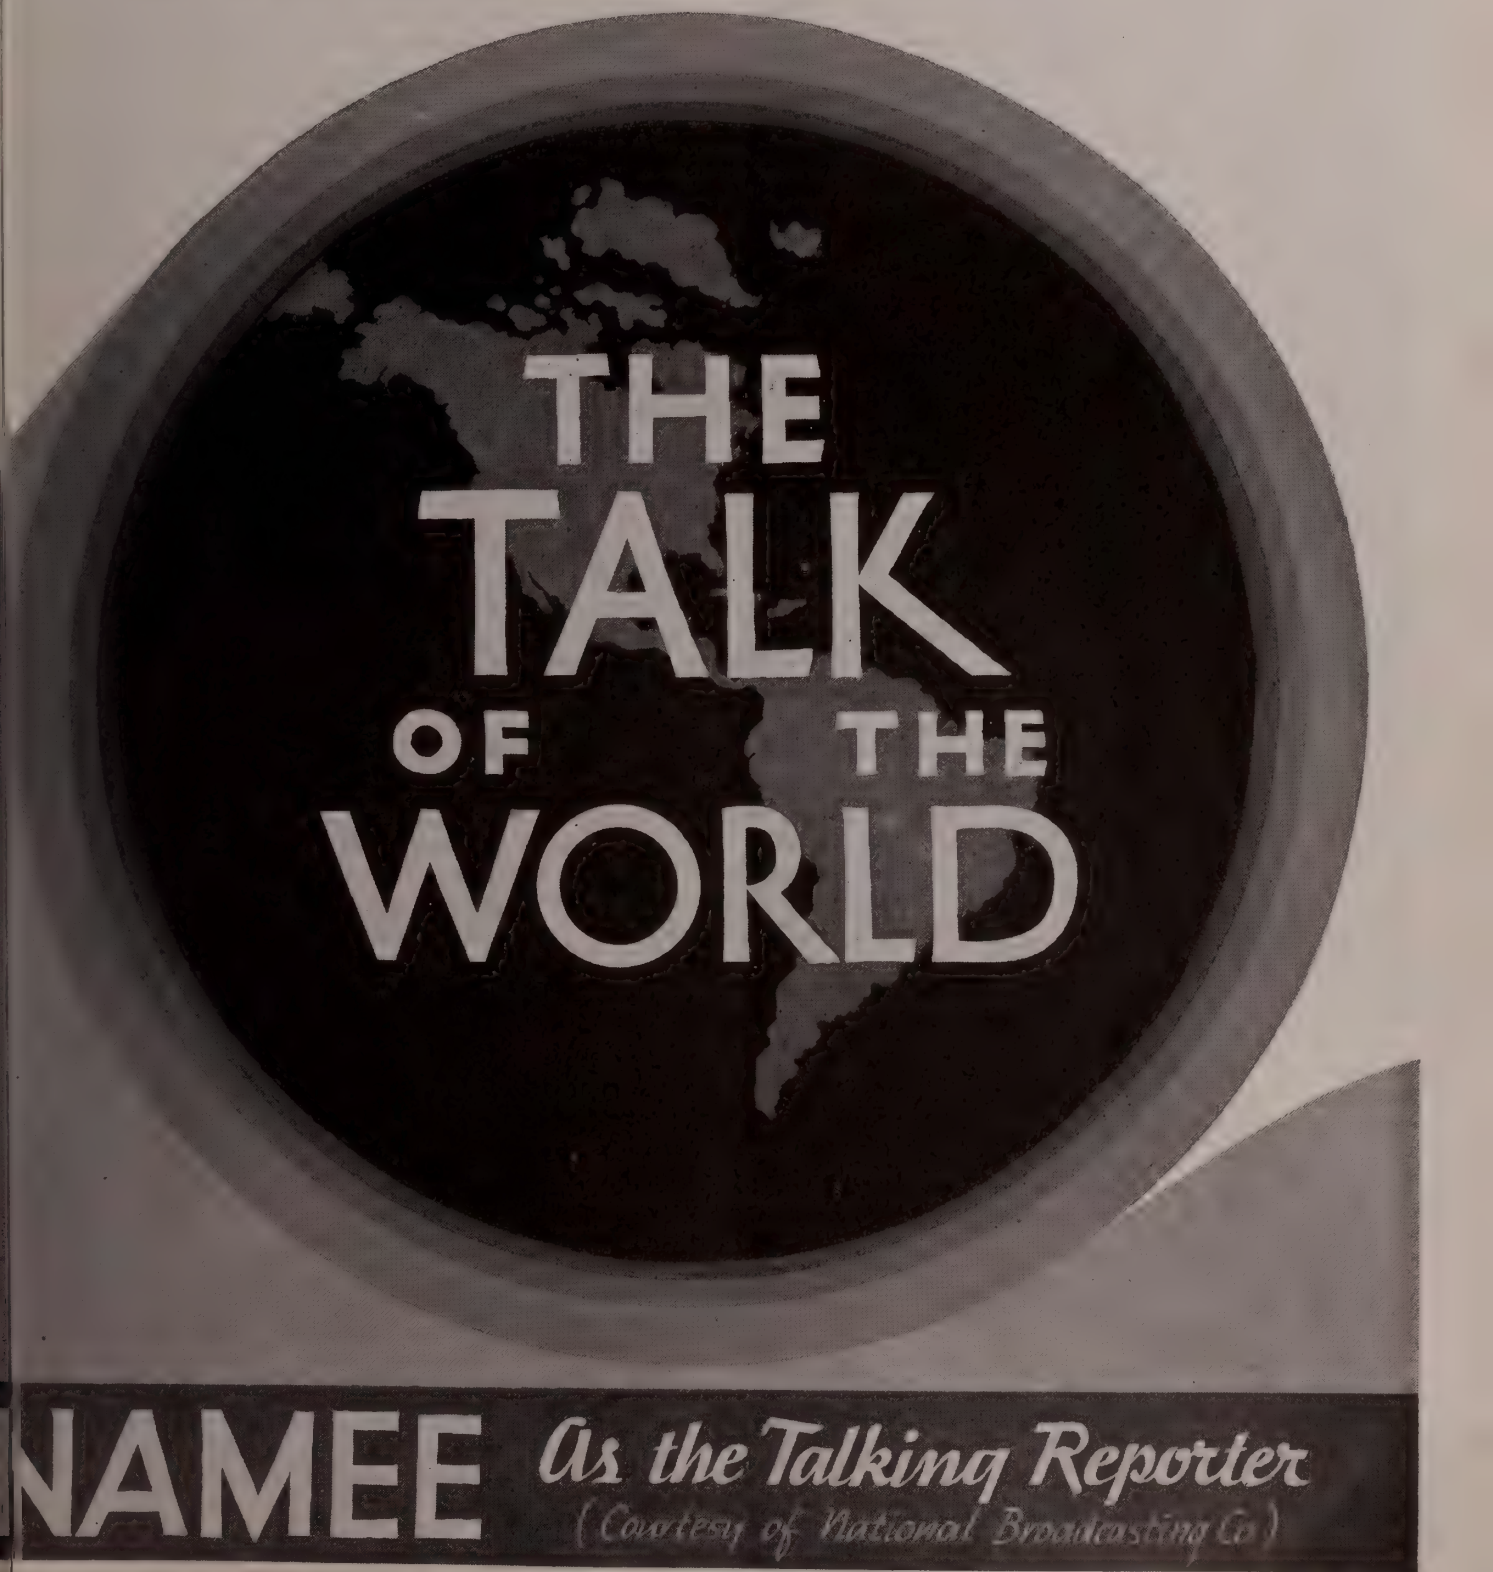
We offer them with a good deal of pride, because they are the cream of the market, and far more important to the success of your show than their short length would indicate.

Think about your shorts!

Carl Laemmle

UNIVERSAL
NEWSREEL
With GRAHAM Mc

Within the past few months Universal Newsreel again has scored several more important exclusives and several more "firsts" on current events . . . When you add this sort of enterprise to EVERYTHING ELSE you get in Universal Newsreel you know you are getting the best reel on the market . . . The reel that has 135 newspaper allies throughout the country . . . The newsreel that has an absolutely provable BOX-OFFICE PULL.



Robb & Rowley Circuit Honors Laemmle

(The Robb and Rowley Circuit is one of the most successful and most substantial circuits of theatres in Texas. It consists of eighteen houses. In order to honor Carl Laemmle and to impress their patrons with the excellence of "Beloved," the press department in all towns sent out the following story to the newspapers. We are reproducing it here in just the way it was written as an example of the way in which an enterprising and grateful theatre chain took advantage of the Laemmle Drive to arouse interest in a picture they were going to play.)

R. & R. Theatres has joined the motion picture industry in paying homage to Carl Laemmle, venerable head of Universal Pictures Corporation, on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of his coming to America and his twenty-eighth as a producer of motion pictures, by designating its new and greater R & R Super Road Show which comes to .....Theatre ..... "The Carl Laemmle Appreciation Program."

This program is composed exclusively of Universal pictures. It is featured by Universal's fourth outstanding production this season, "BELOVED" a dramatic romance with haunting music and songs, co-starring John Boles and Gloria Stuart; and includes "Palsie Walsie," a comedy with Henry Armetta and Mickey Daniels, and OSWALD, the lucky rabbit, in "CHICKEN REEL."

Mr. Laemmle is a unique figure in the motion picture industry. No other man has been boss of his own producing studios for any period comparable to Carl Laemmle's presidency of Independent Motion Picture Company—or IMP which he founded to feature Mary Pickford, then a little ingenue whose name as a Biograph player had never been divulged to moviegoers—and of IMP'S outgrowth, the great Universal Pictures Corporation of today.

For twenty-eight years Mr. Laemmle has been a big factor in film production and distribution. From his mammoth Universal City studios has flowed dependable product, with now and again amazing superproductions which instituted cycles—as, for example: "Hunchback of Notre Dame," "Frankenstein," "King of Jazz," "Spirit of Notre Dame," "Back Street," and others. From his offices has radiated a policy of fair dealing and of keeping faith with exhibitors, with competitors, with players and other employees which has won him the respect and esteem of everybody in any manner concerned with the film industry.

The 1934 season augurs well for the quiet, unassuming little man who is 'Uncle Carl" to those who know him and Mr. Laemmle to you; for his Universal Company and its other officials; for exhibitors and the public. Basis for this statement is to be found in reports emanating throughout the country which indicate that Universal is setting the pace—a pace which will be hard to follow. Already this season it has released three great hits: "Only Yesterday," "The Invisible Man," and "Counsellor at Law." The fourth, "Beloved" appears here soon, as stated above. Its selection as a super road show feature by R & R Theatres stamps it as a film of outstanding merit.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
730 Fifth Avenue, New York City
Copyrighted 1933
Universal Pictures Corp.
(All Rights Reserved)
FEBRUARY 3, 1934
Vol. 34 No. 8

"Let's Be Ritzy"

"LET'S BE RITZY" has been chosen as the title for the next Lew Ayres production. It was adapted from the William Anthony McGuire Broadway play, "A Great Little Guy." It was current at the Mansfield Theatre several seasons ago. William Ludwig, the director, will have in the cast Frank McHugh, Isabell Jewell, Patricia Ellis, Burton Churchill, Hedda Hopper, Nydia Westman, Robert McWade and Addison Richards. "Let's Be Ritzy" went into production on Monday of this week.

Lukas Moves Over

CAMERA work on "The Countess of Monte Cristo" was finished late Saturday night. Paul Lukas, who was working with his arm in splints, will move over to the "Glamour" set, where he will be featured with Constance Cummings and Russ Columbo in this Edna Ferber story. "Glamour," a B. F. Zeidman production, will get under way early this week under the direction of William Wyler. It will be produced with an elaborate musical setting.

"Vanishing Shadow" Gets Off to Great Start

"THE VANISHING SHADOW," Universal's fourth adventure serial of the present Big Five lineup, got under way this week at West Basin Bay, Wilmington, California. Following scenes will be filmed at the lonely Point Farmin light-house, five miles off the shore of Wilmington, in the Pacific Ocean, also on the schooner "Lottie Carson," and at Universal City.

The story deals with modern electrical science and the wizardry of an inventor who has discovered electrical rays of incomparable power and adaptability. The invention is desired by a group of shady politicians whose search for it carries them to out-of-the way places and through many hazardous adventures. Onslow Stevens, cast in a serial for the second time, plays the role of a young newspaper man who successfully combats the efforts of the crooks to gain possession of the ray and restores it to its rightful owner and the benefit of humanity.

The cast supporting Stevens includes Ada Ince, inheritor of a splendid screen name, Walter Miller, James Durkin, William Desmond, Charles Cramer, Sidney Bracy, Eddie Cobb. The director is Louis Friedlander, who has served on the Universal lot in many capacities for a number of years and with this picture is given his first chance to direct.

Onslow Stevens and Ada Ince, as they appear in Universal's serial, "The Vanishing Shadow," now being made at Universal City.

Goofytone on Broadway

ON Wednesday Goofytone News No. 4 started an indefinite run at the Criterion Theatre, New York City, where the English version of "Maedchen in Uniform" is the feature picture. This is an exceptional honor for Goofytone News, as No. 1 already played the Criterion for four weeks when "S.O.S. Iceberg" was enjoying its run at that theatre. Goofytone Newsreel goes swell with audiences. Issue No. 1 has given great satisfaction all over the country. Nos. 2, 3 and 4 are now ready for booking.

Oswald Sets Eight Titles

EIGHT titles including the current one are announced by that intriguing master of the impossible, Oswald the Lucky Rabbit. The current picture in which he is appearing is called "The Candy House" and is a humorous and much exaggerated version of "Hansel and Gretel." It has received a splendid review, as can be seen on page ten.

The next release is "The County Fair" and will be ready on February 5th. It will be followed by "The Toy Shop," "The Gingerbread Boy," "Wolf Wolf," "Annie Moved Away," and one Mother Goose Tale and a legend of Switzerland. The Mother Goose tale is "Goldilocks and the Three Bears" and the legendary story that of "William Tell." The release following that will probably be "The Wax Works."

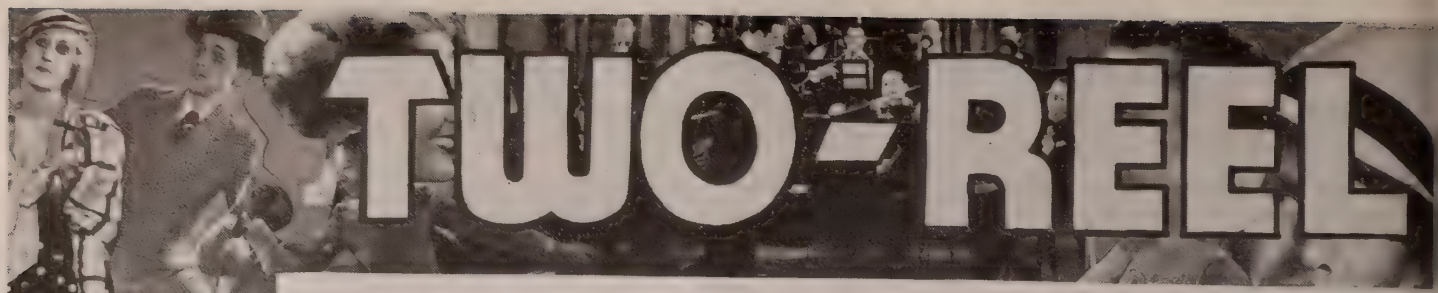
GREAT NEWS

Three hundred exhibitors can praise their lucky stars that they run theatres in towns where "Strange As It Seems" appears as a newspaper strip. There is a swell tie-up between the theatres and the newspapers. If you are not enjoying it, it is your fault. See your exchange for details and a trailer. See the exploitation pages of this issue for details and further exploitation ideas on Universal short product.

If there is no newspaper in your town running "Strange As It Seems," notify your exchange immediately and the exchange will try to do something about it, through the McNaught Syndicate.

"World's Greatest Thrills"

OF all the subjects which have been praised for action, excitement and daring, none can compare with "The World's Greatest Thrills," the two-reel subject which is one of the standard releases of all time. It never will grow old; its fascination will never cease to grip audiences. There is no reason why "The World's Greatest Thrills" will not be a standard release in Exchanges for the next three or four years, or until Allyn Butterfield, its compiler, gathers together another bunch of excitement to put it in the discard.



26 Warren Doane Productions

Real quality comedies with box-office personalities, and the same zip and action that made Universal comedies famous in the silent days. Real, honest-to-goodness ATTRACTIONS featuring such names as

LOUISE FAZENDA

HENRY ARMETTA

JAMES GLEASON

VINCE BARNETT

STERLING HOLLOWAY

and many others

13 MENTONE MUSICALS

The biggest stars of vaudeville and legit brought to you in snappy subjects, each of which is a show in itself. Featuring such folks as:

NICK LUCAS – VINCENT LOPEZ – LEON BELASCO – ETHEL BARRYMORE COLT–LEON JANNEY–RAE SAMUELS–THREE X SISTERS–TITO GUIZAR–ALBERTINA RASCH GIRLS HAROLD STERN – JOE LAURIE, Jr. – HARRY HIRSCHFIELD – and many, many others

13 RADIO PERSONALITIES

The greatest names of radio, doing their specialties. WALTER WINCHELL – MORTON DOWNEY – BOSWELL SISTERS – ART JARRETT – THE STREET SINGER – BUDDY ROGERS – MILDRED BAILEY – and scores of others

What They Think Of Universal Shorts

"The best Oswald yet" is what they will say when exhibitors run "The Candy House," which is the latest Oswald release. This is the familiar story of "Hansel and Gretel," animated and humorized by Walter Lantz and William Nolan. It is by far the best Oswald produced to date and has already received the critical applause of reviewers. Read below.

Film Daily Gives "The Candy House" Great Send-Off

Review of Latest Oswald Comedy Calls This Release "Exceptional"

Oswald in

"The Candy House"

Universal 9 mins.

Exceptional

This is an exceptional achievement, worthy of ranking with the best animated cartoons. In rhyme and with pleasant lilting music, the tale of Hansel and Gretel and their cruel stepmother is unfolded. Amusing, suspenseful and ending happily, this one will win the plaudits of all who cheered the "Three Little Pigs."

Sterling Holloway in

"Not the Marrying Kind"

(Warren Doane Comedy)

Universal 20 mins.

Comedy Wow

This lad Sterling Holloway is stepping right along as a strong comedy bet. In this one he wows you with a characterization of the sap college pal of Eddie Nugent, the football hero. He sells Sterling the idea of eloping with his girl to a hotel and registering there as man and wife till Eddie can get a license and a justice of the peace. Complications that are hilarious arise when the girl's father arrives at the hotel and starts to make trouble for Sterling. Marion Shilling is the girl. Plenty of funny gags and situations.

RICHARD TALMADGE in "PIRATE TREASURE"

(Serial)

Universal Approx. 18 mins.

"First Rate"

If the achievement of the first three episodes of this new serial are continued, exhibitors will rejoice and the kid customers gloat. Romance, thrills, action, adventure and glamour mark the first installments. The plot concerns Dick Moreland (Richard Talmadge), who is shown completing a solo round-the-world-flight. He has won a $25,000 prize and with the money proposes to seek the pirate gold buried by a buccaneer uncle whose map he possesses. Relating his plan at the exclusive Aero Club he is overheard by Walter Miller. The first three issues are devoted to the attempts to steal the map. Romantic interest and the narrative are well-developed.

✚ ✚ ✚

"Strange As It Seems" No. 35

Universal 10 mins.

Very Interesting

Such items as the bare-breasted Balinese women in one of their more picturesque religious fetes, the Mexican drug-doctors, eighty-year old Mrs. Vickery who has developed into a successful mural painter, unusual Mexico City fisheries and the rock baths of the Siwash Indians are among the first-rate clips which comprise this reel.

Book Plenty of these Highly Praised
UNIVERSAL SHORTS to Tone Up your Programs in Celebrating the
CARL LAEMMLE ANNIVERSARY JUBILEE

A Tribute To Universal Cameramen

The above cartoon was released Tuesday by King Features to its great list of daily newspapers throughout the country. The cut above was made from the Daily Mirror of New York and special permission was given to reprint it in the Universal Weekly by Mr. B. A. Caporell of King Features. It tells the story of the heroism of Universal cameraman Joe Gibson. Universal Weekly has itself praised Gibson to the skies and Carl Laemmle wrote him a beautiful letter enclosing a lovely check. So that makes it unanimous.

Typical Trade Paper Report

Oswald in "The Candy House" — 9 mins.

Universal — Exceptional

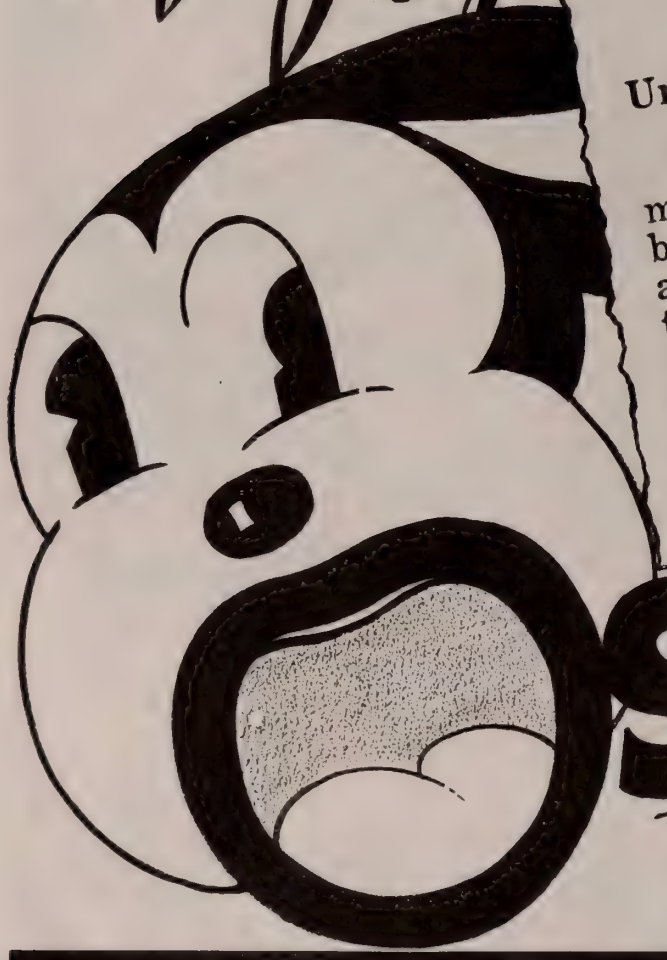
This is an exceptional achievement, worthy of ranking with the best animated cartoons. In rhyme and with pleasant lilting music, the tale of Hansel and Gretel and their cruel stepmother is unfolded. Amusing, suspenseful and ending happily, this one will win the plaudits of all who cheered the "Three Little Pigs."

—Film Daily



OSWALD

The LUCKY RABBIT

26 ONE-REELERS

13 GOOFYT

Kidding the newsreels with the goofiest news shots you ever saw. The first real novelty comedy idea in years and years!

"Strange As It Seems

(Universal)

This has some very interesting and unusual shots. Donald Kerr, a student at Tulane University who has but one leg is an all-around athlete. Miss Alma Travis, a colored singer, has carried 20 large pins in her mouth since childhood. Then for the lover of nature there is a study of the different fish to be found at the bottom of the sea. Running time, 8½ minutes.

"Strange as It Seems"

(Universal)

Something entirely new is shown in this one. It is an octopus guarding its eggs, a million or so of them. It includes a microscopic view of an octopus inside an egg. Another subject is a natural well of dry ice that freezes things instantly. New views of the Grand Canyon, a Yucca plant, a horned toad sealed in cement for 90 days that comes out alive, and odd uses of cactus as food are also a part of the reel. It is very interesting. Running time, 10 mins.

"Strange as It Seems

(Universal)

There are a number of interesting oddities shown in this issue of the color magazine, which is keeping up high standard. The subjects include the champion of horseshoe throwers who is just as adept at the sport with his feet as his hands; and an 80-year-old man "who has never slept a wink in his life." Running time, 9 minutes.

trange As It Seems"

Time, 14 mins.
iversal

Fine Novelty

A fine assembly of novelty incidents. Opens with views of a six-legged sheep and cross-eyed dog. Then an exhibit on how gold leaf is prepared. The Navajo Indians make rug their colored pictures in the sand, said to be the first time this ancient ceremonial has ever been photographed. How a fat boy weighing 400 pounds is handled with the help of a block and pulley is interesting. The best bit is that of a young man born without arms who uses his toes with remarkable dexterity to eat, dress and perform all the usual human functions. A fine collection of unusual scenes.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS : This is interesting which my patrons enjoyed. Running time, ten minutes.—Louis Perretta, Crescent Theatre, Mahoningtown, Pa. General patronage.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS: The finest reel of its type. In fact, it is in a class by itself. This one in particular is especially interesting and diversified. Running time, 9 minutes.—M. R. Harrington, State Theatre, Portland, Ore. General patronage.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS: One of the best short reels on the market. I feature my short reels the same as feature pictures and in many cases the shorts will save the show. Running time, 10 minutes. —R. W. Reckman, Lyric Theatre, Greenville, Ill. Small town patronage.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS

Conceded by exhibitors everywhere to be the greatest novelty reel in the business . . . Often draws over the feature . . . A subject made in conjunction with the daily drawings of John Hix, Jr., which appear in more than 300 newspapers throughout the country . . . A SURE-FIRE AUDIENCE PLEASER.

(Clippings from Motion Picture Daily and Film Daily)

"Strange as It Seems"

9 mins.
Universal

Good Novelty

Interesting throughout, this release shows five curious facts with a snappy running fire description. First is a Belgian sailor who balances weights on his index finger, then follows scenes of a cactus pear farm. The fact that threads from a spider's web are used in surveying instruments and are essential in the delicate construction of measuring lenses is graphically described. Traditional customs of the American Navy and the oldest enlisted man, and a sequence devoted to Eskimos, their habits, work and recreation, complete the reel.

"Strange As It Seems.

(Universal)

An addition to this series that rates well with the best of its predecessors. Some particularly interesting subjects in this release are the Chicken Soup Springs at Steamboat Springs, Nev.; breeding of the Japanese long-tailed Tosa rooster; the gold mine mule that chews tobacco and the Nevada Mountain aviation field, said to be the first in the world. Running time, 9 mins.

Strange As It Seems

(Universal)

Very Good

Replete with interesting items and enhanced by gorgeous colors blended for effectiveness, this short rates aces on any bill. The series are compiled by John Hix. You can't go wrong booking this series of unusual events. Running time, 10 minutes.

"Strange As It Seems,

(Universal)

The most fascinating of the series by a wide margin, proving that fact can be made as entertaining as drama or comedy. It depicts the cultivation of an orchid, requiring seven years in the process; a deer ranch; the home life of an Indian family; a microscopic study of a drop of water showing innumerable species of life; a New Orleans man with such a strong abdomen that he merely staggers a bit when a large cannon ball is fired against it; and close-ups of lady bugs imported from Australia to destroy the mealy bugs which threatened the California fruit crop, with interesting close-ups of the feasts. This will appeal to all types of theatre-goers. Produced in Multicolor. Running time, 9 minutes.

TRANGE AS IT SEEMS: These subjects are ays good. We use them about once a month and our patrons asking for them.—Horn and Morgan, Theatre, Hay Springs, Nebr. Small town patron-

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS: A very fine 1-reel subject. Will build up any bill.—Bert Silver, Silver Family Theatre, Greenville, Mich.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS: Always extra good.—Horn & Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS: A good cartoon.—A. L. Lightner, Orpheum Theatre, Mellen, Wis. Small town patronage.

ONE NEWS

It's a splendid showmanship idea to run these subjects immediately following the regular newsreel on your program. That makes it a double hit!

RICHARD TALMADGE

King of Daredevils

in

PIRATE

— and 4 other big serials during '33-34:

•

BUCK JONES in GORDON OF GHOST CITY

•

The PERILS OF PAULINE

•

The VANISHING SHADOW

•

ADVENTURES OF ANN

REASURE

Richard Talmadge in "Pirate Treasure" with Lucille Lund, Walter Miller, Pat O'Malley
(Serial)

Universal First-Rate Approx. 18 mins.

If the achievement of the first three episodes of this new serial are continued, exhibitors will rejoice and the kid customers gloat. Romance, thrills, action, adventure and glamour mark the first installments. The plot concerns Dick Moreland (Richard Talmadge), who is shown completing a solo round-the-world flight. He has won a $25,000 prize and with the money proposes to seek the pirate gold buried by a buccaneer uncle whose map he possesses. Relating his plan at the exclusive Aero Club he is overheard by Walter Miller. The first three issues are devoted to the attempts to steal the map. Romantic interest and the narrative are well-developed.

—FILM DAILY

12 SMASHING CHAPTERS

THE LAUGH
THE POOR
RICH
EDNA
MAY OLIVER

BIG SHOW!

With This Great All-Comedian Cast
THELMA TODD
LEILA HYAMS
ANDY DEVINE
GRANT MITCHELL
JOHN MILJAN
UNA O'CONNOR
EDWARD BROPHY
•
Screenplay by Ebba Havez and Dale Van Every. Produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr. Directed by EDWARD SEDGWICK. Presented by Carl Laemmle
A UNIVERSAL PICTURE.
EDWARD EVERETT HORTON

What Mentone Musicals Mean To The Critics

" 'Vaudeville on Parade,' Good Entertainment" Says Film Daily

Universal 20 mins.

Run off like a vaudeville show and on a theatre stage, this Mentone short starts with a shot of Harold Stern and the windup of an overture. Then follow successively De Dio's animal circus, dog act; Jack McLallen, comedian; Charles Collins, dancer; Hal Forde, m. c.; Gypsy Nina, songstress; Harry Hirshfield, gagteller and m. c.; Eddie Peabody, banjoist; the Albertina Rasch girls, and Sybil Krinny, kid dancer. Entertaining and will satisfy almost anywhere.

✚ ✚ ✚

" 'Supper at Six' Good Comic Novelty" Says Film Daily

Universal 20 mins.

In this Mentone subject a theatrical boarding house is used as the locale for the introduction of musical numbers by various well-known radio and vaudeville performers, including Jack Arthur, Ponce Sisters and others. Maud Odell is the landlady, and among her guests are many old stage war-horses who are worked in for occasional comedy. One of the boarders, an aristocratic widow, gives a party for the bunch, and this supplies the occasion for some bits of broad humor.

✚ ✚ ✚

" 'The Big Benefit' Most Entertaining on Market" says Motion Picture Herald

(Universal)

THE BIG BENEFIT—Absolutely the most entertaining two-reeler on the market. Music and dancing that will please all. More favorable comments on this than most good feature pictures. Running time, 21 minutes.—H. E. Newbury, Y. M. C. A. Theatre, Ware Shoals, S. C. Small town patronage.

SHOULD BE SPECIAL

Princeton, Minnesota
January 23, 1934

Mr. Frank Mantzke
Universal Film Exc.
Minneapolis, Minn.

Dear friend Frank:

I just finished screening your two reeler "VAUDEVILLE ON PARADE." The reason for my screening it before showing was that I am playing it with Cradle Song and having sold it to Churches, PTA, and local Civic Betterment Club wanted to be sure that my shorts were of the right nature.

This is one of the finest two reelers that I have ever screened. If any other company had this, they would release it as a special. If you have any influence with the production department of Universal believe it a good idea to get them to make more of this type of two reeler. It is an ideal short subject for my town. I also want to tell you that so far my Universal deal has been entirely satisfactory. Last September I was intending to try and get by with Paramount and Universal. Now I KNOW I'll get by.

Very truly yours,
E. A. REYNOLDS
Strand Theatre,
Princeton, Minn.

" 'Big Casino' Lively" Says Film Daily

(Mentone Production)

Universal 21 mins.

Novelty

A LIVELY TWO-REELER featuring Rex Weber, the character singing star of "Americana," as a gang leader who has a fight on his hands with a rival gang. Before they go into action he craves some entertainment, so his lieutenant kidnaps a night club floor show and brings them to his apartment where they put on their acts. The artists include Marguerita Padula, Patsy Flick, the Donovan Sisters, with Ress & Owen, Tita Guizar, South American tenor, Marney Francis, Charles Lawrence, the Belmont Sisters and the Chester Hale Girls. Here is plenty of varied night club entertainment put over in a new atmosphere.

Motion Picture Daily Praises Mentone Musicals

✚ ✚ ✚

"The Big Benefit"

(Universal)

Something new in screen divertissement and sure to bring favorable comment. It's the third in a series being produced by Mentone and has a number of juveniles staging a benefit for a swimming pool. Each impersonates a well known actor and later the player being mimed comes to the screen. Among these are Bill Robinson, Rae Samuels, Leon Janney and Bobby Jordon. Running time, 21 mins.

✚ ✚ ✚

"On the Air and Off"

(Universal)

One of the Mentone productions with plenty of laughs. The manager of a soap factory decides to go in for a radio advertising campaign. They tune in on various programs and hear Nick Lucas, Hizi Koyke, Leon Belasco, Adelaide Hall, Eddie Garr, Bovard Sisters and Murray, Sam Liebert, Lord Oliver Wakefield and Kelvin Keech. Running time, 19 mins.

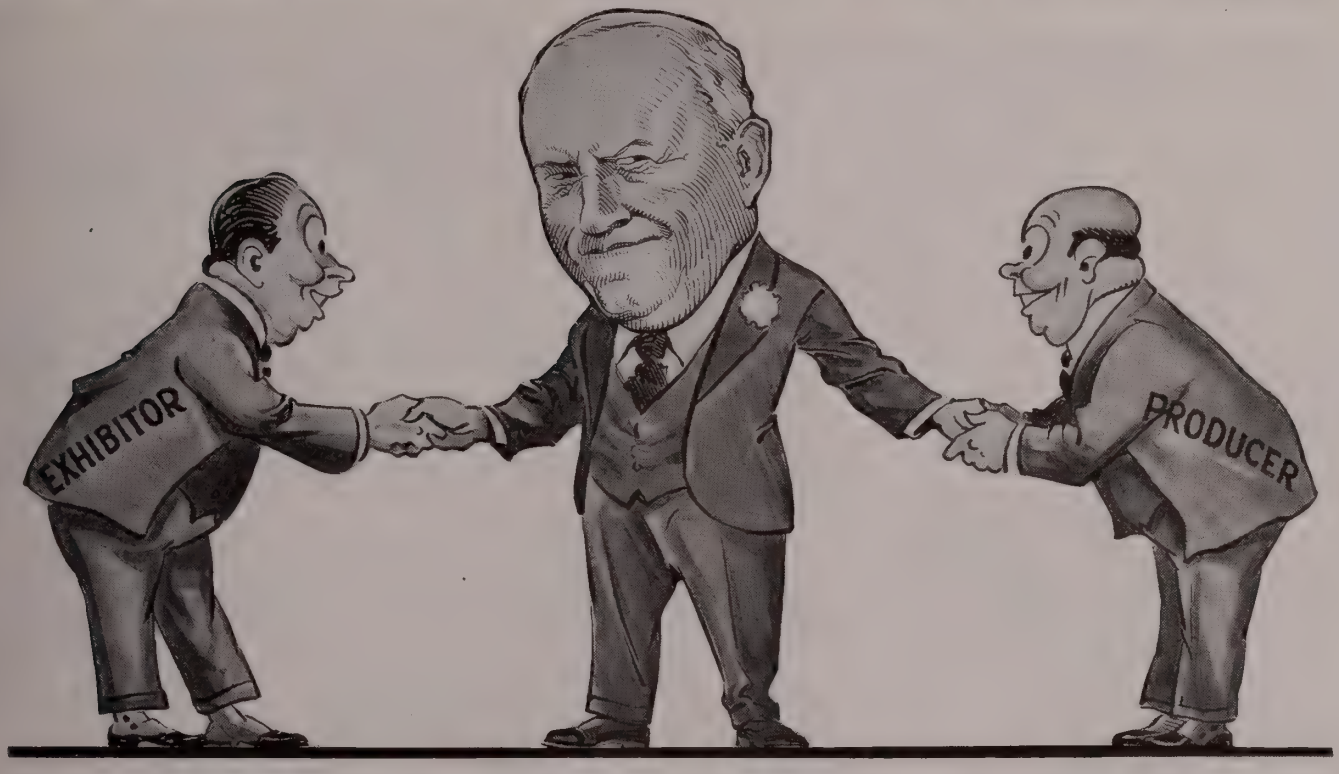
✚ ✚ ✚

"All at Sea"

(Universal)

A presentation of talent through the medium of an impromptu entertainment for passengers on shipboard arranged by Hal Forde, first mate on the boat. Among those presented are Pat Rooney, Vincent Lopez, William O'Neal, Ethel Barrymore Colt, Three X Sisters, Joe Laurie, Jr., Ann Lester, Hugh O'Connell, Phil Regan and Hope Minor. Some good musical material and settings contribute to an entertaining subject. Mentone's first and a good start. Running time, 21 mins.

The ONE MAN they ALL AGREE ON



Drawing made in honor of the Laemmle Anniversary for the Jay Emanuel Publications, which publish the Philadelphia Exhibitor, the New York State Exhibitor and the National Exhibitor.

The LAEMMLES STAY HERE: EUROPE COMES TO THEM

CARL LAEMMLE has definitely called off the trip of Carl Laemmle, Jr. to Europe. This news he divulged upon his arrival in New York Tuesday from Universal City. Instead of going to Europe, Europe is coming to the Laemmles. The conferences which Carl Laemmle, Jr. had intended to hold in London and in Paris will be held here with the European representatives coming to New York. Two of them arrived last night, on the Aquitania, Max Friedland and Fritz Keller. Others will arrive within the week. Plans already formulated call for at least eight pictures to be made in London and six to be made in Paris. This number may be increased after the conferences which will be held in New York.

In addition to the ironing out of international production, Carl Laemmle, Jr. is in for a round of play-going and conferences on the make-up of next year's schedule of pictures, the remaining twelve for the present season having been virtually decided upon. These story conferences will include, besides Carl Laemmle and Carl Laemmle, Jr., R. H. Cochrane, vice president, P. D. Cochrane, James R. Grainger, General manager of Universal distribution, Charles B. Paine, treasurer, and Robert Harris, eastern story editor. Mr. Harris arrived from California on Wednesday.

Others in the Laemmle party to come in Tuesday, included Joe Weil, assistant to the president, Jack Ross, Carl Laemmle's secretary, Harry Zehner, assistant to Carl Laemmle, Jr., and Maurice Fleckles.

In lieu of the vacation at this time, both Carl Laemmle and Carl Laemmle, Jr. intend going to Europe this summer to visit Carlsbad.

Posters With That Pepp

Note: Give extra playing time to the WOW TRAILER prepared on this one by National Screen Service!

y, Patron-Pulling Punch

Edward Everett Horton and Edna May Oliver in their first Universal comedy as a team, "The Poor Rich"—and its a hit.

"Love Birds" Highly Praised By Variety

FAST moving comedy that should click in the combination and family houses. Yarn and gags are above the standard previously set for Summerville-Pitts features. Same goes for direction.

Fleeced out of their savings when a real estate man sells each the same desert ranch, Summerville and Miss Pitts with her nephew, Mickey Rooney, fall into wealth when a miner finds gold on the ranch. Slicker, who sold them the property, buys it back, giving them a huge profit when he discovers that there is a gold rush to the ranch. Prospectors hunt, but they can't locate gold, for it develops that the original find was the filling out of one of Summerville's teeth. With their profit, the pair get married, move to a location where they can grow this and that.

Both Summerville and Miss Pitts give swell comedy performances. Not far behind them is young Rooney who for a change plays a sissie, but gets tough before the picture ends. Emmett Vogen and Merna Kennedy are okay as the slickers and Frederick Burton, in the small part of the prospector, is very good. Others are bits.

Direction of William Seiter is fast and well paced. Laughs are plentiful throughout. Photography is very good.

Whales' Talent Directs Fun, Romance

Rob Reel Review in Chicago American

"BY CANDLELIGHT"

IF you miss the main title of "By Candlelight," you will be almost certain to think that Lubitsch directed it, or perhaps Harry D'Arrast.

Certainly you will never suspect James Whale whose thoughtful "Journey's End" and "Waterloo Bridge" are screen classics.

Usually Whale goes in for the more serious dray-ma, but this time he tries his hand at romantic comedy, and continental comedy at that in all that the term conveys. He proves himself equally adept at this sort of thing, too, although "By Candlelight" might have been even better had not one mistake been made in the casting.

"By Candlelight" presents some delicious situations and is really pointed from the beginning toward a gag finish which will make you laugh out loud. Its swift pace retards toward the middle, but the pick-up that follows more than atones.

REVIEWS OF

CINEMA Hall-MARKS GIVES THREE MARKS TO "BOMBAY MAIL"

PREVIEW PARAGRAPHS

4 Marks—Extraordinary!
3 Marks—Excellent!
2 Marks—Mediocre!
1 Mark —Improvable!

XXX BOMBAY MAIL (Universal) is cleverly conceived mystery enacted aboard India's important crack train "The Bombay Mail" as it journeys for days across the gigantic Indian Peninsula from Calcutta to Bombay. While basically reminiscent of Shanghai Express and Rome Express, "Bombay Mail" possesses enough of its own ingredients of suspense, sympathy and general interest to be rated as excellent entertainment and worthy of mystery-loving boxoffice patronage. Hindu artifice meets and mixes with Occidental shrewdness, with a dash of modern Hindu politics before the mystery is solved. Edmund Lowe is admirably outstanding—without overacting—as the British inspector who takes charge of the heterogeneous travelers en route. But the picture belongs to Writer Tom Reed.

CINCINNATI

Photoplay Reviews in The Enquirer

LYRIC—"Counsellor at Law" is as exciting a motion picture as ever flashed on a silver screen. Not only is its plentiful action paced quickly, but the performance given it by a large and capable cast headed by John Barrymore is nothing short of superb.

And, to boot, "Counsellor at Law" means something.

The direction, lighting and photography are on a par, or surpass, the stage version.

UNIVERSAL FEATURE PRODUCTIONS

"Invisible Man" Helps Everybody

Exhibitors All Profit; Wells Tells Carl Laemmle He Likes It And Will Make A Film Himself. Whale Also Helped.

IN addition to making a neat profit for every exhibitor who has booked it, "The Invisible Man' has done something for everyone connected with it. It has increased the prestige of James Whale, the director, of R. C. Sherriff, who adapted it, and of Arthur Edeson, who protographed it. It has added a memorable number to the cycle over which Universal so capably presides.

Now it has added another unique and valuable contribution. It has converted H. G. Wells to the movies. In spite of the fact that for good, hard cash he permitted several of his books to be filmed, he never was interested in the result because he felt he never could be satisfied with it. He was induced to see "The Invisible Man," however, and immediately repented of his indifference.

"Hollywood used to buy what they called the 'film rights' to a story," Wells remarked, "and then kick the author out of the studios and guard the door with a dog. I have sent the following cable to Carl Laemmle through Mr. Ditcham, managing director of Universal Pictures, Ltd.: 'Congratulations on 'The Invisible Man' which consider filmed flawlessly carrying out my story faithfully.' "

More than that, Mr. Wells himself has decided to take a hand in filming a picture and naturally it is a picture of one of his own stories.

Saw For Fifth Time "Only Yesterday"

17 Water Street,
Laconia, N. H.

Mr. Carl Laemmle,

Dear Sir:

I have just seen for the fifth time, "Only Yesterday," and to say it was wonderful would be putting it mildly; all that you had to say about Margaret Sullavan in your Universal Weekly came true with a vengeance.

— T. J. McIntyre

Praises "Madame Spy"
James E. Mitchell in L. A. Examiner

FROM the moment Nils Asther married Fay Wray in "Madame Spy," which opened yesterday at Pantages Theatre, he always had two strikes against him.

Because, you see, Fay knew that Nils was an Austrian spy, but he did not know she was a secret agent of the Russian government.

Despite his handicap, however, Nils, as Captain Franck, aided by John Miljan as Weber and Edward Arnold as Schulz, manages to take several tricks, but Fay always seems to hold a few more trumps until—.

"Madame Spy" is a well directed, richly mounted production, and Fay supplies enough beauty for half a dozen films. If, however, you don't think she looks so good in a couple of scenes, remember she was probably thinking about what they did to Mata Hari.

Karl Freund directed a notable cast, including Noah Beery, David Torrence, Oscar Apfel, Vince Barnett, Douglas Walton, Robert Ellis, Alden Chase, Rollo Lloyd and Mabel Marden.

William Hurlbut wrote the screen play from Max Kimmich's novel.

CHEERS "COUNSELLOR AT LAW"

William G. Stiegler in Times Star

ELMER RICE's play, "Counsellor at Law," showing at the Lyric Theatre, carries to the screen those carefully calculated elements of sure-fire success which marked its original presentation on the stage. It is, first of all, an admirable showpiece for the virtuosity of a dynamic male star, its wealth of swiftly-paced incident calling for the entire emotional gamut. The author, moreover, reveals himself not only as an expert in dramatic technique, but also as a shrewd student of psychology in the character contrasts which he has provided. The theme itself offers a distinct novelty situations and setting, the action unfolds with challenging suspense, and moments of dramatic tension are relieved and heightened by flashes of spontaneous and unforced humor.

✚ ✚ ✚

M. S. in the Post

CONCERN that the cinema version of "Counsellor at Law" would lack the dramatic power of Elmer Rice's stage play is quickly dissipated at the Lyric this week.

Mr. Rice's play, a la celluloid, with John Barrymore playing the role of George Simon, successful criminal lawyer, is still high-charged drama, pouring out the story of Simon's marital and legal troubles in staccato fashion to leave the audience in a dither of excitement.

The film holds rather closely to the play's lines, developing with much force, thanks to Barrymore's fine acting, the story of George Simon's threatened disbarment because of a legal sin committed early in his career, and his subsequent success in pulling out of his precarious position.

An extremely capable cast, many of which played in the original play with Paul Muni, adds tone to " Counsellor at Law."—M. S.

Just a

JOHN BOLES
GLORIA STUART

in

The Screen's Great Dramatic Romance With Haunting Music and Songs!

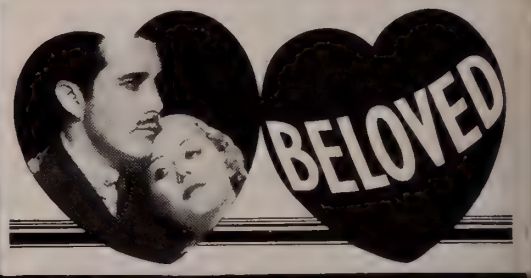
JOHN BOLES SINGS AGAIN!

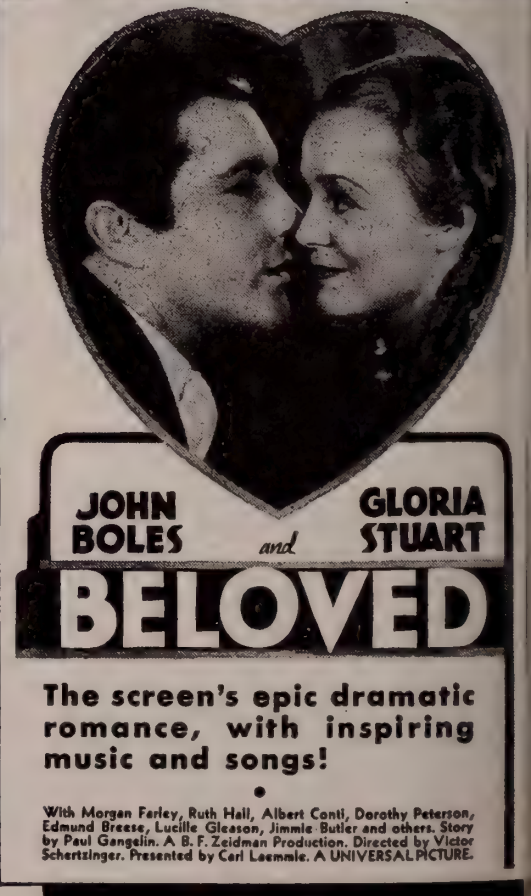
Truly an epic of human emotion! . . . A lifetime of stirring events crowded into the hearts of a man and a woman who loved each other "'till death do us part!" . . . The cavalcade of America through three generations, screened with a sweep, a power, a charm that you'll never forget!

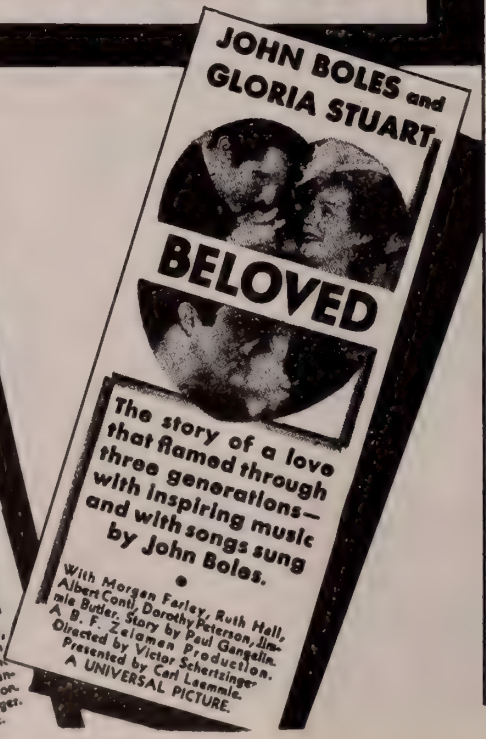
•

With Morgan Farley, Ruth Hall, Albert Conti, Dorothy Peterson, Edmund Breese, Richard Carle, Lucille Gleason, Mae Busch, Jimmie Butler. Story by Paul Gangelin. A B. F. Zeidman Production. Directed by Victor Schertzinger. Presented by Carl Laemmle. A UNIVERSAL PICTURE.

Beloved







Few Samples

of the swell ad mats available for your use in putting this great picture over properly. There are ads in all sizes and with varied appeal shown in the campaign book. Get your copy of the book—AND GO TO IT!

BELOVED

The Story of a Love That Flamed for a Lifetime!

—With Glorious Music and Songs!

•

JOHN BOLES
GLORIA STUART

Morgan Farley, Ruth Hall, Albert Conti, Dorothy Peterson, Edmund Breese, Richard Carle, Lucille Gleason, Mae Busch, Jimmie Butler. Story by Paul Gangelin. A B. F. Zeidman Production. Directed by Victor Schertzinger. Presented by Carl Laemmle. A UNIVERSAL PICTURE.

JOHN BOLES
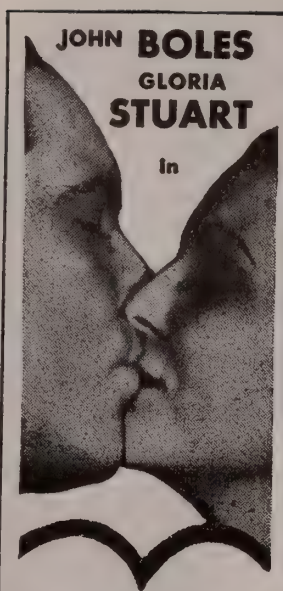
and GLORIA
STUART

In an epic romance that hits the mighty heart of a nation!

BELOVED

With Morgan Farley, Ruth Hall, Albert Conti, Dorothy Peterson, Jimmie Butler. Story by Paul Gangelin. A B. F. Zeidman Production. Directed by Victor Schertzinger. Presented by Carl Laemmle. A UNIVERSAL PICTURE.



The screen's epic dramatic romance, with inspiring music and stirring songs!

•

With Morgan Farley, Ruth Hall, Albert Conti, Lucille Gleason, Jimmie Butler and many others. Story by Paul Gangelin. A B. F. Zeidman Production. Directed by Victor Schertzinger. Presented by Carl Laemmle. A UNIVERSAL PICTURE.

BELOVED

The Po
Story — Glorious Music!

You'll thrill to its sentiment and its sweep of action! . . . You'll glow with its romance as you lift to its engrossing drama—as you hear John Boles sing its songs! . . . You, too, will say that at last the screen has come into its own!

HN BOLES and GLORIA STUART in BELOVED

With Morgan Farley, Ruth Hall, Albert Conti, Lucille Gleason, Mae Busch, Jimmie Butler and others. A B. F. Zeidman Production. Story by Paul Gangelin. Directed by Victor Schertzinger. Presented by Carl Laemmle. A UNIVERSAL PICTURE.

Universal Knows How To Make Mystery Pictures — and Here's The Latest Proof!

There are no haunted houses, spooks, or other kinds of hobgoblins to blame for the murder in THIS smash drama . . . Your patrons are introduced to the suspects, shown why they are suspects . . . Their own intelligence is given a chance to solve the murder while it is being investigated on the screen . . . But what a SURPRISE WALLOP it has! . . Wait and see!

with

WYNNE GIBSON
ONSLOW STEVENS

Skeets Gallagher, Alan Dinehart, William Collier, Sr., J. Farrell MacDonald, Warren Hymer, Edward Van Sloan, John Wray. Produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr. Directed by Edwin L. Marin. Presented by Carl Laemmle.

STEP OUT
WITH
UNIVERSAL
The CROSBY CASE

The Latest of a Long Series of Laugh Makers, "Love Birds"

Slim Summerville and ZaSu Pitts in "Love Birds," releasing title of the William A. Seiter production, "Two Clucks."

Universal Announces "SUTTER'S GOLD," FIRST BIG PICTURE FOR NEXT SEASON

WITH the arrival in New York of Carl Laemmle, Jr., general manager of production at Universal City, Universal announces the first of its next season's big pictures. The lineup for the present season, ending in August, is settled, and the visit of Carl Laemmle and Carl Laemmle, Jr. to New York involves the mapping out of next year's program as well as conferences regarding production in Europe.

Universal's experience with its big pictures, "Counsellor at Law," "The Invisible Man," and "Only Yesterday," has been excellent and warrants the company in planning some of the most imposing films in its history for next season. The first to be announced is "Sutter's Gold." It has been determined after two years of planning, to make "Sutter's Gold" into a real epic of the California gold rush. The story will be founded on the novel by Blaise Cendrars. This novel was written about the most colorful, dramatic and remarkable figure in American history, "General" Johann August Sutter. He was the first American billionaire; he was the largest owner of land in the United States; he discovered gold, and the gold brought him to a state where he became a bootblack, a dishwasher and almost a madman. Finally, when he was on the verge of regaining his position and his wealth, his fortune-tossed body gave way under the strain.

"GLAMOUR" STARTS

EDNA FERBER'S novel "Glamour," went before the cameras at Universal City this week under the direction of William Wyler. The first scenes included Constance Cummings and Paul Lukas, who has just finished his role in "The Countess of Monte Cristo."

"Glamour" has been developed as a musical by B. F. Zeidman, who is the associate producer under whose supervision "Glamour" will be made. Songs have been written and elaborate musical investiture will accompany the entire production.

"Sutter's Gold" will be not only a story of the mad rush to California for gold in '49, but it will be a human drama of an amazing human success and human failure, a human love and a human vengeance. It will be the story of a new empire carved out of a colorful wilderness of sand and sin.

George O'Neil, who wrote the script for "Only Yesterday," is writing the continuity and dialogue for "Sutter's Gold" and Carl Laemmle, Jr. intends to make of it a film as significant as "All Quiet on the Western Front." Undoubtedly the direction will be handled by William Wyler, whose latest film, "Counsellor at Law," has added a great deal of prestige to his reputation.

Many of the scenes in the life of Sutter will be made on their original locations, including the actual site of the gold strike. Sutter came to America early in the 19th century and made and lost half a dozen fortunes before he ever reached California. Eventually his efforts settled the greater portion of northern California and his land holdings were of such widespread a nature as to constitute virtually a kingdom.

"Sutter's Gold" will go into production, at Universal City some time in June as a great deal of preparation and historical research are still required for the verification of costumes, properties and sites. Many California historical associations are cooperating with Universal in the production of "Sutter's Gold."

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY SHOWMANSHIP SECTION

A DIGEST OF THE BEST EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

GOOD SHORT SUBJECTS ARE NOT JUST EXTRA ENTERTAINMENT — THEY ARE EXTRA BUSINESS IF YOU GIVE THEM A BOOST!

EXPLOITATION of a short subject on your program often offers as great an opportunity for an effective campaign as your main feature. This is particularly true in the case of a short that you have purchased in a series or in the case of a serial which runs for several weeks and where you will have a long time to realize upon any special work that you may put on the subject.

If a short subject is worthy of a place on your program it is also worth being sold as as a part of that program. Thousands of movie patrons are thoroughly sold on certain short subjects and watch for the theatres playing them. Every good short has its fans just as the feature stars have theirs.

Why not sell these people? Why not go after that extra business? It is business that will most likely become more or less permanent and is certainly worth a little extra effort. Exploitation of short product in almost every case has a great deal of accumulative value.

On the pages of the exploitation section this week you will find suggestions for putting over Universal Shorts as a valuable part of your program. Study them. Select those best suited to your needs. Then act. Let your public know that you are playing the best shorts available.

Don't overlook the special exploitation value of the Universal Newsreel with its country-wide newspaper affiliations; the tremendous possibilities of the "Strange As It Seems" reel with its great newspaper tie-ups and the hundred and one special values of the Oswald Cartoons, the smashing Universal serials and other fine "U" short product. Special attention to short product gives variety and spice to your regular exploitation routine.

A. J. SHARICK

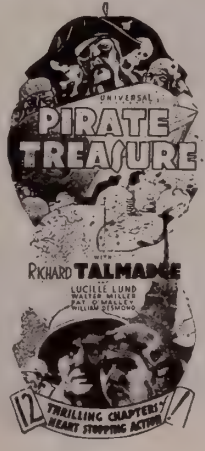
A CLASS POSTER

Sample one sheet as prepared for each Universal-Mentone short subject.

UNIVERSAL SERIALS AS BUSINESS BUILDERS!

Sell the first chapter of a Universal chapter play and you have assured business for the next eleven weeks! A fact which makes it well worth your while to go after this first chapter with everything you've got—and with everything available for helping you!

Accessories packed with showmanship selling angles are prepared on every Universal serial. Each item is produced with one idea in mind—TO HELP YOU SELL SEATS! Posters, heralds, lobby photos, novelties and newspaper ads, all carry a special appeal to the fan who likes plenty of thrills with his movie fare. The pressbook for each serial is prepared with the same careful attention to detail, practicability, economy and showmanship value that is given the biggest special production campaign book.



Right, hanger, above hat and mask novelty. The hanger is 15c. and the hat 4c. each at Universal Exchanges.

Sell your chapter play with these showmanship aids and cash in on the business that is there for you!

On this page you will find reproduction of a few of the items available for putting over "PIRATE TREASURE," the latest release. They are examples of what you get with every UNIVERSAL SERIAL.

"OSWALD" BELONGS ON YOUR MARQUEE

There is no more sure way to build patronage—in any house—in any town—than to keep them happy. OSWALD never fails to make them laugh in advance—the moment his name is flashed on the screen. Announce him always in your brightest lights on your marquee. Pull in your share of the Oswald fans—their number is legion!

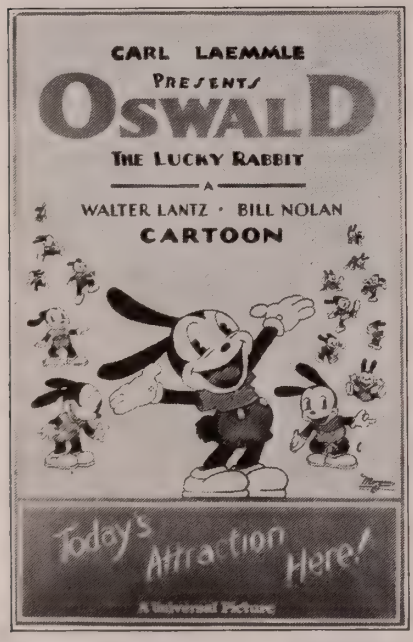
General Suggestions

OSWALD CLUBS—Form "Oswald Clubs" on the same basis as your Ken Maynard or serial clubs, catering to the youngsters as members.

OSWALD DOLLS—It's easy and plenty of fun to make "Oswald Dolls" out of wood, paper, cloth or in fact any material at hand. Tie-up with local stores selling the novelty Oswald doll for prizes.

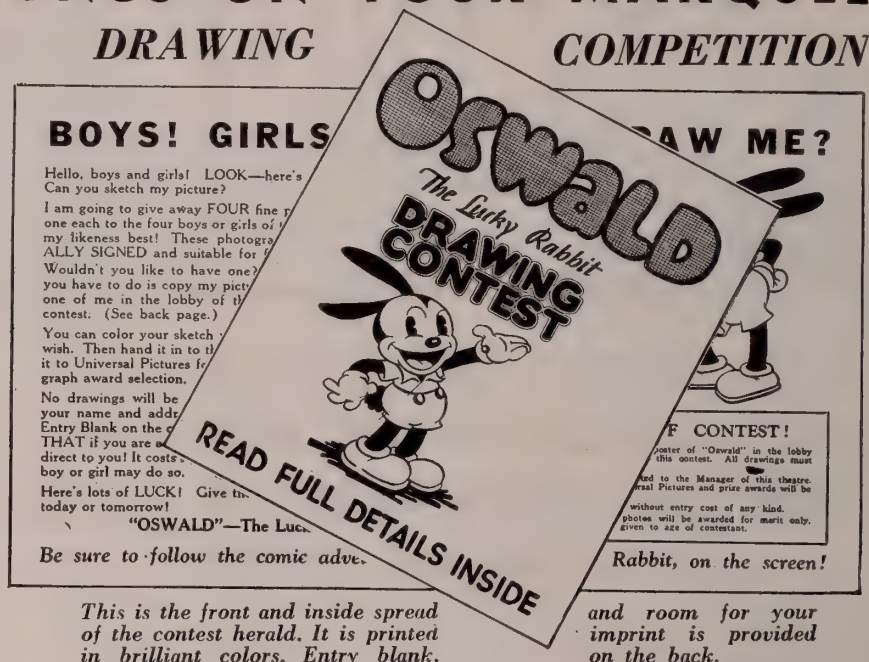
OSWALD STUNTS—Tie-up with the newspaper for an Oswald gag feature. Offer pictures of the cartoon star for the best and funniest stunts for Oswald to do in his pictures.

OSWALD MATINEES—Souvenirs, ice cream and a general whoopie party for the kids with the treat on Oswald.



Stock one sheet deserves a place in your front display! One small investment that will bring you many extra seat sales and can be used over and over again.

DRAWING COMPETITION



This is the front and inside spread of the contest herald. It is printed in brilliant colors. Entry blank. and room for your imprint is provided on the back.

COMPLETE WITH HERALDS AND PRIZES!

TO help you cash in on the popularity of "OSWALD" we have prepared a complete contest stunt — heralds and posters announcing it—entry blanks—rules—prizes, etc., AND PRIZES FOR YOU TO GIVE THE WINNER! On this page is a reproduction of the four page herald which gives the kiddies all the information—all you have to do is imprint them with your theatre name and give them a wide circulation. You do not give free tickets as prizes, nor does the contestant have to buy a ticket to enter, so you do not violate the NRA Code provisions in running it.

Material for putting this contest stunt over consists of heralds with complete information for the kids, 22 x 28 lobby announcements, newspaper mats of Oswald drawing, and autographed photos of Oswald to award as prizes.

Write the Exploitation Department, Universal Pictures, 730 Fifth Ave., New York City for particulars. Get this contest going NOW and jump your business on Oswald cartoons.

PUTS OVER BIG "OSWALD" TIE-UP

STAN MEYER, manager of the Alhambra Theatre, Milwaukee, certainly put over a real smash tie-up for his Christmas week engagement of "The Merry Old Soul," an Oswald cartoon. Working with the Boston Store ,one of the largest in the city, Meyer landed plenty of space in the store's full page ad and in window displays as well as the distribution by the store's Santa of several thousand cards announcing the picture. In return for this, he gave the store a trailer featuring their toy department.

"OSWALD" ADS

Slugs to sell your Oswald fans, fit nicely in corner of feature ad. Mats or stereos available at Universal Exchanges. Put them to work for extra business!

Two column size and one column size.

Rated as one of the 10 biggest BOX-OFFICE pictures of 1933 by Motion Picture Herald

BE MINE TONIGHT

Starring The Golden-Voiced Hero

JAN KIEPURA

ONLY ONE "ODDITIES" REEL—"STRANGE AS IT SEEMS"

ANY reel that is so good it puts all competitors out of business is certainly worth a little effort on your part in selling it to your patrons! Just such a reel is Universal's "STRANGE AS IT SEEMS," the single reel based on the famous newspaper cartoon series by John Hix, picturing the strangest events, people and things from all over the world.

The newspaper tie-up angle alone is worth many times what you pay for this reel. Hundreds of newspapers in all parts of the country carry "STRANGE AS IT SEEMS" as a regular feature, and will willingly co-operate with you in exploiting it. An example of the co-operation being extended by newspapers is shown here in the quarter page ad carried by the St. Louis Star for the Ambassador Theatre.

A SPECIAL TRAILER—FREE!

To make it easy for you to get this co-operation Universal has prepared a special trailer that you can use in a tie-up with the local paper running the feature. It is yours for the asking!

OTHER ACCESSORIES

There is available in your Universal Exchange a special stock one sheet which can be used for any and all of the series. Order it NOW and give it a spot in your lobby display and put a few up around town. A special spot ad slug, as shown on this page, is also available in either mat or stereo form. It is just two inches so that it will fit nicely into your regular ad. It sells the fact that "STRANGE AS IT SEEMS" is the only reel of its kind, an important selling line for you to stress!

The new one sheet for the Newsreel

TRAILERS FOR MENTONE SHORTS

WHEN you play a Universal-Mentone featurette you are playing many of the biggest radio, vaudeville and night club names. They are real box-office draws and rate space on your marquee.

The quarter page tie-up ad

As an indication of the general production value of the pictures, National Screen Service is preparing a special trailer for each one in the series! It is the first time that National has stocked trailers on such a series. In order that they may fit into your regular schedule of coming attractions, each is introduced with the words: SPECIAL FEATURETTE. The price is only $2.00. Order direct from National Screen Service. Put them to work and get the most out of these two-reel musical-variety subjects.

POST THE SPECIAL SHEET!

There is available on each Mentone subject a special one sheet. These are produced with the same seat-selling showmanship that characterizes other Universal posters. Use it, use the trailer and give the subject a line in your regular ads. Get the big names up on your marquee—they'll bring you extra business.

The stock one sheet

NEWSREEL RATES MARQUEE DISPLAY

BESIDES being, without question, the finest produced, UNIVERSAL NEWSPAPER NEWSREEL has the added advantage of Graham McNamee. If you are not selling it as a special feature of your program you are not getting the most out of it! Space on your marquee should be reserved for it! Your newspaper ads should carry a line on it! Your front display should include the special one sheet!

Universal Newsreel has an invaluable newspaper tie-up with hundreds of metropolitan dailies, especially arranged to help you sell it! Are you taking full advantage of this angle? Many columns of extra publicity are available to you if you will keep after this great tie-up.

Spot ad slug—mat or stereo—2 inches

SLIM and ZASU

—coming soon to make more money for you than ever before, in —

LOVE BIRDS

From

UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.

730 FIFTH AVENUE

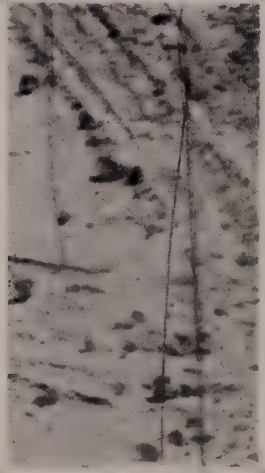
NEW YORK CITY

LARRY EDMUNDS, INC.
CINEMA BOOKSHOP
HOLLYWOOD, CALIF.

ROBERT B WENNER
22 CROSS ST
MALDEN MASS

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
Paid
Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

A WEEK-END SPECIAL for any theatre anywhere



S.O.S. ICEBERG

Printed in U. S. A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
VOL. 34
NO. 12
MARCH 3,
1934

COMING
Edna Ferber's
"Glamour"
with CONSTANCE CUMMINGS,
PAUL LUKAS
and a stellar cast.
Directed by WILLIAM WYLER
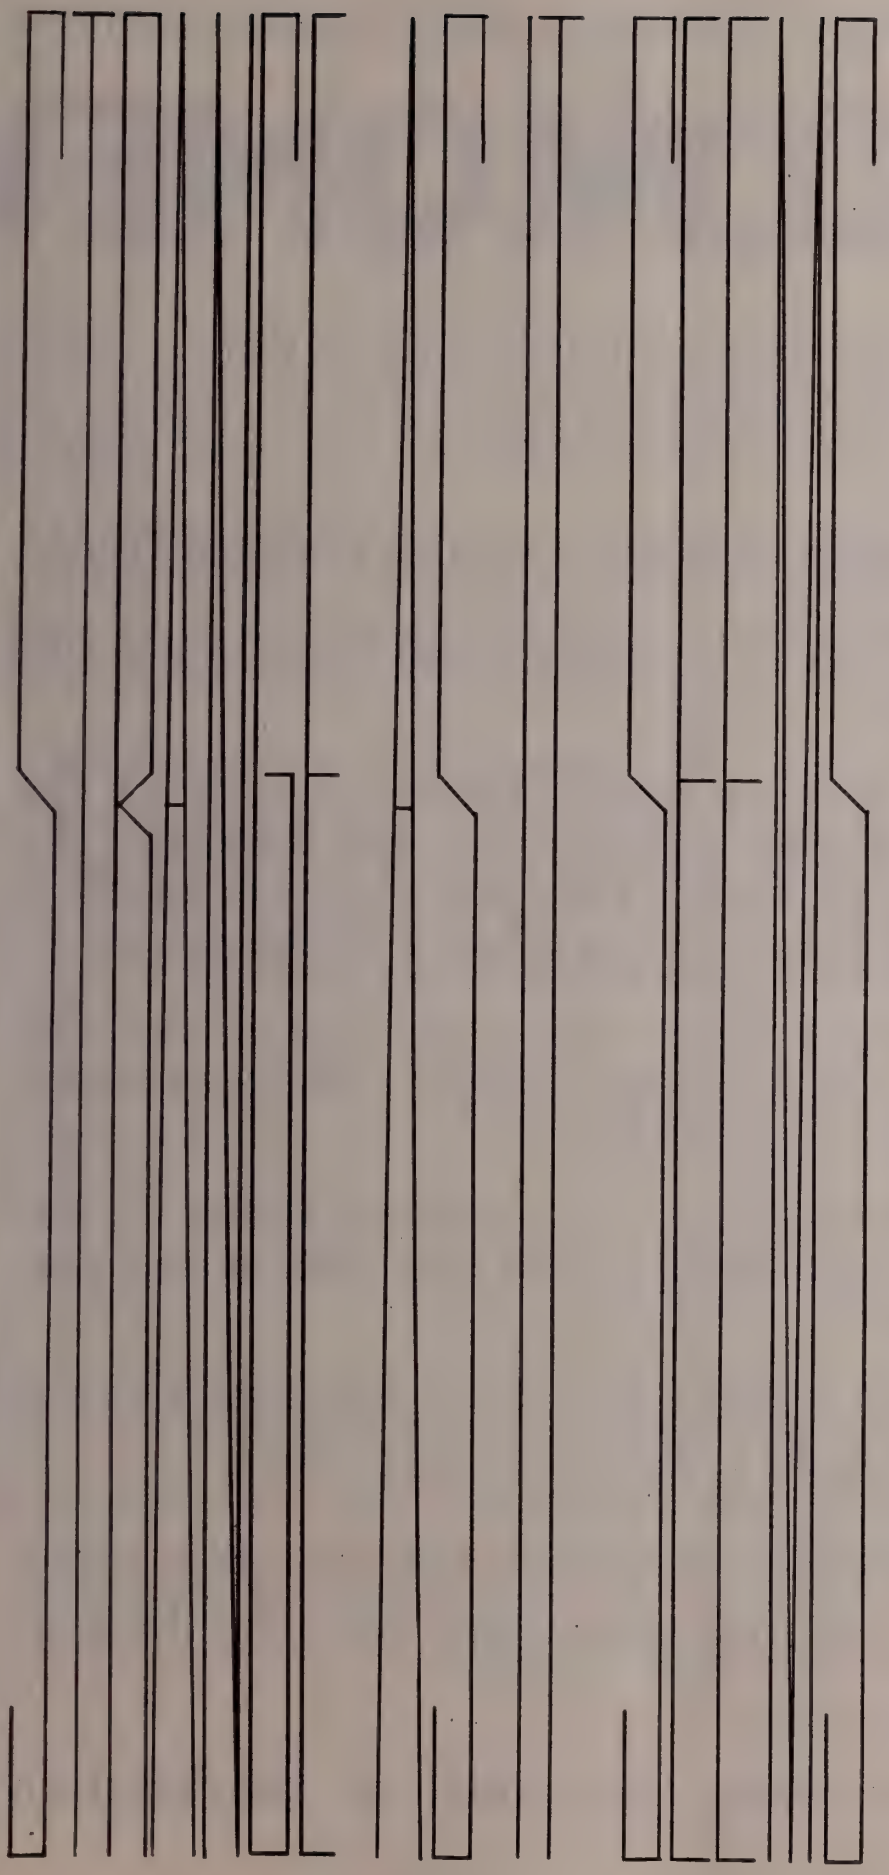
A
B. F. ZEIDMAN
Production



ODD!

(Note: Hold this page flat, level with your eye and you'll see an oddity sure to improve any program.)

BIG MONEY

No. 762 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

I am going to reissue "All Quiet on the Western Front."

The reissue will be a little shorter than the original, but nothing vital will be cut out.

I am doing this because there is hardly a spot on the map that is not threatened with war, and because "All Quiet on the Western Front" tells the story of war as it has never been told before in the history of the world.

Sherman said "War is hell." That's just parlor conversation compared with what "All Quiet on the Western Front" says.

This picture tells its story so graphically that it was awarded the Photoplay medal as the best film of the year it was first released.

But the real point is that war is now uppermost in the minds of a billion people in this disturbed world.

And when any theme is uppermost in the public mind, that is the time to sell that theme and pack the theatres of the world.

When Remarque wrote "All Quiet on the Western

FOR YOU!

Front," every word that he wrote applied itself to every war of all time. It did not cover merely the late world war. It dealt with war as war.

It contained two great things: — First, exciting entertainment. Second, something for every man, woman and child in the world to think about.

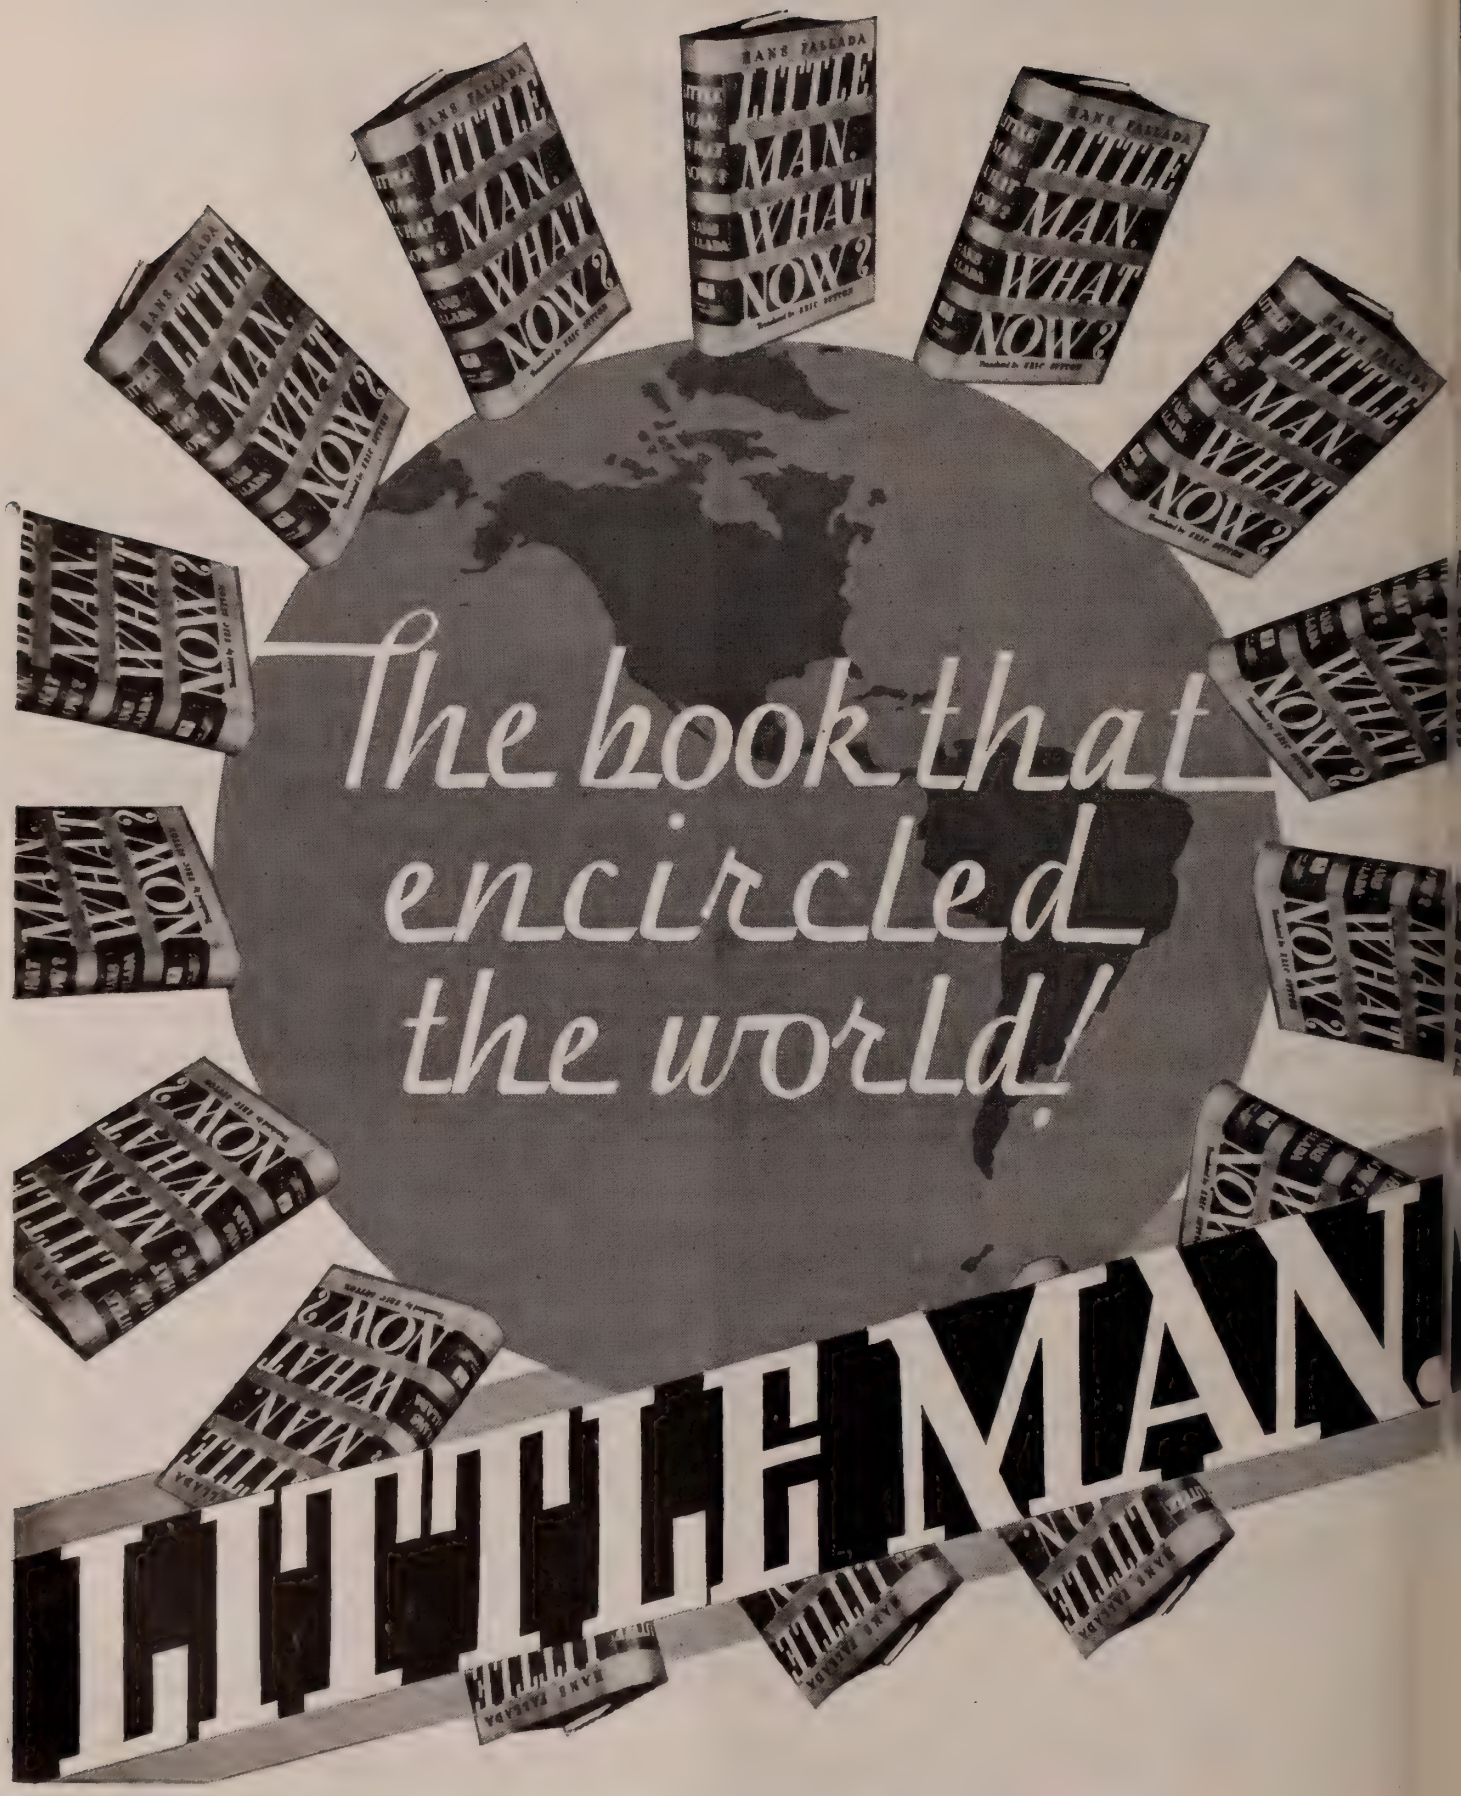
War pictures, as a general rule, do not appeal to women, but "All Quiet on the Western Front"is different, because every one of the millions of mothers who have sons of war age is vitally interested in what this particular story tells. It gains their sympathy — because they did not raise their boys to be soldiers!

So, the greatest picture ever made will be reissued. Anyone who treats it automatically as "just a reissue" is a poor showman.

Don't book it at all unless you sense its renewed importance at this particular time and can make up your mind to get back of it with the kind of campaign you would give to a picture just issued for the first time.

Timeliness is money!

Carl Laemmle



HANS FALLADA
LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?
The book that encircled the world!
LITTLE MAN

The perfect star - story -director combination for TOP grosses !

WHAT NOW?

STEP OUT WITH UNIVERSAL

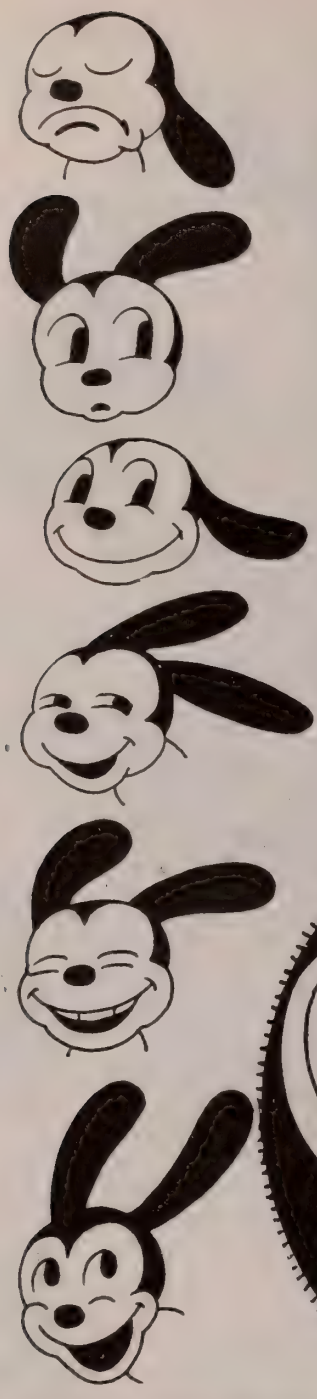
With

MARGARET SULLAVAN

Douglass Montgomery and a great supporting cast

Produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr. Screenplay by William Anthony McGuire

A FRANK BORZAGE Production



Even the best double-feature program needs Oswald for a welcome change of pace.

Oswald
The Lucky Rabbit

UNIVERSAL
ONE REEL CARTOON

This story is reproduced from the Corpus Christi Caller, Corpus Christi, Texas, by special permission. It was run in connection with the Carl Laemmle Anniversary Jubilee.

R and R Theaters Will Pay Tribute To Carl Laemmle

CARL LAEMMLE

R & R Theaters has joined the motion picture industry in paying homage to Carl Laemmle, venerable head of Universal Pictures corporation, on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of his coming to America and his twenty-eighth as a producer of motion pictures, by designating its new and greater R & R super road show which comes to the Ritz theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday "The Carl Laemmle appreciation program."

This program is composed exclusively of Universal pictures. It is featured by Universal's fourth outstanding production this season, "Beloved," a dramatic romance with haunting music and songs, co-starring John Boles and Gloria Stuart; and includes "Palsie Walsie," a comedy with Henry Armetta and Mickey Daniels, and Oswald, the lucky rabbit, in "Chicken Reel."

Mr. Laemmle is a unique figure in the motion picture industry. No other man has been boss of his own producing studios for any period comparable to Carl Laemmle's presidency of Independent Motion Picture company—or IMP, which he founded to feature Mary Pickford, then a little ingenue whose name as a Biograph player had never been divulged to moviegoers—and of IMP's outgrowth, the great Universal Pictures corporation of today.

For 28 years Mr. Laemmle has been a big factor in film production and distribution. From his mammoth

The Most Timely Film In Years Is "Airmail"

UNIVERSAL is getting more free advertising today than ever before in its history. The press is giving it, so is the radio, so is the man in the street. It's about "Airmail."

Airmail is the burning topic of interest throughout the nation. It has been for weeks. Every day newspaper headlines announce the latest development in the Congressional inquiry or the progress of the army flyers now carrying the mails. Radio commentators, notably Edwin C. Hill and Boake Carter, are telling millions of the drama in the skies. And these millions, potential theatre-goers, are discussing the news with other millions.

The stage is set. What the exhibitor needs now to cash in on all this free advertising, this tremendous interest, is a picture which will tell, more vividly than is possible with words, the story of the airmail pilots.

✚ ✚ ✚

University City studios has flowed dependable product, with now and again amazing superproductions which instituted cycles—as, for example: "Hunchback of Notre Dame," "Frankenstein," "King of Jazz," "Spirit of Notre Dame," "Back Street," and others. From his offices has radiated a policy of fair dealing and of keeping faith with exhibitors, with competitors, with players and other employees which has won him the respect and esteem of everybody in any manner concerned with the film industry.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
730 Fifth Avenue, New York City
Copyrighted 1934
Universal Pictures Corp.
(All Rights Reserved)
MARCH 3, 1934
Vol. 34 No. 12

NRA MEMBER U.S. WE DO OUR PART

DATE UNIVERSAL'S Big Hit Line-up!

●

Carl Laemmle ANNIVERSARY JUBILEE

January 6 to March. 10

Universal has that picture in "Airmail."

"Airmail" did big business when it was first released. It attracted fans because it was the thrilling, romantic story of America's most hazardous industry. It showed the dangers confronting an airmail pilot . . . snow, fog, rainstorm, mountain peak. Within this framework was woven the thread of humanity—the human side of the great airmail service. For the men who fly the mails have families, wives and sweethearts. One death means sorrow to many.

Today "Airmail" is immeasurably more pertinent. The story it tells is the one the press, radio and your patrons are advertising. It is the one your patrons are asking for by virtue of their curiosity. They have been made "Airmail" conscious.

"Airmail" marks the first time that the saga of government mail flyers has been brought to the screen. It has a superb cast featuring Ralph Bellamy, as the iron-nerved airport chief, Pat O'Brien, as the devil-may-care sky diver, Russell Hopton, as the disillusioned veteran, Slim Summerville, as the "greaseball" philosopher, with the feminine side handled expertly by Gloria Stuart and Lilian Bond. John Ford directed the picture, from a screenplay by Dale Van Every and Lt. Com. Frank Wead.

CURRENT NEWS OF FORTHCOMING

Universal Production In High

PRODUCTION activity at Universal City is approaching its zenith. With the return of Carl Laemmle, Jr. general production manager, from his trip to New York, schedules are moving briskly forward for the completion of the remaining eighteen pictures on Universal's current program of thirty-six. At no other time this season has the studio been as busy.

Of the final group of eighteen productions, five have just been completed or are in the cutting room. They are "The Crosby Case," with Wynne Gibson, Onslow Stevens, William Collier, Alan Dinehart and John Wray; "Love Birds," with Slim Summerville and ZaSu Pitts; "The Countess of Monte Cristo" and Paul Lukas and Fay Wray; "Glamour," with Douglass Montgomery arriving at Pasadena, where he lives, with a huge wolfhound, the largest ever seen in California. He plays the role of Pinneberg in "Little Man, What Now?"

tess of Monte Cristo" with Paul Lukas, from the story by Edna Ferber and "Let's Be Ritzy," with Lew Ayres, Patricia Ellis, Frank McHugh and Isabel Jewell.

Two pictures are expected to finish this week. One is "I'll Tell the World," the Lincoln Quarberg newspaper story featuring Lee Tracy, Roger Pryor and Gloria Stuart. The other is "Uncertain Lady," with Edward Everett Horton and Genevieve Tobin. Karl Freund directs this picture.

Entering its first week of production is Frank Borzage's "Little Man, What Now?" with Margaret Sullavan and Douglas Montgomery. Two other stories are ready to shoot this week. They are Edgar Allen Poe's "The Black Cat," starring Boris Karloff and featuring Bela Lugosi, which Edgar Ulmer will direct; and "The Human Side," by Christine Ames, which Eddie Buzzell with direct.

Another pair of stories is scheduled for work next week. "Practical Jokes," by William Anthony McGuire, and starring Chester Morris, is the first. The second is Paul Lukas' initial starring vehicle, "Affairs of a Gentleman," from the play by Edwin and Edith Ellis. Cyril Hume has written the screenplay.

The six final productions have been decided upon. They will go into work according to the schedule that calls for a completion of Universal's program by August 1st. Vicki Baum's "I Give My Love," starring Wynne Gibson, is the first. It will be a B. F. Zeidman production, to be directed by Karl Freund. The others are Nils Asther in "The Humbug," a play by Max Marcin, which he himself will direct; "Alias the Deacon," to be directed by Kurt Neumann from the story by John B. Hymer and Leroy Clemens; Fannie Hurst's "Imitation of Life," which John Stahl will direct; Edmund Lowe in a play, negotiations for which are not yet completed; Chester Morris and Slim Summerville in "The Love Life of a Sailor," "One Glamourous Night," by Ward Morehouse.

"I'll Tell The World" Cast Is Complete

WITH the selection of Alec Francis and Edwin Mordant, from New York, the cast of "I'll Tell the World," starring Lee Tracy, is complete. "I'll Tell the World" is a story about the fortunes of a crack newspaperman employed by the world's most extensive news-gathering service. This is the role played by Lee Tracy. Opposite him is another fast-talking New York stage actor, Roger Pryor, who has been running a race with Tracy for years as the fastest talking actor on the stage.

The cast also includes Gloria Stuart, Onslow Stevens, Hugh Enfield, Dorothy Grainger, Edward McWade, Herman Bing, Arthur Stone, Georges LePlant, Charles Fallow, Alice Ardell, Andre Cheron.

"I'll Tell the World," is a story by newspaper men about newspaper men. Lincoln Quarberg, formerly of the United Press, and Lt. Com. Frank Wead wrote the story. Dale Van Every, formerly of the United Press, and Ralph Spence, former newspaper man, wrote the script. Edward Sedgwick is directing.

Clem Randau has been assigned by the United Press as a contact man to see that the machinery of news gathering is represented in a thoroughly authentic manner. For this purpose, also, scenes were taken in the headquarters of the United Press in New York City and they will be incorporated in the action of "I'll Tell the World."

✚ ✚ ✚

"Glamour" Completed

YESTERDAY William Wyler completed the shooting on "Glamour," by Edna Ferber, at the Universal City studios. This Cosmopolitan story features Constance Cummings and Paul Lukas with a cast consisting of Phillip Reed, Joseph Cawthorn, Doris Lloyd, Yola D'Avril, Luis Alberni, Lita Chevret, Louise Beavers, Isabelle Sheridan, Lyman Williams and Grace Hale.

PRODUCTIONS AT UNIVERSAL CITY

Jane Wyatt Leaves For Universal City

ON Thursday's Century another talented Broadway stage actress embarked for Universal City and a career in Universal pictures. While in New York, Carl Laemmle, Jr. saw Jane Wyatt in "Joyous Season," the Arthur Hopkins play with Lillian Gish. After several conferences, Miss Wyatt agreed to go to Universal City under contract. Here exhaustive tests will be made, as in the case of Margaret Sullavan, upon which tests will be based the roles in which Miss Wyatt will appear.

Carl Laemmle, Jr., anticipates as great success for Jane Wyatt as for Miss Sullavan. Miss Wyatt started her career in 1931 in a Schwab and Mandel production in Philadelphia. She has appeared in New York in "Evensong," "Conquest," "The Mad Hopes," "For Services Rendered," and on the road in "Dinner at Eight." She is five feet five inches tall, weighs 118 pounds, has dark blue eyes and light brown hair. Her contract specifies also that she is to have the privilege of returning to Broadway from time to time for appearances on the stage.

✚ ✚ ✚

Stanley Bergerman Buys Edith Wharton Novel

FOR one of his forthcoming productions, Stanley Bergerman, producer of Universal pictures, has purchased an Edith Wharton novel. It is the Cosmopolitan Magazine story, "Bread Upon the Waters," which ran in the February number.

"Bread Upon the Waters" is a character study of New York and New England family life, a type of story for which Edith Wharton has been famous for a generation. Gladys Unger has already been assigned the role of transcribing the story to the screen. Mr. Bergerman is in negotiation with a prominent New York stage actress to play the leading feminine role in the picture, which will go into production around April 15th or 30th.

FIRST STILL OF "I'LL TELL THE WORLD"

"I'll Tell the World" has been started at Universal City. This is the first still from the picture. It shows a scene in a cabin in northern Canada where the two newspaper men, Lee Tracy and Roger Pryor, are covering the story of a lost balloon for rival news services. The aviator in the picture is Hugh Enfield.

KEN MAYNARD STARTS "DOOMED TO DIE"

KEN MAYNARD, having completed "Honor of the West," started this week on "Doomed to Die," his eighth Universal production of the season. Maynard himself wrote the story, for which Nate Gatzert wrote the screenplay and dialogue. Maynard's leading lady is Gloria Shea, and the cast includes many players who appear with him constantly in his pictures, such as Walter Miller, Frank Hagney, Bob Kortman, Jack Rockwell, Ed Coxen, Blue Washington, and of course, Tarzan, his Wonder Horse. The setting is the Old West, and the time, the late '80's. Maynard appears as a man wrongly accused of murder and the plot deals with his successful unmasking of the real criminal.

"Black Cat" Ready

"THE BLACK CAT" is about ready to spring at Universal City. This tale, suggested by one of Edgar Allan Poe's most widely read and chilling stories, is almost ready for director Edgar Ulmer to place in production. Ulmer was at one time associated with Max Rheinhardt and has a reputation by reason of his ability with the mysterious and the occult.

In addition to the two super-thrillers of the screen, Karloff and Lugosi, of "Frankenstein" and "Dracula" fame, there is a juvenile who also harks back to "Dracula." David Manners will play this role. The feminine part of the picture will be taken care of by Jacqueline Wells, Lucille Lund, and Anna Duncan. Both Jacqueline Wells and Lucille Lund received their first start in Universal pictures. Anna Duncan is the cousin of the renowned dancer, Isadora Duncan. In "The Black Cat," she will dance The Appassionate.

ACTION

on the screen and action on the posters mean action at the box-office!

Note: This is a reproduction of the smashing six-sheet.

Variety Says "Countess of Monte Cristo" Is A Diverting Comedy Drama

Film Previews

WITH smart direction, a brace of superior performances and an intriguing story presented with fresh dressing. "Countess of Monte Cristo" will take care of itself in all spots as diverting comedy drama. It will help decidedly to build directorial prestige for Karl Freund.

Indicates plenty pay color in Patsy Kelly's individual vein of comedy, here delightfully tapped. It opposes for excellent results, Paul Lukas and Reginald Owen, as the debonair heavies of the piece, matching talent in their every scene for top honors. The masquerade on which the plot expands is nicely devised to make the fantastic elements seem logical, with dialog colorful and convincing.

Main story action is projected from a motion picture company on location in Austria to a swank winter resort to which Fay Wray and Patsy Kelly flee in a stolen auto when Miss Wray goes momentarily haywire after Paul Page, as a newspaper reporter, breaks their engagement to marry. At the resort the two girls are accepted for what they seem to be—a countess and her maid—when, as a matter of fact, they are merely two blundering film extras who have been bawled out by an irascible director, Richard Tucker, for being too sluggy to impersonate the required characters.

Wray decides to have one grand fling, and a few figurative snaps of her fingers provide the clothes and appurtenances for her to carry out her masquerade. Playing for her preference. Lukas and Owen turn out to be debonair international crooks who are thrown into final feud by Lukas' genuine love for the girl. Lukas saves her from arrest for theft of the auto and for bamboozling the hotel by exposing himself to arrest. The two girls, fed up on phoney riches, are content to scram back to the movie company for reconcilliation between Wray and her reporter.

FAY WRAY
as "The COUNTESS OF MONTE CRISTO"

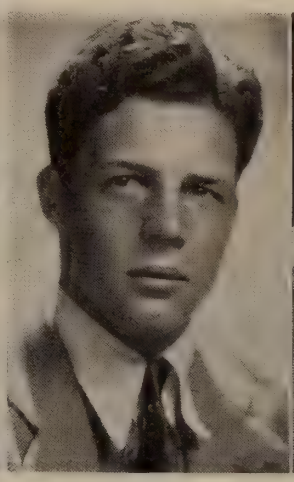
Miss Wray is decorative and does her part engagingly, being called on for the usual flash of flesh in bathroom and boudoir scenes. She and Patsy Kelly, who gets laughs as the resentfully and compulsorily played maid, make an excellent team. Romanc between Wray and Paul Page is light and brief, but Page makes the most of it. Frank Reicher handles very well the part of police commissioner trailing Lukas. Richard Tucker, Robert McWade, as the hotel manager, and John Sheehan as an assistant director, turn in good jobs, with Carmel Myers, Mathew Betts and Harvey Clark in acceptable bits.

"Countess" is lavishly presented, with winter sports scenes in the Alps processed in for interesting novelty. Photography is exceptionally fine, and European atmosphere well suggested. Careful supervision and technical coordination puts final impress of class on the production.

Louis Wolheim who plays "Katczinsky."

Slim Summerville who plays "Tjaden"

Scott Kolk who plays "Leer"



Owen Davis, Jr. who plays "Peter"

Walter Brown Rogers who plays "Behn"

THE GREATEST FILM

Lewis Milestone, the director

WITH the passage of the years, more and more the moving picture industry is certain that "All Quiet on the Western Front" is the greatest film ever made. Certainly it is the greatest talking picture ever made. A remarkable coincidence of expertness in every feature that went into it insured its success.

In the first place, the book was such a graphic human document that it had already appealed to millions of people throughout the world. It was on the basis of its humanness that Carl Laemmle, Jr. was so certain that it would make a great film success. He was certain in spite of almost unanimous doubt of its commercial value; everyone admitted its tremendous power. The problem was to translate this innate dynamic human urge into a like power at the box-office.

Starting, then, with this marvelous equation, Carl Laemmle, Jr., chose Maxwell Anderson and George Abbott to adapt and dialogue the Erich Maria Remarque book for the screen. Anderson, whose current stage success is "Mary of Scotland," had proven himself already in war plays by his stage hit, "What Price Glory." George Abbott had co-authored "Broadway." Lewis Milestone was selected as director, Arthur Edeson as cameraman. The cast was selected by Milestone and Carl Laemmle, Jr., with the utmost care and attention to the roles they were playing. Slim Summerville, for instance, was the first player chosen because he ideally typified Tjaden. Louis Wolheim and John Wray were perfect as Katczinsky and Himmelstoss. The boys were chosen with care and good fortune. Lew Ayres as the leader, Paul Baumer, was started on a portentous film career, and "All Quiet" has been the means of bringing to the fore nine screen juveniles.

As a result of all these fortuitous artistic factors, "All Quiet on the Western Front" became the perfect talking picture of all time. Its history at the box-office and in critical newspaper circles is now screen history.

HOW IT BEGAN

This scene shows a typical German school room where a pseudo-patriotic school master induces an entire class to volunteer for the fatherland.

Ben Alexander who plays "Kemmerich" | Russell Gleason who plays "Muller" | William Bakewell who plays "Kropp" | Lew Ayres who plays "Paul Baumer" | John Wray who plays "Himmelstoss"

:VER MADE

It won the Gold Statuette of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. It was the first moving picture ever accorded a gold medal by the Faculty of Arts of London and still is the only picture ever honored by this august body. It won the Photoplay Magazine Gold Medal of that year without even a close competitor. It stood at the head of the Ten Best in the Film Daily annual poll. It won the Silver Cup of the Movie Times of Tokyo, Japan, as the best picture of the year. In every country where it could be shown, it won honors. It deserved them all.

There are still countries, however, where "All Quiet on the Western Front" has not been shown, where it never will be shown. In these countries, authorities do not desire the horrors of war, as depicted in "All Quiet," to be brought so forcibly to the eyes of mothers, the spirit of youth, or the rapacity of capitol industry. They don't want to have their young men, the men on whom the solons depend for cannon fodder, softened up by the terrible experiences which Erich Maria Remarque so masterfully depicts in his story.

"All Quiet on the Western Front" just had to be written. According to the author, it was impossible for him to settle down to any endeavor while the weight of horror and suffering through which he had muddled during the war years was still on his consciousness and unexpressed. He felt

(Continued on Page 28)

Why "All Quiet" Is Reissued Now

This picture is brought back to you at a time when the whole world is again fearful of war. The story was written by one who hated war because he knew from experience that it is hell, not glory. The mothers of the world will welcome it and will urge their sons to see it. It is greater than mere entertainment, because it is a war against war itself. As a showman and as a hater of legalized murder, I am intensely proud to offer it to you.

CARL LAEMMLE, President
Universal Pictures Corporation

A tragic, remorseless scene from "All Quiet" showing the school boys in the trenches waiting for the zero hour while one of their comrades hangs lifeless.

HOW IT ENDED

NEWSREEL No. 225

VIENNA

● The Heimwehr mobilizes as Chancellor Dollfus seeks the good will of the various elements of his badly torn body politic. Eight thousand troops were dispatched to the Tyrol to virtually establish martial law in this home of the free.

● This picture and the one below it were printed in almost every illustrated newspaper of the United States since Universal newsreel beat out most of the "still" photographers in distributing pictures of the difficulty in Austria. The scene above shows members of the Heimwehr searching lunch boxes and portfolios of socialists for concealed weapons. The photograph was released through the Central Press Association with a Universal newsreel credit line.

● This picture is reproduced from the New York Times, which not only ran it last Friday, but syndicated it through its Wide World syndicate to six hundred other newspapers. The scene shows a barricade in the streets of Vienna, defended by Chancellor Dollfus' Heimwehr troops.

Rochester Eve. Journal and Post Express Calls "BELOVED" Haunting Romance

By Mary Gilmore

STIRRINGLY beautiful is "Beloved," the romantic epic now on the RKO Palace screen.

Themed to music, this haunting story teams John Boles and Gloria Stuart in unchanging devotion against a shifting background of progressive eras in American life.

The story of their struggle—his for recognition as a composer and hers for the fulfillment of his dreams—is flashed with tender detail that touches three generations in the Hausmann saga.

From the hero's royal cradle in Vienna, through revolution to Charleston, S. C., swings the story's start. Then blossoms the Civil War romance, which continues to bloom despite devastation of southern homes and the young composer's unrewarded struggle for success.

Teaching youngsters who don't want to study, playing in a Bowery saloon, watching his son grow up a disappointment, the composer reaches old age with his symphony still unheard. How joy in his grandson's musical genius turns to near tragedy gives the film's final episodes an unusual dramatic twist.

John Boles' popularity should be greatly enhanced through his singing and fine character portrayal in "Beloved." Lovely Gloria Stuart here continues the good work she started in "Roman Scandals." Lucille Gleason, Mae Busch, Louise Carter, Richard Carle and Lucile La Verne are important in the team's splendid supporting cast. Photography and direction are excellent. This is a film everyone will enjoy.

✚ ✚ ✚

Through a remarkable invention Universal Newsreel is able to enlarge from film clips with results almost as good as original still photography. All of the illustrations on this page are throw-ups from film clips. The two center cuts were made from newspaper illustrations from the Daily Mirror. The one on this page is three columns wide; the one on page 15 is four columns wide. Note the remarkable clarity of these pictures. No wonder newspapers everywhere are crazy to run them.

FROM THE DAILY MIRROR, FEBRUARY 26th

Machine gunners, shown during Vienna riot, may be called anew if reported Nazi threat materializes.

● A three-column reproduction of a newsreel clip from Universal newspaper Newsreel No. 227, showing the latest protected machine guns which will be used in Vienna if the Nazis carry out their threats.

Filmarte Shows "Beloved" Good For Lengthy Run

By Eleanor Barnes in Los Angeles Illustrated Daily News

IF anyone is wondering why Filmarte, long identified with outstanding foreign production, is screening an American picture, "Beloved," which is now playing there, is sufficient answer.

John Boles and Gloria Stuart portray the leading roles, which span almost a century in the unfolding of the story.

The music, enchanting, features three songs. Two of them Victor Schertzinger, composer of "Marcheta" and "The Love Parade," were effectively done by Boles. "In the Gloaming," the third number, needs no introduction, but Boles' interpretation of the number is refreshingly new.

Schertzinger, who understands composers, has brought out fine talents in Boles, revealing the actor's ability to perform as well as sing. This picture should run a long time at this house, particularly appealing to women audiences.

Gloria Stuart is beautiful in this film. Her interpretation of fidelity, through the years, has a certain wistful glow that makes this romance convincing.

Lucille Gleason, Jimmy Butler, who did such fine work in "Only Yesterday" with Boles; Morgan Farley, Mickey Rooney and what seemed to be an almost endless number of players turned in creditable performances.

16 Monday, February 26, 1934

22 DIE AS AVALANCHE BURIES ITALIAN VILLAGE

(Universal Newsreel from International)

● This four-column illustration in the Daily Mirror was also placed through International by the Universal newspaper newsreel as an illustration of a remarkable scene in No. 227. Tons of dirt and snow swept down from the peaks of the Appenine Mountains upon the little village called Bolognola, in northern Italy, covering it with debris, death and destruction. It is the second time this year it has happened.

NEWSREEL No. 224

PARIS

● While Austria is having its difficulties, Paris has been re-enacting one of its barricades episodes. They seem to come in cycles. The disturbance here isn't a race or a class affair but a protest for honest government.

● This scene in the historic Place de la Concorde, where once the Guillotine attracted its morbid crowds, again rings to the hurrying feet of the embattled citizenry crying out against corruption, as they once did in this courtyard of the Tuilleries.

● These three scenes, showing the uprisings in Paris are all reproduced with the sound track beside them. In Newsreel No. 224, the sound was one of the most striking features of these stirring scenes of Paris. See how differently street scenes register. This is the Gare du Nord.

Produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr., from the book by Erich Maria Remarque. Directed by Lewis Milestone. Presented by Carl Laemmle.

STEP OUT WITH UNIVERSAL

Another great stroke of showmanship by UNIVERSAL . . . re-releasing NOW the greatest WAR picture ever produced . . . giving you the opportunity to tune your theatre in to the current world-wide wave of war talk! . . . Handle this picture like a SHOWMAN right now and you'll CLEAN UP! . . . New ad mats tying up to the present now ready! . . . New paper! . . . EVERYTHING to make it easy for YOU!

ALL QUIET ON THE WESTERN FRONT

The picture that broke long-run records in dozens of cities is ready NOW to make money for YOU!

BE MINE TONIGHT

It's an entirely different musical!

•

Starring

JAN KIEPURA

Golden-voiced Hero

•

"The World's Greatest Thrills" Thrills The Adventurer's Club

WHEN "The World's Greatest Thrills" was first released, all the reviewers admitted that it had the screen faded, so far as thrills are concerned. It was the epitome of all the daring and desperate attempts of the dare-devils of the world to break records, to cut down time, to check-mate death. It was admitted to be the greatest film of its kind ever to reach the screen.

Audiences responded gaspingly to this unique thriller, which had been so highly praised by the critics. "The World's Greatest Thrills" registered with both feet as an audience picture. It had them glued to the seats.

But the greatest test of all was yet to come. The film was booked as the piece-de-resistance to the Adventurers' Club of New York. This is an organization which includes in its membership the most daring explorers, intrepid flyers, fearless sailors, brave soldiers, newspaper men and wanderlusters de luxe.

AVAILABLE
N O W
FOR BOOKING
EVERYWHERE

As a result of this showing, Tex O'Rourke, the president, wrote this unsolicited letter, which describes "The World's Greatest Thrills" as one of The Adventurers' Club's greatest thrills. Read the letter.

PLAYED THE ROXY THEATRE
NEW YORK
THIS WEEK

THE ADVENTURERS' CLUB OF NEW YORK

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT
TWENTY-TWO WEST THIRTY-SECOND STREET
NEW YORK. N. Y.

Feb 19th 1934

R. V. Anderson,
Universal Pictures Corp.
730 Fifth Ave

Dear Mr. Anderson:

Would you be interested in knowing that your picture "World's Greatest Thrills" shown at our club Saturday night, proved also to be one of the Adventure Club's greatest thrills.

In a club used to thrilling tales and strange sights, a feature must be truly outstanding to score the hit earned by your film. It ranks with the finest bits of entertainment we have ever enjoyed and you have our sincerest thanks.

In presenting this picture we arranged, as an introduction, to have personal appearances and short talks by Carl von Hoffman, Arthur Menken, Jimmy Hare, Bill Alexander and other News Reel men, which gave us just the right setting. All together it was a tremendous success in every way.

Sincerely yours,

Tex O'Rourke

Tex O'Rourke, Pres
ADVENTURERS' CLUB of N.Y.

ARE YOU THROWING

Oh, no, of course YOU are not throwing a bluff! . . . But millions of others are these days — or would like to, if they dared! . . . And here's the picture aimed straight at the bluff throwers —and at their admirers and enviers, which includes just about everybody! . . . Another one of those Universal "new idea" pictures that are building so much good will—and GOOD BUSINESS — for exhibitors everywhere!

STEP OUT WITH UNIVERSAL

LET'S BE

A BLUFF?

LEW AYRES
with PATRICIA ELLIS, in

RITZY

With Frank McHugh, Isabel Jewell. Produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr., from a stage play by William Anthony McGuire. Directed by Edward Ludwig. Presented by Carl Laemmle. Another good one from UNIVERSAL

"MADAME SPY" LURES AT MANY BOX-OFFICES

CURRENT reports from various sections of the country on the grosses of "Madame Spy" at the box-office, indicate that this Fay Wray and Nils Asther romance-thriller is clicking.

The picture is doing nice business at New Orleans, Richmond, San Francisco and Washington, and better than average business in Worcester.

During its Broadway screening at the Roxy Theatre, the spy drama showed up well and was praised highly by the New York Times and other newspaper reviewers. In Chicago, "Madame Spy" was booked into the McVickers Theatre, which sets an unusual precedent for a Universal picture.

Spy rumors are still flying thick and fast and newspapers are carrying stories in their columns about impending hostilities. Under the circumstances, "Madame Spy" is a natural for the showman and those who know how to take advantage of timeliness in pictures will reap a rich harvest in "Madame Spy."

✚ ✚ ✚

"I Like It That Way" Gets Big Radio Plugs

FEW musicals have ever received such an intensive campaigning over the air as "I Like It That Way," the Stanley Bergerman production with Gloria Stuart and Roger Pryor. Since the beginning of this year, day after night, the songs from the picture have been sung and played over the radio stations of the country, with many of these broadcasts coming over Coast-to-Coast hookups. The melodies have been featured over such famous programs as the following:

Dr. Lyon's Toothpaste program
Linit program
Chevrolet—Frank Black
Good Gulf Gasoline—Emil Coleman
Sal Hepatica—Ferde Grofe
Texaco "Fire Chief"—Don Vorhees
Cutex—Phil Harris (Twice)
Chase and Sanborn Coffee Hour—Rubinoff
Fox Fur Trappers—Bert Hirsch

The extent to which Universal newsreel pictures are being distributed throughout the country may be seen from these two clips reproduced in the Daily Mirror of Saturday, February 24. They represent the latest Vienna episodes and are covered by Universal Newsreel copyright through International which distributed them to 800 newspapers throughout the United States.

Universal Buys Screen Drama by Ferdinand Schumann-Heink Glorifying Lowly Film 'Extra'

CARL LAEMMLE, Jr. Universal's young general manager, arrived at Universal City yesterday and celebrated by purchasing "Weather Permitting" an original screenplay by Ferdinand Schumann-Heink, son of the famous diva and himself well known as a screen actor and director.

"Weather Permitting" deals with the plight of a group of Hollywood movie extras and follows them through some very exciting dramatic and frequently wildly humorous days. Kurt Neumann is slated to direct this production following the completion of "Alias the Deacon," the Hymer-Clemens play.

"Only Yesterday" Best Ever Shown At Missouri Theatre

MISSOURI THEATRE
SENATH, MISSOURI

Feb. 5th, 1934

Universal Film Exchange,
Memphis, Tenn.

Dear Mr. Sipe:

I have never written at letter like this since I have been in the theatre business. Maybe it'sbecause I have never shown a picture like your "Only Yesterday." I can't help but write you and tell you what a fine picture Universal turned out. When we showed "Only Yesterday" it really was a pleasure for me to stand at the door and have all my people tell me what a grand picture it was. If we could have more pictures like it, this would be a mighty fine business to be in. I am as you know going to run this feature again at our theatre and that also is something we never did before.

May I also add to the above that I believe Universal has and will make the finest motion pictures of the year. More power to you and your excellent office force.

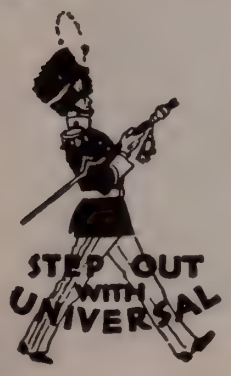
Kindest personal regards,

Missouri Theatre,

By Lyle Richmond, Mgr.

The timeliest picture you can book!

AIRMAIL



Cash in immediately on the tremendous current interest in airmail—on the thousands of front-page headlines! . . . . Get in touch with your Universal Exchange TODAY for a quick run on the picture that gives the inside dope on . . . . "AIRMAIL!"

With Patsy Kelly, Paul Page, Carmel Myers, Reginald Owen, Robert McWade, Richard Tucker. Story by Walter Fleisch. Directed by Karl Freund. Presented by Carl Laemmle.

•

A Stanley Bergerman Production

Says Hollywood Variety:

"With smart direction, a brace of superior performances and with an intriguing story presented with fresh dressing, it will take care of itself in all spots as diverting comedy drama . . . 'Countess' is lavishly presented."

Says Motion Picture Herald:

"The story has novelty, action, plenty of thrill and excitement as well as love interest and comedy."

The COUNTESS OF MONTE CRISTO

With

FAY WRAY

PAUL LUKAS

"Pirate Treasure" Packs Super Thrills

The very name of Richard Talmadge implies action and thrill and adventure. This is a scene which few actors in the moving picture business or out of it, would make, taken from "Pirate Treasure."

Richard Talmadge for years was an acrobat, who thrilled vaudeville audiences with the audacity of his acrobatic stunts. Here is the star of "Pirate Treasure" performing one of them for this Universal serial.

"Pirate Treasure" in News Stand Display

WHEN the April issue of Sure Fire Screen Stories appears on the news stands there will be in it a big plug for "Pirate Treasure." This Dell Publishing Company's western magazine started recently like a house afire. One of the reasons was a serialized story of "Pirate Treasure" based on the Universal serial starring Richard Talmadge. The April issue is on the stands today and it will have the concluding episode of "Pirate Treasure." There will also be a neat summary of the previous episodes to connect the story up with the final chapter.

The same issue (April) also contains the novelized story of "Wheels of Destiny," the Ken Maynard feature Western with splendid illustrated features.

Current magazines on the stand now and shortly to appear have a number of their pages devoted to Universal pictures, for instance, Screen Romances, in its May issue, carries the complete dramatic story of "The Countess of Monte Cristo" and "The Crosby Case." These dramatic stories are amply illustrated with stills and with portraits of Fay Wray and Wynne Gibson.

Romantic Movie Stories also contains novelizations of Universal Pictures. The current issue on the stands now has the novelization of "Madame Spy" while the April issue, out this week, contains the novelization of "Beloved" and the May issue, out April first, will devote its choicest spot to the Lew Ayres starring vehicle, "Let's Be Ritzy."

Greatest Film Ever Made

(Continued from Page 13)

that he had to get things straightened in his own mind, and the idea of the book came to him while he was on the editorial staff of a Berlin illustrated weekly, almost as a safety valve. Every soldier who has ever read the books or seen the picture, has thanked Erich Maria Remarque for putting this experience into concrete form. Every person who did not go to the war who sees this picture, enjoys a unique, vicarious experience of war, and knows that it is real.

No one who has ever seen "All Quiet on the Western Front" ever wants to go to war himself, or see anyone related to him go to war. It is in this spirit, and in view of world conditions at this moment, that Carl Laemmle has reissued "All Quiet on the Western Front."

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY SHOWMANSHIP SECTION

A DIGEST OF THE BEST EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

"ALL QUIET ON THE WESTERN FRONT"

BECOMES ONCE MORE, THE MASTER SHOWMAN'S GREAT OPPORTUNITY

UNIVERSAL is reissuing one of the greatest motion pictures ever made. That in itself is news. But the BIG news is that this reissue comes when the time for it is perfect from a showmanship angle. This picture is "ALL QUIET ON THE WESTERN FRONT," a picture that neither time nor fashion will dwarf or outdate. "ALL QUIET ON THE WESTERN FRONT" ranks today with the finest pictures now being released — and is the most timely picture now on the market.

With the newspapers filled with rumors of war —with the European situation threatening to break the ties of peace any day—and with the whole world contemplating what such another outburst as that which occurred in 1914 might do to civilization, "ALL QUIET ON THE WESTERN FRONT!" is the greatest showman's picture in existence.

Many outstanding editorial writers, when "ALL QUIET ON THE WESTERN FRONT" first came out cheered this fine picture and said that it should be brought back again and again to keep the world mindful of the horrors of war. They said it was the very finest kind of peace propaganda . . . and Mr. Laemmle said that he would bring it back if war ever again threatened the world.

New paper with fresh selling angles and appeals planned to take advantage of the current trend of national thought has been put on the printing presses for this release and new advertising is being prepared which will sell "All Quiet" with all its original appeal as a great picture together with the powerful new angles that have been created by current world unrest.

A new press book is being prepared which contains many new tie-ups and various selling angles which can make this picture again repeat its glorious box office record of original release. Book this picture quickly. Then plan a big campaign. It's a chance to intrigue and inspire every man with an ounce of showmanship in his blood.

This picture is brought back to you at a time when the whole world is again fearful of war. The story was written by one who hated war because he knew from experience that it is hell, not glory. The mothers of the world will welcome it and will urge their sons to see it. It is greater than mere entertainment, because it is a war against war itself. As a hater of war I am intensely proud to offer it to you.

CARL LAEMMLE

SCHWARZ GIVES "LIKE IT" BIG LOUISVILLE SEND-OFF

Campaign Includes Much Novel Exploitation For Stuart-Pryor Musical

JACK SCHWARZ, manager and Oliver Brooks, publicity manager increased the Brown Theatre's advertising appropriation fifty percent and then went ahead to convince Louisville, Ky. that "I LIKE IT THAT WAY" was no ordinary musical.

Advance broadcasts over the city's radio stations, plugs by hotel and restaurant orchestras and special flash displays in music stores aided the campaign considerably.

The picture was given advance plugging within the theatre by stencilling the title, "I LIKE IT THAT WAY" on the white silk blouses of the usherettes' costumes. A photograph of the girls was taken and was used to obtain two column newspaper space under the heading "Do You Like It That Way?" The stunt aroused considerable talk about the picture.

The stencil title gag was also used on prominent street corners. "I LIKE IT THAT WAY"—BROWN THEATRE was daubed on the sidewalks on the night before the opening. The idea attracted the attention of the people going to work the next day and brought considerable comment.

Enlarged tie-up photos, available in the exchange set of stills were used to land window displays in the city's class stores. Production stills, mounted on specially prepared art panels added color to the window. The tie-ups included shoes, sport wear, flowers and radio.

For an advance and current ballyhoo, a sound truck was used. The hit numbers from the picture were played over the truck's amplification system.

Distribution of ten thousand heralds, increased newspaper advertising which included teaser ads in all daily papers, and an attractive front rounded out the campaign. Duke Hickey, Universal exploiteer assisted on the campaign.

Above—Brown Theatre usherettes with their costumes stencilled for "I LIKE IT THAT WAY."

Right—Two column newspaper publicity break in Louisville Herald-Post that resulted from stunt, which also created plenty talk. Credit Jack Schwarz, manager and Oliver Brooks, publicity manager.

THE HERALD-POST, LOUISVILLE, KY.

Do You Like It That Way?

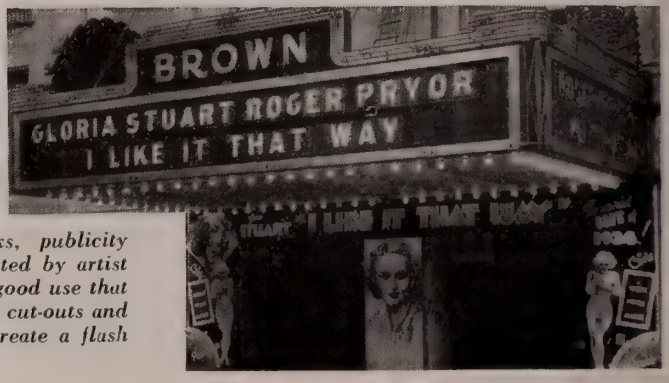
BROWN THEATER USHERETTES.

It's a matter of taste, no doubt, but few movie fans will disagree with the Brown Theater usherettes, "I Like It That Way," emblazoned on the blouses of the girls, is the title of the picture showing at the theater this week. Left to right are Ruth Ruparts, Margaret Fallon, Evelyn Greenblatt, Beverly Males and Sylvia Summers.

Sound truck used by Brown Theatre to give Louisville a few samples of the catchy music from the picture, "I LIKE IT THAT WAY."

Greyhound Co-operation For "Cruise" in 'Frisco

CA CABALLERO, manager, and Judd Clark, publicity manager, Orpheum Theatre, San Francisco to assist them in their campaign for "CROSS COUNTRY CRUISE" enlisted the aid of the local Greyhound Office. The Bus Line provided a lobby display of a twenty four sheet size colored panel featuring a Greyhound Bus and the line, "With Greyhound on the Cross Country Cruise." They also made up a mask for the box-office representing the rear of a bus. They imprinted their timetables with the line, "See 'Cross Country Cruise' at the Orpheum Theatre, San Francisco." Similar co-operation can be obtained from all Greyhound Offices.



Brown Theatre, Louisville, Ky. marquee and front for "I LIKE IT THAT WAY" designed by Jack Schwarz, manager and Oliver Brooks, publicity manager and executed by artist Koehler. Note the good use that was made of poster cut-outs and enlarged stills to create a flash display.

"A WONDERFUL PICTURE. UNIVERSAL SEEMS TO HAVE THE PRODUCT THIS YEAR."

—J. C. Darst, Dante Theatre, Dante, Va., in M. P. Herald

THE WEEK'S PICK OF SHOWMANSHIP ADS

(1.) Two column x 8" from Liberty, Oklahoma City, Okla. (2.) Three column x 4" from Uptown, Kansas City, Mo. (3.) Double column x 5¼" from Roxy, Seattle, Wash. (4.) Double column x 4½" from Allen, Cleveland, Ohio. (5.) Three column x 7¼" from Brown, Louisville, Ky. (6.) Two column x 5" from Rialto, Washington, D. C. (7.) Double column x 5½" hold-over from Capitol, Richmond, Va. (8.) Three column x 5" from Eckel, Syracuse, N. Y. (9.) Two column x 6" from Roosevelt, Seattle, Wash.

"What The Picture Did For Me"

(A few exhibitor reports from Moton Picture Herald)

"This is a great big production...You will make no mistake in telling your folks it is one of the biggest pictures released by anyone. Margaret Sullavan is by far the finest star brought to the screen in many a moon"—

W. R. Brenner,
Cozy Theatre, Winchester, Ind.

"They advertise this one as 'Bigger than Back Street,' and it is. They boosted Miss Sullavan highly and she deserves it...A perfect picture of its type, a credit to all concerned and the theatre that plays it"—

Henry Reeve,
Misson Theatre, Menard, Tex.

"A very good picture. It's clean. Give us more pictures with Margaret Sullavan"—

P. G. Held,
New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa

"What a swell picture this is. Will rank as one of the ten best of the year. The picture will please all"—

R. W. Hickman,
Lyric Theatre, Greenville, Ill.

ONLY YESTERDAY

From

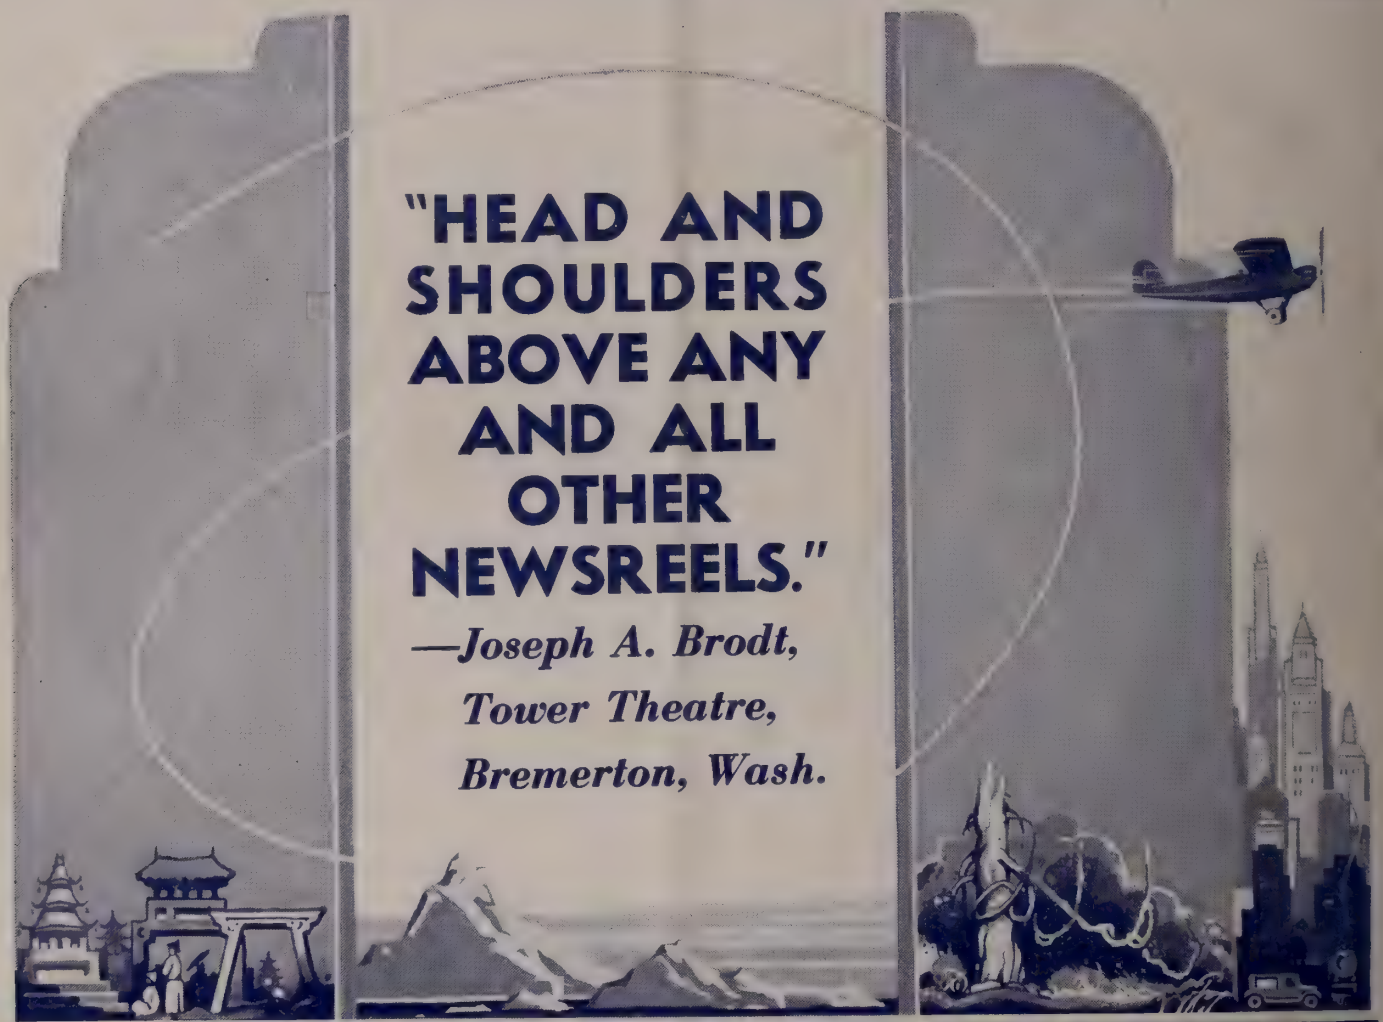
UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.

730 FIFTH AVENUE

NEW YORK CITY

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
Paid
Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

Larry Edmunds Bookshop
6658 Hollywood Blvd.
Hollywood, Calif. 90028
HO 3-3273
World's Largest Collection
Of Books on Motion Pictures



UNIVERSAL NEWSREEL

Printed in U. S. A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

VOL. 34 NO. 13
MARCH 10, 1934

This picture is brought back to you at a time when the whole world is again fearful of war. The story was written by one who hated war because he knew from experience that it is hell, not glory. The mothers of the world will welcome it and will urge their sons to see it. It is greater than mere entertainment, because it is a war against war itself. As another hater of war, I am intensely proud to offer it to you.

—CARL LAEMMLE, President
Universal Pictures Corp.

THE YEAR'S GREAT BOOK becomes . . . .

THE YEAR'S GREAT PICTURE

with

Margaret Sullavan

the girl who won your heart in "Only Yesterday;" Douglas Montgomery and a great cast. Produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr., from the screenplay by William Anthony McGuire.

A
FRANK BORZAGE
PRODUCTION

A UNIVERSAL PICTURE

Presented by
CARL LAEMMLE

A UNIVERSAL ONE-REEL CARTOON
Plan NOW for a special Oswald show for Easter... Remember, Oswald is the only RABBIT in films!
OSWALD
The LUCKY RABBIT

WHY ONE NEWSREEL

No. 763 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

My orders to the Universal Newsreel staff are just the same as the orders that you would issue if you were making up the Newsreel for your own theatre, namely:

"Cover the real news of the whole world.

"Cover it as fast and as honestly as you can.

"If it is news, get it, no matter whom it may affect.

"Play no favorites. Use no propaganda of any sort. Remember at all times that you are getting news, news, news and nothing but news.

"Do it as smartly and as entertainingly as you can.

"Remember that your only real competitor is the daily newspapers. In some cases he can beat you to it because the printing press is faster than the film printer. But don't forget that you can show news in ACTION while the best the newspaper can do is to show a 'still' picture."

My additional instructions are as follows:

"Don't let anyone on earth use our newsreel for advertising or propaganda purposes. Never make any kind of an advertising hookup.

STANDS OUT ALONE!

"The screens on which the Universal Newsreel are shown do not belong to Universal. They belong to the exhibitors. Don't let anyone get by with any attempt to rape them! Don't let anyone sneak anything but real news and entertainment into any issue of the Universal Newsreel."

In other words, I have never issued any order which would cramp the style of our Newsreel cameramen or editors.

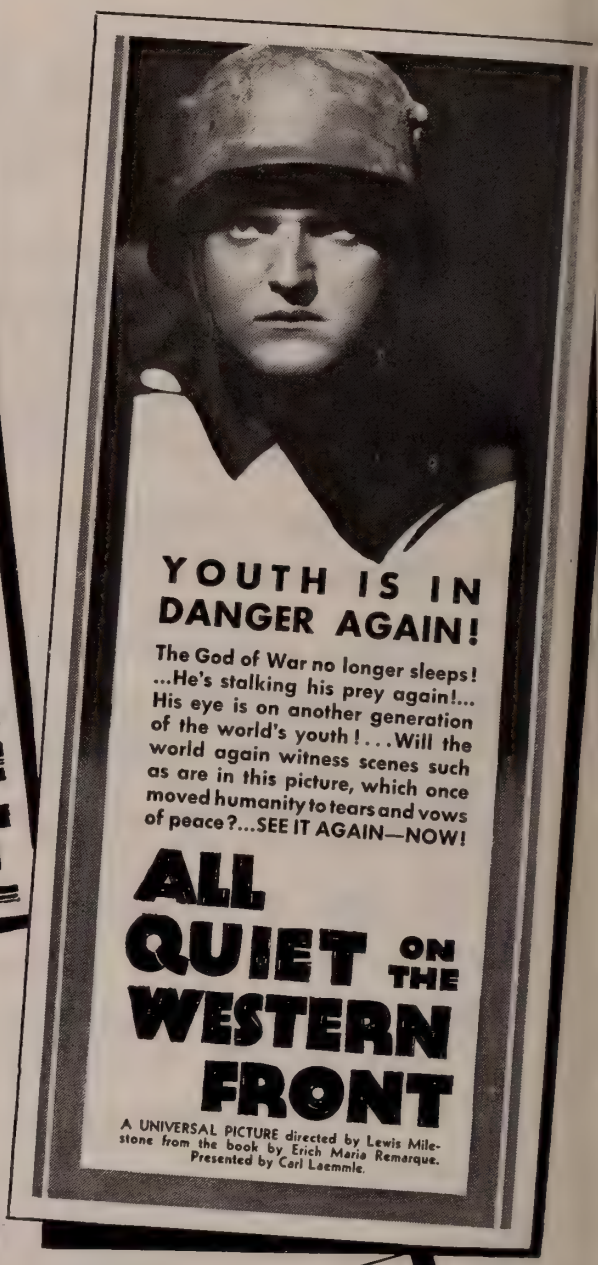
When you get the Universal Newsreel, you get the best news obtainable by the best cameramen in the world — without fake, without propaganda, without direct or indirect advertising of any sort.

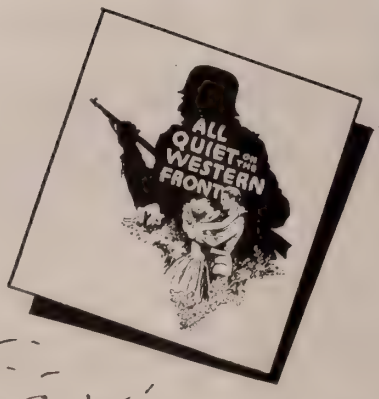
Finally, I selected Graham McNamee as the Universal Newsreel Talking Reporter because he is the undisputed leader of all announcers. His voice gives a life to the news he announces. It is fired with life, not mush and milk. He gives life and showmanship to the news of the day.

If you are getting anything less than this in your newsreel, you are not getting what your money is worth!

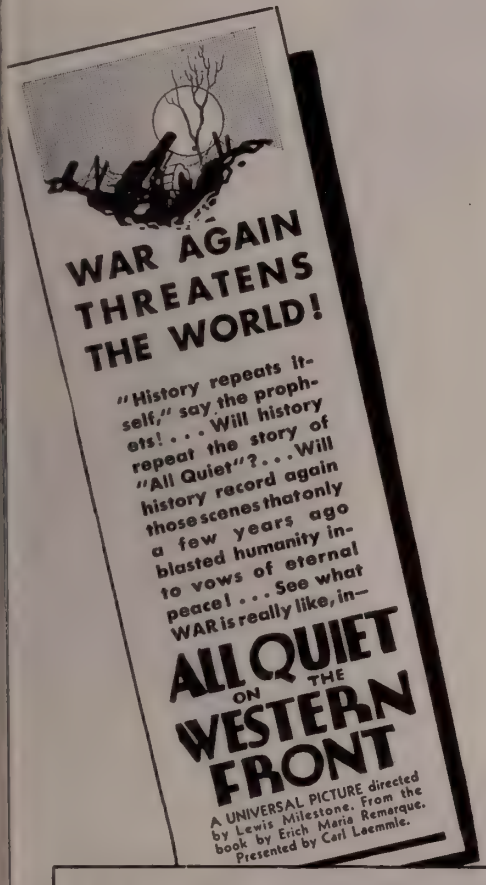
Carl Laemmle

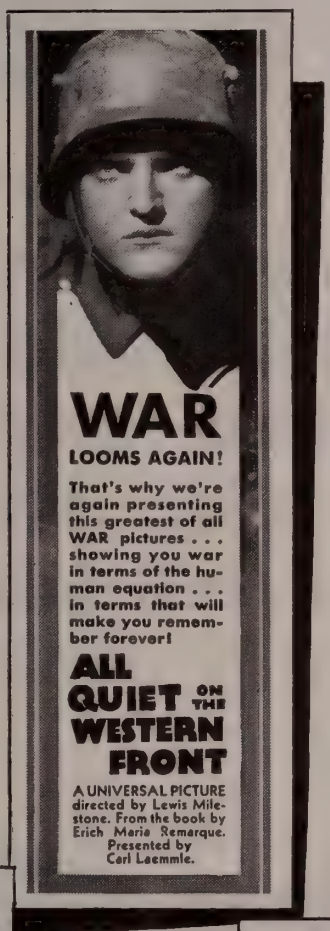
NEW AD MATS! NEW PAPER

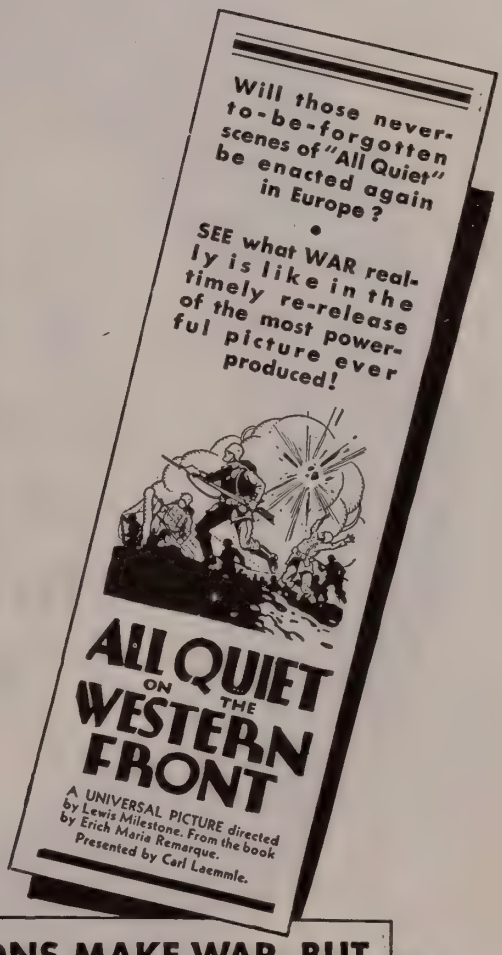


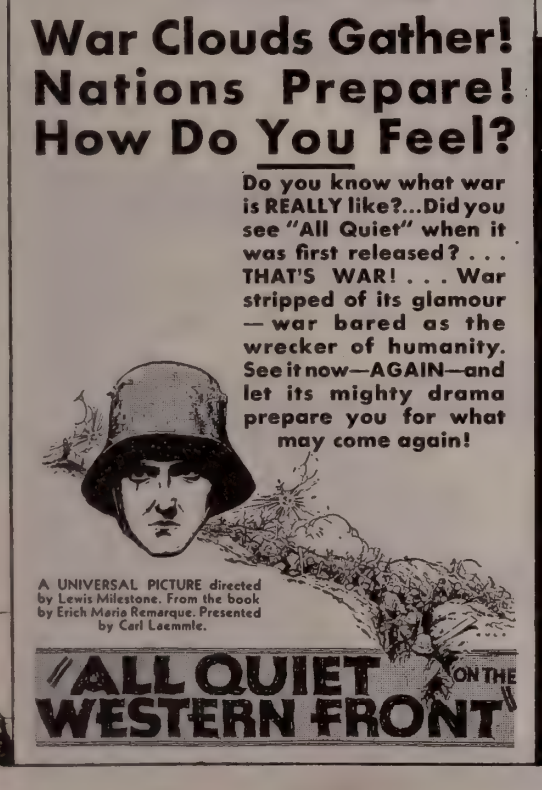


NEW PRINTS! NEW APPEAL!









STRANGE AS IT SEEMS

Hal Forrest, author of "Tailspin Tommy." Twenty million newspaper readers thrill with this author's cartoon in 200 daily papers.

Universal Newsreel Wins Victory in Chicago

HAD it not been for the refusal of Universal to knuckle down to a casual ruling of the Chicago Board of Censors, all the newsreels would have been compelled to take out all of the scenes showing disturbances in Austria. This was not because the Chicago police censors had any feeling in regard to Austria. It is merely because they, in their wisdom, decided that the citizens of Chicago were not strong-minded enough to see riot scenes without wanting to go and do likewise. The orders were in regard to Universal Newsreel No. 227 and were as follows:

"Cut entire scenes and all dialogue (one long strip) showing Austrian streets and buildings riddled with bullet holes by mob fighting."

Fortunately the censors rescinded their action ,at the Universal protest, so a test of strength was avoided. However, the ukase now stands: No more mob scenes to be shown in Chicago.

Universal Pictures To Film Serial Based On Comic Strip "Tailspin Tommy" By Hal Forrest

TWENTY five million persons who have been following the humorous and thrilling adventures of that young aviation devotee, "Tailspin Tommy" in the daily columns of more than 200 newspapers on three continents will have an opportunity to see this pen and ink character come to life on the screen.

Carl Laemmle of Universal Pictures has just bought the right to bring "Tailspin Tommy" and his adventures into a serial soon to enter production under the supervision of Henry MacRae. Ella O'Neill who has written more than 20 Universal serial plots will write the screen version of the new character play from outlines furnished by Artist Hal Forrest and Ray Taylor will direct the filming.

"Tailspin Tommy" will be the first serial Universal has made in several years in which the leads will be played by juvenile stars. It is expected that there will be an interesting race between a score of young actors for the title role, among the contenders already listed being several sons of former movie greats.

Hal Forrest, originator of the cartoon character has taken much from his own long experiences as an aviator in creating his drawings, many of "Tommy's thrilling exploits being true experiences of the birdman-artist.

✚ ✚ ✚

"Airmail" Re-Issue Brings Quick Success

ON the wave of notoriety which is holding the word "AIRMAIL" up to the attention of every newspaper reader, the State Theatre of Scranton, Pa., is the first to cash in on Universal's re-issue of this great John Ford production. This Comerford-Publix house booked "Airmail" as a repeat engagement. It had already played it when it was first issued. The repeat engagement was for three days on a percentage engagement. The picture opened on February 26.

For years and years the residents of Scranton will remember the snow storm which pracitcally paralyzed Scranton on February 26th and 27th. Nevertheless, the first two days of the engagement were so exceptional that the picture was held over for a full week. The result of this full week's showing fully justified the wisdom of the management in bringing "Airmail" back to its patrons.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
730 Fifth Avenue, New York City
Copyrighted 1934
Universal Pictures Corp.
(All Rights Reserved)
MARCH 10, 1934
Vol. 34 No. 13

✚ ✚ ✚

Book and Picture Re-Issue Together, For "All Quiet"

GROSSET and DUNLAP, publishers of the popular priced edition of "All Quiet on the Western Front," learning that Universal is about to reissue the picture, have decided to re-issue the book at the same time.

The publishers will provide the copies of the re-issue with an auxiliary "strip jacket" tying it up to the new advertising angles being provided for the picture by Universal. "All Quiet" has already the greatest book circulation through the world in so far as recent books are concerned. This new re-issue will put it still further ahead.

It is interesting to know that in international sales another Universal property stands next to "All Quiet." It is the Hans Fallada novel, "Little Man, What Now?" in production at Universal city.

LATEST NEWS FROM

Lee Tracy returns to Universal in a crackerjack sure fire story entitled "I'll Tell the World." He is fortunate to have for his leading lady Gloria Stuart, shown in this picture in the character of a princess, a very modern one—brought up in Baltimore, Md.

"Little Man, What Now?" Started This Week

WITH a skeleton cast, Frank Borzage went into production on "Little Man, What Now?" at Universal City, on Monday of this week. Margaret Sullavan and Douglas Montgomery had been rehearsing for a week and a half for their roles in this Hans Fallada novel. Three other roles were cast, however, for the requirements of the first few scenes. These roles were Kathryn Doucet, who is playing at the same time in "Alias the Deacon," the first scenes of which will go before the cameras on Thursday.

Carl Laemmle, Jr. plans to make of "Little Man, What Now?" a fitting follow up for Margaret Sullavan in "Only Yesterday." William Anthony McGuire has provided a script which has pleased everyone around the studio, and Frank Borzage is positive of an outstanding production.

"The Humbug" Starts Next Week

SO ably did Karen DeWolf accomplish the screenplay for "The Countess of Monte Cristo" that Carl Laemmle, Jr. immediately assigned her another picture to do for Universal. Yesterday she started upon the continuity for "The Humbug," a play by Max Marcin, who will direct his own story starring Nils Asther. It is scheduled to start next week.

✚ ✚ ✚

Complete Last Shot of "Vanishing Shadow"

UNIVERSAL'S third big serial of the year, "Vanishing Shadow," is completed. Director Louis Friedlander shot the last scene at Universal City on last Saturday. Onslow Stevens, featured player in Universal's "The Crosby Case" and "Counsellor at Law," has the leading role. Supporting him are Ada Ince, Edmund Cobb, Al Ferguson, Richard Cramer, Walter Miller, James Miller, James Durkin, and William Desmond. Ella O'Neil wrote the story which recounts the thrilling consequences of an amazing scientific discovery.

✚ ✚ ✚

Universal Awaiting Return of Chester Morris

DORE SCHARY and Lewis Foster have been engaged by B. F. Zeidman to script their own play, "The Love Life of a Sailor." This comedy will be the fourth Zeidman production for Universal, and will star Chester Morris with Slim Summerville. Andy Devine is the only other member of the cast so far selected. "The Love Life of a Sailor" will go into production as soon as Chester Morris returns from New York, where he is starring in "Frankie and Johnnie."

"Glamour" Is Now in the Cutting Room

AFTER more than a month of intense production effort, "Glamour," the Universal "triangle" drama adapted from the story by Edna Ferber, was completed and this week went into the cutting room. It was directed by William Wyler.

Constance Cummings and Paul Lukas appeared in the featured roles, and important supporting parts were played by Phillip Reed, well known singer and dancer, Doris Lloyd, Joseph Cawthorn, David Dickenson, Alice Lake, Lita Chevret, Louis Alberini, Yola d'Avril and Grace Hale.

Lukas' next Universal picture will find him in the starring role of "Affairs of a Gentleman," to be directed by Edwin L. Marin. Alice White and Lilian Bond are also in it.

✚ ✚ ✚

"Uncertain Lady" Cast Grows Greater

IN its second week in production at Universal City Studios, the cast of "Uncertain Lady" assumes unusual proportion and importance.

Edward Everett Horton and Genevieve Tobin head the cast. Already Renee Gadd, Mary Nash, Paul Cavanagh and George Meeker have been announced. This week Carl Laemmle, Jr. announced Donald Reed, Gay Seabrook, Dorothy Peterson, Herbert Corthell, Arthur Hoyt and James Durkin.

Karl Freund, who just completed "Countess of Monte Cristo," is directing the "Uncertain Lady," from the original play by Harry Segall. It was adapted by Daniel Evans and Martin Brown, and the screenplay was written by George O'Neil and Doris Anderson.

JSY UNIVERSAL CITY

"Black Cat" Secret —and that's POSITIVE

UNIVERSAL has taken unusual precaution to insure the utmost secrecy around the production of "The Black Cat," the super-horror picture to end all horror pictures, with Karloff and Lugosi.

Compared to this chilling thriller the strict supervision and mystery that surrounded "Frankenstein" and "Invisible Man" was an open mass meeting. Rigid notices to "stay off" the "Black Cat" set have been posted all over the studio, with the enforcement going even further than ever before, by refusing admittance to all employees other than those directly associated with the production.

All of the employees on the picture have been given special checks, which they must show on coming in and going out, in order to insure their proper identification. No visitors, under any circumstances, will of course, be allowed on the set during the whole production.

Furthermore, both the make-up rooms of the famous portrayers of horror will be closely guarded and so will the cutting room where the film takes will be locked up each night.

Alice White and Lilian Bond Cast in "Affairs of A Gentleman"

ALICE WHITE has been selected to play the feminine lead opposite Paul Lukas in "Affairs of a Gentleman," scheduled to enter production next week at Universal City. Miss White, however, is but one of eight girls who will vie for feminine honors in the picture. The story by Edith and Edward Ellis, on which the picture will be based, calls for that number of handsome women to seek the affection of the hero. So far, Lilian Bond is the only other girl named. An important part has also been assigned to Murray Kinnell. Edwin L.Marin will direct.

"Affairs of a Gentleman" will be Paul Lukas' first real starring vehicle on the Universal lot. Up to now he has been featured or has shared starring honors in nine productions. His exceptional work, however, in "By Candlelight," "The Countess of Monte Cristo," and "Glamour" has influenced Carl Laemmle, Jr. to give him the big boost.

The first still from "Uncertain Lady." This picture features Genevieve Tobin and Edward Everett Horton from a Broadway play by Harry Segall. The first scenes have just been shot at Universal City. Looks like a winner from every angle.

"Here's to Love" New Universal Musical

STANLEY BERGERMAN, who produced "Moonlight and Pretzels" in New York, has decided to produce another musical at Universal City. It will be entitled "Here's to Love" and will have many of the craftsmen who worked on "Moonlight and Pretzels." Jay Gorney and Sig. Herzog are already at work on the story and the music for "Here's to Love." It will go into production this Spring.

✚ ✚ ✚

Krim Scripting "I Give My Love"

MILTON KRIMS has been assigned by Carl Laemmle, Jr. to write the continuity of Vicki Baum's story, "I Give My Love." The screenplay was written by Winifred Dunn. "I Give My Love" is a B. F. Zeidman production, designed to star Wynne Gibson. It will go into production under the direction of Karl Freund as soon as the balance of the cast is selected. The story is planned to have an elaborate musical setting.

There never has been, there isn't now and there never will be ___

___ ___ ___

___

COMING!
Lee Tracy
backed by the greatest publicity tieup this business ever knew, in—
I'LL TELL
THE WORLD

GOVERNOR LEHMAN OF NEW YORK JOINS IN THE CARL LAEMMLE JUBILEE

STATE OF NEW YORK
EXECUTIVE CHAMBER
ALBANY

HERBERT H. LEHMAN
GOVERNOR

February 16, 1934.

Mr. Carl Laemmle, President,
Universal Pictures Corporation,
730 Fifth Avenue,
New York City.

My dear Mr. Laemmle:

I have just learned that tomorrow you will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of your coming to America. May I take this opportunity of congratulating you heartily on your many notable achievements and on your fine services to the community. I know that you came here as a poor boy, with no advantages and many handicaps. The success which you have achieved both in business and in communal activities is therefore the more noteworthy, and I am sure that you and your family and your host of friends must feel very proud.

I send you my heartiest congratulations and best wishes for many more years of health, happiness and service.

Yours very sincerely,

Herbert H Lehman

Carl Laemmle, Jr., Talks of New Pictures

Too busy to take a promised vacation, the Universal Production chief returns to his desk at the studio.

To Eileen Creelman Of The New York Sun

CARL LAEMMLE, Jr., came to town about the first of the month all set for a real holiday, the first since at the age of twenty-one he became production head of his father's company, Universal. He has worked hard during the past few years, finding his fun mainly in turning out such productions as "All Quiet on the Western Front" and the other big pictures he has persuaded the studio to make. Two months in Europe didn't seem like too much of a vacation.

Yesterday, after twenty-two of the usual frantic Laemmle working days, Junior entrained once more for the Coast. It just didn't seem the time for a holiday after all. There was too much going on. This, Junior reports cheerfully, is a turning point. Things are better. They're getting still better all the time. That vacation can wait.

It may not have been a holiday, but the younger Laemmle enjoyed his stay here, in New York, although he was born in Chicago and now lives in Hollywood, is his real home. Southern California has not so destroyed his stamina that he cannot enjoy a winter scene. He likes the cold; and he likes the snow. In fact, he likes New York generally.

On MARCH 17th
The Universal Weekly will publish a
NEW PICTURES NUMBER

Playgoer

As part of his job, Junior took in sixteen plays during his twenty-two days here. He saw everything that might have a connection with the movies, but he didn't buy any production on Broadway. He is concentrating with novels and stories. He's had better luck with them.

"But I learned a lot," insisted Hollywood's youngest production head. "Well, about the theatre, its trend and taste, Just take 'She Loves Me Not,' for example. Well, of course it's fast and hilarious and all that. It's also the first college play that brings in an entirely foreign element that isn't really about college at all. Now that's new.

"This seems to me the best theatrical season I've ever known—more good plays, anyway. I've seen so many, I've liked, 'Mary of Scotland,' Henry Hull in 'Tobacco Road,' 'Ah, Wilderness,' so many of them.

"No, I didn't buy any. Most of the good ones were bought. Then you have to wait for so long before you can release the picture of a successful play—until the play's run is over. But I learned a lot.

"There's less melodrama now, none of the Broadway and gangster plays. That seems to be over. There's more farce, more serious drama. Yes, sure, that will affect pictures, too."

Business

Mr. Laemmle did quite a bit of business while here, picking up "Fan-

(Continued on Page 28)

~ ~ Frank Borzage sees Margaret Sullavan as the Ideal Actress to portray the role of Bunny in the Film "LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?"

When Frank Borzage, the noted director, first read "Little Man, What Now?" the only actress he could see in the role was Margaret Sullavan. He had just seen her in "Only Yesterday." To him, she typified ideally the brave and deeply suffering Bunny, heroine of this remarkable story which Carl Laemmle, Jr. plans to make the big production of the entire screen world for this spring. Miss Sullavan will be a gorgeous Bunny to thousands who have read the book.

Photograph of Margaret Sullavan by Hal Phyfe

"LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?" was and is the great book of the year. In international circulation it is second only to "All Quiet on the Western Front." The Frank Borzage production of "Little Man, What Now?" will, beyond a doubt, be the great picture of the year. In addition to Margaret Sullavan, who so ideally fits the role of Bunny, Carl Laemmle, Jr. and Frank Borzage chose Douglass Montgomery as the perfect prototype of Pinneberg. Douglass Montgomery has recently achieved fine critical praise in "Little Women" and in "Eight Girls in a Boat."

ROMANCE – RECKLESSNESS – SEX

The three love-starved soldiers swim the proscribed canal and surreptitiously visit the three French girls, who are famishing for even such lowly necessities as bread and sausages.

"ALL QUIET" H

There Never Wa
Which Captur
So Thoroug
So Many

OFTEN the comment on a big production is, "it should have been great, but it lacked something." Perhaps it lacked comedy, or romance, or some other element. A picture may lack one or two of these elements and still be rated "good;" but only when it contains every element of drama, properly balanced, does it become GREAT. That accounts for the triumph of "All Quiet on the Western Front."

It has everything.

The appeals of "All Quiet" cover the range of human emotion. You laugh, you cry, your heart pounds with excitement. One of the outstanding sequences of the picture is that in which Lew Ayres, as the schoolboy soldier, and his two companions hold a midnight rendezvous with three French girls. Then the urge to love, which is the antithisis of the urge to kill, sweeps them away; they find respite from the horror of the battlefield.

The Humor of Tjaden

Slim Summerville, as Tjaden, the onetime locksmith, is one soldier who retains his sense of humor. Throughout the picture his comic interludes are a welcome contrast to the bitterness of the actual warfare. Time and again his peculiar antics and remarks, such as take place in the canteen, where the soldiers gather for a song and a round of beer, cause plenty of laughter. He is typical of one kind of fighting man. The sequences between him and Louis Wolheim, the hardboiled, lovable "Kat," are equal to a full-length comedy in themselves.

Tjaden was also something of a philosopher. With Kat and the seven boy soldiers gathered in the shade of a tree, during a lull in the advance, he discourses amusingly yet truth-

WAR – THRILL – HEROISM

The war scenes of "All Quiet on the Western Front" are the most elaborate, spectacular and awe-inspiring that have ever been filmed for the screen. No actual pictures made at the front can in any way compare with them.

; EVERYTHING!

a Picture Before l Its Audience y And From Directions fully upon the futility of war. The youngsters and Kat also express their ideas. An intense feeling of brotherhood exists.

The Heroism of Kat.

This brotherly feeling becomes heroic as the group climbs from the trenches into no-man's land. One soldier willingly risks his life for another, and with admirable courage they brave the hell of a bombardment. The absolute fearlessness of Kat is revealed the night he takes the boys on a barbed-wire laying mission.

"All Quiet" never lacks action. From the opening sequence when the patriotic schoolboys jump up on their desks shouting "On to Paris," until the final shot when a French sniper ends the life of the hero, there is never a still moment. The swift movement of troops, the fury of attack is breathtaking.

Realism plays its part in the picture. In a shellhole where one boy loses his eyesight, or in the dugout where another breaks under the nervous strain and rushes wildly to his death, there is the note of sincerity. War is neither falsified nor glossed over; it is real. Because of this realism one immediately sympathizes with the characters, so much so that he feels he is almost in the grip of war himself.

Hatred of All War's Children

There is even hatred in "All Quiet." Strangely, this hatred is not directed toward the enemy. Largely it is centered upon the tyrannical drill master, Himmelstoss, who humiliates his young recruits and drives them mercilessly. And the on-looker sighs with deep satisfaction when the boys revenge themselves upon this brutal officer. There is hate, also, of the squalor and suffering of war, of the mud, and filth and uncivilized living. The tension becomes so great that Muller, one of the boy soldiers, thinks

(Continued on Page 19)

MUSIC – GAIETY – FORGETFULNESS

A scene in the canteen where Katczinsky starts out to get Tjaden drunk so that he will be unable to join the romantic expedition with Baumer, Leer and Kropp. Soldier Songs—Ribald Jokes—Forgetfulness.

BEAUTY – MYSTICISM – SYMBOLISM

In contrast with the terrific impact of the war scenes, "All Quiet on the Western Front" has wonderfully beautiful sequences. Every one is fraught with significance and symbolism to heighten horror.

Universal gives you another great love story by the writer of "Show Boat" and a dozen other successes . . . Prepare for a BIG one in this story of a woman who loved two men—but who loved glamour even more!

Edna Ferber's

GLAM

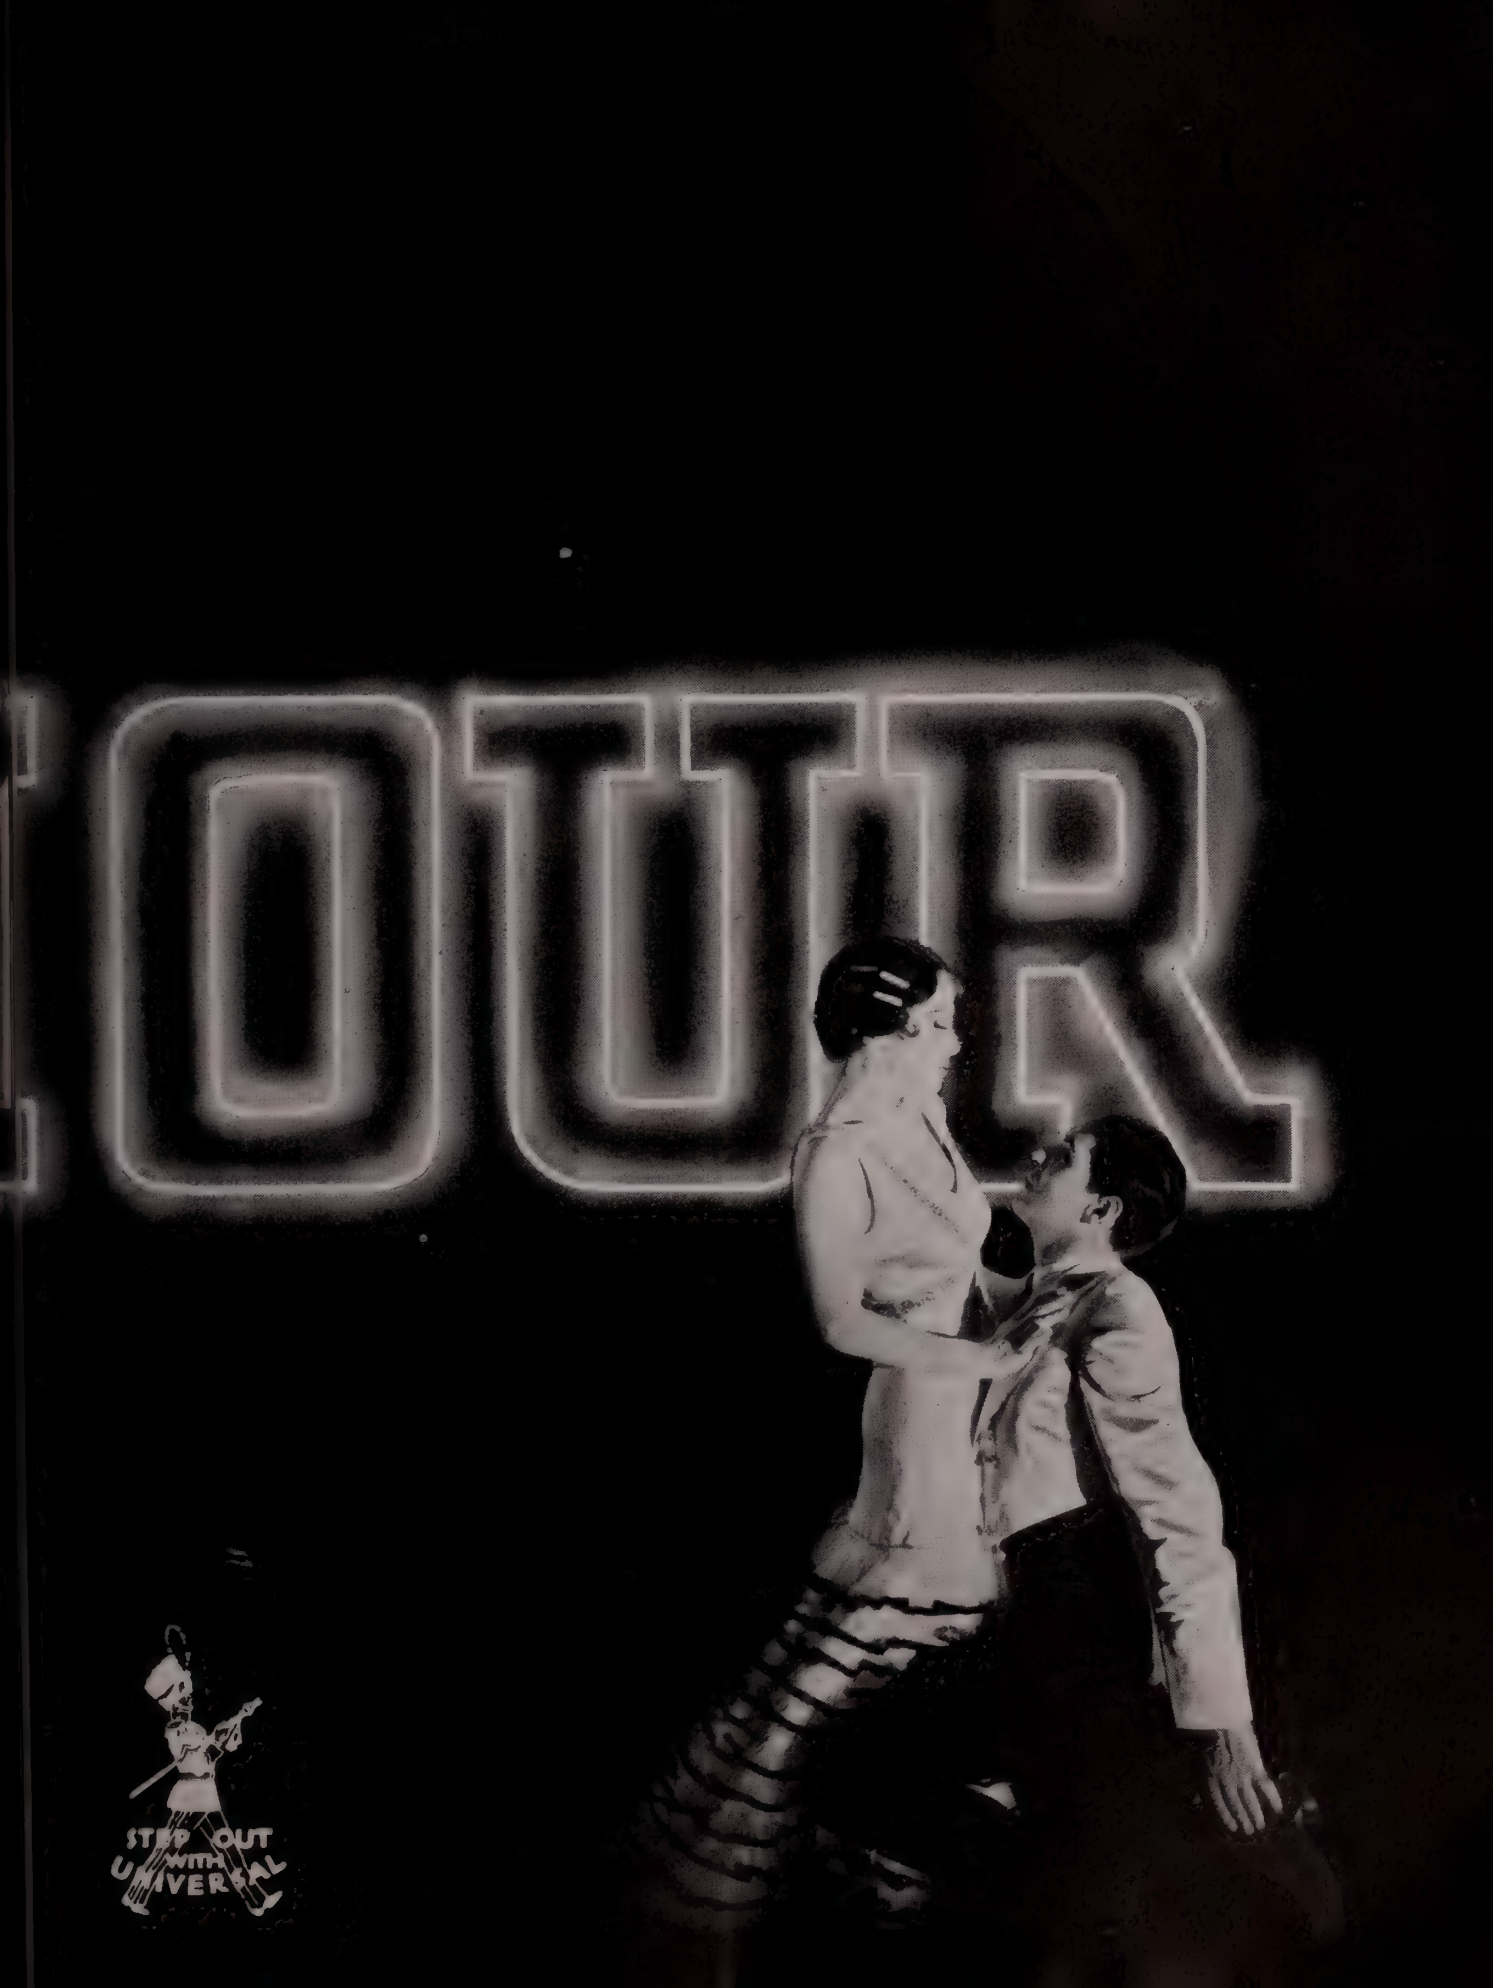
With CONSTANCE

CUMMINGS

PAUL LUKAS

Philip Reed Joseph Cawthorn, Doris Lloyd, Alice Lake and many others. Directed by WILLIAM WYLER. Presented by Carl Laemmle.

A B. F. ZEIDMAN PRODUCTION.



OUR
STEP OUT
WITH
UNIVERSAL

BE MINE TONIGHT

The picture whose great box-office appeal will last for years —

Starring

JAN KIEPURA

The Screen's Golden-Voiced Hero

"ALL QUIET" HAS EVERYTHING

(Continued from Page 15)

more of a pair of comfortable boots than he does of the life of a comrade.

Beauty Intensifies Climaxes

Inseparable from the road and destruction of guns, the methodical slaughter of human beings, is a strange, a haunting beauty. A silent battlefield at night, lit up only by a star shell; an empty, war-torn countryside. In contrast to this is the pure beauty of the little French village beside the peaceful canal, and the quaint streets and customs of a German town.

Pathos — Homesickness

When Paul Baumer, played by Lew Ayres, returns to his home on sick leave and meets his old mother, there is a quality of pathos rarely achieved in films. His mother awaits him, tenderness welling up in her heart. She lies on her sick bed when he first sees her. And he, robbed of youth by the unnatural demands of war, no longer understands her, or feels as the child he was a few short months before. She, too, thinks he has changed. This contrast, this pathetic effort at readjustment, wrings out the ultimate in emotion.

The Tragedy of War

One cannot see "All Quiet on the Western Front" and escape the tragedy that is part of it. It is not the tragedy, however, brought about through the failure or the mistakes of an individual; it is the blind, sweeping tragedy of war. No theme is as vital as that of life and death, and with this premise "All Quiet" unfolds its terrific story. Every scene in it, every emotion shown, is one which finds a ready sympathy in every audience. Those who are not appealed to by love, or comedy, or heroism, or tragedy find other elements, fierce action, pathos, hatred, realism, or philosophy to grip their emotion. There is something in "All Quiet" for everybody.

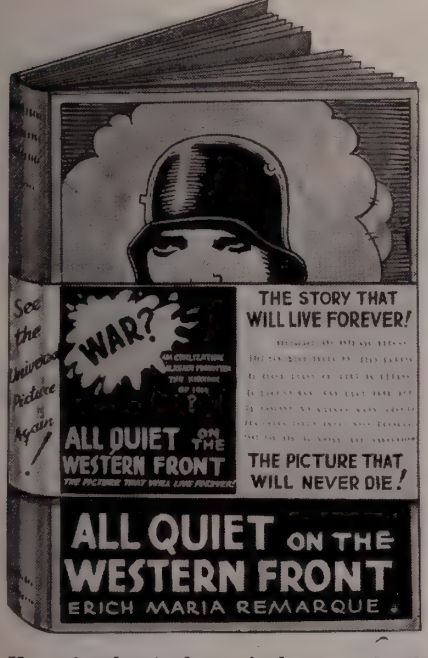
Now More Timely Than Ever

Universal spent a million and a half dollars to make the one picture that has a world-wide appeal. No side of human nature was overlooked. In the casting of the film, in its direction, in the authenticity of its backgrounds, and in the sincerity of its treatment, it has no rival. The success it enjoyed when first released is adequate proof of that.

Today "All Quiet on the Western Front" has the element of timeliness to a degree it has never had before. It is not only perfect entertainment, but it is news. It is news in the sense that it pictures war to a world on the verge of war. This combination of timeliness and universal appeal is a set-up for the exhibitor. It presages even greater triumphs for "All Quiet on the Western Front."

HUMOR — PHILOSOPHY — SENSE

Get out your copy of "All Quiet on the Western Front." If you haven't it, get the edition which Grosset & Dunlap is putting out in connection with the reissue of "All Quiet on the Western Front." Read in chapter IX beginning on page 204 and realize the humor, the philosophy and the plain common sense of the dialogue between these German soldiers, none of whom knows what the war is all about.



Here is the jacket of the new book which Grosset & Dunlap is issuing in connection with "All Quiet on the Western Front," which will be ready for general release on April 2nd.

LET'S

Says Hollywood Variety:

"'Let's Be Ritzy' is a highly plausible screen play that should have no trouble standing on its own. It presents Lew Ayres in one of those somewhat quiet type roles that fit him so perfectly, and his latest chore should win him new admirers."

Starring

LEW AYRES

with

Patricia Ellis, Frank McHugh, Isabel Jewell, Burton Churchill, Robert McWade, Hedda Hopper. From a stage play by William Anthony McGuire. Directed by Edward Ludwig. Presented by Carl Laemmle.

BE RITZY

Three Great Pre-reviews of Latest Ken Maynard Western Picture

This picture was reviewed in Hollywood under the title of "Honor of the West" but has now been changed to "Honor of the Range."

Hollywood Reporter

Ken Maynard does double duty in "Honor of the West." He plays the hero and the menace as well in a dual role. For good measure there is a whole rabble of villains, a magnificent hideaway in the mountains, Cecelia Parker, dynamite and Tarzan the horse.

The result is shrieks of delight from children in the audience.

Maynard plays a strapping sheriff. He also plays the sheriff's twin brother, a cringing weakling who fails in with the nefarious schemes of Fred Kohler and gang to steal the money. Kohler has a mountain all fixed up with swinging doors of rock and even an organ.

There is something new in fights when Maynard and Kohler mix while the girl plays the organ frantically to cover the noise.

Nate Gatzert has turned in a good tale for the youngsters. He wrote story, screen play and dialogue. Alan James takes credit for direction which keeps things moving.

Something just a little bit different in horse operas.

Motion Picture Daily's Hollywood Preview

Maynard portraying a dual role is his usual self, but in this case is doubly so because of the extra work called for by the dual characters. He is ably supported by Fred Kohler, Frank Hagney and Jack Rockwell. Good performances are also given by Jim Marcus, Al Smith, Eddie Barnes and Franklin Farnum. Alan James did a nice job of directing with good photography by Ted McCord.

Ken Maynard, Fred Kohler and Cecelia Parker in a tense scene from "Honor of the Range," in which Ken Maynard plays a dual role. He sings, dances and steals in one character; suffers, fights and makes love in the other.

VARIETY

Ken Maynard portraying a dual role and singing an old-time ballad, plus the customary fight with the heavy and usual hard riding on Tarzan, make 'Honor of the West' a much better than ordinary Western. For those houses with a clientele that relish horse oprys, this one has everything. Plenty of action, hard-riding, thrills, love interest and a bit of unusual comedy relief.

Allen James' direction is excellent, and Cameraman Ted McCord has done right well with exterior shots that reveal a few mountain crevices hitherto not shown on the screen. Story by Nate Gatzert is mostly plausible, with a few scenes that stretch the imagination, but as a whole acceptable.

Maynard is the sheriff of the western community and also plays the part of his twin brother, a weakling who runs a small grocery store. Cecilia Parker loves Ken, and is in turn desired by Clem, the brother.

"Be Mine Tonight" Is Brought Back Many, Many Times

453 Jefferson Street
Glencoe, Illinois
January 14, 1934.

My dear Mr. Laemmle:

As Winchell would say—"orchids" to you—a million of them. This is a fan letter for you, but, as you are a great person, it will probably not reach you—one of your secretaries will read it. And I want you to read it—very much.

You are responsible for the many happy hours I have spent, and am still spending. Thank you for the loveliest picture that has ever been made, "BE MINE TONIGHT." The thrill of such satisfying music—such charm—the only really charming picture I have ever seen. And Jan Kiepura. Any attempt to describe his beautiful voice would be crudely inadequate. But he's wonderful, and quite an actor, too. Any other tenor, and you would not have had such a captivating picture. I hope we are going to be able to hear and see him again and again—please.

The first time I saw "BE MINE TONIGHT" was last August—since then it has returned by request many, many times. I do not usually see a picture more than once, but this one is an occasion. I have seen it twelve times — and like it more each time I see it. The Adelphi Theatre in Chicago is showing it again January 18th and 19th. Of course, I'll be there. From now on I'm a "Universal" fanatic with pleasure.

Very sincerely yours,

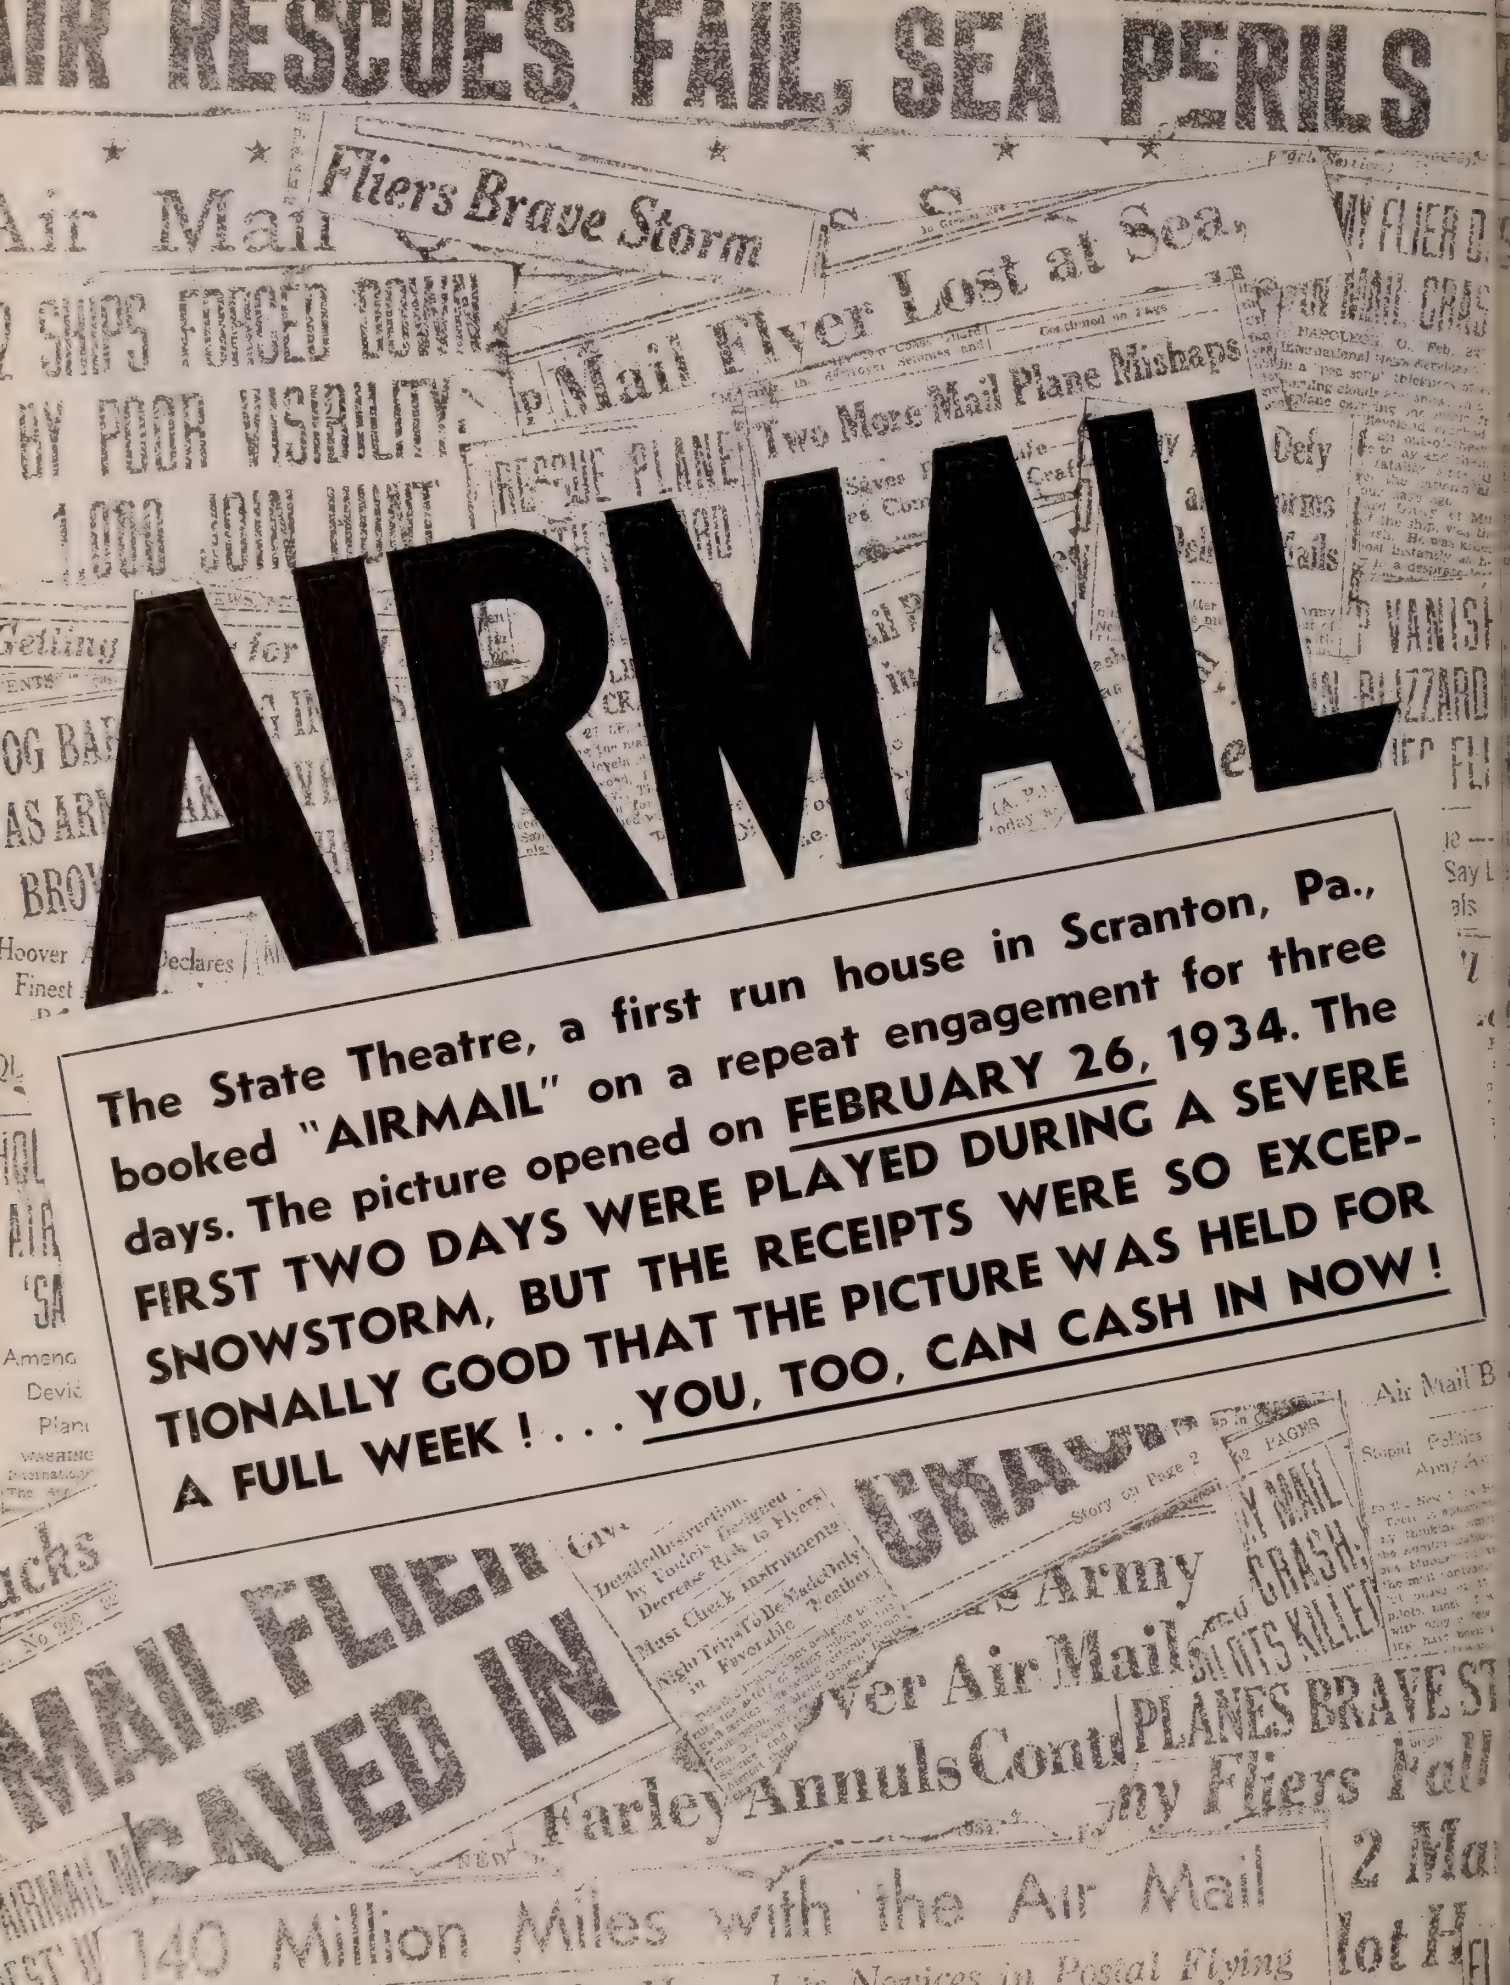
Mary Katherine Kalk

ONLY YESTERDAY

A JOHN M. STAHL Production

With JOHN BOLES, MARGARET SULLAVAN

"One of the best pictures of the year" — Louis Perretta, Crescent Theatre, Mahoningtown, Pa. • "They just don't make any better entertainment than this one" — Bert Silver, Silver Family Theatre, Greenville, Mich. • "A honey. The best picture we have run lately" — R. M. Rector, Columbia Theatre, Anadarko, Okla. • (Reports on Jan.—Feb. runs in March 3 issue of Motion Picture Herald) •



AIR RESCUES FAIL, SEA PERILS
Air Mail
Fliers Brave Storm
Mail Flyer Lost at Sea
SHIPS FORCED DOWN
BY POOR VISIBILITY
1,000 JOIN HUNT
Two More Mail Plane Mishaps
AIRMAIL
The State Theatre, a first run house in Scranton, Pa., booked "AIRMAIL" on a repeat engagement for three days. The picture opened on FEBRUARY 26, 1934. The FIRST TWO DAYS WERE PLAYED DURING A SEVERE SNOWSTORM, BUT THE RECEIPTS WERE SO EXCEPTIONALLY GOOD THAT THE PICTURE WAS HELD FOR A FULL WEEK! . . . YOU, TOO, CAN CASH IN NOW!
MAIL FLIER
RAVED IN
Farley Annuls Contr
Over Air Mail
PLANES BRAVE ST
140 Million Miles with the Air Mail

"Pirate Treasure" Improves Receipts

RIALTO THEATRE
Direction North Carolina Theatres, Inc.
DURNAM, N. C.

February 20, 1934

Universal Pictures Corp.
730 Fifth Ave.,
New York City

Gentlemen:-

I have just completed the third chapter of your serial, "Pirate Treasure" starring Richard Talmadge with Lucille Lund. From every indication this serial is going to prove the best this theatre has had the pleasure of exhibiting.

Since the opening our business has improved 25%, and it is rare that a day passes that we don't have one of our patrons compliment some member of our personnel, on our showing of the serial.

I want to take this opportunity to compliment you on this splendid picture, and I sincerely hope that many theatres will take advantage of this serial, which undoubtedly will prove a natural for any box-office.

Yours very truly,

Francis Falkenburg,
Manager.

"BELOVED" PRAISED

CINCINNATI POST

AT THE CAPITOL

THE spanning of a century is difficult in a novel, and doubly so in a story for stage or screen presentation. In "Beloved" the writers faced this problem courageously, and succeeded in presenting most effectively an epic romance of a composer.

The idealism and tender emotions of the principals give the story a charming air of jasmine, honeysuckle, lavender and old lace. The drama lies in the character of Carl Hausmann and his determination to work for the best in music rather than yield to tawdry composition.

It is a bitter and discouraging struggle, but he lives to see in his grandson the embodiment of his own genius for composition even though it is genius turned toward modernism and what he regards as utter prostitution of ability.

John Boles skillfully portrays the martyr-like role of the composer and his singing is excellent. Mr. Boles has the knack of growing old convincingly. Gloria Stuart is thoroughly charming as the wife of Hausmann. Richard Carle's Barnum-like Judge Belden is an outstanding portrayal.

NEWSREEL No. 228

As a precaution against recurrence of the riots in Vienna, the police round up the revolutionists by the hundreds and take them from the damaged socialist strongholds to concentration camps. Government troops then rush to the border to repel a Nazi threat.

Appalling catastrophe overtakes a fast Pennsylvania passenger express as it enters Pittsburgh. Rounding a curve at high speed, the engine jumped the track, crashed into a building and fell twenty-five feet to the street. Nine were killed and thirty-seven injured.

First view of the air liner which hit a mountain in a blinding fog less than an hour out of Salt Lake City, Utah. The giant twin-motored transport banged against a mountain peak of the Wasatch Range.

There never has been, there isn't now and there never will be ___

_____ ___ _____

_____

"APT TO PROVE A

"This one is quite apt to prove a surprise," says McCarthy, in Motion Picture Herald. "Premised on a not unique idea, the story is so treated, acted and presented that there is plenty of novel entertainment from hokum comedy to semi-mystery drama, with two love interest angles holding the yarn together. Laugh-creating situations is the keynote and each one develops its own surprise in either action, dialogue or result...There seems to be a lot of 'sleeper' quality to this picture." . . . Says Showmen's Round Table: "Rollicking romance contains all ingredients for good box-office business."

COUNTESS OF MONT

URPRISE"

–Says M. P. Herald

With

FAY WRAY
PAUL LUKAS

With Patsy Kelly, Paul Page, Carmel Myers, Reginald Owen, Robert McWade, Richard Tucker. Story by Walter Fleisch. Directed by Karl Freund. Presented by Carl Laemmle.

•

A STANLEY BERGERMAN PRODUCTION

E CRISTO

CARL LAEMMLE, JR., TALKS OF NEW PICTURES

By Eileen Creelman
The New York Sun

(Continued from Page 9)

ny," by that same Marcel Pagnol who wrote "Marius," deciding to make a modernized version of Sheridan's "School of Scandal," possibly retaining the period background; signing up Jane Wyatt after seeing her in Philip Barry's"The Joyous Season;" talking with various people about Broadway and about his hopes of finding three or four plays to produce here next season. It's not been Douglass Montgomery.

He's enthusiastic about Jane Wyatt, thinks he can build her into a big dramatic star. Margaret Sullavan, he says, by one picture, "Only Yesterday," made herself so popular with audiences that they are eagerly awaiting her next appearance. That will be in "Little Man, What Now?" in which Frank Borzage is directing her with Douglas Montgomery.

"I think that will be a big hit," confided Mr. Laemmle, eyes bright as ever, but the famous dimples now faded quite away. "There have been lots of depression stories, but none has gone well. I thought they wouldn't. That's why I wouldn't make any.

But this one, I think it'll be like "All Quiet," the one war picture of the year that was a tremendous hit. We're making the end more cheerful. Oh, yes, we've got to do that, give them something in the end, fix them up somehow. That's the way things are going now, anyway, lifting out of the depression, so it will be right to have the picture that way."

He Will Produce

As for his play-producing plans he thinks that's necessary now for picture companies.

"It dovetails right in," he declares. "I think we've got to come to that. Keeps you in touch. Then there are the screen rights. I'll come on myself when I find a play that's surefire and put it on."

There is no vacation awaiting Mr. Laemmle at Universal city. He expects to spend all of Sunday and most of Monday looking at pictures either in the process of production or of cutting. He will read several scripts on the train, with more scheduled to meet him at Kansas City. Universal has some thirty-six pictures to make this year, many of them elaborate productions. After looking over the New York market Junior has decided definitely that the big money lies in making big specials rather than pretty good program pictures. He is interested therefore in such pictures as "Elizabeth and Mary," "The Return of Frankenstein" (which he describes as his own pet venture), "A Trip to Mars," written by R. C. Sherriff for James Whale to direct; Ward Morehouse's "One Glamorous Night," Fannie Hurst's "Imitation of Life," Edgar Allan Poe's "The Black Cat," in which Edgar Ulmer will direct Bela Lugosi; Vicki Baum's "I Give My Love." As for musicals, he thinks two or three good ones a year will be enough of them.

"We did well with 'Moonlight and Pretzels,' " he said. "We're going to make 'Show Boat' soon. That really ought to be done, you know. It'll be a great picture."

He's a busy young man, this hard-working son of Uncle Carl Laemmle. He has gained in weight, some twenty pounds or more, since he took up tennis and basketball seriously; and it's becoming. He's beginning to look more like the head of a big studio and less like a high school boy.

Renee Gadd, the most recent discovery of Carl Laemmle, Jr. She appears in the Genevieve Tobin-Edward Everett Horton picture, "The Uncertain Lady."

There never has been, there isn't now and there never will be ____

_____ ____

____ _____

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
SHOWMANSHIP
SECTION
A DIGEST OF THE BEST
EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

SPRING IS IN THE AIR! ARE YOU READY FOR IT?

SPRING is in the air. An early robin is singing outside. Everything suggests new life. After a long, hard winter folks will be walking out looking for entertainment and the theatre that has the most engaging front and the most attractive atmosphere will have the edge in building the biggest box office gross.

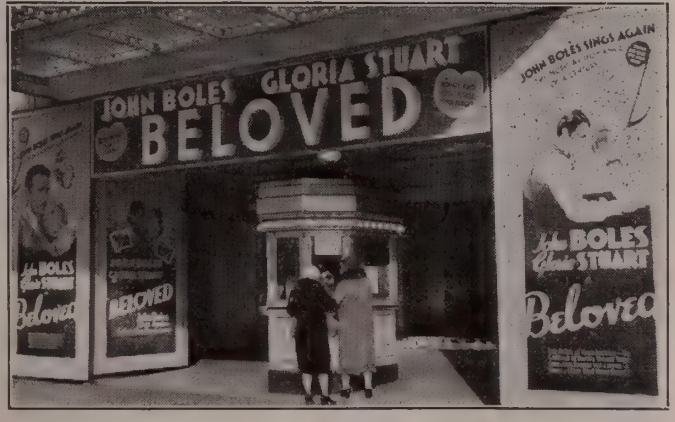
Smart showmen start before the first robin arrives with their plans for spring cleanup and they usually beat the first harbinger of spring to it in heralding the advent of the new season.

Marquees need fresh paint, outside wall boards and outside lobby frames need attention. Dirt has accumulated through the winter and melting snow and spattered dirty water have left their trails on the bases of lobby boards as well as many other spots where negative atmosphere may do a lot of real harm to the box office.

Nature takes this season of the year to polish and brighten up everything outside. And this puts folks in the mood to respond to freshness and brightness. Banners, pennants and bugees lend attractive life and color to your front and have a particularly strong appeal in keeping with the new life and activity on every hand.

Freshen up your lights. If you have been carrying heavy colored lights in your marquee now is the time to liven them up. Spring colors are light and airy. These color suggestions should also be considered in the inside lobby lighting and atmosphere. Color schemes should be between the warm colors of winters and the cool summer shades with the graduation in favor of the lighter tones. Put new life in your front and you'll find it in your box-office.

A. J. SHARICK



Rodney Collier, manager, Rialto Theatre, Washington, D. C., herewith presents a good example of an attractive front display using accessory posters.

"Margaret Sullavan" Fashions
Inspired by "Only Yesterday"
Now Showing at the Palace Theatre

You will feel as irresistible as you will look in these new and utterly charming fashions, which are copies of those worn by the famous new screen star, Margaret Sullavan, in "Only Yesterday", the picture which is now being shown at the Palace Theatre.

The Margaret Sullavan Collar
1.25

The Margaret Sullavan Tie
.50

The Margaret Sullavan Turban
3.95

Ogilvy's—Second Fl.

Two column x 6½" newspaper ad used by Ogilvy's in their tie-up with the "ONLY YESTERDAY" showing at the Palace Theatre, Montreal, Canada.

Montreal Store Plugs Sullavan Fashion Tie-Up

TO complete their "ONLY YESTERDAY" campaign at the Palace Theatre, Gene Curtis, Managing Director and Ken Finlay, Director of Exploitation tied-up with Jas. A. Ogilvy's Limited, Montreal's most exclusive department store on Margaret Sullavan fashions. This was in addition to using many useful exploitation ideas outlined in the pressbook.

Ogilvy's copied the collar, tie and hat worn by Margaret Sullavan in "ONLY YESTERDAY" and called them "THE MARGARET SULLAVAN FASHIONS" and gave them a big plug in their advertising. Reproduced above is a copy of one of the large ads that ran in all newspapers.

During the entire week of the engagement a large window was devoted to displaying a life size sketch of Margaret Sullavan wearing the advertised articles. To lend atmosphere, enlarged production stills were arranged in the background with notice about picture, theatre and playdates.

Additional store co-operation provided displays in the Hat and the Ladies Ready-to-Wear Departments.

LAMPE'S "CRUISE" CAMPAIGN FEATURES PARADE

GUS LAMPE, manager of the Eckel Theatre, Syracuse, N. Y., in his campaign for "CROSS COUNTRY CRUISE" utilized the Greyhound Bus Lines co-operation to excellent advantage. He invited employees and officials of the local terminal to a special advance screening so that they could broadcast news of the picture to the thousands of people they contact daily.

On the opening day Lampe stages a parade of Greyhound busses, General Motors trucks, Buick and Pontiac cars, a Goodyear tire car and sound truck ballyhoo. The G.M. truck and the Goodyear tire people co-operated because the Greyhound bus is built on G. M. truck chassis and are equipped with Goodyear tires. Goodyear distributors also gave a house to house distribution to three thousand imprinted accessory heralds.

Additional campaign aids supplied by the bus line included an appropriately bannered bus which cruised the streets offering free rides to the Eckel Theatre; five thousand time-tables imprinted with an ad for the picture; tie-up cards in all busses and stations; bus models for lobby display and the posting of the special roto one sheet in all stations.

Attractive window displays were secured in three of the city's largest travel bureaus. One of the agencies went so far as to print up 1,000 special mailing pieces and distributed 5,000 imprinted Western Union telegram blanks tying up to the picture and the telegraph company.

An attention-compelling advance lobby, extra newspaper space, radio broadcasts and an eye-catching front were additional highlights of the campaign. Albert Nathan, Universal exploiteer, assisted.

NATIONWIDE TIE-UP FOR GLORIA STUART ON GAINSBOROUGH PUFF

THROUGH a nation-wide tie-up with the Western Company of Chicago, manufacturers and merchandisers of the Gainsborough powder puffs, a splendid display was arranged in the Salon Moderne at the Pennsylvania Hotel during the 14th Annual Convention of this company.

The display showed silhouette heads of Gloria Stuart as part of a background for the powder puff display, together with a handsome enlargement of the same picture showing half length portrait of Miss Stuart. The enlargement was done in several colors and gave the effect of an oil painting. This display drew a great deal of attention, not only from the representatives and distributors of the Western Company, but from hundreds of people passing in the main corridor of the hotel.

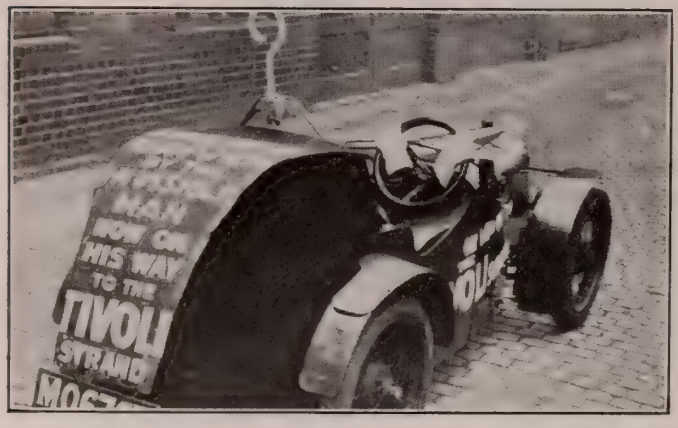
This tie-up is available throughout the country to exhibitors playing "I LIKE IT THAT WAY" and "BELOVED." Theatre managers should get in touch with local chain drug stores as far in advance as possible, of their showing in order to get the advantage of many fine window displays. In many cases theatres will find it possible to arrange window streamers and other forms of cooperative exploitation that will tie-in the Gloria Stuart disploy definitely with a specific picture in which she is featured.



LONDON BALLY

Invisibly driven car ballyhoo for London's premiere of "THE INVISIBLE MAN." The large question mark was in neon lights. Below is a part of the crowds that jammed the opening and they're still coming just as strong.

TWO showmen are added this week to the long list who have been awarded CERTIFICATES OF MERIT for their work in exploitation of Universal Pictures. Here they are:

ANDREW SASO, manager Music Box Theatre, Portland, Ore. for his campaign on "THE INVISIBLE MAN."

STANLEY E. BENFORD, manager Karlton Theatre, Philadelphia, Pa. for his effective "BY CANDLELIGHT" campaign.

Congratulations, men! Your certificates, signed by Carl Laemmle are on the way. Let's hear from you more often!

Read every word of this letter —

MISSOURI THEATRE
SENATH, MO.

Mr. W. E. Sipe, Branch Manager
Universal Film Exchanges, Inc.,
399 South Second Street,
Memphis, Tenn.

Dear Mr. Sipe:

I feel as though I should write you and tell you what a wonderful picture you have in "S. O. S. ICEBERG," and what it did at our boxoffice. First—let me explain just what we did in getting this picture before our schools.

You were kind enough to send me this picture one week before playdate and I invited all the school teachers, both city and rural, to a private screening. We had fifty nine teachers present. First—they were very proud to have a private screening and how they did enjoy that picture.

I advised them after the show my playdate and when the playdate arrived—believe you me—the school kids came in droves, also, the adults came likewise. In short, Mr. Sipe, I broke my house record for a Saturday with "S. O. S. ICEBERG."

This happened, as you know, after the cotton crop in this section had been gathered and business is about one half now what it was when the cotton season was in full swing.

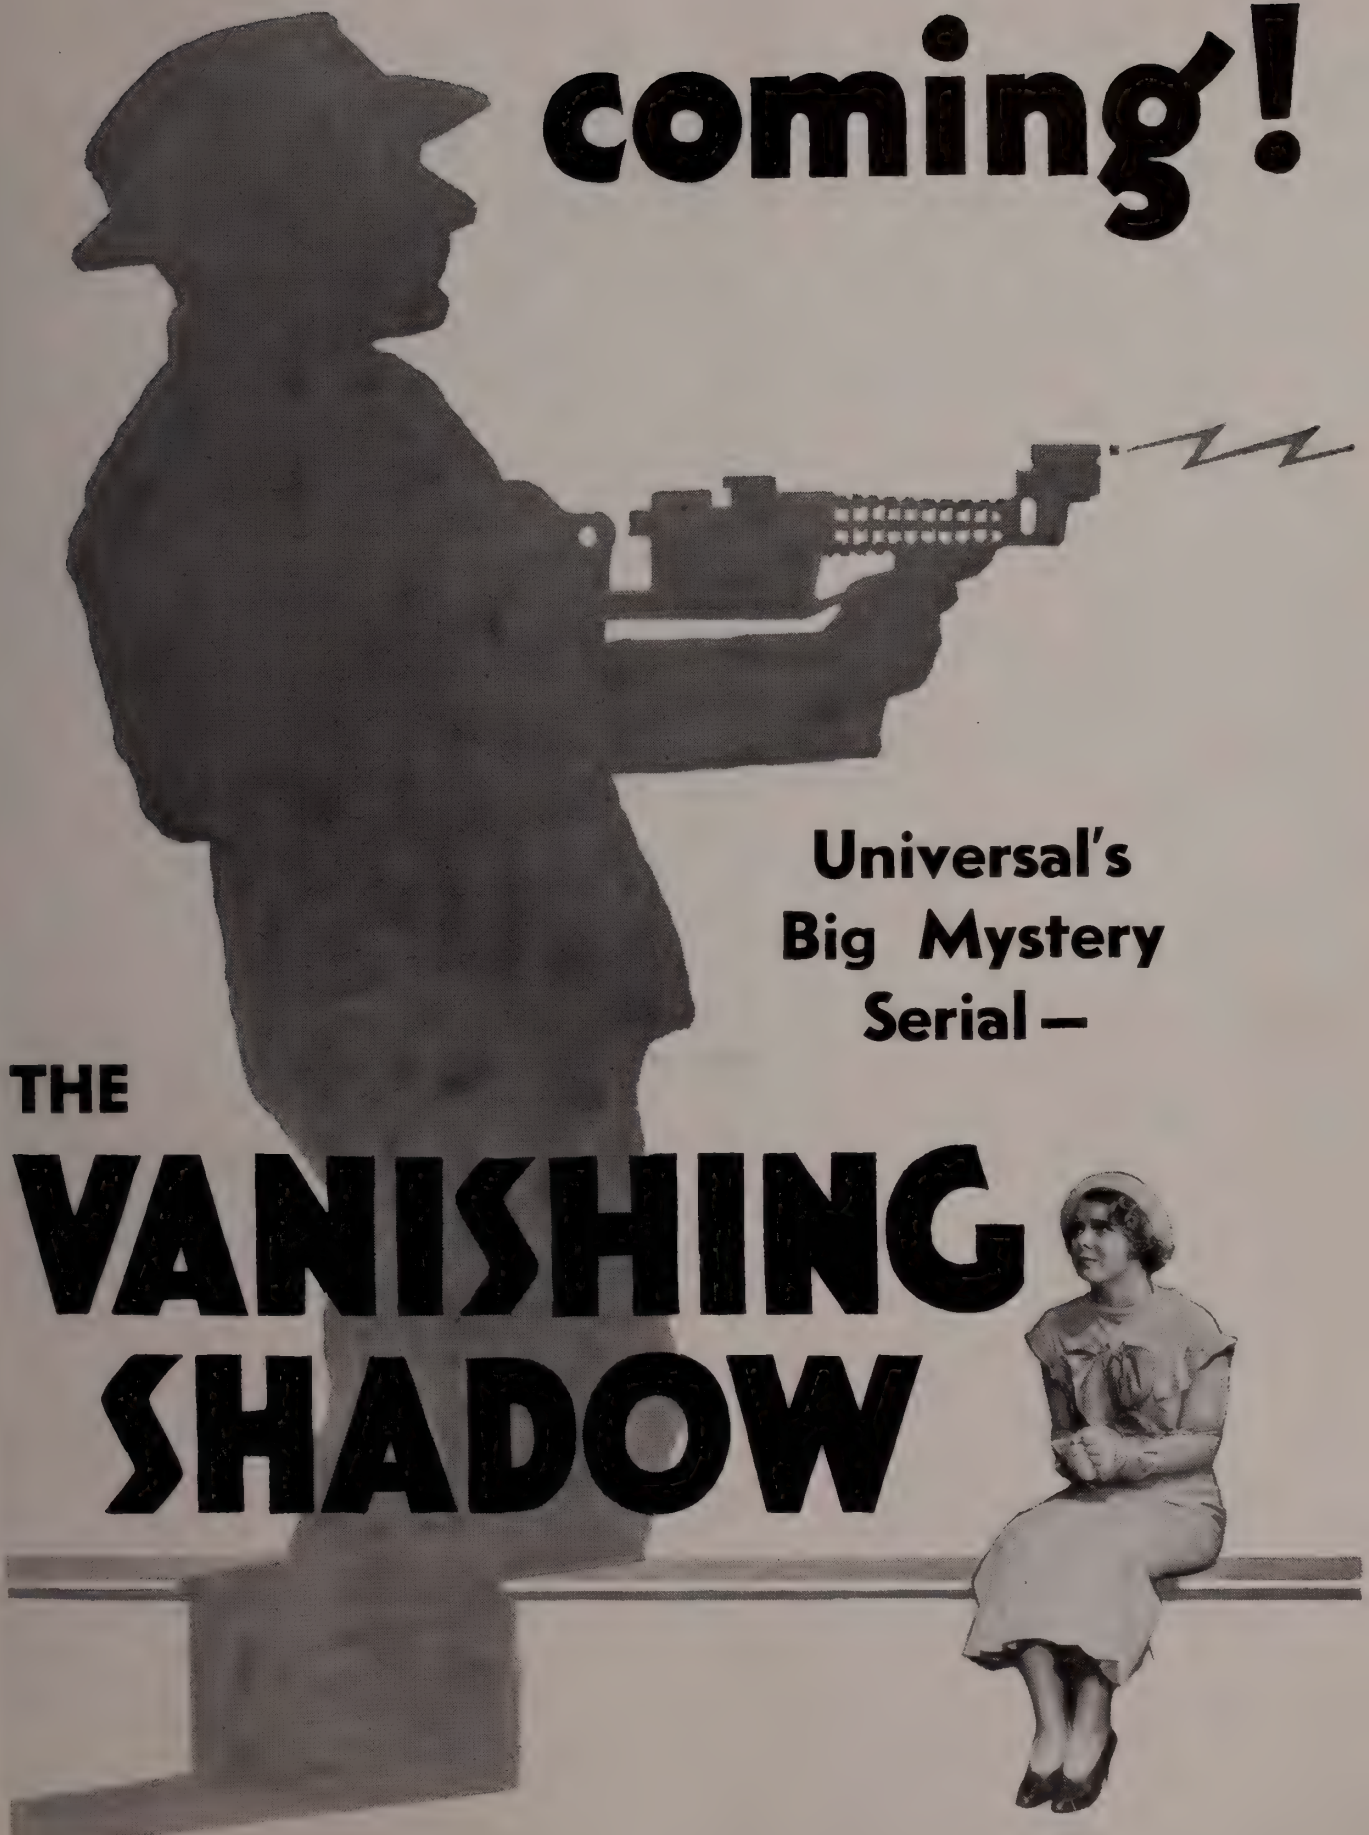
Yours very truly,
MISSOURI THEATRE
Lyle Richmond, Mgr.

S. O. S. ICEBERG

SHOWMANSHIP IN AD LAYOUTS

(1.) Two column x 10" from Midwest, Oklahoma City, Okla. (2.) Single column x 8" from Olympia, Bangor, Maine. (3.) Three column x 9½" from Rialto, Washington, D. C. (4.) Double column x 2½" from Pantages, Hollywood, Calif. (5.) Double column x 3¼" from Keiths, Boston, Mass. (6.) Double column x 3½" from Karlton, Philadelphia. (7.) Two column x 5" from College, New Haven, Conn.

coming!



Universal's
Big Mystery
Serial —

THE VANISHING SHADOW

From

UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.

730 FIFTH AVENUE

NEW YORK CITY

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
Paid
Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

ROBERT B WENNER
22 CROSS ST
MALDEN MASS

Printed in U. S. A.

(Reproduction of Six-Sheet)

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
VOL. 24 NO. 22 MAY 12 1934

Margaret Sullavan in
LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?

Coming!
VICKI BAUM'S
I GIVE MY LOVE

Have you noticed the notices?

I OWE YOU

No. 771 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

In these strange days of struggle and doubt, it is important for you to know that your source of supply of pictures is safe and sound.

Signing up for a list of good pictures really doesn't mean much to you unless you are sure that the company with which you sign is in a position to carry on its business.

So I owe you a report on Universal. Here it is:

Universal is in excellent shape. We are doing a splendid business all over the world. Last week, for example, we did a larger foreign business than we have done in any similar week in the past six years.

Universal owes very little money anywhere, almost nothing in comparison with the business we are doing.

A conservative forecast of our expense and income for the coming year shows that we can not only make the pictures we have obligated ourselves to make, but deliver something a little better than we promised.

THIS NEWS

Universal could not possibly be in such sound condition unless the greater portion of its customers were in good shape, too. We go up or down as the business of our customers goes up or down. The fact that we are turning that corner (instead of waiting for prosperity to turn it) is proof enough that most of our customers have turned it — some of them without even realizing it.

In this world no one gets back more than he gives out. Universal has given to its customers a good average of money-making pictures and now we are feeling the effects of it. But before we could feel the effects, the larger part of our customers feel the benefit of it. That is as it should be in all business.

We've sailed some stormy seas in the past quarter of a century and especially since the Fall of 1929 — but we're right here on the job, right side up and ready to act again as a bulwark of safety and security for you.

Universal and those who rely upon Universal can now look forward with contented minds upon the future.

Carl Laemmle

Margaret

Sullavan

with

DOUGLASS MONTGOMERY

in

LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?

bids fair to threaten even your biggest 1929 grosses!

•

From the famous best-seller by Hans Fallada. Directed by Frank Borzage. With Fred Kohler, Alan Hale, Mae Marsh, George Meeker, Muriel Kirkland, DeWitt Jennings, Hedda Hopper, Catherine Doucet. Bodil Rosing. Screenplay by William Anthony McGuire.

A

FRANK BORZAGE

Production

Proudly Presented by Carl Laemmle

The Most Important Pictu
Frank Borzage Since

LITTLE MAN

re Directed By The Immortal "Seventh Heaven"

WHAT NOW?

CHESTER MORRIS

with

MARION NIXON in

A comedy-drama with a melodramatic kick that will keep you fans laughing — and guessing! With Walter Woolf, George Stone, Huntley Gordon, Henry Armetta, Alan Mowbray, Gay Seabrook, John Wray. Directed by Edward Laemmle. Story by William Anthony McGuire.

A
STANLEY BERGERMAN
Production

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Celebrating Junior Laemmle's 26th Birthday

Here is the group of studio officials who helped Carl Laemmle, Jr. celebrate his twenty-sixth birthday. The party was given by William Anthony McGuire, who sits between Carl Laemmle and Carl Laemmle, Jr., and was held at the Colony Cafe. In the picture will be seen J. R. Grainger, general manager of distribution for Universal Pictures, Frank Mastroly, executive studio manager, Henry Henigson, E. M. Asher, Robert Harris and Eddie Buzzell, director. There are a lot of others who didn't get in the picture and whose faces are too indistinct to show up in this flashlight. It was a great party and came just at right time to celebrate the completion of Universal's biggest picture, "Little Man, What Now?"

BUCK JONES STARTS "THE RED RIDER" UNIVERSAL LEAD-OFF SERIAL, THIS WEEK

WHEN Carl Laemmle gave Buck Jones the honor of starting Universal's next year's serial program, he decided to put every element of box-office support behind this great box-office western star. The first thing to do was to provide a story. One of the greatest writers of westerns over a period of the last fifteen years is W. C. Tuttle. Adventure Magazine would not be in existence without him. Neither would a number of other popular western magazines. Universal purchased W. C. Tuttle's story, "The Red Head from Sun Dog" and re-titled it "The Red Rider."

Already the leading lady has been chosen in the person of Janet Chandler. Janet has beauty, skill in riding and real acting ability. She will be a delightful foil for Buck Jones. The villain also has been chosen in the person of Richard Cramer, who plays the role of Joe Portuguese. Direction will be in the hands of Louise Friedlander, who made such a tremendous impression with his first serial, "The Vanishing Shadow."

Buck Jones in "The Red Rider" will get under way at Universal City early this week and will be ready for early release.

✚ ✚ ✚

Murray Roth to Direct "Ransom, One Million"

CARL LAEMMLE, Jr. has assigned Murray Roth to direct the Damon Runyon picture, "Ransom, One Million," when it goes into production at Universal City next month. "Ransom, One Million" is one of Universal's big pictures for next season. It ran serially in Cosmopolitan Magazine and it was Murray Roth who brought the story to the attention of Carl Laemmle, Jr. In the meantime, Ben Grauman Kohn, author of "Mud Turtle," has been assigned to adapt the story. Kohn has been writing under the name of Kurt Kemplar.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, New York City
Copyrighted 1934
Universal Pictures Corp.
(All Rights Reserved)
MAY 12, 1934
Vol. 34 No. 22

✚ ✚ ✚

Jean Bart Adapts Own Play to Screen

Author of Broadway Success, "The Man Who Reclaimed His Head," Working on Script at Universal City.

LAST year Universal bought "The Man Who Reclaimed His Head," the Broadway play by Jean Bart, which starred Claude Rains. It will be made for next year's program and Jean Bart, the author, is at work now on adapting her own script. Henry Henigson is the associate producer in charge and Edward Ludwig will direct.

NEW FACES YOU WILL SEE

HEATHER ANGEL

Heather Angel Cast For "The Mystery Of Edwin Drood"

UNIVERSAL is to make two Charles Dickens pictures for next season. Dickens is getting a great play after all of these years and solely because of the tremendous interest which has been aroused by the world wide publication of "The Life of Our Lord," the story which he wrote for the information of his own children and which was not to be published until those children had passed on. These two famous Dickens stories are "The Mystery of Edwin Drood" and "Great Expectations." "The Mystery of Edwin Drood" will be supervised by Edmund Grainger, while "Great Expectations" will be a Stanley Bergerman production.

The first player engaged for either of these Dickens stories is Heather Angel. This beautiful English actress, who has been in this country for the last year, will play the lead in "The Mystery of Edwin Drood" which Lynn Riggs is now adapting to the screen.

Heather Angel was born in Christ church, Oxford, England, and though her parents were not show people, Miss Angel was not out of her teens before she was on the stage. Her greatest triumph on the London stage was "The Importance of Being Earnest." It was that which brought her to the attention of the films and she played in a number of them in England before coming to this country.

✚ ✚ ✚

Brown Already In Two

RUSS BROWN so impressed Carl Laemmle, Jr. by his work in the "rushes" of "The Love Captive" with Nils Asther and Gloria Stuart, that he was placed under contract to Universal, and was promptly dubbed "Rushes" Brown by his associates on the lot. He was next cast with Chester Morris in "Let's Talk It Over" and is scheduled for the Russ Columbo feature to follow. Brown is well known after many years on the vaudeville and musical comedy stage in New York. He was teamed for several years with Bert Wheeler (of Wheeler and Woolsey) in vaudeville, and following that with Jimmy Fallen as Fallen and Brown. It was not until 1932 that Brown went into pictures, in "My Woman." "Moulin Rouge" followed, before the Universal engagement.

RUSS BROWN

He has already played in Universal pictures—"The Love Captive," and "Let's Talk It Over."

DOROTHY APPLEBY

This Dorothy Appleby Is Broadway Favorite

ONCE upon a time a little girl from New England won a beauty contest and was sent to New York as Miss Maine. With no previous stage experience she was cast in the leading feminine role of an important musical comedy, "Mary Jane McKane," succeeding the then famous Mary Haye.

That little girl was Dorothy Appleby, born in Portland, Me., on January 6, just missing being a "New Year" baby by five days. It was a lucky break, Dorothy admits, that caused her to become a leading lady in her very first show. Other important roles followed and the name Appleby became a Broadway byword.

Perhaps her greatest role was in "Young Sinners," which was later made as a film. Some of her other stage successes include "Springtime for Henry," "Square Crooks," "When You Smile," with Elsie Janis and many others. She has never played in stock.

A short time ago Dorothy came to Hollywood and has already been seen in three pictures, the most recent of which is "As the Earth Turns." She is in "I Give My Love," in support of Wynne Gibson and Paul Lukas.

IN UNIVERSAL PICTURES

LOUISE LATIMER

Louise Latimer Rushed Into First Universal Part

LOUISE LATIMER is another stage discovery of young Mr. Laemmle. She was signed this season and immediately went to Universal City for her tests. Miss Latimer has been busy every moment since she arrived on the Universal lot. Her first work is in "There's Always Tomorrow," the Ted Sloman picture in which Frank Morgan is featured with Binnie Barnes, Lois Wilson, Elizabeth Young, Robert Taylor, Maurice Murphy and Dick Winslow. Miss Latimer was born in Brooklyn, N. Y. on March 6, 1915 of New England ancestry. She was educated at Adelphi Academy, Brooklyn and Glen Eden School, Stamford, Conn.; also the University of Arizona and the University of Southern California. She studied acting at the Alviene Dramatic School in New York and received a position with a stock company in Bangor, Maine. Among the plays in which she has had parts are "Let Us Be Gay," "Dinner at Eight' and "When in Rome" at the 49th Street Theatre.

Fourth Acquisition from Pasadena Playhouse

EARL EBY, another of the newly signed discoveries of Carl Laemmle, Jr. is versatile indeed. He has acted, stage directed, written plays, designed stage sets, and can sing, dance and play the piano. He was at one time connected with the famous Pasadena Community Playhouse, the training ground for so many screen stars. He has managed Fanchon and Marco stage shows and acted in fifty different plays. His work in "Cross Country Cruise" attracted Mr. Laemmle's attention and brought him his contract.

At present Eby is playing in "Let's Talk It Over" with Chester Morris and Mae Clarke. He is the fourth player Carl Laemmle has obtained from that Pasadent Playhouse. The others are Gloria Stuart, Onslow Stevens and Jacqueline Wells who played in "The Black Cat." Douglass Montgomery who has just finished a wonderful tale in "Little Man, What Now," with Margaret Sullavan was also a product of this prolific Playhouse.

EARL EBY

A player of many parts who is now in "Let's Talk It Over."

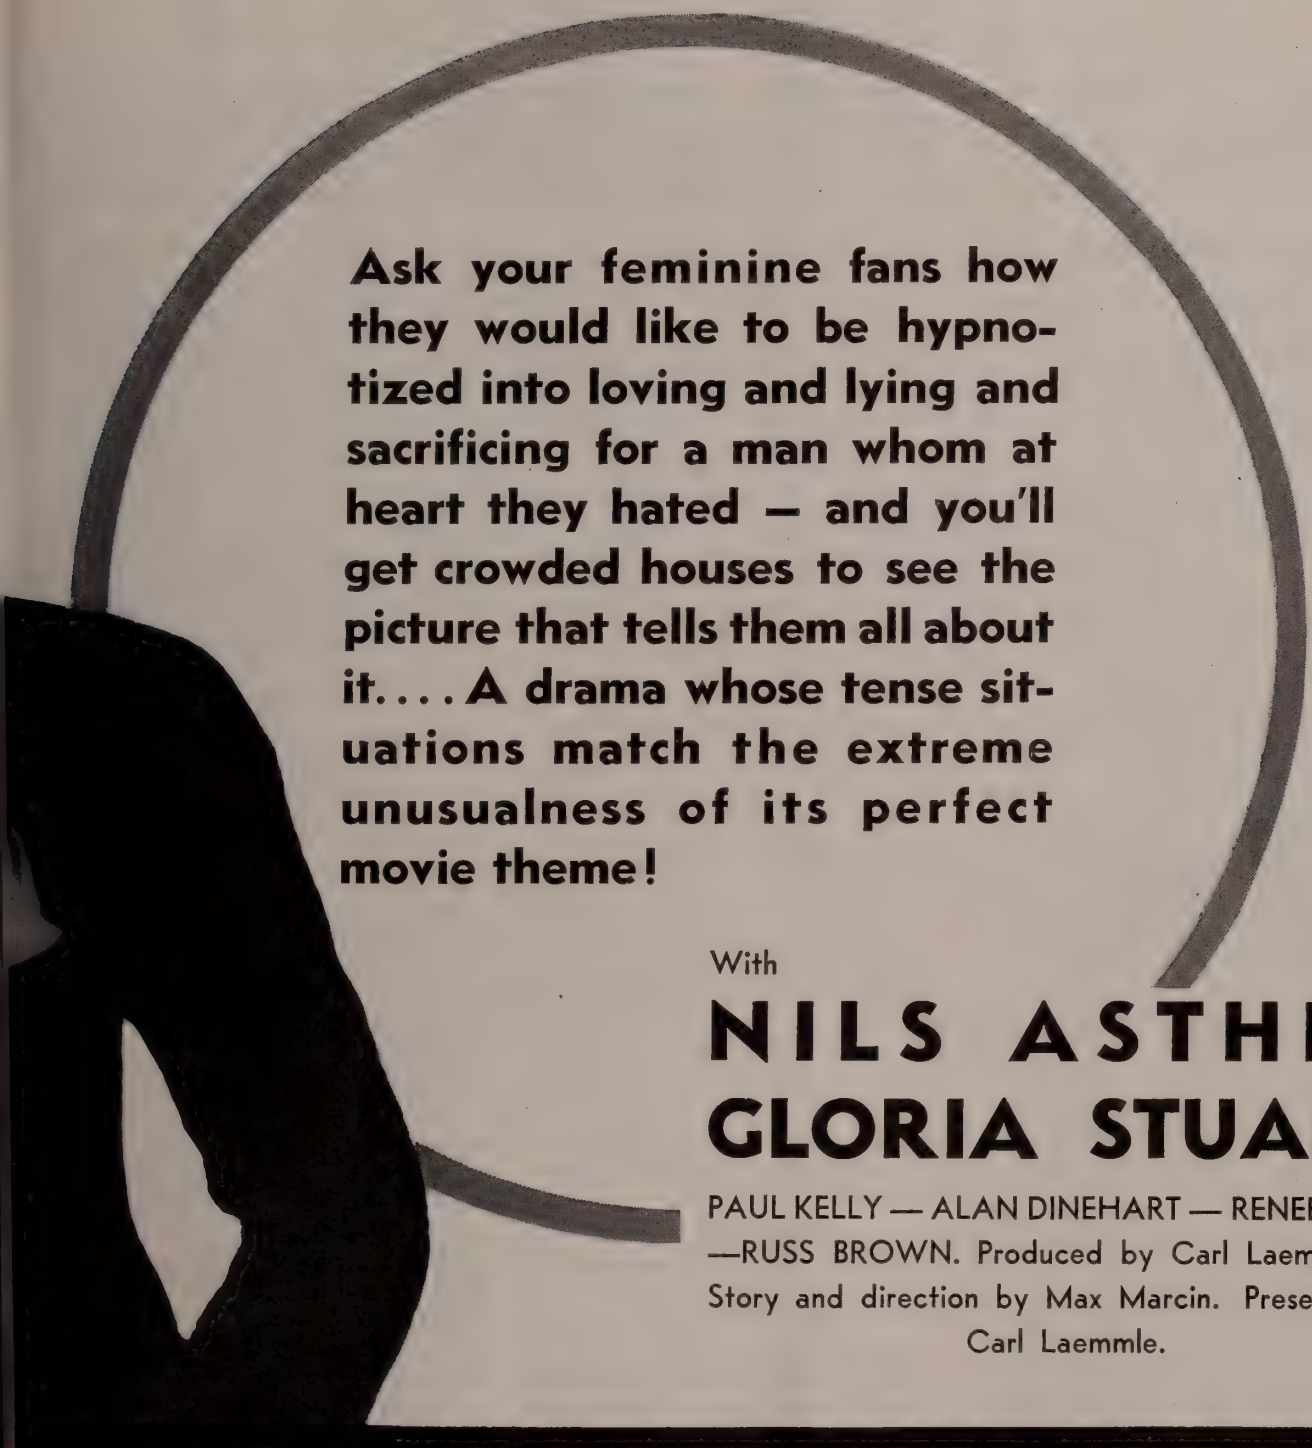
JANE WYATT

Jane Wyatt Flies For "One More River"

JANE WYATT of the New York stage is the best known of all the new faces on this page. From a theatrical standpoint she is already a big bet. She was signed to a long-term Universal contract while playing in "Joyous Season" at the Belasco Theatre in New York with Lillian Gish, and went to Hollywood for a screen test. This was enormously successful and Miss Wyatt returned to New York to complete her plans for a residence in California. She flew back to the Coast on Tuesday to play in "One More River."

Jane Wyatt is the daughter of the socially prominent Christopher B. Wyatts. She was born at Campgaw, New Jersey on August 12th, 1912, and was educated at Miss Chapin's School and Barnard College, New York. At the age of 19, she had her first taste of acting, when she joined the Berkshire Players at Stockbridge, Mass. Engagements in several Broadway plays followed, including "Tradewinds," "The Vinegar Tree," "The Fatal Alibi," "The Mad Hopes," "Evensong" and "Conquest," succeeding Margaret Sullavan in "Dinner at Eight" in the New York cast.

The LOVE



Ask your feminine fans how they would like to be hypnotized into loving and lying and sacrificing for a man whom at heart they hated — and you'll get crowded houses to see the picture that tells them all about it.... A drama whose tense situations match the extreme unusualness of its perfect movie theme!

With

NILS ASTHER
GLORIA STUART

PAUL KELLY — ALAN DINEHART — RENEE GADD —RUSS BROWN. Produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr. Story and direction by Max Marcin. Presented by Carl Laemmle.

CAPTIVE

THE LATEST NEWS OF PRODUCT

Lowe - Karloff Set

STEPPING out with the largest production budget in its history, Universal announced plans today to create the most impressive list of star and featured player names in the concern's life. Karloff who brought terror to the screen with his "Frankenstein," has been signed for three mystery-horror pictures and Edmund Lowe who recently starred in "Bombay Mail" received contracts for two films, Carl Laemmle, Jr., announced.

The new season will start June 1 and by that time Mr. Laemmle will have announced the most ambitious program in the history of Universal. The schedule provides for 42 features.

Lilian Bond, looking particularly fetching in a scene from "Affairs of a Gentleman"

"Let's Talk It Over" New Morris Title

UNIVERSAL has changed the title of the B. F. Zeidman production starring Chester Morris to "Let's Talk It Over." This picture has enjoyed a number of titles in the studio. It began as an original document by Dore Schary and Lewis Foster called "Loves of a Sailor." It later was changed to "Funny Thing Called Love," but there are so many "loves" on the market that it seemed best to get entirely away from the commodity.

In "Let's Talk It Over," Mae Clarke, whose many performances in Universal pictures like "Waterloo Bridge" and "Frankenstein" make her feel very much at home there, is leading woman. Featured with her are Frank Craven, Andy Devine and Russ Brown, while the cast includes also John Warburton, Irene Ware, Anderson Lawler, Goodee Montgomery, Dougles Fowley, Tom Dugan, Herbert Corthell, Lois January, Dean Benton, Earl Eby, Wanda Perry and Dorothy Daw.

"Let's Talk It Over," is being made from a screenplay by John Meehan, Jr., with dialogue contributed also by him and under the direction of Kurt Neumann. Its final scenes will be shot tomorrow.

✚ ✚ ✚

Universal Enlarging "Embarrassing Moments"

HENRY ARMETTA, one of the most active players on the Universal lot, has been given a new long-term contract by Carl Laemmle, Jr. The reason for superseding the old contract was the clever work Armetta did in "Embarrassing Moments" with Chester Morris. In fact, so important did the sequences in which Armetta appeared become in the picture, that the studio decided to broaden and enlarge upon them. The company was brought back and a week's extra work put in on this Chester Morris starring vehicle.

Several players were added in the Armetta sequences. The cast already includes Marion Nixon, Walter Woolf, Jane Darwell, Virginia Sale, Alan Mowbray, Huntley Gordon, George Stone, Charles E. Coleman, Gay Seabrook.

The new scenes were not accomplished without danger and excitement. Chester Morris suffered severe injuries to his left hip, and both he and another actor escaped death by a miracle.

While seated in the cockpit of an airplane suspended forty feet in the air, the plane suddenly lurched and fell to the sound stage floor, carrying both Morris and Pat Flaherty, playing the role of the pilot, with it. Three large studio lights crashed on top of the men, the glass severing a sleeve from Morris's coat, and cutting a shoe from his left foot.

Both men were rushed to the studio hospital where they received treatment. Morris suffered intense pain from crushed muscles. Flaherty escaped serious injury, but suffered from bruises about the body.

The story is by William Anthony McGuire and the direction by Edward Laemmle.

✚ ✚ ✚

"One More River" Cast Now Is Almost Complete

OVER the week-end, five players were added to the already imposing cast which James Whale has enlisted to interpret John Galsworthy's novel, "One More River." The new players are Kathleen Howard, former Metropolitan Opera contralto and fashion editor of Harper's Bazaar, E. E. Clive, Alan Mowbray, Gilbert Emery and Robert Greig.

R. C. Sherriff adapted this novel of contemporary English life while James Whale was in England several months ago. The scenes were worked out with actual English settings in mind, as was the case when these two collaborated on H. G. Wells' "The Invisible Man."

In the cast already announced, are Diana Wynyard, Colin Clive, Frank Lawton, Mary Astor, Henry Stephenson and Reginald Denny.

ON AT UNIVERSAL CITY STUDIOS

Carl Laemmle, Jr., must have been looking at this still when he re-titled "Funny Thing Called Love." Anyway, it illustrates the new title, "Let's Talk It Over," as well as any still could, with so many interested talkees in it. Chester Morris is center of attraction

Beautiful Binnie Barnes and Lois Wilson Cast

UNIVERSAL went far afield for one of the roles in the tentatively titled "There's Always Tomorrow," which Ted Sloman put in production yesterday at Universal City. By cable Binnie Barnes the beautiful English actress who played Kathrine Howard in "Henry The Eighth," was engaged to play the role of Alice, the girl who understands Frank Morgan in this story which Ted Sloman, the director wrote. Miss Barnes is one of the most luscious creatures on the screen today.

Every effort is being made to get Miss Barnes on the Olympic, Wednesday's boat, but if she fails, she will have to sail on the Acquitania on the 12th. As soon as she arrives in New York, she will be shot to the coast as rapidly as possible on the fastest plane.

Another role was assigned yesterday in this production, that of the woman who misunderstands Frank Morgan. Since the actress was required to appear as the mother of five children, there wasn't any grand rush about playing it on the part of Hollywood actresses. Yesterday Carl Laemmle, Jr., however, assigned it to Lois Wilson, who had played a similar part in "Seed" and who regards that previous role as the most satisfactory performance she ever gave on the screen. Her latest role is also a mother role in Frank Borzage's "No Greater Glory."

Those already playing in the picture are Elizabeth Young, Louise Latimer, Robert Taylor, Maurice Murphy, Dick Winslow, Helen Parish and Margaret Hamilton.

Make Reservations NOW for the MORRIS JOSEPH
20th Anniversary
Testimonial Dinner
HOTEL TAFT
NEW HAVEN, CONN.
MAIN BALL ROOM
MAY 22, 1934
Greatest Party in the History of Show Business in Connecticut.

A Great Box-Office Cast in a Great Picture!

CARL LAEMMLE presents

Paul LUKAS

AFFAIRS of a

HOW the women will love this one! . . . A new kind of murder mystery with a new kind of dramatic thrill — spiced with the amorous relationships of an irresistible man with many weak and beautiful women. . . . It's perfect movie fare — ready to do plenty of business for YOU!

with

LEILA HYAMS — PATRICIA ELLIS
PHILLIP REED — ONSLOW STEVENS
DOROTHY BURGESS, LILLIAN BOND, JOYCE COMPTON, RICHARD CARLE, DOROTHY LE BAIRE

Produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr., from a play by Edith and Edward Ellis. Directed by Edwin L. Marin. Edmund Grainger, Associate Producer.

GENTLEMAN

SILVER SCREEN GIVES The Best Interview Yet!

Excerpts From The Three Page Story by Patricia Keats

Illustrated With Scenes From "Little Man, What Now?"

THE "Little Man, What Now?" company is at work on stage 6 I am told when I reach Universal. I stumble over Boris Karloff, Gloria Stuart, and an old cab left over from "Back Street," and arrive on the set just in time to see Margaret rescue a stew from the kitchen stove—I mean a meat stew. So that cute kid is Margaret Sullavan. She doesn't look nearly as young ladyish as she did in "Only Yesterday." Well, if you don't mind, I'll just sit over here in the corner and observe a bit. Ah, there's Frank Borzage.

Frank Borzage is the most widely loved and admired director in Hollywood—and, if you could just see the flock of gold statuettes he has won at Academy Award dinners, you'd know that he rates pretty high with his confreres. When I first saw the row of gold statuettes in his home I was sure that they had mated and had children.

Frank is directing "Little Man, What Now?" and that is all you need to know to be convinced that it will have the charm and tender pathos and naive humor of "Seventh Heaven."

You've probably read Hans Fallada's best seller and know what a truly beautiful and sincere story it is. And you can be darned sure that none of its beauty and sincerity will be lost on the screen, with Frank Borzage directing.

And that for "Little Man, What Now?" and Frank Borzage. It's my bet, judging from what I observed on my observation day, that Frank will have another little gold statuette ere the birdies nest again, and so will Carl Laemmle.

And now for Margaret Sullavan. She can't stand swank and pretense.

When the day's work is done Margaret goes loping home in her Ford roadster, none too new, with the top down and the wind blowing her hair in every direction. She lives in Cold Water Canyon, in a rented house, with a devoted colored maid and a little Scottie named Peter. Right now Margaret is devoting her life to weeding her lawn—and Peter is helping assiduously. As soon as the last "take" is okayed, Margaret Slips out of her demure little Lammchen dresses and pulls on an old pair of corduroy pants and a pongee shirt. No frills and ruffles for her.

If she gets a day away from the studio she goes driving through the country having a swell time, and usually by herself—she never can tell you exactly where she went because details mean nothing to her. She's in love with the adventure of living. If she gets several days off from the studio she usually goes to a dude ranch on a fishing spree, for she is a most enthusiastic angler.

Before meeting Margaret Sullavan I was convinced that her desire for simplicity and privacy, her exaggerated inferiority complex, and her abhorrence of publicity and the Best People (even Garbo selects her friends from the Best People) was all just another act. Of course our little village is a place where more acting is done off the screen than on. Better performances are given at the Mayfair and the Cocoanut Grove, not to mention when "ex" meets "ex" in the early morning at the Clover Club, than you'll ever see on the screen, alas. And the word natural hasn't been heard around here in years except at crap games. Every one is so busy being glamorous, or mysterious, or exotic, or utterly charming, or utterly gross that when a perfectly normal, natural girl comes along doing and saying what a perfectly normal and natural girl would do and say, everybody up and whispers, "She's putting on an act." Having been deluged with charm and insincerity for months on end I regret to say I joined in the whispering. But no more.

Margaret Sullavan isn't any more putting on an act than my little kitten, chasing grasshoppers out in the patio, is. She really is shy and sensitive, she really believes she is a rotten actress. She is completely unspoiled—and heaven help us, may she remain so. It is refreshing to meet someone in Hollywood who doesn't expect you to start raving about her last picture, who doesn't invite you to look at her last portrait sitting, who doesn't tell you that her studio is ruining her, who doesn't gossip about the other stars—and who very frankly tells you that she doesn't care at all about meeting you. It's delightful.

Margaret is so convinced that she is a rotten actress and has a lot to learn that she was simply sick all over when she saw herself in "Only Yesterday." She fled immediately to New York and started looking for another stage play. When Johnny Johnston of the publicity department wrote her that Universal was excited over the picture, and wanted her to reserve space in a local trade paper to help advertise it, Margaret wrote back, "I have seen 'Only Yesterday.' The next space I reserve will be in the obituary column." She simply doesn't believe she was any good in that picture and if you tell her so she thinks you are being politely insincere.

MARGARET SULLAVAN

There was the time when she ran into the late Lilyan Tashman at the Colony Club—Margaret's one venture into Hollywood's night life. Lilyan came up to her and said, "Aren't you the girl in 'Only Yesterady?' My dear, you were perfectly marvelous. You gave a divine performance . . . " And Lilyan raved on and on just as we all do in Hollywood.

"Thank you," said Margaret and walked away.

"Someone ought to teach that child some manners," Lilyan said.

When Margaret heard that she had hurt Lilyan Tashman by her brusqueness, and that it was the concensus of opinion that she had acted most rudely, the poor girl was so upset she actually cried. She didn't mean to be rude. But being called marvelous floored her so completely that she couldn't think of anything to say. If Lilyan had said, "Margaret Sullavan, do you know a good place to catch trout?" Margaret would have stood there talking until they shut up the place.

But she just can't talk about herself. And she can't get used to the good old Hollywood effusions.

There's a scene in "Little Man, What Now?" where Margaret has to walk in the rain. This scene—contrary to custom—had to be taken many times, and Margaret was drenching wet when it was over. "Well, I guess now you'll agree that Sullavan is all wet," she said as she wrung out her clothes. Yeah, you might just as well agree with Margaret that she's rotten and avoid an argument. (But you can keep your fingers crossed.) If you like Peter Pan, and Huckleberry Finn, and that freckle faced girl next door who gets such a kick out of her Girl Scout uniform, you've just got to like Margaret Sullavan.

✚ ✚ ✚

Frank Borzage Finishes "Little Man, What Now?" With A Feast

FRANK BORZAGE celebrated his birthday and the final shots of "Little Man, What Now" at Universal Studios on the same day.

With Margaret Sullavan headed for England, Borzage contracted for a picture with another studio, and Douglass Montgomery negotiating with three producers, but reserving three pictures for Universal, it was necessary to work far into the night.

At midnight on the final day, an elaborate supper was served on the stage in honor of the director by the cast. Seated at the festive board were Margaret Sullavan, Douglass Montgomery, Alan Hale, Catharine Doucet, Bodil Rosing, Mae Marsh, Frank Reicher, Alan Mowbray, Christian Rub, Etienne Girardot, Sarah Padden, Monroe Owsley, Hedda Hopper, the entire technical crew and Mr. and Mrs. Borzage.

Carl Laemmle

presents –

SINNER

ENTERTAINMENT

— That's the one word which fittingly describes this great audience picture! You can depend on it to draw! You can depend on it to give your folks an absolutely HILARIOUS TIME, and you can depend on it to cause more word-of-mouth comment than almost any picture you've run in weeks and weeks! BOOK IT!

•

JOEL McCREA
SALLIE BLANE
BERTON CHURCHILL

Mickey Rooney, Russell Hopton. Produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr., from a play by John B. Hymer and LeRoy Clemens. Directed by Kurt Neumann. Associate Producer, Edmund Grainger.

HEADLINES From Variety

"Madame Spy," Vaude, 11 G; Montreal Sees Some Biz

"GLAMOUR," OKE $15,000, IN ST. L.

KATE SMITH AND "HALF A SINNER" $13,000. S. F.

Orpheum: (F&M) (2,400; 25-35-55) "Half a Sinner" "U" and stage show with Kate Smith unit. Radio performer a B.O. draw and $13,000 okay with picture more help than usual. Last week "Success at any Price" (Radio) with young Fairbanks and "Century of Progress Revue" on stage started lightly and built up to a pretty good $10,000.

✚ ✚ ✚

San Francisco, May 7

Golden Gate (RKO) (2,844; 25-35-40)—"I'll Tell World" (U) and vaude. Lee Tracy some draw, and $11,500 is much better than past few weeks. "This Man Is Mine" (Radio) getting slightly under $9,500 last week.

✚ ✚ ✚

Washington, May 7

Rialto (U). (1,853; 25-35-40-50), "Uncertain Lady" (U) Looks like satisfactory $3,000. Last week "I'll Tell the World" (U) helped by bally in local UP sheet collected good $5,000.

✚ ✚ ✚

Chicago, May 7

State-Lake (Jones) (2,700; 25-35-40) "Countess of Monte Cristo" (U) and "Keep 'Em Rolling" (Radio) okay at $11,000.

"The Love Captive" Excellent Film Says Variety

SCREEN version of Max Marcin's "The Humbug" neatly accomplishes what it sets out to do, presenting a suspenseful tale about a hypnotist whose uncanny works turn back upon him, and offering an hour's absorbing entertainment in dramatic novelty. It is throughout an excellent piece of craftsmanship, with Marcin as author, co-adaptor and director chiefly responsible.

The technology of hypnosis is authentically shown without the hocus-pocus usually ascribed to the powers of suggestion, in the plot which Nils Asther weaves about his patients and victims and eventually himself in the guise of the professional hypnotic practitioner. Gloria Stuart becomes his office nurse and his beloved after cutting off her engagement to Paul Kelly. Kelly, believing Asther has befuddled her with his powers, threatens to kill him, but is dissuaded by Alan Dinehart, his brother-in-law, who in turn goes gunning for Asther when he suspects he has transferred his spell to his own wife, played by Renee Gadd.

Climax comes when Asther, seeking to save his reputation puts on a sort of clinic called by an investigating committee of doctors. Committee presents Dinehart, who is in a jealous rage, as his hypnosis subject. Test of the so-called charlatan's powers is the presumed inability of his subject to pull the hairtrigger of a loaded pis tol. But under the goad of seeing his wife with the hypnotist, as she is about to defend the latter, he shoots and kills Asther.

Picture ends with question, propounded to the audience over the head of one of the characters. Was the man who killed the hypnotist in a state of mental and moral irresponsibility, or did he take knowing advantage of a prefect alibi provided by the victim himself?

Principals give excellent performances, and rest of the cast is good in lesser parts. Photography is okay. Picture will hold to any audience.

Novel Treatment of Fine Mystery Yarn -"Affairs of A Gentleman"

BASED on the play, "Women in His Life," the Universal picture, "Affairs of a Gentleman," offers a novel way of presenting a murder mystery.

Furthermore, it offers a highly interesting group of characters, each one of whom is believable, human and excellently drawn, and each unwittingly adds to the mystery.

The film opens with a shot, and Gresham, a famous novelist (Paul Lukas) is found dead at his desk. The bewildered butler and Chinese chef finally pull themselves together sufficiently to phone the police and Gresham's publisher, Richard Carle. In the meantime, and quite naturally, the group of friends has gathered. The inspector gets nowhere rapidly, until a chance slip on the publisher's part leads to his decision: "Well, I'm going to keep you all here until each one of you tells all you know."

Then the picture goes back and picks up the series of events beginning with the publisher's inadvertent remark.

So many complications pile up that the perfectly simple solution for the murder (which looks like a suicide) is doubly effective, and the solution reaches the audience just before the inspector arrives, ending the picture exactly where it began. Whether or not the inspector ever solves the mystery is left to the audiences' imagination.

Paul Lukas is polished, as usual; Dorothy Burgess turns in a good job as the girl with the jag; Sara Haden is uncannily fine as the secretary. Patricia Ellis, Lilian Bond, Leila Hyams, Joyce Compton and Dorothy Le Baire are good types for their parts. Richard Carle brings a callous, emotional shrug to his part that is stunning characterization. Onslow Stevens is the enraged husband, and Phillip Reed is Miss Ellis' fiance.

—Hollywood Reporter

GALESTIEN Praises LAEMMLE For "THE INVISIBLE MAN"

J. F. GALESTIEN

Mr. Galestien, who has for years run the Casino and National Theatres in Djokja, Batavia, has taken over the Alhambra and Flora theatres, which makes him the owner of all the theatres in this Dutch East Indies city. He is one of the most progressive theatre men of the East. The following letter was sent to Louis J. Lieser, Universal manager in Batavia.

UNIVERSAL PICTURES
CORPORATION OF JAVA Batavia-C.

Dear Mr. Lieser:

Upon your request, I shall make an exception and give my opinion about your picture "THE INVISIBLE MAN."

To criticise the "INVISIBLE MAN" properly and effectively, it will be necessary to tell you that I am now already twenty years in the show business, and can claim a little experience in this line. In all these years, I always had a great respect and admiration for your President UNCLE CARL LAEMMLE.

This great little man of the industry is really an ace showman. In all those years, he surprised us every time with something startling.

I hereby wish to assist you to remember his productions:

"Uncle Tom's Cabin"
"Hunchback of Notre Dame"
"ALL QUIET ON THE WESTern Front"
"King of Jazz," etc.

and now he comes forward again with something unusual, such as "THE INVISIBLE MAN," "ONLY YESTER- and "BELOVED."

Honestly, I was greatly surprised and tricked when looking at "THE INVISIBLE MAN." How on earth has the film been taken! It is something wonderful. How advanced the film-technique has become, that it can manage to show and bring into action an "INVISIBLE MAN" on the screen. I have already seen six performances of this film, and I still am excited and fooled by this marvelous production. Naturally it's again CARL LAEMMLE, who is the first to come out with such mysterious shots.

I recollect one of his previous remarks regarding imitations, he said, "You can imitate everything but not my knowledge. I always leave you a half-year behind hand."

Will you please send my special compliments and congratulations to UNCLE CARL regarding his film "THE INVISIBLE MAN." Every exhibitor who realizes his own interests ought to book immediately without fail this wonder of film technique, especially as we also have now a real General Manager, Mr. Lieser, who will do everything in his power to allow us exhibitors to run our shows with success.

This is indeed like UNCLE CARL.

With best regards,

Truly yours,
(w.s. J. F. Galestien

✚ ✚ ✚

Film Daily Boosts "Love Birds" Film

LAUGH-PACKED YARN OF REALTY GYP AND GOLD RUSH ON DESERT RANCH.

This is a laugh riot for Pitts-Summerville fans and a pleasing entertainment for anybody's money. Summerville is an attendant at a chicken market whose hens get loose, fly into the classroom where ZaSu Pitts is the teacher and result in a scene that brings her dismissal. In the chickey

(Continued on Page 27)

"All Quiet" Gripping As When First Made

Review Excerpts From (Milwaukee Sentinel)

FOUR years ago Universal brought out a film based on Erich Maria Remarque's best seller, "All Quiet on the Western Front." Some it shocked, some it moved to tears, some it horrified with a horror that only war in the raw can provoke. On all who saw it, it left a searing impression that never has been equaled before or since by any picture.

In a film notable for its sustained and impelling drama, there are certain scenes which, I don't doubt, many of us have carried with us since we first saw the picture, and which I found fully as moving when I rewitnessed them last night. The patriotic fever lighting the innocent faces of the schoolboys as they pledge to stick together and fight furiously for the fatherland, the whimpering terror of the green soldiers as they cringe in the dugout under a bombardment, Paul's awful imprisonment with the Frenchman he killed in the frenzy of battle and whose corpse remains in smiling accusation to haunt him, Paul's hand reaching out for the butterfly flitting just beyond the trench . . . these moments, among others, are ones not lightly to put out of mind.

But I think that most heartrending piece in the whole picture is the utilitarian state of mind which prompts each of the lads in turn practically to grab the choice pair of boots from a dying comrad.

If you missed it four years ago, don't miss it now. If you have seen it, you owe it to yourself and your outlook on world peace to repeat the experience.

LEE TRACY

Lee Tracy's telling the world through the box-offices of the country just what swell grosses can be rolled up today by a fast-moving romantic comedy-drama with melodramatic flourishes . . . Its first run record shows that it's a thoroughly satisfying picture, with plenty of pull-'em-in-angles. CLIMB ABOARD!

•

WITH

GLORIA STUART

ROGER PRYOR, Onslow Stevens, Alec Francis, Lawrence Grant, Dorothy Grainger. Directed by EDWARD SEDGWICK. Produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr.

I'LL TELL T

HE WORLD

June Knight, the photographer's delight, arrives in Universal City, to have a slight throat operation and to appear in "The Great Ziegfeld," and possibly in "Castles in the Air."

Jacques Deval had the double pleasure of arriving at Universal City and on the same train with June Knight and sharing her welcome. Mr. Deval is adapting the continental drama, "Angel" for Universal.

June Knight, Photographers' Delight, Back

WITH Margaret Sullavan in Europe and Gloria Stuart loaned to Warner Brothers, June Knight returns to Universal to find herself Queen of the lot, and incidentally—occupying the dressing bungalow which each of the other actresses have coveted—and won. June is to do "The Great Ziegfeld" for her next venture into celluloid drama.

When June Knight returned from her sojourn in Florida, there was general rejoicing, for June is extremely popular on her Home lot.

When her big ivory DeSoto drives through the gates, camera men grab their lens boxes and Graflex cameras for June is "a natural" when it comes to photography. Everything she does makes a picture, and besides an hour with her in the gallery is good for a round of laughter from all connected with the job of 'picturizing' this grand gal.

She gives imitations between shots, sings a little Grand Opera, dances an original interpretation of the Cariocha and has a swell time generally, while most stars look upon the portrait-taking as an unpleasant duty, to be gotten over in the shortest space of time possible. She never does a run-out while the photographer is changing plates and is chock full of good suggestions for pictures; No wonder Universal City has changed its spring song to "June is Here."

✚ ✚ ✚ ✚ ✚ ✚

Jane Wyatt Arrives At Universal City

JANE WYATT arrived Wednesday at Universal City by plane to play the role of Binnie in "One More River." Carl Laemmle, Jr. sent for her in a hurry to round out a well balanced cast for James Whale. Although Miss Wyatt was not supposed to report until June 15th, she was glad to go, since she had been putting in the last few weeks in stock performances merely to have something to do. She played "Biography" and "Dark Towers" at the Hanna Theatre in Cleveland, last week and the week before.

"One More River" is already in production with a cast which includes Diana Wynyard, Colin Clive, Mary Astor, Henry Stephenson, Reginald Denny, E. E. Clive, Kathleen Howard, Alan Mowbray, Gilbert Emery and Robert Greig.

"Strange Wives" New Wharton Title

STANLEY BERGERMAN, who will make a production of Edith Wharton's novel, "Bread upon the Waters," has announced a change in title of this important next year's production. It will be released under the title, "Strange Wives." Gladys Unger has returned to the Universal City lot to adapt the novel to the screen. Miss Unger has adapted many of the best women's stories of former years to the screen.

✚ ✚ ✚

Sherman to Direct Two For Universal

LOWELL SHERMAN, whose throat disability has prevented his starting the two pictures he came to Universal to produce, is rapidly recovering. He can now speak above a whisper and within the next month will be entirely recovered. The two pictures he will make for Universal are "Night Life of the Gods" by Thorne Smith and "School for Scandal" by Richard B. Sheridan. "Night Life of the Gods" will be the first of these productions to go into work.

✚ ✚ ✚

Gloria Stuart Cast in "Transient Lady"

ONE of the first pictures to go into work at Universal City for next year's program will be "Transient Lady." This Octavus Roy Cohen serial story from Liberty Magazine will be made under the direction of Eddie Buzzell. The only player so far cast for "Transient Lady" is the title role, which has been assigned to Gloria Stuart. This fast working actress has completed, in rapid succession, "I'll Tell the World" with Lee Tracy, "The Love Captive" with Nils Asther, and a loan-out picture on the Warner lot. She will return to Universal City week after next, when "Transient Lady" goes into production.

"I Give My Love" is a story of artists and artists' models. A real art class was imported bodily to Universal City to give authentic atmosphere.

"I Give My Love" features Wynne Gibson and Paul Lukas, both of whom are shown in this illustration.

UNIVERSAL ON A TALENT SEARCH

HOLLYWOOD eats up faces rapidly. At the present time, the dearth of new faces and the necessity for them is doubly acute. Several means of acquiring new talent have been tried by all the companies. Last year Universal tried the Junior Stock plan, and two of the graduates of that course are still under contract to Universal, Lois January and Dean Benton.

David C. Werner, casting director of Universal, however, has come to the conclusion that only people in Hollywood and most of all, those who have failed to get by the casting office, are candidates for this type of campaign. He has decided, therefore, to go out where talent might be found au naturel. With the approval of Carl Laemmle, Jr., Werner started yesterday on a three months' tour of the country which will take him to Kansas City, Salt Lake City, New Orleans, Birmingham, Atlanta, Chattanooga, Nashville, Louisville, Indianapolis, Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Memphis, St. Louis, Detroit, Ann Arbor, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, Washington, Richmond, Philadelphia, New York, Boston, Seattle, Portland and several other cities.

Werner, who was formerly Story Editor and talent scout for Universal in the east, is credited with bringing to the screen Genevieve Tobin, Sidney Fox, Rose Hobart, Bette Davis, George Brent, June Knight and many others. Dan Kelly, formerly casting director at Columbia will sub in for Werner during his absence.

✚ ✚ ✚

PAL THEATRE

WOOD RIVER, NEBRASKA

April 9, 1934

Universal Film Exchange
Omaha, Nebr.

Dear Sirs:-

I have just finished showing your two reel subject "WORLD'S GREATEST THRILLS," and I want you to know that I went out and advertised this two reel subject feeling quite sure that I would get extra business, and it sure did.

I showed it with the Feature "MR. SKITCH," and honestly believe it "pulled them" and built up the following night for just as much as the Feature. I had many tell me it was the best thing they had ever seen any place. I just can't pass up the chance to say that it was a "meal ticket" for those who have shown it, and that is what we are all in need of.

The print was in perfect condition—recording the same—and I want to thank Universal and hope they will make something like it again and that I have the pleasure of showing it.

Yours truly,

M. E. LANMAN

From the "What the Picture did for Me" Dept., the voice of the exhibitor in the Motion Picture Herald—May 5, 1934.

"THE LOVE BIRDS"—ZaSu Pitts, Slim Summerville—One of the funniest pictures we ever played and one of the best this team ever made. All were satisfied with the show and that is saying a lot these days.—Bert Silver, Silver Family Theatre, Greenville, Mich. Town and country patronage.

✚ ✚ ✚

Film Daily Boosts "Love Birds" Film

(Continued from Page 23)

chase Slim drops a folder describing the peace and quiet of a desert ranch, which ZaSu purchases. Slim, who also got fired, is sold the same ranch and arrives there just after ZaSu and her scripture-quoting young nephew have retired for the night. An amusing ghost scene follows and then a squabble over who owns the ranch. A prospector happens by, quarrels with Slim and knocks out his gold inlay. He starts a gold rush just as Slim and ZaSu are about to leave because there is no water. Then the realty tricksters arrive and buy back the place from ZaSu and Summerville just as the gold hoax is exposed.

—Harrison

KARLOFF
The
"Frankenstein"
Monster
LUGOSI
The "Dracula"
Monster
IN
The BLACK CAT

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY SHOWMANSHIP SECTION

A DIGEST OF THE BEST EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

"AFFAIRS OF A GENTLEMAN" IS GREAT FOR REAL SHOWMANSHIP EXPLOITATION

BEAUTIFUL, alluring women . . . and a bachelor author whose charms women seemed unable to resist. He was a great author—perhaps because he wrote of life, reality . . . things as they are—because each book was an intimate revelation of one of his own "affairs." But what of the women whose intimacies he wrote into these books . . . whose frailties he exposed to the world?

"Affairs of A Gentleman" is a picture that deserves thought and advance handling. It is cleverly different and is filled with showmanship angles. A smart showman can work up a smashing campaign on the title alone without knowing anything about the real meat of the picture itself.

There is a clever mystery that keeps one in suspense right up to the final scene. Thus you can sell the picture from the unusual mystery angle, set against a background of the half dozen beautiful women all of which makes an absolutely perfect combination for strong box-office!

Here is a man so suave and charming that women refused to stop seeing him even after he had deceived and abandoned them for a new charmer. Hence the novel situation of a surprise party for the great author with all of his ex-affairs present together with a couple of current ones. There is drama—comedy—romance, all thrown into one situation—and what a situation! Every moment sparkles with great possibilities—every second is filled with breathless suspense.

There are many novel ways in which you can sell a picture with these angles. Such items as throwaways asking both men and women how they would react to such a situation; date books titled "Affairs of a Gentleman" and distributed to men fans; teaser snipes; newspaper contests based on the readers' reactions to the situation referred to above; and a host of other stunts that will rouse curiosity and set the whole town talking about the picture. Study the pressbook carefully, it offers many excellent ideas. Plan a big campaign and sell the picture for all it's worth. And send me the details of your campaign, so that I can pass them on to other enterprising showmen through these pages.

A. J. SHARICK

"I'LL TELL THE WORLD" GETS BIG PROMOTION SPACE!

Samples of the big newspaper space theatres are obtaining for their showing of "I'LL TELL THE WORLD" through the serialization.

On the left is a cooperative ad page which appeared in the Stockton, Calif. Daily Evening Record as part of the National Theatre's campaign.

In the center is the first installment of the serialization as run by the Youngstown Telegram. A great advance plug for the Paramount Theatre.

On the right is the half page advance announcement of the serialization in the Pittsburgh Press. This was only the first of a series of advance ads, all of which mentioned the Warner Theatre where the picture played currently with the publication of the story.

The showmanship front used by the Capitol Theatre, Dallas, as part of the big "ALL QUIET" campaign. Notice trench effect obtained by using sand bags. The display helped to sell the picture for holdover business.

AMERICAN LEGION AND ROTC AIDS CHARNINSKY IN "QUIET" CAMPAIGN

FOR his showing of "ALL QUIET ON THE WESTERN FRONT" at the Capitol Theatre, Dallas, Texas, Louis Charninsky conducted a campaign which is outstanding for its completeness and for the hold-over business which resulted.

The willingness of the American Legion to cooperate was again demonstrated when the local post loaned Charninsky captured war material to use in displays. Some of it was used with sand bags and atmospheric cut-outs in making the front and lobby resemble trenches. Complete displays of war material with explanations were made in the inner lobby and in three downtown store windows with the balance.

Sixteen uniformed boys provided by the Reserve Officers Training Corps added realistic atmosphere to the setting.

A bugler played army calls from the roof of the theatre, and to provide additional noise, Charninsky hooked up his front amplifier to the loud speakers, bringing the excitement on the screen out front.

Red flares and fire bombs were used to attract attention at night.

The American Legion also assisted by notifying all their members of the engagement and urging them to attend. As part of the tie-up, disabled members were admitted free. This angle was immediately picked up by the newspapers and played up with stories and art.

The theatre employees were costumed in nurses' and soldiers' uniforms.

A girl in the costume of a war nurse, and a German Police dog with a Red Cross banner around its body, were used as a street ballyhoo.

Gold Star Mothers were invited to a special showing of the picture and a display of war-time theatre programs from Paris, was made in the lobby. Both ideas resulted in newspaper stories.

Charninsky used increased quantities of posters and heralds and larger ad space. Dallas reviewers and editorial writers were impressed just as much as when the picture was first issued.

TIE-UPS BIG FEATURE OF PALACE THEATRE "GLAMOUR" CAMPAIGN

IN planning their "GLAMOUR" campaign for the Palace Theatre, Cleveland, Ohio, Nat Holt, Manager and Al Gregg, Publicity Manager took full advantage of the available tie-ups. These included the song "Heaven on Earth," Glamour perfume, and the novelization in Screen Romances magazine.

The catchy tune from the picture opened many exploitation channels. The orchestras quickly recognized its popularity and played it nightly on the air and at the city's leading hotels and restaurants. Wurlitzer's and other music stores gave generous display space to the sheet music, using lobby cards and photos from the picture for backgrounds.

Through the cooperation of Chanel, Glamour perfume displays were planted in leading drug and department stores during the showing of the picture. Display reproduced is that of Harvey's Drug Store which is located at one of the busiest corners of the Cleveland Railroad Terminal.

Holt and Gregg tied-up with the timely appearance of the novelization of "GLAMOUR" in the Screen Romances Magazine. The local distributor of the magazine bannered his eight delivery wagons and prepared a special card for use on newsstands and in store windows. Reproduction at bottom of page shows trucks as they are bannered.

As part of the tie-up arranged by Halle Bros. Department Store, an enlarged photo of Constance Cummings with picture credits, was used in a special window for the hair dressers' convention.

BUCK JONES
IN
THE RED RIDER

is only one of the four big serials from Universal for 1934-1935

TAILSPIN TOMMY

is another — —

Watch Universal Weekly For the Sensational Announcement of the Other Two!

FINE SHOWMANSHIP DISPLAYED IN THESE ADS!

(1.) Double column x 8" from Liberty, Oklahoma City, Okla. (2.) Three column x 8¼" from Orpheum, Wichita, Kans. (3.) Two column x 9" from Strand, Akron, Ohio. (4.) Double column x 8" from Palace, Columbus, Ohio. (5.) Two column x 4" from Karlton, Philadelphia, Pa. (6.) Double column x 6" from Sierra, Sacramento, Calif. (7.) Two column x 7¼" from Alhambra, Milwaukee, Wisc.

Coming!

CHESTER MORRIS

MAE CLARKE, Frank Craven, Andy Devine, John Warburton, Goodie Montgomery, Lois January, Russ Brown, Earl Eby, Wanda Perry and many others in a B. F. Zeidman Production.

LET'S TALK IT OVER

From

UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.

ROCKEFELLER CENTER

NEW YORK CITY

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
Paid
Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

MANAGER
HARRIS THEATRE
FINDLAY OHIO

There was a time when all newsreels were more or less alike. That day is gone. It is my honest conviction that today with Graham McNamee as the Talking Reporter, is so far superior to all other reels as to be beyond comparison. We will keep it that way.

UNIVERSAL NEWSREEL

Carl Laemmle

Printed in U. S. A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
VOL. 34 NO. 24 MAY 26, 1934

MARGARET SULLAVAN in "LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?"

In presenting "Little Man, What Now?" to the screen, I strove to render a social service. The story of LITTLE MAN is the story of EVERY MAN—and the question of WHAT NOW? is the WORLD'S DAILY PROBLEM, a problem that men can only hope to overcome by a courage born of great faith in the hearts of women. Against the tide of time and chance, all men are little—but in the eyes of a woman in love, a man can become bigger than the whole world.

Carl Laemmle

HANS FALLADA
LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?
HANS FALLADA
LITTLE MAN WHAT NOW?
LITTLE MAN WHAT NOW?
LITTLE MAN WHAT NOW?

Margaret Sullavan

in

LITTLE MAN WHAT NOW?

with

DOUGLASS MONTGOMERY

Fred Kohler, Alan Hale, Mae Marsh, George Meeker, Muriel Kirkland, De Witt Jennings, Hedda Hopper, Catherine Doucet, Bodil Rosing. Screenplay by William Anthony McGuire. Directed by Frank Borzage. From the famous best seller by Hans Fallada.

●

The Most Important

FRANK BORZAGE

Production Since The Immortal "Seventh Heaven"

●

Proudly presented by

Carl Laemmle

A PAT ON

No. 773 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

There are many fine things in your character.

You don't talk about them. You don't advertise them to the world. You are not that cheap. But they are there!

They are the things which keep you going. They are the things which attracted the girl you married. Your son and daughter love you for them. Your worst enemy has to admit that you have these certain good points. He may damn you up hill and down dale for your weak points — but I am not talking about those, I am talking only about the fine things in your character.

These fine things are the qualities which keep you going. They help you overcome the weaknesses in your make-up.

They are the doughnut of your life — not the hole in the doughnut.

They are your plus signs, not your minus signs.

Many books, plays and screen stories are based on your minus qualities. But now a picture has been made which deals with your plus quality.

THE BACK!

It is called "Little Man, What Now?"

This picture is a magnificent thing because it emphasizes the good that is in you, not the bad. It does the same thing for your audience. It flatters you. It flatters me. And it flatters all of your patrons.

That's the smart thing to do in these times when we are all suffering from a certain feeling of inferiority.

It is more than good showmanship. It is magnificent encouragement to you, to me, to all of us. What the world needs in these days of stress is a pat on the back.

Well, "Little Man, What Now?" is a pat on the back for all of us. It is a blessing. It is a modern "Well done, thou good and faithful servant."

We have all lived through quite a lot of hell. We need a pat on the back. We have needed it very greatly since the smash of 1929.

I give it to you in "Little Man, What Now?" You will pass it on to your patrons. They will bless you for it. They will never forget it. Neither will you. And neither will I.

Carl Laemmle

LITTLE M
WHAT N
WORLD PREMIERE
RKO MUSIC HALL,
N. Y. MAY 31

AN,
OW?

FRANK BORZAGE

Director of "Little Man, What Now?"

What the Public Says In Advance of "Little Man"

EVERYBODY in the world seems anxious to see "Little Man, What Now?" An individual in the home office, the Editor of the New Deal, to be specific, was so impressed with the remarks made by ordinary people with whom he came in contact about "Little Man, What Now?" that the Editor of the Weekly asked him to set these comments down. We have reported them here because it seems to represent a cross section of the better class of people that go to moving picture. If they are so interested, so anxious to see "Little Man, What Now?" every theatre man can expect to find a ready-made audience in his city equally interested and anxious to see the picture when it is shown there. Here are a few of the comments:

A PROMINENT NEW YORK PUBLISHER: "Not only am I looking forward to seeing your picture, 'Little Man, What Now?' but my Father and Mother, who both read the book with tremendous interest can hardly wait for it to be shown."

EDITOR OF ONE OF NEW YORK'S LARGEST DAILY PAPERS: "I would sincerely appreciate an invitation to an early screening of 'Little Man, What Now?' I expect it will be an outstanding screen entertainment."

A YOUNG SALESLADY: "I enjoyed the book so much, that I read it not only in the English version, but also in the original German. Naturally, I expect that the picture will be as wonderful and I can hardly wait to see it.'

A THEATRE DIRECTOR: "I understand that Universal has a real hit in 'Little Man, What Now?' It cannot be otherwise with a story so dramatic and real."

A WELL-KNOWN FILM FIGURE: "I had great difficulty in getting the book because of the fact that editions were sold out as fast as they were published, but I finally read it, enjoyed it immensely, and recommend it heartily, and you can be sure I look forward with great eagerness to the Universal picture."

Douglass Montgomery, who plays the role of Hans Pinneberg in "Little Man, What Now?" is a revelation in this picture. He made such an impression on the entire studio executive force that Carl Laemmle, Jr., immediately signed him to a long term contract.

Next Week

THE next issue of the Universal Weekly will be a combination of June 2 and June 9. It will be two Weeklies in one. It will contain Universal's announcement of product.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, New York City
Copyrighted 1934
Universal Pictures Corp.
(All Rights Reserved)
MAY 26th, 1934
Vol. 34 No. 24

A PROMINENT NEWSPAPERMAN: "It was one of the best books I ever read. I would very much like to see the picture you have made from it at the very earliest showing."

A MARGARET SULLAVAN FAN: "Am anxious to see Sullavan in "Little Man, What Now?" for I feel you will give this production what it deserves."

SECRETARY TO A CITY OFFICIAL: "Can hardly wait for 'Little Man, What Now?' "

A POSTMAN: "You're going to have a swell picture, 'Little Man, What Now?' I think it ought to be very successful."

AN OFFICE BOY: "Lots of my pals are waiting to see, 'Little Man, What Now?' "

A RESIDENT OF GEORGIA: "I am watching with interest for the announcement of the Atlanta showing of 'Little Man, What Now?' "

A LIBRARY CLERK: "I am looking forward with a great deal of anticipation toward seeing 'Little Man, What Now?' "

A SATURDAY EVENING POST READER: "I must say your column in the Saturday Evening Post is more interesting. You point out a picture so vividly, that I can scarcely wait for it to be shown in my town. Right now I'm eagerly awaiting 'Little Man, What Now?.' "

A TYPIST: "I'm delighted that you are putting 'Little Man, What Now?' on the screen and eager to see Margaret Sullavan as Bunny.' "

A RADIO ANNOUNCER: "Not since Universal made 'All Quiet' has there been so much discussion about any one picture as I hear about 'Little Man, What Now?' "

A COLUMNIST: "Clap hands for Carl Laemmle's decision to give 'Little Man' to the public."

LITTLE MAN,
WHAT NOW?

The most poignant and graphic still descriptive of the heart interest of "Little Man, What Now?" starring Margaret Sullavan with Douglass Montgomery.

The Most W
In Hollywo

ALTHOUGH she has only been in Hollywood for a little more than five months and has appeared in but a single picture, "Only Yesterday" Margaret Sullavan has had more written about her and is receiving more mail than any other person in the film center. That includes stars, directors, executives or anyone else connected with pictures. Fan mail is the surest indication of popularity. When it reaches the proportions of Miss Sullavan's correspondence it means that a new star has been born. Not that this is responsible for the Virginia actress reaching stardom in her second Universal picture, "Little Man, What Now?" but it is a gratifying evidence that the public rates her as a star as well as the Universal and the industry.

At the Universal City post office which is a real post office receiving

✚ ✚ ✚

"LITTLE MA
IN THE MUS

Marvelous Preview
Exhibitors Greet H

IT'S all over but the shouting. "Little Man, What Now?" has been completed. It has been previewed. It has been booked. It wasn't a difficult matter to finish up "Little Man, What Now?" after the actual shooting. This picture was produced by Frank Borzage almost in full continuity. That is, the first scenes were shot first and the last scenes of the story were the ones which completed the picture. It was put together and tested out as Borzage completed each scene.

Three previews were held, two of them secret, and one to which the trade papers were admitted at the Ritz Theatre, Hollywood. The result of these previews was a tremendous outburst of approval from the audience and a rush to the office on the part of the reviewers to get the news on this latest screen triumph to their readers.

On pages 14, 15, 18 and 19, will be found the preview reports of Variety, of Motion Picture Daily, of Edwin Schallert in the Los Angeles Times, and of the Film Daily. Their verdict is unanimous and enthusiastic.

Carl Laemmle, Jr. also received a wire that very night from Anna Sten, a very fine dramatic actress on her own account, congratulating him, in these words: "MY SINCEREST CONGRATULATIONS FOR THAT WONDERFUL PIECE OF ART, 'LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?' "

The print arrived in New York on Monday and has now been seen by every theatre circuit booker and operator working out of New York City. There isn't one of them who isn't thoroughly enthusiastic about "Little Man, What Now?" The theatres need big pictures as never before, and here is the big picture of the year, "Little Man, What Now?"

Naturally, "Little Man, What Now?" goes into the Music Hall. Margaret Sullavan's first picture, "Only Yesterday," was there. Music Hall patrons have been looking and asking anxiously for another Margaret Sullavan picture. Here it is. The date is May 31st. Great preparations have been made for an outstanding campaign, advertising, posters, publicity, exploitation of all kinds worthy of the picture and of this new star in her first starring vehicle. Other early bookings are:

itten About and Written To Star
d Is MARGARET SULLAVAN!

more letters than are delivered daily to many large towns, one man is specially assigned to handle Miss Sullavan's mail. That is all he does. Thousands of letters for the players arrive every morning but since the opening of the Universal City post office no such flood of mail has ever come to any of the company's stars. Miss Sullavan has a corresponding secretary whose duty is to answer all these letters. Many letters in addition are sent to her home in Norfolk, Virginia, where she was born. Others are sent to her residence in New York. In order to escape somewhat from the pressure of all this writing and reading, the Universal luminary keeps an apartment in Los Angeles which she almost never visits. It is simply a mailing address, designed to receive letters. Here it is that the corresponding secretary works.

The amount of publicity which Margaret Sullavan has achieved during her short career in pictures far outranks that accorded to any other star, including Garbo, Hepburn and Dietrich, over an equal period of time. Much of this publicity is the routine work of the studio but most of it has come because of Miss Sullavan's colorful, independent personality. Interviews with her are steadily sought by all the fan magazines as a matter of course, but she has also appeared in publications such as Collier's and the American Magazine. The fan magazines, like Picture Play, Hollywood, Screen Play, Movie Classic, New Movie, Modern Screen, Photoplay, Screenland, Motion Picture, and numerous others have each carried several articles about her since her debut a short half season ago. Her picture has been featured on the covers of four magazines already. In August it will adorn Screen Book and in July Miss Sullavan will be on the cover of Motion Picture. Such special articles and illustrations are quite apart from the publicity about her which has bulked large on the amusement pages of the large and small daily papers the country over. The leading foreign periodicals in both hemispheres have devoted copious space to this overnight sensation.

Miss Sullavan refuses to be impressed by this paper mountain reared to her fame, but it continues to grow with the passing days. Postal authorities better prepare for the aftermath of "Little Man, What Now?" in which the actress eclipses herself.

✚ ✚ ✚

, WHAT NOW?"
HALL, MAY 31

nd the Enthusiasm of All nk Borzage Production

Atlanta,Fox; Miami, Mayfair; Cincinnati, Albee; Richmond, Va., Capital; Des Moines, Des Moines; Louisville, Brown; Kansas City, Uptown; St. Joseph, Mo., Missouri; Topeka, Kans., Strand; Omaha, Nebr., Paramount; Salem, Ore., Elsinore; Toronto, Ont., Imperial; Indianapolis, Lyric; Louisville, Brown; St. Joseph, Mo., Missouri; Minnesota, Strand Fairmont; Columbia, Mo.,
Washington, D. C., Earle; Rochester, N. Y., Palace; New York City, Music Hall; St. Louis, Mo. Ambassador; Frisco, Orpheum; Houston, Tex., Metropolitan; San Antonia, Aztex; Seattle, Wash., Blue Mouse; Dallas, Palace; Kansas City, Uptown; Sacramento, Cal., Sierra

Margaret Sullavan absorbing the character of Lammchen, or Bunny, which she plays so thoroughly in "Little Man, What Now?"

Out of the pages of a famous best seller step the characters known to millions — brought to throbbing life on the screen in the world's most moving motion picture!

LITTLE MAN

WHAT NOW?

This suspenseful scene discloses to the two newlyweds what manner of house the mother-in-law lives in.

VARIETY says "A SMASH HIT"

A smash hit.

Done with taste, feeling and honesty, "Little Man, What Now?" is an important picture, both from the money and artistic standpoints, and will add to the prestige of all concerned, from Carl Laemmle, Jr., to the least bit player in the cast. It has common heart appeal which registers with all classes from key sophisticates to modest nabes.

Frank Borzage is at his best, sharp, crisp, reaching his emotional punches without going maudlin, and handling both players and situations with telling assurance. Every sequence has excellent buildup and cracking climax.

For Margaret Sullavan it is another outstanding triumph. Universal has given her rich opportunity to show her wares and she comes through magnificently as the wistful, impulsive young wife who faces life courageously with the "Little Man" whose answer to "what now?" spells a powerful story of commonplace folk facing problems of love, jobs and parenthood.

Douglass Montgomery ably supplements the main dramatic tale as Hans Pinneberg, the "Little Man." He plays with restraint and intelligence and conviction.

Supporting cast is distinguished by half a dozen memorable performances, notably the outstanding work of Alan Hale as a whimsical, admirable roue whose devotion to the young wife provides strange humor and pathos; DeWitt Jennings as a tyrannical employer; Christian Rub, in an amazing characterization as the landlord of the young couple's attic retreat; Catherine Doucet, as the ex-bartender who is the mother of Montgomery; Muriel Kirkland as Maria Kleinholz; Donald Haynes, George Meeker, Fred Kohler as a communist, Mae Marsh, his wife, and Alan Mowbray as an actor. Cast generally is superb, not a single bit player having been neglected.

William Anthony McGuire's rich and selective adaptation of the novel provides fine balance of comedy, pathos, human detail and dramatic punch, with a vein of social irony.

Story gives a cheerful, lifting ending to take away the sting of occasional depression.

Photography is excellent, as is every phase of technical support.

All through "Little Man, What Now?" Margaret Sullavan is unable to tell whether Alan Hale is a fairy godfather or a cleverly disguised menace.

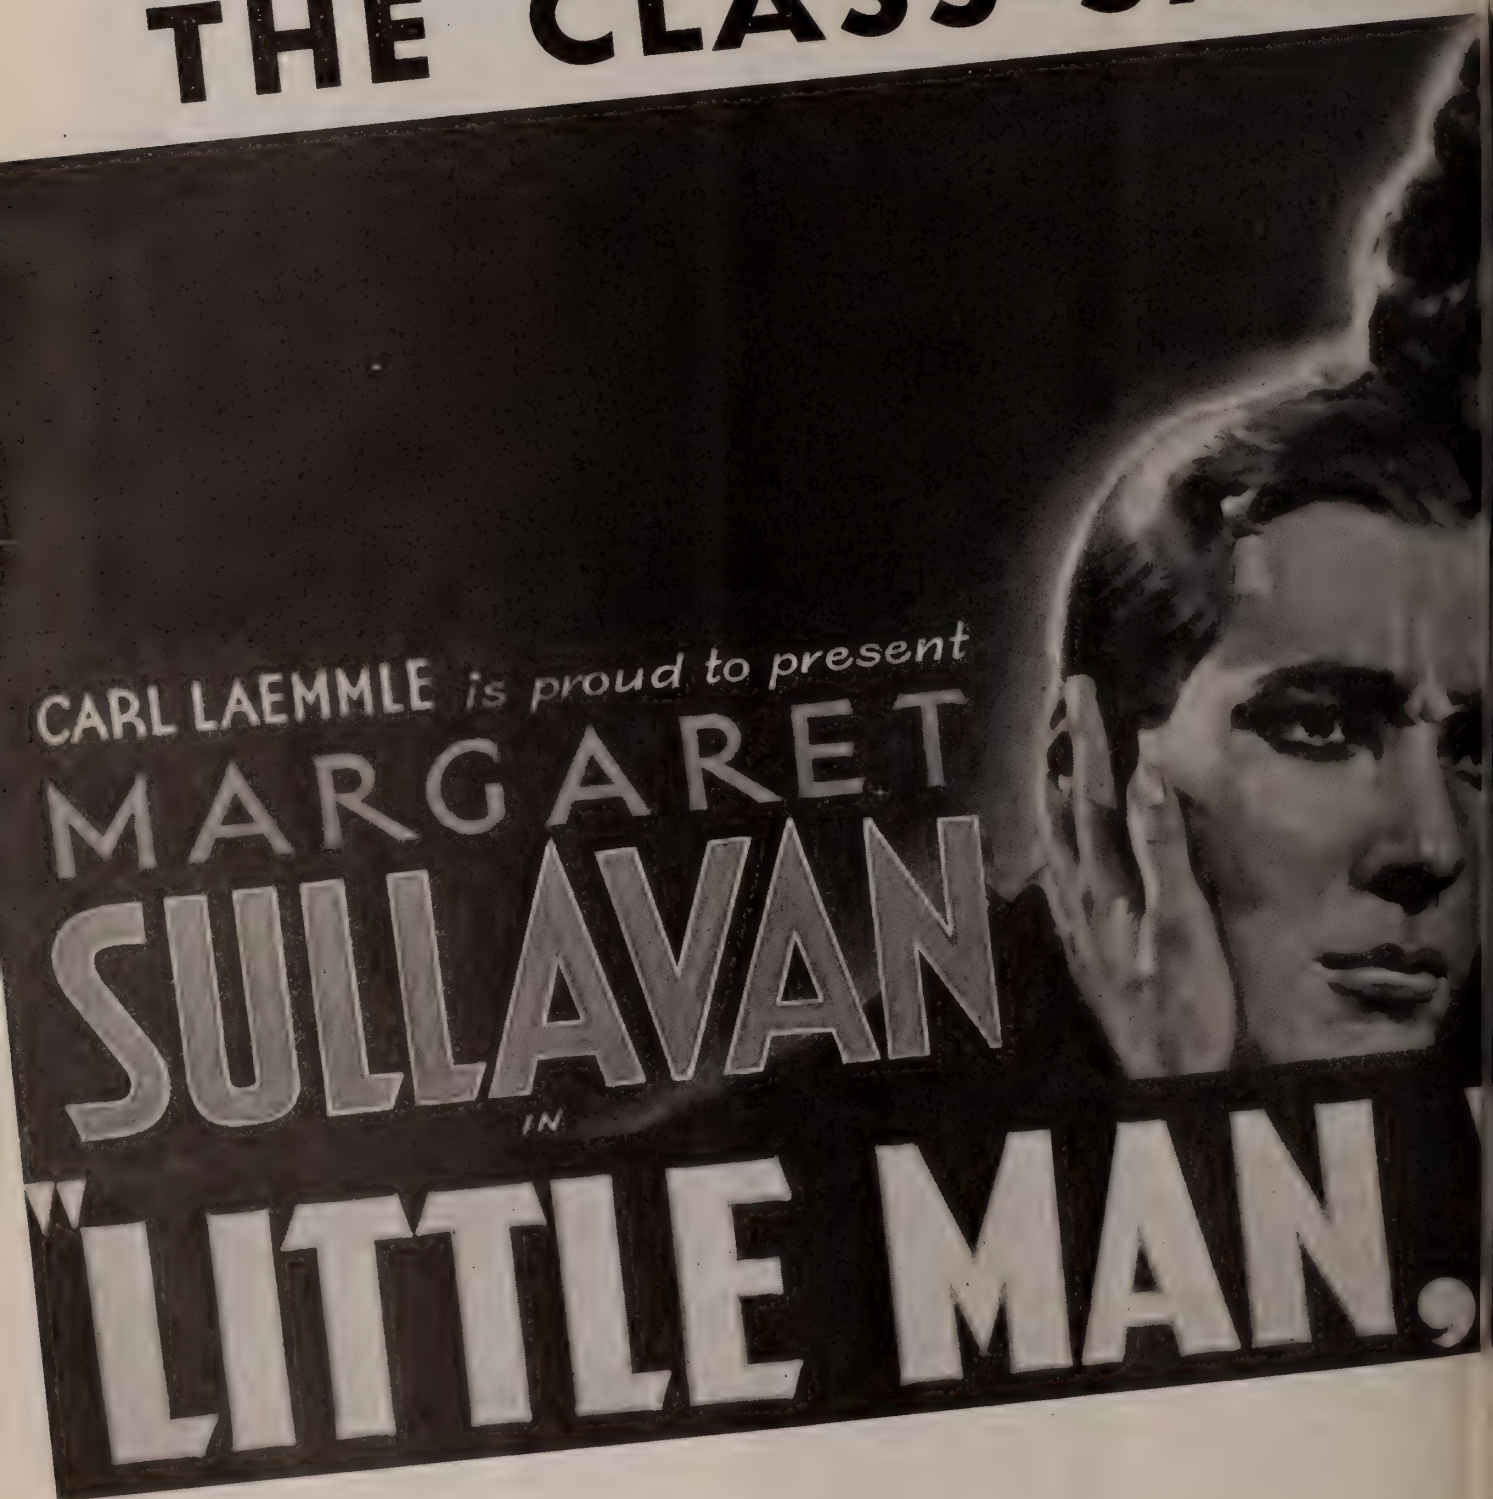
Film Daily's "Hollywood Preview"

"LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?"

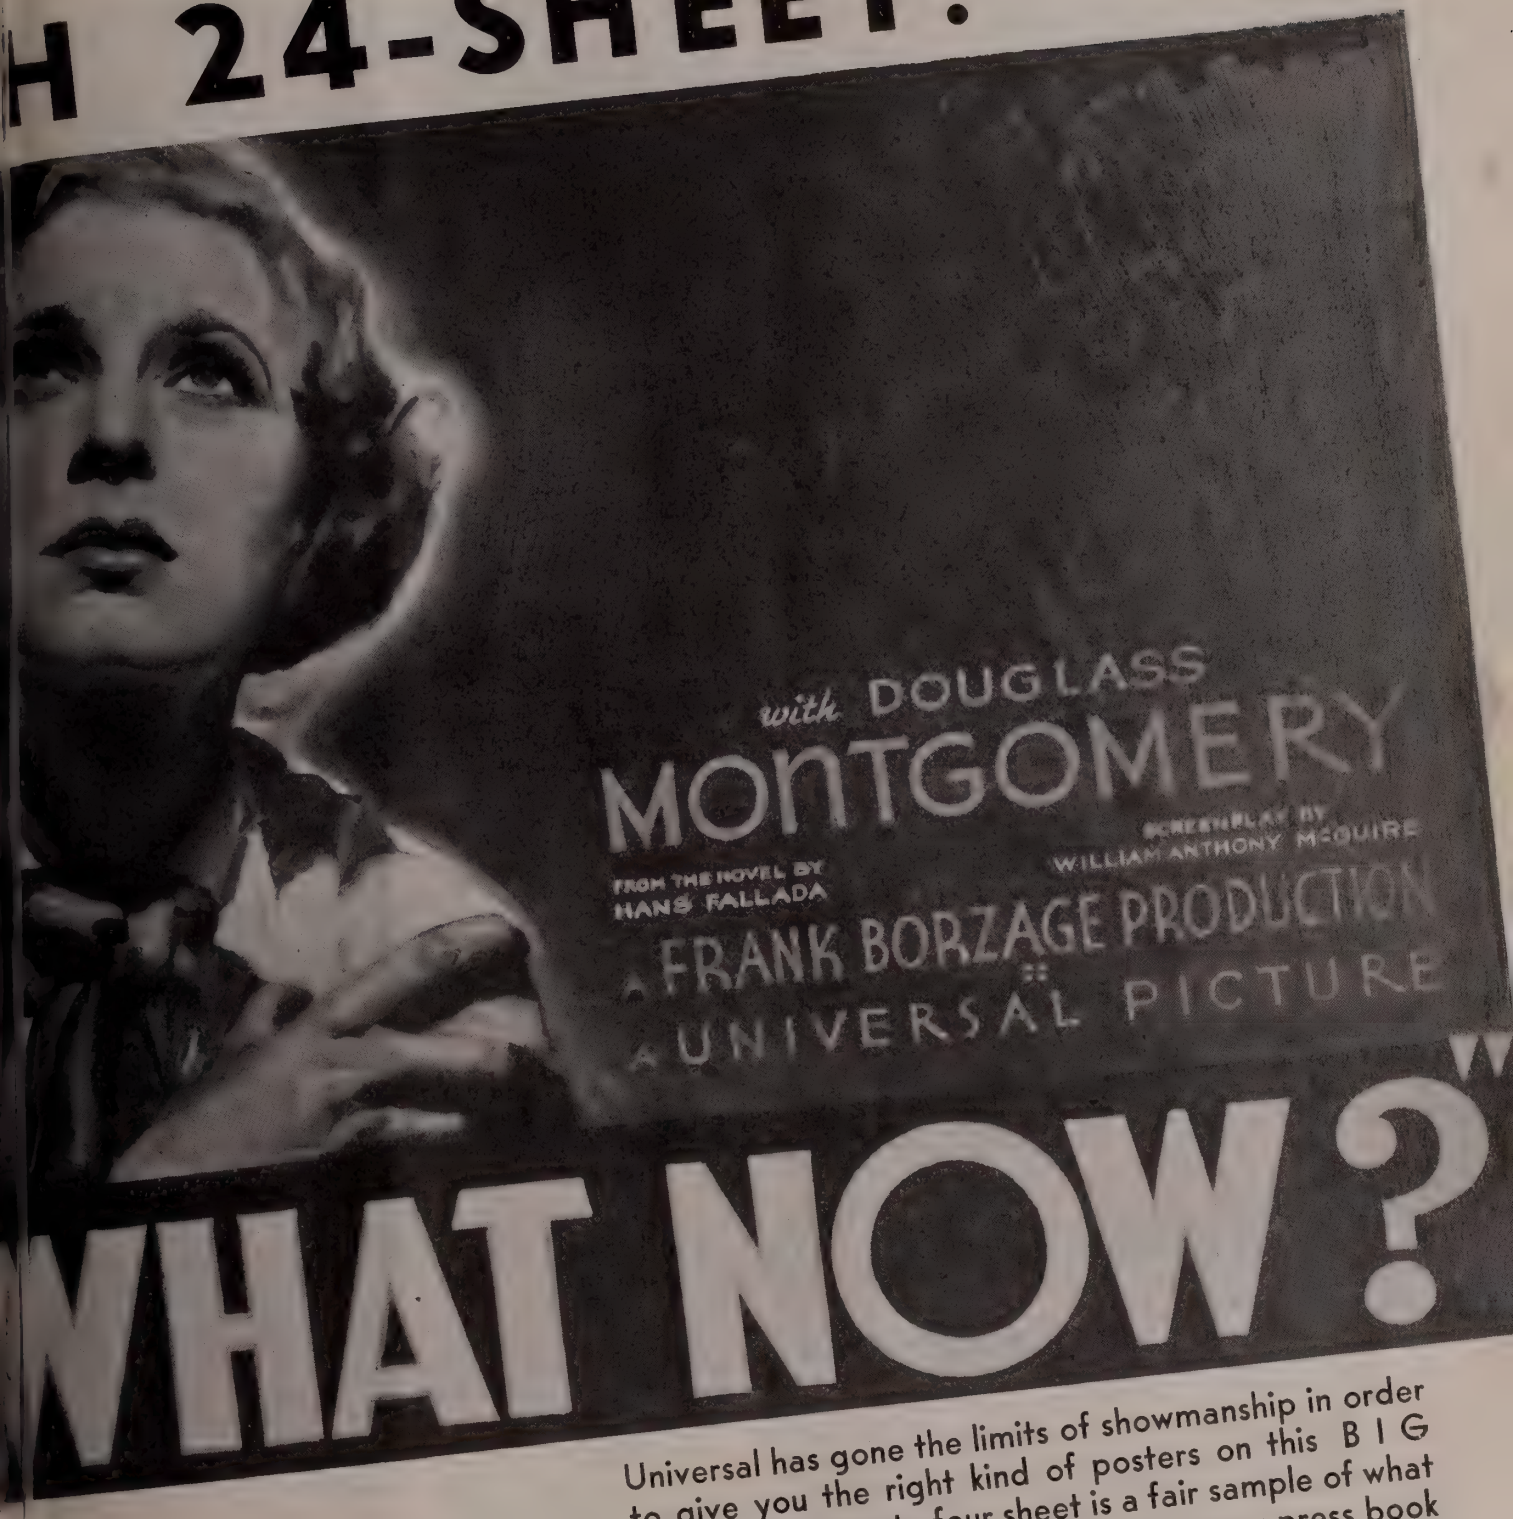
This picture is a red letter event for Universal and should be a box-office winner. Frank Borzage has fashioned a love story that puts him in line for much attention in the Academy of M. P. Arts & Sciences' contest for the best direction of the year. Performances of all his players are topnotch, with Margaret Sullavan repeating the fine work she did in "Only Yesterday." Douglass Montgomery is excellent as her young husband. Alan Hale, DeWitt Jennings, Catherine Doucet, Muriel Kirkland, Christian Rub and Alan Mowbray offer splendid characterizations. The tragic ending of the book is changed to a happy one in a compact screen play furnished by Wm. Anthony McGuire. Photography by Norbert Brodine and settings by Charles D. Hall are deserving of much praise.

—RALPH WILK

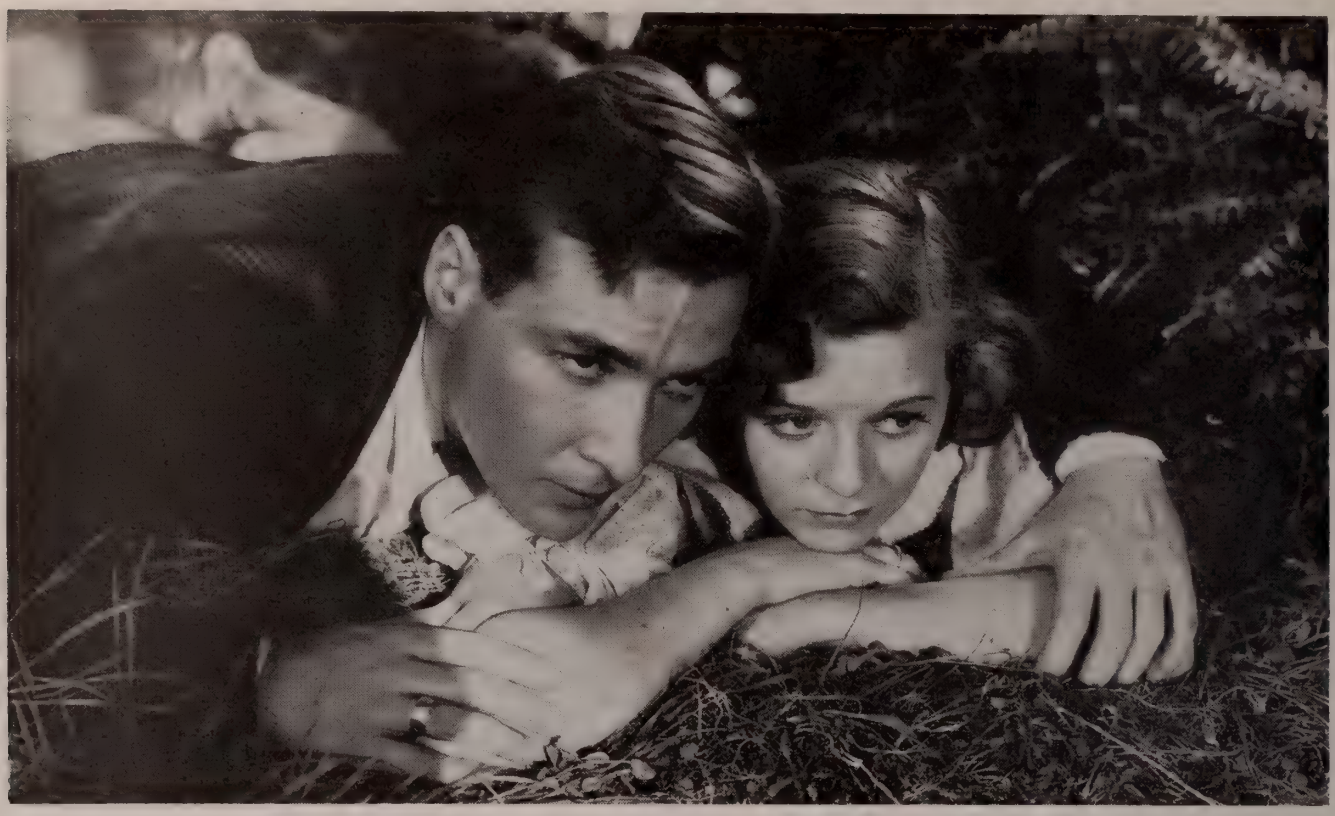
THE CLASS-SMAS



H 24-SHEET!



Universal has gone the limits of showmanship in order to give you the right kind of posters on this B I G picture. This twenty-four sheet is a fair sample of what you can expect of the entire line. See your press book for reproductions of other posters — and all other kinds of seat-selling accessories.



Douglass Montgomery and Margaret Sullavan in the picnic scene from "Little Man, What Now?"

EDWIN SHALLERT IN L. A. TIMES CALLS "LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?" A REMARKABLE EVENT

FRANK BORZAGE comes near the "Seventh Heaven" summit if he doesn't actually attain it in "Little Man, What Now?" previewed last night at the Ritz. Certainly it is his greatest since that picture, with much the same intent and feeling. A beautiful achievement, and heart-moving if there ever was one on the screen.

In acting it blends the talents of Margaret Sullavan and Douglass Montgomery, with Montgomery having the greater opportunities, giving a splendid interpretation, and being the true central figure of the drama. Sheer enchantment distinguishes the performance of Miss Sullavan, particularly in an exquisite final scene, as radiant a depiction of motherhood as has been shown in practically any picture.

No less noteworthy are supporting portrayals in this film. Alan Hale, all but justifies the adjective superb for his characterization. It will well-nigh entitle him to stardom. DeWitt Jennings who has been doing investigators and detectives for many a day, furnishes the most amazing transformation of personality as the much bearded employer of the hero in the earlier scenes.

Catherine Doucet is excellent and Muriel Kirkland responsible for a clever impersonation. But very few can rival the sympathy won by Christian Rub in his devotion to the young married couple. Fred Kohler, Mae Marsh, Monroe Owsley, George Meeker, Frank Reicher, G. P. Huntley, Jr. Bodil Rosing and Donald Haynes are among the numerous others who stand out. It is quite extraordinary how many register dramatically in this picture, which does not perhaps lift Miss Sullavan to the heights, personally as did "Only Yesterday," but which is exceptional in its ensemble, and certainly will give Montgomery a big claim on popular interest.

Douglass Montgomery and DeWitt Jennings in a delicious scene from "Little Man, What Now?"

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Little Man, What Now?"

(Universal)

HOLLYWOOD, May 21.—Reaching primary emotions with undertones of spiritual power, this drama of a boy and a girl, madly in love and caught in the web of modern economic forces, rises to heights of magnificent entertainment.

It's today's story of youth in any land, adapted by William Anthony McGuire from Hans Fallada's novel. It is youth seeking the rainbow, assaulting the world for food and clothing and clinging close to womanly affection.

Losing one job because he wouldn't play up to the boss's daughter, Douglass Montgomery, with his bride, Margaret Sullavan, go to live with his mother, Catherine Doucet, who secretly runs a sort of lonely club. Her consort, Alan Hale, helps Montgomery secure a job in a department store, and then tries to inveigle himself with Miss Sullavan. Montgomery loses his job, his wife has a baby and a friend proffers work.

Miss Sullavan again demonstrates her outstanding artistry and charm. Montgomery gives a sterling performance. Hale, Christian Rub, Muriel Kirkland and DeWitt Jennings contribute gems in support. Frank Borzage's masterful craftsmanship solidifies him as the industry's great heart director.

The production is flawless and refreshing, rich in qualities that stir the masses, whose drama is splendidly mirrored and romantically unfolded.

Samples of Ad Mats — M any More In Press Book!

Carl Laemmle has the honor to present—

Margaret Sullavan

—the girl you loved in "Only Yesterday", in the epic picturization of Hans Fallada's slashing novel of young love battling adversity!

IT'S MORE THAN A MOVIE—IT'S A HUMAN EXPERIENCE

LITTLE MAN WHAT NOW?

with

DOUGLASS MONTGOMERY

Fred Kohler, Alan Hale, Mae Marsh, George Meeker, Muriel Kirkland, DeWitt Jennings, Hedda Hopper, Catherine Doucet, Bodil Rosing. Screenplay by William Anthony McGuire. A UNIVERSAL PICTURE

A FRANK BORZAGE Production

A TRULY GREAT NOVEL BROUGHT TO THROBBING LIFE ON THE SCREEN!

Carl Laemmle has the honor to present—

Margaret SULLAVAN

in

LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?

with DOUGLASS MONTGOMERY

Fred Kohler, Alan Hale, Mae Marsh, George Meeker, Muriel Kirkland, DeWitt Jennings, Hedda Hopper, Catherine Doucet, Bodil Rosing. A UNIVERSAL PICTURE.

A FRANK BORZAGE Production

Any man who has ever lost his job, or any young wife who has bravely tried to comfort him will thrill to the tenderness, the courage, the gay humor of this idyl of young love which all the cruelty of these bitter times could not destroy!

The girl you loved in "Only Yesterday" in the picturization of Hans Fallada's great novel.

Carl Laemmle has the honor to present—

Margaret Sullavan in

LITTLE MAN WHAT NOW?

with DOUGLASS MONTGOMERY Fred Kohler, Alan Hale, Mae Marsh, George Meeker, Muriel Kirkland, DeWitt Jennings, Hedda Hopper. Screenplay by William Anthony McGuire.

A UNIVERSAL PICTURE A FRANK BORZAGE Production

IT'S MORE THAN A MOVIE—IT'S A GREAT EXPERIENCE!

Margaret Sullavan in

LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?

with

DOUGLASS MONTGOMERY

Fred Kohler, Alan Hale, Mae Marsh, George Meeker, Muriel Kirkland, DeWitt Jennings, Hedda Hopper. From the book by Hans Fallada. A UNIVERSAL PICTURE proudly presented by Carl Laemmle. A FRANK BORZAGE Production.

Margaret Sullavan

the girl you loved in "Only Yesterday," in

LITTLE MAN WHAT NOW?

with

DOUGLASS MONTGOMERY

Fred Kohler, Alan Hale, Mae Marsh, George Meeker, Muriel Kirkland, DeWitt Jennings, Hedda Hopper From the novel by Hans Fallada. A UNIVERSAL PICTURE proudly presented by Carl Laemmle.

A FRANK BORZAGE Production

MARGARET SULLAVAN

in

LITTLE MAN WHAT NOW?

Margaret Sullavan

LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?

MARGARET SULLAVAN

LITTLE MAN WHAT NOW?

Margaret Sullavan in

LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?

Margaret Sullavan

LITTLE MAN WHAT NOW?

Margaret SULLAVAN

LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?

MARGARET SULLAVAN

in

LITTLE MAN WHAT NOW?

MARGARET SULLAVAN

LITTLE MAN WHAT NOW?

•

Douglass
Montgomery

•

who plays
the role of Hans Pinneberg
in "Little Man,
What
Now?"

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY SHOWMANSHIP SECTION

A DIGEST OF THE BEST EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

"LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?" — A GREAT PICTURE THAT MERITS A GREAT CAMPAIGN

THE picture with 100% appeal—much more than that can and will be said about Universal's "Little Man, What Now?"; but nothing more can or will be said that will have greater significance to the exhibitor.

When you have a picture that carries a smashing appeal and leaves a vibrant message in the heart of every person who sees it—that picture is a NATURAL from any and all angles . . . and it is BOX OFFICE, positively and absolutely.

There has been no greater box office picture ever made . . . therefore there has never been a picture so sure for a box office harvest and so pertinent for major exploitation. "Little Man, What Now?" is entitled to and should receive the most carefully planned and most extensive exploitation campaign accorded any picture in many, many months.

It is supreme entertainment because it is down to earth and void of hokum. It is the story of ninety-nine people out of one hundred—the intimate, personal, inside story that every woman knows because it is the story that they are living—the drama that each and every one is acting; it is a looking glass held up to life itself in which every patron will see himself for what, but, for the Grace of God, he might easily be.

If you are fortunate enough to have this splendid entertainment coming to your theatre start talking about it TODAY—this minute. You can't start selling "Little Man, What Now?" too early—you positively cannot oversell it. Shout to your patrons in your lobby. Take a just pride in the fact that you have a picture like this under contract. Enthuse your newspaper editors. Make them understand that the bringing of this picture to your city is a NEWS EVENT—not just another motion picture engagement!

Margaret Sullavan is supreme. In "Only Yesterday" she proved herself a great actress. In "Little Man, What Now?" she solidifies her rating as one of the most talented of motion picture artists and in addition brings to the screen a freshness, beauty and charm that will make new friends for this talented star and, more important, new customers for motion picture box offices. She is lovliness personified with a winsome sweetness that gets into your heart and stays there. Douglass Montgomery is THE "Little Man" of Hans Fallada's novel. Nothing more need be said in praise. He never steps out of character for one second. He is believable and absolute perfection!

This is not meant to be a review. But it is difficult to be restrained after having seen such a glorious piece of entertainment. This is being written in honest appeal to every exhibitor to get behind "Little Man, What Now?" with all of the sales dynamite that he has at his command. It is an honest and sincere attempt to try to convey to those showmen who are fortunate enough to have this picture some idea of the tremendous possibilities it holds for them—not only box office returns for this picture alone but the effect that such a picture will have on audiences for building a new faith in the industry and a new interest in pictures that are to come.

A. J. SHARICK

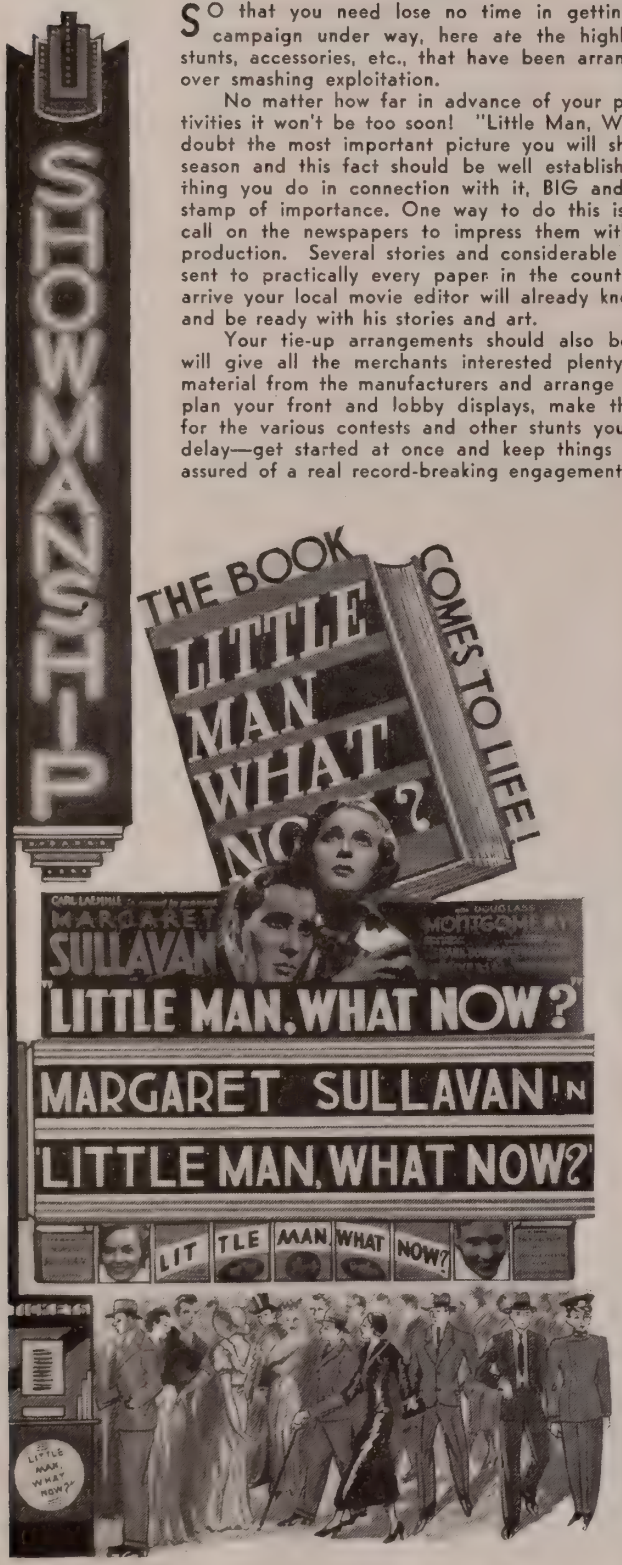
THIS IS THE SHOWMANSHIP STREAMER—SEE IT AT "U" EXCHANGES

FIVE BIG NATIONAL TIE-UPS EXPLOITATION SUGGESTIONS

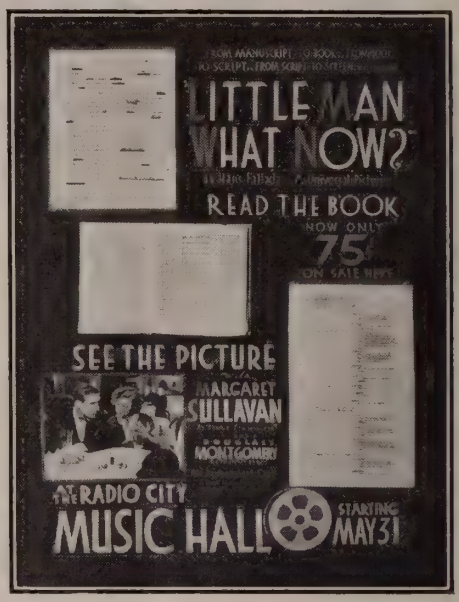
SO that you need lose no time in getting your "Little Man" campaign under way, here are the highlights of the tie-ups, stunts, accessories, etc., that have been arranged to help you put over smashing exploitation.

No matter how far in advance of your playdate you start activities it won't be too soon! "Little Man, What Now?" is without doubt the most important picture you will show your patrons this season and this fact should be well established by making everything you do in connection with it, BIG and by giving it all the stamp of importance. One way to do this is to make a personal call on the newspapers to impress them with the bigness of the production. Several stories and considerable art has already been sent to practically every paper in the country, so that when you arrive your local movie editor will already know about the picture, and be ready with his stories and art.

Your tie-up arrangements should also be started early. This will give all the merchants interested plenty of time to get the material from the manufacturers and arrange for profitable tie-ups. plan your front and lobby displays, make the necessary contacts for the various contests and other stunts you plan to use. Don't delay—get started at once and keep things moving until you are assured of a real record-breaking engagement.



The selling display board being used in New York book stores for the Music Hall campaign.



GROSSET AND DUNLAP READY WITH BIG BOOK CAMPAIGN

ONE of the biggest campaigns ever given a popular price edition of a book is ready on Grosset and Dunlap's "Little Man, What Now?" On the opposite page are reproductions of the TWO window cards which they have prepared for dealers. In addition there are a window streamer and a special jacket designed along the lines of the posters for the picture. All of which means a big smash for you in every book store window in town.

Above is one of the special displays being used by the Radio City Music Hall in its campaign. These displays depict the transition of the story from manuscript to book, from book to picture script and from script to screen. Actual books are used with reproductions of the manuscript and picture script. These displays and the distribution of heralds and midget booklets and the display of stills and lobby photos complete an exceptionally fine tie-up.

You, too can secure this same co-operation from your book dealers. They give you the window space and you provide the main part of the display. Lobby photos, stills, hangers, streamers, and other accessories will help make the display more attractive and profitable for you.

Local book dealers are also a valuable means of distribution for heralds and other material on the picture. By imprinting their ad for the book, together with your announcement of the picture on the back or other space provided you can secure their full co-operation. If you have any difficulty in locating a book dealer who is handling the special edition communicate direct with Grosset and Dunlap of 1140 Broadway, New York City.

AND A HOST OF SURE-FIRE TO HELP YOUR CAMPAIGN

THE SHIRT BAND

DOUGLASS MONTGOMERY SHIRTS-PAJAMAS TO BE FEATURE OF LEADING HABERDASHERS

THERE are dealers in practically every city that sell Shirtcraft men's shirts and pyjamas, which means that you can land one or more extra displays through this special tie-up. Lavish display material has been prepared by the manufacturer for the dealers' use. There is a window display card, window strip, price cards and band encircling every garment. Each piece features the title of the picture and Douglass Montgomery. In addition, the manufacturers have prepared an elaborate press book crammed with practical ideas for the dealer to use in tying up with you. This book also illustrates the tie-up ad mats that are available to dealers. The sketches illustrate the window display card, the window strip and the shirt band. Go after this tie-up right away, it's worth working on. You can provide the dealer with stills, lobby photos, hangers, streamers, cut-outs and other accessories for dressing his windows. For complete information regarding the retailers in your city who will carry the DOUGLASS MONTGOMERY shirts and pyjamas, wire or write to Norman D. Waters & Associates, 1140 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

The Window Card and Streamer.

MARGARET SULLAVAN IN NATIONAL FLOUR MILLS CAMPAIGN

DEALERS all over the country, who handle, the products of General Mills, Inc., will be supplied with special material for window displays in connection with the showing of "Little Man, What Now?" This material features pictures of Margaret Sullavan and stresses the title of the picture. The manufacturers are having their salesmen contact stores in each theatre's territory urging them to tie-up with the presentation of the picture. See that you get your share of this invaluable publicity. Let all dealers know at once when you will play the picture, and arrange with them for smash displays. Supply them with lobby photos, stills, hangers and other accessories for making the display more attractive and more valuable to you. If you want a list of the dealers in your territory address, G. S. Barnes, The McCord Company, Inc., Rand Tower, Minneapolis, Minn.

HERE ARE THE WINDOW DISPLAY CARDS FOR THE BIG BOOK TIE-UP

ANY MAN WHO HAS EVER LOST HIS JOB, OR ANY YOUNG WIFE WHO HAS BRAVELY TRIED TO COMFORT HIM WILL UNDERSTAND THE TENDERNESS, THE COURAGE AND GAY HUMOR OF THIS IDYL OF YOUNG LOVE WHICH ALL THE CRUELTY OF THESE BITTER TIMES COULD NOT DESTROY.

GET YOUR BOOK WINDOWS SET WELL AHEAD OF YOUR OPENING!

TWO FASHION TIE-UPS THAT INSURE COMPLETE COVERAGE

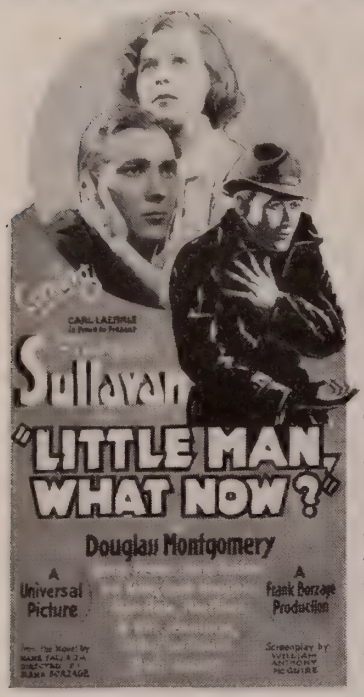
THE Modern Merchandising Bureau and Celebrity Fashions have arranged special tie-ups with Margaret Sullavan gowns for "LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?" This is a combination that makes for one of the greatest merchandising scoops that has ever been engineered for a picture. It means that well over 1,000 stores will be ready to co-operate with you in exploiting this star and her greatest dramatic achievement. It means that no exhibitor playing this picture need run a campaign that does not include at least one big smash window display.

These dealers will be advised of your playdates and will immediately put into action their end of the tie-up. However, it will be to your distinct advantage to contact these stores at your earliest convenience and arrange with them for unusual displays.

The special dress reproduced by the Modern Merchandising Bureau is also being used by the promoters of NATIONAL COTTON WEEK. This means that several thousand stores all over the country will be displaying Margaret Sullavan's picture in their windows and newspaper advertising for this annual event which is in reality only the opening of the summer dress season.

Communicate now with both the Modern Merchandising Bureau at 6 West 44th Street, New York City and Celebrity Fash-Merchandising Bureau at 6 West 44th for further details on this promotion.

ACCESSORIES AND STUNTS TO SHOWMANSHIP TO YOUR SELLIN



A NEW FULL-COLOR CUT-OUT DISPLAY BOARD

MADE of warp-proof board, this display stands by itself just as it comes to you, there is no fixing or arranging, just take it out of the package and set it up. Painted in vivid oil colors, it will withstand the elements and any wear and tear you can reasonably give it. A real cut-out display that has many uses at and away from the theatre. It is done in full colors including gold on the title. Be sure you have one or more for your advance campaign. Specially priced at only $2.80 Each Prepaid. Universal Exchanges.

POSTERS ARE MASTERPIECES OF LITHOGRAPHERS' ART!

GREAT artists and new heights in lithography have been employed in making the posters for "LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?" Remarkable effects in the use of color have been achieved so that you can tell your patrons about the year's greatest picture with advertising that is unsurpassed!

Herewith is a reproduction of the one sheet while on the opposite page is a reproduction of one of the three sheets. However, you must see this paper to appreciate its beauty and salesmanship. It is the last word in class paper!

There is also a special advance one sheet designed to sell Margaret Sullavan, the star. This should be used well in advance of anything else that you do in selling this picture.

Get started NOW with your poster campaign! Shout the message of "LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?" from every board and housetop in the city. You will be well repaid for your efforts.

DISPLAY PUNCH LINES

Bewildered but not beaten, buffeted but brave, two young people, a "Little Man" and wife, living in the world of today and fighting and smiling in the face of fate!

* * *

Youth at the threshold of life. If you are young, if you have ever been young, this is a picture that makes you think and feel, that will shake you into a new realization of all things that are lovely and lasting. Romance has never been more remarkably or realistically presented than in this drama.

* * *

They were poor in worldly goods but rich in happiness. A poignant romance torn from reality! Not acted, but lived! "Little Man, What Now?" is a staggering emotional experience.

* * *

A picture plucking into the everyday life of "ordinary" people and bringing to light drama, pathos, tragedy, sacrifice, beauty, glamour, sadness, love, gaiety!

* * *

Behold Lammchen come to life—just as you imagined her—living, breathing, laughing, loving! And meet her sweetheart, Pinneberg, the boy-husband who strives manfully to cope with reality and comes hand to hand with bitter truths. Learn about life from "Little Man" and wife.

* * *

Have you read "Little Man, What Now?" the greatest best-seller of the year? It matters not. Don't miss the screen's rarest treat, this romance which brings to life—Hans Fallada's epic of love!

SILK BANNERS

THESE attractive banners were made up especially to sell the star. They are 9¾" wide and 12½" deep. Printed in contrasting color on colored silk of heavy weight, trimmed with silk fringe and equipped with top rod, hanging cord and tassels. There are four to a set, each in different color combinations. You can use them to excellent advantage in tie-up window displays, in your lobby, under your marquee and in many interior spots. Only $1.00 the set of four. Order from your Universal Exchange.

GIVE FLASH, PEP AND REAL EFFORTS FOR A GREAT PICTURE

SPECTACULAR FRONT DISPLAY

"LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?" offers showmen several sensational angles for a smashing front display. Use a large cut-out of the star over the box-office and a long panel listing the other players with silhouettes of their heads.

The widely popularized best-seller gives you an opportunity for making spectacular splurges. Build a tremendous compo-board book over your 24-sheet cut-out and use the catch line, THE BOOK COMES TO LIFE! Also use book covers, blow-ups of the inside pages, and a shadow box to give this angle proper play. The shadow box will consist of an enlarged book cover with a jagged hole in the center covered by a screen. Whenever a light inside flashes on a poster cut-out comes into view.

One effective way to put the title over in all lobby frames and miscellaneous art work is by utilizing a giant question mark with the title lettered along its length.

You can fix up an easel consisting of comments on the book by people in your vicinity that read and enjoyed it. Make contacts with these people through your local book seller or librarian. The one important fact to strive for in dressing your house is BIGNESS and you should utilize every inch of space to bill the title, the stars and the director. All lettering should be of extra-size proportions to get over the fact that you have one of the specials of the year to offer your patrons.

MAGAZINE TIE-UP

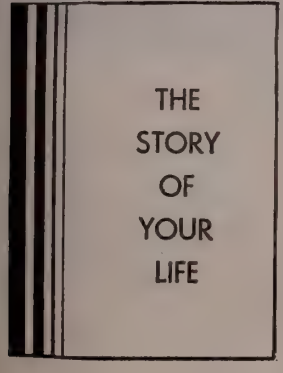
THE publishers of MODERN SCREEN magazine are now promoting Margaret Sullavan through a stupendous merchandising plan that is distributing over 500,000 photographs, in color, of the star. The plan also has set over 16,000 window displays in Woolworth stores all over the country. All of which is of inestimable value to your campaign. The same publishers have given the picture a splendid review in the July issue of SCREEN ROMANCES, on the stands June 1st. Cash in on this by arranging with the local distributors for newsstand cards and banners for delivery wagons.

CO-OP ADVERTISING PAGE AND CONTEST

THIS attraction is a natural for a co-operative advertising page. See your local advertising manager and have him solicit ads pertaining particularly to house furnishings, household goods, and other requirements of the young married couple. As a caption for this page, use: "Blankville's Merchants Answer the Question, 'Little Man What Now?' with Prices Within the Reach of Average Incomes."

MARRIED ROMANCE

"LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?" proves that a beautiful married romance is possible. The principal characters are deeply in love, regardless of all difficulties they encounter in wedded life. Make this the basis of a contest inviting opinions on the question, "Married romance—is it possible? Does 'LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?' draw its characters from life or fiction?"



SPECIAL BOOKLETS

This is a special accessory, designed to help you pep up your campaign and sell the story angle in a novel way. The booklet is eight pages of selling editorial matter and illustrations from the production. Back provides space for imprint. As the quantity is limited cannot guarantee delivery. If you want to use them in your campaign get your order in early. Send check with order direct to the Exploitation Department, Universal Pictures Corp., Rockefeller Centre, New York City.

DIE-CUT HANGER

For Front and Lobby

For Marquee and Window

AN exceptional piece of advertising! Three colors, die-cut and priced at only fifteen cents each! Order now from your Universal Exchange.

IDENTIFICATION STUNT TIE-UP

Inasmuch as the "Little Man" is a typical average citizen, interest your local paper in a stunt whereby a man will be sent out on the street, and the public challenged to recognize him as the representative "Little Man." People who believe they can spot him from the description given in the paper must approach this man and ask him the question, "Little Man, What Now?" If they have a copy of the newspaper sponsoring this stunt with them, and have identified the proper individual, he will hand them a pass to see the picture.

CLAUDETTE COLBERT

in

FANNIE HURST'S

Imitation of Life

A

JOHN M. STAHL

Production

By the author of "BACK STREET"
Imitation of Life
A Novel by FANNIE HURST
Harper & Brothers
ESTABLISHED 1817
Imitation of Life
FANNIE HURST
By the author of "BACK STREET"
HARPERS
Presented by CARL LAEMMLE

"A CLEVER

CARL LAEMMLE
presents –

chester
MORRIS
in EMBARRASS

COMEDY!

—says Hollywood Reporter

"Guaranteed to hold its own on any program," continues Hollywood Reporter. "Laughs and thrills are deftly intermingled for the type of pictures we used to have before pictures began talking so much. There is action in 'Embarrassing Moments,' and plenty of it . . . Chester Morris is nothing short of swell . . . This trouper is headed right for the top." . . . Hollywood Variety says: "Fills the bill . . . Performances in the top spots are good . . . laughs are plentiful . . . Morris gives bite and authentic character to his part . . . Production well presented and photographed."

A Stanley Bergerman Production

With

MARION NIXON

Walter Woolf, George Stone, Henry Armetta, Alan Mowbray, Huntley Gordon, Gay Seabrook, John Wray. Story by William Anthony McGuire. Directed by Edward Laemmle.

NG MOMENTS

JOHN
GALSWORTHY
One
More
River

DIANA Wynyard
in John Galsworthy's
Best Seller e More iver
With COLIN CLIVE, FRANK LAWTON, JANE WYATT, MRS. PATRICK CAMPBELL, Reginald Denny, C. Aubrey Smith, Kathleen Howard, Henry Stephenson, Lionel Atwill and many others. Screenplay by R. C. SHERRIFF.
A JAMES WHALE Production

From

UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.

ROCKEFELLER CENTER

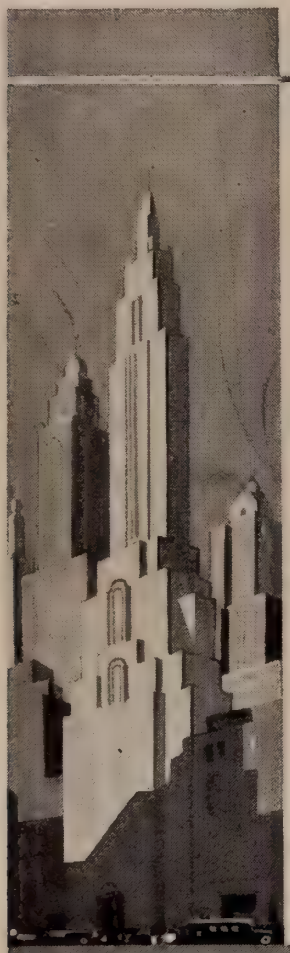
NEW YORK CITY

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE

Paid

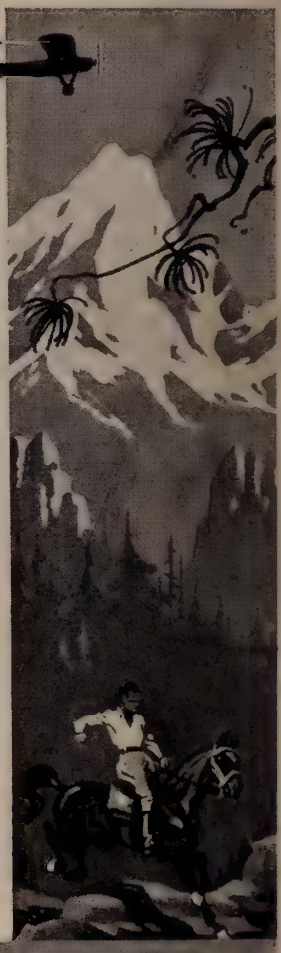
Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

Larry Edmunds Bookshop
6658 Hollywood Blvd.
Hollywood, Calif. 90028
HO 3-3273
World's Largest Collection
Of Books on Motion Pictures



"I don't believe a day goes by that patrons do not express their appreciation of the Universal Newsreel. If it is real news you want to give your patrons, you surely must step out with Universal. Let me congratulate you on your continued leadership."

J. L. IRVING,
Capitol Theatre,
Lebanon, Pa.



UNIVERSAL NEWSREEL

Presented by CARL LAEMMLE

Printed in U. S. A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

VOL. 35 NO. 1

JUNE 16, 1934

CLAUDETTE COLBERT

in FANNIE HURST'S

Imitation of Life

COMING!
SUTTER'S
GOLD

COMING!

Romance in the Rain

With

ROGER PRYOR
HEATHER ANGEL
VICTOR MOORE
JUNE KNIGHT

Story by Jay Gorney and Sig Herzig
(authors of "Moonlight and Pretzels").
Directed by Stuart Walker.

A
Stanley Bergerman
Production

Presented by CARL LAEMMLE

HOW I CAN

No. 774 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

This straight from the shoulder talk is intended for those thousands of theatre owners who have stood by Universal through thick and thin for many and many a year.

Let's assume you are one of them!

You have had good seasons with Universal and you have had others not so good. You have had this same experience with every producing company with which you have ever done business.

But you have forgiven Universal many a mistake, and I would be less than human if I failed to recognize that fact.

Universal, on the other hand, has always tried to play the game with you, avoid technicalities and give you always something more than your money's worth.

What delights me is the fact that the differences of opinion between you and Universal have been just about the minimum which human experience could expect.

Well, while I don't know how much thought you give these things, to me they are vitally important.

I know you have been taught that producers are horned devils and that they are constantly conspiring to wreck

THANK YOU

you, but I think you have never felt that way about Universal.

There is only one way for me to show my appreciation of your long and loyal support and that is to give you something better than I have ever given you before.

I've got to justify your faith in Universal.

So, for the season of 1934-1935, I have arranged a list of pictures which will prove to you that Universal has more than merited your never-ceasing confidence.

Our stories will delight you. Our directors will enable you to say "I told you so." Our casts will live up to your ideals. But, perhaps more important than all of these, is the fact that Universal will again show you the way to profits.

That's the best way I can thank you for your uninterrupted years of loyalty to Universal.

That's the way I intend to thank you — with the goods!

Carl Laemmle

CLAUDETTE COLBERT

in FANNIE HURST'S

Imitation of Life

A JOHN M. STAHL PRODUCTION

Universal Pictures In "No Bunk" Convention

Carl Laemmle Sees Prosperity Ahead and Reiterates Clean Pictures Stand

UNIVERSAL Pictures has concluded the most enthusiastic and forward looking convention of salesmen that it has held in years. James R. Grainger, general manager of distribution, presided at all of the sessions of the three day conclave at the Essex House, and Carl Laemmle, president, came on from Beverly Hills especially to address the convention and to wind it up last Friday in a blaze of glory. His speech was an indication of his implicit faith in recovery, and in the program of pictures which Universal has outlined for the coming year, as well as his satisfaction in the stewardship, now almost a year old, of James R. Grainger, and the work of the sales force during the past year.

Friday was the climax of the convention. On this day, Mr. Grainger announced the program of forty-two feature pictures which Universal will release in 1934-35, together with the interesting schedule of short pictures. The selling plan was announced and heartily approved. Carl Laemmle made his annual address. John Leroy Johnston gave a mighty interesting talk about Universal stars. Robert Harris reiterated his belief that "Night Life of the Gods" is going to be Universal's most successful picture for next season; he is betting money on it.

Carl Laemmle's Speech

"You expect me, as usual, to give you Hell," said Carl Laemmle, smiling, as he began his talk. "Well, this time I'm not going to do it. In the first place, Mr. Grainger doesn't like it, and in the second place, you don't deserve it—as much as usual. We have been through a hard year. We still have a lot of unplayed business on our books. I guess all companies have. I want you to do the very best you can to see that this business is played as soon as possible. We don't want the exhibitors to have this hanging over their head, and we certainly don't want it hanging over our head.

"But we have made progress the last year. I want you to know how much I appreciate the work you have done in the face of things which I don't like to talk about and you don't want to hear about.

CARL LAEMMLE

An Inspiration

"I am confident that Mr. Grainger has been an inspiration to you as he has been to me. I like the straight way he talks. He doesn't ask you to do something that he can't and won't do himself. He doesn't ask the impossible. He realizes that the exhibitor is a business man as well as you.

"You can't have your cake and eat it, too. We have a reputation for delivering the goods, but we also have a reputation for delivering them too cheaply. That may be good for the buyer, but it is no good for the seller. It takes money to make the kind of pictures that the exhibitor wants and unless you get the money that they cost, we just can't go on, that's all. It isn't hard for anybody to understand that.

For Clean Pictures

"We hear a lot about how bad pictures are getting. Personally I don't believe they are. I am for clean pictures," said Mr. Laemmle, "I have always been for clean pictures. I am a family man. I have brought up my children in a clean, wholesome manner. My grand-children are being brought up the same way. When they will go to the movies I will want them to be entertained in a clean, wholesome way. It has ever been my endeavor to produce pictures that supply such entertainment.

"I am aware of the present widespread agitation against unclean movies. I believe the situation is being painted blacker than it really is. I think the average motion picture is clean and wholesome. There are some exceptions, I am sorry to say, but the exceptions are few, indeed, when you consider the great number of good pictures being turned out.

Proud of Record

"Speaking for my own company, I am proud of Universal's record. For years our policy has been based on clean entertainment. As far back as 1925, Universal was being lauded for its so-called "white list" of wholesome pictures. We needed no reform movement to set our policy. We need none now.

"I welcome constructive, helpful, honest criticism. I am against fanatical reform. We can be clean without being prudish. We should not read double meanings into every line of dialogue.

"If we have clean minds, we will see only beauty and decency in some things that filthy-minded individuals dig into for smut.

"I have made clean pictures in the

(Continued on Page 25)

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, New York City
Copyrighted 1934
Universal Pictures Corp.
(All Rights Reserved)
MAY 26th, 1934
Vol 35 No. 1

UNIVERSAL'S 193

THE GREAT ZIEGFELD

Starring William Powell. By William Anthony McGuire and Billie Burke.

•

PRINCESS O'HARA

Damon Runyon's Collier's Magazine Story (Author of "Lady for a Day, "Little Miss Marker," etc.)

•

STRANGE WIVES

From Edith Wharton's Cosmopolitan Magazine Story, "Bread Upon the Waters."

•

MYSTERY OF EDWIN DROOD

Charles Dickens Story. With Karloff, Frank Lawton, Heather Angel.

•

SHOW BOAT

Edna Ferber's greatest novel—Florenz Ziegfeld's greatest stage production—Jerome Kern's most beautiful music.

•

TRANSIENT LADY

Octavus Roy Cohen's great Liberty Magazine Story. Starring Gloria Stuart.

•

THE RAVEN

Edgar Allan Poe Thriller with Karloff and Lugosi together again.

•

IT HAPPENED IN NEW YORK

From the story by Ward Morehouse and Rian James, with Heather Angel.

SUTTER'S GOLD

From the famous novel by Blaise Cendrars.

•

GREAT EXPECTATIONS

Charles Dickens' classis brought to life on the screen, with Henry Hull.

•

A CUP OF COFFEE

By Preston Sturges, author of "Strictly Dishonorable," "Child of Manhattan," etc.

•

THE MAN WHO RECLAIMED HIS HEAD

Play by Jean Bart. Screenplay by the author.

•

TWO MARGARET SULLAVAN

Productions—"THE GOOD FAIRY," play by Franz Molnar, and "WITHIN THIS PRESENT," novel by Margaret Ayer Barnes.

•

$1,000,000 RANSOM

Damon Runyon's sensational Cosmopolitan Magazine story. With Edward Arnold, Joan Bennett, Joel McCrea. Directed by Murray Roth.

•

MOON MULLINS

"Funny paper" character known to 25,000,000 readers, on the screen IN THE FLESH. A great comedy feature.

•

GIFT OF GAB

Starring Edmund Lowe, with Gloria Stuart.

4-35 FEATURES

SCHOOL FOR SCANDAL

A modernized version of the world-famous Sheridan play. A Lowell Sherman Production.

•

SPEED

Universal's mighty melodrama for 1934-35.

•

ANGEL

(Or another as yet untitled John M. Stahl Production, Angel, a play by Melchior Lengyel.

•

WHAT WOMEN DREAM

Aimed straight at the hearts of the nation's millions of feminine moviegoers.

•

CASTLES IN THE AIR

Starring Russ Columbo, with June Knight, Russ Brown, Henry Armetta. Directed by Kurt Neumann.

•

AT YOUR SERVICE

Biggest tennis stars in heart-hitting romance of small-town boy who hits the heights.

•

NIGHT LIFE OF THE GODS

Thorne Smith's widely-read novel. A Lowell Sherman Production.

•

FANNY

Stage play by Marcel Pagnol. Directed by William Wyler.

•

CHEATING CHEATERS

Famous Broadway play by Max Marcin.

CONFESSIONS OF A MODERN WOMAN

By a writer who refuses to divulge her name. A "true story" with a wallop.

•

MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION

From the perennial best seller by Lloyd C. Douglas.

•

KEEP ON DANCING

Youth's fondest dreams come true in a modern drama.

•

THERE'S ALWAYS TOMORROW

Frank Morgan, Binnie Barnes, Lois Wilson, Elizabeth Young, Louise Latimer, Directed by Edward Sloman.

•

I'VE BEEN AROUND

A beautiful young sophisticate tells the world what she thinks of it.

•

ZEST

Best Seller by Charles G. Norris, also author of "Seed." Starring Douglass Montgomery.

•

THE JOY OF LIVING

A great drama in tune with these changing times. Box-office every minute.

•

BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN

A James Whale Production with Karloff and the original "Frankenstein" cast, excepting John Boles.

BUCK JONES

IN

THE RED RIDER

— one of the

4 BIG SERIALS for 1934 - 35

— the others:

TAILSPIN TOMMY

Great air-thrill chapter play based on the adventures of the hero of the dramatic strip now running in 450 newspapers.

•

RUSTLERS of RED DOG

A Western sizzler as only Universal knows how to make 'em. Watch Universal Weekly for announcement of star and cast!

•

CALL of the SAVAGE

Universal's surprise package for serial customers. You'll be tickled to death when you learn all the wonderful details!

The World's Greatest

SHORT PRODUCT

26 TWO-REEL UNIVERSAL COMEDIES

•

One-Reelers:

GOING PLACES

WITH

LOWELL THOMAS

•

20 OSWALD

The Lucky Rabbit Cartoons

STRANGER THAN FICTION

•

6 CARTUNE CLASSICS IN COLOR

New York Gives "Little Man,

Margaret Sullavan and Douglass Montgomery emerge from "Little Man, What Now?" as full fledged stars. Margaret Sullavan will be starred in two super pictures for Universal next year. They are "The Good Fairy," New York stage play by Franz Molnar, and "Within This Present," best selling current novel by Margaret Ayer Barnes. Montgomery will be starred in "Zest" by Charles G. Norris.

Bigger The Last Day Than The First!

IN his Sunday resume of the preceding week's pictures, Mordaunt Hall in the New York Times, stated that "Little Man, What Now?" would have been held over at the Music Hall for another week had it not been for the competition of Uncle Sam's Fleet. This was true, and every showman in New York knew it.

The Music Hall did by far the biggest business in New York. It not only satisfied the Music Hall people, — it amazed them. The most amazing thing of all, however, was that the last day was bigger than the first day. "Little Man, What Now?" ended up stronger than it began. Under any ordinary circumstances, it naturally would have been held for a second week. The fleet knocked grosses into a cocked hat up and down the line, and there wasn't a picture in town that could possibly be held over on the theory that novelty, something new, a fresh appeal, is the only resource of the showman in times of stress.

"Little Man, What Now?" continues its run at the Palace Theatre in New York and the Albee in Brooklyn, and is also making its first runs now all over the country.

What Now?" A Grand Welcome

Is Honest and Tender Says Mirror

By Bland Johaneson

UNIVERSAL has made Hans Fallada's splendid novel a film of matchless beauty and integrity. Frank Borzage, who excells in telling delicate and simple love stories, directed. Margaret Sullavan and Douglass Montgomery, both young actors of exceptional charm and skill, play the leading roles. The screen play, a faithful transcription of the book, was prepared by the sure craftsman, William Anthony McGuire.

The film is touching and inspiring. Its simple reality is a relief from the gaudy absurdities of most Hollywood productions. Though the setting is Germany, the story is a universal one.

"Little Man, What Now?" describes a young couple and their valiant combat against the villain, Poverty. They expect a baby. The timid father, underpaid, unaggressive, lives a harried life, worrying about holding his poor job alternately with worrying about finding another one. The everyday life of these youngsters, its tragedies, despairs and joys is described in rich detail, realistically, but sensitively.

Tenderly and beautifully played by the lovable Margaret Sullavan, the Lammchen of the story is a stirring little character. Douglass Montgomery's performance as Pinneberg is no less brilliant. They have fine support in Alan Hale, as the engaging Jachman, in Catherine Doucet, who plays the hero's strange mother, and in Christian Rub, who plays the eccentric second-hand furniture man. The minor roles are as happily cast.

Borzage has made no finer film in many seasons. "Little Man, What Now?" is an honest and profoundly moving picture of the living underdog and the difficulties which beset him in his universal quest for security and peace.

Fine And Moving Says The N. Y. Sun

THE depression is a theme from which Hollywood, except in such musical sermonizing as "Stand Up and Cheer" has shied away. There has been almost complete unanimity of opinion among the producers about this anyway, that quiet, helpless poverty was not dramatic material. Now Universal and the Music Hall, with Hans Fallada's best-selling novel as a basis and Frank Borzage to direct it,

"Genuinely Fine," Says Mordaunt Hall in New York Times

BY his genuinely fine pictorial transcription of Hans Fallada's novel "Little Man, What Now?" which came to the Radio City Music Hall yesterday, Frank Borzage, strikes his old stride as a director. Here is a film with settings that are impressive by their modesty; in fact the German atmosphere is always convincing and therefore emphatically helpful to the story. The numerous characters are drawn expertly, both through acting and make-up, and the narrative adheres quite closely to the author's work.

Considering that there are more than twenty-four players in the cast, Mr. Borzage had a difficult task, but he has accomplished it in a masterly fashion. The continuity is pleasingly smooth and throughout the many scenes the remarkable attention to detail is striking. The tale is sentimental, often woebegone, but it is set forth with the necessary touch of truth.

Miss Sullavan gives a charming and thoroughly believable personation. Mr. Montgomery is the personification of sincerity. Alan Hale makes an ingratiating scamp of Jachman and Catherine Doucet does well as Mia Pinneberg. Alan Mowbray affords some mild fun as a conceited motion-picture actor.

presents a picture that refutes all the theories.

They have made of "Little Man, What Now?" a fine and moving study of two young people facing a cold uninterested world. Frank Borzage, with his understanding of the importance of simple things, directed this film with tenderness and compassion. There are no excuses made for these young people. They are unequipped. They are impulsive. They are sadly lacking in worldly knowledge. They are also loyal and hopeful and real.

They are very real, this boy and girl who stumble into marriage so joyfully and with such fears. The story is just a recounting of their struggles to make a living, their happiness over the expected baby, their delight in each other, their terror of the future. Hans and Lammchen were just little people, unimportant to any one in the world but themselves. They were little people, foolish little people, people built for failure perhaps, but sweet, gentle people, too.

Something happened to all Hans's jobs. He lost one because he married Lammchen instead of the employer's daughter and because, with that quick temper and uncontrollable pride of his, he hurled that fact in Marie's homely face. He lost another because he was frightened, because he pleaded with a customer to buy something and save him his job. He was always frightened, this Hans, overpowered by the circumstances which constantly endangered his livelihood.

Mr. Borzage, who has a way of picking just the right people to play the poignant ingenuous roles which interest him, has assembled an excellent acting cast headed by Douglass Montgomery as the proud frightened Hans and Margaret Sullavan as the devoted tactful wife. "Little Man, What Now?" deserves the same success that greeted Herr Fallada's novel.

HOW THE CRITICS GO FO

The two most talked of people of June, Douglass Montgomery and Margaret Sullavan, because of their terrific performance in "Little Man, What Now?"

Margaret Sullavan's Charm Highlights Intense Human Interest Story Well Done All Around — Film Daily

CONSIDERING the nature of the theme as provided by the book, depicting the discouraging misfortunes of a pair of newlyweds trying to make their way, Frank Borzage did a very creditable job with this production. Though the path of the idealistic lovers is continually dreary, Margaret Sullavan and Douglass Montgomery invest the characters with a charm and intensity that holds a good grip on the audience throughout. A swell surrounding cast also helps considerably. Action takes place in Germany, with social upheaval going on, jobs scarce, and Douglass playing the role of a young married clerk who has a hard time getting jobs and holding them, through no fault of his own. Fired by one boss whose dumb daughter he spurned, Douglass goes to live for a time with his philandering step-mother, and eventually winds up in a hayloft apartment, where their baby is born and a happy ending finally is effected.

"Ranks Among Year's Best" — Says Critic of Journal Post Express

TENDER in its romantic interest, soul-stirring in its emotional depths, "Little Man, What Now?", current feature at the R. K. O. Palace, seems destined to rank with the finest films of the year.

To its shining star, Margaret Sullavan, can go only the laurels reserved for the truly great of the silver screen. She equals if not surpasses her splendid performance in "Only Yesterday."

Here is a star who can run the gamut of emotions with apparent ease and astounding success. She brings to the screen an artistry lacking only too long and her interpretation of the tender heroine of Hans Fallada's best seller merits your careful attention, for seldom will you see a performance to equal this.

And Miss Sullavan is not alone in this Universal triumph. Douglass Montgomery seems to have caught the spirit of the production and his work easily outranks anything he has ever done.

The Fallada story is so delicate in its texture that it may not meet a responsive chord in the hearts of some theatre goers, but it surely should find its mark among the majority.

Director Frank Borzage has given it the same touch that made "Seventh Heaven" and "Bad Girl" such outstanding successes. In fact the texture of this story is remarkably similar to "Bad Girl," although the subject matter is far more polished.

The story opens with a marriage between Miss Sullavan and Montgomery in a village on the outskirts of Berlin. The camera religiously follows the couple through misfortune after misfortune until the finale finds the mother bearing her first-born in a stable-like structure over a furniture store.

The film presents an authentic portrait of post-war life in Germany and there is little deviation from the text.

Besides Miss Sullavan and Montgomery, Alan Hale gives a splendid performance. William Anthony McGuire handles the screen story well with a few lapses into the lighter side of life as the result of his long years with the Follies.

"LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?"

Margaret Sullavan Is Glorious, "Little Man" Superb--Mel Washburn, New Orleans Tribune

GLORIOUS Margaret Sullavan and a Douglass Montgomery who at different times excites your sympathy, then scorn, as the weak, extravagant young struggler, reenact in "Little Man, What Now?," at the Saenger theatre, a plausible happening of our depression years.

The screen version of Hans Fallada's best-seller as directed by Frank Borzage is superb.

Hans Pinneberg and his frau, Lammchen, have an ungodly time of it the greater part of their first year together. They are passionately devoted and ecstatically happy these two, but the first calamity befalls when Pinneberg's employer learns of the marriage, a discovery which makes the young man an undesirable clerk because he is ineligible for the old man's old maid daughter.

No bride-groom has had a more rugged road to travel than Herr Pinneberg in the months that follow and no man has had a more loyal, understanding and sympathetic mate than Margaret Sullavan.

After her performance in "Only Yesterday," it would have been nothing short of sacrilege to give Miss Sullavan a part less important than the heroine of "Little Man, What Now." She romps through this with a becoming grace and is the symbol of the courageous women who stood by their men in jobless days.

"Little Man, What Now" is about our most recent past expertly relived by a capable cast. That the locale is Germany is of little importance, it probably would have been as understandable if delivered in Chinese, so universal is the theme.

But for all of its hard-times, "Little Man, What Now" ends on a note of cheerfulness, a tone that would have been just too Pollyanna if most of us hadn't witnessed a change for the better within the past year.

✚ ✚ ✚

Best Performance of Year says Screen Book

MARGARET SULLAVAN makes a strong bid for the best performance of the year with her powerful performance in this screen version of the best seller novel. Douglass Montgomery, too, proves with his fine performance that he is an actor of rare quality. "Little Man, What Now?" is a distinct triumph for its producers and a picture long to be remembered.—Universal.

"First Film No Accident" Says H. L. Monk In St. Louis Globe-Democrat

AMPLE proof that her first film was no accident, that she is an actress of the first rank and that she has entered the cinema scene to stay is given by Margaret Sullavan in her second picture, "Little Man, What Now?" at the Ambassador. Her first, you will recall, was "Only Yesterday," and in it Miss Sullavan astonished the movie world by the quality of her performance.

Now, with a vehicle of perhaps less popular appeal, she succeeds in duplicating that performance to a very large extent. If she has failed in any particular, it is because the opportunities provided by the role and the story do not offer her the same opportunities she had in the first instance. It cannot be charged either to her supporting cast or to the general caliber of the production, for both are excellent.

The objection patrons are most likely to make is to the film's foreign setting. Taken from Hans Fallada's popular novel of the same title, the story details the hardships, the disappointments encountered by a young married couple—at least the picture has them conventionally wedded—during the first months up to and including the birth of their child.

Margaret Sullavan, star of "Little Man, What Now?" in a retrospective mood illustrative of the title.

READ!

"Universal has made Hans Fallada's splendid novel a film of matchless beauty and integrity. It is touching and inspiring . . . Tenderly and beautifully played by the lovable Margaret Sullavan . . . Borzage has made no finer film in many seasons." N. Y. Daily Mirror

"It is excellently done and provides unusually poignant, impressive entertainment . . . an impressive sincerity which lifts the production toward the heights . . . Miss Sullavan's portrayal fulfills every glorious promise." N. Y. American

"By his genuinely fine pictorial transcription of 'Little Man, What Now?' Frank Borzage strikes his old stride as a director . . . The numerous characters are drawn expertly . . . Miss Sullavan gives a charming and thoroughly believable personification. Mr. Montgomery is the personification of sincerity." N. Y. Times

"The promise of genuine acting ability Margaret Sullavan gave in 'Only Yesterday' is here amply fulfilled . . . A distinguished and frequently moving cinema." N. Y. Herald-Tribune

"The novel has been realistically transmitted to the screen . . . Margaret Sullavan is fine." N. Y. Daily News

"A fine and moving study of two young people facing a cold, uninterested world . . . Deserves the same success that greeted the novel." N. Y. Sun

"'Little Man, What Now?' is a picture no one should miss. It is beautifully directed, beautifully acted and so convincing that it deserves only the highest recommendation. Margaret Sullavan is excellent." N. Y. Telegraph

"A well-acted, sincere and deeply touching . . . film that provides good entertainment. Margaret Sullavan is right in every detail." N.Y. World-Telegram

Carl Laemmle
has the honor to present—

LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?

starring Margaret Sullavan

with

DOUGLASS MONTGOMERY

Fred Kohler, Alan Hale, Mae Marsh, George Meeker, Muriel Kirkland, De Witt Jennings, Hedda Hopper, Catherine Doucet, Bodil Rosing. From the novel by Hans Fallada. Screenplay by William Anthony McGuire. Directed by Frank Borzage.

A

FRANK BORZAGE

Production for

UNIVERSAL

RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL SHOW PLACE of the NATION ROCKEFELLER CENTER

soul . . . yet will gladden your heart . . . A drama of human experience in which a young woman's spirit gives the courageous and triumphant answer to the prevailing question . . .

"LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?"

One of the most understanding and sympathetic stories of young love, tragedy and triumph ever brought to the screen!

with

MARGARET SULLAVAN

The Brilliant Star of "Only Yesterday"

Hans Fallada's great novel of today . . . faithfully produced as a picture, and more vividly than the printed page ever could depict.

A Universal Picture with DOUGLASS MONTGOMERY . . . Directed by Frank Borzage, creator of "Seventh Heaven". Presented by Carl Laemmle

on the stage: A dazzling, tuneful whirl of pleasure below the Rio Grande, "FIESTA MEXICANA" . . . staged by Russell Markert . . . featuring Evelyn Duerler, Azya Kaz, Thalia Zanow, Mexican A. B. C. Trio, Conchita Vila, Music Hall Rockettes, Corps de Ballet, Choral Ensemble · Music Hall Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Erno Rapee.

FIRST MEZZANINE SEATS MAY BE RESERVED IN ADVANCE . . . PHONE COlumbus 5-6535

NOTE: This is an exact-size reproduction of one of the several big ads, run in the New York newspapers by the Radio City Music Hall to help put over this tremendous attraction.

LATEST PRODUCTION NEWS F

G. P. Huntley, Jr., the latest acquisition to the Universal stock company. He comes naturally by his art. His father was a distinguished actor and his mother was Eva Kelly, also of the profession. He was in "Little Man, What Now?"

G. P. Huntley Was Cast in "Little Man, What Now?"

G. P. HUNTLEY, Jr. is one of the most brilliant acquisitions to Universal's greater stock company. He began his theatrical career with his father, who was a noted actor, in a vaudeville sketch in England in 1915. After the War, he took up the theatre as a profession and played in the London company of "Quality Street." After a two years' vaudeville tour in the United States and in Australia with his father, he came to New York and played in Helen Menken's "Seventh Heaven" company in Philadelphia, and assumed the road show leads of a number of Broadway shows. In 1931 he came to Hollywood and appeared with Gaynor and Farrell in "Merely Mary Ann." He was seen in "Death Takes a Holiday," "Now I'll Tell One," and was signed by Universal for the important role of Heilbutt in "Little Man, What Now?" Before that role was completed, Carl Laemmle, Jr. signed him up on a long term contract.

Montgomery and Lugosi Signed by Universal

TWO stars were placed under contract by Carl Laemmle, Jr., yesterday for three pictures on the list of forty-two. These two stars are Douglass Montgomery and Bela Lugosi.

The Douglass Montgomery contract came as a reward for the splendid work he had done in "Little Man, What Now?" which had its world premiere last week at the Music Hall in New York, while Lugosi is required for a screen version of Edgar Allan Poe's "The Raven," which is on next year's schedule list. Two other productions on the order of "Dracula" and "The Black Cat" are also scheduled for Lugosi.

✚ ✚ ✚

Margaret Sullavan in "The Good Fairy"

MARGARET SULLAVAN'S first Universal picture for the coming season will be made from "The Good Fairy," diaphanous comedy by the famous Hungarian dramatist Franz Molnar, according to announcement made yesterday by Carl Laemmle, Jr. The Universal star will have the role which was acted on the stage a few seasons back by Helen Hayes when the play was produced here. Molnar is one of Europe's leading playwrights. His "Liliom" is still a fragrant memory to New York theatre patrons.

Miss Sullavan is at present in England for a short vacation after the strenuous activities of filming "Little Man, What Now?" but will shortly return to resume work at Universal City. The screen adaptation of "The Good Fairy" has been assigned to R. C. Sherriff who adapted "The Invisible Man" and "One More River." It will be one of the feature spots on the company's schedule for 1934-35. The second of Miss Sullavan's two Universal productions for the coming year will be announced soon.

Victor Moore Signed to Long Term Contract

VICTOR MOORE, whose most recent stage appearances have been in "Of Thee I Sing" and "Let 'Em Eat Cake," yesterday embarked for Universal City on the 20th Century. His first appearance under his Universal contract will be in "Romance in the Rain" with Roger Pryor, Heather Angel, Henry Armetta and Andy Devine.

This romantic comedy with music is by the authors of "Moonlight and Pretzels," Sig Herzig and Jay Gorney, with a script by Barry Trivers, and will be placed in production at Universal City on Monday, June 4th. It is a Stanley Bergerman production and will be directed by Stuart Walker.

The Universal contract has seven years to run and calls for a minimum of two pictures a year. Opportunity will be given under the contract for Mr. Moore to appear in the winter on the stage. In the days of the silent screen, Victor Moore was a star for Jesse Lasky. Carl Laemmle, Jr. feels that he has much more to contribute to the screen today than he had ten years ago.

Victor Moore, famous Broadway comedian, now under long term contract to Universal and in his first picture, "Romance in the Rain."

FROM UNIVERSAL CITY STUDIOS

"Wake Up and Dream" For Russ Columbo

BECAUSE of a conflict in title Universal has changed the name of its Russ Columbo picture which goes into work the latter part of the week from "Castles in the Air" to "Wake Up and Dream." June Knight was cast as leading lady, but an infected throat following an operation for tonsilitis may keep her from playing the role. Others already selected for the cast are Henry Armetta and Andy Devine. Kurt Neumann will direct. "Wake Up and Dream" is a B. F. Zeidman production by John Meehan, Jr. Columbo has just signed a new contract for a year. He will be in three of the new pictures. He has also gone back on the Radio in a weekly coast-to-coast broadcast over WABC Hollywood on the Air.

This looks like an advertisement for Preston Sturges' story, "A Cup of Coffee." Maybe June Knight will get well in time to play that. She has been in the hospital ever since she has been in California, and it seems as though she were in danger of being kept out of two swell pictures, "Romance in the Rain" with Roger Pryor and Heather Angel, and "Wake Up and Dream" with Russ Columbo, the new title of "Castles in the Air."

Douglass Montgomery Stars in "Zest"

THE first starring vehicle for Douglass Montgomery of "Little Man, What Now?" fame, under his new Universal contract, will be "Zest," adapted from the best selling novel by the same name, written by Charles G. Norris, it was announced at Universal City.

The picture, which will go into production shortly, will be produced by B. F. Zeidman. Doris Anderson is adapting the novel to the screen. According to present plans, William Wyler, director of "Counsellor at Law," "Glamour," and now working on "Fanny," the famous Melchoir Lengyl play, will direct.

✚ ✚ ✚

Henry Hull to Report to Universal City

HENRY HULL, who some time since signed a contract with Universal, has received his instructions to report to Universal City. He will retire from "Tobacco Road" on June 16th. Mr. Hull intends to motor to California and will take his time about doing it. He is due there on July 5th. His first picture under his new long-term contract will be "Great Expectations" by Charles Dickens, which Gladys Unger is now adapting. No other cast assignments have as yet been made.

✚ ✚ ✚

"Princess O'Hara Preparations On

IN preparation for the Damon Runyon story, "Princess O'Hara," Carl Laemmle, Jr. yesterday assigned Leonard Spiegelgass as associate producer and put "Princess O'Hara" in his charge. Spiegelgass has been scenario editor of Universal. He will write the script for the Damon Runyon picture in collaboration with Nat Ferber. Several players have been under consideration for the title role, including Polly Walters, newly acquired long-term feature player, who is still appearing in "She Loves Me Not" at the 46th Street Theatre.

Wynne Gibson and Paul Lukas, who are starred in Vicki Baum's "I Give My Love," and little Tad Alexander, who later grew up into Eric Linden. This wonderful mother love story goes into the Roxy Theatre in New York this week.

Harkrider and Weaver Summoned to Universal

TWO New Yorkers well known in theatricals arrived in Universal City last week. John Harkrider was summoned to Universal by William Anthony McGuire to assist in the technical and art preparation of "The Great Ziegfeld.' 'Harkrider was associated for years with the late Florenz Ziegfeld. He has also performed a like service for "Romance in the Rain," which Stanley Bergerman placed in production at Universal City yesterday.

It was for "Romance in the Rain" also that the other New Yorker was summoned to California. John V. A. Weaver, novelist, playwright and poet, provided the dialogue for this production which was written by Jay Gorney and Sig Herzig. Stuart Walker is directing, with Roger Pryor, Heather Angel, Victor Moore, Paul Kaye and Ruth Donnelly.

IT HITS THE HEART!

ANOTHER sensational drama by the gifted author of "GRAND HOTEL"... It's a picture that bares the soul of a woman torn 'twixt love and loyalty — the soul of a mother torn 'twixt sacrifice and shame! ...It's one of those good, solid, red-meat pictures that the fans go for so heavily — the kind of a picture to hold up grosses for any theatre in the land. PLAN TO PLAY IT SOON!

Carl Laemmle presents —

VICKI BAUM'S

I GIVE MY LOVE

Watch for ROMANCE
IN THE RAIN
With PAUL
LUKAS
WYNNE
GIBSON
ERIC LINDEN — Dorothy Appleby — John Darrow — Anita Louise — Sam Hardy.
A B. F. Zeidman Production directed by Karl Freund.

The social side of the convention was topped off by a grand Beefsteak Dinner, given by Jimmy Grainger to his sales force and the heads of departments of the Home Office. It was held in the Fencing Room of the New York Athletic Club the night before Carl Laemmle arrived. However, his representative, Joe Weil, reached New York in time to be present, as will be seen in the photograph above. This photograph was taken by the Empire Photographers, who had a completed photograph ready an hour after it was taken, for reproduction in the Motion Picture Daily.

It would be impossible to give the names of all those in the picture, but it is necessary to give the names of several who were not in it because of the fact that their table, at which Jimmy Grainger presided, bulged out too far on the left. Mr. Grainger, Mr. Paine, Mr. McKay are shown. R. H. Cochrane, P. D. Cochrane, Red Kann and Billy Wilkerson are outside the picture.

Louis Laemmle, Carl Laemmle's brother, can be seen over "Snake" Richardson's shoulder and in front of "Buster" Bartsch on page 23. Clair Hague, recovering rapidly from his recent illness, is in the center of the Canadian bunch, at the right of Leduc, who is standing in the center of the picture. The Big U sales

Universal Pictures I

AS the convention of Universal Pictures Corporation, held in the Essex House, New York, on June 6, 7 and 8, J. R. Grainger, who presided throughout, declared that this was to be a "no bunk" convention.

"There are no miracle men left in this business," said Mr. Grainger, "Either you are a salesman or you are not. Whether you are or not, you should know everything about this new Universal line-up of forty-two feature pictures for next year. We are not going to give you any bunk about it, and we are not going to keep anything back. I am here to help you to sell a product in which I have implicit faith. The more you know about it, the more faith you will have in it, too."

Those who spoke at the convention included R. H. Cochrane, Willard McKay, E. T. Gomersall, F. J. A. McCarthy, John Leroy Johnston, Robert Harris and Andrew Sharick. The meeting was wound up in a blaze of glory by Carl Laemmle in a speech marked by optimism.

"NO BUNK" Convention

IN order to make everyone thoroughly at home and en famille, so to speak, James R. Grainger asked the following, who are comparatively new in the company, to stand up so that everybody could know who they were and get acquainted: J. F. Dermody, District Manager, Boston; James Hobbs, Charlotte; E. E. Gruenberg, Sioux Falls; Louis Patz, Des Moines; John Rue, Salt Lake City; John Langan, Denver; and Wallace Sault of St. John; F. L. Vaughn of Winnipeg and J. A. Wilson of Calgary. The three latter are far from being new in the Universal organization: they have been high men in it for years, but Mr. Grainger had never been to any of these Universal offices.... He also spoke of Leo Abrams, who is ill and who had sent his regards to the convention by any number of the boys who had been up to see him.

100% Men In Their Territory

At the convention, Mr. Grainger gave honor to the following salesmen, all of whom are 100% in their territory: Kelly, of Boston; bunch is right down in front. Barney Frank of Washington is the gent who is cut in two.

(Continued on Page 25)

The sales heads and managers present were:

J. R. Grainger, F. J. A. McCarthy, E. T. Gomersall, S. Singerman, E. Bonns, S. Wittman, W. M. Richardson, W. J. Heineman, H. D. Graham, J. F. Dermody, H. Sauber, John Ezell, A. J. Herman, D. Miller, James Hobbs, P. Krieger, Saul Resnick, W. E. Sipe, M. Joseph, Paul Tessier, M. S. Landow, Joe Engel, A. Barnett, E. Heiber, J. A. Wilson, D. Leduc, W. A. Sault, C. Hague, S. Brint, R. A. Scott, F. L. Vaughan, L. Abrams, H. M. Herbel, Edw. S. Olsmith, John Langan, Louis Patz, M. Gottlieb, Floyd Brown, Wm. Benjamin, A. J. O'Keefe, G. Levine, Frank Mantzke, R. I. Payne, J.J. Spandau, G. C. Craddock, J. E. Garrison, John Rue, Barney Rose, L. J. McGinley, E. E. Gruenberg.

See if you can pick them out.

NEWSREEL No. 257

● The graduation exercises of the United States Military Academy cadets is always one of the most colorful pictures imaginable. This year was no exception. The graduation dress parade is pictured above on the drill ground at West Point, reviewed before being commissioned into the army.

● It's a pretty hard job to get a still picture of a cake of ice. It's a still harder one, and much more rare, to get a picture of the cake of ice with a human being alive inside of it. This shot shows Slim Jones, a man of rugged strength, who permitted himself to be sealed in a cake of ice and shipper by airplane from Newark Airport to Philadelphia.

● Ever since Mussolini yanked Italy out of disorder by its bootstraps, Rome has seen a variety of military parties. This one, in which 30,000 soldiers in full panoply of war march before King Victor Emanuel, celebrated the anniversary of the adoption of the Italian national charter.

One Day Chicago Convention An Enthusiastic Affair

J. R. GRAINGER, general manager of distribution for Universal, E. T. Gomersall, western sales manager, Sidney Singerman, assistant western sales manager, and Edward Bonns, short subject sales manager, returned Wednesday, on the Century, from Chicago. On Monday in the Drake Hotel, a one day convention was held at which the sales manager, the salesmen and the bookers of thirteen exchanges were present. The entire procedure of the three days' convention in New York was compressed into one for the Chicago meeting. It was a great convention.

The exchanges represented were Chicago, Des Moines, Detroit, Indianapolis, Kansas City, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Oklahoma City, Omaha, St. Louis, Sioux Falls, Cincinnati and Cleveland.

John LeRoy Johnston, publicity director of Universal Studios in California attended, as did Witt K. Cochrane, who handles Universal's national advertising. At the close of the meeting, Johnston returned to the studio.

JOE ENGEL SUCCEEDS

ON July 2nd Joe Engel, formerly assistant manager and city salesman, will succeed to the office of manager of the Universal Philadelphia exchange. M. S. Landow, who for a number of years has been the Universal exchange manager, has resigned, to go into the pottery business, having received an offer that no sane man could possibly turn down. Everyone in the Universal organization will be sorry to see him go, as will the exhibitors with whom he came in contact in the Philadelphia territory.

Joe Engel, who succeeds him, starts with the prospect of great success. The entire territory is an open book to him, and he has the confidence and respect of exhibitors and his associates. This promotion brings Jack Engel from the Harrisburgh territory to the New Jersey territory, and brings back William Doyle into the organization to handle Harrisburgh.

Carl Laemmle Sails on Ile de France

CARL LAEMMLE sails today on the Ile de France for two months of work and vacation abroad. In London he will determine the final policy of production abroad which has for the last year been a problem. Conferences of producers and distributors are being called both in London and Paris for this purpose.

In Mr. Laemmle's party will be Joe Weil, his assistant; Jack Ross, his secretary; Dave Bader, who came to New York to attend the recent Universal convention and Mrs. Maurice Fleckles, his sister-in-law.

Mr. Laemmle will spend several weeks in Carlsbad, returning late in August.

"The Love Captive" A Hit at Mayfair

"THE LOVE CAPTIVE" starring Nils Asther and Gloria Stuart, is enjoying a splendid run at the Mayfair Theatre in New York. In common with all of the Broadway houses during this record visit of the fleet, attendance suffered slightly, but the reviews were splendid, the audience suspense and reaction good, and the picture in every way satisfactory.

"The Love Captive" is Max Marcin's first directorial assignment at Universal City. It is his own story. Max Marcin is the author of "Cheating Cheaters" and in "The Love Captive" he has a theme which is almost as full of suspense and dramatic surprise as that great Broadway play. The story deals with a doctor who utilized hypnotism in effecting cures. Naturally enough, his love affairs were equally susceptible to hypnotism. Prominent in the cast are Renee Gadd, Alan Dinehart, Virginia Kami, Russ Brown, Ellalee Ruby, Robert Greig.

Carl Laemmle Sees Prosperity

(Continued from Page 5)

past. I will continue to make them in the future—reform or no reform. I have always pledged my company to wholesome screen entertainment for the whole family.

On Sure Road to Recovery

"Personally, I feel confident that we have the worst of the unfortunate conditions back of us. I have become an optimist about the future. I begin to see daylight ahead. I feel very happy about it, happier as I speak to you here than I have been for the last three years. I talk with a lot of people. I talk with a lot of exhibitors. I find they also are optimistic about the future and it is a mighty good sign for our business that they are. I feel that we can afford to make better pictures on the theory that we can get more money for them and that exhibitors can afford to pay more money for them. Mr. Grainger is an optimist, too. I must give him a great deal of credit for helping us put together the big program of pictures which we will sell this year. He came out to the coast and sat in with us for almost six weeks in preparing this program. He took off his coat and told us what he wanted and what he didn't want. We gave him all the leeway he wanted and when he got through and we put the program together, I couldn't help but feel that it was the greatest collection of stories and titles and entertainment that we ever had by a long way. It certainly is going to cost a lot more than any program we ever made.

I want to acknowledge before you all publicly here the part that Mr. Grainger has played in making this program. I know you have confidence in his leadership and, working hand in hand with better times which I confidently expect, this program can meet with nothing but success.

✚ ✚ ✚

Universal Pictures in "No Bunk" Convention

(Continued from Page 23)

Furst, of Big U; Engel, of Philadelphia; Barnholtz, of Pittsburgh; Funk, of Chicago; Baker, of Detroit; Tighe, of Detroit; Haas, of Los Angeles; Fields, of Los Angeles; Percy, of Portland; Adamson, of Portland, Bloom, of Seattle and Price, of St. Louis.

✚ ✚ ✚

"One of the Best Comedy Features of Year Is 'Embarrassing Moments'" Says Hollywood Screen World

A CLEVER story, splendid cast and excellent direction combine to make this one of the best, all-round comedy features of the year. William Anthony McGuire wrote a mighty good original from which Gladys Unger and Charles Logue prepared a most delightful screenplay. Edward Laemmle, whose megaphone had been on a vacation for some time, directed with unusual intelligence and understanding. He keeps the tempo moving at a lively pace, with the result that "Embarrassing Moments" has no dull moments. It is one big laugh after another. It is the exhibitor's dream of darn good entertainment. The story deals with a practical joker (Chester Morris) who is always pulling gags on others until he is given a stiff dose of his own medicine. The joke played on him by his friends proves to be more serious than anticipated, but everything turns out swell, after many complications and situations which are for the most part extremely funny. Dialogue by Dickson Morgan is smart and witty.

Chester Morris gives another of his good performances and is ably supported by Marian Nixon, Walter Woolf, John Wray, Alan Mowbray, Henry Armetta and a number of other established players.

NEWSREEL No. 255

● Admiral Sellers, Mayor LaGuardia, Major General Nolan and our own Grover Whalen, review the fleet in one of the series of welcomes which New York accorded the greatest gathering of fighting vessels ever witnessed in the historic Hudson.

● New York also entertained the sailors as a reciprocal gesture of welcome and good will. This interesting bit of entertainment occurred on the roof of the Radio City Music Hall. Hazel Flynn, master mind of the publicity department of the theatre, devised a dance of the Rockettes and showed the gobs how the dance was originated, rehearsed and performed.

● The new and reopened Century of Progress exhibition in Chicago recently held a reduced fare children's day. Five hundred thousand youngsters took advantage of the occasion. Naturally, they visited most generously the exhibits which had been devised for their own entertainment.

Chester MORRIS & Mae CLARKE

Frank Craven, Andy Devine, Russ Brown. Story by Dore Schary and Lewis Foster. Directed by Kurt Neumann. A B. F. Zeidman production presented by CARL LAEMMLE.

LET'S TAL

Now Playing at the ROXY, N. Y.

K IT OVER

Record Bookings For Buck Jones In "Red Rider"

BUCK JONES

NEVER in the history of Universal serials has there been such a demand for early booking at high prices as Buck Jones in "The Red Rider" has received. Last year's serial, "Gordon of Ghost City," was one of the outstanding serials in history. It was outstanding from the standpoint of production and interest to the public; it was outstanding in bookings and attendance. No wonder Universal chose Buck Jones as the lead-off serial for next year and no wonder exhibitors went for it in the big way that all of the Universal Exchanges are reporting daily in contracts to the Home Office.

Every exchange is certain to break its serial booking record on this serial. In the New York territory and without a chance to see the serial itself, solely on the strength of last year's serial and Buck Jones' name and Universal's ability to produce serials, every Warner Theatre in the Metropolitan district that shows serials has been booked. Every one of the Skouras houses, which is a serial possibility in the Metropolitan district, has also been booked. Negotiations are on and will be concluded before this week is out, for the booking of the "Red Rider" in every other major circuit in New York. This story is reproduced substantially in every other Universal exchange.

✚ ✚ ✚

"VANISHING SHADOW" IN UNIQUE PUBLICITY

A LAD who stood a chance of winning $152,100 on a ticket his mother had bought him in the Derby, was utterly unimpressed with the prospect of leaving his humble home and going some other place to live. The reason was "The Vanishing Shadow." When he was asked if he was going to move to Fifth Avenue, this is what he said as reported on the front page of the World Telegram:

"No, siree-ee-e-e!" said Oliver indignantly. "Not until 'The Vanishing Shadow' is finished. I gotta know what happens to those two guys and that girl before I move out of this neighborhood.

"It's at the movie around the corner—every Saturday afternoon," he explained. "It always stops at the most interesting point. The two good guys landed their plane in the ocean and the girl is down in a parachute. They can all swim—but I'm kinda worried anyway.

✚ ✚ ✚

UNIVERSAL GETS LOWELL THOMAS

UNIVERSAL'S short product announcement this coming year features two unique series of thirteen single reelers. One of them is entitled "Going Places" with Lowell Thomas, the conductor, guide, informant and entertainer. This series is on the order of The Magic Carpet. Lowell Thomas will conduct theatre goers to all parts of the earth in a remarkable photographic and entertaining trip. Lowell Thomas has been everywhere, he has seen everything, he is one of the best tale tellers in the world. His popularity in his moving picture ventures has been always on the ascendant. He started as the narrator of the Literary Digest, after a number of very successful ventures. He has spoken behind a number of feature pictures, and, with the exception of Graham McNamee, is undoubtedly the most popular voice back of the screen. He has just been nominated by the Fox Company to be the Graham McNamee of the Fox Newsreel.

In the first issue of "Going Places," all of which are produced by Allyn Butterfield, Lowell Thomas takes the spectator to Paris in an unaccustomed mantle of snow, to Russia, Mexico, to Hamburg, Arizona, New Orleans, Belgium, China, the Alps, South Africa and Sweden. Quite a trip in one reel!

The industry's great hot-weather attraction!

S.O.S. ICEBERG

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY SHOWMANSHIP SECTION

A DIGEST OF THE BEST EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

Here's the 100 x 15 foot banner that "barged" up and down the Hudson River on the day the combined fleet of the U. S. Navy arrived at New York. Millions of people lining both banks of the river cheered it as it plowed its way from the Battery to Yonkers.

THE MUSIC HALL'S "LITTLE MAN" CAMPAIGN SCOOPS BEST NEW YORK DISPLAY SPOTS

BATTERY Park was jammed with humanity. A patient, long-suffering crowd had been there since early morning waiting for a glimpse of the combined Atlantic and Pacific fleets of the U. S. Navy. It was the first visit the ships had made to New York in many years and the good citizens of the metropolitan territory had turned out en-masse to welcome them. The newspapers had played up the visit for weeks. It had been talked about on the radio for months. And now the whole town was all hepped up about it. Both sides of the mighty Hudson were jammed with eager faces. Roof top and window vantage points were filled from early morning.

It was at the Battery, however, that the greatest crowd had assembled. It swayed this way and that, it craned its composite neck many many times to get a glimpse of the fleet only to be disappointed. At last a cry went up from the outer fringe.

"Here she comes!"

The composite neck craned once more and this time the eyes saw the bow of a tug nosing its way around from the East river. A long cheer bellowed from more than 50,000 parched throats as the tug came into full view and was followed by a huge barge carrying a banner 100 feet long by 15 feet high reading: NOW—"LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?" AT THE RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL.

The Universal Exploitation Department had scooped the entire advertising industry. They were the only advertisers to crash the parade of the fleet up the Hudson. The message of "Little Man, What Now?" was seen by an estimated million people during the barge's all-day run up and down the river. The gala flag decorations of the tug and the barge attracted plenty of attention and the 12 foot letters made for great visibility.

From the windows of hundreds of drug and book stores flash displays brought the Music Hall engagement of the picture to more millions of New Yorkers. This was arranged through a tie-up with Grosset and Dunlap, publishers of the popular priced edition of the book.

One of the hundred 24 sheets posted in the best spots in the city.

On Sunday night preceding the opening, a broadcast was arranged with the sponsors of "45 Minutes in Hollywood," a Columbia net work program broadcast over 38 sta-

Crowds jammed the entrance and lined up on Fiftieth Street long before the doors were scheduled to open. Right The flag-draped marquee at the Music Hall.

RIVER BALLYHOO, RADIO, HUNDREDS OF WINDOW DISPLAYS, 24 SHEETS, EXTRA NEWSPAPER SPACE, LETTERS, HERALDS and BOOKLETS FEATURE BIG CAMPAIGN AT ACE HOUSE FOR THE YEAR'S SMASH HIT

MACY'S

A corner of the special window at Macy's, the city's largest department store.

25,000 Heralds and 100,000 "The Story of Your Life" booklets were distributed through stores and hotels.

Macy's and Wanamaker's department stores ran co-operative ads featuring Margaret Sullavan and the picture and also put in elaborate window displays.

Other window displays included fifty Douglass Montgomery shirt and pajama displays, ten Eastman-Kodak displays, and over a hundred smaller book displays.

Through arrangements with the publishers of Screen Romances, tie-up cards mentioning the Music Hall engagement, were placed on over 500 newsstands throughout the city, while through the same publishers, displays were arranged in several hundred five and ten cent stores featuring a special photograph of Margaret Sullavan as tions. Over twenty minutes of the program was given over to a re-enactment of scenes from the picture and a mention of the Music Hall engagement.

EASTMAN - KODAK

One of the many displays arranged by the Eastman Kodak stores.

the star of the picture. The General Mills bread campaign netted several hundred additional window flashes featuring the picture and the star.

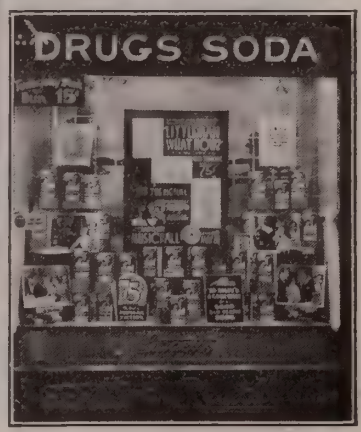
The German population was reached through ads in the German language newspapers and through a special mail campaign directed to 2,100 organization in the Metropolitan area. There were also four special short broadcasts over WMCA of the Federal Broadcasting System, in advance of the opening and during the run, each making mention of the local engagement.

Additional newspaper advertising and the posting of 100—24 sheets completed the campaign.

SHIRTCRAFT

The Shirtcraft tie-up netted 50 windows similar to the one above. Right: One of the hundred and ten windows arranged through Grosset & Dunlap.

LIGGETT'S



THE BIG FLASH NEWSPAPER CAMPAIGN

RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL SHOW PLACE of the NATION ROCKEFELLER CENTER

TODAY
DOORS OPEN 11:30 A.M.

A PICTURE THAT WILL PLUMB THE VERY DEPTHS OF YOUR SOUL... YET WILL GLADDEN YOUR HEART

A drama of human experience in which a young woman's spirit gives the courageous and triumphant answer to the prevailing question

"LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?"

One of the most understanding and sympathetic stories of young love, tragedy and triumph ever brought to the screen!

with

MARGARET SULLAVAN

The Brilliant Star of "Only Yesterday" and DOUGLASS MONTGOMERY

Hans Fallada's great novel of today... faithfully produced as a picture, and more vividly than the printed page ever could depict. A Universal Picture, directed by FRANK BORZAGE. Presented by Carl Laemmle

•

ON THE STAGE

A dazzling, tuneful whirl of pleasure below the Rio Grande

"FIESTA MEXICANA"

staged by Russell Markert ... with original musical score composed for this production by Erwin Straus, son of Oscar Straus

Featuring EVELYN DUERLER, HOWARD PHILLIPS, ASYA KAZ, THALIA ZANOW, THE MEXICAN A.B.C. TRIO, CONCHITA VILA, ROCKETTES, CORPS de BALLET, CHORAL ENSEMBLE and SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA, direction of Erno Rapee

Picture shown at
FIRST MEZZANINE SEATS MAY BE RESERVED IN ADVANCE • TELEPHONE COlumbus 5-6535

4 COLS x 14"

RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL
SHOW PLACE of the NATION
ROCKEFELLER CENTER

"Genuinely fine." —Walter T. Pope

"Of matchless beauty and integrity." —Daily Mirror

MARGARET SULLAVAN

"Her portrayal fulfills every glorious promise." —American

"LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?"

with DOUGLASS MONTGOMERY giving "the finest performance of his career." —Herald Tribune

A Universal Picture

•

On the Stage:

A dazzling, tuneful whirl of pleasure below the Rio Grande

"FIESTA MEXICANA"

Staged by Markert

•

DOORS OPEN 10 A.M.
Picture at 10:30, 12:49, 3:08, 5:24, 7:42, 10:01, 12:08
Stage Show at 12:06, 2:25, 4:31, 7:19, 9:38

•

1st Mezzanine seats may be reserved in advance. Phone COlumbus 5-6535

1 COL x 11"

RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL SHOW PLACE of the NATION ROCKEFELLER CENTER

TODAY at 11:30 A.M.

A picture that will plumb the very depths of your soul yet will gladden your heart ... A drama of human experience in which a young woman's spirit gives the courageous and triumphant answer to the prevailing question.

"LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?"

One of the most understanding and sympathetic stories of young love, tragedy and triumph ever brought to the screen!

with

MARGARET SULLAVAN

The Brilliant Star of "Only Yesterday"

Hans Fallada's great novel of today... faithfully produced as a picture, and more vividly than the printed page ever could depict.

A Universal Picture with DOUGLASS MONTGOMERY ... Directed by Frank Borzage, creator of "Seventh Heaven". Presented by Carl Laemmle

on the stage: A dazzling, tuneful whirl of pleasure below the Rio Grande, "FIESTA MEXICANA"... staged by Russell Markert. featuring Evelyn Duerler, Azya Kaz, Thalia Zanow, Mexicom A. B. C. Trio, Conchita Vila, Music Hall Rockettes, Corps de Ballet, Choral Ensemble • Music Hall Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Erno Rapee.

FIRST MEZZANINE SEATS MAY BE RESERVED IN ADVANCE ... PHONE COlumbus 5-6535

4 COLS x 14½"

RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL SHOW PLACE of the NATION ROCKEFELLER CENTER

THURSDAY

LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?

starring

MARGARET SULLAVAN

3 COLS x 4½"

STARTS TODAY
DOORS OPEN 11:30 A.M.

RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL SHOW PLACE of the NATION ROCKEFELLER CENTER

The Music Hall takes exceptional pride in presenting the Star of "Only Yesterday" in a new picture.

MARGARET
SULLAVAN
in
"LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?"

Hans Fallada's great novel of romance, tragedy and triumph, brought faithfully to the screen, and more vividly than the printed page could ever depict its power!

A Universal Picture with DOUGLASS MONTGOMERY
Directed by Frank Borzage. Presented by Carl Laemmle

•

ON THE STAGE

A dazzling, tuneful whirl of pleasure below the Rio Grande ... staged by Russell Markert

"FIESTA MEXICANA"

with EVELYN DUERLER—HOWARD PHILLIPS
ASYA KAZ—THALIA ZANOW—CONCHITA VILA
ROCKETTES—CORPS de BALLET—CHORAL ENSEMBLE
MUSIC HALL SYMPHONY, direction of Erno Rapee

First Mezzanine seats may be reserved in advance.
Telephone COlumbus 5-6535

4 COLS x 7"

RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL SHOW PLACE of the NATION ROCKEFELLER CENTER

The great human drama of these momentous years!... A brave and triumphant story of a boy and girl battling this world of today for life, love and happiness!

TODAY at 11:30 A.M.

LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?

starring Margaret Sullavan

The girl you loved in "Only Yesterday"

A Universal Picture from the Novel by Hans Fallada...

ON THE STAGE

A dazzling, tuneful whirl of pleasure below the Rio Grande!
"FIESTA MEXICANA"
with a full Music Hall cast

Mezzanine seats may be reserved in advance ... Phone COL. 5-6535

2 COLS x 6½"

Another Big One Is On The Way!

CARL LAEMMLE
Presents

DIANA WYNYARD

in John Galsworthy's Best Seller

ONE MORE RIVER

With Frank Lawton, Jane Wyatt, Mrs. Patrick Campbell, Colin Clive, Lionel Atwill, Reginald Denny, C. Aubrey Smith, Henry Stephenson, Kathleen Howard, Alan Mowbray. Screenplay by R. C. SHERRIFF.

A
JAMES WHALE Production

From

UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.

ROCKEFELLER CENTER

NEW YORK CITY

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE

Paid

Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

Larry Edmunds Bookshop
6658 Hollywood Blvd.
Hollywood, Calif. 90028
HO 3-3273
World's Largest Collection
Of Books on Motion Pictures

"Without any exception, all of our patrons are praising Universal Newsreel, and I join heartily in recommending this newsreel service to any exhibitor in the country."

—Walter E. Stanzel,
Meco Theatres Corp.,
Binghamton, N. Y.

Printed in U. S. A.

UNIVE[illegible]WEEKLY
VOL. 34 NO. 4
JULY 7, 1934

Binnie Barnes
wife of Henry the 8th who is proving a sensation in America in her first picture tentatively called "There's Always Tomorrow"....

COMING!

ADOLPHE MENJOU

— more debonair, more heart winning than ever in a great picture made from the play, "The Human Side"

With

DORIS KENYON

Dickie Moore, Joseph Cawthorn, Reginald Owen, Betty Lawford, Charlotte Henry. Directed by Edward Buzzell from the play by Christine Ames.

COMING!
SUTTER'S GOLD
KULZ

There's Only O

No. 777 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

The newsreels are picking up.

Some of them are even showing signs of life and trying to catch up with the Universal Newsreel.

They might even do it. Who knows?

But the Universal Newsreel has several years start on the pack.

When sound first busted into the movies, Universal had to make a quick and vital decision. How could news be handled with sound and still be newsy?

Universal made a quick decision—several years quicker than any competing newsreel.

We decided that the only smart thing to do was to get news while it was hot, then broadcast it through a talking reporter.

Who was the best talking reporter in the world?

Graham McNamee was the answer. Graham McNamee, ne NEWSreel!

who through his radio reputation had earned a greater following than any VOICE in the history of the world.

By combining the speed of silent movie cameras with the famous voice of McNamee, Universal gained a head start on all others.

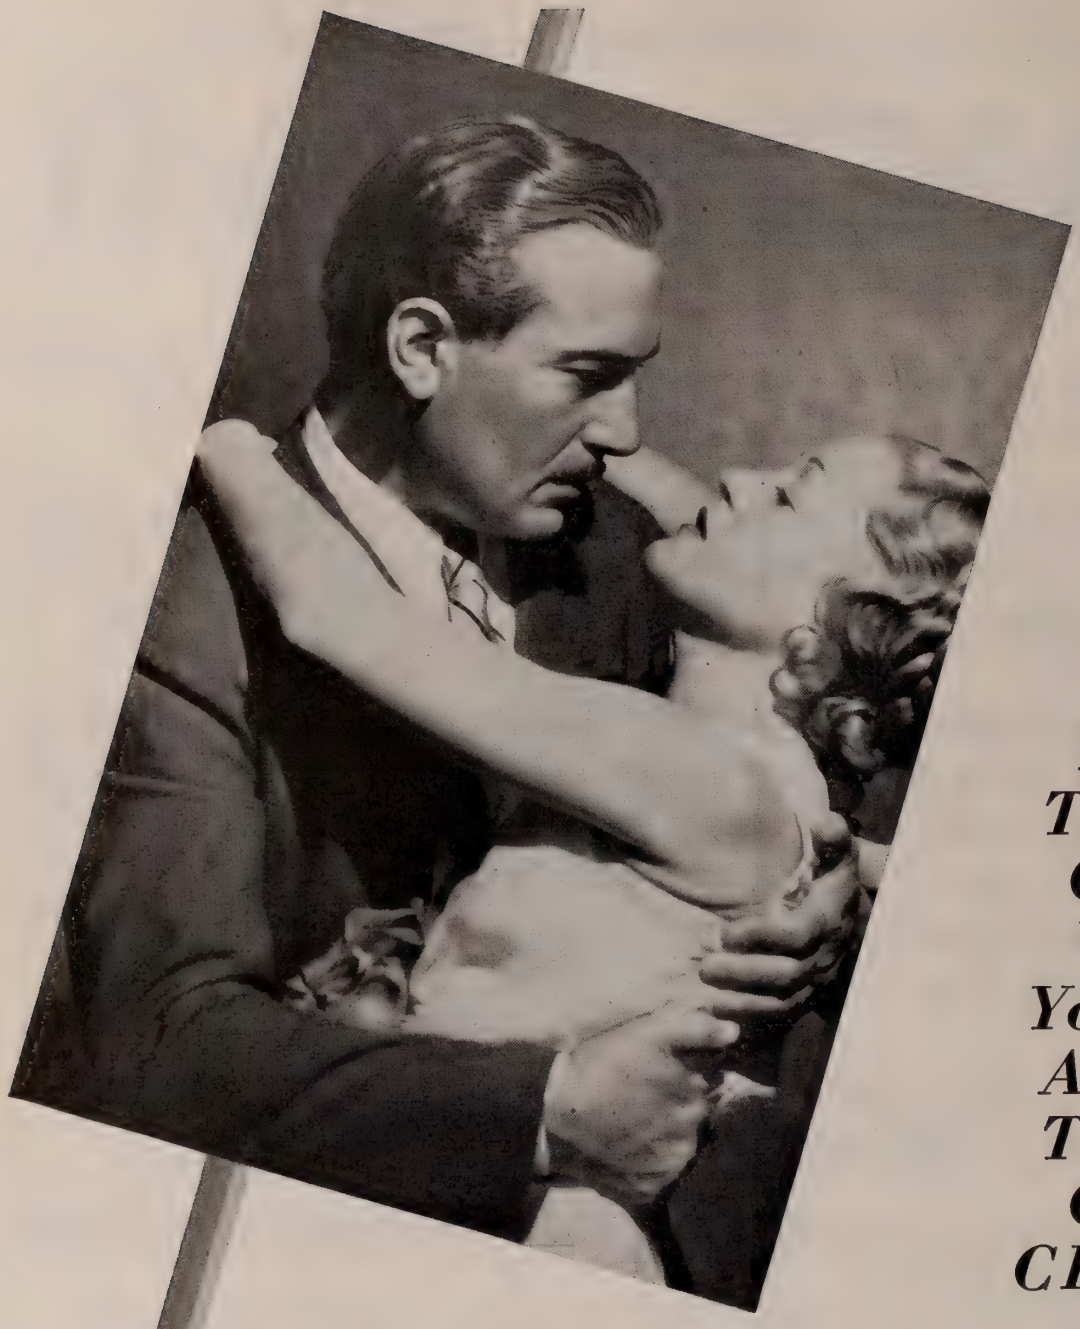
Even the buyers for the big circuits have known for a a long time that the Universal Newsreel was head and shoulders above all the others. Many of them have bought the Universal Newsreel for their theatres in preference to the newsreels made by their own companies. A pretty nervy thing to do.

And now the Universal Idea has been such a success that it is worth copying.

But an imitator never quite catches up to what he is trying to imitate.

Universal Newsreel has led the list ever since sound began to sound, and it will continue to keep its lead. If you don't use the Universal Newsreel, you don't use the best you can get.

Carl Laemmle



When You've Got A Picture That Will Get The Women, You've Got A Picture That Will Get The CROWDS!

VICKI BAUM'S
I GIVE MY LOVE

PAUL LUKAS – WYNNE GIBSON

ERIC LINDEN—Dorothy Appleby—John Darrow—Anita Louise—Sam Hardy. A B. F. Zeidman Production directed by Karl Freund.

"ONLY YESTERDAY" AWARDED GOLD MEDAL FOR "BEST ROMANCE" OF 1933 BY NEW MOVIE MAGAZINE

Gold Medal presented to Universal Pictures Corp. The inscription on the front of the medal reads: Awarded by the People's Academy of New Movie Magazine.

The reverse side of the medal is inscribed: "To Universal Pictures Corporation for the Best Romance of 1933, 'ONLY YESTERDAY.'"

At a luncheon in the Hotel Astor, New York, held on June 28th, "Only Yesterday" was awarded a Gold Medal as the Best Romance by the People's Academy of New Movie Magazine. This distinction was accorded by vote of the 1,300,000 readers of New Movie. This means of ascertaining public opinion as to preference of motion pictures was established last year by the Tower Magazines, which publish New Movie, and it is a splendid indication of the trend of popular taste, which, judging by its vote this year, is clearly in favor of wholesome, clean, dramatic pictures, such as "Only Yesterday," "Little Women," "Three Little Pigs," which also won awards in another classification.

The awards were presented officially by Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, former Governor of Texas, now director of the United States Mint, who came from Washington especially to make the presentations. Louis Nizer acted as toastmaster. Miss Helen E. Hughes, received the gold medal as an officer of Universal Pictures.

The speakers at the luncheon included, in addition to Mrs. Ross, Catherine McNelis, publisher of Tower Magazines; Major Edward Bowes, Arthur DeBra and Mrs. Constance Sporborg.

Miss McNelis, who was the last to speak, felt it necessary to explain an intended compliment on the part of one of the previous speakers. The statement had been made that Miss McNelis had established these awards of the People's Academy of the Tower Magazines as a wholly unselfish thing.

"I can't let thas pass," said Miss McNelis. "I am a publisher. The idea that lay in my mind behind these awards was strictly a commercial one, as far as the magazines were concerned. I felt that it was a service that the magazine could very well afford to their readers and one in which the readers could express themselves. That there might be a possibility of a by-product which would give encouragment to producers was not at all the primary object.

"But now that the magazines have reached the highest circulation of any fan magazine in the field, I really feel

(Continued on Page 28)

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, New York City
Copyrighted 1934
Universal Pictures Corp.
(All Rights Reserved)
JULY 7, 1934
Vol. 35 No. 4

UNIVERSAL'S 1934

THE GREAT ZIEGFELD

Starring William Powell. By William Anthony McGuire and Billie Burke.

•

PRINCESS O'HARA

Damon Runyon's Collier's Magazine Story (Author of "Lady for a Day, "Little Miss Marker," etc.)

•

STRANGE WIVES

From Edith Wharton's Cosmopolitan Magazine Story, "Bread Upon the Waters."

•

MYSTERY OF EDWIN DROOD

Charles Dickens Story. With Karloff, Frank Lawton, Heather Angel.

•

SHOW BOAT

Edna Ferber's greatest novel—Florenz Ziegfeld's greatest stage production—Jerome Kern's most beautiful music.

•

TRANSIENT LADY

Octavus Roy Cohen's great Liberty Magazine Story. Starring Gloria Stuart.

•

THE RAVEN

Edgar Allan Poe Thriller with Karloff and Lugosi together again.

•

IT HAPPENED IN NEW YORK

From the story by Ward Morehouse and Rian James, with Heather Angel.

SUTTER'S GOLD

From the famous novel by Blaise Cendrars.

•

GREAT EXPECTATIONS

Charles Dickens' classic brought to life on the screen, with Henry Hull.

•

A CUP OF COFFEE

By Preston Sturges, author of "Strictly Dishonorable," "Child of Manhattan," etc.

•

THE MAN WHO RECLAIMED HIS HEAD

Play by Jean Bart. Screenplay by the author.

•

TWO MARGARET SULLAVAN

Productions—"THE GOOD FAIRY," play by Franz Molnar, and "WITHIN THIS PRESENT," novel by Margaret Ayer Barnes.

•

$1,000,000 RANSOM

Damon Runyon's sensational Cosmopolitan Magazine story.

•

MOON MULLINS

"Funny paper" character known to 25,000,000 readers, on the screen IN THE FLESH. A great comedy feature.

•

GIFT OF GAB

Edmund Lowe, surrounded by a score of the biggest names of the screen, stage and radio —names such as Phil Baker, Ruth Etting, Gene Austin, Downey Sisters, Beal Street Boys, Ethel Waters and many others.

35 FEATURES

SCHOOL FOR SCANDAL

A modernized version of the world-famous Sheridan play.

•

SPEED

Universal's mighty melodrama for 1934-35.

•

A JOHN M. STAHL PRODUCTION

•

I'VE BEEN AROUND

A beautiful young sophisticate tells the world what she thinks of it.

•

WAKE UP AND DREAM

Starring Russ Columbo, with June Knight, Roger Pryor, Henry Armetta. Directed by Kurt Neumann. A B. F. Zeidman Production.

•

AT YOUR SERVICE

Biggest tennis stars in heart-hitting romance of small-town boy who hits the heights.

•

NIGHT LIFE OF THE GODS

Thorne Smith's widely-read novel. A Lowell Sherman Production.

•

FANNY

Stage play by Marcel Pagnol. Directed by William Wyler with Jane Wyatt.

•

CHEATING CHEATERS

Famous Broadway play by Max Marcin.

CONFESSIONS OF A MODERN WOMAN

By a writer who refuses to divulge her name. A "true story" with a wallop.

•

MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION

From the perennial best seller by Lloyd C. Douglas. (Now in 35th edition).

•

KEEP ON DANCING

Youth's fondest dreams come true in a modern drama.

•

THERE'S ALWAYS TOMORROW

Frank Morgan, Binnie Barnes, Lois Wilson, Elizabeth Young, Louise Latimer. Directed by Edward Sloman.

•

WHAT WOMEN DREAM

Aimed straight at the hearts of the nation's millions of feminine moviegoers.

•

ZEST

Best Seller by Charles G. Norris, also author of "Seed." Starring Douglass Montgomery.

•

THE JOY OF LIVING

A great drama in tune with these changing times. Box-office every minute.

•

BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN

A James Whale Production with Karloff and the original "Frankenstein" cast, excepting John Boles.

4 Big SERIALS

for 1934-35

BUCK JONES
IN
THE RED RIDER

From the story by W. C. Tuttle

•

TAILSPIN TOMMY

The hero of the adventure strip now running in more than 450 newspapers in the flesh on the screen! A world of action piled into an air thriller without a peer!

•

RUSTLERS of RED DOG

Western action serial with everything on the ball. Zip and speed and drama and mystery—plus some brand new thrills. Watch for announcement of star and cast.

•

CALL of the SAVAGE

Universal surprise serial. Soon you'll know all about one of the biggest serial ideas ever thought of . . . One of the smashingest serials ever produced.

Three attractive poses of Binnie Barnes, English actress now appearing in Universal pictures, her first role being in "There's Always Tomorrow" with Frank Morgan and Lois Wilson.

Miss Barnes will always be remembered as Catherine Howard in "The Private Life of Henry the VIII."

A still from Binnie Barnes' Universal made picture, temporary titled, "There's Always Tomorrow," with Frank Morgan and Lois Wilson.

The Girl on the Cover: Binnie Barnes

THIS week's cover of Universal Weekly is graced by a star new to these shores, Miss Binnie Barnes, of London, England. Although Miss Barnes has never acted in American studios before, yet she is widely known throughout the country by her work as Catherine Howard in "The Private Life of Henry the Eighth" with Charles Laughton. Ever since Carl Laemmle, Jr. saw her in that sensational production, he was anxious to bring her to this country to star in Universal Pictures. Accordingly, in May, as soon as Miss Barnes had finished acting with Douglass Fairbanks in "The Private Life of Don Juan," she came to America and was rushed by plane to Universal City to take up her role in "There's Always Tomorrow," making the entire trip in a period of six days, from London to Los Angeles. She learned her role on the airplane trip from New York.

This auburn-haired, greenish-brown eyed English girl was born in Caledonia Market, London, England, on March 26th, 1907. Her career has been colorful from her earliest days, as at the age of fifteen she became a milk maid on Finchley Manor Farm near London, for six months. Next she studied nursing but quickly gave it up, then dancing, and rope spinning a la Will Rogers. It was this facility which gave her the entre to the British stage, and she toured South Africa with Tex McLeod in a rope twirling and spinning act. Returning, she changed her name to "Tex" Barnes and throughout 1928 gained fame in this particular work on the English stage.

In 1929 she went on the legitimate stage in "Silver Tassie" with Charles Laughton and Una O'Connor, then in Andre Charlot's musical revue; and in "Cavalcade" (the stage production). Her first English motion picture was "Night in Montmarte" with Heather Angel, then came "Counsellor's Opinion" for Alexander Korda, "Heads We Go!" and finally the memorable role in "Henry VIII."

Miss Barnes is married to Samuel Joseph, art connoisseur and book dealer, with whom she is very much in love. She is five feet, six inches tall, weighs 122 pounds, is of rather the Latin type of beauty than the British, and speaks with less of an English accent than most American stage stars. She sings, dances, rides, swims, plays golf and tennis.

The rushes of Binnie Barnes' first picture disclosed that Universal has found a jewel of the first water. Every one at Universal City is predicting a tremendous success in America for Binnie Barnes. Already parts are being given to her with gay abandon. Miss Barnes has already been cast in the lead in "What Women Dream," which Ernst L. Frank will direct, and is being tested for the lead in Edith Wharton's novel, "Strange Wives." Binnie Barnes is the third actress who has proven herself in one picture, the other two being Margaret Sullavan and Jane Wyatt. Margaret Sullavan's hit in "Only Yesterday" resulted in stardom in her next picture, "Little Man, What Now?" Jane Wyatt gave such a splendid account of herself in "One More River" that she is to be given the title role in Marcel Pagnol's "Fanny."

The WORLD'S GREATEST SHORT SUBJECTS

for 1934-35

•

26 TWO-REEL UNIVERSAL COMEDIES

•

One-Reelers:

GOING PLACES

WITH

LOWELL THOMAS

•

20 OSWALD

The Lucky Rabbit Cartoons

STRANGER THAN FICTION

"The World's Oddities on the screen."

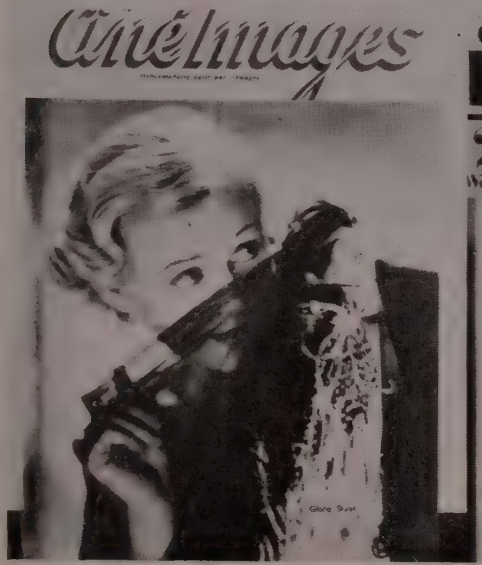
•

6 CARTUNE CLASSICS IN COLOR

Gloria Stuart Smiles from Magazine Covers

AS may be seen from the reproductions on this page of magazine covers, Gloria Stuart is getting to be another space grabber in the fan magazines comparable to Margaret Sullavan. Not only in America, but England, France, Spain and other foreign lands as well, the Universal player is frequently seen as "the girl on the cover."

Miss Stuart is at present working at Universal City with Edmund Lowe in "Gift of Gab," the Jerry Wald story which has a cast of all-star proportions.



Randall

Variety Reports:

"Pantages, Los Angeles, holding 'Little Man' for second week and DOING TWICE THE BUSINESS IT USUALLY DOES WITH A SINGLE WEEK ATTRACTION!"

Motion Picture Daily Reports:

" 'Little Man, What Now?' was the strongest attraction in Buffalo last week. It garnered $7,800 at the Lafayette, topping normal by $1,400 in a week that saw falling grosses elsewhere."

"Omaha—Paramount—'Little Man.' Likely to maintain the pace set last week and near what the house deserves. Single-feature policy here okay with this type of film."

—Variety

"Washington — Met — 'Little Man.' Repeat after nice week at Earle headed for satisfactory $3,300."

—Variety

MARGARET

Sullavan

in

LITTLE MAN WHAT NOW?

Jane Wyatt, who makes her first screen appearance in Galsworthy's "One More River," christens Walter Varney's monoplane, West Wind, previous to its leaving the home airport at Universal City to enter the 8,000 mile race from London to Melbourne. Captain Franklin Rose (left) will pilot the West Wind, with Mr. Varner (right) acting as co-pilot.

JANE WYATT, LIKE MARGARET SULLAVAN, MADE GOOD IN FIRST FILM

NOT content with producing "The Invisible Man," Universal almost produced the invisible woman in the person of Jane Wyatt, daughter of New York society and Broadway stage actress, who is making her first acquaintance with Hollywood. In the capitol of an industry that specializes in projecting the personality, this young girl appeared like a ghost. She begged to act in her first picture anonymously. She asked that her name be omitted from the cast. She refused to give any information for publicity stories and banned all interviews. She claimed that there would be time enough for these developments if her film debut should be successful. If it should turn out differently, the less said about it the better.

In spite of this self-effacement, her screen test gave the 22 year old novice a featured role with Diana Wynyard in the film version of John Galsworthy's "One More River," which director James Whale has just completed at Universal City. After seeing the rushes of this production studio officials this week cast Miss Wyatt in the feminine lead of the Marcel Pagnol play, "Fanny" for her second picture.

Jane Wyatt made her entry into pictures with Universal because Carl Laemmle, Jr. thought he needed a rest. Early in the spring of 1934 the young production head left the West coast for a vacation in Europe, his first in five years. When he reached New York, he found so much in the theatre to interest a film executive that he postponed the vacation. He saw sixteen plays, among them Philip Barry's "The Joyous Season" in which Miss Wyatt was appearing in support of Lilian Gish. Laemmle was impressed and signed Miss Wyatt to a long term contract at once, thus forestalling five producers, all of whom were negotiating for her services.

He was surprised when his new acquisition asked that there be no announcement of her signing made in the press and that the same silence be preserved regarding her departure for California, but he humored her as far as possible, believing things would adjust themselves. They are beginning to do so. Now Jane's first picture role is behind her. She has scored such a success that she has been given the title role in "Fanny." She has already received her first batch of fan mail. 22 letters that have come to the studios as a result of some of her fashion pictures having been published in various magazines. Her early tension is relaxing. She is becoming acclimated to Hollywood and its ways. She is on the high road to a great success.

After a nine year course in The Chopin school and two years at Barnard College she decided to try her fortune on the professional stage. During the summer of 1930 she went up to Stockbridge, Massachusetts and attended E. Cowles Strickland's Apprentice School there at the Berkshire Playhouse. In the Fall she got herself a job as understudy to Rose Hobart in "Tradewinds." Her next assignment was to understudy Katherine Wilson in "The Vinegar Tree."

In the spring of 1931 Charles Hopkins cast her as the ingenue in A. A. Milne's "Give Me Yesterday." Roles in Winchell Smith's "The Tadpole," Jed Harris' "Fatal Alibi" and "Olivia Bows to Mrs. Grundy" ensued.

While she was playing in Lawrence Langner's Repertory Company at Westport, Connecticut, in "Chrysalis," Edna Ferber saw her and offered her the ingenue part in "Dinner at Eight." She liked her assignment in "Chrysalis" and declined but when "Chrysalis" moved in to New York from Westport her role was given to Margaret Sullavan the Universal star, in whose steps she seems to be following.

Then she got her Broadway chance in "The Mad Hopes" followed in rapid succession by "Evensong," "Conquest" and "For Services Rendered." She succeeded Margaret Sullavan in her turn, when that actress left the cast of "Dinner at Eight" to go to Universal City and after a session in two more unsuccessful plays, "Love Story" and "The Joyous Season" she departed for Universal City herself, and "One More River."

Second Picture For Jane Wyatt Will Be "Fanny"

Carl Laemmle, Jr. was so pleased with the work of Jane Wyatt in her first screen appearance, "One More River," that he yesterday assigned her the lead in "Fanny," the Marcel Pagnol French play which will be produced for next season under William Wyler's direction.

Mr. Laemmle had her in mind for the difficult role the moment he set eyes on her. But he had to see how the camera treated her. Jane Wyatt and the camera are the best of friends.

"ROMANCE IN THE RAIN" CARRIES A BIG PUNCH

FURIOUS pace a story with a punch and a melange of tuneful melodies and colorful dance ensembles feature "Romance in the Rain," the Stanley Bergerman production which has just shot its last sequences at Universal City, according to report of those who have seen the rushes. Stars of the future, the present and the past; stars of the screen, stage and radio, stars for all ages and types of fans will flash from the screen when this romantic comedy with music is released.

The leads are played by stars which the present finds beaming in their full glory, Roger Pryor, and Heather Angel. Pryor is the young man who became famous by his work in "Moonlight and Pretzels," the Universal musical of a year ago which was produced by Bergerman, written by same authors who are responsible for "Romance in the Rain," Sig Herzig and Jay Gorney. Pryor, son of the celebrated bandmaster Arthur Pryor, has been a Broadway stage star. He will be seen in Mae West's latest picture, "It Ain't No Sin," which is now to be re-titled. Heather Angel is the demure and charming young English lass who did such excellent acting in "Berkeley Square" and "Pilgrimage."

Victor Moore, one of the greatest comedians in America makes his talking picture debut for Universal in "Romance in the Rain." Moore is chiefly noted for his epoch making role of Alexander Throttlebottom in the Pulitzer Prize play, "Of Thee I Sing." He was so good that Universal immediately took up his option. Esther Ralston fresh from her return to the screen in English talking pictures and recent roles in Hollywood has a featured part also.

Those fans who went through their movie novitiate in another decade will be delighted to see two of the best performers of early silent days in Clara Kimball Young and King Baggot in substantial parts. Miss Young broke in with the old World Film Company and Baggot was one of the original cinema heroes.

They were stars before Little Anne Darling, Universal's find, only nineteen, who makes her debut in this film was born. And even younger are the little tots, Georgia Bark and Scotty Beckett who act as pages in the Cinderella number. Years from now they may be great stars in their own right.

Victor Moore and Esther Ralston as they appear in "Romance in the Rain"

Paul Kaye handsome young ex-college athlete and radio singer has an important part in the proceedings and radio is also represented by Tom Hanlon announcer over KFI. Christian Rub, renowned charatcer actor of "Grand Hotel" fame is among those present. There is a pulchritudinous chorus of Cinderella girls and Lo the celebrated Indian Chief Yellow Horse will impersonate an Eskimo.

The screen play is by Barry Trivers with dialogue by Gladys Unger and John V. A. Weaver. The songs are by Jay Gorney and Don Hartman and Harold Hecht staged the incidental numbers. Stuart Walker directed.

Jean Lacey who seems to be having a foaming good time in "Romance in the Rain."

✚ ✚ ✚

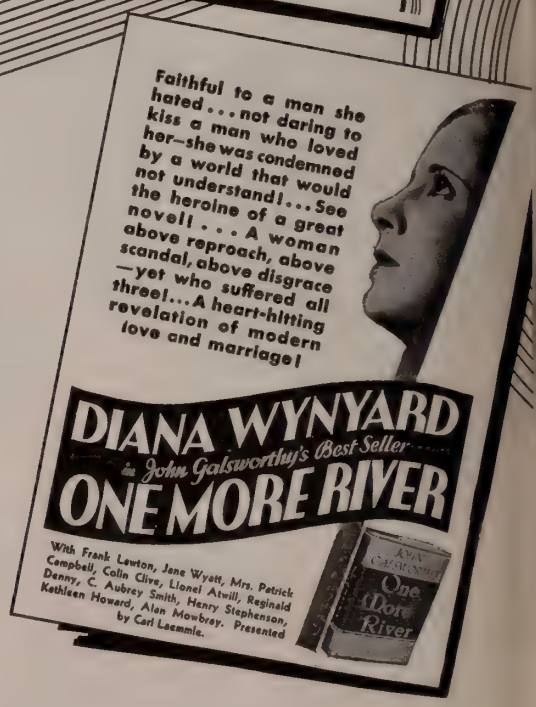
Broadway Players Cast in Damon Runyon's Story "Million Dollar Ransom"

AUGMENTING the already large cast in "Million Dollar Ransom," the Damon Runyon Cosmopolitan Magazine story, Universal has signed Jay C. Flippen, noted Broadway comedian, for an important role in the picture.

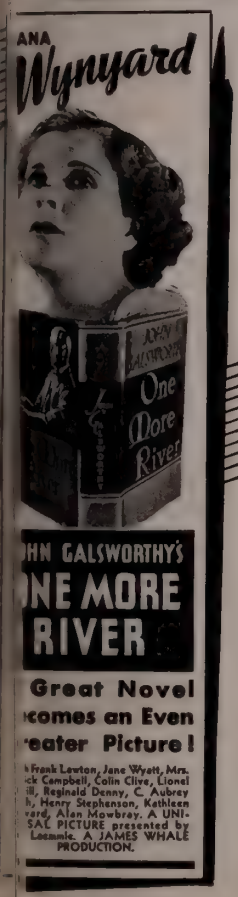
Flippen, for many years a headliner in vaudeville and musical comedy star, will portray the part of a cafe master of ceremonies in the film.

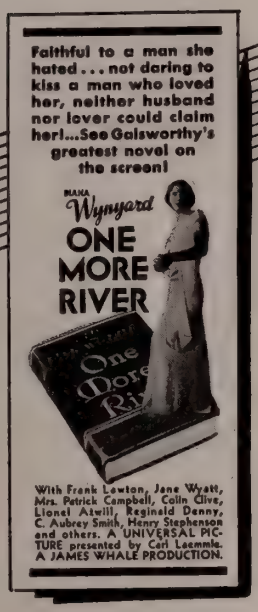
Also signed for this picture is Spencer Charters, well known stage and screen character actor, who plays the role of Pop McGarry in this picture.

Ad Mats Aimed Straight



At Big Box-Office Angles!





Los Angeles Hails Margaret Sullavan In "Little Man"

"Performance Splendid," Says W. E. Oliver

Margaret Sullavan and Douglass Montgomery, whose work as the ideal lovers in "Little Man, What Now?" is winning praise from all cities in the Country.

(Los Angeles Examiner)

"MY reaction to the picture left me feeling elated over human instincts which keep mortals going against the worst breaks. I feel this cheerful result, however, comes almost entirely from Margaret Sullavan's lovely hopeful smile and the utter normal character she portrays as a young wife. Her performance is splendid.

"Several perfomances aided her in this leavening effect. Alan Hale as the jovial Jachman, the friend of the youth's stepmother; Christian Rub as Puttbreese, the old furniture man; G. P. Huntley, Jr. as the young store friend, and even the sprightly Alan Mowbray in a delicious bit as a movie star, all contributed light-hearted moments, skillfully injected at telling places in the moody tale.

" . . . Almost any director could have made 'Little Man, What Now?' up to the last 15 minutes of the story. From this time on the Frank Borzage magic takes hold and gives the picture a heart-stirring finish surpassed by few pictures ever made."

✚ ✚ ✚

"Adds To Laurels," Says Edwin Schallert In Times

THE screen is once again enriched by the presence of Margaret Sullavan. Seen in "Only Yesterday," this young actress—and truly she is the actress—renews that spirit of singular idealism that she brought to the earlier production . . . She is . . . luminous, real and haunting.

In the new picture, "Little Man, What Now?" which is showing at Pantages Hollywood Theatre, and worth anyone's time to see, Frank Borzage has developed the talent that earlier was discovered by John M. Stahl . . . Exquisite are many of the scenes in this picture as she portrays them—living, persuasive and true.

Borzage has revived the same spirit that he put into "Seventh Heaven," which dealt with the war. "Little Man, What Now?" has to do with a later phase. Much the same mood is preserved in the picture, which is unquestionably the director's finest since that famous film.

. . . "Little Man, What Now?" maintains its lustre with a remarkable steadiness, and serenely beautiful does it become at times, especially in the closing moments. Dramatic it is, too—very dramatic.

✚ ✚ ✚

Hollywood Citizen-News Calls "Little Man" Notable Film Work

By Viola Hegyi

SO human and so movingly real is "Little Man, What Now?" that the usual superlatives used in describing a fine picture become tawdry and inadequate. Let the blatant, blaring adjectives be used for the silken artificialities of a glamour-glutted screen. This picture should be described in honest, simple words.

Opening yesterday at Pantages Hollywood Theatre, "Little Man, What Now?", Universal's picturization of the Hans Fallada novel, shall rank high in film annals. Too much praise cannot be given Margaret Sullavan, the star, Actors Douglass Montgomery and Alan Hale, and Director Frank Borzage. Unerringly, Borzage has molded his material into a picture of life wherein screen characters and audience join in working, wondering, aspiring, struggling, laughing, loving—in short—living. There is no striving for effects, no attitudinizing and no heavy-handed artiness and the result is without qualification, gratifying.

Miss Sullavan shares with Borzage the ability to make the audience a part of the scene projected upon the theatre screen. She makes them feel, and in feeling, understand Lammchen's emotions. She makes them think her thoughts and respond to her every sensitive and expressive action. Natural, simple, sincere, yet withal a skilled artist, she proves again as she did in "Only Yesterday," and this time even more emphatically, that she is one of the very, very few film stars who is also an actress.

Douglass Montgomery, who is par-

(Continued on Page 28)

" 'Little Man, What Now?' Is One Of Ten Best,"

Says Walter D. Hickman Indianapolis Times

THE verdict concerning "Little Man, What Now?" is that it is one of the ten best pictures of the year.

The success of this human story of Newlyweds in modern Germany makes stars of Margaret Sullavan and Douglass Montgomery.

. . . It is seldom that two people in the same cast exhibit such charms, acting ability and intelligence as do these two people in this movie. It is truly great acting.

Watch the Maude Adams' acting of Miss Sullavan as she tries to understand why her husband does not want his friends and his employer to know they are married.

. . . I am glad here is one audience picture that is a fine picture . . . I hope you enjoy it as much as I did.

✚ ✚ ✚

"Miss Sullavan Wins" Indianapolis Sunday Star

"LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?" is one of those productions of the cinema which can happen only once in a blue moon. . . . "Little Man, What Now?" is so charming as to be almost bewildering and unbelievable. No picture of the current season has presented a heroine of such sheer and constant delight as Margaret Sullavan, and we haven't encountered any juvenile leading man more ingratiating than Douglass Montgomery. . . .

This picture was directed by Frank Borzage who had charge of the making of "Seventh Heaven." The publicity boys continue to refer to "Seventh Heaven" as the foundation of the Borzage directorial fame. They can put that aside now and do right by Mr. Borzage by crediting him with a much finer achievement. At least that is the way we look at it.

Miss Sullavan has a radiant personality. The way she does all her scenes and the even balance of her depiction of the young wife who never loses her poise or lapses into pessimism for a minute during the bitter struggles of the young husband for existence is well nigh irresistible. She is the very

(Continued on Page 28)

Frank Borzage is shown preparing to film one of the most colorful scenes in "Little Man, What Now?" the cabaret sequence in which Margaret Sullavan and Douglass Montgomery are feted by the engaging Jachman, played by Alan Hale.

" 'Little Man, What Now?' The Big Picture Of The Summer," Claims Dallas News

UNIVERSAL's picturization of Hans Fallada's novel (the best seller one year ago) is as interesting as it is profound, as gay as it is sad, an excellent repeat on the "Seventh Heaven" theme by Frank Borzage who directed "Seventh Heaven" and, altogether, an affecting and moving session in a motion picture theatre.

. . . Fortunately for the movie audiences there is gentle addenda to the original story. Pinneberg and Lammchen are about to find security and livelihood in Holland. So the answer to the plaintive interrogation of the title is "Go West, young man." . . . The picture, as we see it at the Palace, is the problem of the postwar world anywhere.

Mr. Montgomery plays naturally, spiritedly and with much appeal. The bruited Margaret Sullavan is likewise tender, sympathetic and, at the same time, full of life's vigor . . . Alan Hale as the genial Jachman, crook and gallant in one, is an utter delight. The smaller roles, all sharply characterized, are worthily filmed.

It is safe to call "Little Man, What Now?" one of the major pictures of the year and imperative to designate it as the big picture of the summer.

✚ ✚ ✚

"Little Man, What Now?" Bows To Washington

"One of Finest Movies Ever Made: Don Craig in Washington News

FROM a commercial standpoint, it is very smart for a Hollywood producer to turn a popular novel into a movie. A tremendous audience is assured. But from an artistic standpoint, it is very dangerous. For all who read the book come into the theatre with preconceived notions and no cast nor director can satisfy each of them.

A motion picture, however, can catch the spirit of its inspiration and be just as fine in its own way. "Little Man, What Now?" which bowed at the Earle yesterday, succeeds on both of those scores.

. . . Margaret Sullavan as Lammchen and Douglass Montgomery as Pinneberg will rank among best-beloved characters of the screen.

. . . If you must have a definite opinion, then "Little Man, What Now?" is one of the finest movies ever made.

Gay Music! Hit Songs!
Dramatic Heart Interest!
Life, Love and Laughter!
E-V-E-R-Y-T-H-I-N-G!

•

With

ROGER PRYOR
HEATHER ANGEL

ESTHER RALSTON — VICTOR MOORE —
RUTH DONNELLY — PAUL KAYE

Story by Sig Herzig and Jay Gorney. Songs by Jay Gorney and Don Hartman. Directed by Stuart Walker. A Stanley Bergerman Production, presented by Carl Laemmle.

in the RAin

Universal's New Omaha Office

The heart of the office, the cashier's window, the bookers' table, and two easy chairs, in which exhibitors can sit and choose their pictures, check off their contracts and buy their supplies. This room is beautifully light and airy and carpetted with silent, cork linoleum.

And here is new address: 301-303 Sixteenth Street.

Here is Universal's new office in Omaha. Right on the corner of 16th and Davenport. It is a corner office, with plenty of light, air and is accessible from all points in the city. It is the newest, most up-to-date and best equipped film exchange in Omaha.

The office of Jerry Spandau, manager of the Omaha branch. Right over the heads of the customer and in a place where Mr. Spandau can always see and be reminded of them, are three portraits. Carl Laemmle is in the middle; Carl Laemmle, Jr. on one side; and J. R. Grainger on the other.

AFTER a month of preparation, Universal Pictures has opened its new Omaha office at 301-303 North 16th Street, occupying a location which is one of the best in the city, and giving the exchange personnel and exhibitors in the territory, one of the finest film centers in the country.

In every respect, the entirely re-equipped branch is a testimonial to the toil and thought put into the supervision and arrangement by Oscar Binder, Supervisor of Exchanges, and Jerry Spandau, Manager of the Omaha branch. Both men have, for many weeks, worked over plans and specifications in order to make the new headquarters as modern, as comfortable, and as efficient as humanly possible.

Approximately 2700 square feet are devoted to the offices which occupy an entire structure of their own, and liberal space is provided for the activities of the Manager, Salesmen, Bookers, and other personnel. All of the departments are separated by special fire-proof partitions. The interior is furnished with the most up-to-date equipment obtainable. Outstanding features include semi-modern swivel chairs at the booker's counter, an inspection room with three commodious vaults, and a film room with special platform outside, making for expeditious delivery of daily consignments.

Color schemes throughout are harmonious. Brown and tan linoleum is used as a covering for the floors of the exhibitor's reception room, to match the drapes and Venetian blinds. Desk tops are of green enduro to harmonize with the floor covering. The walls are uniformly finished with plastex of a cream color. Partitions and desks are of walnut.

The entire floor space is protected by the latest sprinkler system. There is ample light with exposure on all sides, tall windows serving this purpose. The exterior of the office has been given a special architectural treatment, with a huge Universal trade mark as a decorative motif.

The staff of sixteen, now functioning in these new headquarters, is more than happy with its surroundings and is receiving congratulations from showmen in the city, who feel that Universal has made another forward step by equipping Omaha with splendid new Exchange to serve them.

News Stories from Universal City

WHO WILL PLAY "MOON MULLINS?"

EVER since Universal bought the rights to the "Moon Mullins" cartoon, there has been intense speculation as to who would play the roles. The Daily News of New York receives a whole lot of correspondence due to the fact that "Moon Mullins" is one of its most successful strips. In the News of July 1, a correspondent by the name of Frank Rossi made a line-up for the "Moon Mullins" movie which he wished to suggest to the producers.

Hollywood couldn't collect such a cast as Mr. Rossi suggests. But just to show what a good casting director a man who doesn't have to bother with company contracts can be, here is his list:

Moon Mullins ..... Jack Oakie
Kayo ..... Baby Leroy
Uncle Willie ..... W. C. Fields
Mamie ..... Alison Skipworth
Uncle Willie's brother-in-law ..... Ted Healey
Lord Plushbottom ..... Charles Laughton
Lady Emmy Schmaltz Plushbottom ..... Edna May Oliver
Mushmouth ..... Stepin Fetchit
Little Egypt ..... Sally Rand

"How'm I doin' folks?" asks Frank Rossi, "and have I overlooked anyone?"

Universal Buys a Homer Croy Novel

UNIVERSAL today will complete the purchase of 'Madame Tubbs," the forthcoming novel by Homer Croy. It will not be published until this Fall, and Universal will not make its production until winter. Adele Buffington has been assigned to do the screen adaptation. Homer Croy is the author of "West of the Water Tower," "They Had to See Paris," and a number of other successful novels and movies.

✚ ✚ ✚

Hugh O'Connell Flies to Universal City

HUGH O'CONNELL, Arline Judge and Sterling Holloway complete the cast of "Gift of Gab." Hugh O'Connell was required in such a hurry that he airplaned out to Universal City. He arrived yesterday after closing in "The Milky Way" Saturday. The cast of this Jerry Wald story, under the direction of Karl Freund, is headed by Edmund Lowe and Gloria Stuart and includes Victor Moore, Alice White, Ethel Waters of "As Thousands Cheer," and a radio sequence including Roger Pryor, Chester Morris, Paul Lukas, Karloff and Lugosi, Ruth Etting, Phil Baker, Gus Arnheim's Orchestra, the Downey Sisters and the Beal Street Boys.

Elizabeth Young, who plays the part of Helen in Edward Sloman's "There's Always Tomorrow." In real life, she is the week-old bride of Joseph Mankiewicz, famous playwright.

Married While Playing in Feature, "There's Always Tomorrow"

ELIZABETH Young, daughter of Judge William Young of the Children's Court in New York, preferred the stage to the social life to which she was born. Overcoming the handicap of a prolonged illness in her childhood, occasioned by an injury to her back in an automobile accident, she became one of the most athletic and graceful girls on the New York stage, where she won acclaim in "Child of Manhattan." She was signed because of her work in this for films. Before appearing in "There's Always Tomorrow" with Frank Morgan, Binnie Barnes and Lois Wilson for Universal, Miss Young played prominently with Garbo in "Queen Christina" and with Helen Morgan in 'Memory."

Miss Young, with Robert Taylor, supplies the "young love" interest in this Edward Sloman story, with Frank Morgan and Lois Wilson the couple whose love is growing cold, and Binnie Barnes the "other woman."

Elizabeth Young distributes pieces of her wedding cake to Binnie Barnes, Frank Morgan and Lois Wilson, featured players of "There's Always Tomorrow." Miss Young was married to Joseph Mankiewicz, author and playwright on Sunday, and was back at work in "There's Always Tomorrow" on Monday. This young trouper knows "the show must go on!"

CH

STEP OUT WITH UNIVERSAL

Carl Laemmle
presents –

EMBARRASS MOMENT

ESTER MORRIS

— in a corking comedy with a melodramatic kick that will send your folks out talking about your show!

•

with

MARION NIXON

Walter Woolf, George Stone, Huntley Gordon, Henry Armetta, Alan Mowbray, Gay Seabrook, John Wray. Story by William Anthony McGuire. Directed by Edward Laemmle. A Stanley Bergerman Production.

ING

S

First Release of Universal's "Stranger Than Fiction"

THE first of the series of two-reelers entitled "Stranger Than Fiction," of which there will be thirteen on Universal's 1934-35 schedule, has the well known radio announcer, Alois Havrilla, as its commentator. Other famous personalities, such as Jimmy Wallington, have been signed to add the dialogue to following "Stranger than Fiction" reels.

In Number One, we are first shown the peculiar use to which the Pima Indians of the Arizona Desert have put the cactus plants there, making of it a delicious candy, which they manufacture right on the desert in a very profitable way.

Next we see an unusual clock in the city of Lierre, Belgium, which has sixty-six different faces and which tells not only time in all the principal cities of the world, but also the signs of the Zodiac, the phases of the Moon, the tides and other information.

Earl Bailly, an artist who paints unusual pictures with his teeth, is pictured. Bailly lost the use of his hands and feet at the age of three through infantile paralysis.

A picturesque scene is the church service held on horseback just outside Vienna in the woods of the famous Prater, where the only service-in-the saddle in the world is held for army officers and Austrian saddlemen before the shrine of the patron saint of horse-lovers.

A pygmy hippopotamus is the pet of a little girl in Normandy, France, and she is shown with her pet in this reel; also included are a wooden machinery mill built by an ingenious blacksmith two hundred years ago in the German village of Weida, and still in use today; the Palace of Depression of George Deaner in Vineland, N. J., constructed of junked parts of automobiles and other throwaways; the fashions of the women of an Indian tribe of Mexican Indians; an electrical cat; a live animal whose fur is used by his master as an electric magnet; and winding up the reel, we see a studio carpenter in Sydney, Australia, who, having lost five fingers in an accident, has devised a playing stick with which he plays the piano as well as any tenfingered man.

BUCK JONES COMPL

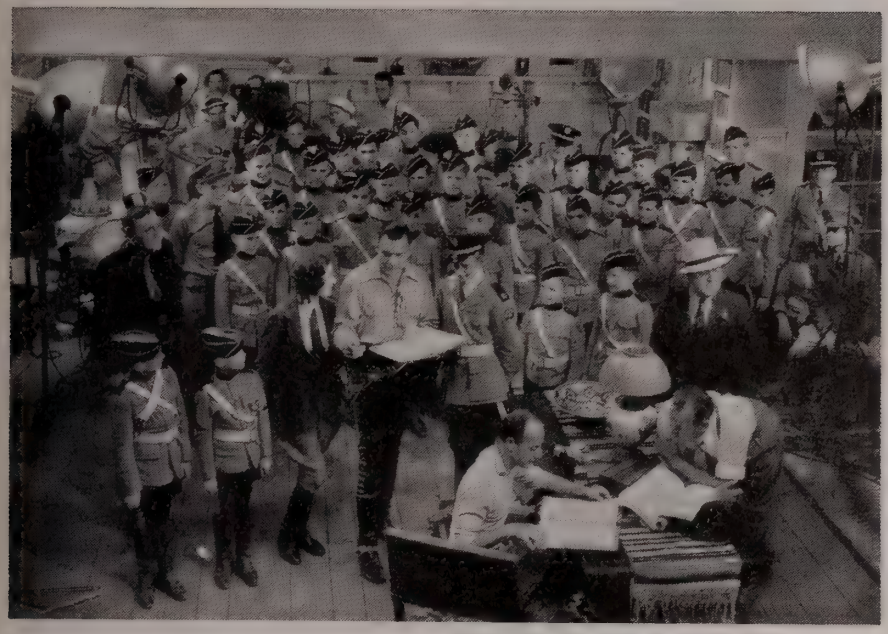
A dramatic still from "The Red Rider" with Buck Jones, Marion Shilling and Charles French.

UNIVERSAL'S leadoff serial for 1934-35, Buck Jones in "The Red Rider," is completed. Four of its episodes have been previewed and found to be even better than "Gordon of Ghost City." Every precaution was taken to insure success. In the first place, they bought a story by W. C. Tuttle, and a story by W. C. Tuttle not only has thrill and adventure, but it has comedy and human interest as well. Tuttle virtually made the Adventure magazine what it is today, and has contributed hundreds of stories to western magazines. The screen play was written by George Plympton, Vin Moore, Ella O'Neill, and Basil Dickey, with all of the combined experience and knowledge of serial making that these four writers have evidenced over a period of years.

Louis Friedlander, who has just finished "Vanishing Shadow" in a blaze of glory, was handed the assignment of directing this Buck Jones for next year. He has proven himself in a hard spot and can be depended upon to turn out fast moving and effective serials. Nothing is a better guaranty of a success than a previous success.

A great cast of serial players was assembled to make "The Red Rider" in support of Buck Jones. The featured players are Grant Withers, Marian Shilling, and Walter Miller. Miss Shilling is a beautiful girl who can ride, and will be an excellent foil for Buck Jones. Withers and Miller are both accomplished villains, Miller going back to the early days of serials and escaping stardom by a scant hair on many occasions. There will also be a second girl in the person of Margaret LaMarr who plays the role of Joan McKee, while the assorted good and bad characters include the former film stars William Desmond and J. P. McGowan, Richard Cramer, Charles French, Edmund Cobb, Mert LaVarre,

'ES "THE RED RIDER"



Buck Jones takes his Rangers to Universal City and shows them how the movies are made.

Frank Rice, Monte Montague, Jim Thorpe, the famous Indian Olympic star, Jim Corey, Bud Osborne, and Al Ferguson.

Silver, Buck Jones' famous white horse, will also have a part written in for him which will be in character and very entertaining to the kids.

✚ ✚ ✚

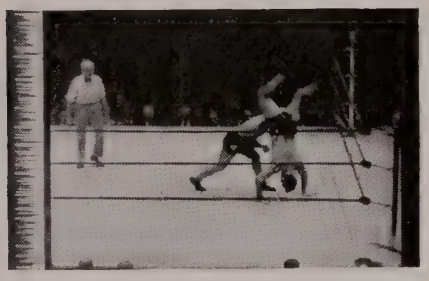
Buck Jones Makes History By Major Circuit Booking

EDWARD BONNS, Universal Short Subject Manager, announces that Max Cohen, in charge of city sales in Big U, Leo Abrams' New York Branch has completed a deal that places Buck Jones in "The Red Rider" with the Fox-Skouras' 41 theatres and the Warner Circuit in New York and New Jersey.

This is the first time in the history of these theatres that they have contracted for the same serial, because of conflicting situations. Nevertheless, Buck Jones has been bought 100% because no major town can see this box-office attraction slip by. The star's record for clean and wholesome entertainment is expected to prove a big draw for the child, as well as the adult trade, especially under current conditions.

At the same time the Big U has completed arrangements to place the entire serial program of four serials for 1934-1935 in the whole Skouras circuit of the Metropolitan territory.

NEWSREEL No. 262



Exciting shot of Jim Londos winning world's mat crown, from Newsreel No. 262

– SYNOPSIS –

PRESIDENT REPORTS TO NATION OF THE PROGRESS OF RECOVERY

(To Be Shipped Separately)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Chief Executive, through Universal Newsreel, makes another characteristic "intimate" talk to the people of the United States, giving an account of his stewardship and outlining his plans to spur national business recovery.

THOUSANDS DENOUNCE HITLER

BRAUNAU, AUSTRIA—Great throngs gather in the principal square of the German Chancellor's birthplace to observe his "name-day" by attacking him and the activities of his "Brown Shirt" supporters.

VACATIONISTS GET NEW THRILL

VENICE, CAL.—Pleasure seekers at a resort here gasp for breath on a new device, named a "Trip to Mars" which sends them speeding upside-down through the air at seventy miles per hour.

FRECKLE FACES RULE FAIR

CHICAGO, ILL.—"A Century of Progress Exposition" plays host to thousands of children, whose only ticket of admission is a face with twenty-five or more sun-spots.

JIM LONDOS CAPTURES WORLD'S MAT CROWN IN THRILLING BOUT

LONG ISLAND CITY, N. Y.—The sturdy Greek challenger pins the sad-faced Missourian defender of the title in one hour, 10 minutes and 10 seconds, following a series of terrific airplane spins that keeps the crowd in a frenzy of excitement.

NEW FALL STYLES SHOWN

CHICAGO, ILL.—Fashion experts from all parts of the country see a preview of the latest designs for afternoon and evening wear in one of the nation's most exclusive salons.

KING AND QUEEN AT RACES

ASCOT, ENGLAND—Their Brittanic Majesties are hailed by thousands as they arrive for the opening of the Royal Ascot Meeting, and see "Hands Off," a 25-to-1 shot, win the feature event of the day.

SKI STARS IN SUMMER MEET

ESTES PARK, COL.—Tons of snow are hauled down the side of a mountain to make a course for noted jumpers, competing in an unusual warm-weather tournament.

Gold Medal for "Only Yesterday"

(Continued from Page 5)

that a reflection of such an audience should be of use to producers. Furthermore, I think that film censorship would be unnecessary if the actual desires of movie-goers could be tabulated and put to work. This list of performances clearly indicates that the mass of movie-goers heartily enjoy such wholesome pictures as "Only Yesterday," "Little Women" and "Three Little Pigs" and such excellent performers as Hepburn and March. Many performances which have come in for criticism during the last year might have been avoided by some such general poll as this. Our own 1,300,000 readership, made up of the average intelligent housewife, seems to have no word of recommendation for salaciousness in any form."

✚ ✚ ✚

"Notable Film Work" Hollywood Citizen-News

(Continued from Page 18)

ticularly fine in several scenes, meets the excellencies of Miss Sullavan, who is particularly fine in every scene, in his own performance. More measured and more apparently studied, his is, nonetheless, a splendid portrayal of Hans. Alan Hale attains a triumphant success both as a personality and as an actor in the role of the rogue Jachman. Catherine Doucet gives a shrewd and notable performance as the step-mother

DeWitt Jennings as the gross small town employer and Christian Rub as the lovable attic landlord are outstanding in an unusually fine cast which includes Mae Marsh, Frank Reicher, Fred Kohler, Alan Mowbray, Muriel Kirkland, Hedda Hopper, Sarah Padden, Earle Foxe, George Meeker, Bodil Rosing, Donald Haines, Monroe Owsley, G. P. Huntley, Jr. and Paul Fix.

William Anthony McGuire's sympathetic and intelligent screen play, Norbert Brodine's photography and Danny Hall's sets are invaluable in accenting the attributes of the picture.

Margaret Sullavan and John Boles in "Only Yesterday."

"Sullavan Charming" Says K. Y. in Times

(Continued from Page 19)

. . . You who read books and you who are self designated film fans must both agree that Frank Borzage, who gave us "Seventh Heaven," has touched again that responsive chord of sentiment which makes kindred souls of us all . . .

Margaret Sullavan is so charmingly natural that she might be the girl next door; lovely and smiling in the face of trouble, her characterization is sane and believable.

✚ ✚ ✚

Indianapolis Says, "Miss Sullavan Wins"

(Continued from Page 19)

embodiment of the character as it was written by Hans Fallada . . . Hers is a sensitive, colorful and sympathetic portrayal. . . .

R. T. G.

Ned Sparks Signed for "Imitation of Life"

NED SPARKS is the latest player to be added to the cast of Fannie Hurst's "Imitation of Life," which will star Claudette Colbert. John M. Stahl is daily conducting tests at Universal City for the important roles in this production. Several hundred people are interviewed each day. Already he has announced Rochelle Hudson, little Juanita Quigley, Marilyn Knowlden, Louise Beavers and Freddie Washington. "Imitation of Life" is due to go into production this week.

Such a sensation has little Juanita Quigley caused on the Universal lot that she was immediately placed under long term contract. She is two years old. Another indication of her success is the fact that she has already been assigned a "stand-in." That is a hallmark of Hollywood success.

✚ ✚ ✚

"Hit" Says Nelson B. Bell in Washington Post

(Continued from Page 19)

"Little Man, What Now?" takes rank as one of the most realistic and sincere studies the modern screen has afforded in life and human nature.

Free from the taint of artificiality and crass theatricalism, this straightforward and unembellished tale of young love, under the most trying difficulties of penury . . . presents situations that are common to a great majority of mankind in these days of enduring postwar abnormalty . . . Its final word is one of supreme hope and aspiration. There is that about the concluding passages of the picture, as a matter of fact, that conveys a much more inspiring touch of optimism than was imparted by the book.

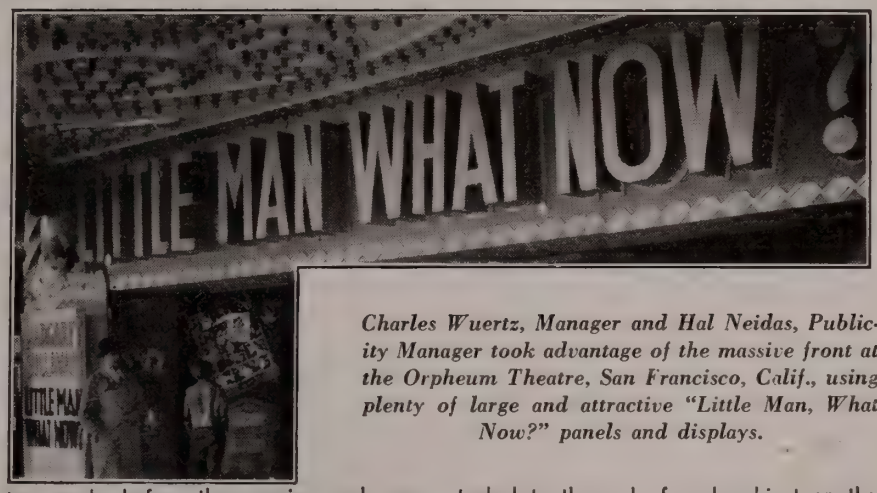
THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY SHOWMANSHIP SECTION

A DIGEST OF THE BEST EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

"LITTLE MAN" GIVEN SMASH CAMPAIGN AT ORPHEUM, 'FRISCO

FOR "Little Man, What Now?", Charles Wuertz, Manager and Hal Neidas, Publicity Manager opened the campaign at the Orpheum, San Francisco, Cal. with an advance preview that brought unusual results. Dramatic critics, newspaper men, book editors, officers of literary clubs and important citizens were invited, and many responded with letters of endorsement. The newspaper editorial writers quickly took to the title and used it to caption their editorials. Some of the outstanding endorsements were fixed up on a panel together with production stills and were displayed in the lobby.

Another smart panel was prepared by using the numerous publicity breaks received by Margaret Sullavan in National fan magazines. For both sides of the marquee large compo-board books with blow-ups of Margaret Sullavan and Douglass Montgomery were made up.

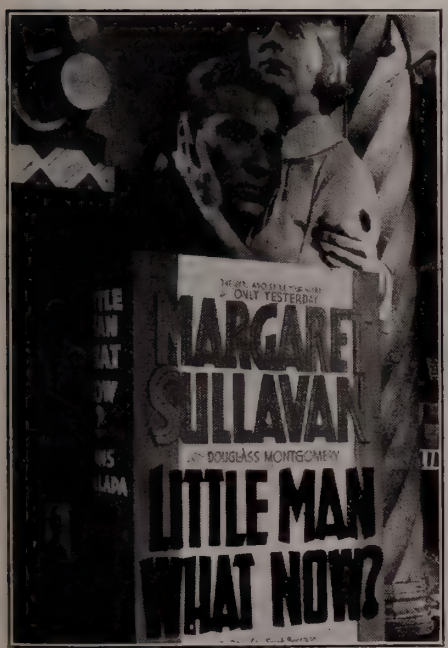


Charles Wuertz, Manager and Hal Neidas, Publicity Manager took advantage of the massive front at the Orpheum Theatre, San Francisco, Calif., using plenty of large and attractive "Little Man, What Now?" panels and displays.

Five teaser trailers were prepared for use two weeks before the opening and were tacked to the end of each subject on the program.

Wuertz and Neidas cashed in on the fashion, book and shirt tie-ups netting themselves extra windows, free newspaper ad space and the distribution of 20,000 bookmarks.

Extra newspaper space, a wide posting of paper, and daily announcements over two radio stations were other features of the campaign. Ben Westland, Universal exploiteer, assisted.



One of the two sidewalk displays for "Little Man, What Now?" at the Orpheum Theatre, San Francisco, Calif., prepared by using immense compo-board books and enlarged stills.

Here is how they made use of the loads of publicity given to Margaret Sullavan, in their "Little Man, What Now?" campaign at Orpheum Theatre, San Francisco.

SHOWMANSHIP AWARDS!

Through outstanding exploitation on Universal pictures, five showmen are this week added to the list of certificate winners.

R. C. BRUDER, Manager, BILL HOLLANDER and ARCHIE HERZOFF of the advertising Staff of the Chicago Theatre, Chicago, Ill. for their "LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?" campaign.

BYRON FARLEY, Manager and CHARLIE SMAKOWITZ, Warner Circuit Manager for their elaborate "I'LL TELL THE WORLD" campaign at the Ritz Theatre, Albany, N. Y.

Congratulations, men! Your certificates signed by Mr. Laemmle are in the mail! Keep up the good work!

S.O.S. ICEBERG
NOW is the time to play this HOT-WEATHER ATTRACTION!

The full window display devoted to the Margaret Sullavan fashions in Eatons Ladies Wear Store, one of Buffalo's largest, for the showing of "LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?" at the New Lafayette Theatre.

MacKENNA AND WALSH PREPARE PEPPY "LITTLE MAN" CAMPAIGN

FOR their showing of "Little Man, What Now?" at the New Lafayette Theatre, George MacKenna, Manager and Dick Walsh, Publicity Manager, recognizing the possibilities in the picture doubled their newspaper advertising appropriation and gave it a real attention-getting campaign.

Using big people to sell "Little Man, What Now?." This stilt ballyhoo was conceived and engineered by George MacKenna, Manager and Dick Walsh, Publicity Manager, New Lafayette Theatre, Buffalo, N. Y.

The wide posting, included many excellent moving spots on the city busses and taxi cabs. A special window paster was prepared for the busses and the taxis carried covers on their spare tires.

Special attention was paid to the completion of the many national tie-ups resulting in many fine window displays, one of which is shown above. In addition to the cooperation received from the shirt, fashion, book and flour tie-ups, MacKenna and Walsh obtained unlimited assistance from the distributors of Saturday Evening Post and Liberty magazines. The magazine people bannered their delivery trucks and inserted special bookmarks in 30,000 of the magazines.

Through the cooperation of the Buffalo Times and Radio Station WGR, a one hour broadcast was made from the stage of the theatre. The broadcast was an excellent boost for the picture and was preceded and followed by unlimited publicity breaks from the newspaper.

Other features were the novel ballyhoo, shown herewith, elaborate advance lobby displays, and a special front.

THOROUGH CAMPAIGN NETS LAMPE "LITTLE MAN" HOLD-OVER WEEK

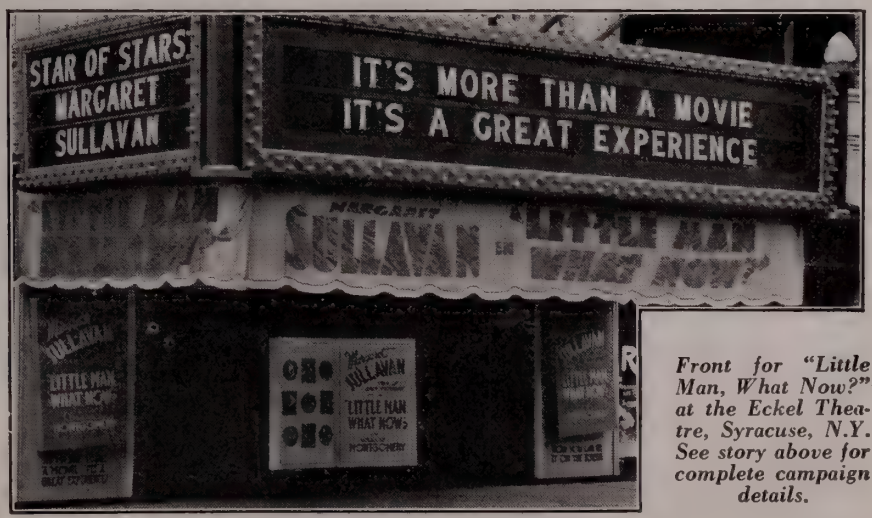
A CAMPAIGN that for completeness and effectiveness ranks with the best is the one conducted for "Little Man, What Now?" by Gus Lampe at the Eckel Theatre, Syracuse, N. Y. Lampe started his campaign four weeks in advance and kept it going at top speed until the picture opened and he was assured of hold-over business.

The first piece of exploitation was an eight by eighteen foot lobby display made up of eleven by fourteen stills, lobby cards and a gigantic title. Two weeks later, still two weeks in advance of the opening, a mammoth book was prepared, the pages containing stills from the picture and credits. A hollow back permitted illumination making the display unusually attractive and readable. The display was moved out front during the run and can be seen in the photograph reproduced at the bottom of the page. The reproduction also shows the side panels which were made in book shape with transparent lettering. Flasher lights in back made this an eye-catcher both at day and night.

Assistance from the four big national tie-ups, fashion, shirt, book and flour came in the form of many fine windows, and free newspaper space. As part of their cooperation, the Hollywood Cinema Fashion Store created a Margaret Sullavan dress which they played up in their ads, publicity and on circulars inserted in store packages.

Screen Romances posted 100 tie-up cards on newsstands on prominent street corners announcing the magazine novelization and the picture showing. Modern Screen, as part of their national campaign distributed 2000 colored photos of Margaret Sullavan and the New Movie arranged some handsome displays in Woolworth's store windows.

For his ballyhoo, Lampe used a beautiful girl carrying a large basket overflowing with flowers. A large address tag indicated that the flowers were being delivered to Margaret Sullavan, playing in "Little Man, What Now?" at the Eckel Theatre. The girl attracted a large crowd of people who followed her to the theatre.



Front for "Little Man, What Now?" at the Eckel Theatre, Syracuse, N.Y. See story above for complete campaign details.

MORE "LITTLE MAN" ADS FROM THE FIELD

(1.) Double column x 5½" hold-over ad from Sierra, Sacramento, Calif. (2.) Three column x 3" from Music Hall, Seattle, Wash. (3.) Two column x 8" from Palace, Dallas, Tex. (4.) Double column x 7½" from Paramount, Omaha, Nebr. (5). Two column x 9½" from Orpheum, San Francisco, Calif. (6). Double column x 6" hold-over ad from Pantages, Hollywood, Calif. (7.) Two column x 10¼" from Fox, Phoenix, Ariz.

CLAUDETTE COLBERT

in

Fannie Hurst's

Imitation of Life

A JOHN M. STAHL PRODUCTION

From

UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.

ROCKEFELLER CENTER

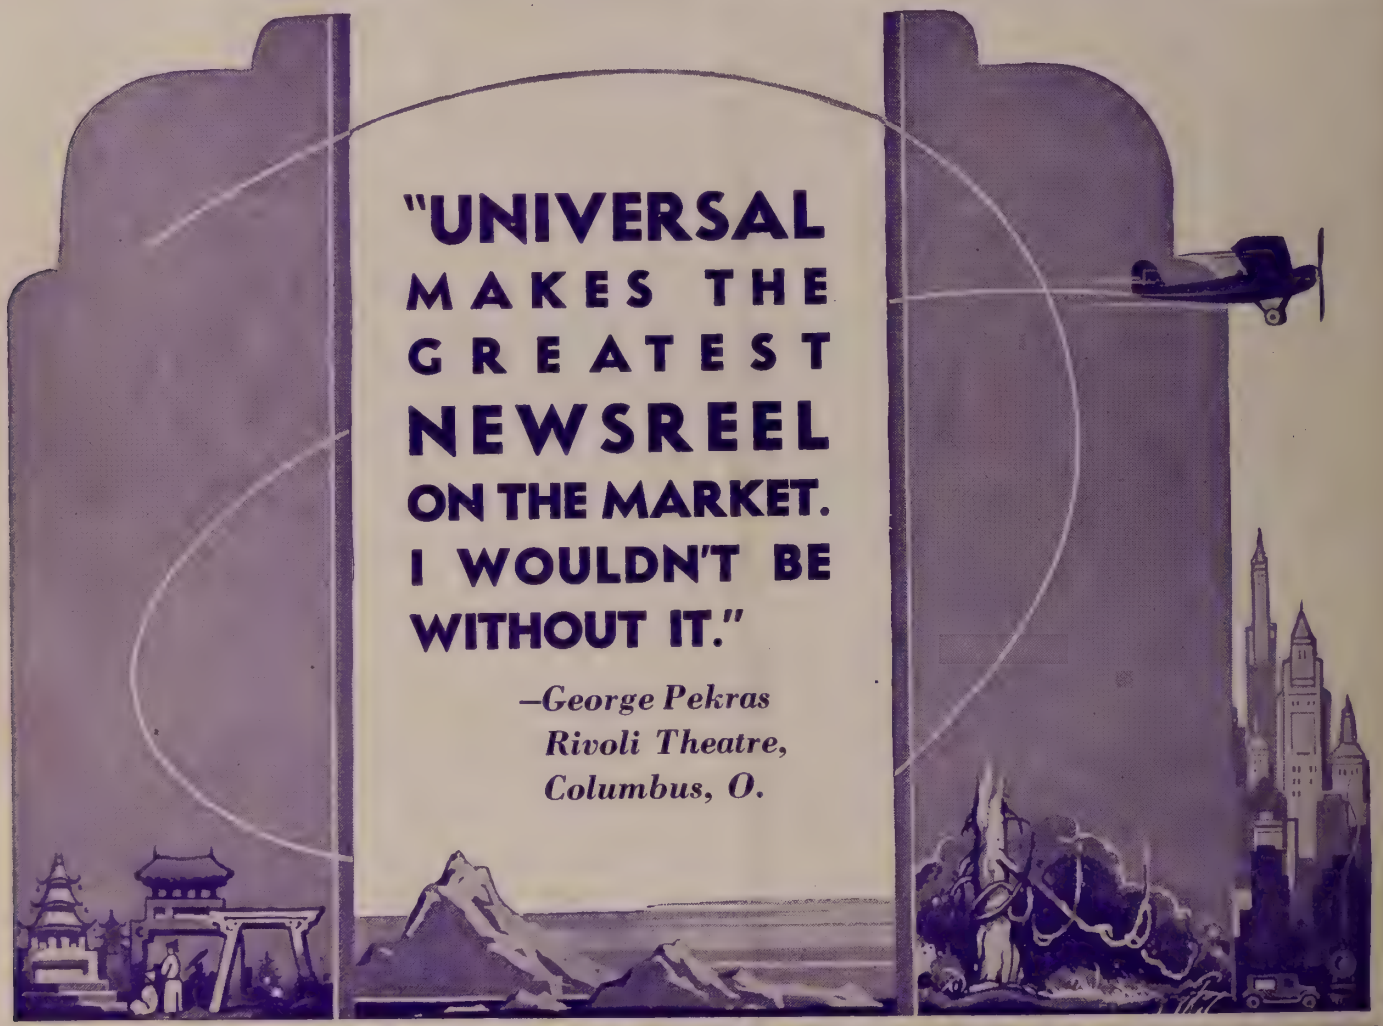
NEW YORK CITY

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
New York, N. Y.

Paid

Permit No. 949

ROBERT B WENNER
22 CROSS ST
MALDEN MASS



UNIVERSAL NEWSREEL

Printed in U. S. A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
VOL. 34 NO. 5
JULY 14, 1934

Adolphe Menjou
in
"THE HUMAN SIDE"

CLAUDETTE COLBERT
in Fannie Hurst's
Imitation of Life
A JOHN M. STAHL PRODUCTION

COMING!

SUTTER'S GOLD

A HOWARD HAWKS PRODUCTION

WHEN IS A RELEASE

No. 778 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

Universal deliberately made "Little Man, What Now?" for release at the opening of the summer season, knowing full well that it was running into the handicap of the summer weather.

No producer can do more than that for you.

No producer can show a greater interest in your welfare nor a greater understanding of your immediate needs.

Understand, we did this deliberately.

You never need great pictures more pressingly than when you have to overcome tough weather.

The custom of the business is to give you weak pictures when you are in greatest need of strong ones.

But Universal has been careless about customs. I hope to heaven it always will be.

I know from long experience that a great picture will draw business for you, regardless of rain or shine, heat or cold. I had just enough experience in running theatres to have a very sympathetic understanding of your toughest problems.

A GENUINE RELEASE?

So, consider "Little Man, What Now?" my recognition of your actual, urgent needs.

True, it was a gamble for Universal to release a great picture in the face of probable bad weather conditions. But I have never been afraid of a gamble of this sort.

If Universal is willing to give practical recognition of your problems, surely it is up to you to do your part to make the gamble a winning one? How can you do your part? Simply by advertising that you have a GREAT PICTURE OUT OF SEASON—a great picture at a time when nobody expects one!

At this time of year, you cannot coast along. You have got to hammer your business into success, no matter how blighting the weather may be.

I am giving you the hammer. It is a test of your expertness as a showman to prove that you know a great thing when you see it.

And furthermore, this is not the only knockout that I am going to release just when you need it the most.

When you are in need of greatest help, look to Universal!

Carl Laemmle

VICKI BAUM'S I GIVE MY LOVE

IT HITS THE HEART!

•

PAUL LUKAS

WYNNE GIBSON

ERIC LINDEN—Dorothy Appleby—John Darrow—Anita Louise Sam Hardy. A B. F. Zeidman Production. Directed by Karl Freund.

Carl Laemmle Orders Jimmy Grainger Celebration

James R. Grainger, general Manager of Distribution for Universal. During the next six weeks the thousands of exhibitors who know him will have the opportunity to celebrate with him by bookings.

THE six weeks period between July 23rd and September 1 has been designated by Carl Laemmle in a cable from Vienna as Jimmy Grainger Celebration.

In his twenty years in moving pictures, James R. Grainger, general manager of distribution for Universal, has undoubtedly made more friends, knows more exhibitors by their first names, and has sold more moving picture contracts, than any man in the sales end of the business. This period will also mark the first anniversary of Mr. Grainger's association with Universal. When the association was first announced a year ago, Carl Laemmle made this statement:

"I am delighted to have the opportunity of announcing Mr. James R. Grainger as our new General Sales Manager. I have admired him and his work for years. I feel too, that this is a very auspicious time, both for Universal and for Mr. Grainger. It is a time when leadership of the type of which he is capable may produce unbounded good, not only for Universal but for the industry. I feel confident that we are entering a bullish market and one in which this industry will make a marked advance if properly led and if given the proper product."

The orders to the exchanges affecting Jimmy Grainger Celebration period were issued by R. H. Cochrane, the executive officer of Universal during Mr. Laemmle's absence in Europe.

At the same time, Mr. Cochrane announced three new pictures to be released during this period. They are:

Diana Wynyard in "One More River," a James Whale production of John Galsworthy's last novel, with a cast including Colin Clive, Frank Lawton, Jane Wyatt, Mrs. Patrick Campbell, Lionel Atwill, Reginald Denny, Henry Stephenson and C. Aubrey Smith.

"Romance in the Rain," a romantic comedy with music featuring Heather Angel, Roger Pryor, Victor Moore, Esther Ralston and a large cast of principals and choristers. "Romance in the Rain" was directed by Stuart Walker.

The third is a production of Christine Ames' play, "The Human Side," a new title for which will be announced tomorrow. It features Adolphe Menjou with Doris Kenyon and includes in its cast Charlotte Henry, Betty Lawford, Dickie Moore, Reginald Owen, Joseph Cawthorn, Jack Mulhall, Dick Winslow and Bill Dooley. The screenplay is by Frank Craven and Ernest Pascal and was directed by Edward Buzzell.

In addition to these new pictures, however, there are a number of recent releases which will be included in the celebration. For instance, there

(Continued on Page 26)

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, New York City
Copyrighted 1934
Universal Pictures Corp.
(All Rights Reserved)
JULY 14, 1934
Vol. 34 No. 5

UNIVERSAL 1934

THE GREAT ZIEGFELD

Starring William Powell. By William Anthony McGuire and Billie Burke.

•

PRINCESS O'HARA

Damon Runyon's Collier's Magazine Story (Author of "Lady for a Day, "Little Miss Marker," etc.)

•

STRANGE WIVES

From Edith Wharton's Cosmopolitan Magazine Story, "Bread Upon the Waters."

•

MYSTERY OF EDWIN DROOD

Charles Dickens Story. With Karloff, Frank Lawton, Heather Angel.

•

SHOW BOAT

Edna Ferber's greatest novel—Florenz Ziegfeld's greatest stage production—Jerome Kern's most beautiful music.

•

TRANSIENT LADY

Octavus Roy Cohen's great Liberty Magazine Story. Starring Gloria Stuart.

•

THE RAVEN

Edgar Allan Poe Thriller with Karloff and Lugosi together again.

•

IT HAPPENED IN NEW YORK

From the story by Ward Morehouse and Rian James, with Heather Angel.

SUTTER'S GOLD

From the famous novel by Blaise Cendrars. A Howard Hawks Production.

•

GREAT EXPECTATIONS

Charles Dickens' classic brought to life on the screen, with Henry Hull.

•

A CUP OF COFFEE

By Preston Sturges, author of "Strictly Dishonorable," "Child of Manhattan," etc.

•

THE MAN WHO RECLAIMED HIS HEAD

Play by Jean Bart. Screenplay by the author.

•

TWO MARGARET SULLAVAN

Productions—"THE GOOD FAIRY," play by Franz Molnar, and "WITHIN THIS PRESENT," novel by Margaret Ayer Barnes.

•

$1,000,000 RANSOM

Damon Runyon's sensational Cosmopolitan Magazine story. With Phillips Holmes, Edward Arnold, Mary Carlisle. Directed by Murray Roth.

•

MOON MULLINS

"Funny paper" character known to 25,000,000 readers, on the screen IN THE FLESH. A great comedy feature.

•

GIFT OF GAB

Edmund Lowe, surrounded by a score of the biggest names of the screen, stage and radio —names such as Phil Baker, Ruth Etting, Gene Austin, Downey Sisters, Beal Street Boys, Ethel Waters and many others.

35

FEATURES

SCHOOL FOR SCANDAL

A modernized version of the world-famous Sheridan play.

•

SPEED

Universal's mighty melodrama for 1934-35.

•

A JOHN M. STAHL PRODUCTION

•

I'VE BEEN AROUND

A beautiful young sophisticate tells the world what she thinks of it.

•

WAKE UP AND DREAM

Starring Russ Columbo, with June Knight, Roger Pryor, Henry Armetta. Directed by Kurt Neumann. A B. F. Zeidman Production.

•

AT YOUR SERVICE

Biggest tennis stars in heart-hitting romance of small-town boy who hits the heights.

•

NIGHT LIFE OF THE GODS

Thorne Smith's widely-read novel. A Lowell Sherman Production.

•

FANNY

Stage play by Marcel Pagnol. Directed by William Wyler. With Jane Wyatt.

•

CHEATING CHEATERS

Famous Broadway play by Max Marcin.

CONFESSIONS OF A MODERN WOMAN

By a writer who refuses to divulge her name. A "true story" with a wallop.

•

MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION

From the perennial best seller by Lloyd C. Douglas. (Now in 35th edition).

•

KEEP ON DANCING

Youth's fondest dreams come true in a modern drama.

•

THERE'S ALWAYS TOMORROW

Frank Morgan, Binnie Barnes, Lois Wilson, Elizabeth Young, Louise Latimer. Directed by Edward Sloman.

•

WHAT WOMEN DREAM

Aimed straight at the hearts of the nation's millions of feminine moviegoers.

•

ZEST

Best Seller by Charles G. Norris, also author of "Seed." Starring Douglass Montgomery.

•

THE JOY OF LIVING

A great drama in tune with these changing times. Box-office every minute.

•

BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN

A James Whale Production with Karloff and the original "Frankenstein" cast, excepting John Boles.

4 BIG SERIALS for 1934-35

BUCK JONES IN THE RED RIDER

From the story by W. C. Tuttle

•

TAILSPIN TOMMY

The hero of the adventure strip now running in more than 450 newspapers in the flesh on the screen! A world of action piled into an air thriller without a peer!

•

RUSTLERS of RED DOG

Western action serial with everything on the ball. Zip and speed and drama and mystery—plus some brand new thrills. Watch for announcement of star and cast.

•

CALL of the SAVAGE

Universal surprise serial. Soon you'll know all about one of the biggest serial ideas ever thought of . . . One of the smashingest serials ever produced.

SEEN at UNI-VERSAL CITY

Claudette Colbert, having just completed "Cleopatra," moves her make-up box over to Universal City to do Fannie Hurst's "Imitation of Life." John M. Stahl has gone on record as stating that this is the most interesting and pictureable book that he has ever filmed, and he made a tremendous success with "Back Street," "Seed," and "Only Yesterday."

● Even the ponies get the knack early in Hollywood of stealing the show. Here is Baby Silver grabbing the spotlight away from Buck Jones' educated horse, Silver, and Buck, star of "The Red Rider," is amused at the brashness of this coming movie star. Incidentally, Baby Silver appears in this lead-off Universal serial, "The Red Rider."

● A group at Universal City showing how cosmopolitan this production has become. Here is Chester Morris, who was born in New York City, a splendid actor, star of "Embarrassing Moments" and "Let's Talk It Over"; Alice White, ex-script girl, from Paterson, N. J., now an important figure in "Gift of Gab;" Heather Angel, born in Oxford, England, who has played her way around the world and is now finishing her first Universal production, "Romance in the Rain"; and Buck Jones. Buck, ex-plainsman, all-round cowboy actor and idol of youth, has just completed the serial, "The Red Rider," and is preparing for a series of action pictures at Universal City. He was born in Vincennes, Ind., and has spent his life in the saddle.

The World's Greatest

SHORT SUBJECTS

for 1934-35

26 TWO-REEL UNIVERSAL COMEDIES

One-Reelers:

GOING PLACES

WITH

LOWELL THOMAS

20 OSWALD

The Lucky Rabbit Cartoons

STRANGER THAN FICTION

"The World's Oddities on the screen."

6 CARTUNE CLASSICS IN COLOR

FIRST SCENES FROM NEW PICTURES

"THE HUMAN SIDE"

In its second week in production, with Adolphe Menjou, Doris Kenyon, Betty Lawford, Charlotte Henry, Dickie Moore, Reginald Owen, Joseph Cawthorn, George Earnest, Dick Winslow, Jack Mulhall and Bill Dooley, "The Human Side" promises to be one of Universal's most interesting pictures. It is one of the concluding pictures of this current season.

●

"MILLION DOLLAR RANSOM"

"IMITATION OF LIFE"

● One of the surprises of the season will undoubtedly be little Juanita Quigley, who was discovered for "Imitation of Life" by John Stahl and who plays the daughter of Claudette Colbert in this Fannie Hurst story. Juanita is two and a half years old, speaks lines fluently, and has arrived at the dignity of a stand-in.

●

● At Left: The first still from the Damon Runyon story, "Million Dollar Ransom," which ran in Cosmopolitan Magazine. It has a cast headed by Phillips Holmes, Edward Arnold, Mary Carlisle, Wini Shaw, Marjorie Gateson, Andy Devine, Robert Gleckler, Henry Kolker, Joyce Compton, Dorothy Christy, Spencer Charters and Jane Darwell. It is being made under the direction of Murray Roth.

Margaret Sullavan

in

LITTLE MAN WHAT NOW?

•

LET ITS CURRENT BOX-OFFICE RECORD BE YOUR GUIDE!

•

Recommend "Little Man" For General Family Audiences

THE CLEVELAND CINEMA CLUB
Chamber of Commerce Club—Terminal Tower Bldg

July 2, 1934

Mr. Carl Laemmle
Universal Pictures
New York City.

Gentlemen:

Through the courtesy of your Mr. Nathan and Mr. Lynch of The Allen Theatre, the board members of The Cleveland Cinema were invited to the first showing of the picture "Little Man, What Now?" We were very much interested in it and feel that it can be heartily recommended for general family audiences. If there were more pictures of such good solid worth, there would be no need for outside interference with the motion picture industry.

The story itself was good, bringing out faith and endurance, love and understanding. Such a picture can only help and has a splendid lesson in these trying times. Although the background was foreign, it is really applicable to any country. Since the Cleveland Cine, a Club is interested in the better pictures, we hope for more from your company of this finer type.

Sincerely yours,

MRS. W. J. MacLACHLAN
President

339 Dalwood Dr.
Cleveland, O.

Margaret Sullavan and Douglass Montgomery in "Little Man, What Now?"

CINEMA Hall-MARKS Call "Little Man, What Now?" Essentially a Clean Picture (June 25, 1934)

IN the success of "Little Man, What Now?" the advocates for clean pictures have a powerful argument. This is essentially a clean picture. It dramatizes what is best in an ordinary boy and girl. It is not hokum but realism, great realism. We are too inclined to believe that the only things that are realistic are those that are cynical, those that show human beings succumbing to their baser instincts and influences.

"Little Man, What Now?" is different. It shows a boy and girl resisting sinister social and economic forces and striving to develop the best in themselves. It shows that good impulses are no less inherent to human beings than are faults. Sympathy for a little boy who falls down in the street causes them to decide to get married and abandon any plans to thwart Nature. Decency causes them to leave an immoral refuge and to throw themselves on the mercy of a harsh and decadent city. The kindliness of an old truck driver provides them with a droll refuge. Of course it must be noted that in order to throw the good young couple into a dramatic highlight it is necessary to contrast them with vulgarians and criminals. It also is necessary to introduce a sex motive.

But in both instances Mr. Borzage moves with taste and genius. At all times he maintains a light touch that makes these things lose any vicious effect they might have on an audience. He does this by preserving so much humor that the audience always feels kindly amusement toward the story. He is particularly ingenious in those touches with which he indicates pregnancy. Every director before him has treated it in a manner that caused painful recollections to mothers. But Mr. Borzage, with touches such as the exquisitely humorous (and pathetic incident)of the hungry wife who ate up all the salmon and the ensuing kindness of the husband, brings up

(Continued on Page 28)

Photoplay Honors "Little Man"

•

Photoplay Magazine for the current month gives "Little Man, What Now?" a great review and a great position in the honors of the month. It puts this Borzage production at the head of the list. In addition to that it gives the best performances of the month to Margaret Sullavan, to Douglass Montgomery and to Alan Hale in that order. These performances of course were registered in "Little Man, What Now?" A litle further down the list it also credits a best performance of the month to Chester Morris in "Let's Talk It Over. See this review on page 23.

•

The Shadow Stage

(REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.)

A Review of the New Pictures

☆ LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?—Universal

THIS production is another triumph for Margaret Sullavan. As the heartening young wife who carries her husband (Douglass Montgomery) through repeated discouragements, she surpasses the heights of her performance in "Only Yesterday."

Simple and direct, true and human, understandable and elemental in its appeal is this vital document of life, free from any veneer of superficiality or dramatic subterfuge.

Director Frank Borzage achieves his masterpiece in translating Hans Fallada's tender but powerful story of a little man's struggle with life. He has played fair with the author, with his message and characters; he has added only his genius to weave a bold and living tapestry, wherein no color clashes or offends, no thread strays from the clear pattern of the tale.

There is tragedy, there is humor, and beauty in generous measure, replete with the finest screen mountings, an inspiring reality—a wonderful message to a troubled world—summed in the words of Lammchen (Margaret Sullavan), "We create life—why be afraid of it?"

Douglass Montgomery fits his rôle as though it were made for him. Alan Hale, Christian Rub and DeWitt Jennings are superb in cameo-cut character classics. All other players, including Muriel Kirkland, Catherine Doucet and Monroe Owsley, are well cast.

•

The Best Pictures of the Month

LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW? — THE THIN MAN
ONE NIGHT OF LOVE
BULLDOG DRUMMOND STRIKES BACK
THE LAST GENTLEMAN — COCKEYED CAVALIERS
LET'S TALK IT OVER — MURDER AT THE VANITIES
OPERATOR 13 — RETURN OF THE TERROR

The Best Performances of the Month

Margaret Sullavan in "Little Man, What Now?"
Douglass Montgomery in "Little Man, What Now?"
Alan Hale in "Little Man, What Now?"
William Powell in "The Thin Man"
Myrna Loy in "The Thin Man"
Grace Moore in "One Night of Love"
Ronald Colman in "Bulldog Drummond Strikes Back"
Charles Butterworth in "Bulldog Drummond Strikes Back"
George Arliss in "The Last Gentleman"
Chester Morris in "Let's Talk It Over"
Marion Davies in "Operator 13"
Joe E. Brown in "The Circus Clown"
Ann Harding in "The Life of Vergie Winters"
Reginald Owen in "Madame Du Barry"
Edward G. Robinson in "The Man with Two Faces"
Edna May Oliver in "Murder on the Blackboard"

ROMANCE
in the
RAIN

GET READY FOR A HIT!

—The kind of a picture that spells BIG BUSINESS for every type theatre in the land!

•

Youth!—Pep!—Rhythm!
Laughs!—Drama!—Speed!
and
E-X-P-L-O-I-T-A-T-I-O-N!

•

With

ROGER PRYOR
HEATHER ANGEL

ESTHER RALSTON — VICTOR MOORE — RUTH DONNELLY — PAUL KAYE

Story by Sig Herzig and Jay Gorney. Songs by Jay Gorney and Don Hartman. Directed by Stuart Walker. A Stanley Bergerman Production, presented by Carl Laemmle.

LATEST PRODUCTION NEWS FI

Diana Wynyard and Frank Lawton Sail For England; Will Return

ON Saturday, the Aquitania carried Diana Wynyard and Frank Lawton back to England. Both have been playing in Universal's production of John Galsworthy's last novel, "One More River," final story of the Forsythe Saga. Frank Lawton is going on business, but will return early in the Fall to make several more pictures for Universal, to whom he is under long term contract. He is scheduled to appear in Charles Dickens' "Great Expectations" and in the other Dickens picture which Universal will make, "The Mystery of Edwin Drood," in which Karloff and Heather Angel are also to appear.

Diana Wynyard, who is the star of "One More River," is returning to England on a vacation. These two played together in "Cavalcade." In the older picture they were mother and son; in "One More River" they are lovers.

"One More River" was made under the direction of James Whale and with the utmost effort to preserve the English atmosphere and the entire feeling of the Galsworthy book. In order to do this, he made a trip to assist R. C. Sherriff in adapting the novel to the screen, and he selected a cast of actors all but one of whom are English. Jane Wyatt is the lone American. The Britishers in support of Diana Wynyard are Colin Clive, Frank Lawton, Mrs. Patrick Campbell, E. E. Clive, Reginald Denny, Lionel Atwill, Henry Stephenson, Kathleen Howard and C. Aubrey Smith.

One of the fascinating ensemble scenes from "Romance in the Rain." This scene shows the Downey Sisters in the "F'r Instance" production number, which is one of the most elaborate ever introduced in a picture since "King of Jazz." Broke all records for elaborateness.

Emil Forst to Europe For New Stories

EMIL FORST of the Universal scenario department, has been sent by Carl Laemmle, Jr. to Europe in an effort to secure a number of continental stage successes which have the qualities to adapt them to American movies. He will arrive in New York tomorrow and sail on Saturday, July 14th, on the Champlain.

✚ ✚ ✚

"Wake Up and Dream" Starts at Universal City

YESTERDAY Universal placed in production Russ Columbo's first starring picture, "Wake Up and Dream." This Universal musical is by John Meehan, Jr. In addition to the supporting cast, which included Roger Pryor, June Knight, Henry Armetta and Andy Devine, the following were yesterday announced: Matt McHugh, Spencer Charters, Constance Kent, Eddie Prinz and Philip Dakin. The latter is the product of Carl Laemmle, Jr.s' recent product search. He is a young stock player from Illinois and reached Universal City less than a week ago. Although he has a splendid singing voice, in the picture he is taken out of the show in Atlantic City, and that is how Russ Columbo gets the part. Dakin hopes that this will not prejudice his future at Universal.

The first scenes are being made in the famous "Phantom" stage at Universal City, the first structural steel iron set ever built in California. The huge interior represents a scene in Atlantic City where a musical comedy is trying out for its metropolitan debut. "Wake Up and Dream" is being directed by Kurt Neumann.

✚ ✚ ✚

New Universal "Deb" Gets A Contract

UNIVERSAL has given a term contract to sixteen year old Phyllis Ludwig. The contract resulted from a beauty contest in Sacramento which was won by Miss Ludwig.

ɔM UNIVERSAL CITY STUDIOS

Douglass Montgomery In High Demand

EVER since "Little Man, What Now?" and the praise heaped on him by the critics, Douglass Montgomery's star has been in the ascendant. In the first place, Carl Laemmle, Jr. lost no time in signing him to a long term contract for Universal. The second move was to nominate him star of the Charles G. Norris novel, "Zest." "Zest" should have been made last season, but the lack of the ideal person to play this exacting role prevented it. Montgomery seems the ideal choice.

Secondly, a great demand for his services on the part of other studios immediately arose. Carl Laemmle, Jr. accordingly inserted a clause in his contract permitting him three outside pictures a year. One of them will be the Fox picture, "Music in the Air," in which he has the male lead.

Thirdly, yesterday Carl Laemmle, Jr. nominated him for the lead in "Magnificent Obsession." This remarkable novel by Lloyd C. Douglas is now in its 35th edition, and several more printings are being planned. "Magnificent Obsession" will be a William Anthony McGuire production, upon which he will start as soon as he has completed "The Great Ziegfeld" with William Powell.

✚ ✚ ✚

Frank Craven and Ernest Pascal Working on "The Human Side"

FRANK CRAVEN and Ernest Pascal are collaborating in writing the screenplay from Christine Ames' drama, "The Human Side." They will also provide extra dialogue. The cast is virtually completed, with Adolphe Menjou, Doris Kenyon, Joseph Cawthorn, Betty Lawford, Reginald Owen, Dickey Moore, Dick Winslow, Charlotte Henry, who will be remembered for a remarkable performance in "Alice in Wonderland." Eddie Buzzell will start the second week of production on Monday. A new title will be selected.

Stuart Walker to Direct "Great Expectations" For Universal Pictures

NO sooner had Stuart Walker completed the Stanley Bergerman production, "Romance in the Rain," than he was asked to direct a second one. Yesterday he was assigned as the director of "Great Expectations," the Charles Dickens story which will star Henry Hull, famous for his portrayal of Jeeter Lester in "Tobacco Road." Mr. Hull is now driving to California and will arrive there on or about July 18th.

It is planned to start "Great Expectations" about the first of August, unless the return from England of Frank Lawton is delayed. Lawton and Heather Angel are scheduled for "Great Expectations," for which the screenplay has been written by Gladys Unger.

✚ ✚ ✚

Two Completed At Universal City

UNIVERSAL this week completed two productions, one for this season and one for next. This season's picture is "Romance in the Rain" with Roger Pryor, Heather Angel, Victor Moore, Esther Ralston, Ruth Donnelly and Christian Rub. "Romance in the Rain" is a romantic comedy with music written by Jay Gorney and Sig Herzig, the authors of "Moonlight and Pretzels." The music was written by Jay Gorney and the lyrics by Don Hartman.

The other story completed this week is "Million Dollar Ransom" with Phillips Holmes, Edward Arnold and Mary Carlisle. This story, by Damon Runyon, originally appearing in Cosmopolitan, was directed by Murray Roth from a screen play by William Lippman. Its cast includes Wini Shaw, Marjorie Gateson, Andy Devine, Robert Gleckler, Henry Kolker, Joyce Compton, Dorothy Christy, Spencer Charters and Jane Darwell.

Roger Pryor and Heather Angel, demonstrating a scene to illustrate the title, "Romance in the Rain." Interesting, even if artificial.

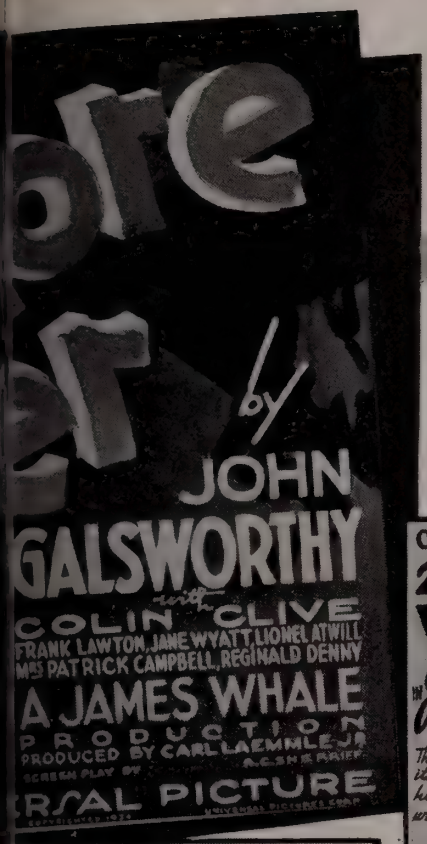
Harry Clork to Adapt "The Princess O'Hara"

HARRY CLORK, one of the authors of "The Milky Way," arrived yesterday at Universal City and was assigned by Carl Laemmle, Jr. to his first adaptation. He will arrange "The Princess O'Hara," the Damon Runyon Collier's story as his first work under his new Universal contract. He is also engaged to write material for Victor Moore and Hugh O'Connell, both of whom are at present working in "Gift of Gab" with Edmund Lowe.

Because of the illness of Arlene Judge, who in private life is Mrs. Wesley Ruggles, Karl Freund has substituted Peanuts Byron in "Gift of Gab."

POSTERS THAT CONVEY TH

BIGNESS OF THE PICTURE!



Patricia Ziegfeld Follows In Father's Footsteps

William Anthony McGuire, producer of "The Great Ziegfeld," and Patricia Ziegfeld, looking at prospective candidates for the unique choruses in this special Universal production.

A KEEN sense of showmanship that would have delighted the heart of her father if he had lived to see it has won a job for Patricia Ziegfeld with Universal Pictures. The eighteen year old daughter of the creator of the world famous Follies, fresh from a Los Angeles finishing school, has been signed as talent scout for William Anthony McGuire, Universal producer. Her first assignment is one for which Florenz Ziegfeld knew no equal . . . the selection of dancing beauties. These beauties will appear in McGuire's production of "The Great Ziegfeld," the true story of the life of the man who made theatrical history. McGuire who wrote many of Ziegfeld's most successful shows, and knew him intimately, has written the story for this production with the collaboration of Ziegfeld's widow, and mother of Patricia, Billie Burke.

Both McGuire and John Harkrider who was Ziegfeld's art director and designed all the costumes and tableaux for his stage spectacles during many seasons, report that the young Patricia has the knack of picking striking picture types to a very marked degree. She is assisting McGuire daily in choosing lovely girls for the show and is rapidly acquiring experience for the bright career prophesied for her.

William Powell will create the title role of "The Great Ziegfeld" on the screen and it will include in its cast many of the players he developed and brought to greatness.

Photoplay Likes "Let's Talk It Over"

When Photoplay Magazine gives a star to a production it means that it is above par. Photoplay liked "Let's Talk It Over" as will be seen by the following review which appeared in its current number. On another page it gave Chester Morris credit for one of the best performances of the month in the role of Mike McGann in this Stanley Bergerman production.

☆

LET'S TALK IT OVER—Universal

BECAUSE he makes the gob Mike McGann a believable and interesting person, Chester Morris breathes a strong life into the old tale of how a sailor falls for an heiress, shows her the futility of her useless existence, finally makes something of himself and wins her heart. Mae Clarke splendid as the girl. Frank Craven shines, as do Irene Ware, Andy Devine, John Warburton. For both young and old.

RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL BOOKS 150% MORE UNIVERSAL PICTURES THAN LAST YEAR

UNIVERSAL has signed its first big product contract of the season with the same theatre which took its product in New York last year, the Radio City Music Hall. The deal was arranged between James R. Grainger and F. J. A. McCarthy for Universal, and W. G. Van Schmus for the Music Hall. It provides that in the next 52 playing weeks, New York's greatest picture house will show ten Universal productions. The other feature productions will be shown in other Broadway first run houses.

Last season, in addition to its R. K. O. features, the Music Hall showed Fox and Columbia pictures as well as four from Universal. This year's committment is a hundred and fifty percent increase over last year.

Universal at the same time announced its big Specials for the next four months.

Universal's big picture for August is the James Whale production of "One More River" by John Galsworthy. Every effort was made by the director to picturize this novel of Universal assured of at least ten productions in America's most elaborate and significant theatre. Announcement made of Universal's big Specials for next four months.

English life with the utmost fidelity. R.C. Sherriff adapted it to the screen and Whale himself made a trip to Europe for atmosphere and for work with Sherriff. A strong cast almost entirely English was selected to support Diana Wynyard. It includes Colin Clive, Frank Lawton, Jane Wyatt, Mrs. Patrick Campbell, Lionel Atwill, Henry Stephenson, E. E. Clive, Reginald Denny and Kathleen Howard.

The September release is tentatively called "There's Always Tomorrow." Its title will be changed. For this production Binnie Barnes, celebrated as the fifth wife of "Henry the Eighth" in the British production which sped her to fame, was imported to this country. Upon completion of the picture, she was given a long term contract with Universal. Edward Sloman directed it from a story by a well known authoress which will be published the first week in September. In addition to Binnie Barnes, its cast includes Frank Morgan, Lois Wilson, Louise Latimer, Robert Taylor, Elizabeth Young, Dickie Moore and Dick Winslow.

In October Universal will release two big pictures, "Night Life of the Gods" by Thorne Smith, and "Imitation of Life" by Fannie Hurst. "Night Life of the Gods" will be directed by Lowell Sherman and undoubtedly Lowell Sherman will play one of the parts in this comedy drama in which a scientist has discovered a method whereby men can be turned to stone and marble statues and can be brought to life. "Imitation of Life" stars Claudette Colbert under the di-

(Continued on Page 28)

New Title For "There's Always Tomorrow"

Frank Morgan and Binnie Barnes who head the cast of Universal's lead-off picture for next year, now known in the studio under the tentative title, "There's Always Tomorrow." A new title will be selected next week.

THE first release of the Universal 1934-35 season has been completed at Universal City under the tentative title of "There's Always Tomorrow." The production needs a new title as there is already a book on the market of that name and a great likelihood of an unfortunate confusion. This production from the Liberty Magazine story by Ursula Parrott has a screen play by William Hurlbut and a cast of unusual excellence and capability. It is headed by Frank Morgan with the famous English Binnie Barnes, Lois Wilson, Louise Latimer, Elizabeth Young, Alan Hale and a number of the children in "Seed" now grown up. These children include Dick Winslow, Helen Parrish, and Maurice Murphy. The cast includes also Robert Taylor and Margaret Hamilton, Ann Darling and Dean Benton. Miss Darling is making her debut in this production and Dean Benton is one of Universal's contract players.

CHESTER
EMBARRASSIN

Speed—Romance—Laughs —and a Melodramatic Kick For Good Measure ! !

With

MARION NIXON

Walter Woolf, George Stone, Huntley Gordon, Henry Armetta, Alan Mowbray, Gay Seabrook, John Wray. Story by William Anthony McGuire. Directed by Edward Laemmle. A Stanley Bergerman Production.

MORRIS in G MOMENTS

NEWSREEL No. 265

— SYNOPSIS —

LONGSHOREMEN BATTLE POLICE IN STRIKE FOR BETTER WAGES

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—Martial law reigns on waterfront after violent demonstrations by dock workers in their picketing of piers in third month of wide-spread West Coast strike.

BRIDGETON, N. J.—Striking farm workers clash with authorities as they demonstrate for better conditions. Police restore order among farmers as many are put under arrest.

TRIPLETS BORN TO COW

GEORGETOWN, DEL.—"Cherry," a two-year-old Guernsey, is the mother of three youngsters, all normal and healthy. The rare event has caused considerable comment among both scientists and farmers, who have marveled at the multiple birth.

CHINESE IN HISTORIC RACE

SHANGHAI, CHINA — "Dragon Boats" commemorate the 2,000th anniversary of the death of the first Chinese patriot in traditional and colorful water pageant.

'CYCLE STUNTS THRILL CROWDS

MONTGOMERY, ALA.—"Daredevil" Steve Fordyce is critically injured in his "leap of death" as famous riders crash plate glass, plank fences and smash autos head-on in a thrill-ladened "motorcycle rodeo."

CRASH HALTS OCEAN HOP

MEXICO CITY, MEXICO—Francisco Sarabia's preparations for a flight to Spain come to grief when his plane is wrecked in the final trial flight on the eve of his trans-Atlantic takeoff from the Mexican capital.

OUTSIDER WINS HANDICAP AS FAVORITE PLACES THIRD

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, ILL.—Going to the post at seven to one, Indian Runner beats the favorite, Ladysman, to capture rich Stars and Stripes turf feature. Advising Anna also noses out the favorite to place second as more than 25,000 persons witness upset.

STORM CAUSES WIDE DAMAGE

BANGOR, ME.—Ruined trees and buildings are left in the path of a "baby" tornado that swept the state. Power and telephone lines were torn down and the city was paralyzed for hours.

YOUNG GIRL SHATTERS MARK

LAKE MARANACOOK, ME.—Seventeen-year-old Alice Bridges of Whitinsville, Me., clips eleven and one-fifth seconds from record for 440-yard back stroke.

NATIVES OBSERVE MIDSUMMER

VIENNA, AUSTRIA—St. John's Day, considered to be the actual beginning of summer, is observed with customs of ancient origin. For the first time in centuries the ceremony is observed in the cities as well as by the peasants.

CELEBRATE G. O. P. FOUNDING

(Detroit Only)

JACKSON, MICH.—Celebrated Republicans mark founding of the G.O.P. here as the party opens fire on the Democrats in the fight for 1934 legislative posts. Colorful ceremonies mark the occasion.

JAMES WALLINGTON WHO DRAMATIZES FIRST "STRANGER THAN FICTION"

Above you see Jimmy Wallington, announcer of NBC fame, Chase and Sanborn and other programs, who has developed into a far-famed personality. His dramatic voice does much to heighten the interest value of the first of the "Stranger Than Fiction," series.

Two New Shorts and

SO eager have exhibitors been to book Universal's two new short subject features, that in certain territories opportunities are being given for very early showings of "Going Places" with Lowell Thomas, and "Stranger Than Fiction." Without a doubt, they promise to be the outstanding short shorts of the coming season. There are thirteen of the "Stranger Than Fiction" reels. The first one is narrated by Jimmy Wallington, the famous radio broadcaster, and there are thirteen of the "Going Places," all of which are dialogued by Lowell Thomas, newspaper correspondent, newsreel editor, radio news commentator is "All Quiet on the Western Front," which is being re-issued and is meeting with remarkable success in the places where it has already played. The re-issue of the serial story in the Hearst papers has been a factor in popularizing Universal's re-issue of the production.

✚ ✚ ✚

Join The Jim Celebration

(Continued from Page 5)

A list of the other productions which are included in this Jimmy Grainger Celebration follows. The way for exhibitors to participate in this Celebration is by bookings.

Chester Morris in "EMBARRASSING MOMENTS" with Marion Nixon and Walter Woolf.

"I GIVE MY LOVE" by Vicki Baum with Paul Lukas and Wynne Gibson.

Chester Morris in 'LET'S TALK IT OVER" with Mae Clarke and Frank Craven.

Margaret Sullavan in "LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?" with Doug-

✚ ✚ ✚

Warren Doane Ma

WARREN DOANE is making four two-reel musical "Brevities" for Universal for Fall release. They will feature famous vaudeville and Radio acts, tied together in a brief story. Among the Acts appearing in the first two, now under production, are 'The King's Men' recently featured on the Hi-Jinks program and now under contract to Paul Whiteman, Cook and Laughton, The Crocketts, Chappelle & Raynors,

Universal Their Story and traveller.

First issues of both the series screened recently at the Home office, got fine comments. "Stranger Than Fiction" has Jimmy Wallington's voice as a dramatic factor in presenting new, odd facts, freaks, fads and fancies, from all over the world. Other famous announcers will be used in the same series. "Going Places" with Lowell Thomas, the man who lives news, makes every shot come to vivid life through his high powers of narration. This is a super-travel talk attraction covering several quaint spots on the map in each issue.

Both these short subjects, exhibitors will find, are remarkably exploitable.

✚ ✚ ✚

MEET LOWELL THOMAS —3,000,000 LISTEN TO HIS BROADCASTS!

NBC informs us that the estimated audience for Lowell Thomas is 3,000,000 people daily. Imagine what this means to the showman who takes advantage of billing the voice and personality of Lowell Thomas, in connection with picture short, "Going Places" which he describes in his famous, newsy way. A real box-office factor.

ny Grainger h Play Dates lass Montgomery. Novel by Hans Fallada. A Frank Borzage Production.

"THE LOVE CAPTIVE" with Nils Asther and Gloria Stuart. From the play by Max Marcin.

"AFFAIRS OF A GENTLEMAN" featuring Paul Lukas with Leila Hyams, Patricia Ellis, Joyce Compton, Dorothy Burgess, Dorothy Libaire, Sarah Haden.

"THE BLACK CAT" with Karloff and Lugosi. From the Edgar Allan Poe story.

"UNCERTAIN LADY" with Genevieve Tobin, Edward Everett Horton, Paul Cavanagh and Renee Gadd.

Lee Tracy in "I'LL TELL THE WORLD" with Gloria Stuart and Roger Pryor.

Constance Cummings and Paul Lukas in Edna Ferber's "GLAMOUR."

✚ ✚ ✚

ng Four Brevities

Ward & Van, and Florence Him-Lowe, all of whom will appear in the first film, with Lynn Cowan as Master of Ceremonies.

The second Brevity will feature the Jensen Trio, Edith Evans and Ray Mayer, The Royal Bell Ringers, Dick Edwards, and Tyrell and Fawcett.

The Brevities will replace four of the two-reel Warren Doane Comedy shorts and may lead to additional musical comedy briefs.

NEWSREEL No. 264

– SYNOPSIS –

FOUR DIE, 1400 RESCUED AS LINER HITS SUBMERGED ROCK

KOPERVIK, NORWAY—With a crowd of 1,000 German excursionists aboard, the North German Lloyd Liner Dresden smashes her bottom against an uncharted reef in a treacherous fiord and slowly keels over. All but four of the passengers are rescued.

NEW SUPER PLANE TESTED

BRIDGEPORT, CONN. — With Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh at the controls, a new 32-passenger transport ship — the largest ever built in the United States—attains a speed of 190 miles an hour in her final test flight before being licensed for service between North and South America.

HEAT WAVE GRIPS GOTHAM

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Scorching sun and great humidity drives the city's millions to the seashore and other watering places, while children, unable to leave their homes, frolic in fountains and under streams from fire hydrants.

U. S. PAYS BANK DEPOSITORS

EAST PEORIA, ILL.—For the first time in history, the Government re-imburses the patrons of a defunct bank by cashing in their accounts for one hundred cents on the dollar, under the new Federal insurance act.

PEASANTS IN COLORFUL FETE

NOLA, ITALY—Hundreds of villagers honor their patron, Saint Paolino, on the anniversary of his victory over the Turks in the crusades, by carrying 90-foot tower-like shrines through the streets in a brilliant festival.

SPECTACULAR FINISH MARKS RUNNING OF THE GRAND PRIX

PARIS, FRANCE—Coming from behind in the home stretch, Admiral Drake, with the famous jockey Steve Donoghue up, flashes across the line a winner before a crowd that includes President Lebrun and other high officials.

REVERSIBLE PROPELLER TESTED

BURBANK, CAL.—A newly developed airplane screw with varying pitch, that permits planes to back up, climb at greater angles and come to short stops after landing, is successfully demonstrated for the first time.

MRS. SAMUEL INSULL ARRIVES

NEW YORK, N. Y.—The wife of the former utilities magnate is greeted by her son and a large crowd as she returns to America and prepares to leave for Chicago where her husband faces trial on several fraud charges of great magnitude.

POLICE CLASH WITH STRIKERS

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—Seven hundred blue-coats battle 3,000 union pickets, when business interests attempt to open forcibly this strike-paralyzed port to commerce after more than a month of futile negotiations by labor officials, shipowners and a presidential board of mediators.

HENRY HULL FOR "ROBINSON CRUSOE"

Carl Laemmle, Jr. makes surprise announcement in answer to problem of what to make to interest the kids and the grown ups at the same time.

A PICTURE which should give Henry Hull a chance to exceed the triumph in facial makeup and character acting which he scored on the stage as Jeeter Lester in "Tobacco Road" has just been announced by Carl Laemmle, Jr., production head of Universal. It is "Robinson Crusoe," the classic tale of the castaway which Daniel Defoe wrote in England in 1719, and which remains today a stock best seller on publishers' lists with the Bible, Shakespeare, Gulliver's Travels and other perennials. This is the producer's answer to the steadily intensifying problem of what to offer the younger generation of film fans and yet keep the interest of their elders. It was first intended to make "The Swiss Family Robinson" but this has been abandoned for the better known story.

The actual locale of Defoe's immortal novel, the desolate island of Juan Fernandez, 300 miles off the coast of Chile, may be used in making the Universal production The possibility is being debated of bringing real cannibals from the Solomon Islands.

With Robinson Crusoe seeing the footprint of Friday on the sands of the actual island he was supposed to inhabit, the film should acquire a newsreel reality which would have delighted Defoe, who was the greatest reporter of his day. His story of Robinson Crusoe was based on the real experiences of Alexander Selkirk, sailing master of the English privateer, Cinque Ports Galley, who at his own request was landed by Captain Stradling on Jan Fernandez. Selkirk stayed four years and four months, from 1704 to 1709. He was rescued by Captain Woodes Rogers in 1709 and brought back to England, where Defoe got his story and made it immortal.

Hull is enthusiastic about his new assignment. He must first complete his initial Universal picture, Charles Dickens' "Great Expectations." Delighted when Jeeter Lester won him the liberation from the series of drawing room roles which threatened to smother him, he looks forward to Robinson Crusoe as an even greater adventure in character acting, the field in which it has always been his desire to excell.

✚ ✚ ✚

Herman Stern Celebrates With Deals

LAST week marked the twentieth anniversary of Herman Stern, Non-Theatrical Manager, with the company. He celebrated the occassion, as salesmen will, by announcing several swell deals, among which were the following:

In the Los Angeles office, contracts have been consummated for the exhibition of Universal features each week on the U. S. Destroyer base in San Diego, Calif. For this, Salesman Sinift gets credit.

Out of the Big U a deal was secured for supplying ten pictures at leading Summer resorts, all of them to be played in the same county, with Salesman Liggett getting outstanding prices.

Another recent Big U booking achievement is to put Universal pictures into Billy Rose's Music Hall, which has just opened in New York.

Great work—from a great worker! And a real celebration for a man who likes to be congratulated with contracts.

Radio City Music Hall Books 150% More Universal Pictures Than Last Year

(Continued from Page 23)

rection of John M. Stahl, director of "Seed," "Back Street" and "Only Yesterday." Of them all, Stahl considers "Imitation of Life" the most powerful story. William Hurlbut adapted the novel to the screen. The cast includes Alan Hale, Ned Sparks, Rochelle Hudson, Louise Beavers, little two-year-old Juanita Quigley, Marilyn Knowlden, Freddie Washington, Siebe Hendricks and Dorothy Black.

Universal's big one for November will be "The Good Fairy" by Ferenc Molnar, starring Margaret Sullavan, the first of two productions for the star of "Little Man, What Now?" in Universal's next year's line-up. Preston Sturges is already adapting this play in which Helen Hayes and Walter Connolly played so successfully at the Henry Miller Theatre several seasons ago.

"The Great Ziegfeld" will be Universal's big picture for December. William Powell has been chosen to impersonate "The Great Glorifier" and a great deal of work has already been accomplished on the production by William Anthony McGuire, who is writing the story with Billie Burke and who will have charge of the production. John Harkrider who was closely associated with Ziegfeld, is designing the costumes and the settings and Patricia Ziegfeld, daughter of the late Florenz Ziegfeld and Billie Burke is assisting Mr. McGuire in choosing from the tremendous number of ex-Ziegfeldians who want to go into this production, those who will best represent Ziegfeld Follies Girls. In the cast will appear a great many of the players who appeared in Ziegfeld's famous shows.

✚ ✚ ✚

CINEMA-Hall-Marks

(Continued from Page 14)

recollections of symptoms and events that are funny and sweet, things that become the beloved little anecdotes of every family.

A curiosity of "Little Man, What Now?" is to be found in the fact that although the book was read widely it did not promote business for the film. The book led people to believe the picture would be despondent. By its amusing qualities the picture is selling itself.

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY SHOWMANSHIP SECTION

A DIGEST OF THE BEST EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

NEW HAVEN SCHOOL TIE-UP BOOSTS POLI "LITTLE MAN" RUN

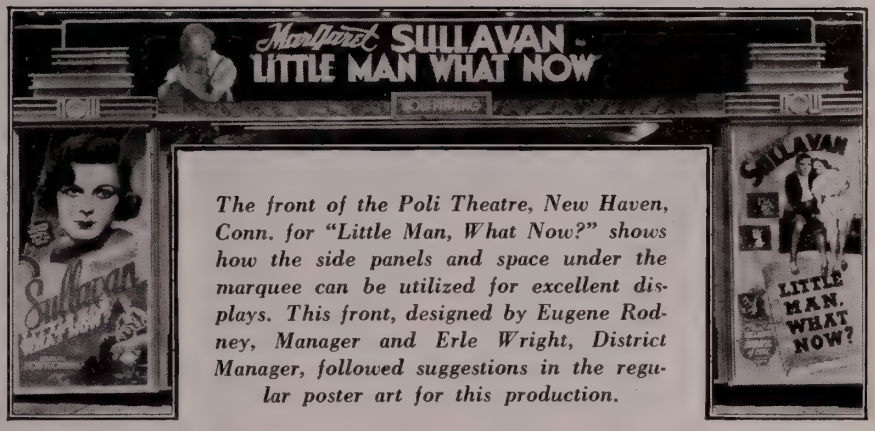
FOR the showing of "Little Man, What Now?" at the Poli Theatre, New Haven, Conn., Eugene Rodney, Manager and Erle Wright, District Manager landed big tie-ups with the Board of Education, the city's largest florist and many book, clothing and bakery stores.

Through the Board of Education, they were able to promote model homes built by pupils of the industrial school. These were arranged in the lobby to resemble a village, as shown below. A special poster and tie-up card gave the title a good boost. The exhibition drew thousands to the lobby where they were handed copies of the booklet, "The Story of Your Life."

Myers' flower shop, located on the city's busiest corner devoted an entire window to the display of an immense basket filled with multi-colored flowers. Together with this was a beautifully framed enlarged photo of Miss Sullavan and a large tag that read: "To be delivered to Miss Sullavan, appearing on the screen at the Poli Theatre in "Little Man, What Now?"

The book, clothing, fashion and bakery tie-ups netted the engagement many fine window displays and extra newspaper space.

An attractive front, advance lobby displays, movie magazine tie-ups, tire covers for taxis, and special cards for busses were other features of the campaign. Albert Nathan, Universal Exploiteer assisted.



The front of the Poli Theatre, New Haven, Conn. for "Little Man, What Now?" shows how the side panels and space under the marquee can be utilized for excellent displays. This front, designed by Eugene Rodney, Manager and Erle Wright, District Manager, followed suggestions in the regular poster art for this production.

CLEVELAND CINEMA CLUB LENDS HAND TO LYNCH'S "LITTLE MAN" CAMPAIGN

WITH the presentation of a giant cake to Margaret Sullavan for her excellent performance in "Little Man, What Now?", Charles Lynch, Manager opened his campaign for the Allen Theatre, Cleveland, Ohio. The honor was bestowed on Miss Sullavan by the Cleveland Cinema Club after the members had seen the picture at a special preview. The cake was displayed in the lobby throughout the run.

The baker of the cake, proud of his efforts and enxious to assist Lynch, prepared a special window card and a miniature cake for his twenty-five store windows. The card, carrying photograph, reproduction of which appears below called attention to the cake on show in the theatre, the playdate, the star, and the picture. The newspapers were supplied with the photograph which they used with stories in their editorial columns.

Lynch, as many others are doing, cashed in on the big national tie-ups. The book netted him seven windows on the city's main street and a distribution of ten thousand, "The Story of Your Life" booklets. The fashion tie-up brought him a window display of reproductions of the clothes worn by Margaret Sullavan in the picture. And through the fan magazine, he had banners placed on sixteen delivery wagons, one thousand special window cards placed on newsstands and in store windows, and fine window displays in Woolworths.

A tie-up with Eastman Kodak accounted for a tremendous window display based on the excellently photographed stills from the picture. A credit card gave the star, picture and theatre an excellent break.

Giant cake and members of Cleveland Cinema Club who presented it to Margaret Sullavan after viewing her performance at preview of "Little Man, What Now?" at Allen Theatre. Preview was part of Manager Lynch's big campaign.

EXAMPLES OF SMART LAYOUT AND COPY!

(1.) Double column x 6½" from Hollywood, Fort Worth, Tex. (2.) Three column x 14" from Grand, Topeka, Kans. (3.) Two column x 9" from Music Box, Portland, Ore. (4.) Double column x 7" from Minnesota, Minneapolis, Minn. (5.) Two column x 3½" from Paramount, Youngstown, Ohio. (6.) Double column x 5" from Palace, Rochester, N. Y. (7.) Two column x 7½" from Capitol, Richmond, Va.

Adolphe

MENJOU

in Christine Ames' great stage comedy-drama tentatively titled "The Human Side"

With

DORIS KENYON

Dickie Moore, Joseph Cawthorn, Reginald Owen, Betty Lawford, Charlotte Henry. Directed by Edward Buzzell.

From

UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.

ROCKEFELLER CENTER

NEW YORK CITY

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
New York, N. Y.

Paid

Permit No. 949

ROBERT B WENNER
22 CROSS ST
MALDEN MASS

"UNIVERSAL NEWS-REEL: Graham McNamee —When better newsreels are made, Uncle Carl will make 'em."

—Frank Sabin,
Majestic Theatre,
Eureka, Mont.,
in Motion Picture Herald

Printed in U. S. A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

VOL. 35 NO. 8

AUG. 4, 1934

O K

Roger PRYOR and Heather ANGEL

in "ROMANCE in the RAIN"

Romance in the Rain

With

ROGER PRYOR
HEATHER ANGEL

Esther Ralston, Victor Moore, Ruth Donnelly, Paul Kaye,. Story by Sig Herzig and Jay Gorney. Songs by Jay Gorney and Don Hartman. Screenplay by Barry Trivers. Directed by Stuart Walker.

•

A STANLEY BERGERMAN PRODUCTION

presented by

CARL LAEMMLE

A modern Cinderella–full of pep and youth and the rhythm of the times – meets her Prince Charming – via today's high-pressure exploitation methods – in A SMASH ROMANTIC COMEDY WITH ...INCIDENTAL ...MUSIC! DON'T MISS THE FUN OF THE SEARCH FOR CINDERELLA!

ALL THE EAR-MARKS

No. 781 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

All the things a picture needs for success:

Romance and comedy.

Drama, youth and beauty.

Story—and some awfully smart incidental music!

All of these ingredients you will find in "Romance in the Rain"—one of those pictures that you've simply got to have to assure a profitable engagement.

It will star Roger Pryor and Heather Angel, plus Esther Ralston, Ruth Donnelly and Paul Kaye.

And it will show for the first time on the screen the comedian who has been a mainstay of many a stage success—none other than Victor Moore.

I want you to watch Mr. Moore's work not only because of this one picture but with an eye to future profits for your own box office. It looks as though he is going to steal away the laurels from many of the screen's best performers in the comedy line, because he offers a line entirely new to the screen.

OF A SMASH HIT!

The story is by Sig Herzig and Jay Gorney and the incidental songs are from the modern, fertile brain of Jay Gorney, who was responsible for some of the world-wide song hits of "Moonlight and Pretzels."

The direction is by Stuart Walker and it is a Stanley Bergerman production, and so was "Moonlight and Pretzels."

But don't misunderstand me. It is not just a follow-up on the successful "Moonlight and Pretzels."

In fact it is one of those refreshing pictures which get away from everything you have seen before.

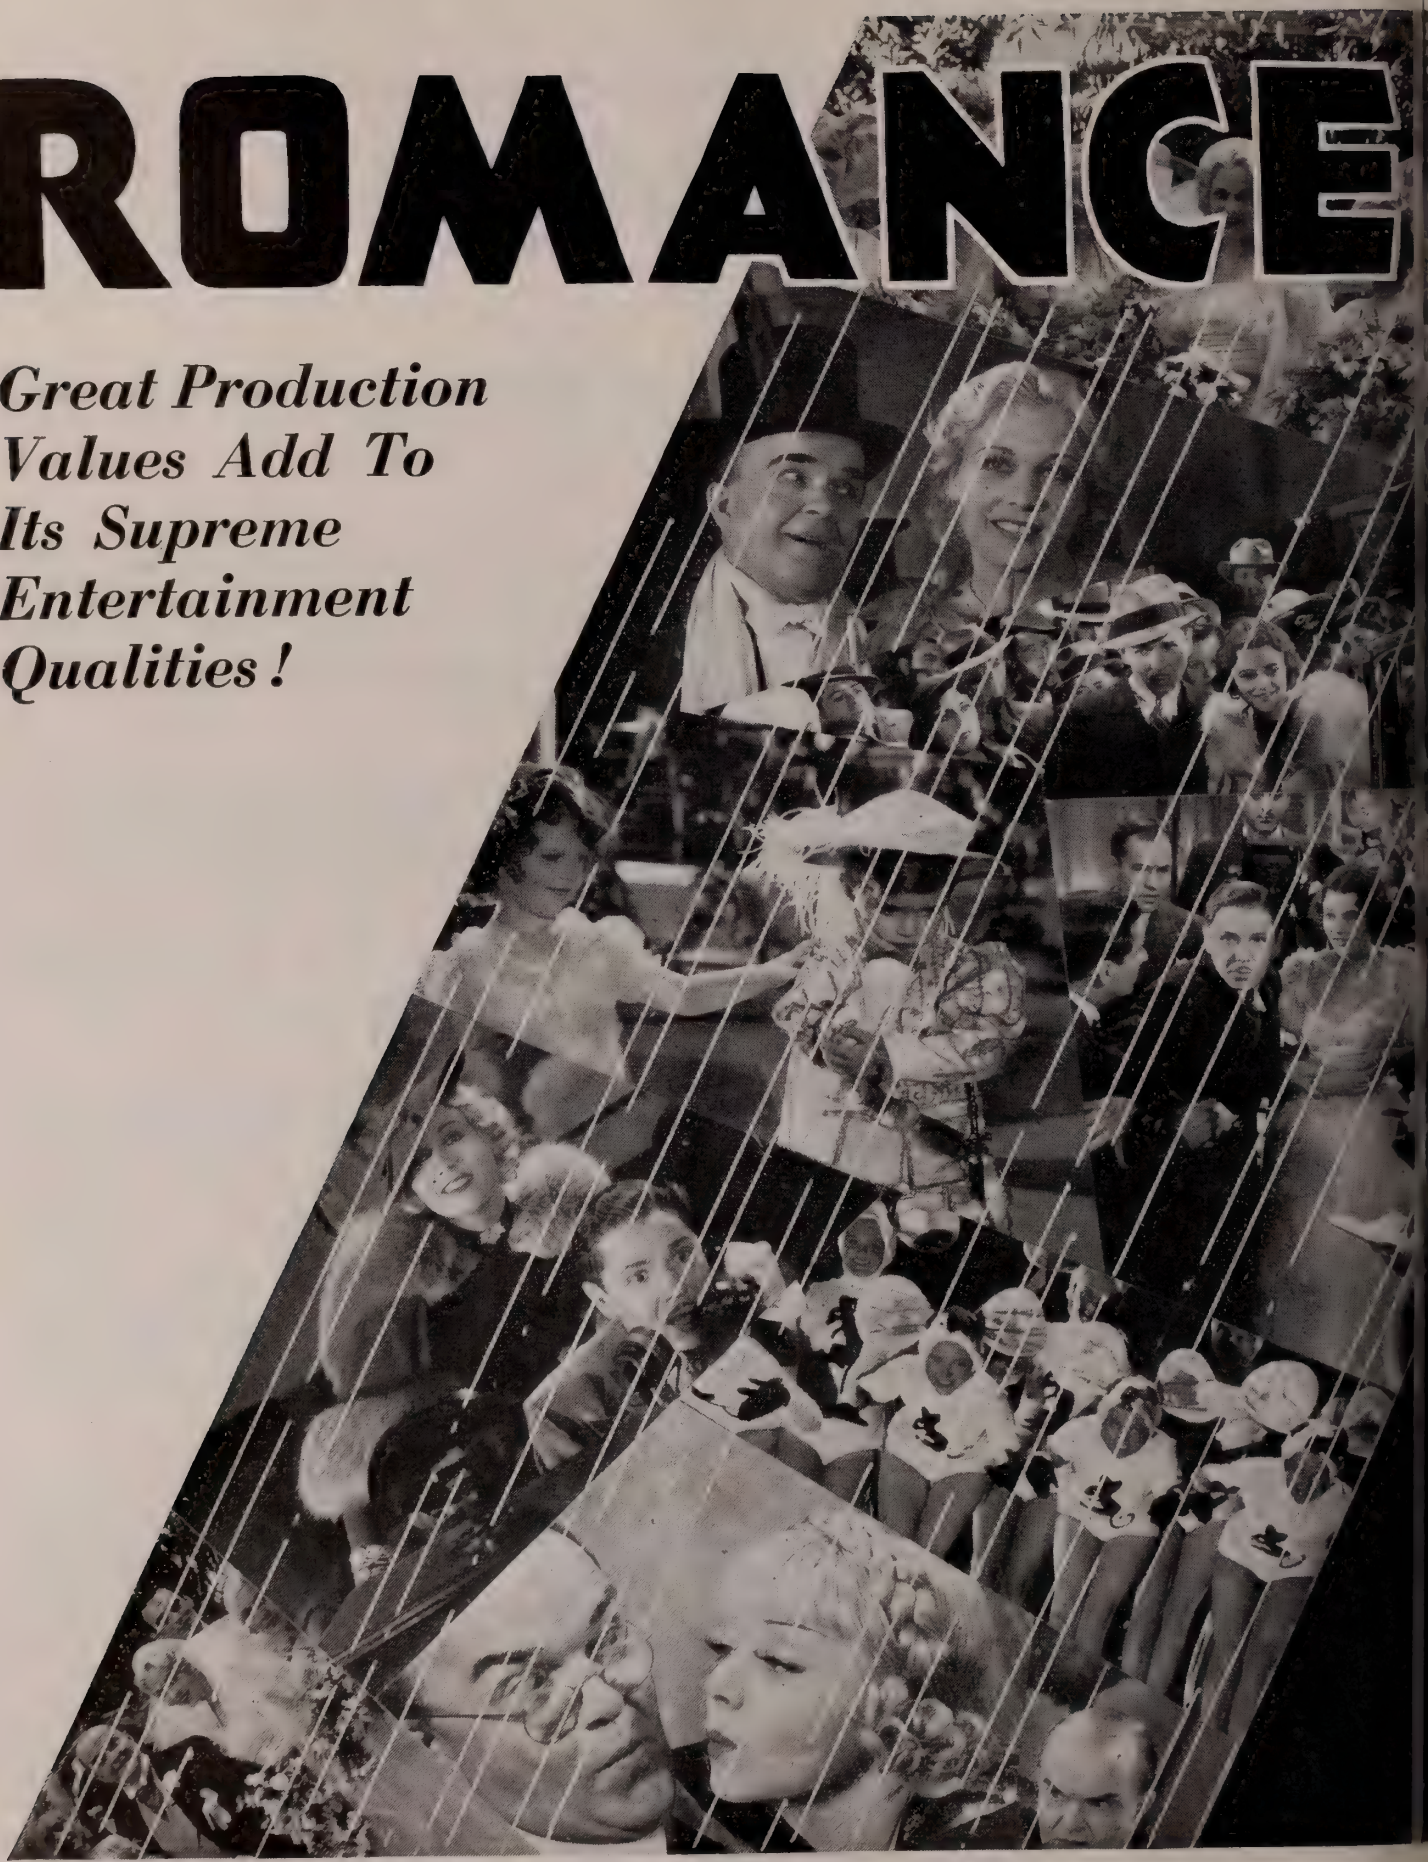
If ever a picture was made in the spirit of the times, this is it. We have packed into it everything needed for entertainment and we have omitted everything unacceptable to the tempo of the hour.

Get behind it with power and punch and assure your patrons that you've captured the joy of the hour and are about to release it on your screen!

Carl Laemmle

ROMANCE

Great Production Values Add To Its Supreme Entertainment Qualities!



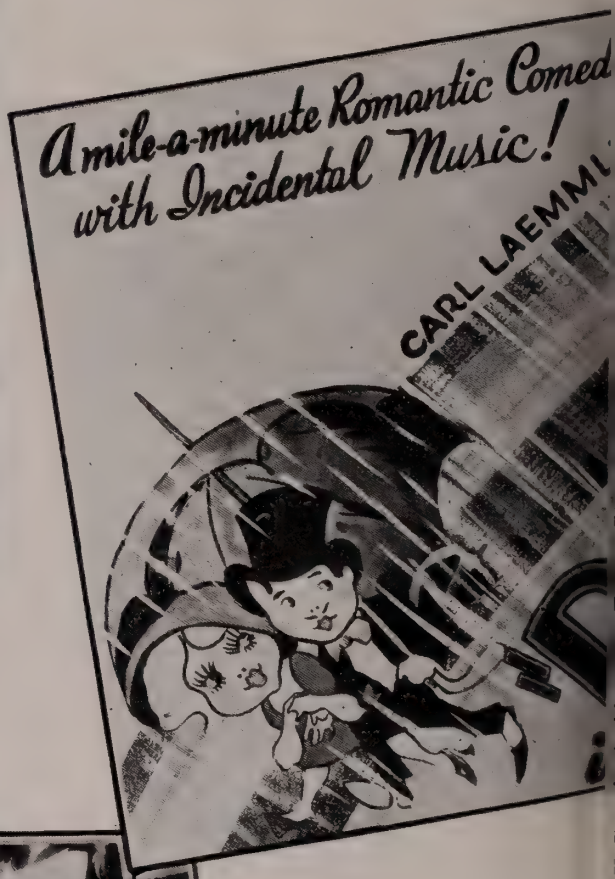
IN THE RAIN

A dazzling and delicious dish of screen fare! . . . Young hearts aflame in a whirling world of dramatic salesmanship, careening courtship, and the spirit of these fast-moving days!
DON'T DENY YOUR PATRONS THE FUN THEY'LL GET OUT OF THIS SMART CHUNK OF AMUSEMENT!

Glamor, Drama, Melody

in "Romance in the Rain"

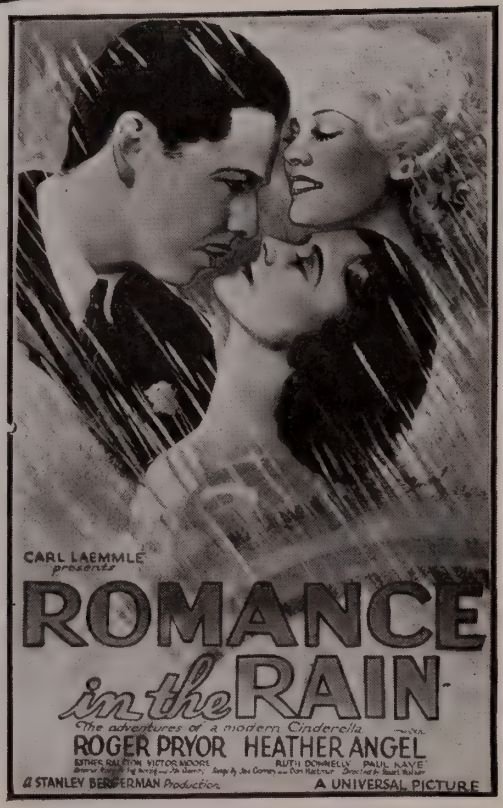
Posters with the Spirit t



The posters reproduced on these pages give you only a slight idea of the sprightliness evident in every piece of promotional material available. The same spirit pervades lobby displays, etc. Use all of the accessories Universal has devised for you!

There's a gold mine of "exploitability" surrounding this picture. Get your copy of the press book and take advantage of all the showmanship it contains—which is 'aplenty.

hat will Pull Patrons In!



NEWS OF INTEREST TO EXHIBITORS

Esther Ralston, beautiful featured player of "Romance in the Rain," with Roger Pryor and Heather Angel, in a scene from the picture.

A Wedding By Radio In "Romance in the Rain"

ONE of the most unusual and spectacular wedding ceremonies ever seen in the films will be seen in Universal's romantic comedy with music, "Romance in the Rain," with Roger Pryor and Heather Angel.

Imagine a public wedding, staged in one of the largest stadiums in the country, before 100,000 people! Imagine, also, if you will, such a ceremony broadcast over the radio to millions of people. And imagine, finally, the bride not showing up at the last minute! This is a situation, but "Romance in the Rain," puts it over. The wedding goes ahead, but not with the original bride and groom!

This is one of the most hilarious pictures of the season, featuring Roger Pryor, Heather Angel, Victor Moore and Esther Ralston. Miss Angel is the hapless bride that is whisked away just before the ceremony and Esther Ralston and Victor Moore take her place in one of the funniest scenes ever depicted on the screen.

There have been weddings under the most unusual circumstances, in trains, on boats, airplanes, atop skyscrapers and everywhere else, but never before such a lopsided, lunatic ceremonial as in this picture.

It's a scream!

Two new song hits featured are: "Love At Last" and "F'rinstance."

Five Hundred Dancers In "Romance in the Rain"

ONE of the most colorful and brilliant motion picture scenes ever filmed is the Cinderella Ball in Universal's "Romance in the Rain," a romantic comedy with music, featuring Roger Pryor and Heather Angel. More than 500 people were employed in this single scene, which features an enormous pumpkin that unfolds in beautiful display, disclosing an array of singing and dancing beauties who characterize the ancient story of Cinderella. In this scene may be seen the traditional witches on broomsticks, the coach and mice and all the other famous characters in the tale.

The role of Cinderella is capably portrayed by Heather Angel, beautiful young English actress, who is featured with Roger Pryor. He is amazingly handsome in this picture following the acquisition of a mustache and a new style hair dress.

This picture is not the legendary story of Cinderella, but that of a modern Cinderella whose experiences paraphrase those of her predecessors. Much comedy and romantic interest is supplied by Pryor and Miss Angel, aided by the excruciatingly funny Victor Moore, Esther Ralston, Ruth Donnelly and others.

Climaxing an unending series of fast-moving and amazing situations is a public wedding staged in one of the largest stadiums of the country during a nationally famous football game. This scene is one of the most spectacular and uproariously funny ever to be filmed.

Stuart Walker, the director, has exercised some noteworthy features in this picture, carrying the story through all four seasons of the year.

One of the exotic scenes from "Romance in the Rain," a Cinderella story of the most modern and engaging kind. This scene shows the Downey Sisters in the center, in one of the musical numbers of the picture, "Love At Last."

ABOUT "ROMANCE IN THE RAIN"

Roger Pryor, Before

Roger Pryor 1935 Model

FOR "Romance in the Rain," Universal has provided a new model of Roger Pryor. Automobiles come out in new models every year; women's fashions change about every three months, and men's fashions about every three years. Why shouldn't there be a change of fashions in actors? Roger Pryor has decided to establish a precedent. He hasn't dyed his hair, or anything like that, but he has straightened it and added a very attractive looking mustache. It will be an entirely new and different Roger Pryor that you will see in "Romance in the Rain" with Heather Angel.

Roger Pryor, After

Victor Moore Returns

VICTOR MOORE, one of America's truly great comedians of the stage, will make his talking screen debut in Universal's sparkling romantic comedy with music, "Romance in the Rain," with Roger Pryor and Heather Angel.

Moore was enticed to Hollywood by Universal after receiving and turning down many previous offers from five different studios. His outstanding success in "Of Thee I Sing," the Pulitizer Prize Drama of 1932, in which he characterized and satirized 'Vice President Throttlebottom,' left him with the greatest acclaim yet given to an actor.

Moore got his start of stage life at the age of ten, when he left home to join the Guy Brothers Minstrels, famous touring blackface troupe. At sixteen he made his professional debut in Boston, Mass. in "Babes in the Woods." He wore tin armor in this play and received $3.50 a week.

Years of struggle followed, during which time Moore slid up and down the ladder but finally he established himself as a successful vaudeville act. He married Emma Littlefield, whom he met while working at a Coney Island music hall, and the act became known as Moore and Littlefield. Gaining fame, Moore was signed by George M. Cohan and Sam Harris and was featured in "Forty-Five Minutes From Broadway," which Cohan wrote for him. He has appeared in such famous musical shows as "Oh, Kay," "Funny Face," "Hold Everything," "Heads Up," and "Let 'Em Eat Cake," a sequel to "Of Thee I Sing."

This is not Moore's first adventure in films. He made five silent features for Jesse Lasky a number of years ago and many comedies.

Moore was born in Hammonton, New Jersey, February 24, 1876.

The Greeks had a word for this too. The word was calypigian, which signifies beautiful rear profile. In "Romance in the Rain," in which Victor Moore is featured with Roger Pryor and Heather Angel, the famous New York comedian represents a publisher of pulp magazine fiction whose personal vanity dictates a severe course in reducing. Roger Pryor is his exploitation manager and is photographed here in the act of perpetrating an exploitation stunt on his boss.

Ad Mats Keyed To Se

Youth! – Pep! – Adventure!
Laughs! – Drama! – Speed!

A dazzling and delicious dish of screen entertainment! Young hearts aflame in a whirling world of high-pressure promotion and careening courtship! . . . You'll say it's a honey of a picture . . . DON'T MISS IT!

with

ROGER PRYOR
HEATHER ANGEL

Esther Ralston, Victor Moore, Ruth Donnelly, Paul Kaye. A Stanley Bergerman Production directed by Stuart Walker. Presented by Carl Laemmle.
A UNIVERSAL PICTURE.

Romance in the Rain

A modern Cinderella meets her Prince Charming—through today's high-pressure selling methods. DON'T MISS THE FUN!

ROMANCE in the RAIN

with

ROGER PRYOR—HEATHER ANGEL

Esther Ralston, Victor Moore, Ruth Donnelly, Paul Kaye. A Stanley Bergerman Production directed by Stuart Walker. Presented by Carl Laemmle. A UNIVERSAL PICTURE.

She Was Crowned Queen of Beauty—but all she wanted was the love of the man whose agile brain had boosted her to the top. Did she get him? Oh, boy! See how it was done in this swell comedy-drama with haunting incidental music!

ROMANCE in the RAIN

with

ROGER PRYOR
HEATHER ANGEL

Esther Ralston, Victor Moore, Ruth Donnelly, Paul Kaye. A Stanley Bergerman Production directed by Stuart Walker. Presented by Carl Laemmle.
A UNIVERSAL PICTURE.

Mile-a-Minute Love In a High-Pressure World!

ROMANCE in the RAIN

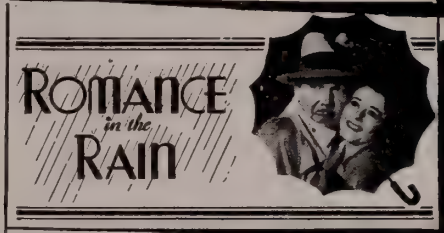
with
ROGER PRYOR
HEATHER ANGEL

Esther Ralston, Victor Moore, Ruth Donnelly, Paul Kaye. A Stanley Bergerman Production directed by Stuart Walker. Presented by Carl Laemmle
A Universal Picture.

ll Seats By Wholesale!



VALERIE HOBSON

Puts Advertising Drive Behind "Gift of Gab"

UNIVERSAL is stepping out in advertising. It is planning a comprehensive and unusual advertising campaign to back up its new pictures for the coming season. "Gift of Gab," the story of a romance in a radio station is the first release. It contains more stars, featured players and personalities than were ever before brought together in a Universal picture, and presents an opportunity for a diversified form of advertising which is unique in moving pictures. As picture names, it has Edmund Lowe, Gloria Stuart, Alice White,

(Continued on Page 22)

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, New York City
Copyrighted 1934
Universal Pictures Corp.
(All Rights Reserved)
AUGUST 4, 1934
Vol. 35 No. 8

Two Great Artists Arrive for Universal's "Great Expectations"

FRANCIS L. SULLIVAN, English actor, left New York Monday, on the 20th Century for Universal City and a part in "Great Expectations," while Valerie Hobson, young English ingenue, arrived at the Universal Studios the same day. Both arrived in New York last week on the Berengaria under contract to Universal.

Miss Hobson was accompanied by her mother, who is the sister of Lady Lawrence. Immediately upon their arrival at the studio they will enter the production of "Great Expectations" the cast of which has just been augmented by Alan Hale and Jane Wyatt, who scored strongly in her debut 'One More River."

Sullivan was signed to a long term contract when 600 feet of one of his

(Continued on Page 18)

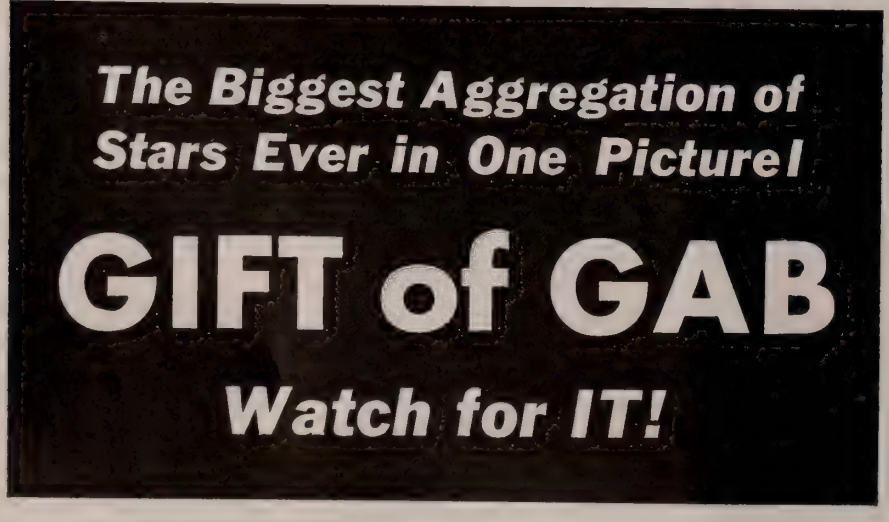
FRANCIS T. SULLIVAN
England's Greatest Actor

CANADA BUYS UNIVERSAL 100%

JAMES R. GRAINGER returned yesterday from a flying trip to Canada, where he closed three big deals involving the finest theatres in Canada. The first contract was signed with N. L. Nathanson in Toronto for the Famous Players Canadian Corporation, bringing the entire Universal program of features, short product and newsreels into seventy-five of the best theatres in Canada, from the Atlantic to the Pacific. In addition, a deal was closed with eleven Bloom and Fine houses. This circuit is a subsidiary of Famous Players Canadian.

In Montreal, Mr. Grainger signed with George Nicholas a deal for the same product in the twenty United Amusement Company houses in and around Montreal. This deal comes hard upon the contract with the Music Hall and with the Lowe Circuit in New York as the third for Universal within a week.



Margaret Sullavan Called Most Beautiful In Films

NEW YORK WORLD-TELEGRAM, THURSDAY, JULY 12, 1934.

Who's Beautiful?—Artist Calls American Women Today Loveliest of All

Noted artist, Howard Renwick, selects five women to represent five types of beauty: stage, screen, society, sports, professional, in widely syndicated article.

Here are his selections: Margaret Sullavan, films; Ann Harding, stage; Mrs. Allan Ryan, Jr., society; Eleanor Holm, sports; Carolyn Edmundson, professional and business.

●

THE New York World-Telegram is printing a symposium of expert opinion on beautiful women under the general title of "Who's Beautiful?" Artists, painters, sculptors, photographers, and other connoisseurs of feminine loveliness have been asked to contribute to this collection.

In the July 12th issue of the World-Telegram, the frank, honest opinion of Howard Renwick, known also under the name of Hayden Hayden when he paints posters, is given in an article by Mary Margaret McBride, NEA syndicate feature writer.

Mr. Renwick states, first of all, that the modern American woman is the most beautiful the world has known. He then lists the leaders of beauty in five different fields: the stage, the screen, society, sports, and business. His selection for the screen's most beautiful woman is Margaret Sullavan, star of "Little Man, What Now?" whom he has chosen for her wholesomeness and lack of artificiality, which are so characteristic of our country.

Ann Harding.

Freedom, Wholesomeness Seen in Faces by Howard Renwick.

Who's beautiful? . . . The girl of this modern, faster-paced world —or the girl of yesterday? . . . Two famous composers of feminine loveliness—one an artist and the other a photographer—take issue on this point. And their differences of opinion are given in a series of articles, of which this is the first

By MARY MARGARET McBRIDE,
NEA Service Staff Writer

The modern American woman is the most beautiful the world has known. No time has ever produced anything to equal or even to rival her, according to Howard Renwick, famous artist, who has painted thousands of her in every walk of life.

To prove his point Mr. Renwick, who, as Hayden Hayden, is also well known for his striking delineation of poster girls, has selected five beauties.

The women who he believes could uphold America's claim to supreme pulchritude against all claimants are —

ANN HARDING, stage star.
MARGARET SULLAVAN, of screen fame.
MRS. ALLAN RYAN, JR., society woman.
ELEANOR HOLM, sportswoman.
CAROLYN EDMUNDSON, professional and business woman.

* * *

Favors the Blondes.

"The ideal American woman expresses in her face and figure, and, above all, in her bearing the freedom, the wholesomeness and the lack of artificiality that are so characteristic of our country as a whole," the artist declares. "I despise any suggestion of the decadent in either women or art—and American women are almost the only ones in the world who do not have something of the exotic and unhealthy about them."

While he disclaims any prejudice in favor of blondes, it is noticeable that Mr. Renwick's selections all lean in that direction. Ann Harding, for instance, has pale gold hair, worn usually Madonna fashion, in braids or rolls around her head and Eleanor Holm.

One Is Southerner.

MARGARET SULLAVAN, who comes from Virginia, and talks with a slight Southern accent, has brown hair and gray eyes. Mrs. Ryan's hair, parted in the middle and very smooth, has been described by one of her admirers as the color of wheat straw, a perfect golden-blond. Miss Holm's hair is between light-blond and chestnut and she has brown eyes.

Miss Edmundson, fashion designer and artist, comes the nearest of all to having red hair. Her chestnut locks are shot through with red glints and her eyes are brightly blue shaded by long, dark lashes.

Mr. Renwick chose Miss Harding as the stage's outstanding beauty because, while she has been in motion pictures most of the time lately, he regrets that she will eventually return to her first love. And anyway, he adds, she is "stage type."

* * *

All Are Athletic.

MISS SULLAVAN, on the other hand, is definitely screen type, he declares.

While each of the women is intensely feminine, all are sturdily if slenderly built and go in for healthy, wholesome exercise and sports—riding, swimming, golfing and tennis. And though they have perfect complexions, with good natural color, all, with one exception, use some make-up. Miss Sullavan, the exception, eschews rouge and lipstick off the set and heartily dislikes all studio attempts to "beautify her," as she calls it.

"My friends, to whom I have been talking about this idea of selecting the country's most beautiful women, think I am a brave man to attempt it," Mr. Renwick admitted with a laugh, adding —"I think myself that it was a bold undertaking. I've painted thousands of women and I'm willing to stand by my guns and my assertion that nobody anywhere can produce more beautiful women than we have right here in America."

Margaret Sullavan.

The girls of yesterday contends Baron de Meyer, famous photographer and designer.

Full page layout of World Telegram with artist Howard Renwick's selections of the most beautiful women in America. He selected Margaret Sullavan, star of "Little Man, What Now?" as the most beautiful girl on the screen. He declares that American women are the loveliest in the world.

The artist states: "I despise any suggestion of the decadent in either women or art—and American women are almost the only ones in the world who do not have something of the exotic and unhealthy about them.

"My friends, to whom I have been talking about this idea of selecting the country's most beautiful women, think I am a brave man to attempt it. I think myself that it was a bold undertaking. I've painted thousands of women and I'm willing to stand by my guns and my assertion that nobody anywhere can produce more beautiful women than we have right here in America.

Mr. Renwick, calls Miss Sullavan definitely a screen "type," intensely feminine, sturdily if slenderly built, going in for healthy, wholesome exercise and sports, riding, swimming, golfing and tennis, with a perfect complexion, totally unadorned by make-up. He should see Miss Sullavan right now, brown as a berry, after a vacation spent largely in swimming at Bay Head, Long Island.

DIANA WYNYARD

in John Galsworthy's Best Seller

ONE MORE RIVER

•

The terrifically dramatic story of a woman who married the wrong man ...screened with a notable cast by a notable director . . . A MONEY PICTURE of the highest calibre!

•

With Colin Clive, Frank Lawton, Jane Wyatt, Mrs. Patrick Campbell, Lionel Atwill, Reginald Denny, C. Aubrey Smith, Henry Stephenson, Kathleen Howard, Alan Mowbray. Screenplay by R. C. SHERRIFF. A JAMES WHALE Production. Presented by CARL LAEMMLE.

LATEST PRODUCTION NEWS FI

This sort of thing happens in "The Human Side," or this play by Christine Ames wouldn't be as true to life as everybody says it is. All the previews give this Adolphe Menjou-Doris Kenyon-Charlotte Henry production a very big hand.

Binnie Barnes Has Strong Cast In Her Second, "What Ladies Dream"

SURROUNDED by a strong cast Binnie Barnes, flame haired English stage and screen star has begun work on her second American filmplay, "What Ladies Dream" at Universal. Completing "There's Always Tomorrow" opposite Frank Morgan, three weeks ago, Miss Barnes has enjoyed the hot California sunshine to such an extent that an actual facial skin bleaching process has been necessary to eliminate the dark tan and prepare her for her role in the new film drama.

"What Ladies Dream" is by William Hurlbut and presents the talented and beautiful Miss Barnes in a keenly dramatic role. Neil Hamilton and Paul Cavanaugh will be seen opposite the new Universal star with Grant Mitchell, well remembered for his exceptional work in "Saturday's Millions" and "King for a Night." Eugene Pallette, Ferdinand Gottschalk, Edward Keane, Jason Robards, Doris Lloyd, Henry Kolker and William Worthington are prominently cast.

Ernst L. Frank and Milton Carruth are directing "What Ladies Dream" and Carl Laemmle Jr. is seeing to it that the drama has backgrounds as unique and colorful as the story.

Coming Soon!
THE SMARTEST SHOW
ON THE SCREEN!
GIFT of GAB

JANE WYA

Selected for the Female Lead in "Great Expectations" in Which Universal Will Star Henry Hull.

MORE and more Jane Wyatt is following in the footsteps of Margaret Sullavan. She followed her into the role of "Dinner at Eight" in New York, and she followed her to Universal City. Like Margaret Sullavan, too, she made a distinct hit in her first picture, "One More River." Again, like Margaret Sullavan, she is featured in her second movie.

Announcement was made yesterday by Stanley Bergerman, who will make the production, that Jane Wyatt will have the featured female role of Estella opposite Henry Hull in the Dickens novel, "Great Expectations." It is a great triumph for the New latest British films was cut, shipped to Hollywood and screened for Universal executives. He was a classmate at school of Charles Laughton whom he resembles in appearance and acting manner. His most recent screen appearance is as the doctor in "Bulldog Drummond's Return." This is his second trip to America, the first having taken place in September 1929. He has never been to Hollywood or acted in American pictures.

✚ ✚ ✚

Two Great Artists Arrive for Universal's "Great Expectations"

(Continued from Page 14)

Miss Hobson was signed after having been discovered by Universal's London talent scouts and given an exhaustive screen test. Her latest role was in "Badger's Green" the second play written by R. C. Sherriff who has just arrived at Universal City to complete the screen version of Margaret Ayer Barnes' popular novel "Within This Present" which will be Margaret Sullavan's second starring vehicle for the coming season.

OM UNIVERSAL CITY STUDIOS

GETS A BREAK

York actress and a splendid tribute to her ability and the adaptability of her technique to the screen.

Universal has satisfactorily straightened out its casting on "Great Expectations," which goes into production at Universal City this week. It has loaned Frank Lawton to M-G-M to play the lead in "David Copperfield." Phillips Holmes takes his role in the cast, which will star Henry Hull. Jane Wyatt has the leading feminine role. Francis L. Sullivan, Alan Hale, Florence Reed, Harry Cording, Forrester Harvey, Douglas Wood, Valerie Hobson, George Breakstone, complete the principal roles.

George Breakstone is the boy star of "No Greater Glory." He will have the role in "Great Expectations" of young Mr. Pip. Valerie Hobson is the young English actress who came over on the Berengaria last week under contract to Universal. She has been playing in "Badger's Green," R. C. Sherriff's second play which has just been filmed in England. Stuart Walker is directing from a screenplay by Gladys Unger.

Here is the first still from "Imitation of Life," showing Claudette Colbert exemplifying Fannie Hurst's world renowned character, Bea Pullman.

✚ ✚ ✚

ALEXANDER WOOLLCOTT SEQUENCE FOR "GIFT OF GAB" PICTURE BEING MADE IN NEW YORK

THE sequence of "Gift of Gab" featuring Alexander Woollcott, noted author, critic and commentator, was shot Tuesday by Universal at the Eastern Service Studios in Astoria. Stage F is the scene of the shooting, which is under the direction of Lou Breslow, who came to New York especially to make the scenes featuring players who could not go to California for the production.

Next week Breslow expects to take the sequence featuring Ethel Waters, who is now being starred in "As Thousands Cheer" on Broadway. Breslow adapted "Gift of Gab" to the screen and is accompanied by his wife, Marion "Peanuts" Byron, who also has a part in the production, which stars Edmund Lowe, with Ruth Etting, Gloria Stuart, Victor Moore, Hugh O'Connell and a score of screen, radio and stage personalities.

"NIGHT LIFE OF THE GODS" CAST

LOWELL SHERMAN is daily adding to the cast of "Night Life of the Gods," the Thorne Smith novel, which he will put into production the first week in August. In addition to Irene Ware, already selected, Florence McKinney was signed for the role of Meg. The director also added Ferdinand Gottschalk and Geneva Mitchell to the cast interpreting this unique comedy of statues who came to life on Broadway.

✚ ✚ ✚

WINI SHAW FOR COLUMBO PICTURE

WINI SHAW, who was originally engaged by Universal for a leading role at the same studio. Upon completion of a part in "Gift of Gab" she will join the cast of Russ Columbo's first starring picture, "Wake Up And Dream." This musical already includes Roger Pryor, June Knight, Andy Devine, Henry Armetta, Catherine Doucet, Spencer Charters, Gavin Gordon, Matt McHugh and Philip Dakin.

"Little Man" Player in "Wake Up and Dream"

CATHERINE DOUCET this week essayed her first singing for the public, when she sang a comedy duet with Henry Armetta for a scene in "Wake Up and Dream," the Universal comedy with music co-starring Russ Columbo and Roger Pryor. For years Mrs. Doucet has taken vocal lessons, but until now, as she says, she has only sung "for her own amusement."

✚ ✚ ✚

Two Universal Juniors in "The Human Side"

TWO of Universal's youngest players, Lois January and Anne Darling, were added to the cast of "The Human Side" in the final week's scenes. Lois January has just returned to Universal after a loan-out and Anne Darling has just completed the first role she has ever had in a picture in "There's Always Tomorrow."

Adolphe MENJOU in The HUMAN SIDE

A star whose past few pictures have made him a greater drawing card than ever, in what previewers say is one of the finest pictures of his career! . . . Date it in as soon as possible for one of your most certainly profitable runs of the season!

•

WITH

DORIS KENYON

Dickie Moore, Joseph Cawthorn, Reginald Owen, Betty Lawford, Charlotte Henry. Directed by Edward Buzzell. Presented by CARL LAEMMLE.

NEWSREEL No. 271

Every year the New York police dump a few thousand gangster weapons into the ocean.

STRATOSPHERE BALLOON FALLS; THREE FLYERS ESCAPE DEATH

RAPID CITY, S. D.—After reaching an altitude of 60,000 feet the huge stratosphere balloon "Explorer" tears, plunging earthwards with its three occupants.

FARMERS FIGHT TO SAVE LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, MO.—As the disastrous drought takes a heavy toll of cattle, farmers transport water for miles in a last desperate effort to save the remnants of once large flocks from dying of thirst.

POLICE DESTROY GANG GUNS

OFF SANDY HOOK, N. J.—Thousands of weapons taken from gangsters during the past year are dumped in the ocean by the New York police to insure their removal from the reach of the big city's criminals.

TROOPS GUARD STRIKE AREAS

KOHLER, WISCONSIN—After a strike riot in which two men were killed this model village is under surveillance of state troopers.
MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—National Guardsmen also patrol the streets of this city to prevent rioting in the truckmen's strike.
MEXICO CITY, MEX.—In the Mexican capital, street car conductors are out in sympathy with automobile drivers who are protesting the high gasoline tax.

RUNYAN WINS P.G.A. GOLF CROWN IN THRILLING BATTLE

BUFFALO, N. Y.—Paul Runyan of White Plains, N. Y., captures the Professional Golfers Association title in an extra hole battle from Craig Wood.

STYLISTS PRESENT FALL FURS

NEW YORK, N. Y.—The latest thing in chic furs for milady have their first showing.

LINER FOUNDERS IN DOCK

NEW YORK, N. Y.—The United Fruit liner "Atenas," sinking beside her dock.

SWIMMING CLUB KEEPS TITLE

DETROIT, MICH.—The Carnegie Club of Homestead, Pa., wins the team and individual honors of the women's national A.A.U. championships.

THOUSANDS LOST IN TIMBER FIRE

PASADENA, CAL.—Mile after mile of rich forest land goes up in smoke.

EXHIBITORS: Have You a Little Slogan For "Gift Of Gab"

UNIVERSAL Pictures Corporation is in the market for a slogan which will in a half dozen or fewer words emphasize the outstanding class and bigness of this company's coming release "Gift of Gab," featuring Edmund Lowe, Ruth Etting and thirty leading stars of the screen, radio and stage.

The slogan must be written by a theatre exhibitor or advertising man directly connected with a theatre chain or individual theatre. The slogan must be sent in immediately as "Gift of Gab" is released on September 3rd.

Here are slogans to serve as example of what is wanted. "The Smartest Show on the Screen," "The Swellest Show in Town." The slogan should carry out the idea of a "thirty star sensation," if possible. The picture is filled with delightful music, wise cracks, and laughter and has a swell story. It is the very essence of high grade entertainment.

All that is necessary for those who are to write slogans to konw about the picture, is its imposing bigness. A glance at the cast will suffice to furnish inspiration for the required catch lines.

Here is the cast:

Edmund Lowe, Ruth Etting, Gloria Stuart, Phil Baker, Ethel Waters, Paul Lukas, Chester Morris, Douglass Montgomery, Binnie Barnes, Roger Pryor, Karloff, Gene Austin, Graham McNamee, Bela Lugosi, Alice White, June Knight, Victor Moore, Andy Devine, Hugh O'Connell, Gus Arnheim's Orchestra, Sterling Holloway, Henry Armetta, Downey Sisters, Beal Street Boys, Douglas Fowley, Wini Shaw, Helen Vinson, Candy and Coco, Alexander Woollcott and others.

Prizes are to be award for the best slogans as follows:

$50.00 for first prize

$25.00 for second prize and five prizes of $5.00 each.

First prize to two if there is a tie.

Slogan should be sent to theExploitation Department, Universal Pictures Corporation, Rockefeller Center, New York. All slogans should be in this office by August 20th.

✚ ✚ ✚

Puts Advertising Drive Behind "Gift of Gab"

(Continued from Page 14)

Victor Moore, Hugh O'Connell, Helen Vinson, Henry Armetta, Andy Devine, Wini Shaw, Marion "Peanuts" Byron, and Sterling Holloway. As radio stars, it has Ruth Etting, Phil Baker, Ethel Waters, Gene Austin, Gus Arnheim and Orchestra, Candy and Coco, the Three Stooges, Beale Street Boys, Downey Sisters; and as news commentators, it has Graham McName, Alexander Woollcott, Rian James, Tom Hanlon, Edwin Maxwell, Edwin Schallert. In the skits throughout the picture appear Chester Morris, Roger Pryor, Douglas Fowley, Binnie Barnes, Karloff, Bela Lugosi, Paul Lukas, Douglass Montgomery, June Knight. "Gift of Gab" will be released on September 3rd.

The fan magazine advertising campaign will be carried in the following magazines: Modern Screen, Screen Romances, Film Fun, Photoplay, Shadoplay, Screen Play, Screen Book, Hollywood, Screenland, Silver Screen, Picture Play, Movie Mirror, Motion Picture, Motion Picture Classic.

The Saturday Evening Post campaign on "Gift of Gab" will cover three issues and will be continued to cover each release. An elaborate press book is in preparation, outlining an unusual newspaper campaign for exhibitors to use in following up the advance advertising. There will also be a unique campaign in radio magazines and through music channels on the radio and sheet music departments. Harms, (Inc.) will publish the music for "Gift of Gab."

WHO WAS AMERICA'S FIRST BILLIONAIRE? "SUTTER'S GOLD" CONTAINS THE ANSWER

IF anyone were to ask you who was America's first billionaire, you probably would never think of the right answer. It might be John D. Rockefeller; it might be Andy Mellon; it might be Vanderbilt or Gould or Ford. You would never thing that it was a man by the name of General Johannes Sutter.

Nevertheless, General Sutter was America's first billionaire. He owned half the state of California; he had already made two fortunes and lost them, and then the greatest misfortune of all overtook him. It is a misfortune that most men hope will happen to them. Gold was discovered on his land. Instead of adding another billion dollars to his possessions, it ruined him. He ended his life in the corridors of Congress, endeavoring to collect a huge judgement he had secured against the United States, and died a pauper.

The ups and downs, the triumphs and the tragedies, loves and hates of this man Sutter were phenomenal. It is an amazing thing that his story is so little known. It has been compiled in a striking book by Blaise Cendrars and it is on the basis of this book and the legends about this remarkable man that Universal is projecting its tremendous story for next season, entitled "Sutter's Gold." The production will be made by Howard Hawks and, next to "Show Boat" and probably "The Great Ziegfeld," it will be Universal's most ambitious production for next season.

Already Hollywood is speculating keenly on who will be the final selection for the role of Sutter. His nationality was Swiss and he died before photographers preserved the features of national heroes for the next generation. But legend has built up a heroic characterization of this remarkable man and one which will make any of the candidates who succeeds in playing the role a more prominent figure in moving pictures than he was before he played it. Already Hollywood is speculating on Charles Laughton, Wallace Beery, E. G. Robinson, Walter Huston and others. Universal, however, has two candidates of its own who are both being considered, Henry Hull and Francis J. Sullivan. The decision will rest with Carl Laemmle, Jr. and Howard Hawks.

✚ ✚ ✚

"Only Yesterday" A Hit In Brussels

"ONLY YESTERDAY" OPENED METROPOLE BRUSSELS EXCEPTIONALLY FINE BUSINESS DESPITE HEAT AND STRONG OPPOSITION ALL THROUGH SUNDAY CONTINUOUS WAITING LINES OUTSIDE THEATRE EXHIBITOR PATRONS PRAISE FIRST RATE ACHIEVEMENT

NEWSREEL No. 270

In honor of St. Christopher, the motorists of Long Island have their cars blessed to prevent accidents.

DOLLFUSS KILLED BY NAZIS; EUROPE SEETHES IN CRISIS

VIENNA, AUSTRIA—Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss dies in the hands of Hitler sympathizers when 144 outlawed Nazis force their way into the Chancellory disguised as soldiers.

TROOPS READY IN STRIKE

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—While new peace proposals are offered by both sides in the trucking tie-up.

NATIVES BARTER REINDEERS

SAGHALIEN ISLAND, JAPAN—Pictures of one oft he most unusual trading markets in the world—the Tonakai or reindeer market ofthe natives on this strategic arctic island.

CROWN PEA-SHELLING QUEEN

WALLA WALLA, WASH.—Twenty-five of the West's best pod-cracking damsels get a chance to display their ability in a unique contest. The winner, Miss Nadine Long.

MOTORISTS' AUTOS BLESSED

BALDWIN, L. I.—Drivers bring their vehicles before a church for a ceremony in honor of St. Christopher, patron of travelers. The cars are blessed in an invocation to prevent accidents.

THOUSANDS MOB CASKET AS DILLINGER IS BURIED

CHICAGO, ILL.—Accompanied by his father, the body of John Dillinger, bad man extraordinary, is removed from the county morgue to his home at Mooresville, Indiana.

ARMY BOMBERS TEST EYES

ABERDEEN, MD.—Flying over the Ordnance Proving Grounds, U.S. Army pilots drop 600-pound bombs with deadly accuracy in trial flights of huge bombing planes while 8,000 feet in the air.

JAPANESE IN FISHING FETE

TOMOURA, JAPAN—Using a net 9,000 feet in length, Nipponese Nimrods cast for the highly-prized "Tai" fish in a unique festival.

SPAHIS IN SPECTACULAR RIDES

PARIS, FRANCE—Troops of the famous Moroccan Cavalry.

MUSCLE BABY AMAZES DOCTORS

GLENDALE, CAL.—Only five and one-half months old weighing 17 pounds, Floyd Everett Carter shows remarkable strength and agility in performing acrobatic stunts that astound physicians and child experts.

UNIVERSAL

THE GREAT ZIEGFELD

Starring William Powell. By William Anthony McGuire and Billie Burke.

•

PRINCESS O'HARA

Damon Runyon's Collier's Magazine Story (Author of "Lady for a Day, "Little Miss Marker," etc.)

•

STRANGE WIVES

From Edith Wharton's Cosmopolitan Magazine Story, "Bread Upon the Waters."

MOON MULLINS

"Funny paper" character known to 25,000,000 readers, on the screen IN THE FLESH. A great comedy feature.

•

GIFT OF GAB

Edmund Lowe, surrounded by a score of the biggest names of the screen, stage and radio —names such as Ruth Etting, Gloria Stuart, Phil Baker, Paul Lukas, Ethel Waters, Chester Morris, Douglass Montgomery, Binnie Barnes and many others.

STEPS OUT — —

MYSTERY OF EDWIN DROOD

Charles Dickens Story. With Karloff, Frank Lawton, Heather Angel.

•

SHOW BOAT

Edna Ferber's greatest novel—Florenz Ziegfeld's greatest stage production—Jerome Kern's most beautiful music.

•

TRANSIENT LADY

Octavus Roy Cohen's great Liberty Magazine Story. Starring Gloria Stuart.

•

THE RAVEN

Edgar Allan Poe Thriller with Karloff and Lugosi together again.

•

IT HAPPENED IN NEW YORK

From the story by Ward Morehouse and Rian James, with Heather Angel.

SUTTER'S GOLD

From the famous novel by Blaise Cendrars. A Howard Hawks Production.

•

GREAT EXPECTATIONS

Charles Dickens' classic with Henry Hull, Jane Wyatt, Phillips Holmes, Francis L. Sullivan, Alan Hale, Florence Reed. Directed by Stuart Walker.

•

A CUP OF COFFEE

By Preston Sturges, author of "Strictly Dishonorable," "Child of Manhattan," etc.

•

THE MAN WHO RECLAIMED HIS HEAD

Play by Jean Bart. Screenplay by the author.

•

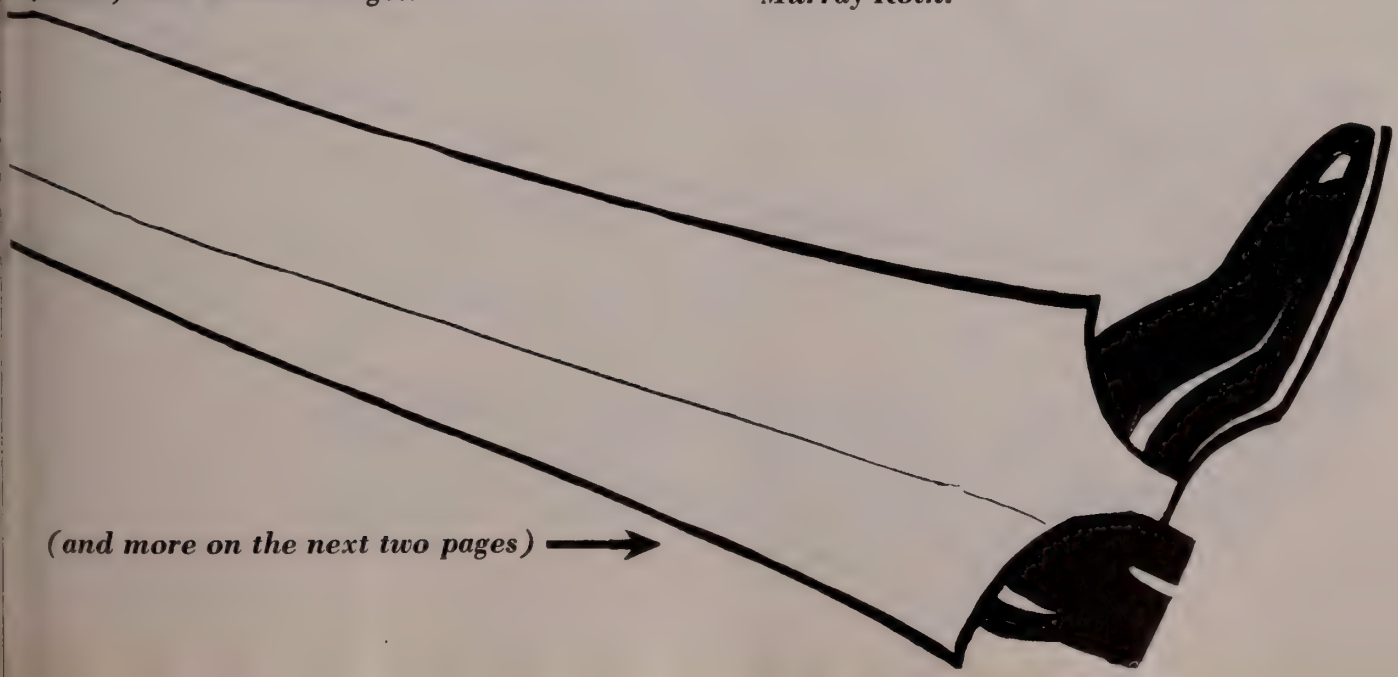
TWO MARGARET SULLAVAN

Productions—"THE GOOD FAIRY," play by Franz Molnar, and "WITHIN THIS PRESENT," novel by Margaret Ayer Barnes.

•

$1,000,000 RANSOM

Damon Runyon's sensational Cosmopolitan Magazine story. With Phillips Holmes, Edward Arnold, Mary Carlisle. Directed by Murray Roth.



(and more on the next two pages) ⟶

— WITH SEVEN-L

SPEED

Universal's mighty melodrama for 1934-35.

•

A JOHN M. STAHL PRODUCTION

•

I'VE BEEN AROUND

A beautiful young sophisticate tells the world what she thinks of it.

•

WAKE UP AND DREAM

Starring Russ Columbo, with June Knight, Roger Pryor, Henry Armetta. Directed by Kurt Neumann. A B. F. Zeidman Production.

•

AT YOUR SERVICE

Biggest tennis stars in heart-hitting romance of small-town boy who hits the heights.

•

NIGHT LIFE OF THE GODS

Thorne Smith's widely-read novel. A Lowell Sherman Production.

FANNY

Stage play by Marcel Pagnol. Directed by William Wyler. With Jane Wyatt.

•

CHEATING CHEATERS

Famous Broadway play by Max Marcin.

•

CONFESSIONS OF A MODERN WOMAN

By a writer who refuses to divulge her name. A "true story" with a wallop.

•

MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION

From the perennial best seller by Lloyd C. Douglas. (Now in 35th edition).

•

KEEP ON DANCING

Youth's fondest dreams come true in a modern drama.

AGUE STRIDE!

THERE'S ALWAYS TOMORROW

Frank Morgan, Binnie Barnes, Lois Wilson, Elizabeth Young, Louise Latimer. Directed by Edward Sloman.

•

WHAT LADIES DREAM

With Binnie Barnes, Neil Hamilton, Paul Cavanagh and many others.

•

ZEST

Best Seller by Charles G. Norris, also author of "Seed." Starring Douglass Montgomery.

THE JOY OF LIVING

A great drama in tune with these changing times. Box-office every minute.

•

BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN

A James Whale Production with Karloff and the original "Frankenstein" cast, excepting John Boles.

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
SHOWMANSHIP
SECTION
A DIGEST OF THE BEST
EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

ROMANCE IN THE RAIN

"ROMANCE IN THE RAIN"—the exploitation natural of the year! Here is a picture loaded with sure fire stunts and a showman's picture if ever there was one.

An intriguing title, a swell story, a splendid cast and two hit songs by the authors of the "Moonlight and Pretzels" music hits, with the story written by the same authors!

With seven national tie-ups, two of which went into the works some weeks ago, put into the hands of every exhibitor, you have ammunition and material with which you can reap a real box office harvest.

"ROMANCE IN THE RAIN" is the story of a modern Cinderella, which gave opportunity for a nation wide tie-up with the Beck Stores and the Cinema Shops, to find a modern Cinderella. This stunt, which was put into operation last month, furnishes ready made advance exploitation for exhibitors to tie in with on their local run and capitalize on the interest already created for this picture. The idea not only works for a shoe tie-up, but forms the basis of a model contest that can be worked in any town in the country. It is perfect for a dance hall tie-up or numerous local contests that will be bound to create tremendous interest. These other ideas are fully explained in the large press book which will be ready for exhibitors this week. The following pages in this edition of the Weekly will give you some advance ideas on the sure box office angles in this fine production.

Be sure to look at the paper provided for this production the next time you are in the Universal exchange. It will be worth your while. This entire line of paper has been given unusual color treatment, which, together with the action and general art layout, provides posters that no one can pass without seeing and being sold. A brilliant rainbow effect is used throughout this line of paper and accessories.

In addition to all of the excellent showmanship that has gone into the making of this picture, there are two swell song hits which open the way for excellent radio tie-ups. These songs are already scheduled for far reaching national broadcasts which will go a long way in selling this picture in advance to theatre audiences.

Get in touch with the local representatives of the national distributors mentioned in the following pages, the minute this edition of the Weekly reaches you. Get these tie-ups working for you early so that you can get the greatest advantage out of the sales aids prepared to aid you in putting on a real box office campaign.

Here is a swell picture for real profits. Get behind it with everything you've got.

SEVEN BIG NATIONAL TIE-UPS

TO assist you in your exploitation campaign for this big picture, seven national tie-ups have been consummated. If you get after them as soon as you have booked the picture, they will net you extra window and counter displays, and newspaper advertising. The tie-ups include, Shirt, Heather Angel Suede Purse, Rainy Weather Outfits, Song, Cinderella and Prince Charming Costumes and Hollywood Cinema Fashions.

M. Nirenberg and Sons have prepared an exclusively designed Roger Pryor shirt, already popularized. Get after the store handling it and provide some accessories for them to dress their displays. Nirenberg's address is 1140 Broadway, N.Y.C.

Hollywood Cinema Shops throughout the country will carry gowns, hats and lingerie tied up to the picture. There are also the "Angel" Rainy Weather Coats for girls and women. For children there are the Cinderella clothes for girls and the Prince Charming suits for boys. All the tie-ups mentioned in this paragraph have been arranged with Modern Merchandising Bureau, 36 West 44th St., N. Y. C. Locate the Cinema Fashion Shop in your town and the tie-up is yours.

There is a national tie-up with the Ford Automobile. Call on your local Ford agencies for a window and ad tie-up. They should have the information before you reach them. Heather Angel, Roger Pryor and Esther Ralston all drive new Ford cars.

The song tie-up is covered on another page of this issue. It gives you a good chance to land radio plugs with the songs.

PACK YOUR FRONT WITH COLOR, COMEDY, GAIETY

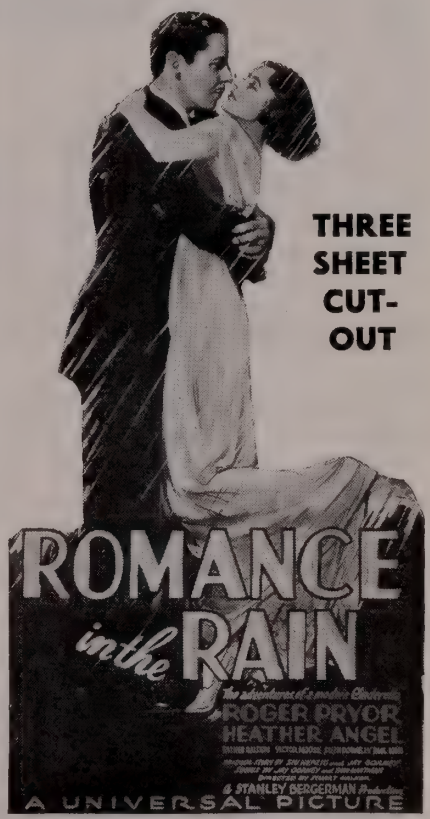
THE 24 SHEET CUT-OUT

THE treatment of the front should emphasize comedy, brilliance and romance. The 24 sheet cut-out over the marquee should have a spotlight on the heads. The rainbow effect can be increased by illuminating it with flasher lighting. Repeat the rainbow effect over the box office. Note the cut-out figures of the dancing girls at top center. You can repeat these across the entire front. They can be obtained from the 6 sheet.

The umbrella idea can be used in one spot, or can be repeated in several parts of the marquee and lobby. In the left section of the lobby is a waterproof stunt which is described more fully elsewhere. At the right is still another idea, showing how the cut-out of the lovers can be given a shower bath.

For lobby, front or window, it is possible to rig up an umbrella that swings like a pendulum, or a giant slipper that rocks like a rocking chair. The method is to rig the object to a small motor, with a pulley and gear arrangement. Your electrician can work out the details for your individual house requirements.

THREE SHEET CUT-OUT



CUT-OUT SUGGESTIONS

3-SHEET—In shadowbox and for shower stunt explained elsewhere.

6-SHEET—The heads will make good hangers for lobby and marquee. The two figures with umbrellas are excellent for a pulley and gear arrangement. The dancing figures at the bottom are great for a shadowbox arrangement.

CINDERELLA SLIPPER CONTEST

ARRANGEMENTS have been completed for a national contest to find the Cinderella Girl and if worked in your city will arouse unusual interest in your showing of "Romance in the Rain." The theme of the picture suggests the contest while the title lends itself to exploitation of the stunt.

The contest will start in the A. S. Beck Shoe Stores or in the Hollywood Cinema Fashions Stores, if a Beck Store is not located in the town. These stores will display a glass slipper, which all girls are invited to try on. Those who qualify should be judged on the stage of your theatre, preferably on opening night. The judges might include yourself, local artists, the store manager and the local newspaper editor.

Get word to the contestants through every possible medium, the newspaper, the store and the theatre. The newspapers will play an important part in this stunt if you go about getting their co-operation in the right way. It will be best to lay your cards on the table—take the store manager with you—and explain just what you are going to do. Ask his advice on the running of the contest and generally take him in your confidence, making him a part of the stunt. Arrange with him to serve as one of the local judges.

The stores have window displays prepared. These will include special window cards, announcement cards, and a copy of the shoe set on a beautiful plush cushion with gold braid.

At your end, you can give the stunt a trailer, panel in your lobby, notice in your house organ and a special herald. If you prefer, arrange with the store manager to distribute regular heralds imprinted on the back with special copy, furnished in mat form by the Beck advertising department.

When the winner is selected her photograph should be sent to the Exploitation Department, Universal Pictures, Rockefeller Center, New York City, N. Y. where the national winner will be selected by a board of competant beauty judges. The prize for the winner will be a trip to New York.

THREE COLOR FLASH HERALD

Its color and novelty can only be appreciated when seen. Flat size is six by nine inches. Priced at $3.00 per thousand. Ample imprint space. At your Universal Exchange.

DISPLAY LINES

In the comfortable shelter of the STRAND THEATRE enjoy the thrills of "Romance in the Rain."

* * *

Love was his bread and butter—until Romance came along. He tried it once—and found that he'd been wrong.

* * *

Her dainty foot slid into the slipper of romance—but it was a tight squeeze.

* * *

She had all the things a woman's heart desires—but one.

* * *

Laugh and cry and cheer as you watch the poor little rich girl get what money can't buy.

* * *

He wrote love, thought love, printed love—but he never lived love—until Cinderella came along.

* * *

They sold Cupid to the highest bidder—then they found they wanted him for themselves.

* * *

ROMANCE—when it reigns it pours.

* * *

She looked into the mirror of her love—and found that it wasn't all that it was cracked up to be.

* * *

"Romance in the Rain" . . . a cloudburst of comedy! A flood tide of laughs!

RAINBOW EFFECTS IN LOBBY

REGULAR electric light letters, set against a background of solid material on which a rainbow effect is painted in solid colors. The lights in the letters flash on and off, throwing a reflection against the rainbow background which heightens the color effect.

Cut the title letters out of beaverboard and place them in the front plane of a shadowbox. A few inches in back of this stretch transparent cloth, colored with transparent paints to resemble a rainbow. In back of the cloth place lighting strong enough to make the lettering stand out clearly.

TWO FLASHY 22 x 28's AND INSERT CARD

NATIONAL CONTEST FOR GOWN DESIGNS

AS part of their thorough national tie-up, Modern Merchandising Bureau have arranged a dress designing contest to be held through their nation-wide Hollywood Cinema Fashion Shops. These stores have already been notified of the plans and will co-operate with you 100 percent.

Then together with the store representative contact all art and designing schools personally and through the newspapers and invite them to enter their fashion sketches. Announce that on such a date the local winner will be selected by the theatre manager, and representatives of the Hollywood Cinema Store and the newspaper.

The local winners will then be submitted to Modern Merchandising Bureau for the selection of the national winners. Four national winners will be selected. Gowns will be presented to the winners.

HITCH UMBRELLA TO FLYING KITE

FOR this title, the flying of box kites for an outdoor stunt will work very well. First, a large box kite is flown well up into the air. Then rig as large an umbrella as you can obtain, on the kite string, after you have lettered the title and theatre on it. The umbrella can be rigged on the string with two linked rings, one to go round the umbrella and leave a slight amount of play. The other ring, linked to the first, goes around the kite string. The rings should be very smooth, so that they do not fray the string. The umbrella is caused to move up the string by the motion known as "walking" it up the string. If the umbrella is too heavy for one kite, two kites can be flown, with their strings joined after 100 feet of string is let out.

SMART LOBBY STUNT

THE above illustration shows how you can make a crowd-stopping lobby or window display. A cut-out is placed against the backwall or back board of the display space. Electric bulbs are arranged at top and sides of display. In front of these are placed a sheet of glass, which runs the full length of the layout.

A live girl can be used in back of the glass, if desired.

At the top, in FRONT of glass, a pipe is set after it is pierced for water at one inch intervals. Or you can use an ordinary shower spray. Note the metal trough at the bottom of the display. This trough is set so as to catch all the water and is tilted sufficiently to make the water run off.

MARDI GRAS

CONTACT the proprietor of a dance pavilion and work out with him a Cinderella contest. The people who attend wear costumes representing different famous people, movie stars, historical persons, etc. The first award should be the Cinderella award, for the girl with the smallest foot. Awards may also be given for most unusual costumes, best resemblances or impersonations.

NEWSPAPER CONTEST

THERE are available at your local Exchange, mats of five illustrations similar to those shown, about twice this size. Arrange for a cartoon contest in the newspaper. The paper runs one cartoon daily, about a week in advance of the run. Prizes are awarded the funniest 10 word caption.

Winning captions should be carried in theatre lobby frame together with reproductions of the drawings.

These illustrations can also be used on post cards, to be sent to theatre mailing list. They can also be printed on white cards, for youngsters to color with crayon.

WEATHER PROPHESYING

FOR a weather prophet contest, the following questions are asked in the newspaper or on a lobby board . . . 1. Will it rain on the opening date of "Romance in the Rain" at your theatre? 2. What will the weather be for the entire day? 3. What will the temperature be at three different given times of that day?

To the 50 persons who show the greatest skill in correctly prophesying the weather and the temperature at all three times of the opening day, guest tickets can be awarded.

A SET OF EIGHT PEPPY 11 x 14's

PLUG THE TWO BIG SONG HITS

HERE are two big songs, "F'rinstance" and "Love at Last" by the composers of hits, Jay Gorney and Don Hartman. Plugging them will net you an extra boost for the title. Contact the distributors of the songs immediately. They will co-operate in the arranging of window and counter displays. Provide stills, window cards and lobby cards to lend color to the display.

Contact all band leaders and vocalists and see that they get sufficient copies of the orchestrations and songs. Arrange with the station announcers to give the title a boost every time the number goes on the air.

If you cannot locate a music store that is handling the numbers contact the De Sylva, Brown and Henderson Music Co., 745 Seventh Avenue, New York City immediately.

IMPRINT SPACE

WINDOW CARD

SPECIAL ACCESSORIES

FOR this gala picture Universal has prepared some special accessories of outstanding merit, including in addition to a handsome window card and special midget card, illustrated elsewhere, sets of colored stills and tie-up stills.

The colored stills come in a set of six for 90c and are available at your Universal Exchange. They are 8 by 10 stills, colored with bright pastel tints and will be especially useful in preparing your lobby and front displays.

The set of ten tie-up stills, priced at one dollar a set offers shoe, grocery, drug, perfume, jewelry, luggage, furniture, silverware, dishware and Ford car tie-up possibilities.

The tire covers, made up by Cluff Fabric Products, Inc., 635 West 55th St., New York City are of heavy, durable cardboard, bound with fabric. They are printed in brilliant colors and leave plenty of room for imprint.

In addition to these special accessories, arrangements have been made with Economy Novelty and Printing Co., 239 West 39th St., New York City for the distribution of door knob hangers, lobby hangers and novelty balloons. They are all inexpensive to enable your use of quantity.

FLORIST'S WINDOWS

THIS idea for a florist window naturally should be planted with the man who is in the best location and dresses his window with great care. The window is handled in the usual style which the florist follows. In addition he uses the largest obtainable basket or vase, filled with flowers. Attached to this basket is a giant reproduction of the florist's delivery card, made by your sign artist to resemble the original as closely as practical. The copy on the card—"To be delivered to Heather Angel, star of 'Romance in the Rain' at the Rialto Theatre."

UMBRELLA PARADE

HERE is a stunt that will attract ballyhoo attention and will also be unusual enough to have a chance to land in the newspapers. It is a parade of young boy-and-girl couples, with arm around the waist or shoulder to indicate romance. Paint each umbrella a different color of the rainbow and have the boy carry the umbrella for each couple.

24-SHEET BALLYHOO

FOR an effective yet inexpensive ballyhoo, you can always depend on the 24-sheet mounted on a truck. The poster on this picture, because of the color and flash lends itself well to this type of display. Attach multi-colored gas-filled balloons to the truck and have a victrola play gay music to attract attention. This is an ideal type of street stunt. Put it out!

MIDGET CARD

Here is a midget window card that carries the flash of the regular cards and fits the spots too small for the large ones. They are reasonable at $3.50 per hundred, 4c. a piece, and are made to fit standard size frames.

CLAUDETTE COLBERT

in

FANNIE HURST'S

IMITATION OF LIFE

JOHN M. STAHL PRODUCTION

From

UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.

ROCKEFELLER CENTER

NEW YORK CITY

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
New York, N. Y.

Paid

Permit No. 949

Larry Edmunds Bookshop
6658 Hollywood Blvd.
Hollywood, Calif. 90028
HO 3-3273
World's Largest Collection
Of Books on Motion Pictures

"UNIVERSAL NEWSREEL with Graham McNamee, is a real feature for anybody's program . . . We congratulate you on it and are glad we are running it, both issues."

–BUCKHEAD THEATRE,
Atlanta, Ga.,
William J. Davis, Mgr.

Printed in U. S. A.

Binnie Barnes
in "THERE'S ALWAYS TOMORROW"

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

VOL. 35 AUGUST 18, 1934 NO. 10

WAKE UP and DREAM

Another Big One Is On The Way!

RUSS COLUMBO — ROGER PRYOR

June Knight, Henry Armetta and many others. A B. F. Zeidman Production.

A mighty book will soon become a mighty picture!

A HOWARD HAWKS
Production

SUTTER'S GOLD

FAITH IS A

No. 783 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

Signing himself "Chick," the editor of the Showmen's Round Table, writes a pungent paragraph in sizing up Universal's line-up for 34-35. He says:

"We have, as in the past, a great deal of faith in this company. They have been in business too long to take chances on losing the great confidence and respect that so many thousands of exhibitors have for them. They will do their utmost to deliver good pictures. We can't see how you can miss up in buying their product for 1934-1935."

He also speaks warmly of the "fair trading" policy of Universal.

Most men get monuments after they die, but I consider this a monument to the living!

The only reason why Universal has lived through hellish times and the only reason why its prospects today are brighter than ever is so many thousands of exhibitors have faith in us.

Faith is a marvelous thing. It can move mountains. It can achieve the otherwise impossible.

Dozens of times during the past few years, Universal has been on the ragged edge of defeat — but it has always been saved from doom by the faith it has inspired by past performances.

GREAT THING

We don't carry good will on our financial statement — but I assure you it is the most valuable asset Universal ever had.

Faith! Faith that we will keep promises. Faith that we will be decent and square in our dealings with customers, whether big or little customers.

Laugh at good will if you like. Try to tell me that it is not bankable! But in answer I will tell you that of all the things Universal owns, I prize most highly your belief in the company of which I am proud to be president.

Let me tell you a secret: — Universal's never-changing policy is based on a principle, and that principle is just plain, common, every-day decency. Nobody can lick a good principle. As an exhibitor you can either look over our line-up or you can shut your eyes and trust to your faith!

In either case, Universal will get your business!

Faith is a great thing, but Faith deserved over a long period of years is unbeatable!

Carl Laemmle

WHAT did Apollo do when he came to life on Broadway? . . .
You'll Be Surprised!

•

See it all in the
LOWELL SHERMAN PRODUCTION

NIGHT LIFE OF THE GODS

"GIFT OF GAB" Will Have Premiere In Chicago Palace

"GIFT OF GAB," which is Universal's lead-off picture for next season, and is being advertised with thirty stars of pictures, stage and radio, will have its world premiere in Chicago. It has been booked into the Palace Theatre, which is now the world's greatest vaudeville house, to open on August 24th. It will be an event in the Chicago season.

The "Gift of Gab" cast includes Edmund Lowe, Ruth Etting, Gloria Stuart, Phil Baker, Alice White, Victor Moore, Hugh O'Connell, Ethel Waters, Chester Morris, Douglass Montgomery, Binnie Barnes, Roger Pryor, Karloff, Gene Austin, Candy and Coco, Alexander Woollcott, Graham McNamee, Sidney Skolsky, Gus Arnheim's Orchestra, Sterling Holloway, Henry Armetta, the Downey Sisters, the Beale Street Boys, Douglas Fowley, Wini Shaw, Helen Vinson, the Three Stooges, and June Knight.

✚ ✚ ✚

UNIVERSAL SALES MORE ADVANCED THAN EVER BEFORE IN ITS HISTORY

Closing of Butterfield Deal by J. R. Grainger Leaves But Two Important Circuits Unclosed in Greatest Contract Acceptance of Universal's 22 Sales Seasons.

J. R. GRAINGER, general manager of distribution for Universal, returned yesterday from Detroit with contracts signed for Universal product to play the Butterfield Circuit. This well known circuit operates eighty-one theatres in thirty-four key towns of the state of Michigan. The contract signed by Mr. Grainger with E. S. Beatty, general manager of the Circuit, includes features, serials, shorts and news reels.

On the same trip, Mr. Grainger signed the same form of contract with the Durkee Circuit of sixteen houses in Baltimore.

With the closing of the Butterfield Circuit, Universal for the first time in its life in August has signed every important circuit in the United States and Canada, with the exception of two for which negotiations are now in progress. The books of the company disclose that never in the history of Universal have there been so many contracts closed so early in the selling season. The percentage over last year is very nearly 800%. These contracts cover 261 of the important key cities of the United States and Canada.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, New York City
Copyrighted 1934
Universal Pictures Corp.
(All Rights Reserved)
AUGUST 18, 1934
Vol. 35 No. 10

ADOL
in The H

PHE MENJOU UMAN SIDE

"A swell picture ... Direction writing, acting, all score ... fairly teems with audience appeal."

— Hollywood Reporter

"Stacks up as good, wholesome entertainment... Bright comedy, human performances ... should find special response family houses."

— Daily Variety

•

DORIS KENYON

Dickie Moore, Joseph Cawthorn, Reginald Owen, Betty Lawford, Charlotte Henry. Directed by Edward Buzzell. Presented by CARL LAEMMLE.

LATEST PRODUCTION NEWS FR

Henry Hull in one of the most amazing makeups that the screen has seen, rivalling even his makeup in "Tobacco Road," and the famous boy star of "No Greater Glory," George Breakstone, as they appear in "Great Expectations."

Edna Searle Given Role In "What Ladies Dream"

BEFORE Binnie Barnes first picture for Universal, "There's Always Tomorrow," is on the screen, her second one is likely to be completed at Universal City. Intensive production on this picture is being undertaken at Universal City by director Ernst Frank.

An unusual addition was this week made to the cast which already includes Neil Hamilton, Paul Cavanagh, Grant Mitchell, Ferdinand Gottschalk, Edward Keane, Jason Robards, Henry Kolker, Doris Lloyd and William Worthington. This addition is the cousin and companion of Binnie Barnes, the girl who came over with her on the famous flying trip of six days from London to California. Her name is Edna Searles. Because she is the same size and coloring as Binnie Barnes, Ernst Frank asked her to act as stand-in and she did this very gladly. When the rushes, however, came in, everybody was asking, "Who is this new girl who is standing in for Binnie Barnes?"

(Continued on Page 27)

How "Great Expectations" Will Be Filmed

RECONSTRUCTION of twenty years of the Victorian era in eleven months of research, collecting and building on land and sea had to be completed at Universal City before "Great Expectations," the screen version of Dickens' celebrated novel, could get under way. Henry Hull, Phillips Holmes, Jane Wyatt, Alan Hale and Florence Reed are featured in this picture which revealed many interesting things in the course of preparation. Among these was the discovery that Dickens was a great scenarist and dialogue writer. In making her screen adaptation of the novel, very few changes were introduced by Gladys Unger. Dickens' own dialogue was used with notably sparse exceptions. The characters too are retained unchanged by the adaptor. It is a remarkable thing, considering the way screen adaptors treat many modern novelists. There are only nineteen major characters in the book. All of them will be seen in the picture.

Under the supervision of Madame Hilda Grenier, former Roy Dresser and confidante of Queen Mary of England who acted as technical and dialogue director for the picture, the early and mid-Victorian period has been brought to life at the Universal studio. Fifty-nine sets, thirty-two of them erected indoors on four sound stages have been built. These settings represent interior and exterior scenes in England and France. In addition, scenes were shot off the coast of England near Portsmouth and close to the shores of the Isle of Wight for the convict ship sequence. These reels have been developed in England and shipped to Universal City where they will be fitted into the picture when it is being edited.

Two ships were reproduced for the production. One of these is the convict ship, a square rigged vessel made according to photographs of the old "Success." The other is a replica of the Boulogne steamer of 1860.

With the assistance of Jack Pierce, Universal makeup specialist and of director Stuart Walker, Hull evolved three changes in makeup for Magwitch to cover the three periods of his life shown; his first appearance, his stay in Australia and his return.

An interesting feature of "Great Expectations" is the appearance in the same picture of Hull, considered one of the leading character actors in America, and Francis Sullivan who enjoys much the same reputation in England. It is Hull's second talkie role and Sullivan's American debut. He plays the lawyer Jaggers. Phillips Holmes is cast as Pip, Florence Reed acts Miss Havisham. Jane Wyatt is Estella and Alan Hale impersonates Joe Gargery. More than 300 extras are being used in the picture.

OM UNIVERSAL CITY STUDIOS

Twenty-Five New Beauties In "The Great Ziegfeld"

AT least 25 girls of universal beauty will make their professional screen debut in William Anthony McGuire's production of "The Great Ziegfeld" for Universal Pictures, as the result of one of the most extensive beauty hunts ever conducted by the movies.

This number, together with the pick of outstanding show girls and dancers from the screen and New York musical stage, will constitute one of the most pretentious ensembles ever presented in a Hollywood musical film according to Producer McGuire.

The newcomers are being selected to represent the varied type of girls who achieved glorification in the late impressario's Ziegfeld Follies and other musical shows. Many of the novices have been chosen for their close resemblances to prominent stage and screen personalities of today who gained first recognition while in Ziegfeld's production.

Although William Powell is the only player as yet defiinitely selected, there is a strong possibility that Fannie Brice and Marilyn Miller will both play in their own roles. And there is also a strong possibility that Ruth Etting will have an important role in the picture. Of course, June Knight, the last girl to be glorified by Ziegfeld, is a strong candidate.

Last week a new possibility arose. Carl Laemmle, Jr., has discovered a very strong resemblance between Wini Shaw and portraits of Helen Morgan taken fifteen years ago. What is almost as interesting is the fact that Wini Shaw herself was a chorus girl in several of Ziegfeld's later shows. If Wini Shaw is chosen for "The Great Ziegfeld," it will make her fourth Universal picture, as she has already appeared in "Gift of Gab," "Million Dollar Ransom" and "Wake Up and Dream." This is quite a busy time for an actress who waited six months on another lot to get even one engagement.

✚ ✚ ✚

John Meehan, Jr., Will Adapt Beaumont's "I've Been Around"

"I'VE BEEN AROUND" by Gerald Beaumont will be B. F. Zeidman's first production under a new producer contract which Zeidman signed Friday with Carl Laemmle, Jr. Zeidman is just completing "Wake Up and Dream," with Russ Columbo, Roger Pryor and June Knight, a musical by John Meehan, Jr. Mr. Meehan will also contribute the screenplay for "I've Been Around" and Chester Morris is being considered for the stellar role.

Miss Billie Burke and William Anthony McGuire adapting the scenario of "The Great Ziegfeld" to the face and personality of William Powell. This star has been chosen to create for the screen the character of the late Florenz Ziegfield in the production which will be one of the special features on the Universal program of 42 features.

"Wake Up and Dream" Now In The Cutting Room

THE shooting schedule on "Wake Up and Dream" featuring Russ Columbo, Roger Pryor and June Knight, has been completed at Universal City by director Kurt Neumann. The first out-and-out musical which Universal has made for some time is now in the cutting room. Its first assembly discloses a picture of unusual originality. great hilarity and a thoroughly enjoyable melody. It has a rollicking, robust, human quality which backs up the clever efforts of Columbo, Pryor and June Knight in the best traditions of movie technique.

"Wake Up and Dream" gives a comprehensive view of the entire length and breadth of the United States. Many of its scenes are made from a moving bus as it travels across the country.

GIFT

Edmund Lowe
Gloria Stuart
Paul Lukas
Chester Morris
Binnie Barnes
Karloff
Graham McNamee
Alice White
Victor Moore
Hugh O'Connell
Sterling Holloway
Downey Sisters
Douglas Fowley
Helen Vinson
Alexander Woollcott

Ruth Etting
Phil Baker
Ethel Waters
Douglass Montgomery
Roger Pryor
Gene Austin
Bela Lugosi
June Knight
Andy Devine
Henry Armetta
Beal Street Boys
Wini Shaw
Candy and Coco
Three Stooges
Gus Arnheim's Orchestra

Story by Jerry Wald and Phil Epstein. Screenplay by Rian James. Produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr. Associate Producer, Rian James. Directed by Karl Freund.
Presented by
CARL LAEMMLE.

of GAB

World Premiere
Palace Theatre,
Chicago, August
24th!

Carl Laemmle Discovers New Valentino

Willy Castello, Whom Carl Laemmle Signed to a Seven Year Contract in Carlsbad, Flies to Universal City—Carl Laemmle, Jr. to Test Him for Margaret Sullavan Picture, "Within This Present."

WILLY CASTELLO, Holland's most famous actor and screen star, left New York yesterday by plane for Universal City. Mr. Castello was signed to a seven year contract by Carl Laemmle when he was brought to Carlsbad by Universal's scouts in London. They had seen him in a French picture and regarded him as the greatest find in Europe. Carl Laemmle, too, who gave Valentino his first opportunity in pictures, feels that in Castello he has an actor who gives more promise than any juvenile he has seen since Valentino. In many ways they have the same appeal.

Mr. Castello expected to stay for a week in New York, but Carl Laemmle, Jr. wired to send him by plane as quickly as possible. He is anxious to assay his qualities with a view to putting him into Margaret Sullavan's next picture, "Within This Present" by Margaret Ayer Barnes.

Given encouragement and assistance by a former Hollywood cameraman, Mack Van Lier Castello did his first work for the UFA Company in Berlin. He was acting on the Holland stage, where he made his debut at seventeen, when he met Van Lier who was then managing the Tuschinski Theatre in Amsterdam. The actor, then nineteen, impressed Van Lier who gave him a letter of introduction to Dr. Johannes Guter, a director of UFA. Guter tried to dissuade Castello from entering picture work but he attracted the notice of Joe May, UFA director and played small roles in a number of productions, for that company and others.

Carl Laemmle in Carlsbad signing contract with Willy Castello, the twenty-four year old Hollander, who bids fair to be a sensational star in America.

Willy Castello, Carl Laemmle's new find, arriving in New York on the Dutch steamer Stattendam, the first Hollander to seek screen laurels in Hollywood.

Returning to Holland for his year of compulsory military service, Castello became light-heavyweight boxing champion of the Dutch Army.

At the end of his term of army training, he went to France in the pursuit of his picture career. After bitter days in the extra line and playing bit roles he made his mark. He acted the leads in several French productions, including "C'Est Toi Ou Moi," "Trois Fois Treize," "Enlevez Moi," "Le Chant Du Marin," and "The Duchess of Chicago," and also acted on the stage.

Irving Berlin, celebrated American composer wrote a song especially for Castello. It was a German song entitled "Du Wer Bist Du?" and was sung by Castello in a French revue, "Sans Blague, C'Est Vous" at the Noggerath Theatre, Paris. He also sang, "Did You Ever See A Dream Walking" in this show. Two years of work on the French stage and screen terminated when the young actor left for London where he attracted the attention of Universal.

The most popular actor in Holland, Castello played the lead in the Hallandia Films picture, "De Jantjes." This picture ran for 18 weeks in Amsterdam, 22 weeks in Rotterdam and The Hague, all cities of less than a million population.

Castello was born in Amsterdam, Holland, April 24, 1910 and was educated in the public primary and high schools of that city. He studied medicine at Utrecht University, but abandoned it for the stage toward which he had been drawn since early childhood. He is six feet tall, has dark brown hair and brown eyes and weighs 185 pounds. He participates in most sports and pilots a plane. He has a good baritone singing voice.

MENTONE COMEDIES

Help make the best show better. For instance —

"A NIGHT IN A NIGHT CLUB"

with

J. HAROLD MURRAY

MARTHA RAY

BUCK AND BUBBLES

ELAINE ARDEN

EDDIE BURTON AND BAND

12 MENTONETTES

HARRY ROSE

"GUS VAN and his NEIGHBORS"

with

GUS VAN

MARTHA MEERS

GENIESE QUINCY AND LEWIS

LOUIS AND VAN

12 DENNY DARE GIRLS

2 REELS EACH

"$80,000 FOR 'RIVER'" — VARIETY

New York woke up on Thursday morning to find a line extending from the front of the theatre around to Fifth Avenue to greet the opening of "One More River." There had not been a line in front of that house all summer. More startling than that, even, the box-office had to stop selling tickets twice for that first show. This never happened at the Music Hall before. As we go to press, it looks as though Variety's estimate of $80,000, would be exceeded by at least $8,000.

"One More River" Clicks All Over The Country

"ONE MORE RIVER" got off to an astonishingly swell start at the Music Hall, astonishing, considering everything. It opened on the sultriest day New York almost ever experienced, the sultriest day of the sultriest week, too. Furthermore, it was booked in on Tuesday night, and opened on Thursday. No time for an exploitation campaign, and no extra money for an advertising campaign.

This is what Variety has to say on Tuesday, with three more days to go:

"Music Hall is easily out in front. 'One More River' secured for the house only three days in advance of opening for a substitute for a less liked booking. Will hit around $80,000. This is the highest here since 'Bondage' around July 4th. Picture cannot hold, however, the house having booked Harold Lloyd's 'Cat's Paw' for Thursday the 16th."

Then, in its detail column, it has this:

"Radio City Music Hall: 'One More River' (U), Stage Show: Doing a smart business over here; looks like $80,000 or a little over. Last week 'World Moves On' (Fox) slightly above $70,000. O.K."

In Washington, Variety reports:

"One More River" $9,000 in Washington. "Keith's (RKO) 'One More River' (U). Raves from critics and holding up to a probable big $9,000. Last week 'Cimarron' (Radio) revival took nice $6,000."

In Indianapolis 'One More River' received good notices and is doing well at $4,000.

In Baltimore, "Keith's (Schanberger) 'One More River' (U)—Holding over for two days and will have about $6,800 at end of nine-day stretch, which concludes Wednesday (15). 'Romance in Rain' next."

Here is Variety's description of the Los Angeles week:

"River" Standout In L.A. On $6,000

Only house to show any radical improvement this week is the Pantages which is playing "One More River," and more than tripling its average weekly take.

In Kansas City "One More River" played one of the best weeks in the last six months. Variety says:

"Last week 'One More River' (U) got extra strong endorsements from the Press and took $4,700."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY Says:

"River" in Strong Start

"One More River" got off to a flying start at the RKO Music Hall by grossing $12,000 the first day.

NEW YORK ACCLAIMS "ONE MORE RIVER"

NEW YORK reviewers were very kind, indeed, to "One More River." All of them had nice things to say of the picture as a picture, of the players as actors, and of the direction of James Whale and the adaptation work of R. C. Sherriff. We have taken the review of Mordaunt Hall in the New York Times as a symbol of the praise which was showered upon the Music Hall show the morning after it opened to capacity business. Mr. Hall calls "One More River" a grand picture.

By MORDAUNT HALL

Boldly concentrating their attention on one of the two dominant angles of the story and accelerating the action when it was deemed necessary for dramatic purposes, R. C. Sherriff and James Whale, who distinguished themselves as a team by their skillful handling of the film of H. G. Wells's book, "The Invisible Man," have fashioned a grand picture out of the late John Galsworthy's last novel, "One More River," the third of the triology of the Forsytes.

In this Radio City Music Hall's presentation the noteworthy accuracy in detail is of vast assistance to the impact of the narrative. Mr. Whale, as the director, not only reveals his painstaking efforts in this regard but he has also selected his cast with unusual discernment, each player being especially well suited to the character he or she is called upon to portray. Although the principals are Diana Wynyard, Frank Lawton and Colin Clive, all the supporting performers rise to what is demanded of them.

It is interesting to note that when the picture was screened in its first form it met with censorial objections and certain scenes had to be retaken. This has been accomplished so shrewdly that the changes cannot be detected by those who have witnessed the production only as it stands. From reports concerning the original aspects, it might be ventured that the alterations and eliminations have improved the picture, for it is understood that unsavory incidents were overstressed.

The film ignores the unhappy experiences of Dinny Cherrell and concerns itself with the story of her sister Clare, the wife of Sir Gerald Corven. Even those who may regret the differences between the novel and the picture, may be gratified to discover such an intelligent drama, particularly when they give thought to the exigencies of such an adaptation.

One might hazard that this film can boast of one of the finest court room episodes ever projected on a screen. This comes at a climactic point of the pictorial narrative and is concerned with the proceedings in the trial of the divorce suit instituted by Sir Gerald, with Tony Croom, who is desperately in love with Clare, named as the corespondent. It happens in London, and there are the bewigged judge, barristers and others in the court. It is a remarkable sequence and one endowed with considerable vitality, truth and imagination.

Miss Wynyard gives a stirringly sincere personation as Clare. Frank Lawton is excellent as Tony and Colin Clive is splendid as Sir Gerald. Mrs. Patrick Campbell makes the most of some witty lines and Jane Wyatt is ingratiating as Clare's sister, Dinny. Lionel Atwill gives a capital performance as Sir Gerald's counsel and Alan Mowbray serves well as the defendant's lawyer. Gilbert Emery is impressive as the judge. Praiseworthy work is done also by C. Aubrey Smith, Henry Stephenson, Tempe Piggott and Kathleen Howard.

A NICE BOUQUET FOR JANE WYATT

Richard Watts, Jr., in his review of "One More River" not only calls the picture a superior photoplay, but gives extravagant praise to all the players in the cast. This is what he has to say of Jane Wyatt, Universal's latest ingenue, whose performance so pleased Carl Laemmle, Jr., that he gave her a big role in "Great Expectations."

"Not the least interesting event of the picture is the cinema debut in one of its lesser roles of Miss Jane Wyatt, the most captivating of the newer stage ingenues and a young player of vast potentialities. Miss Wyatt's admirers will be pleased, but not surprised, to note that she photographs excellently and plays charmingly as the heroine's sympathetic sister."

Watch next week's Universal Weekly for equally enthusiastic comments on "One More River."

"AUTHOR, TITLE AND INDICATE SHOWMA

"It's an adaptation of the Damon Runyon story, 'Ransom $1,000,000,' which recently ran serially in Cosmopolitan Magazine," continues M. P. Herald. "The film is hectic action-packed comedy smacking of typical Runyon satire . . . The story gets off to a rip - roaring start . . . The usual satirical twist finds romance, comedy and gun-fire blending into an hilarious whole."

•

with

PHILLIPS HOLMES
EDWARD ARNOLD
MARY CARLISLE

Andy Devine — Wini Shaw

Produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr. Directed by Murray Roth. Presented by Carl Laemmle.

A UNIVERSAL PICTURE

DAMON RUNYON'S MILLION DOL

STORY
N'S VALUES" — says Motion Picture Herald

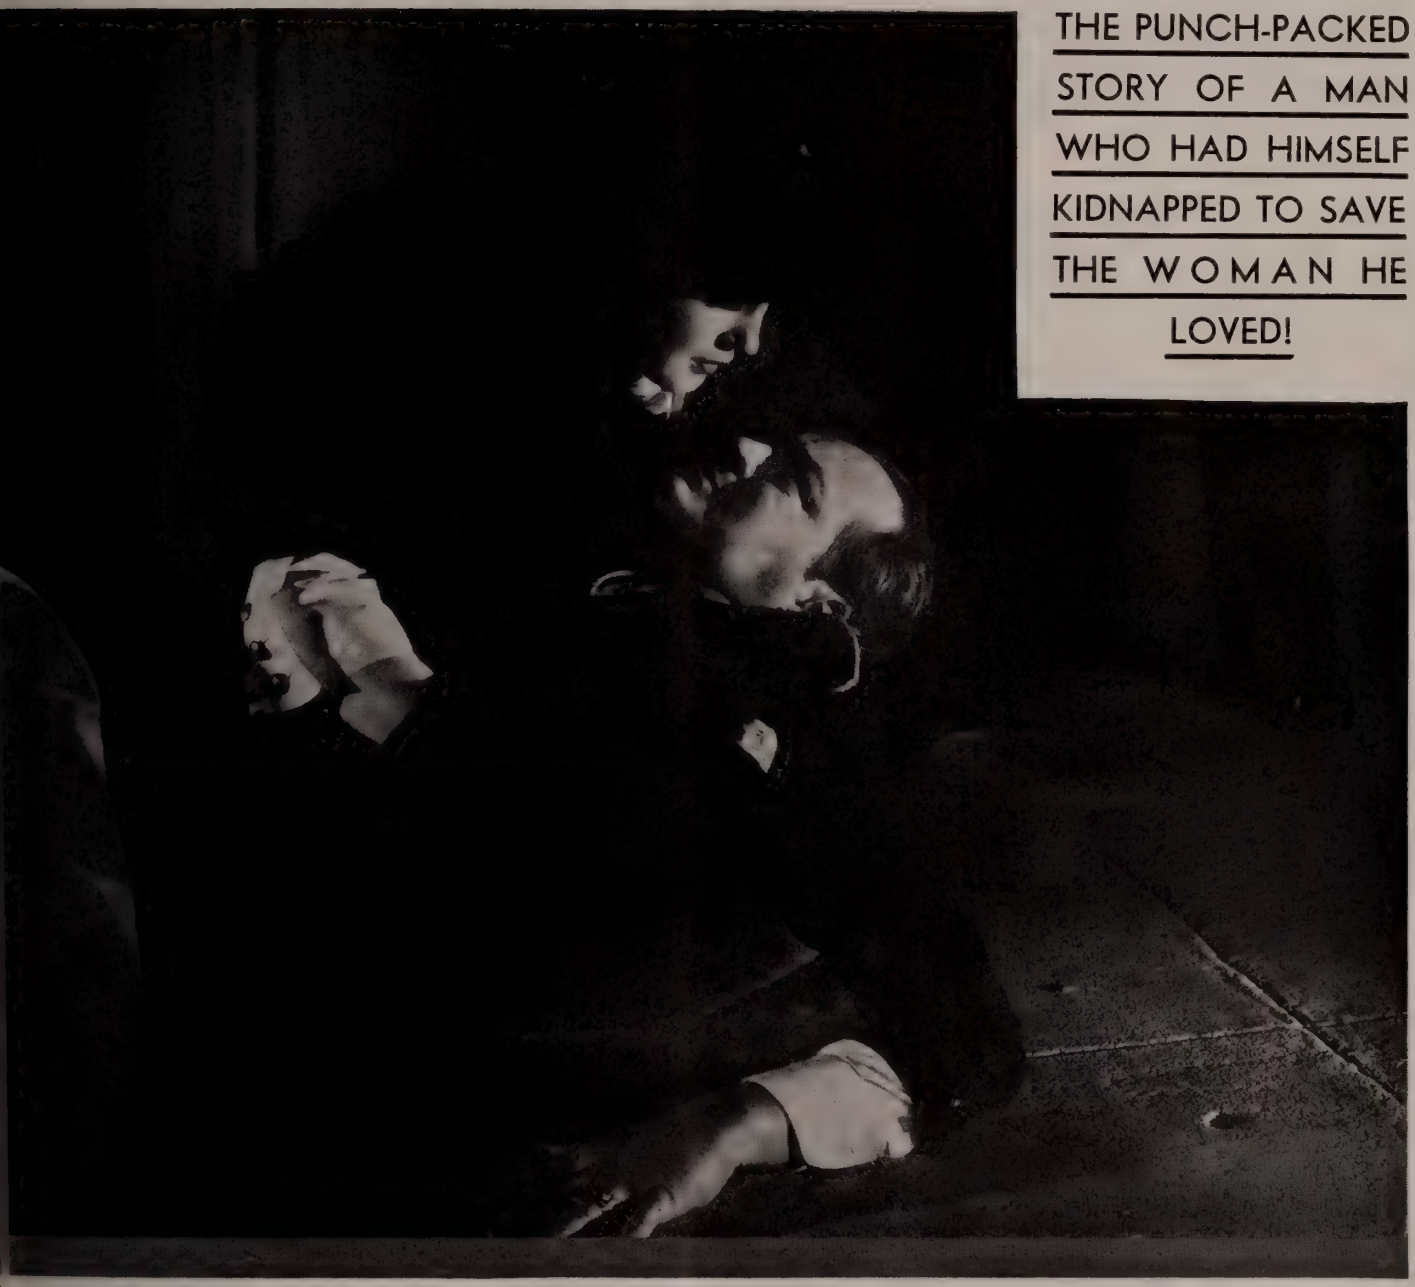
THE PUNCH-PACKED STORY OF A MAN WHO HAD HIMSELF KIDNAPPED TO SAVE THE WOMAN HE LOVED!



LAR RANSOM

SENSA

"A Grand Picture"
—N. Y. Times

"A Superior Photoplay"
—N. Y. Herald Tribune

•

"Heartily Recommended"
—N. Y. World Telegram

•

"Highly Creditable"
—N. Y. Daily News

•

"A Splendid Film"
—N. Y. Daily Mirror

•

"Compels Attention"
—N. Y. Eve. Post

•

"Faithful Portrayal"
—N. Y. Eve. Journal

•

ONE MOR

TIONAL

—ask the RADIO CITY

MUSIC HALL

——Don't Ask Us——

about James Whale's Mighty Picturization of Galsworthy's Best Seller!

•

UNIVERSAL

ERIVER

Says Motion Picture Herald: "An AUDIENCE picture because it's all entertaining fun, a SHOWMAN'S picture because it's full of adaptable showmanship ideas, the production is clean, fast-moving, hectically exciting, telling a complicated romance story against modern topical backgrounds."

•

Hear the 2 big song hits
"Love At Last"
"F'r Instance"

ance the Rain

with

ROGER PRYOR
HEATHER ANGEL

Esther Ralston, Victor Moore, Ruth Donnelly, Paul Kaye. Story by Sig Herzig and Jay Gorney. Songs by Jay Gorney and Don Hartman. Screenplay by Barry Trivers. Directed by Stuart Walker. Additional dialogue by Gladys Unger and John V. A. Weaver. A Stanley Bergerman Production. Presented by CARL LAEMMLE.

NEWSREEL No. 275

FARM BELT HAILS ROOSEVELT AS HE PROMISES DROUGHT AID

GREEN BAY, WIS.—Entering the stricken area of the Middle West on his inspection tour of the country, the President promises Government relief to the suffering farmers.

ROCK-SLIDE CHANGES FALLS

NIAGARA FALLS, ONT.—Tons of stone crash to the bottom of the Canadian side of the famous cataract, altering the contour from shore to shore.

FARM WATER GOES BY RAIL

KANSAS CITY, MO.—Long trains of tank-cars filled from City mains carry a precious gift to the farmer.

BIGGEST DRYDOCK LAUNCHED

WILMINGTON, DEL.—Splashing into the water like a new Leviathan, the largest craft of its kind is prepared for its long trip to the West Coast.

MOUNTAIN FLOODS KILL FOUR

MORRISON, COL.—A wall of water twenty feet high rushes down Bear Creek Canyon, snuffing out lives and burying villages under a layer of black mud.

AIRMEN BATTLE FOR TROPHY IN THRILLING SPEED TEST

OMAHA, NEB.—Thousands look on as leading pilots engage in a spectacular flying competition for a coveted prize.

CADETS STUDY COASTAL GUNS

FORT MONROE, VA.—Future officers from West Point examine the country's defenses.

FIRE IMEPRILS PARCHED CITY

LIBERTY, MO.—Flames sweep the business section, threatening to desrtoy the entire community.

FAT GIRLS VIE IN DIVING

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Chosen as contestants by weight instead of for their prowess.

"MILLION DOLLAR RANSOM" FAST AND EXCITING DRAMA — Hollywood Reporter

GOOD DIRECTION, ACTION AND STORY

Here is what the Hollywood Reporter says about the Preview to "Million Dollar Ransom."

GETTING off to a nice, exciting start, "Million Dollar Ransom" rides a good, fast tempo to the end. Fine direction, a splendid cast, and a gangster story that is different are its assets.

Based on the always appealing theme of a gangster trying to go straight, it has plenty of fundamental, human drama, and quite a lot of excitement thrown in for good measure.

Arnold gives a splendidly convincing performance, in spite of the fact that his part is conventional. Holmes loosens up and turns in a swell piece of acting. Mary Carlisle, as Arnold's daughter and Holmes' heart throb, proves again that she's climbing up. Wini Shaw, a newcomer, shows exceptional promise as Arnold's sweetheart; Andy Devine is amusing as his henchman, and Marjorie Gateson is well cast as the boy's mother, with Edgar Norton seen to advantage in a small role.

Murray Roth's direction is strong and faithful to the story; William R. Lipman made a smooth, playable screen play from Damon Runyon's story, and George Robinson photographed.

\+ \+ \+

"Little Man, What Now?" Has "Seventh Heaven" Quality Says September Picture Play

EVEN more than in "Only Yesterday" does Margaret Sullavan triumph in an honest, poignant story that is far superior to the moviesque sentimentality which introduced her and proclaimed her a leading actress, a star to the incandescents born. This concerns a young couple and their trials and tribulations, defeats and aspirations during the post-War upheaval in Germany. It isn't a story really, but a simple chronicle of everyday happenings. This, I think, is what makes it more eloquent than if it had plot, situations, and an ordered climax. Here each incident is the logical outcome of the one preceding it. And it is all the more heart-breaking because it is simple and natural, its drama below, not on, the surface. It has more of the quality and feeling of "Seventh Heaven" than any picture I can recall and it has, of course, the same director. Douglass Montgomery gives a fine performance, too, his speech a little too fluent, his person a bit too elegant and graceful to suggest the harried clerk, but his intelligent grasp is unfailing.

TRAVELLER

Here is Lowell Thomas as he used to look as a Traveller, War Correspondent and Globe Trotter. He tells you about places in series of single reelers.

EXCELLENT

HERE is the first review of Universal's new short subject, "Going Places" with Lowell Thomas. In reviewing the first number, Film Daily calls it "excellent." Here is their review:

The first of a new series, this subject sets a fast and interesting pace. Following a short introduction by Lowell Thomas comes the subject of Venice and the glass-blowing craft. This art, jealously guarded for years, is shown and explained in detail. The second subject is a beautifully photographed sequence of scenes on the Crimean coast, known as the Russian Riviera. The closing subject starts with the duck-billed women of the Ubangi tribe in Africa, the Turkannas, and finally the pigmy natives of the Belgian Congo. Scenes are extremely interesting. The narration by Thomas is carefully delivered without the usual artificial speed of most announcers. If the remainder of the series keeps to the standard, its success is sure.

—Film Daily

SLOGANS POUR IN ON "GIFT OF GAB"

FROM all parts of the Americas exhibitors and theatre advertising managers are flooding the Universal Exploitation Department with slogans for "Gift of Gab," in answer to the announcement that prizes totaling one hundred dollars would be paid for the seven best received.

Universal officials expressed great surprise at the remarkable response to the contest. Entries have been coming in at the rate of over a hundred a day from as far north as Alaska and from as far south as the Argentine. From East and West the boys are all hepped up over the possibilities in this great 30 star sensation. From the enthusiasm shown "Gift of Gab" should get some real smash exploitation at the hands of the live-wire showmen who will play it.

The large volume of slogans received will retard the work of the the judges somewhat so that announcement of the winners will not be made for some time. All slogans to receive consideration must be postmarked not later than Monday August twentieth. They should be addressed to the Exploitation Department, Universal Pictures Corp., Rockefeller Center, New York City.

First prize is $50.00; second prize $25.00 and the next five, $5.00 each.

✚ ✚ ✚

NEWSREEL No. 274

GROWTH RECORD SHATTERED

KANSAS CITY, MO.—Gigantic proportions already distinguish Henry Mullins, who at nineteen is 7 feet 9 inches tall, weighs 286 pounds, wears an 18½ collar and a size 22 shoe, and is still growing.

INDIANS INDUCT PRESIDENT IN TRADITIONAL CEREMONY

GLACIER NATIONAL PARK, MONT.—Striking scenes mark the adoption of Mr. Roosevelt as a member of the Blackfeet.

AUSTRIA SELECTS NEW CHIEF

VIENNA, AUSTRIA—Successor to the murdered Dollfuss Dr. Kurt von Schuschnigg is appointed Chancellor.

OFFICE FORCE PUT ON ICE

TOLEDO, O.—A blast of heat sends the temperature to 112 in the shade.

WOMAN SWIMMER DEFIES AGE

VENICE, CAL.—Putting her great-grandchildren to shame, Mrs. Anna van Skike shows her contempt for the years as she celebrates her seventy-fourth birthday by swimming twenty miles.

GOTHAM PICKS MODERN VENUS

CONEY ISLAND, N. Y.—Famed experts of feminine loveliness unite in choosing Elinor Edmonston as the most perfect.

BRITISH CAPITAL 'ATTACKED' BY GIANT BOMBING PLANES

LONDON, ENGLAND—Scores of powerful Army 'planes shower tons of "explosives" on the metropolis.

NEW CARS DESTROYED IN FIRE

BUFFALO, N. Y.—Sweeping through a huge warehouse, a blaze of mysterious origin feeds on the shiny varnish of hundreds of automobiles.

CUP CHALLENGER MAKES PORT

BRISTOL, R. I.—Breezing across the Atlantic in the fastest time ever made for the trip by a contender, Endeavour puts in for final rigging before she attempts to lift America's Cup.

POPE VISITS SUMMER PALACE

CASTELGANDOLFO, ITALY—His Holiness takes up residence for the warm season at magnificent papal estate now in its original splendor.

GROUP HONORS SKELETON

CHICAGO, ILL.—Members of the Post-Mortem Club entertain at an unusual breakfast-meeting with the skeleton of the organization's founder sitting in the place of honor.

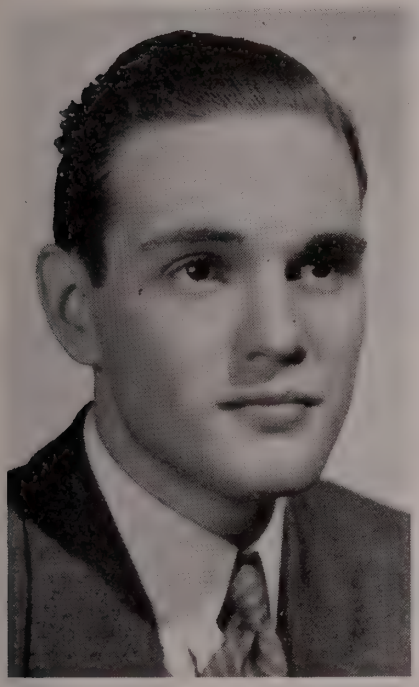
GOING PLACES

with

LOWELL THOMAS

Thirteen exciting one-reel releases, with the world-famous traveler, lecturer and radio commentator giving more color to the world's most colorful, most interesting, most bizarre and most exciting customs, nooks, crannies and beauty spots. A new novelty thrill for any theatre's program.

Hero of "Tailspin Tommy" Found On Studio Doorstep



Maurice Murphy, young actor aviator who has just completed a role in "There's Always Tomorrow" and who will have the name part of "Tailspin Tommy" in Universal's second serial of the year.

Maurice Murphy and Noah Beery, Jr., both junior aviation enthusiasts, and Jacqueline Wells, to play the featured roles in "Tailspin Tommy," which Louis Friedlander will direct after an airplane trip across the country to discover a student aviator who could act.

●

AFTER a coast to coast search, covering the principal flying fields of the country, Universal yesterday found the player for the title role of "Tailspin Tommy" in its own studio. Maurice Murphy, young actor who has just completed an important role in Universal's "There's Always Tomorrow," has been signed for the part. Jacqueline Wells and Noah Beery, Jr. have been assigned the other two principal parts in this serial which Louis Friedlander will direct from the popular comic strip of the same title dealing with the adventures of a boy aviator.

The problem in casting the title part in "Tailspin Tommy" lay in finding a player who had the necessary good looks and acting ability to carry a lead and at the same time could pilot a plane. Friedlander combed the airports and flying schools of the West Coast to find such a youth among the student fliers. Interviews were held and tests made of prospects but without result.

Friedlander then flew across the continent to continue the search. He spent three days in New York, visiting Roosevelt Field and the flying school there to meet and talk with possibilities.

Finally the director was forced to return to Universal studio with production almost ready to start and no actor found for "Tailspin Tommy." On the lot he was approached by Murphy who told him that he had been taking flying lessons and could pilot a plane. The actor showed his flying license, was put in a plane and flew satisfactorily. He was given a screen test the same day and yesterday was signed to play the role. He will enter the production of the picture at once.

Noah Beery, Jr., who will have his first opportunity of villaining in "Tailspin Tommy." Noah Beery, Jr. is an accomplished aviator.

Jacqueline Wells, who made her greatest hit in "The Black Cat," and whom Universal found in that Universal goldmine, the Pasadena Community Playhouse, will have the female lead in "Tailspin Tommy." Universal cast her in a serial before, "Heroes of the West," with Noah Beery, Jr. and Onslow Stevens. Jacqueline Wells is one of the most beautiful girls in pictures.

Jacqueline Wells who will have the feminine lead has played in Universal serials before, having had the feminine lead in "Heroes of the West." She has had roles in Alice in Wonderland" and "Tarzan the Fearless." She is a product of the famous Pasadena Community Playhouse and was a child star on the stage and screen.

Noah Beery, Jr. will follow in the footsteps of his famous father by playing the menace role of the serial. He made his debut on the screen in "Heroes of the West."

STRANGER THAN FICTION
The strangest facts and fancies of Man and Nature caught by the camera for the amazement of your patrons, screened with a keen eye for show values, and heightened by the voices of such famous radio announcers as JAMES WALLINGTON, ALOIS HAVRILLA and many others.
13 ONE REEL RELEASES

Fifty Statues Being Made For "Night Life of the Gods"

TWENTY sculptors started work at Universal City this week. Their job is to make fifty statues for "Night Life of the Gods." There are fifty characters in this unique comedy novel by Thorne Smith and all of them at one time or another are either statues or living people. An inventor in this story has discovered a way of making statues come to life and making human beings into statues. Universal is spending $25,000 for this item alone, because the statues have to look like their living prototypes and the best sculptors in the west have been employed on this work.

Lowell Sherman has gathered a cast which is of imposing proportions. Here are a few of the names, and the list is growing every week: Alan Mowbray, Florine McKinney, Peggy Shannon, Robert Warwick, Richard Carle, Irene Ware, Gilbert Emery, Ray Bernard, Henry Armetta, May Beatty, Pat De Cicco, George Hassell, Paul Kaye, William (stage) Boyd, Theresa Maxwell Conover, Phillips Smalley, Wesley Barry, Alene Carroll, Marda Deering, Douglas Fowley and Geneva Mitchell. "Night Life of the Gods" went into production last week and will require four more weeks before completion.

✚ ✚ ✚

Edna Searle Given Role In "What Ladies Dream"

(Continued from Page 8)

Then it developed that Edna Searle was almost a star in England in her own right, had played with Charlot's Revue in this country, and was a well known screen, variety and musical comedy personality in England. Director Frank immediately gave her a role, as important a one as he had at his disposal in "What Ladies Dream." Strange, these movies.

The Buck Jones Rangers Band, sixty strong, entrains from Los Angeles for Portland, Oregon, where they had been invited to play for the President. Buck Jones, naturally, comes down to the depot to see them off. Buck, who has just completed his first adventure feature, "Rocky Rhodes," for Universal, can be seen in his Ranger uniform in the center of this picture.

BUCK JONES' RANGERS PLAY FOR PRES. ROOSEVELT

WHEN President Roosevelt visited Portland on Friday, August 3rd, to see the Bonneville Dam Project, G. C. Craddock, manager of Universal's Portland office, arranged a place on the President's program for the Buck Jones Ranger Club Band. The band of sixty pieces was in Portland organizing a new national unit of the Buck Jones Rangers Club. The band played two selections for the President's edification. They were located directly in front of the President's speakers' platform at Bonneville, where thousands and thousands of people from the Northwest were gathered to listen to the President's first radio talk since his vacation.

The master of ceremonies on the program, Mr. Henry Blank, paid the boys a beautiful tribute over N.B.C. coast to coast network when he thanked them for their playing just prior to the President's speech. The band, which is in charge of Major J. Paul Swickard, was greeted by Mayor Carson of Portland and cordially thanked by His Honor for their music and their spic and span appearance. The uniform of the Buck Jones Rangers is almost identical with that of the Northwest Mounted Police. The boys range in age from eight to sixteen.

After the speech making, the band marched through the streets of the city to the Universal film exchange at 445 Glisan Street, played a serenade, and was photographed with Manager Craddock and other notables. On Saturday and Sunday, the entire band made appearances on the stage of Capitol Theatre. Their trip to Portland was a huge success and a great exploitation for the Buck Jones serial, "The Red Rider." Many persons in Portland thought the band had donned their red coats for that purpose.

Saying It With Dates At The Sun Theatre During Jimmy Grainger Celebration

THE week beginning August 3rd and ending August 11th was certainly Old Home Week for Universal in Gothenburg, Nebraska. Just look at the show that the Sun Theatre gave the appreciative people of Gothenburg as a part of the Jimmy Grainger Celebration arranged by Mr. Glen Van Wray. At the left will be seen a post card which Mr. Van Wray sent out as a reminder to his clientele in Gothenburg. This form of advertising is very effective and is inexpensive in a small town.

✚ ✚ ✚

PRAISE FOR OSWALD

E. D. GALLAHER, who operates the Grand Theatre of Ferndale, Washington, has apparently had unusual success with Universal Short Product. In a letter he wrote to L. J. McGinley, Universal's branch manager in Seattle, he has the following expression about "Oswald," which he has permitted us to run in the Universal Weekly and which we take pleasure in reproducing here.

GRAND THEATRE
Ferndale, Wash.

Dear Mr. McGinley:

"I would also like to say that I think Universal has reason to be proud of the one reel black and white product. Your new "Oswald" cartoons are second to none, and I hope they continue to be as good as the current releases."

Very sincerely yours,

E. D. GALLAHER,
Manager

Modern Screen Praises "Affairs of a Gentleman"

Universal

STARTING with a shot and ending with a shot, this mystery story is sure to please you. The story opens with the body of Paul Lukas found dead at his desk. After the police arrive, the events leading up to the murder are re-enacted for the the audience. The solution is simple and logical, but we bet you don't figure it out. Lukas, polished gentleman as usual, turns in an excellent job and Dorothy Burgess will surprise you. The real hit of this picture, however, is Sara Haden who does exceptionally well in her role of secretary. Patricia Ellis and Leila Hyams are fine.

Modern Screen for August

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
SHOWMANSHIP
SECTION
A DIGEST OF THE BEST
EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

STRAND AT HARTFORD GIVES "LITTLE MAN" SMASH CAMPAIGN

FOR his campaign on "Little Man, What Now?", James F. McCarthy Manager, Strand Theatre, Hartford, Conn., used every possible exploitation angle. The campaign included tie-ups, radio broadcasts, giant lobby displays, special trailers and a crowd stopping front.

He utilized all the big national tie-ups explained in the pressbook, including the shirt, book, fashion and flour promotion. These tie-ups netted McCarthy full window displays, extra newspaper space and the distribution of 2000 book marks. Special local tie-ups were made with the city's leading florist, and the Eastman Kodak store.

The display in the florist's window, as can be seen in the photograph to the right was most unusual. In the center of the large, magnificently dressed window, the florist placed the biggest flower basket obtainable, filled with colorful flowers. To this he attached a giant tag similar to his regular delivery tag with the message: "To Be Delivered to Margaret Sullavan, Star of "Little Man, What Now?' now at the Strand Theatre." Naturally the display attracted a constant crowd to the window.

The Buck Bread Co. as part of the national General Mills tie-up cooperated with the theatre to the extent of the running of a four column newspaper ad, inserting special leaflets in 24,000 loaves of bread daily, and bannering their sixteen delivery trucks. The tie-up line used throughout was "Margaret Sullavan says Buck's Soft N Dandy Bread provides energy and vitality for the Little Man."

In the Eastman Kodak window, McCarthy arranged for the display of some of the exceptionally fine stills from the picture. These, together with accessory window cards and lobbies, made an impressive and attention compelling display.

As can be seen in the photograph below, the lobby panels used four weeks in advance were unusually attractive. The front was made up from colored, enlarged stills, poster cut-outs and compo-board books.

Other highlights of the campaign were the running of trailers in six other Hartford theatres, doubling of the newspaper advertising budget and a distribution of "The Story of Your Life" booklets. Albert Nathan, Universal exploiteer assisted.

McCarthy's display for "Little Man, What Now?" in Hartford florists' windows. See story at left.

GIANT ADVANCE DISPLAYS FOR "LITTLE MAN"

One of the two forty by ten foot advance lobby panels used by James F. McCarthy at the Strand Theatre, Hartford, Conn., for "Little Man, What Now?"

BIG TIE-UP HIGHLIGHT OF CANTOR'S "MAN" CAMPAIGN

AS part of the big "Little Man, What Now?" campaign at the Aberdeen Theatre, Aberdeen, Wash., David L. Cantor, Manager arranged for a tie-up with the Holsum Baking Co., that brought him exceptionally fine results. The co-operation came in the form of preparation of counter cards for use in 300 grocery stores, the running of a 3 column by 14" newspaper ad talks about Margaret Sullavan and the picture on their one hour daily radio programs, bannering of their delivery trucks and an unusual display in the theatre lobby.

A number of the trucks were put at the disposal of Cantor for use in the parade that he staged on opening day.

In the lobby, they displayed samples of their products and the bread in the stages of preparation. An attendant explained the display stressing the importance of bread in the Little Man's diet.

A great picture for hot-weather exploitation!

ICEBERG

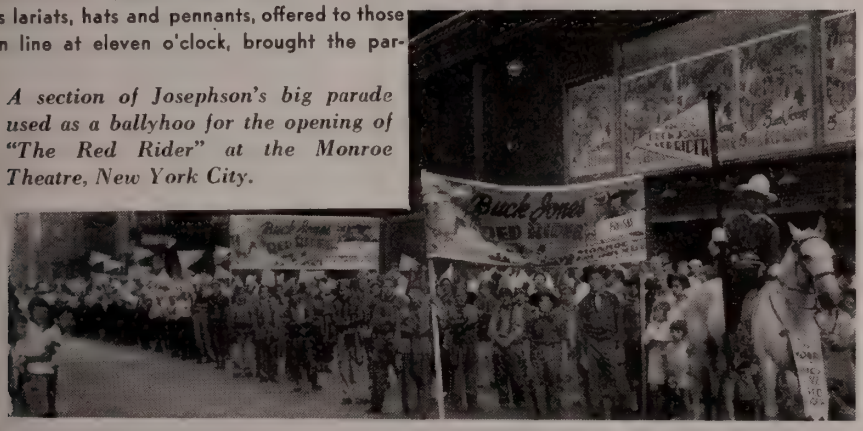
BIG "RIDER" CAMPAIGN, JOSEPHSON'S BID FOR 15 WEEKS OF SMASH BUSINESS

SERIAL EXPLOITATION IMMEDIATELY STARTS BUILDING PATRONAGE FOR MONROE THEATRE

A REALLY rousing campaign started "The Red Rider" off to real business at the Monroe Theatre in the Yorkville section of New York City. Gilbert Josephson of the Rhinelander circuit worked up the smash campaign which included a circus parade; ballyhoo; distribution of lariats, hats and pennants; snipes; window displays; lobby displays and the distribution of heralds.

The parade was Josephson's ace stunt and brought fine results. By means of heralds, lobby announcements and a special trailer, the kids were invited to join the parade to be held on opening day. Inducements, such as lariats, hats and pennants, offered to those on line at eleven o'clock, brought the paraders out in droves. They came dressed in bright colored Indian and Cowboy costumes and assembled long before the time scheduled. A bannered horse and rider, the theatre's four day advance ballyhoo, and a local club band led the parade throughout the neighborhood. Numerous youngsters joined the procession on the way to the theatre and then packed the house for the first performance of chapter one. The band was made up of neighborhood youngsters dressed in various native costumes of European and American countries.

A neighborhood, international, young people's band with members in native costume, headed Josephson's "Red Rider" parade.



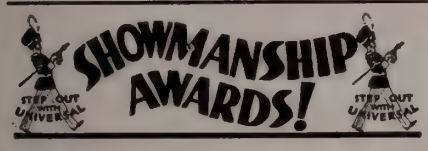
A section of Josephson's big parade used as a ballyhoo for the opening of "The Red Rider" at the Monroe Theatre, New York City.

Snipes reading, "Watch for 'The Red Rider,'" were planted on the curb at all busy street intersections in a two mile radius.

More than twenty-five store windows were tied-up for special displays of poster cut-outs, stills and lobby photos.

The lobby and front displays featured giant cut-out heads of the star, action stills and big titles, providing a real flash.

The campaign brought the biggest turn-out of youngsters in the theatre's history, and the succeeding weeks have found a continuation of the big business. This splendid exploitation by Josephson cost a total of $123, which means only $8.25 per week, for the fifteen weeks of the serials run. As a result of this big turn-out, the same campaign was used by the other theatres of the Rhinelander Circuit.



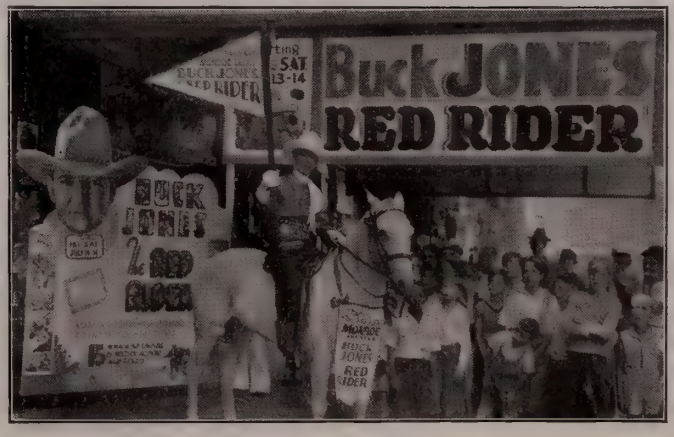
Through outstanding exploitation on Universal pictures five showmen are this week added to the list of certificate winners.

CHARLES WUERTZ, Manager and HAL NEIDAS, Publicity Manager for their "LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?" campaign, at the Orpheum, San Francisco.

GEORGE MacKENNA, Manager, and DICK WALSH, Publicity Manager for the New Lafayette Theatre, Buffalo, "LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?" campaign.

GUS LAMPE, Eckel Theatre, Syracuse, N. Y. for his big campaign on "LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?"

Congratulations, men! Your certificates signed by Mr. Laemmle are in the mail! Let us hear from you soon on "ONE MORE RIVER" and "ROMANCE IN THE RAIN!"



A crowd of young and old attracted to the Monroe Theatre by the horse and rider ballyhoo and parade. Notice the attractive lobby board and unusually large billing space devoted to "The Red Rider."

SMART ADS FROM LIVE SHOWMEN!

(1.) Four column x 10" from Broadway, Portland, Ore. (2.) Three column x 6½" from Radio City Music Hall, New York City, N. Y. (3.) Double column x 8¼" from Broadway, Charlotte, N. C. (4.) Two column x 9¼" from Pulaski, Little Rock, Ark. (5.) Double column x 7½" from Lyric, Indianapolis, Ind. (6.) Three column x 3¼" from Roxie, Oakland, Calif. (7.) Two column x 2½" from Lafayette, Buffalo, N. Y.

CLAUDETTE COLBERT

in

Fannie Hurst's

IMITATION OF LIFE

with

WARREN WILLIAM

ROCHELLE HUDSON

NED SPARKS, HENRY ARMETTA

•

A JOHN M. STAHL Production

•

Presented by CARL LAEMMLE

From

UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.

ROCKEFELLER CENTER

NEW YORK CITY

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
New York, N. Y.

Paid

Permit No. 949

Larry Edmunds Bookshop
6658 Hollywood Blvd.
Hollywood, Calif. 90028
HO 3-3273
World's Largest Collection
Of Books on Motion Pictures

Printed in U. S. A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

VOL. 35 NO. 12
SEPT. 1, 1934

CK

Best luck
Edmund Lowe

EDMUND LOWE
in
"Gift of Gab"

IMAGINE
the fun you'll have when Mercury, speediest of them all, comes to life and cuts a swath down Broadway! WHOOPEE!

•

THORNE SMITH'S
Great Novelty Comedy

•

A LOWELL
SHERMAN
Production

•

NIGHT LIFE OF THE GODS

WAKE UP AND DREAM

WITH

RUSS COLUMBO
ROGER PRYOR
JUNE KNIGHT

Catherine Doucet, Henry Armetta, Andy Devine, Wini Shaw. Story by John Meehan, Jr. Directed by Kurt Neumann. A B. F. Zeidman Production. A UNIVERSAL PICTURE.

A MAN AFTER

No. 785 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

I always get a real kick out of paying public tribute to men in this business who do things the way I love to have them done.

On rare occasions in the nearly thirty years I have been in this business, I have done so.

Today I get a very deep-seated pleasure out of paying a tribute to a man who has more real friends in the picture business than any sales manager I ever heard of — Jimmie Grainger.

Perhaps I should call him James R. Grainger, but in that case you might not know whom I was talking about.

You call him "Jimmie." So do the thousands of other exhibitors who know him personally.

The very fact that you think of him as "Jimmie" and not as "James" is an unconscious tribute to him.

Why do you think of him in this affectionate way?

We'll, it's just because he has always told you the truth. He has fought like blazes to sell pictures to you, but he has never failed to tell you the cold, hard, blunt truth about them.

MY OWN HEART

He has admitted to you that there is no such thing as a producer's program which includes 100 percent of successes. Any sales manager who ever claims anything else is quite an ass. But "Jimmie," as you think of him, has never made this mistake.

Right now, all Universal offices are conducting what we call a Jimmie Grainger drive for play-dates. Your response to this has been something phenomenal.

It is a wonderful tribute to decency and it proves beyond the shadow of a doubt that you appreciate clean dealing.

Nothing makes me more proud than to be represented by such a man as Jimmie Grainger.

Confidentially, he has the darndest contract with Universal that I ever signed — and I'm glad of it.

He won't lie to you nor kid you any more than I would. That's why I call him a man after my own heart and maybe that's why the Jimmie Grainger Drive is the most solid success Universal ever conducted.

Carl Laemmle

AND STILL THEY COME!

•

BUTTERFIELD CIRCUIT

W. S. Butterfield, President,
E. C. Beatty, Vice Pres. and Gen'l. Mgr.,

Operating 80 theatres in 32 Michigan towns and cities—Adrian, Alpena, Ann Arbor, Battle Creek, Bay City, Benton Harbor, Big Rapids, Cadillac, East Lansing, Flint, Grand Haven, Grand Rapids, Hillsdale, Holland, Ionia, Jackson, Kalamazoo, Lansing, Ludington, Manistee, Monroe, Muskegon, Niles, Owosso, Pontiac, Port Huron, Saginaw, St. Joseph, South Haven, Three Rivers, Traverse City and Ypsilanti—sign for

UNIVERSAL

Features, News, Shorts and Serials for 1934-35

•

Thanks, Messrs. Butterfield and Beatty, for your confidence in Universal Pictures. We will do our part!

COMERFORD CIRCUIT SIGNS

Publix-Comerford Theatres in Pennsylvania and New York and Ford Theatres of New England in 100 percent deal on Universal Product

AS we go to press J. R. Grainger, General Manager of Distribution for Universal, and M. B. Comerford, representing the circuit, have agreed on virtually everything to complete one of Universal's big deals for the year. The deal will involve Universal's complete service of features, shorts, newsreels, and comedies in the forty-two Publix-Comerford theatres in New Jersey and Pennsylvania. It also involves the John Ford circuit of nineteen theatres in Maine and New Hampshire.

The Comerford circuit has always been one of the outstanding and best conducted theatre circuits in the east. They have always operated on a policy of the highest entertainment quality. It is for that reason, as well as the long friendship between Carl Laemmle and "Mike" Comerford, that this latest expression of confidence and business judgment is particularly gratifying to Mr. Grainger. The signing of this contract so early is also an expression of tribute to the Jimmy Grainger Celebration and will enable the circuit to take a prominent part in this Jimmy Grainger Celebration.

A NEW EXPLOITATION STUNT

ON page 15 of this issue, there is an exploitation stunt outlined for "There's Always Tomorrow." We suggest that you file this away until this picture comes to your theatre. It can be used by any newspaper, and will be a welcome variation to your regular publicity campaign. The same idea will be included in the Exploitation pages of the Press Book.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, New York City
Copyrighted 1934
Universal Pictures Corp.
(All Rights Reserved)
SEPT. 1, 1934
Vol. 35 No. 12

Herbert Marshall Is Signed by Universal to Play in "The Good Fairy" in Support of Margaret Sullavan

HERBERT MARSHALL was yesterday signed by Carl Laemmle, Jr. to play the lead opposite Margaret Sullavan in "The Good Fairy." Mr. Laemmle had to induce Marshall to give up a stage engagement in order to undertake the role, but it is so typically in the engaging capabilities of this actor, that Marshall feels that it will be one of his best screen portrayals. Ever since he saw him in the picture "Michael and Mary," Carl Laemmle, Jr. has been on the lookout for a Universal role to fit him.

Production on this Margaret Sullavan starring vehicle will start at Universal City on Tuesday under the direction of William Wyler. The screen play for the Ferenc Molnar drama which Henry Miller put on in New York with Helen Hayes in the Margaret Sullavan role, was made by Preston Sturges. The play had a long and successful run in New York, in Paris, and in London.

Herbert Marshall was born in England, and received his education and training there. He first intended to become a chartered accountant, but apparently fate intended that he should follow in the footsteps of his father, a well-known English actor. He went on the stage in 1911, but gave up this career temporarily to fight in the war. His popularity increased greatly upon his return to the stage.

He is six feet tall, and has dark brown hair and blue eyes. He has appeared in pictures in England and the United States both.

Among his recent ones are "I Was a Spy" which he made for Gaumont British, "The Solitaire Man," an MGM production, and "Four Frightened People, recently produced by Paramount.

IT'S BIG! BI

There's Alwa

G!BIG!

—big as the heart of all humanity . . . and bringing you a new and striking screen personality . . . from the company that gave you Margaret Sullavan!

•

With

FRANK MORGAN

and Universal's New Screen Find

BINNIE BARNES

•

URSULA PARROTT'S

With LOIS WILSON, Elizabeth Young, Louise Latimer, Alan Hale, Produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr. Directed by Edward Sloman.

Presented by CARL LAEMMLE.

ys Tomorrow

F - L - A - S - H

Like lightning the news is flashed across the country to exhibitors everywhere of the plans, the product, and the success of Universal pictures. This bulletin is solely for the information of the exhibitor readers of the* Universal Weekly, *and intended to keep them up-to-date on current matters.

GREATEST business in twenty-two years! 800% more sales than at the same period last year! Practically every major circuit signed by mid-August! Contracts covering 261 of the important key cities of the United States and Canada! That's the record of Universal for 1934-35!

The latest advance reports from Universal City indicate fast action on the schedule, and good news for the exhibitor. Great stars, famous stories, money directors—BIG PICTURES are on their way and here's the information that proves it!

✚ ✚ ✚

FLASH! Warren William will play opposite Claudette Colbert in "IMITATION OF LIFE! Carl Laemmle, Jr. has selected this star for the role of Stephen Arthur, hero of the Fannie Hurst novel. Warren William has just won plaudits for his work opposite Miss Colbert in "Cleopatra." Their continued association in "IMITATION OF LIFE" is therefore a tremendous box-office asset. An outstanding cast in support of Claudette Colbert and Warren William has been selected, and the production will be ready in October.

✚ ✚ ✚

FLASH! Adaptation of Ursula Parrott's "THERE'S ALWAYS TOMORROW" will be the lead-off picture for the 1934-35 program! This terrifically human drama features Frank Morgan's finest performance and a startling screen discovery in lovely Binnie Barnes!

✚ ✚ ✚

FLASH! Howard Hawks will direct "SUTTER'S GOLD!" He has proven himself a money-director with such outstanding productions as "Dawn Patrol," "Criminal Code," "Scarface," "The Crowd Roars," and is the logical choice for director of this colorful spectacle which Universal will produce next season. "SUTTER'S GOLD" is expected to set a new mark for spectacular qualities in motion picture production. With the director selected, steps have been taken towards bringing this remarkable picture to the screen with all possible speed.

F - L - A - S - H

FLASH! "GIFT OF GAB" makes good! Screened at Universal City, in a rough cut, the 30-star sensation is hailed as supreme entertainment. Naturally, it would be, for look at this galaxy of personalities in the cast: Stars of the stage! Stars of the screen! Stars of the radio!

EDMUND LOWE, RUTH ETTING, GLORIA STUART, PHIL BAKER, Paul Lukas, Ethel Waters, Chester Morris, Douglass Montgomery, Binnie Barnes, Roger Pryor, Karloff, Gene Austin, Graham McNamee, Bela Lugosi, Alice White, June Knight, Victor Moore, Andy Devine, Hugh O'Connell, Gus Arnheim's orchestra, Sterling Holloway, Henry Armetta, Downey Sisters, Beale Street Boys, Douglas Fowley, Wini Shaw, Helen Vinson, Candy and Coco, Alexander Woollcott, and the Three Stooges.

And not only has it star-value, but also STORY-POWER! Watch for the reviews on this one! And observe the tremendous fan magazine, radio and music campaign that is selling "GIFT OF GAB" to the millions!

✚ ✚ ✚

FLASH! Charles Dickens' "GREAT EXPECTATIONS" goes into work, starring Henry Hull, with a splendid support, which includes Jane Wyatt, the girl who scores splendidly in "ONE MORE RIVER." "GREAT EXPECTATIONS" is first of the Charles Dickens stories to be produced at Universal City and the first to reach the screen to take advantage of the great Dickens vogue this year. The next Dickens story will be "MYSTERY OF EDWIN DROOD!"

✚ ✚ ✚

FLASH! Margaret Sullavan is getting to work on her latest picture. This will be Ferenc Molnar's "THE GOOD FAIRY," script for which has just been completed by Preston Sturges. This is the play in which Helen Hayes appeared on the Broadway stage—a proven hit!

✚ ✚ ✚

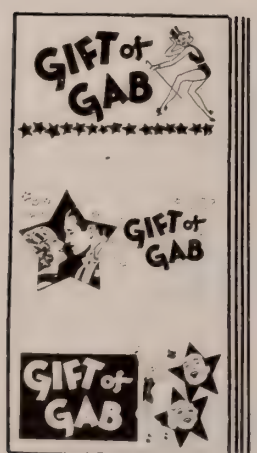
FLASH! Damon Runyon's "MILLION DOLLAR RANSOM" is as great as his two previous pictures, "Little Miss Marker" and "Lady For a Day." In the cast: Phillips Holmes, who does his greatest work since "An American Tragedy," and Edward Arnold who surpasses his spectacular performance in "Sadie McKee." Mary Carlisle is the beautiful leading lady. Here is a story trigger-timed to the minute, and advance reviews all rave.

✚ ✚ ✚

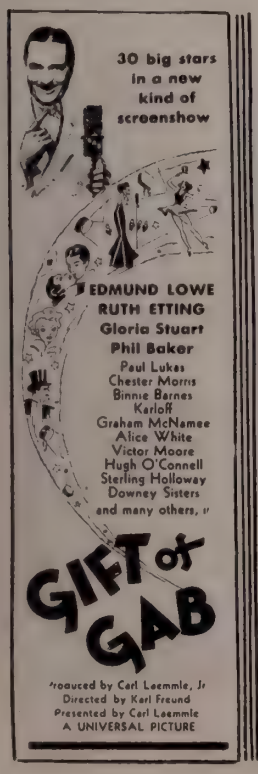
FLASH! FLASH! FLASH! "THE GREAT ZIEGFELD" is getting set under William Anthony McGuire's supervision . . . Lowell Sherman is directing "NIGHT LIFE OF THE GODS," Thorne Smith's best-seller . . . Russ Columbo has completed shooting on "WAKE UP AND DREAM," in which Roger Pryor and June Knight play important parts . . . Alice White has completed "SECRETS OF THE CHATEAU" . . . "WHAT LADIES DREAM," starring Binnie Barnes with Neil Hamilton is rounding out a month of production! News comes so thick and fast, that in a brief bulletin of this kind, we can do no more than indicate what is on the way!

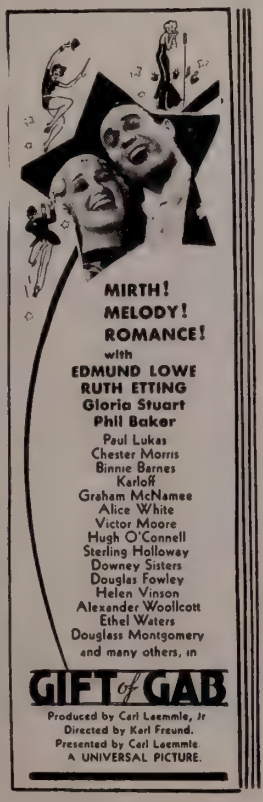
P. S.—And what a whirlwind finish for the big year 1933-34! "ONE MORE RIVER" has done a record week at the Radio City Music Hall and is going great guns in other key spots . . . Roger Pryor and Heather Angel in "ROMANCE IN THE RAIN" have a delightful picture which trade papers say "will bring sun to any box-office" . . . Adolphe Menjou in "THE HUMAN SIDE" is clicking with press and public!

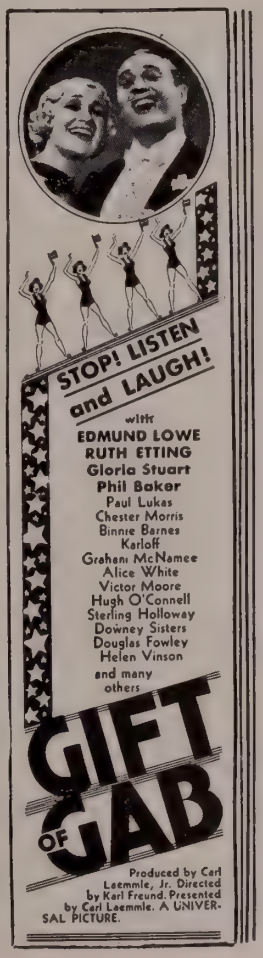
You've Got 30 Stars To Sell –

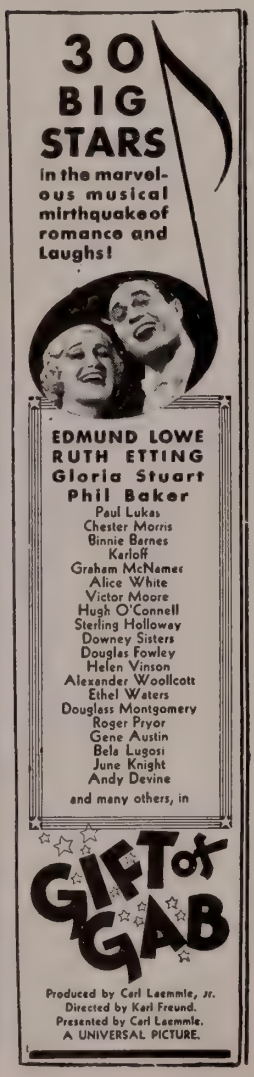


And These Ad Mats Sell 'Em!









LATEST PRODUCTION NEWS FI

Russ Columbo, June Knight and Roger Pryor as the disconsolate vaudeville trio about whom the drama, the comedy and the melody of "Wake Up and Dream" centers.

"NIGHT LIFE OF GODS" PRESENTS MORE PRODUCTION PROBLEMS THAN "THE INVISIBLE MAN"

CARL LAEMMLE, Jr., Universal's production chief has begun another screenplay which Hollywood 'wiseacres' have said 'couldn't be done.'

Although greater production problems than "The Invisible Man" ever knew are involved, Thorne Smith's fantastic novelty comedy "Night Life of the Gods" is now in work at Universal studios, a $75,000 swimming pool being among the first elaborate settings created for its picturization.

Lowell Sherman is directing "Night Life of the Gods" and the story of the museum statues which come to life and engage in a hilarious modern existence—for a time—is enacted by a cast of 23 principals and several hundred supernumeraries. Prominent among the players are Alan Mowbray, Florine McKinney, Peggy Shannon, Henry Armetta, William (Stage) Boyd, Wesley Barry, Richard Carle, Irene Ware (Miss America), Geneva Mitchell, Marda Deering, Douglas Fowley, Ray Bernard, Ferdinand Gottschalk, Phillips Smalley, Theresa Maxwell Conover, May Beatty, Pat de Cicco, Gilbert Emery, Paul Kaye, Robert Warwick, George Hassell and Alene Carroll. Barry Trivers adapted the Smith story to the screen.

✚ ✚ ✚

WARREN WILLIAM BORROWED

THESE are days of courtesy in the motion picture business.

Universal wanted Warren William to play opposite Claudette Colbert in "Imitation of Life," but Mr. William was not available when needed.

Warners wanted Paul Lukas for a feature but when William was not available, Director John M. Stahl put Lukas in the Colbert film. A week later Mr. William finished his assignment and Warner studios needed Lukas. Director Stahl remade three scenes and Mr. Lukas went to Warners and Warren William came into the cast of "Imitation of Life."

UNIVERSAL ANNO

LAST week Universal announced its releases for the beginning of the new season. This week, we take pleasure in announcing the October releases. There are five of them.

The first picture of the month is Russ Columbo's first starring picture for Universal, "Wake Up and Dream." This brilliant star of screen, radio, and stage has already completed the production at Universal City with June Knight and Roger Pryor featured with him. The cast also includes Catherine Doucet, Henry Armetta, Andy Devine, Spencer Charters, Wini Shaw, Gavin Gordon, Richard Carle, Paul Porcasi, Maurice Black, Clarence Hummell Wilson, Arthur Hoyt, Philip Dakin, Rollo Lloyd, Matt McHugh, Jane Darwell, James Donlan, Ruthelma Stevens, Gertrude Green, and Florence Enright.

The production was completed under the direction of Kurt Neumann, and contains songs by Bernie Grossman, Jack Stern, and Grace Hamilton. The music is published by Harms, Inc. and there are three hit numbers which will receive extensive exploitation over the radio. Russ Columbo himself will be good for a great deal of this exploitation as he is being featured over a national broadcasting coast to coast network on Friday nights starting September 7th. "Wake Up and Dream" is a story of the fortunes of a song and dance trio who flopped in vaudeville, and took a bus for Hollywood. The trip developed into an intriguing love triangle story.

Keynote Still "MILLION $ RANSOM"

A composite still depicting both the drama, the romance and the Damonrunyonesque quality of "Million Dollar Ransom."

OM UNIVERSAL CITY STUDIOS

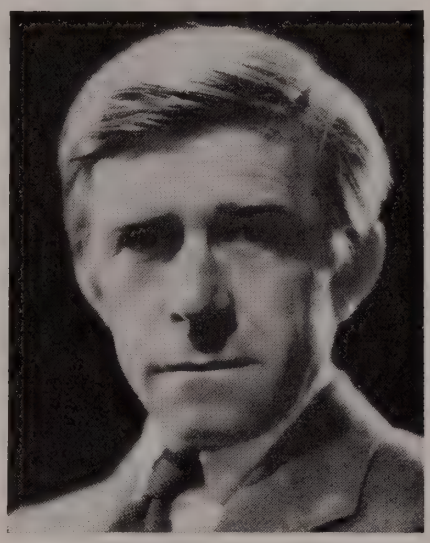
NCES OCTOBER RELEASES

The release for October 8th is "Secrets of the Chateau," just completed at Universal City by Director Richard Thorpe. It has a cast starred with interesting names: Claire Dodd, Alice White, Osgood Perkins, William Faversham, Jack LaRue, Lee Crowe, George E. Stone, Ferdinand Gottschalk, DeWitt Jennings, Helen Ware, Frank Reicher, Alphonz Ethier, Paul Nicholson, Olaf Hyten, Cecil Elliott, Tony Merlo, and Frank Thornton. With Osgood Perkins and William Faversham, there are also several others famous in the theatre of several decades ago—Helen Ware for instance. Universal starred her in "That Lass O' Lawries." There are also Frank Reicher, Alphonz Ethier, and Paul Nicholson. "Secrets of the Chateau" is by L. G. Blochman, and was produced by Lou Ostrow. It is a mystery drama with a baffling story and an astounding denouement.

The release for October 15th is "What Ladies Dream," the first starring picture of Binnie Barnes. Featured with her are Neil Hamilton and Paul Cavanagh, while the splendid cast includes Grant Mitchell, Eugene Pallette, Edna Searle, Jason Robards, Ferdinand Gottschalk, Henry Kolker, Doris Lloyd, Dick Winslow, Edward Keane, G. P. Huntley, Jr. and William Worthington. The picture was directed by Ernst L. Frank. Its plot revolves about a fascinating woman who was unable to look at a beautiful diamond without wanting it and without getting it. The story is by William Hurlbut.

The October 22nd release is "Great Expectations" in which Henry Hull makes his debut on the talking screen. He will be featured with Phillips Holmes, Jane Wyatt, and Florence Reed. This Charles Dickens story is the first of two which Universal will bring to the screen, and it will be the first of the Dickens stories of which there are to be half a dozen this year which will appear on the screen. "The Mystery of Edwin Drood" is the

(Continued on Page 28)



If this photograph were entered in a contest and you were told to guess who it was you probably would never be able to win the prize. Never in this editor's memory has Christian Rub played a straight role or anything even approaching the part he plays in "Romance in the Rain." Americans first saw him in "The Last Laugh." They saw him again and really appreciated him this time in "Little Man, What Now?" He is a great actor.

Claudette Colbert and Warren William in one of the romantic passages of Fannie Hurst's "Imitation of Life" which John Stahl is completing at Universal City for October release.

+ + +

R. C. SHERRIFF RETURNS TO WORK IN LONDON

HAVING completed the adaptation of Margaret Ayer Barnes' novel "Within This Present," R. C. Sherriff is on his way back to London to prepare for the fall semester in Oxford University. Mr. Sherriff's college career was interrupted by the war, and the author of "Journey's End" is just within the last few years in a position to complete it. He will be a senior this fall.

"Within This Present" was partly done in England, partly done on the boat coming over, and completed in California where Sherriff also worked on several other scripts including "The Return of "Frankenstein." He will leave New York as soon as he arrives, for Quebec where he will embark the following day on the "Empress of Britain" for England. It is highly probable that Universal will produce Sherriff's "Trip to Mars" during the current season.

James Whale will direct Margaret Sullavan in "Within This Present" as soon as "The Good Fairy" is completed.

COMING
SUTTER'S GOLD
A HOWARD HAWKS PRODUCTION

Our INQUIRING PHOTOGRAPHER

Looks Into The Furore Raised Over "There's Always Tomorrow"

Did Miss Vaile Do Right?

"I believe there are plenty of women like Miss Vaile, who would use their hold on a man's love to keep his family together, not wreck his married life. The trouble is that nowadays people are getting too hard boiled. They don't believe a woman could love a man enough to give him up. All we read about is of women who break up homes. We never hear about the women like Miss Vail who open the eyes of husbands and wives to each others' good points and keep them together. 'There's Always Tomorrow' will do a lot of good."

—MISS KELLY

"I think the father was to blame, himself. He should have asserted himself. When a man lets his wife and children walk all over him he mustn't complain if they lose respect for him. He can't expect them to understand his motives when he goes out with another woman. They can't believe their selfishness is responsible for it when he has never complained about their selfishness before. Mr. White was a sap if you ask me and he'll know better next time." —MR. BRADDOCK

"I know myself of two cases right in my neighborhood just like the Whites in "There's Always Tomorrow," where parents have done everything for their children and the kids treat their mother and father like the dirt under their feet, Believe me, they are going to get their eyes opened some day and then they'll know what they have done. There's such a thing as doing too much for children. I don't think the picture is a bit exaggerated. I don't think any parents would stand for so much."

—MR. EUSTACE

"I don't know how other girls feel about it, but I know that I would never impose on my father the way the White girls did on theirs. There is nothing like that in our home. But I know girls who are a little thoughtless about making their fathers happy. I don't think the White girls were bad. But they certainly were thoughtless. And I don't think Miss Vaile was bad either. She did a splendid thing for the family."

—MISS SHERWOOD

"I think this picture should be a lesson to people who have children growing up, to train them to be appreciative. Nowadays so much is done for the young folks that they may forget sometimes what sacrifices are being made for them. There is no substitute for the old commandment, 'Honor thy father and thy mother.' It was fortunate Miss Vaile happened along. What some women wouldn't have done to the Whites."

MR. JROCHAMS

"'THERE'S ALWAYS TOMORROW' is a story that will make you reflect on your home life and wonder if you haven't been unfair to your father in your personal search for happiness. This picture unfolds a plot that depicts the life of many a family, the tale of the father of five children, who is misunderstood, until a young woman, dearly in love with him, makes them realize his silent unhappiness."

—MISS HELLMAN

"American women are so spoiled by their husbands that some of them deserve a good shock just to let them find out that they're not little goddesses. It makes my blood boil sometimes the way I see fine fellows catering to their selfish wives' whims. Now and then you do hear of women, of course, who are brought to their senses by the loss of their husbands' love. Not all of them are as lucky as Mrs. White, who had a good woman come into her husband's life. It's a picture that should start people thinking."

—MRS. HALL

"I've been married twenty-two years, and I still shake up the furnace and do the other chores around the house the way White does in the picture, but that's just because I feel like it. My kids don't impose on me. I didn't bring them up that way. I taught them their duties early and often. They can take the car out when they want but they have to see me first or their mother. I know plenty of people like the Whites and they need the same thing. A little common sense."

—MR. KULZ

A real treat for lovers of ACTION and swift-moving DRAMA!.... A movie that MOVES!....CLASS all the way through—plenty of production values, eye-filling sets, etc.—but essentially a melodrama with that old familiar BOX-OFFICE PUNCH seen all too seldom these days!... PLAY IT.... NOW!

•

with

PHILLIPS HOLMES
EDWARD ARNOLD
MARY CARLISLE

A UNIVERAL PICTURE with Wini Shaw, Andy Devine
Produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr.
Directed by Murray Roth.
Presented by CARL LAEMMLE

DAMON RUNYON'S MILLION DOLLAR
RANSOM

Giving Box-Office Satisfaction Everywhere!

With

ROGER PRYOR
HEATHER ANGEL

Esther Ralston, Victor Moore, Ruth Donnelly, Paul Kake. Story by Sig Herzig and Jay Gorney. Songs by Jay Gorney and Don Hartman. Screenplay by Barry Trivers. Directed by Stuart Walker. Additional dialogue by Gladys Unger and John V. A. Weaver. A Stanley Bergerman Production. Presented by CARL LAEMMLE.

Romance in the Rain

What People Are Saying About That Intriguing BINNIE BARNES

Director Edward Sloman:
Binnie Barnes is a most distinctive and versatile young dramatic player, as much American as English in her mannerisms and speech and certain to go far with American screen audiences.

Director Ernst L. Frank:
Binnie Barnes is a most capable young actress. In tense dramatic scenes she avoids the strong temptation to over-act; in light dramatic scenes she is poised and convincing and she handles comedy situations with unusual skill. Versatile, distinctive and attractive Miss Barnes has a fine voice and fine photographic features.

Carl Laemmle, Jr.:
Binnie Barnes is one of the most distinctive young actresses to come to the American and English screen in ten years and I look for her to win her place among the top-notch stars within a short time.

Radie Harris, Central Press & Radio Corres.:
Binnie Barnes is one of the most distinctive, colorful and entertaining personalities I have ever interviewed or seen on the screen.

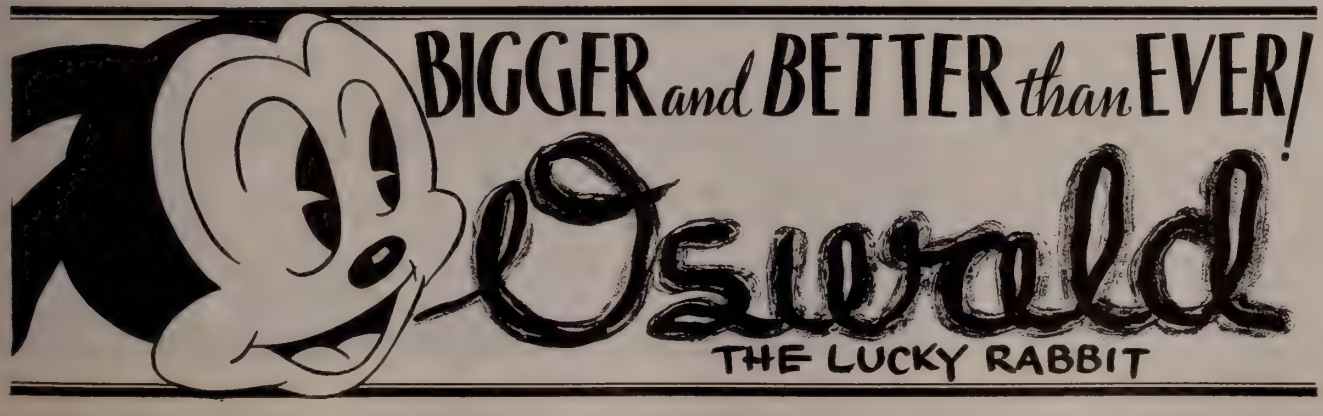
John C. Moffit, Kansas City Star:
"Binnie Barnes is swell."

Hollywood Variety review:
Binnie Barnes' work was particularly effective throughout. Her diction is Americanized throughout picture.

Photoplay:
Binnie Barnes is one of the most colorful stars in Hollywood and seems likely to capture American film applause with her versatility, distinct beauty and fine voice.

Eugene Chrisman of Fawcette Publications:
Binnie Barnes is one of the most interesting, entertaining and honest-to-goodness screen stars I have ever met and interviewed. She is a real human being and should be popular with men and women alike. Her voice is most appealing and on the screen she makes the reviewer feel she is talking to him alone; her work is minus the customary loud talking dramatics resorted to by many actresses in tense situations; instead Miss Barnes becomes confidential with her audience and the softness of her voice and her clean cut diction make her every work register definitely.

Hollywood Reporter review on "There's Always Tomorrow"—
Binnie Barnes is an interesting newcomer and distinctly intriguing.



The COAST to COAST HIT!

'River' Standout In L.A. on $6,000;

Los Angeles, Aug. 13.

Only house to show any radical improvement this week is the Pantages which is playing 'One More River,' and more than tripling its average weekly take. This is mostly due to studio taking a hand in exploitation by giving the house extras.

—VARIETY

$86,000 Take With "River" B'way's Best

Developing as a surprise to the Main Stem, not excepting Universal, first honors along Broadway last week went to "One More River" which nabbed an $86,000 gross at the Music Hall.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY

—outstanding

everywhere it plays!

Diana Wynyard

ONE MORE RIVER

With Frank Lawton, Jane Wyatt, Mrs. Patrick Campbell, Colin Clive, Lionel Atwill, Reginald Denny, C. Aubrey Smith, Henry Stephenson, Kathleen Howard, Alan Mowbray. Screenplay by R. C. SHERRIFF.

A JAMES WHALE Production

"One More River" Better Than The Galsworthy Novel

Norbert Lusk in Los Angeles Times says "vital intelligence underlies every department of a beautiful production.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18. (Exclusive) Gradually some of Hollywood's newer and better productions are seeping onto Broadway, with consequent stimulation to reviewers and favorable reaction of the part of the public.

For example, Universal's "One More River" came into Radio City Music Hall with only regular advertising and on the strength of obvious merit the picture has garnered excellent reviews and encouraging receipts. Minus an arresting dramatic structure and, indeed, based on the unfamiliar divorce laws of a foreign country, it is persuasively absorbing because of the vital intelligence underlying every department of a beautiful production. Positive strength comes from restraint and good taste in writing, acting and direction, not forgetting the extraordinary careful simulation of English backgrounds.

Lacking these advantages the picture would be uncomfortably lethargic and the problems of its characters of only mild interest. Wisely James Whale has overcome the limitations of his material by combining with it his own creative ability and the result is definitely superior to the novel.

A heroine more ideally suited to the part than Diana Wynyard could not have been found nor has Colin Clive done anything better than his heavy, while the fine restraint and keen intelligence of Frank Lawton promise great things from him in "David Copperfield."

In fact, the entire cast is superlative and considerable interest is attached to the screen debut of Jane Wyatt, who is proclaimed the best of the younger actresses by theatre-going admirers. Critics laud her to the skies, hailing her as a discovery and declaring that she photographs beautifully. While this may be disputed by some, there is no denying that she is an exceptional actress. That distinguished veteran, Mrs. Patrick Campbell, also rises to the occasion and, like Mary Garden, has the ability to make rather commonplace quips sound like priceless epigrams.

Carl Laemmel, Jr. Signs Jane Clayworth

ON September 7th, the second ingenue to play the big role in "Are You Decent" at the Ambassador Theatre, will leave the company. June Clayworth has signed a long term contract with Universal and will report at the studio on September 15th to begin her screen career under the auspices of Carl Laemmle, Jr. Miss Clayworth took the role in "Are You Decent" when Claudia Morgan was married. Miss Clayworth attracted so much attention that three film offers resulted. She chose the Universal and will follow in the footsteps of Margaret Sullavan and Jane Wyatt from Broadway to Universal City. June Clayworth is a brunette with curly chestnut brown hair, cut in a circle bob, and with hazel eyes. She is five four and three quarters inches and weighs 110 pounds. She is twenty years old and was born in Wilkesbarre, Pennsylvania. She went to the Emerson School of Expression in Boston, and has had quite a bit of experience in stock. The details of Miss Clayworth's contract were arranged through her agents, Robson and Berney.

Chester B. Bahn says Galsworthy novel makes fine cinema (Syracuse Herald)

THERE is a delicately beautiful piece of work on the Eckel soundscreen this week. A work so gracefully executed, so patiently thought out that whether one ought to fire a critical salvo for the late John Galsworthy or dash off a pean of praise to another and less renowned author, R. C. Sherriff, is a question.

Lovers of the Forsyte saga (and are they not legion?), need have no disturbing fear as they contemplate viewing the stalwart, fascinating English family in cinema. All the fine nuances with which Galsworthy enriched his continued tale of the Forsytes; all the wealth of character detail which built a group of people, who, to the reader, are almost flesh and blood; all the sturdy, sane background upon which their lives are spread in the printed page—these, collectively, have been painstakingly reproduced in Universal's picturization of "One More River."

In less competent acting hands perhaps the Galsworthy material might have suffered materially, in spite of Mr. Sherriff's competent adaptation. But consider: Mr. Patrick Compbell, adding a touch of Lady Macbeth to her rich portrayal: Diana Wynyard who we are beginning to accept as the epitome of straightforward, charming English heroines; Jane Wyatt, a definite "find"; Colin Clive, Frank Lawton, C. Aubrey Smith, Henry Stephenson, Lionel Atwill, Alan Mowbray, Reginald Denny, Kathleen Howard, Gilbert Emery, E. E. Olive, Robert, Greig, Dennis Davis, Tempe Piggott—an imposing list, worthy of an imposing theme.

NEWSREEL No. 279

Stranger Than Fiction No. 1

RIOTING CONVICTS SET FIRE TO PRISON AS DEMANDS FAIL

GRATERFORD, PA.—Two hours of havoc and a trail of flames sweep a model penitentiary when two hundred prisoners battle over the warden's refusal to grant them "better food and more liberties."

HUEY AND MAYOR DEBATE WAR

BATON ROUGE, LA.—Senator Long, in an exclusive Universal Newsreel interview, attacks "debauchery and gambling" in New Orleans.

COLLISION KILLS BOY FLIER

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—Two young Chinese student pilots collide over the crowded streets of Williamsburg.

VIOLENCE FLARES IN STRIKE

McGUFFEY, O.—The world's biggest onion patch is torn with strife as workers demand higher wages. The Mayor's home is bombed when he threatens to intervene.

STEADY RAINS END DROUGHT

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA.—A sudden and heavy downpour restores life to the parched fields of this vicinity.

ROOSEVELT AT RAINEY RITES (Chicago Only)

CARROLLTON, ILL.—The Chief Executive and many other leaders gather to pay their respects at the funeral of the late Henry T. Rainey.

DEADLY SPILLS MAR RACES FOR DIRT TRACK TROPHIES

HAMBURG, N. Y.—A sensational crash causes severe injuries to a ranking speed ace when blow-outs and a slippery course bring racers to grief during a thrilling competition.

PRESIDENT REVIEWS CADETS

WEST POINT, N. Y.—The Commander-in-Chief witnesses the precision attained by America's future officers as they drill in his honor during a visit to this historic spot.

KING AND DUCE INSPECT ARMY

FUTA PASS, ITALY—Over 120,000 troops engage in colorful maneuvers with rifles and machine-guns under the interested gaze of Victor-Emmanuel and Mussolini.

GIRLS SEEK ENDURANCE MARK

GLENVIEW, ILL.—Mary Owens of Fort Worth and Jeanne LeRene of Dallas, Texas, take off for a long grind aloft in effort to break ten day record.

James Wallington describes the interesting first number of new series of thirteen single reelers being edited and compiled by Allyn Butterfield

Alois Havrilla, who describes the second "Stranger than Fiction" Reel

BABY SEAL

Carl Johnson a young man of Alamitos Bay in southern California, has adopted a baby seal only three months old. This little animal is his constant companion when he is in the water and follows him like a dog on land. Although the baby still has a lot to learn he gives promise of being unusually clever.

BABY GAS MASKS

In Paris a practical method has been devised to protect infants from the effects of chemical warfare. It is a handbag gas mask fitted with gas filter and oxygen renewing apparatus, to protect the infant from poison gas. The bag is zipped shut, and is equipped with an isinglass window through which the child may be observed.

BROTHERS PULL PLOW

The three Word brothers who live in Fordyce, Arkansas, have solved their plowing problem, since they cannot afford horse power, by hitching themselves to their farm plow, with two of them pulling and one guiding they have plowed and planted six acres of land thus assuring their food supply the coming winter.

TALL BOY

The North Denver High school has a pupil six feet, eight inches tall. The youngster is only fourteen years old. His excessive growth does not seem to have arrested his mental development. He proves to be a very alert student.

BABY OSTRICHES

At the Los Angeles ostrich farm baby ostriches are valued at $50.00 a piece as soon as they are hatched.

Camera Man Gets News Break

ESCAPE

"They're planning an air escape from the pen."

That was the alarm spread yesterday as an airplane circled over the new Eastern Penitentiary at Graterford, while convicts rioted.

Guards on the wall stood tense as the plane landed just outside the gates of the institution and two men emerged and started for the gates. Machine Guns covered them.

It turned out, however, to be a false alarm. The fliers identified themselves as Earl Basil of the Philadelphia Airport and a news photographer in search of pictures.

—Box in the Philadelphia Inquirer

The photographer mentioned in the story was David Oliver of Universal Newsreel's New York staff, assigned to cover the prison break immediately on news of its occurrence. The air scenes and views within the prison which he obtained are to be seen in Universal Newsreel No. 279, released last week, and described in the first column on the preceding page. What a hound that boy Oliver is for being in the news even if he has to be shot up occasionally.

✚ ✚ ✚

Stranger Than Fiction No. 1

This price does not seem to be exorbitant when you consider that the adult bird is valued at $500. Contrary to the usual custom the male Ostrich is very proud of his young and shares in the setting period with his mate. He also assumes responsibility in teaching the newly hatched babies to walk.

TINY MOTOR

A watchmaker in the little town of Berktesgaden, Germany, has built the smallest electric motor in the world. It's only half an inch high and is mounted on a pill box cover. The shaft is the size of a sewing needle and the windings are of German silver wire, only one one-thousandth of an inch in thickness—finer than human hair. It's a real motor. When connected up, it runs at a speed of eighteen hundred revolutions a minute, and develops two-horse-fly power!

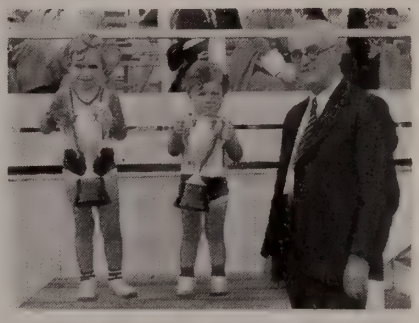
FREAK ANIMALS

Mr. E. J. Clark of Chehalis, Washington has a hobby for collecting freak objects and animals. He has an iron skillet 8½ ft. in diameter and 10 in. deep which holds four of his midget Hereford cattle on the hoof. At that these animals weigh 450 lbs. a piece.

HOBO HOTEL

There is a one-man hotel at Fresno, California. It is exclusively for hobos and operated by Skidway Slim. The proprietor runs the entire establishment. He is known from coast to coast and has entertained a million and a half hobos in his odd hostelry during the past three years. He runs a free employment service and free check room for their bundles. By the hundreds hobos come and go blessing Skidway Slim for hospitality.

NEWSREEL No. 278



TENT REVIVALIST PREACHERS 'CONQUER' FANGLESS SERPENT

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.—Frenzy grips a Holy Rollers' camp meeting when its pastors fondle a huge rattlesnake, claiming it will not injure them.

HEALTHIEST TOTS WIN CUPS

SEDALIA, MO.—Four States apply rigid tests to choose boy and girl health champions. Ruth Keuper of Sedalia and little Billy Needy of Lamonte, Mo., carry off the honors.

MARINES BACK FROM HAITI

NORFOLK, VA.—A long American occupation of the Island Republic ends as the last company of "Devil-dogs" returns home.

DOG BEARS RECORD LITTER

BINGHAMTON, N. Y.—Betty, a French bull, presents her master with fifteen valuable pups.

SOVIET SEEKS FINER HORSES IN TEST OF TROTTING SPEED

MOSCOW, U.S.S.R.—Ambassador William C. Bullitt, first American envoy to Communist Russia, looks on as the fastest trotters in the country match paces.

FATHER INVENTS BABY AID

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—An ingenious parent solves the hired-girl problem when he straps his child to his back and frees the family to enjoy the movies or the outdoors.

CAVALRY STUDIES TACTICS

SCHLOSSHOF, AUSTRIA—Mounted regiments speeding over rough terrain in intricate formations test the defensive uses of machine-guns.

BLAST PROVIDES NEW MARBLE

CARRARA, ITALY—Thousands of cubic yards of this region's famous stone tears from its base, loosened by the fury of two tons of dynamite.

CUP CHALLENGER MADE READY

BRISTOL, R. I.—Endeavour, the hope of British yachtsmen, clears decks for action.

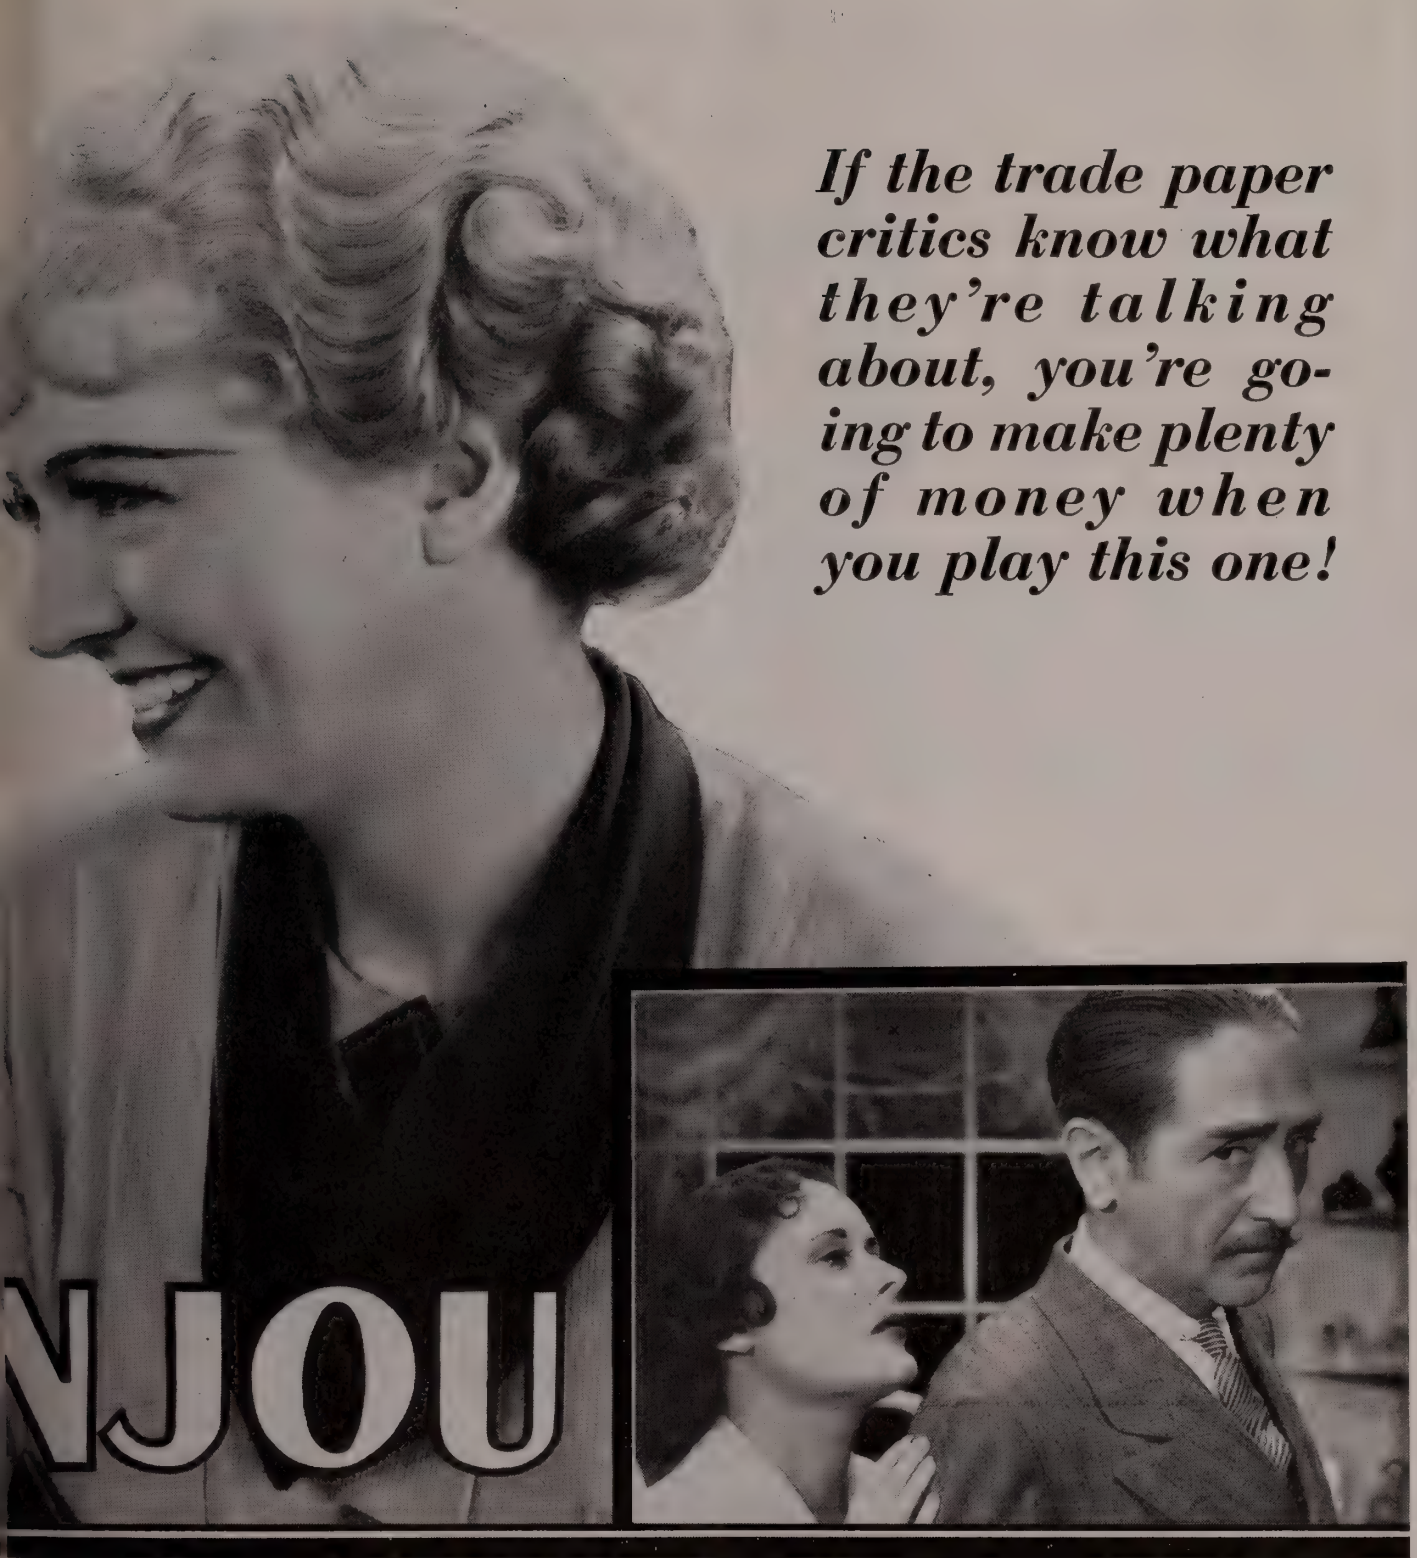
With

DORIS KENYON

Dickie Moore, Joseph Cawthorn, Reginald Owen, Betty Lawford, Charlotte Henry. Directed by Edward Buzzell. Presented by CARL LAEMMLE.

Adolphe ME

in The HUM



If the trade paper critics know what they're talking about, you're going to make plenty of money when you play this one!

NJOU

AN SIDE

Tremendous Coverage for Buck Jones Advertising

AS soon as Buck Jones signed up with Universal for a serial and six adventure features, the Exploitation Department devised a tie-up for him which will have a tremendous effect on attendance at his pictures. The Daisy Air Rifle people were induced to make a new rifle to which they gave the name "Buck Jones Special Daisy." Buck Jones' name is engraved on the jacket just like the finest big game rifles. A compass is inlaid in the stock, and a sun-dial is built in beside it. This air rifle, in addition to enjoying a tremendous sale, and in addition to its use as a prize, will be backed up by a huge advertising campaign.

The illustration on this page shows the back cover advertisement of the AMERICAN BOY. The same advertisement appears on the back cover for BOY'S LIFE and OPEN ROAD FOR BOYS MAGAZINE.

These magazines have a reader coverage of three million American boys and a tremendous audience of Buck Jones admirers to be turned into cash at the box office wherever Buck Jones pictures are shown.

In other sizes, the same advertisement will run in

POPULAR MECHANICS

POPULAR SCIENCE MONTHLY
UNIVERSAL MODEL AIRPLANE NEWS

This will add another three million readers to the three million who will be reading the boys magazines.

The above coverage is for September issues of all of these magazines. It is only the first in a series of ads that will be running regularly for a period of eight months. No other star of the stage, screen, or radio will enjoy as great a campaign of advertising where advertising counts most. Buck Jones, with his Buck Jones Rangers and the Daisy Air Riffle will return mighty dividends to theatres playing Buck Jones pictures.

The Advertisement in "American Boy"

The response to the Buck Jones serial on the part of the exhibitors has been the greatest that Universal has ever enjoyed with any release. It far outsold "Gordon of Ghost City" which was last year's lead-off serial. The first episodes have resulted in tremendous audience response. "The Red Rider" is over the top with a vengeance, and riding for a record in the serial world, as it well merits.

Buck Jones has also completed his first feature for Universal entitled "Rocky Rhodes." It has a fine cast and a fine story, and will be released the first week in October.

The cast of "Rocky Rhodes" includes Sheila Terry, Stanley Fields, Walter Miller, Alf James, Paul Fix, Lydia Knott, Lee Shumway, Jack Rockwell, Monte Montague, Bud Osborne, Harry Samuels, and Silver. It was directed by Al Raboch. From a story by W. C. Tuttle, one of the great writers of western stories.

SHOWMEN'S REVIEWS

This department deals with new product from the point of view of the exhibitor who is to purvey it to his own public

The Human Side

It's the entertainment and showmanship of this picture that provides the exhibition values. Basically it's a comedy drama. Understandable humanness is its outstanding characteristic. Not a preachment, although it has a moral, it is light, airy and exciting. Just when everything seems securely settled, new complications arise and taking quick twists it races off to new interest-creating angles. A family type attraction, it has plenty of strength in cast and entertainment quality as a big house attraction as well as for smaller communities.

It's a wholesome family picture, and there is plenty of sock in it for those who must have their sock. While comedy in action, dialogue and situation is its big point it tells a real love story. The menace of its triangle is not heavy. Gregory loves Alma only for the money she will put up for his shows. The cast is adequate. Menjou, Reginald Owen, Doris Kenyon and Betty Lawford for the grownups. Charlotte Henry and Dick Winslow for the adolescents and Dickie Moore, George Ernest and their dog for the youngsters. Beside the commercial campaign given this, word of mouth advertising can be relied upon to boost it considerably.—McCarthy, Hollywood.

Produced and distributed by Universal. Directed by Edward Buzzell. Associate producer, E. M. Asher. Stage play and screen treatment, Christine Ames. Screen play by Frank Craven and Ernest Pascal. Sound supervision, Gilbert Kurland. Photographed by Norbert Brodine. Film editor, Maurice Wright. Art director, Harrison Wiley. Editorial supervision, Maurice Pivar. Production Code Administration Certificate No. 130. Running time, 60 minutes. Release date, Aug. 27, 1934.

CAST

Gregory	Adolphe Menjou
Vera Sheldon	Doris Kenyon
Lucille Sheldon	Charlotte Henry
Fritz Speigle	Joseph Cawthorne
James Dalton	Reginald Owen
Alma Hastings	Betty Lawford
Phil Sheldon	Dick Winslow
Tom Sheldon	George Ernest
Bobbie Sheldon	Dickie Moore

Raves! Raves! Raves!

The BOX OFFICE SLANT

A Practical, Working Analysis of Current Product as Gauged By a Showman's Yardstick

THE HUMAN SIDE

Universal Comedy-Drama 60 mins.

SPLENDID PROGRAM OFFERING WITH FINE FAMILY AUDIENCE APPEAL; WOMEN WILL LIKE IT

Cast: Adolphe Menjou, Doris Kenyon, Joseph Cawthorn, Reginld Owen, Charlotte Henry, Dickie Moore, and others. Screen play by Frank Craven and Ernest Pascal from the stage play by Christine Ames. Director, Edward Buzzell.

Plot. Menjou is still in love with his former wife, Doris Kenyon, but is loved by Betty Lawford, an actress whose plays he produces. His lot is one failure following another and he is a poor provider for his children. For their sake, Doris accepts the proposal of Reginald Owen and they plan an immediate marriage. However, the children rush to their father who endeavors to stop the pending marriage. Doris and Owen disagree at the last moment and Menjou and she are reunited.

Summary: This one is built to order for the family trade. It has heart throbs, a lot of comedy and a very human appeal. The kids will laugh one minute and cry the next. It's also an ideal woman's picture, and gives a lesson to elders about breaking up homes without taking children into consideration. Get the church people interested. Play up the good cast and the theme. Arrange display of telegram offering congratulations. Tieup with stage beauty preparations. Use story teller in lobby or foyer for the kids. Solicit best letter from juveniles for daily schedule of usefulness.

—JOE BLAIR, Hollywood.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Human Side"

(Unversal)

Hollywood, Aug. 7.—This is Universal's answer to the clean, wholesome pictures demand without sacrificing the necessary ingredients for entertainment qualities to please the masses.

Being down to earth comedy drama, it reflects the emotions and mannerisms of modern American home life. The story concerns a wandering theatrical producer always looking for an angel to finance his productions. Because of this he becomes divorced from his wife and four children whom he still loves and visits whenever he is in town.

After a series of fast moving situations and smart dialogue between the feminine angel and nut composer the wife and producer are reconciled when he makes a new gold strike and moves to California in a clinch fadeout.

Adolphe Menjou gives a splendid performance as a roving producer with fine support from Betty Lawford, the angel; Doris Kenyon, as the wife, Joseph Cawthorn, as the nut composer, and Reginald Owen as a millionaire playboy pouring his attention on the divorced wife. They are well supported by four children, Charlotte Henry, Dick Winslow, George Ernst and Dickie Moore.

The production confines itself to telling a simple story rich in human qualities, with much credit due the author of the original, Christine Ames, and to Ernest Pascal and Eddie Buzzell for the treatment and for well modulated direction. Running time, 60 minutes.

Advertising "Only Yesterday" at the Nihon Gekijo Theatre in Tokyo. The poster on the right is an enlargement of the scene over the main entrance of the theatre. They have made Margaret Sullavan look just a little Japanese. Scene at left a balloon streamer advertisement.

Universal Announces October Releases

(Continued from Page 13)

second one for Universal.

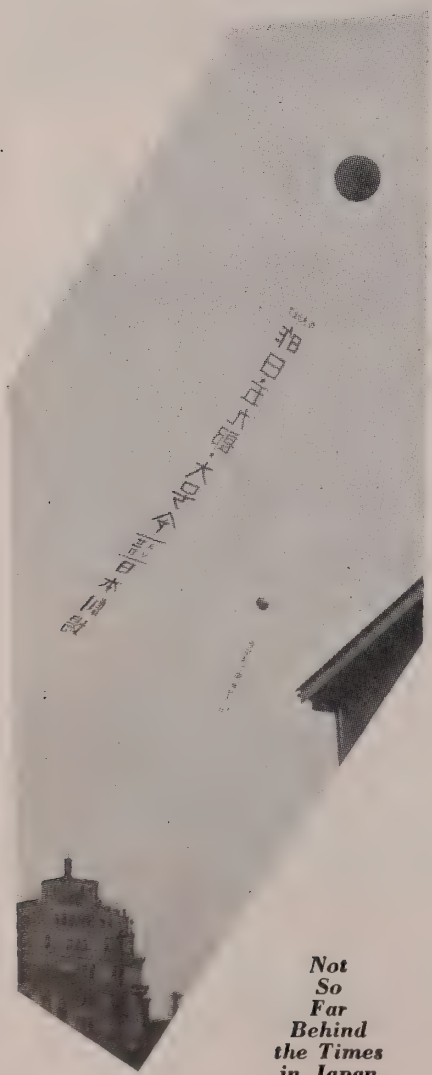
Stuart Walker directed "Great Expectations," and has gone to extraordinary lengths to secure accuracy, and so far as possible authentic backgrounds, properties and objects. The cast is a tribute to Stanley Bergerman's ability to put the right players in the right parts. It includes Alan Hale, Rafaela Ottiano, Francis L. Sullivan, Walter Armitage, Jackie Searle, Eily Malyon, Virginia Hammond, Georgie Breakstone, Forrester Harvey, Muriel Kirkland, Harry Cording, Douglass Wood, George Barraud, and Philip Dakin.

"Great Expectations" will be notable as the second picture for Jane Wyatt, who made such an auspicious debut in "One More River." In "Great Expectations" she has the leading feminine role of 'Estella," the girl who was brought up by her aunt as an instrument of revenge, trained to be hard, worldly, and cold hearted, but who finds in young Philip Pirrip,' whom everyone called Pip, the antidote for all of her aunt's teaching. "Great Expectations" will also present for the first time on the American screen Francis L. Sullivan, whom Universal signed in London recently for just such roles as that of Jaggers. The screen play for this famous Dickens novel was written by Gladys Unger.

The final picture for the month is the long-awaited "Imitation of Life" by Fannie Hurst. No picture of recent years took so long to cast, and none, in the opinion of John M. Stahl who cast it, is any more perfectly cast than "Imitation of Life."

Claudette Colbert and Warren William have the principal roles, and this combination is now becoming tremendously popular. It started with "Cleopatra." When they are finished making "Imitation of Life," which will be in two more weeks, they go into another production together. The cast in support includes Ned Sparks, Louise Beavers, Juanita Quigley, Marilyn Knowlden, Rochelle Hudson, Sevie Hendricks, Dorothy Black, Freddie Washington, Alan Hale, Clarence Hummell Wilson, and Henry Armetta.

Fannie Hurst's great novel was put into screen form by William Hurlbut and is being produced under the personal supervision of Carl Laemmle, Jr. There is every reason to believe that it will be the worthiest of the famous John Stahl pictures—"Only Yesterday," "Back Street," "Seed."



Not So Far Behind the Times in Japan

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

SHOWMANSHIP SECTION

A DIGEST OF THE BEST EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

YOU DON'T GO AFTER BIG GAME WITH A SMALL GUN!

Use the same common sense in going after big results for your box-office when you have a picture that merits enthusiasm and intensive effort.

And that's just what "THERE'S ALWAYS TOMORROW" deserves from every showman who is entitled to the name. We cannot urge you too strongly to give this screen gem a real bang-up campaign.

It is a picture so appealingly human that everyone of your patrons will see in each character some loved friend or neighbor—they will recognize each little problem, each bit of happiness and each sorrow as one of their own or as something that has happened in families they know. And when you have that kind of a situation in a picture you have an attraction that is sure-fire box-office because it will send them out talking.

AND IN ADDITION "THERE'S ALWAYS TOMORROW" GIVES YOU A NEW AND SCINTILLATING SCREEN PERSONALITY WHO WILL BE THE TALK OF THE COUNTRY THIS FALL—JUST AS "ONLY YESTERDAY" DID A YEAR AGO!

BINNIE BARNES has everything that picture fans rave about—we feel safe in predicting that after they've seen her in this picture, they will literally go nuts about her! Frank Morgan does the best work of a notable career and Lois Wilson comes through with a performance equalling the one she gave in that memorable production, "Seed." And adding to that great appeal there's as fine a collection of youngsters as you'll ever see.

"THERE'S ALWAYS TOMORROW" is truly a great picture—an impressive picture—because of its beautiful simplicity! It is a picture as clean as the proverbial "hound's tooth" but, nevertheless chock full of audience entertainment. Get your teeth into it and give it a worthy send-off. Sell Binnie Barnes to the hilt. You'll thank us for the tip—and, if you follow them, for the many tips on the following pages.

A. J. SHARICK

24 SHEET STAND

PLAY THE PICTURE YOU KNOW WILL MAKE GOOD!

MARGARET SULLAVAN in LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?

3 SHEET A

STAR HEAD DISPLAY

MOUNT a twenty-four sheet cut-out head of Binnie Barnes on a large star shaped board. Decorate the background with gold or silver flit and hang it in a conspicuous spot in your lobby. Train baby spots on it from two angles.

This will make an excellent star-selling display and can be used both for your advance lobby and in the current set-up. It can be used to advantage for a night shot atop the marquee.

RADIO SCRIPT

THERE is available for radio station tie-ups, a fifteen minute playlet adapted from the picture script. Promote the time from the station by giving it credit in your screen and lobby announcements of the stunt—or promote it from a commercial sponsor by offering it to him as free material. You can probably induce a local dramatic club to put it on for the publicity they will get. Just write or wire, Exploitation Department, Universal Pictures Corporation, Rockefeller Center, New York City.

CASH IN ON OTHER POPULAR STORIES BY URSULA PARROTT

THE story from which "There's Always Tomorrow" was adapted, is from the pen of the popular and distinguished author, Ursula Parrott. Stress it in your campaign. Arrange with local book stores for displays featuring books by this authoress. Provide them with stills, lobby photos, cut-outs and other accessories to use in the displays as a tie-up with the picture. Print up book marks to be distributed by book stores and libraries, with a list of the author's works on the back and an ad for the picture on the front. Get local librarians to recommend Parrott books.

Prepare a lobby board calling attention to Miss Parrott's other stories that have been filmed ("Ex-Wife" and "Strangers May Kiss") and featuring AND NOW HER BEST STORY TO DATE "THERE'S ALWAYS TOMORROW."

PRINT UP SPECIAL CARDS FOR LOBBY

PRINT up special cards in various colors using just the title and the following catch-lines. Use plenty of them in your lobby and in other spots around town, to get your title and story over.

Does Marriage Kill Romance?

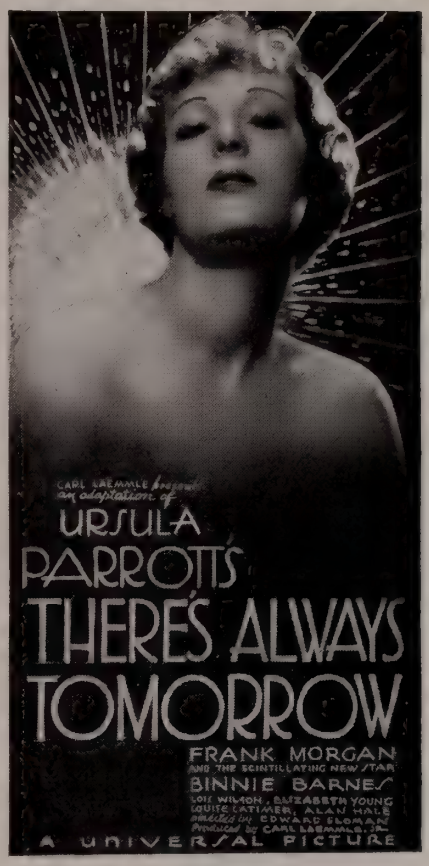
Are Husbands Lovers at Heart?

Do You Take Your Husband's Love For Granted?

Is There Room In Your Heart For DAD?

Is Dad Just The Pay Check in Your Home?

1 SHEET



3 SHEET B

DISPLAY LINES

As big as the heart of humanity!

* * *

Life begins at forty—sometimes! Here's the romance of a father of five that is more thrilling, more human, more real, than any youthful flaming affair.

* * *

She was the other woman—a trespasser, but she understood what those who were closest and dearest to him did not.

* * *

Here's a story of new dreams discovered, and old ones re-lived, of life fresh and radiant, of youth renewed!

* * *

The find of the screen year! Here's a girl who will overwhelm you with her beauty, charm you with her personality, bewitch you with her talent—Binnie Barnes, great screen discovery, appears in "There's Always Tomorrow" . . . Don't miss her! She's the girl everyone will be talking about tomorrow.

* * *

Here's drama as intimate as your own fireside, as romantic as your own first love affair, as fine and human as your own family! It is a scene from life as lived in a million homes and you will love it!

SELL THE BRILLIANT NEW STAR OUT FRONT AND IN YOUR LOBBY

BINNIE BARNES is destined to be the talk of the country after it has seen her first American picture, "There's Always Tomorrow" just as Margaret Sullavan was after her appearance in "Only Yesterday."

At any rate you will do well to plug this fascinating new screen personality BIG. She will back up anything you say about her as a beauty, a talented actress and a glamourous personality. Make up the lobby display board shown below. Put the cut-out from the twenty-four sheet atop the marquee. Use the special Binnie Barnes one and three sheets in all possible displays. To sell the story angle and its universal interest for each type of family, have your artist make up a compo-board reproduction of a home front for the box-office. An attractive lobby can be made by turning it into the facade and garden of a typical American home.

CINEMA FASHION TIE-UP

DEPARTMENT and specialty shops are now featuring cinema fashions for the youngsters as well as for the grown ups. The important part played in this picture by little Helen Parrish has inspired the Modern Merchandising Bureau to have reproductions of her dresses and coats made up for their more than 300 shops to merchandise in connection with the engagements of the picture. This special promotion is, of course, in addition to that prepared for the very advanced styles as worn by Binnie Barnes. Contact your Hollywood Cinema Fashion Shop at once and arrange for a big display. If you require any additional information about this tie-up communicate direct with, Modern Merchandising Bureau, 36 West 44th St., New York City.

THREE COLOR HERALD

HERE is a novel herald with plenty of flash and color. Printed in two colors inside and one out and because of the fold of the cover over the inside spread it gives a three color effect. This is only the inside spread, but the cover is just as attractively laid out. Flat size is seven by eleven inches. Priced at $3.00 per thousand. Ample imprint space. At your Universal Exchange.

INQUIRING REPORTER STUNT PERFECT

THIS is the type of picture that starts plenty of talk once it has opened. The situations presented and the characters delineated are all so akin to people and happenings we all know and experience that your audience will just naturally go out talking about them. And there will be a wide divergence of opinions as to what would be said and done in similar situations in real life.

By putting over this stunt with your local newspaper you can start this controversy before the picture opens by giving the local fans an opportunity to express themselves on the subject matter involved in print. Most of us get a whale of a lot of satisfaction doing just that.

Arrange with the local newspaper editor to send a reporter out to make snapshots and ask various types of people a different question each day for about four or five days before the opening. Urge the use of the following questions: IS A FATHER AND HUSBAND JUSTIFIED IN GOING ELSEWHERE FOR CONSIDERATION AND COMFORT WHEN HE DOESN'T GET THEM AT HOME? IF YOU FELL IN LOVE WITH A MARRIED MAN WOULD YOU LET HIM KNOW IT OR RUN AWAY FROM YOUR HAPPINESS? CAN A MAN FIND ROMANCE AFTER FORTY? SHOULD THE RAISING OF A FAMILY BE ALLOWED TO KILL THE ROMANCE OF YOUR LOVE? IS A WIFE AND MOTHER JUSTIFIED IN NEGLECTING HER HUSBAND TO GIVE ALL HER DEVOTION TO HER CHILDREN?

IT'S WORTHY OF YOUR ENDORSEMENT

NOT every picture you play can stand up under the "personal endorsement ad" but in "There's Always Tomorrow" you have an attraction that not only is worthy of such exploitation, but should, in all good showmanship, be given it. It is excellent entertainment—down to earth and clean. Every member of every family will understand and enjoy it. The characters are believable—real, their counterparts will be in every audience—they will provoke discussion pro and con—they will awake in many people a consciousness they never felt before—and they will thank you for urging them to see this American family and the near tragedy of their problems.

CLAUDETTE

COLBERT

in

FANNIE HURST'S

IMITATION OF LIFE

WITH

WARREN WILLIAM, Rochelle Hudson,

NED SPARKS, HENRY ARMETTA

A JOHN M. STAHL Production

From

UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.

ROCKEFELLER CENTER

NEW YORK CITY

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
New York, N. Y.
Paid
Permit No. 949

Larry Edmunds Bookshop
6658 Hollywood Blvd.
Hollywood, Calif. 90028
HO 3-3273
World's Largest Collection
Of Books on Motion Pictures

UNIVERSAL NEWSREEL

Printed in U. S. A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

VOL. 35 NO. 13 SEPT. 8, 1934

Alice White
one of the featured players in
"SECRETS OF THE CHATEAU"

Coming!

PHILLIPS HOLMES
HENRY HULL
JANE WYATT
and many others in a great
Stanley Bergerman Production

Charles Dickens' "GREAT EXPECTATIONS"

Fannie Hurst's

IMITATION OF LIFE

WITH

WARREN WILLIAM

Rochelle Hudson

Ned Sparks — Henry Armetta

A JOHN M. STAHL PRODUCTION

THREE MORE HITS

No. 786 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

Fortunately, you don't have to buck up against any reform drive against the movies.

You don't have to go against the current by showing objectionable pictures.

Fortunately, there are so many fine pictures on which you can make money, without apologies to anyone, that you can continue to be a good showman because there are plenty of good shows on the market for you to use in your theatre.

The last three from the Universal studios — produced under the most careful production code ever drawn up — are proof enough that good, strong entertainment can be made without offense to even the most fanatical of critics.

"The Human Side" has already been described by the Hollywood Reporter as a picture which "fairly teems with audience appeal." This picture gives you a brand new Adolphe Menjou — a much more likeable Menjou than the screen has ever had before. Just as the title indicated, it is a story of such human appeal that the whole family will go for it from the start to the finish.

"Million Dollar Ransom" sounds like a gangster story and for that reason it will help the box office and it will also prove that vital, red-blooded stories can be pictured without being wishy-washy or Pollyanna. It is the newest,

FROM UNIVERSAL!

most modern kind of twist on a red-hot story and it will grip every soul in your audience because it is so BELIEVEABLE.

"There's Always Tomorrow" will simply bowl you over. The story is so simple, so direct and so darned honest that it will make you wonder why it was never written before the famous Ursula Parrott wrote it. If you give your local advertising campaign one fraction of what this picture deserves, you will pack your house at every show. I like it better than "Only Yesterday" which so many of you thought the best picture of many a year.

I told you not long ago not to let any drive against the movies get you down, nor destroy your spirit of showmanship. I was basing this on what I knew our studio was about to produce. Now I have seen the finished pictures and I re-iterate my advice more strongly than ever.

Making pictures under the restrictions of today is a tough job but I am happy to say that the Universal studios have found the way to do the job just a little better than anyone else is doing it.

Year in and year out, Universal pictures are a pretty safe thing to tie to.

Carl Laemmle

"SOCKO!"

at CHICAGO THEATRE, Chicago,"

—says VARIETY

Top money of the loop goes to 'One More River' at the Chicago, where the women and the matrons are finding ace heart fodder. Class picture with femme appeal is adding up to socko money at $44,000.

Picture is the main attraction beyond question, getting excellent reviews and fine word-of-mouth on femme and class draw. Headed for lusty $44,000, by far the biggest money in the loop.

A UNIVERSAL PICTURE

DIANA WYNYARD in

ONE MORE RIVER

Beautiful Binnie Barnes who is unpacking for a two days close-up of New York in her suite at the Essex House.

BINNIE BARNES SAILS AWAY TO ENGLAND

BUT THIS STUNNING RED HAIRED BEAUTY WILL RETURN TO PLAY IN MANY UNIVERSAL FILMS

AFTER a four month sojourn in Hollywood during which she made three pictures under her long term Universal contract, Binnie Barnes, sailed for England on the Majestic, Wednesday, Sept. 5th. She arrived in New York from the West Coast by fast plane, late Sunday night after a stormy trip which delayed the plane over eight hours. While in England she will act in an Alexander Korda production with Maurice Chevalier. She returns to Universal City in December to continue playing in Universal pictures.

The necessity of making this English picture prevented Miss Barnes' remaining in New York to see the opening of her first American film, "There's Always Tomorrow," which will play the Music Hall on Sept. 25th Due to her work in this production, Universal executives starred her in her second picture, "What Ladies Dream." In addition to these two roles she also appeared with the 30 other stars in "Gift of Gab" the Universal musical feature which will be released on September 24th.

When interviewed in her suite, at the Essex House, where she is staying during her three days in New York, Miss Barnes turned out to be a tall, graceful young woman with dark, almost olive complexion and rich red-gold hair. She is even more beautiful than her photographs and screen appearance show her to be and has the frankest and most ingratiating manner possible to imagine. Her eyes are a shade of hazel which can only be called red. They presented quite a problem to Jack Pierce, Universal City's makeup specialist before he could hit upon the proper tint of shadow for them in making up her

(Continued on Page 22)

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, New York City
Copyrighted 1934
Universal Pictures Corp.
(All Rights Reserved)
SEPT. 8, 1934
Vol. 35 No. 13

✚ ✚ ✚

First New Season Deal For Publix-Great States Is With Universal

LAST week J. R. Grainger returned from Chicago with another important 100% deal for Universal Pictures. The deal involved the Publix Great States Circuit, operating theatres in eighteen cities and towns in Illinois and Indiana. The deal was signed with Jules J. Ruben, general

(Continued on Page 22)

OUTS
THERE'S ALWA

TANDING!

Outstanding in any company! . . . Universal is proud to present as its first release of the 1934-35 season a picture even more outstanding than "Only Yesterday!" . . . A picture which will give you outstanding grosses — because it's that kind of a picture — and because it gives you the opportunity to introduce to your public a new and outstanding screen personality!

URSULA PARROTT'S

S TOMORROW

FRANK MORGAN
BINNIE BARNES

Lois Wilson, Elizabeth Young, Louise Latimer, Alan Hale. Produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr. Directed by Edward Sloman. Presented by CARL LAEMMLE.

A UNIVERSAL PICTURE

VICTOR MOORE IS "TERRIFIC"

WHEN they want to say in Hollywood that something is top hole, ace high, first class, or anything else that indicates clear cut supremacy, they say "It's terrific!"

Terrific is the superlative that tops all possible superlatives in cinemaland. Victor Moore is the latest terrific sensation in the movie studios as a result of the advance showings of his first Universal picture, "Romance in the Rain," which made its initial public appearance at the Roxy Theatre in New York yesterday.

Heather Angel and Roger Pryor have the romantic leads in this production. They are splendid too. But it is Victor Moore, the veteran trouper of 10,000 stage performances from the oil-light circuits to the famous Broadway Music Box Theatre, who has stampeded the keenest critical minds on the West Coast. They all dub him "terrific" and prophecy that the uproarious fun which he brings to the screen in "Romance in the Rain" will place him among picture comedians where his role of Alexander Throttlebottom in "Of Thee I Sing and "Let 'Em Eat Cake" brought him on the stage. That is at the very top of the heap.

In Two Films

Those who have seen the rushes of "Moore's second Universal film, the radio-musical picture, "Gift of Gab" in which he plays a buffoonish but wealthy program sponsor are just as enthusiastic about his work. In this picture he shines among a cast of over thirty stars of screen, stage and radio and is ably abetted by his Broadway associate, Hugh O'Connell. Edmund Lowe is featured in "Gift of Gab," with Ruth Etting, Phil Baker, Gloria Stuart and others prominent in the cast.

Although the noted comic has been to Hollywood before, making pictures, silent and talking, for Jesse Lasky and others in the past, it remained for Universal to bring him out with the intention of making him one of the big names in screen entertainment. His previous movie ventures were undertaken by Moore, largely as recreation from the arduous life of stage comedy. He thought it would be a vacation until he was hit on the head with a stuffed club and chased by a lion during his first day before the cameras.

"Romance in the Rain" gives famous stage comedian the opportunity to display real genius.

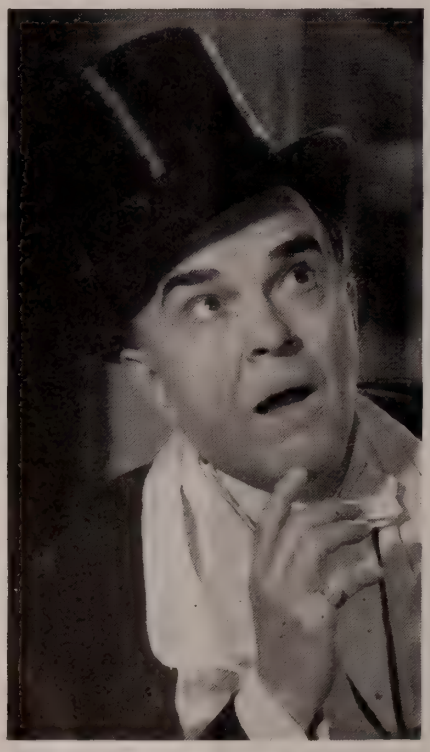
But when he went to Universal City last May, he had a contract to make him take his comicalities seriously This contract extending over a term of seven years gives him the kind of roles which brought him international fame on the stage. During the theatrical season his contract gives Moore permission to act on Broadway.

Back on Stage

At present the comedian is in New York ready to begin rehearsals in a Broadway musical show as yet untitled, to be produced by Vinton Freedley. This show which will present Moore with his old side partner in fun, William Gaxton, who was the president in "Of Thee I Sing" and the dictator in "Let 'Em Eat Cake."

SENSATION



Victor Moore in a scene from "Romance in the Rain" which is his debut in talking pictures where he is destined to rank with Charlie Chaplin.

The book of this show is by P. G. Wodehouse and Guy Bolton with music by Cole Porter and it will open at the Alvin Theatre during the first week in November.

Between rehearsals for this theatrical assignment, which begin within the next two weeks, Moore will be able to combine business and pleasure by seeing the New York premiere of the two pictures which he made during his three month stay at Universal City. New pictures are being planned there for the plump Mr. Throttlebottom which it is expected will make him more terrific than ever.

Had Hard Road

Although an overnight movie sensation, Victor Moore had no such easy road on the stage. He went through every phase of a trouper's precarious existence for many years before he began to gain the attention that made him one of the all time headliners in American comedy.

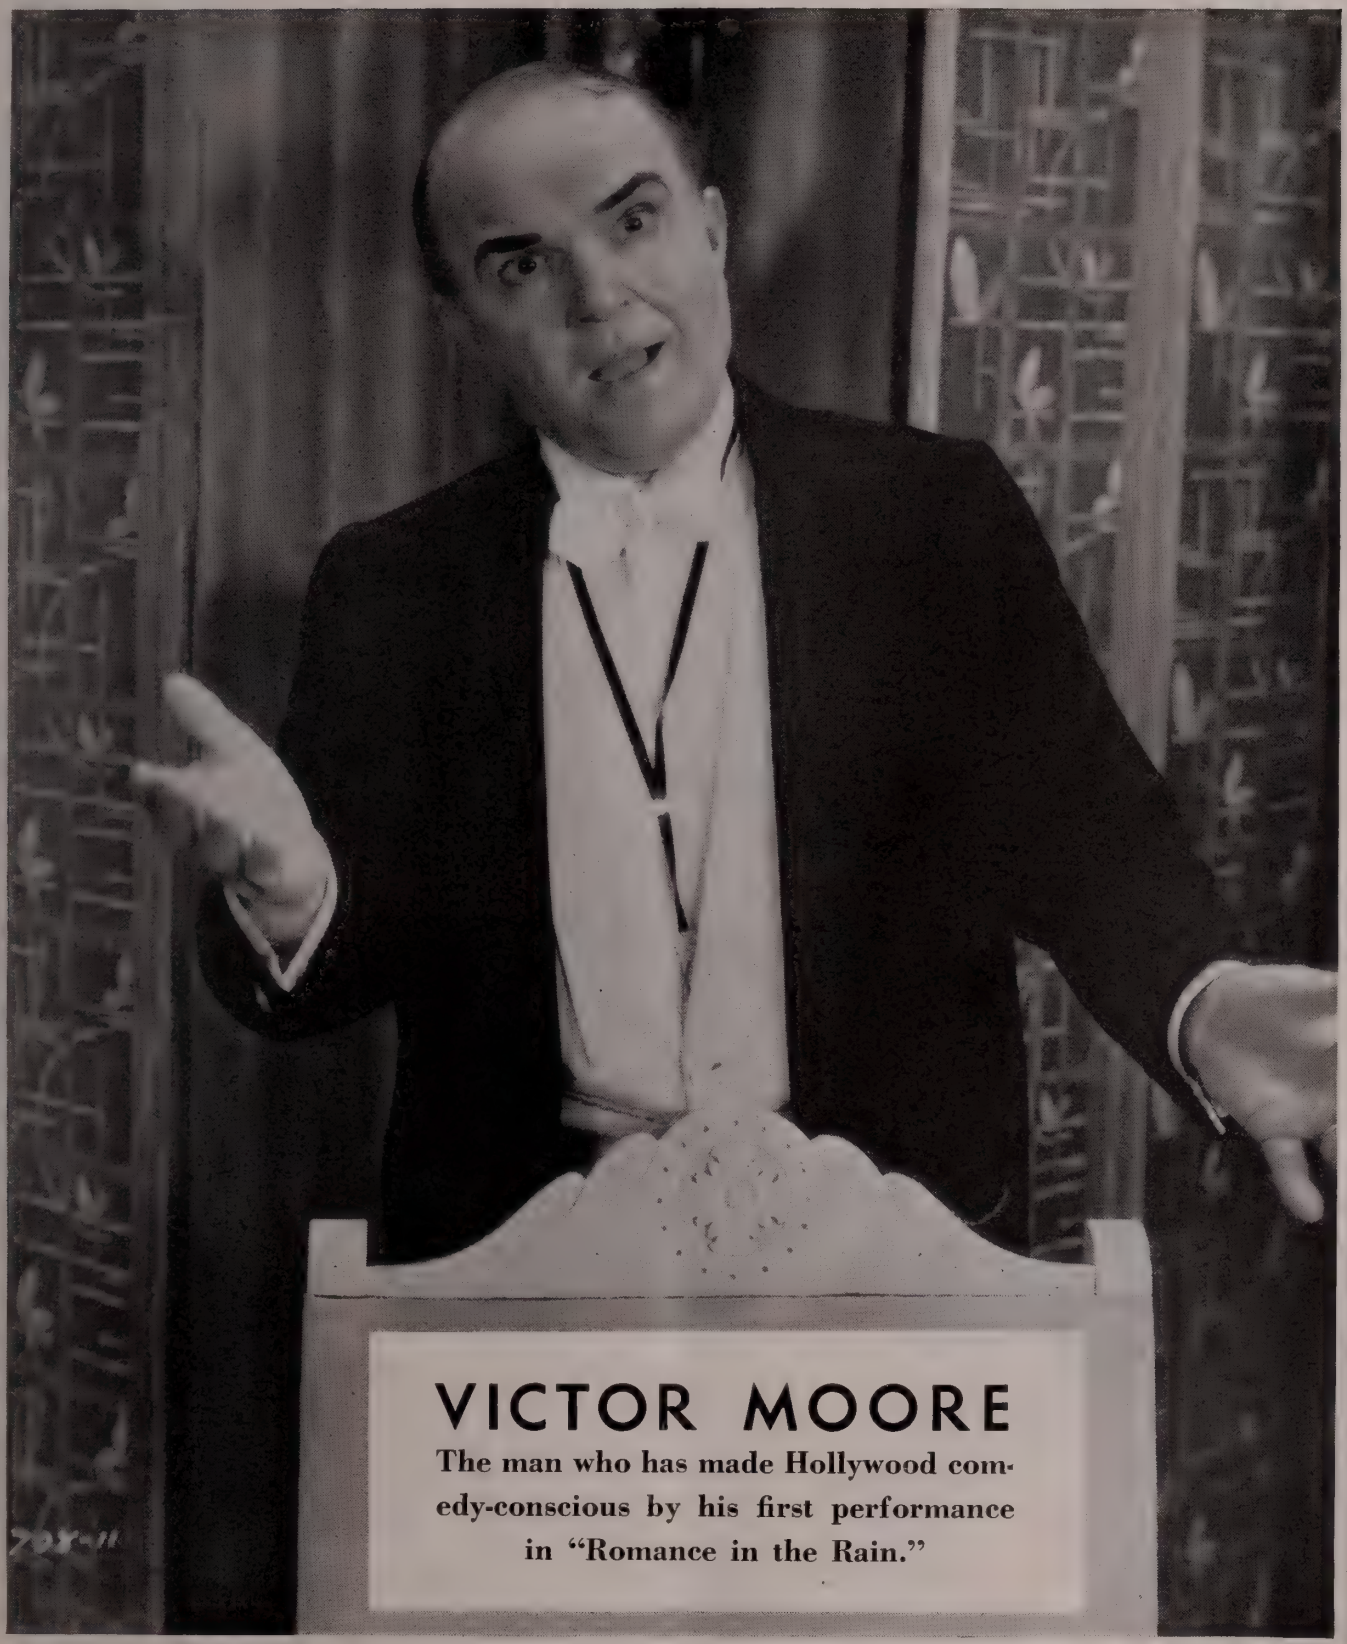
It was not until he married Emma Littlefield and they teamed together on the stage as well as in real life that he began to be successful. He bought a run down vaudeville sketch called, "Change Your Act, or Back to the Woods." This act turned out to be the bread and butter standby for the Moores for over 25 years, They played it in every big time vaudeville house in America. Whenever there were unemployed periods in Moore's career in "legit," the family brought out "Change Your Act."

The act employed the entire playhouse, the staff, ushers and stagehands. It used no scenery. The Moores started to play the act for $50 a week. When they last appeared in it they were getting $2000 a week.

This happy marriage which lasted for thirty years was broken by death when Moore was acting in "Romance in the Rain." News was brought to him that his wife was dying while he was on the set. True to the best theatrical tradition of carrying on with the show no matter what the circumstances, Moore finished the final sequence of the film. Then he flew to New York, arriving just an hour after his wife passed away. He returned after only one day in New York to enter production on "Gift of Gab."

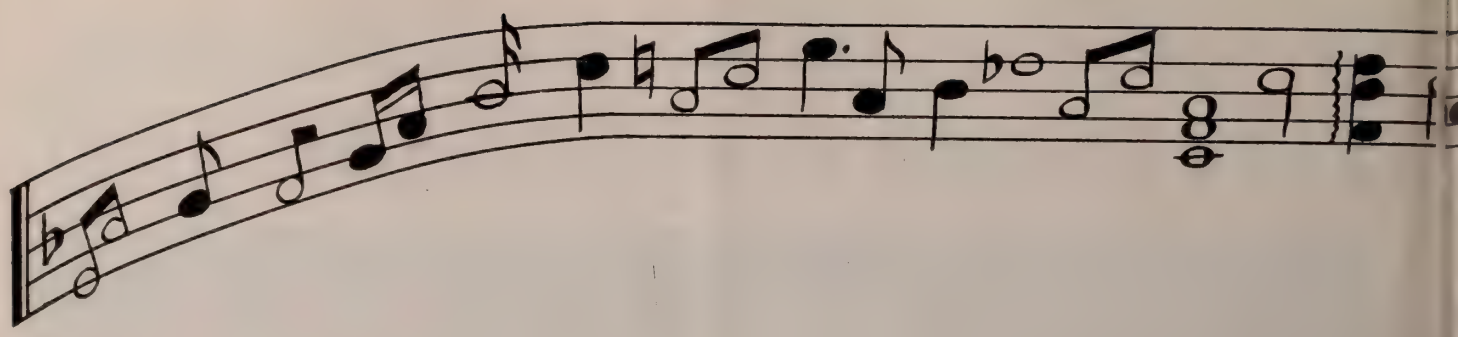
(Continued on Page 28)

LATEST SCREEN COMEDY HIT!



VICTOR MOORE

The man who has made Hollywood comedy-conscious by his first performance in "Romance in the Rain."



Says Motion Picture Daily—

"Has all the assets of a Class A production . . . Has many hilarious comedy situations . . . The dialogue kept the audience in good-humored laughter . . . The picture has general appeal."

WAKE UP A

with

RUSS COLUMBO
ROGER PRYOR
JUNE KNIGHT

Catherine Doucet, Henry Armetta, Andy Devine, Wini Shaw. Story by John Meehan, Jr. Directed by Kurt Neumann. A B. F. Zeidman Production. Presented by CARL LAEMMLE.

ND DREAM

Roger Pryor, June Knight and Russ Columbo as they appear in the forthcoming picture, "Wake Up and Dream." The three go through the entire picture as a vaudeville team with all kinds of complications attending the progress of their success.

"'Wake Up and Dream' Should Be Money Maker" Variety

THE coast preview of "Wake Up and Dream" was caught by both Variety and the Hollywood Reporter. Here is the Variety review:

"A vaude trio with a Three Musketeer complex come to Hollywood. One of the boys makes good, both love the girl member of the trio, one gives her up for the other. It's all been done before, and with music, too; but, it hasn't been done as well. Main credit is due to the comedy. Picture should be a money maker. It's 100% entertainment.

"Wisely, Russ Columbo has been allowed to do little else but sing. That he does well. Crooner still lacks pliability, but has improved over his earlier efforts. With a cast of comics such as Roger Pryor, Henry Armetta, Andy Devine, Catherine Doucet and Richard Carle—all getting everything there is out of their dialog and situations—there are few minutes in the picture without laughs.

"Story revolves around the trio, Columbo, Pryor and June Knight. Unable to get by in vaude, they come to the coast on the cuff. Pryor, who has become Columbo's manager, promotes him into a picture contract. Their trials and tribulations make the picture.

"Though the story is thin, the comedy sequences keep the picture going at a fast pace. There are several big laughs—Armetta's love scenes with Miss Doucet; the drunk bit between Pryor and Devine; Pryor's efforts to duck the cops under the impression they are after him.

"Entire cast steps out in front with performances. Miss

(Continued on Page 27)

"There's Always ... at the New ...

UNIVERSAL'S first picture of the new season, "There's Always Tomorrow," has been booked at the Music Hall. This is the highest honor which can be paid to a picture. Plans are being perfected by the theatre and by Universal for a campaign which will be appropriate to the story and to the introduction of Universal's newest star, Binnie Barnes. The date of the Music Hall showing will depend upon the hold-overs of several pictures, but is tentatively set for September 27th.

With every preview of "There's Always Tomorrow" in Hollywood, the impression grew and grew that in Binnie Barnes Universal had acquired a star of amazing interest to American audiences. By some fortunate circumstances, Binnie Barnes has a face, a temperament and voice which are as cosmopolitan as any actress in the world. Though she was born in London, and though her father was a London policeman, she is less English than any actress who ever came to America. There isn't a trace of English accent in her voice, which is low, rich and melodious. From her Italian mother she received a legacy of temperament and artistry which combine to give her a cosmo-

✚ ✚ ✚

Herbert Marshall and Frank Morgan In "The Good Fairy"

TWO players have been chosen for the supporting cast in "The Good Fairy," which will star Margaret Sullavan. This Franz Molner play will go into production next week at Universal City under the direction of William Wyler. Herbert Marshall will have the romantic lead, and Frank Edna Searle, Neil Hamilton, Binnie Barnes and Grant Mitchell in Binnie Barnes' first starring picture, "What Ladies Dream." The featured players are Neil Hamilton and Paul Cavanaugh. Edna Searle is Binnie Barnes' cousin and this is her first role in American pictures.

(Continued on Page 27)

›morrow" Booked ›rk Music Hall politan look. It is true that she has turned her hand to so many things and has lived and played in so many countries and cities that it would be surprising to find her anything but cosmopolitan. American audiences are going to take her to their hearts as the preview audiences and as the metropolitan bookers and the Universal home office executives all have done. Binnie Barnes has the makings of one of America's greatest moving picture stars.

"There's Always Tomorrow" is a delightful story by Ursula Parrott, author of "Ex-Wife," and "Strangers May Kiss." It presents a situation which might easily obtain in any home, and a man who was so accustomed to being enslaved by every member of his family that it took a remarkable woman to bring back a proper perspective to all concerned. Frank Morgan plays this man and it is a part made to order for this splendid actor who has scored hit after hit during the last few years. Its cast includes Lois Wilson, Elizabeth Young, Robert Taylor, Helen Parrish, Louise Latimer, Dick Winslow, Anne Darling, Dean Benton. It was directed by Edward Sloman.

✚ ✚ ✚

Claude Rains To Make Two More "Man Who Reclaimed Head," First

CARL LAEMMLE, Jr. this week signed Claude Rains to a two picture starring contract. The first picture is a natural. Claude Rains played it on the stage in New York at the Longacre Theatre. It is "The Man Who Reclaimed His Head" by Jean Bart. The picture was put into continunity form by the author herself with additional scenes by Peter Finley Dunne, Jr. The only other player so far cast is Douglas Fowley, and this makes the fifth picture in which this enterprising young man, who hitch-hiked his way to California, has appeared. Claude Rains left New York this Wednesday and arrives on Monday to prepare for "The Man Who Reclaimed His Head."

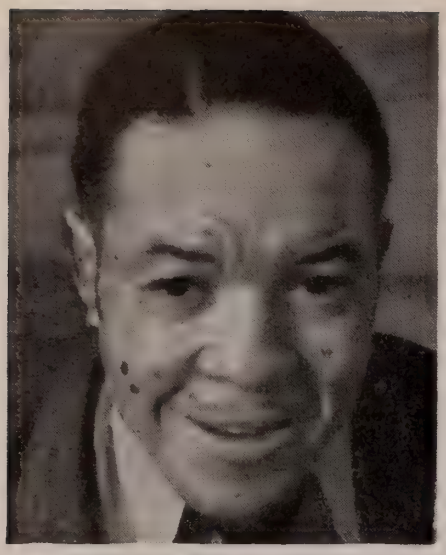
The other production in which Claude Rains will be starred is "The Return of Frankenstein," which James Whale will undoubtedly produce from a script now being written by R. C. Sherriff, who took the material back to England to complete during his next semester at Oxford University. It is also very likely that the famous New York illustrators' model, Phyllis Brooks, will be cast as "The Bride of Frankenstein." A world-wide search has been going on for the last three months for a type which the studio describes as "cold beauty" to play this unusual character.

Claude Rains, who is a famous Theatre Guild star, made his screen debut in "The Invisible Man." His next appearance was in the Hecht-Arthur play, "Crime Without Passion," just now having its previews. In the meantime, Rains came back to New York to play in "They Shall Not Die," the John Wexley play.

Rochelle Hudson and Claudette Colbert in a scene from "Imitation of Life." In the film version of Fannie Hurst's famous novel they play mother and daughter. More than that, they are both in love with the same man.

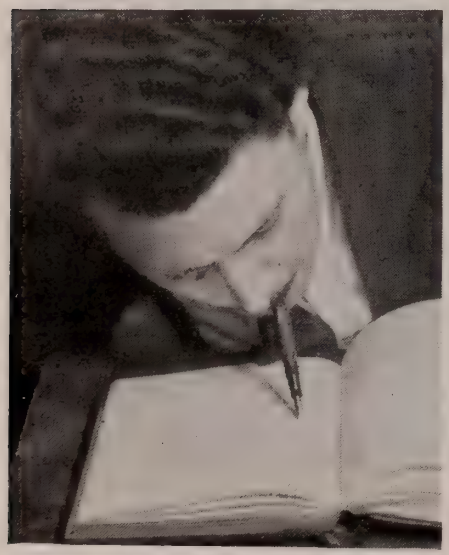
R. C. SHERRIFF COMPLETES "WITHIN THIS PRESENT"

R. C. SHERRIFF sailed this week from Quebec on the steamer Empress of Britain with a new commission from Carl Laemmle, Jr. and because he wants to see the premiere of his play, "St. Helena" and because he has to return to Oxford University to complete his course. While at Universal City he completed the script of "Within This Present," the popular novel by Margaret Ayer Barnes, and laid the ground-work with James Whale for a new story for "The Return of Frankenstein." It has been decided to call this production "The Return of Frankenstein" because technically the title, "The Bride of Frankenstein," is a misnomer. Most people think of Frankenstein as the name of the monster, whereas Frankenstein is the name of the doctor who created the monster. In this new production, the monster is to have a bride and that bride has tentatively been selected in the beautiful person of Phyllis Brooks. This is the new name which Carl Laemmle, Jr. has selected for Phyllis Seiler.



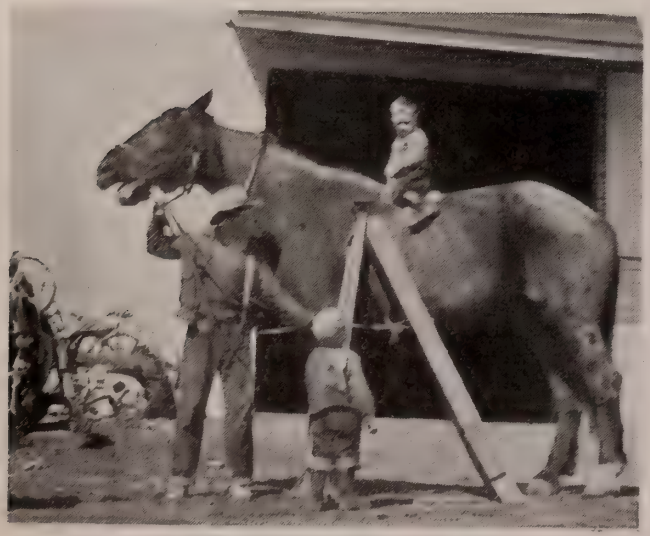
NEGRO TURNS WHITE

STRANGER THAN FICTION



ARMLESS ARTIST

Facts stranger than fiction. Realities you wouldn't believe unless your own eyes saw them—brought to your screen in this amazing and entertaining series of ONE-REELERS . . . One of the most popular series ever conceived!



WORLD'S TALLEST HORSE

IRON-SKULLED MAN

If You Don't Run Serials Read This:—

THERE are exhibitors who for various reasons do not run serials. Every one of these exhibitors should read this article which is reproduced from the Baltimore Sun. It is by Donald Kirkley, cinema editor of this famous conservative and fearless newspaper. Mr. Kirkley has been looking at pictures a long time. Suddenly, it occurred to him to look at pictures from the standpoint of audience reaction, and this is the way he reports his Saturday afternoon visit to the Red Wing Theatre in Baltimore.

While this editor deprecates the necessity of reporting uncomplimentary things to other pictures, he has been forced to leave the column as Mr. Kirkley wrote it in order to bring out the full significance of what it has to say about serials.

Read it. You will be surprised.

By DONALD KIRKLEY

THE proper place for field study of children's reactions to the movies is any neighborhood theatre any Saturday afternoon. The response of these audiences, chiefly juvenile, show unmistakably what scenes fetch the youngsters.

A typical program was offered last Saturday at the Red Wing Theatre, nearly filled in mid-afternoon by enthusiastic boys and girls. The feature was a Western, "Mystery Ranch," and the children, who are the best possible critics of this form of entertainment, didn't think much of it. Tom Tyler aroused lukewarm applause, however, when he knocked down five men, including a sheriff, a deputy, two hold-up men and an innocent bystander, with one blow of his fist. The equestrian exercises of the bandits and cowboys were regarded as fair, but the fighting was not sufficiently vicious or prolonged.

A prevue showing glimpses of Bob Steele in action in a forthcoming Western was given a warmer welcome. Bob, apparently, stands higher in the esteem of the youthful patrons of action pictures. The volume of applause increased appreciably with the showing of a cartoon dealing with the adventures of Buddy and Towser. Many a barefoot boy of Northwest Baltimore sat tense on the edge of his seat, visibly excited as the cartoon began. But the cartoon, too, was not quite up to par, and as it unreeled, the tension relaxed.

Came The Serial

Not until Episode No. 11 of the latest serial, "The Vanishing Shadow," appeared on the screen did the audience swing into action. The flash of the title was the signal for an outburst of vigorous cheering, similar to that which greets the first touchdown in a big football game. Each character was introduced in a brief close-up, and each was saluted with wild enthusiasm—if he was on the side of the hero. The villain was paid the compliment of vigorous boos and hisses—sincere and hearty as those heard in the melodrama theatres of a generation ago.

The serial, then, was beyond question the favorite part of the program. Those who have grown up with the movies will find a strange constancy in the movie audience. Twenty years ago and more, Kathlyn Williams, in "The Trey of Hearts," and that tremendous epic, "The Iron Claw," were meeting with exactly the same reception in the nickelodeons.

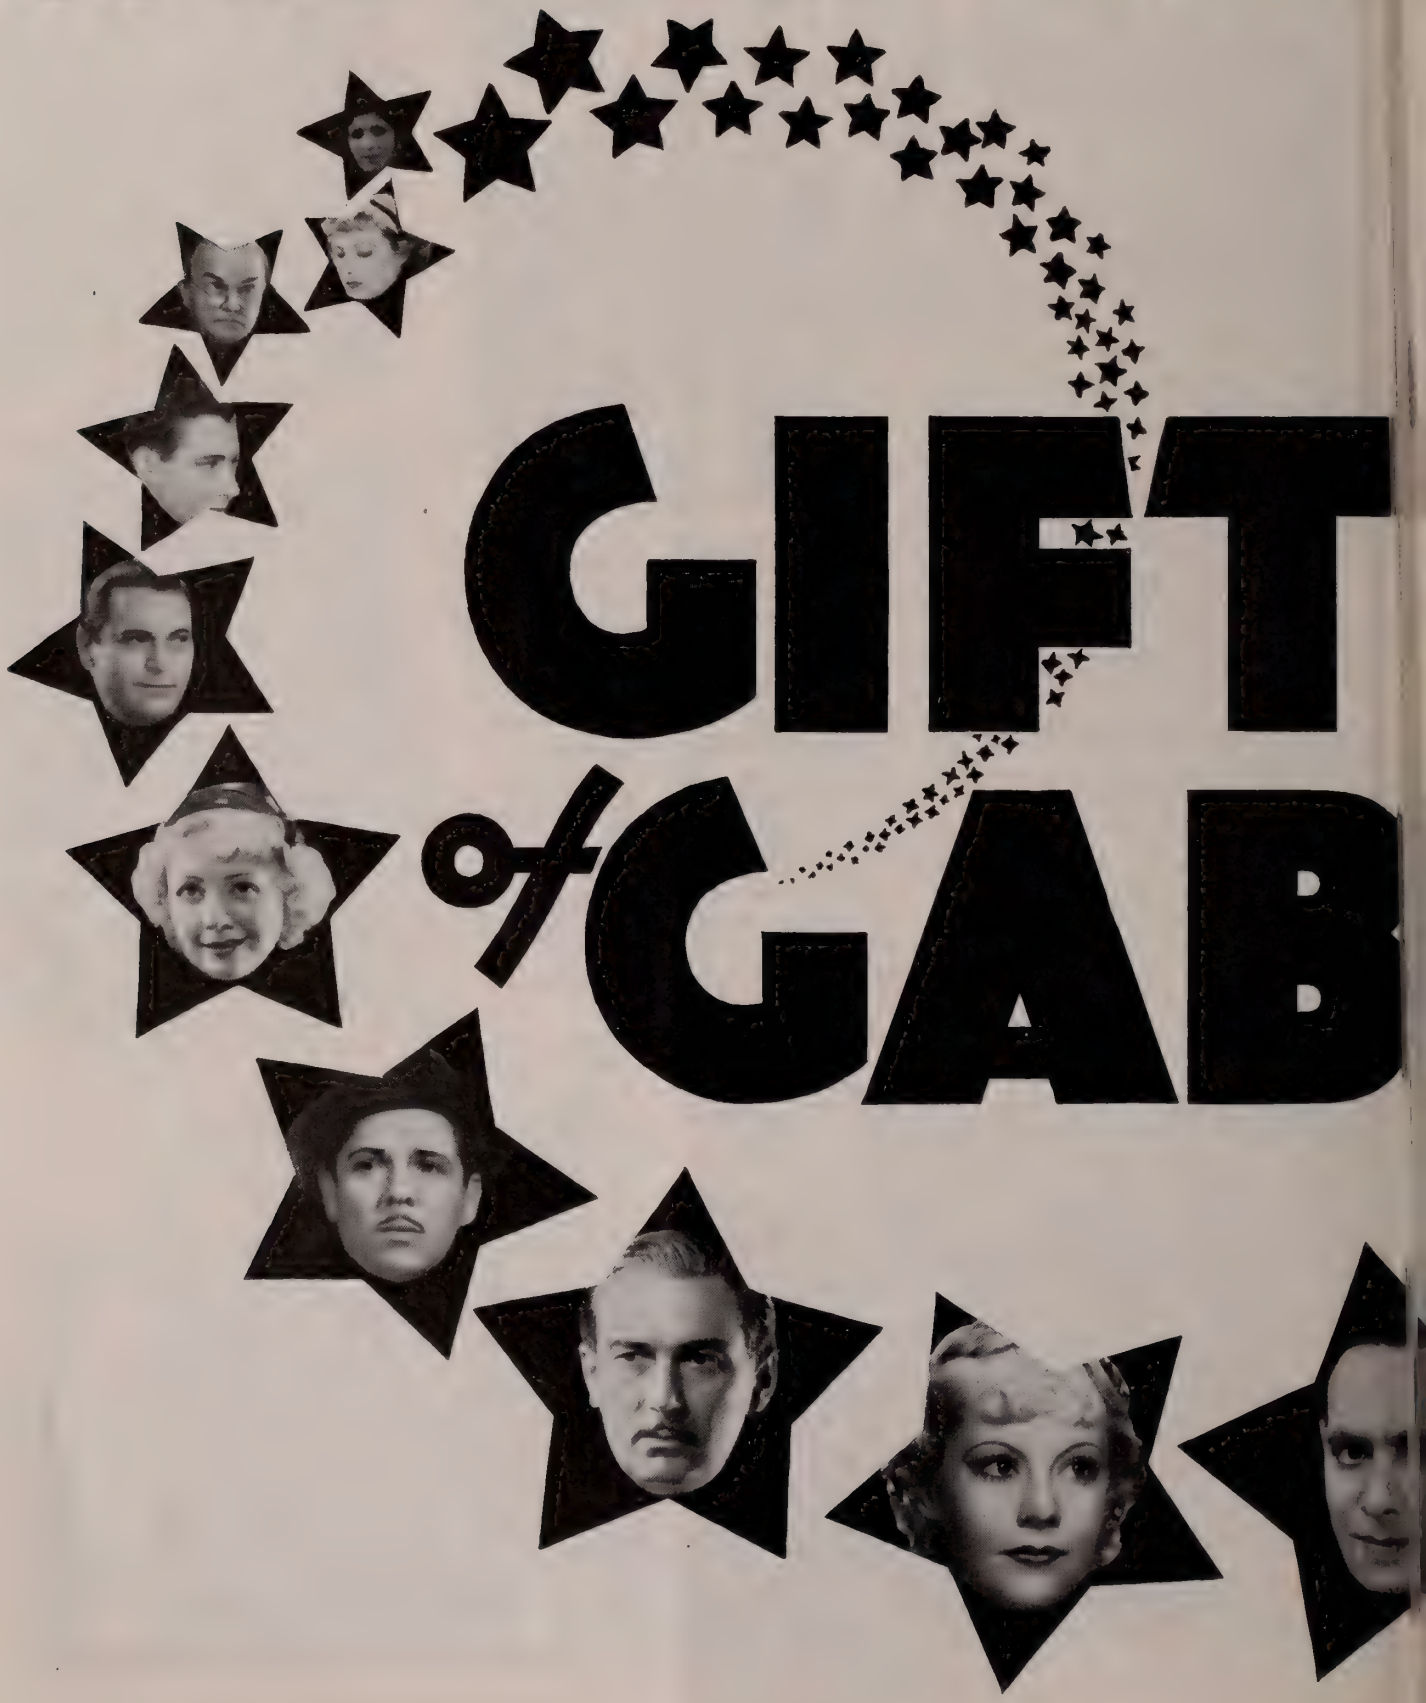
(Continued on Page 23)

OSWALD

The Lucky Rabbitt, is a scream in

THE HAPPY PILGRIMS

READ YOUR ANS



WER IN THE STARS!

30—BIG NAMES—30

Edmund Lowe	Ruth Etting
Gloria Stuart	Phil Baker
Paul Lukas	Ethel Waters
Chester Morris	Douglass Montgomery
Binnie Barnes	Roger Pryor
Karloff	Gene Austin
Graham McNamee	Bela Lugosi
Alice White	June Knight
Victor Moore	Andy Devine
Hugh O'Connell	Henry Armetta
Sterling Holloway	Beal Street Boys
Downey Sisters	Wini Shaw
Douglas Fowley	Candy and Coco
Helen Vinson	Three Stooges
Alexander Woollcott	Gus Arnheim's Orchestra

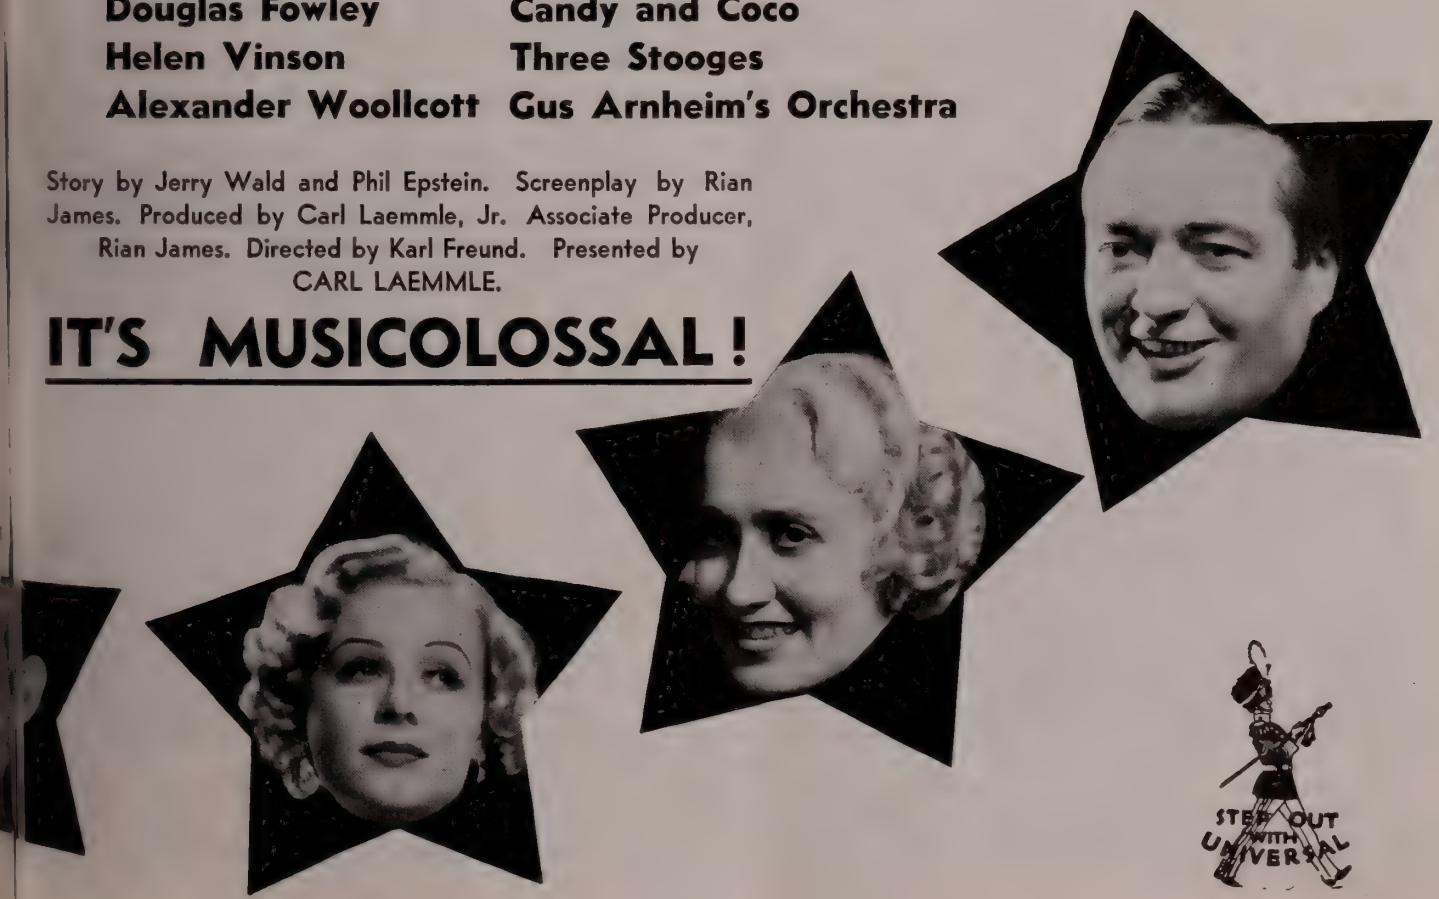
Story by Jerry Wald and Phil Epstein. Screenplay by Rian James. Produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr. Associate Producer, Rian James. Directed by Karl Freund. Presented by CARL LAEMMLE.

IT'S MUSICOLOSSAL!



"Great Expectations" A Marvel of Authenticity

A bit of the England of Charles Dickens' time is recaptured delightfully in this setting for "Great Expectations." Director Stuart Walker is shown at the extreme left, supervising the shooting of this scene which takes place in front of Joe Gargery's cottage, with its quaint thatched roof, old well and climbing ivy.

Universal will release first of great cycle of Dickens' pictures, which will be extremely popular in the theatres this fall. "Great Expectations" nearly completed. Plans for "The Mystery of Edwin Drood" completed.

ALMOST a year of research and preparation was made necessary in the production of "Great Expectations," which is now in its final weeks of shooting at Universal City. Faithful replicas of the scenes and sets in the story were obtained at great cost and much trouble, inasmuch as many valuable pieces of furniture, bric a brac, etc. of almost 100 years ago, can no longer be found.

The scene in the churchyard, at the opening of the story, is actually frightening. This set is a faithful reproduction of an old Kentish churchyard not far from the river actually mentioned in the story.

The kitchen set of Mrs. Joe Gargery, the blacksmith's wife, is another excellent reproduction of the type of kitchen in vogue then among the particular class of people to which she belonged. Again, the marshes where the great fight between the two convicts takes place, were especially built to represent as nearly as possible those soggy, treacherous and weird places which hug the banks of the river Thames in northern Kent.

Mrs. Havisham's dark house, the decayed wedding cake covered with cobwebs, and the unhappy woman herself in her wedding gown, so vividly described in the book, have been reproduced for the film. In the room where the wedding breakfast had remained for years, much care was taken for detail and even beetles, spiders and mice were caught, to enhance the reality.

Pip's chambers in the Temple are an exact reproduction of the top floor of the later famous London apartment building. The lamp on his table is a faithful copy of the one used by Charles Dickens at the reading given by him before intimate friends, among whom were Carlyle Blanchard, Gerrald, Stanfield and others. In fact, on many of the sets, the sperm and lard oil lamps used during the making of this most interesting picture caused some serious conferences.

The silver used on this set is authentic Georgian silver and the China, English spode. The glass-decanters and pony goblets are the famous old Waterford variety. Everyone connected with the arrangement of this set tried hard not to overdo it in any way.

The ivories upon which Pip wrote "I forgive her," were used a great deal in latter Georgian and early Victorian days by ladies.

Principal roles in the cast are taken by Hull, Phillips Holmes, Jane Wyatt, Florence Reed, Alan Hale, George Breakstone, Francis L. Sullivan, Rafaela Otiano and Valerie Hobson.

An exciting moment from "Secret of the Chateau," as William Faversham holds the attention of those concerned in the mysterious happenings at the old French castle. In the picture, left to right, are Osgood Perkins, Clark Williams, George E. Stone, Alphonze Ethier, Alice White, Jack LaRue, Ferdinand Gottschalk, Claire Dodd and Favershom.

"Secret of the Chateau" Ready

TWO murders in an ancient and dismal French chateau while a notorious criminal attempts to steal a rare old book worth many thousands of dollars furnish some ot fhe thrills in Universal's exciting "Secret of the Chateau," which is ready for release. Claire Dodd, Alice White, Jack LaRue, Osgood Perkins and William Faversham play leading roles.

A dozen persons are suspected, including Clark Williams, playing one of the heirs; Claire Dodd, a stealer of books; William Faversham, Jack LaRue, a former Paris apache; Osgood Perkins, the butler; his wife, the cook, and George E. Stone, in the role of a friend of Crowe. The book in question is an original copy of the Gutenberg bible, the first book ever printed.

Naturally, everyone is trying to get possession of the bible, and all will go to any lengths to get it. An eerie atmosphere is created by the ominous tolling of a bell atop the chateau just before each crime is committed.

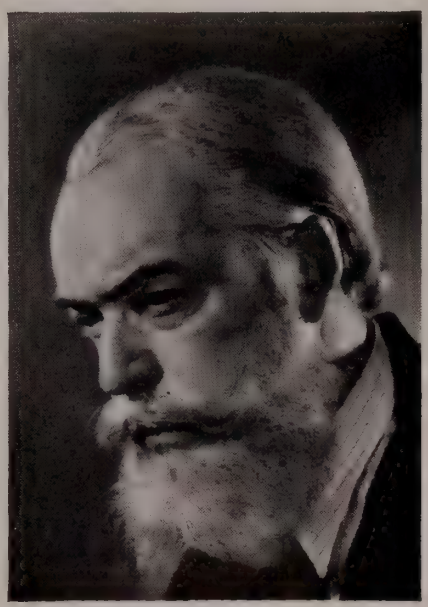
Action occurs both in Paris and at the chateau, which is located in the country not far from Paris. The picture was directed by Richard Thorpe, famous for his mystery and action screenplays, from an original story written by Lawrence G. Blochman and prepared for the screen by Harry Behn, Al DeMond and Llewelyn Hughes.

Among those in the cast, in addition to those above, are Ferdinand Gottschalk, Helen Ware, DeWitt Jennings, Alphonz Ethier and Paul Nicholson.

Another Hair Role

DeWitt Jennings, the famous Kleinholz of "Little Man, What Now?", plays the role of Bordou, a victim of the weird happenings in "Secret of the Chateau." He has grown his hair again.

And Who Is This?



Here is William Faversham, famous stage idol, making his talking picture debut as Monsieur Fos in "Secret of the Chateau." Faversham has recently returned to America from a tour of Australia.

AD MATS THAT SELL DI

AMA AND EXCITEMENT!

See your copy of the press sheet for many other showman's aids!

NEWSREEL No. 281

MANCHU VILLAGES DISAPPEAR

HARBIN, MANCHUKUO—Thousands lose their homes and possessions when the mighty rivers of Manchuria overflow.

RECORD FALLS AT SWIM SHOW

JONES BEACH, N. Y.—Katherine Rawls dashes to a new world's 50-metre mark as the nation's foremost acquatic stars entertain 75,000 spectators.

U. S. SAFEGUARDS GOLD BARS

DENVER, COL.—Armored cars accompanied by a strong military guard bring seventy million dollars' worth of bullion from San Francisco to specially-built vaults which will soon hold $2,000,000,000.

CRATER SURRENDERS VICTIM

MT. HOOD, ORE.—Heroic Forest Rangers recover the body of a student after a nineteen-hour battle against deadly gases two hundred feet below the rim of a mountain.

LIFEBOATS DASH FOR TITLE

NEW YORK CITY—Hardy sailors from the Italian liner Conte di Savoia outstrip an international field to carry off the lifeboat championship of the world.

DAM RECEIVES BIGGEST PIPE

BOULDER CITY, NEV.—Workmen lower into place the world's largest penstock, a giant piece of tubing which weighs 155 tons and permits the passage of 225,000 gallons of water a second.

RACING AIRMEN RISK DEATH STUNTING FOR HUGE CROWDS

CLEVELAND, O.—A record throng gasps as the country's leading aviators fearlessly vie for rich prizes in National Air Races.

'RAINMAKER' DIES IN CRASH

WAKAHACHIE, TEX.—Exploding T. N. T. bombs bring a rainmaking 'plane to earth in flames, causing fatal injuries to James Boze in a successful attempt to spur precipitation artificially.

BINNIE BARNES SAILS

(Continued from Page 5)

face for the screen. Miss Barnes is intensely interested in American pictures and the American method of picture production which she found far different from the more leisurely European technique. In her first week in Hollywood she went through more hectic activity than she would have experienced in a month in a British studio. She was taken in charge by hairdressers, costumers and makeup men. She was given screen tests throughout an entire day. Next day she saw these pictures screened. Then came fittings of gowns specially designed for her. Only then was she considered ready to begin acting.

She found Hollywood itself a place of never failing interest, and vivid contrasts, with lovely scenery and huge billboards all mixed up. She saw villas and homes there so beautiful, as she puts it, one would expect to see them moved off to a movie set. She thinks Hollywood a delightful place to work in and is looking forward to her return there in December.

✚ ✚ ✚

First New Season Deal For Publix-Great States Is With Universal

(Continued from Page 5)

manager of the circuit, and Henry M. Herbel, Universal exchange manager in Chicago. The deal involves Universal features, newsreels, short subjects and serials.

It is of interest to note that the deal which Mr. Grainger just signed is the first deal for this season into which Publix Great States Circuit has entered. The cities and the theatres comprising this circuit are as follows:—Paramount and Tivoli Theatres, Aurora; Castle and Irvin Theatres, Bloomington; Lyric Theatre, Blue Island; Lincoln-Dixie Theatre, Chicago Heights; Fischer and Palace Theatres, Danville; Bijou, Empress and Lincoln Square Theatres, Decatur, Illinois; Crocker and Rialto Theatres, Elgin; Harvey Theatre, Harvey; Princess and Rialto Theatres, Joliet; Luna and Paramount Theatres, Kankakee; Peerless Theatre, Kewanee; LaGrange Theatre, LaGrange; LaSalle and Majestic Theatres, LaSalle; Plumb Theatre, Streator; Academy and Genesee Theatres, Waukegan; Coronado, Orpheum and Palace Theatres, Rockford; Apollo, Madison, Palace, and Rialto Theatres, Peoria; and Colfax, Palace and State Theatres, South Bend, Indiana.

Harriet Hoctor Chosen For "The Great Ziegfeld"

HARRIET HOCTOR, premiere danseuse, and one of Florenz Ziegfeld's greatest attractions, is the latest player added by William Anthony McGuire to the cast of "The Great Ziegfeld." The Casting for this production started at Universal City three months oga, when William Powell was chosen to star in the role of the late Florenz Ziegfeld. Production, however, was postponed until October, and several players who were available at that time are no longer possibilities for the casting of the famous beauties who tripped through the life of the great American showman.

One of those who is certain to be in the production when it gets under way, however, is Carl Laemmle, Jr.'s latest discovery, Phyllis Brooks. As the artist's model, Phyllis Seiler, she was glorified by Ziegfeld in several productions and will undoubtedly be in "The Great Ziegfeld."

BRINGS GREAT HIT TO COAST THEATRES

HENRY HULL

Henry Hull Starred in "Tobacco Road" in Coast Legit.

AS soon as he completes his first picture, "Great Expectations," Universal is permitting Henry Hull to resume his stage work for a short time until the script for "Robinson Crusoe" can be prepared for him. This stage work will consist in resuming his starring role as Jeeter Lester in "Tobacco Road," which the New York producers will transfer to Hollywood and San Francisco for a special engagement.

If You Don't Run Serials Read This:—

(Continued from Page 15)

Familiar Types

No appreciable changes have been made in serial technique or dramatic material during this time. "The Vanishing Shadow," one of the best serials in recent years, utilizes the latest ideas in pseudo science, but the human element is the same. There is an arch-villain in quest of the eternal "papers," in this case the controlling stock in a valuable newspaper. He is opposed by the hero, a handsome, unconquerable youth, who has survived many sluggings and elaborate murder plots in the last ten episodes. The hero is in love with the same vapid girl, who gets in the way at the wrong time and comes to bat with an occasional rescue.

The villain is assisted by a number of sinister chaps described in the brief synopsis as "henchmen," and the hero has friends who turn up at opportune moments. The "mystery" character in this serial is a half-mad inventor who lives in a "castle" laboratory and turns out many wonders for the delectation of serials fans.

Among these is a metal belt which renders the wearer invisible, hat, shoes and all. Every time the villain thinks up a dastardly scheme to get the papers and the girl, the inventor comes forth with a weapon of science with which to foil him. His latest invention is a robot of formidable size and power. Controlled by radio, the mechanical man strikes terror to the henchmen and is about to crack down on the big shot himself.

Unfortunately, the robot mistakes the hero for the villain, and in the closing scene is observed enfolding that person in his crushing mechanical embrace. The episode ends with the unhappy youth being squeezed to jelly, and yelling for help, and one may be sure that next Saturday the boys and girls of Northwest Baltimore will be on hand to witness the inevitable miracle by which he is to be rescued. Thus is modern science harnessed by the ancient art of the serial.

NEWSREEL No. 280

STRATOSPHERE FLIERS SAFE

SENAULJE, YUGOSLAVIA—Two Belgian scientists bring their craft with its precious instruments to a happy landing after rising ten miles above the earth and crossing five countries in a daring flight.

WINDY CITY'S 'SCHOOLMARMS' GET MILLIONS IN BACK PAY

CHICAGO, ILL.—Eighteen thousand teachers and civil service employees line up joyously for their first pay envelopes in seven months as distribution of $26,300,000 in overdue municipal salaries starts a minor trade boom.

HORSE-CAR BEATS LOCOMOTIVE

CHICAGO, ILL.—Peter Cooper's original Tom Thumb puffs and strains but old Dobbin beats the steam engine hands down, just as his fore-runner did 103 years ago.

AIR TRICKS THRILL CHINESE

SHANGHAI, CHINA—A brilliant exhibition of "hedge-hopping" awes a crowd of 3,000 as Lord Malcolm Douglas-Hamilton demonstrates his knowledge of spectacular stunt-flying for Dr. H. H. Kung, Finance Minister of the National Government.

TREASURY HEAD SAYS PROFIT ON GOLD WIPES OUT DEFICIT

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Secretary Morgenthau confides that the Government will help balance the budget with nearly three billions it made by going off gold standard.

CHINATOWN GREETS WAR HERO

NEW YORK CITY—Thousands acclaim General Tsai Tink-kai as the Chinese settlement turns out in colorful array to honor the soldier-poet for his gallant defense of Shanghai against a superior Japanese force.

COWBOYS 'BUST' WILD MOUNTS

HOLLISTER, CAL.—San Benito County bronco-busters ride 'em hard.

REICH FILLS CRITICAL POST

VIENNA, AUSTRIA—Ex-Chancellor Franz von Papen takes over the German Embassy.

ALL GOD'S CHILLUN GET WET

MONTGOMERY, ALA.—Stirring scenes mark ceremonies surrounding the baptism of dozens of colored converts.

Buck JON

— in the first of his 6 WESTERN FEATURES for Universal!

—and What a Walloper IT IS!

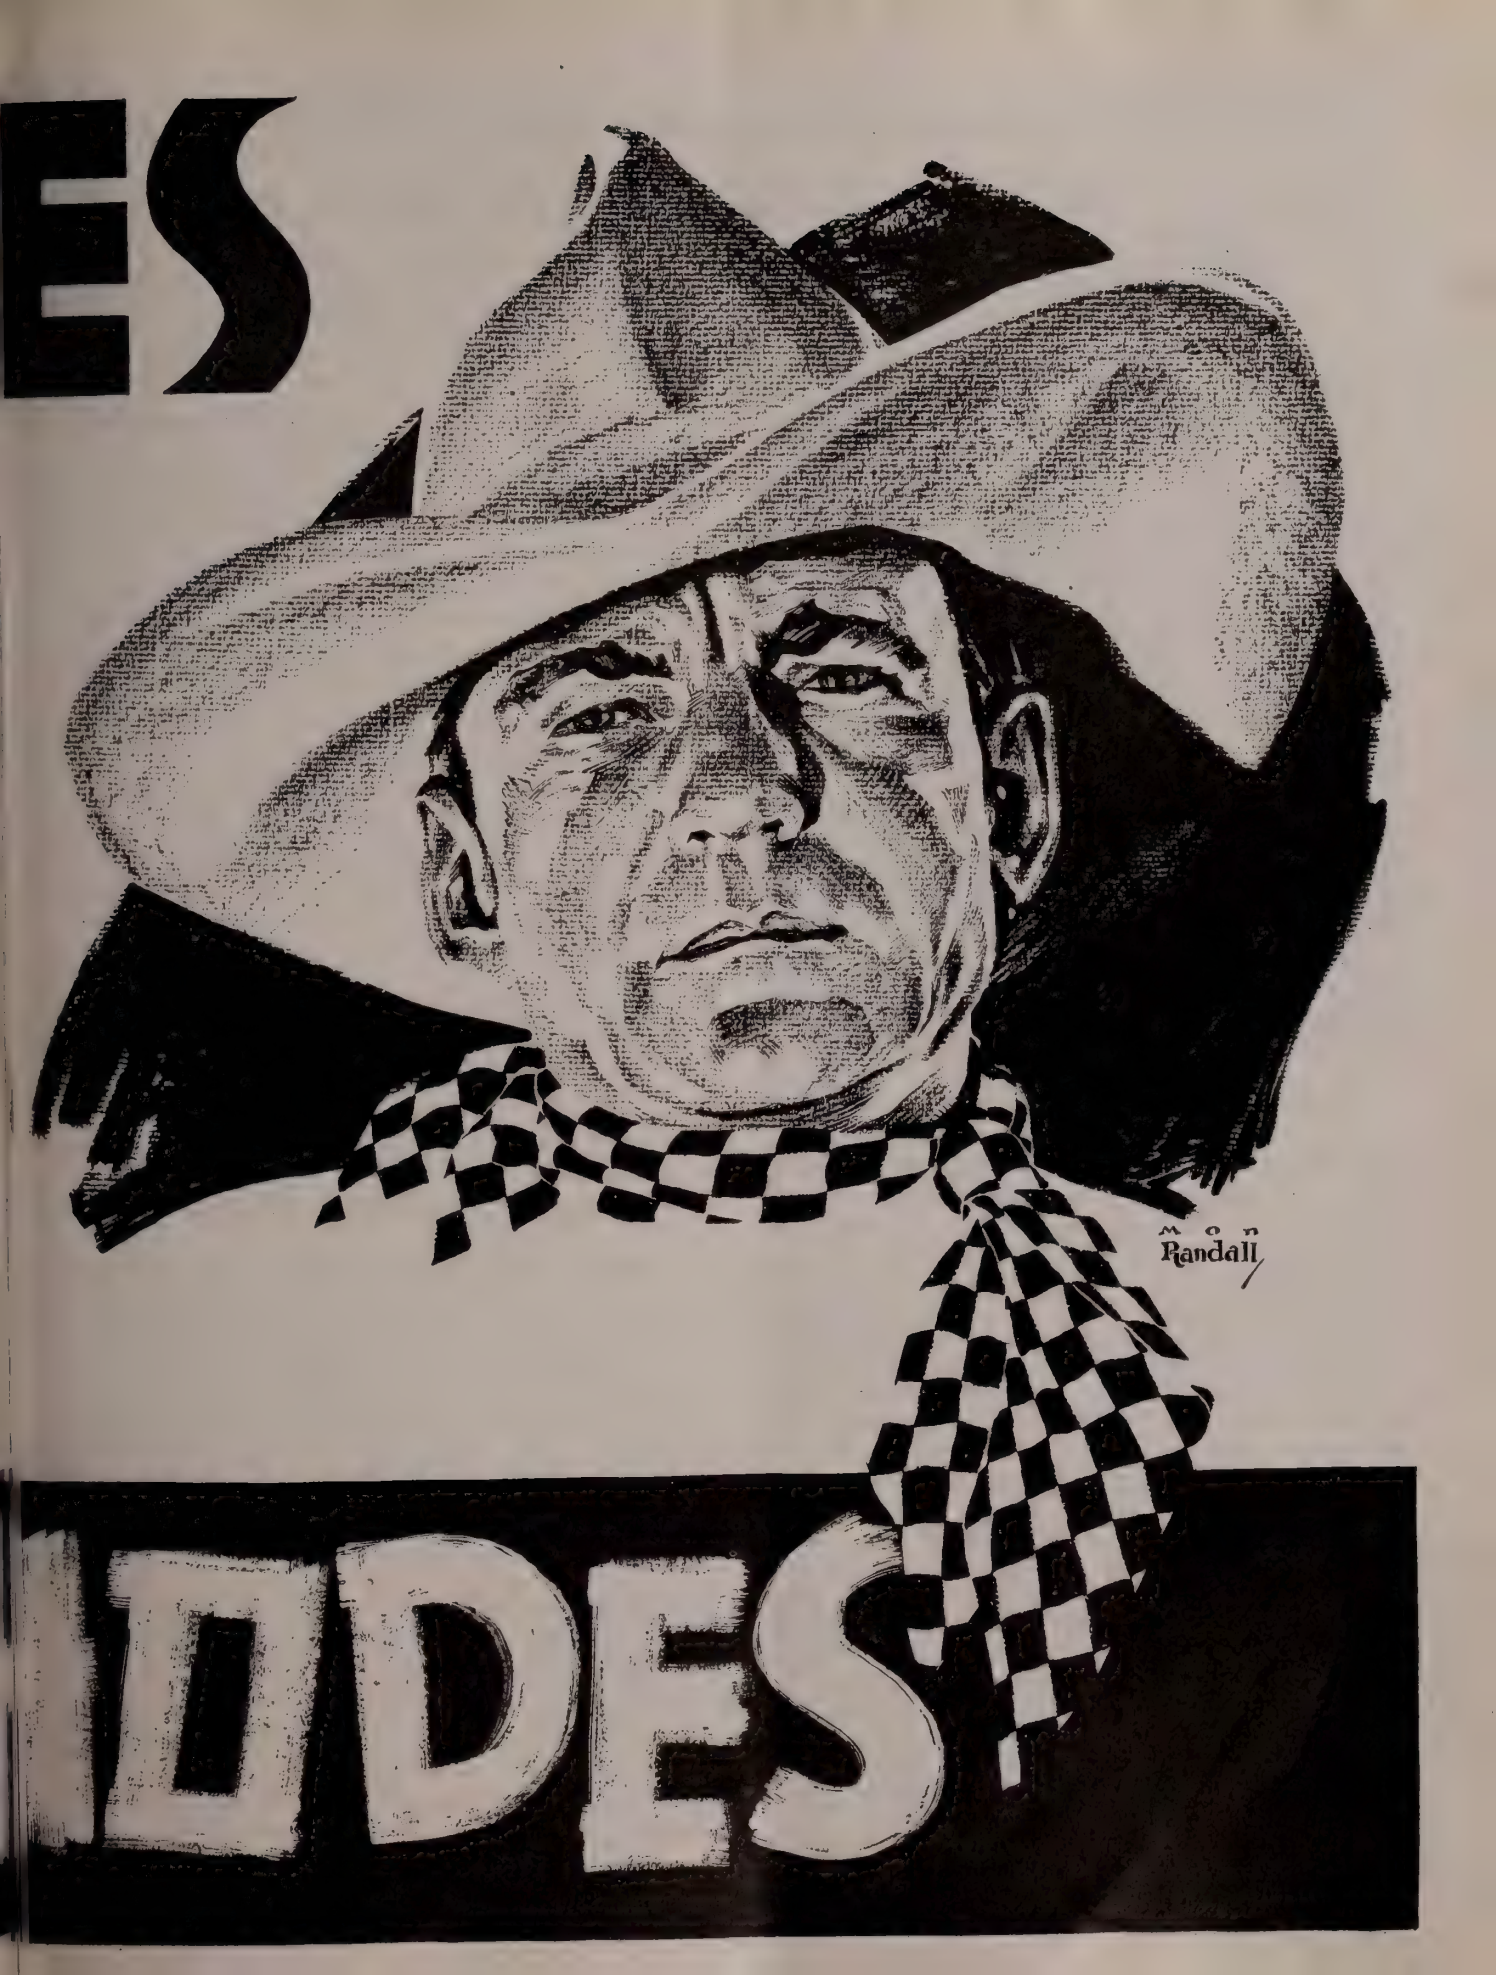
With SHEILA TERRY, Stanley Fields, Walter Miller. Story by The Master of Western Fiction, W. C. TUTTLE (author of "The Red Rider," Buck Jones Serial). Directed by Al Raboch. Produced by Buck Jones Productions.

A UNIVERSAL PICTURE.



ES
Randall
DES

William Olding, Universal Newsreel Cameraman

World's Tallest Cameraman

WILLIAM OLDING, 19-year-old Scotsman, who is 7 feet, 4 inches in height, can well claim that he is the world's tallest cameraman. This is one job where his exceptional height will be a great advantage. Even St. Paul's as well as Olding's camera colleagues, "Taxi" Purnell and Stanley Mumford, are dwarfed by the young giant. All modern cars, clothes, beds, and shoes are too small for him. He obtained his job when the London "Daily Express" revealed that because of his exceptional height, the Scotsman had been rejected after every application for a job.

✚ ✚ ✚

Stranger Than Fiction at Roxy

IN the New York territory "Stranger Than Fiction" had its premiere at the Roxy Theatre on August 31st. This opening of Universal's latest single reel novelty series releases the picture for the entire territory and bookings are piling up with amazing rapidity. The Rivoli Theatre, for instance, in New York, is playing "Stranger Than Fiction" No. 2 this week, and has booked it in for an indefinite run.

"Stranger Than Fiction" is a series devised and edited by Allyn Butterfield, with a number of radio's most colorful announcers acting as narrators. The first "Stranger Than Fiction" was announced by Jimmy Wallington and the second by Alois Havrilla.

CHESTER MORRIS CAST IN TWO NEW UNIVERSALS

THIS week Carl Laemmle, Jr. announced the next two productions for Chester Morris, whose last appearance for Universal is in "Gift of Gab." He is one of the thirty stars in this remarkable production with its unparalleled stage, screen, radio and newspaper talent.

The first of the two Chester Morris productions will be "I've Been Around" by Gerald Beaumont. The story was adapted to the screen by John Meehan, Jr., and will be directed by Kurt Neumann, who just completed the handling of the musical production, "Wake Up and Dream" with Russ Columbo, Roger Pryor and June Knight.

The second production with Chester Morris is one in which he will be co-starred with Karloff and Lugosi. It is "The Raven" by Edgar Allan Poe. Both this picture and "I've Been Around" will be B. F. Zeidman productions. With "The Raven" Carl Laemmle, Jr. has decided to incorporate the story of "The Gold Bug," another famous Edgar Allan Poe mystery tale. The combining of these two famous stories was placed in the hands of Guy Endore, famous author of mystery stories. Among his works are "The Werewolf of Paris," "Casanova—His Known and Unknown Life," "Jeanne d'Arc" and "Sword of God."

✚ ✚ ✚

Francis L. Sullivan Chosen For "Cheating Cheaters"

FRANCIS L. SULLIVAN, Universal's newest contract character man, was yesterday assigned his second role by Carl Laemmle, Jr. He has just finished the role of Jaggers in "Great Expectations," Universal's first Dickens production. Yesterday he was assigned the featured character role in "Cheating Cheaters." This Max Marcin play was put into scenario form by Gladys Unger, who did such a splendid job on "Great Expectations," and will be directed by Richard Thorpe, one of Universal's new contract directors.

"Cheating Cheaters" ran for a whole year in New York and is the parent of a long list of crooked-straight plays, almost all of which have proven extraordinarily successful in movies. It has the ideal twist, so that the audience never knows until the last reel just who the crooks are and who are the upright characters. Of all the entire crop, however, "Cheating Cheaters" was the most outstanding, the most successful and the most suspenseful. Universal is anticipating a great success with this talking version of the famous play.

Previews Rank "Rocky Rhodes High"

UNIVERSAL is satisfied with its first Buck Jones feature offering. It is entitled "Rocky Rhodes," was adapted by Edward Churchill from a W. C. Tuttle story, and was directed by Al Raboch. Both Variety and Hollywood Reporter reviewed the production in the highest terms of praise. Here is the Hollywood review:

"A good western, with enough thrills in it to please the youngsters, and Buck as the hard-riding, noble hero who even ostentatiously orders ginger ale while his buddies take their likker straight.

"Picture opens with stock shots of the Chicago stockyards fire, with Buck and Fields releasing the herds ahead of the flames, and switches to Arizona, with the two returning west to save Buck's family ranch from the landgrabbing Walter Miller. There he meets Sheila Terry, a neighbor, who, together with her aged father, is also about to be dispossessed.

"There follow murder, bank robbery, chases, saloon gunfights and everything else known to westerns, finshing with a knockdown fight between Buck and Miller in a ranch house about to be dynamited.

"Buck is his usual self, but Stanley Fields deserves honors for his comedy gangster turned cowpuncher. Miller is a villainous enough heavy, and Carl Stockdale does a nice bit as a broken-down attorney. Sheila Terry looks a little delicate for a hard-riding western gal but is otherwise okay. Ed Churchill has turned in a fast-moving screen play, and direction and camerawork are satisfactory."

"Rocky Rhodes," Universal's first Buck Jones starring feature has been previewed at the coast and was caught by Variety and Hollywood Reporter reviewers. Both declare "Rocky Rhodes" to be far above average of this type of picture, and in the money class for exhibitors.

Here is Variety's Review

"First of the Buck Jones series of starring westerns for Universal shapes up as good entertainment in its class, with a fast-moving yarn and an outstanding comedy characterization by Stanley Fields. Jones, in addition to the riding and hero stuff necessary in a western, has opportunity in several spots to show he can act and put over lines convincingly when given the opportunity.

"Picture will prove quite satisfactory in those theatres where either westerns or Buck Jones supplies the lure. Al Raboch did a nice job on the directing end, and camera work by Ted McCord was okay.

"Performances turned in are far above the general run seen in westerns. Jones rides fast and gives a fine portrayal. Stanley Fields, as the gangster turned cowboy, draws plenty of laughs with his tenderfoot antics and ultra slang. Carl Stockdale as the inebriated lawyer, is excellent, and Walter Miller makes a good heavy."

✚ ✚ ✚

"Wake Up & Dream" Should Make Money

(Continued from Page 12)

Knight is impressive as the gal, loved by both boys, loving only Columbo. Pryor is at his best with the comedy, his forte on the stage.

"Kurt Neumann's direction is fast. His comedy is all well timed. Settings and photography are excellent."

The Hollywood Reporter also had nice things to say about "Wake Up and Dream." For instance:

"Columbo gets the best break because of his songs, three crooning numbers, all destined for popularity, with 'Too Beautiful' a sure hit.

"The talents of June Knight are already proven. Given half a chance, she will become one of tomorrow's stars for Universal. The gal is undeniably clever."

"Roger Pryor, too, is in the bag. Somehow or other, he manages to give a smooth, authoritative performance, grabbing first honors all the way. Watch Pryor. He is going places."

SCREEN BOOK GIVES "ONE MORE RIVER" FOUR BIG STARS

THE September Screen Book, edited by Captain Roscoe Fawcett, now appearing on the stands, displays to its big circulation a splendid review of "One More River." Its California editor saw the James Whale-John Galsworthy-R. C. Sherriff production at its first preview and immediately wired a review which caught the September issue. The heading over it is "SMASH HIT!" Subhead, "Diana Wynyard Triumphs in Fine Drama."

The review abounds in expressions like these: "Accurately translated to the screen," "Preserves all the vital drama of Galsworthy's literary masterpiece," "Highly dramatic," "Intense story," "Triumph for Diana Wynyard," "Colin Clive's performance second only to Diana Wynyard's," "Fine drama."

Noah Beery, Jr., Maurice Murphy and Patricia Farr in the first still made for Universal's forthcoming serial, "Tailspin Tommy."

"TAILSPIN TOMMY" Starts

"TAILSPIN TOMMY" is well under way at Universal City. This serial adaptation of the well known cartoon strip by Hal Forrest features Maurice Murphy, Patricia Farr and Noah Beery, Jr. in an exciting airplane serial which is guaranteed to have plenty of thrills. It is being directed by Louis Friedlander, who produced "The Vanishing Shadow" and the Buck Jones 1934 serial, "The Red Rider."

Young Tommy Tompkins, the hero, is played by Maurice Murphy, who is one of the boys in "There's Always Tomorrow." Hal Forrest, world war aviator, former scout master and newspaper man, says that he is patterned after the average American boy doing what he would like to do if the chance were offered to him. Thousands of boys would like to fly. Tommy Tompkins wanted to fly and this serial is the embodiment of the ambitions of millions of American boys.

Louis Friedlander made a trip across the country to find the ideal Tommy Tompkins, the hero of "Tailspin Tommy." He found plenty of student aviators, but none who looked the part or who gave any assurance that they could act. He was amazed to find on his return that Maurice Murphy, who is a splendid actor, was a student aviator as well, and so the search for "Tailspin Tommy" ended, right where it began, at Universal City.

With its second serial, "Tailspin Tommy," well under way, Universal is developing its third and its fourth. Already Ancil Friedberger and Horace McCoy have been assigned to the story of "The Call of the Savage." The first serial was Buck Jones in "The Red Rider."

✚ ✚ ✚

VICTOR MOORE IS "TERRIFIC"

(Continued from Page 8)

Before he became America's leading stage comic Moore played about everything in the theatre. He started as an extra in tin armor in "Babes in the Wood." This paid him $3.50 a week. He acted in stock all over the United States, playing villain roles which included the Roman Emperor Nero in "Quo Vadis." Among his impersonations during that period was a schoolgirl in the play "School" and the Giant's wife in "Jack and the Beanstalk."

His First Success

The first role to start him on his way to stardom was in "The Talk of New York" which was written specially for him by George M. Cohen. It was produced by Cohan and Harris That Harris was the same Sam Harris who years later was to give Moore his greatest part of Alexander Throttlebottom in the Pulitizer Prize Play, "Of Thee I Sing."

From "The Talk of New York" on, he was in constant demand. He played featured parts in such musical successes as, "Oh, Kay," "Funny Face," "Hold Everything," "Heads Up" and "Princess Charming."

What He Is Like

Moore is a man of simple tastes. He loves to cruise Long Island Sound in his motor boat "Embobora." He likes to fish and every year goes all the way out to Oregon for the salmon fish season. He has a big, rambling stucco house in Baldwin, Long Island where he has lived for the past 26 years. He likes to play golf but is not a very good hand at it.

As he walks down Hollywood Boulevard after his day's work with his 16 year old daughter, Ora, beside him, no one would take him for a movie actor. He looks much more the small town doctor or lawyer with his high stiff collar, silver rimmed spectacles and pepper and salt business suit. But put him on the set surrounded by a comedy situation, and then as they say in Hollywood, he's terrific.

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
SHOWMANSHIP
SECTION
A DIGEST OF THE BEST
EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

SCHANBERGER PLUGS CINDERELLA CONTEST BIG

J. LAWRENCE SCHANBERGER, manager of Keith's Theatre, Baltimore, Md. went completely Cinderella in his campaign for "Romance in the Rain," plugging the Cinderella Shoe tie-up in newspapers, from the screen, in the lobby and in two big windows of the A. S. Beck Shoe Store.

In their Cinderella Beauty Contest, Schanberger and the store manager followed the plans outlined in the pressbook. The city's female population was first invited to the store to try on the glass slipper to compete for the national prize. The finals were held on the theatre stage, opening day.

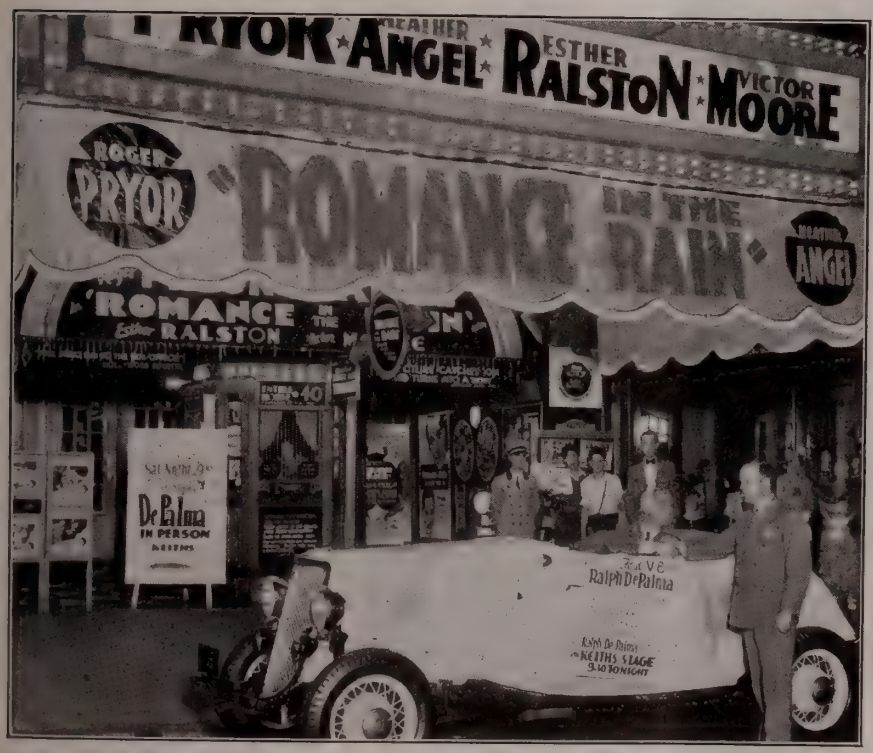
Besides this tie-up, Schanberger cashed in on the national tie-ups arranged with the Ford car and the Heather Angel hand-bag.

The local Ford agency in addition to arranging an attractive display in their show window and planting a special one sheet poster around town, secured Ralph DePalma, noted race driver to make a personal appearance at the theatre. DePalma drove to the theatre in a replica of the Ford car that he used in winning three famous road races, on the back of which was a banner for "Romance in the Rain."

Through the hand-bag tie-up, Schanberger secured a window display in Hutzler Bros. Department Store, a large ad in the newspaper and a display of hand bags in the theatre lobby.

Other excellent features of the campaign were an advance ballyhoo consisting of a bannered boat, which cruised the bay during the Maryland Tercentenary Regatta; wide planting of posters and window cards; distribution of heralds; contact of bands to plug the music; advance lobby displays and an attractive front display. Albert Nathan, Universal exploiteer assisted.

One of the big A. S. Beck store windows devoted to plugging the Cinderella Slipper Contest run by the Keiths Theatre, Baltimore, Md. for the campaign on "Romance in the Rain."



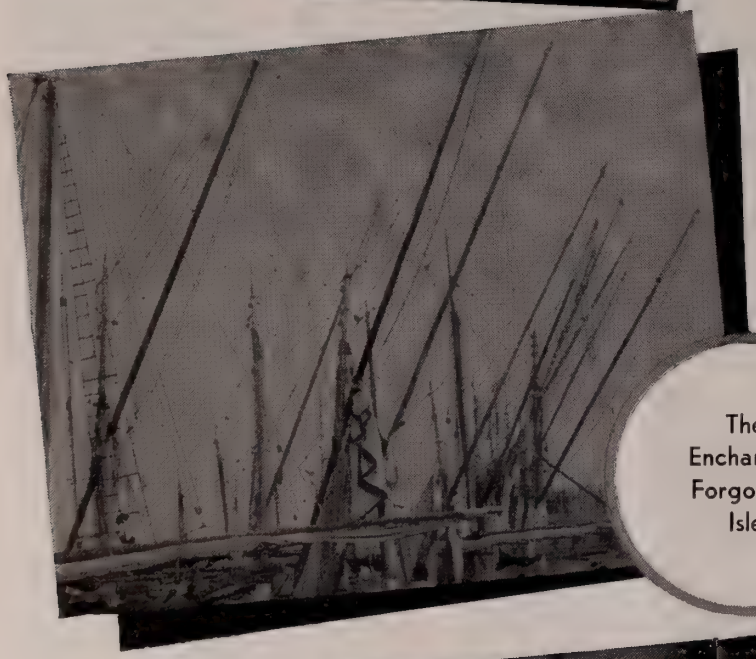
Ralph DePalma as he appeared in front of the Keiths Theatre, Baltimore, Md. in connection with the Ford tie-up arranged by J. Lawrence Schanberger.

GOING PLACES

with

LOWELL THOMAS

Big Game Hunting in Africa



The Enchanted Forgotten Isle

Tells you the what, why, which, how and when of THERE — no matter where THERE may be! . . . No interesting nook or cranny of the world is safe from the Universal cameraman and the all-seeing eye of the famous radio commentator. . . . A real novelty series of ONE-REELERS.

Secrets of Venetian Glass Blowers

BRAZEE AND ROCHE GIVE "RIDER" SMASH CAMPAIGN

SMART EXPLOITATION IS SHOWMEN'S BID FOR 15 SMASH WEEKS' BUSINESS AT HIGHLAND, CHICAGO

TO start "The Red Rider" off to big business at the Highland Theatre, Chicago, Ill., M. D. Brazee, Manager and J. J. Roche, Assistant gave it a really stirring campaign. Their efforts were centered around a big tie-up with a local market, which sponsored a Buck Jones Adventure Club, and had 1,000 kids on parade, wearing the accessory Buck Jones hat and mask. In return for this, the theatre plugged the market by means of display cards in lobby and foyer and in the accounts of the tie-up in their house paper.

Weeks in advance of the opening of the first chapter, the youngsters were notified of the parade through heralds distributed both at the theatre and market, posters in the market and panels in the theatre lobby.

The parade started at the market early in the morning with the paraders, who were brought out by offering them the Buck Jones hat and mask and an assortment of novelties. Led by older boys carrying a large banner, they made a colorful and attention-getting procession. Numerous youngsters joined the procession on the way to the theatre and then packed the theatre for the first performance.

Two pictures showing the big crowd of boys and girls taking part in the parade staged by M. D. Brazee, Manager and J. J. Roche, Assistant, posing outside the Highland Theatre, Chicago, Ill. before going in to see the first chapter of "The Red Rider." Note that they are all wearing the accessory hat and mask.

SHOWMANSHIP AWARDS!

We present four showmen who this week are certificate winners through outstanding exploitation on Universal pictures.

CHARLES LYNCH, Manager of the Allen Theatre, Cleveland, Ohio for his outstanding campaign on "Little Man, What Now?"

DON ALLEN, Manager Des Moines Theatre, Des Moines for his smart "Little Man, What Now?" campaign.

BOB ROSENTHAL and CHARLES SMAKOWITZ for their "Little Man, What Now?" campaign at the Strand, Albany, N. Y.

Congratulations, men! Your certificates signed by Mr. Laemmle are in the mail!

Here is another sample of the big efforts expended by the Daisy Air Rifle Manufacturing Company as part of their tie-up with Buck Jones. This is one of their full page advertisements in nationally circulated boys magazines. Future ads will carry announcements of other Buck Jones' pictures.

FLASH SHOWMANSHIP DISPLAYED IN THESE ADS!

(1.) Four column x 12¾" from Broadway, Portland, Ore. (2.) Single column x 6" from State, Manchester, N. H. (3.) Double column x 7" from Music Box, Seattle, Wash. (4.) Two column x 10½" from Lyric, indianapolis, Ind. (5.) Single column x 3" hold-over from Roxie, Ooakland, Calif. (6.) One column x 6" from Albee, Cincinnati, Ohio. (7.) Double column x 3" from Keith's, Boston, Mass. (8.) Two column x 5" from College, New Haven, Conn. (9.) Double column x 3" from Keith's, Baltimore, Md.

It's a good thing old friend Bacchus didn't come to life until after Prohibition! . . . You'll know why when you see him and the other Gods and Goddesses running wild on the gay white way, in —

NIGHT LIFE of the GODS

THORNE SMITH'S Great Novelty Comedy

A LOWELL SHERMAN Production

From

UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.

ROCKEFELLER CENTER

NEW YORK CITY

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
New York, N. Y.

Paid

Permit No. 949

ROBERT B WENNER
22 CROSS ST
MALDEN MASS

"UNIVERSAL NEWSREEL is a real feature for anybody's program, and so long as you can serve us with good, hot news, I am 100% for UNIVERSAL."

—Odiva N. Dewey, Mgr.,
Wauna Theatre,
White Salmon, Wash.

Printed in U. S. A.

Universal Weekly

VOL. 35 NO. 17 OCTOBER 6, 1934

Phillips Holmes
and Jane Wyatt,
as Pip and Estella, realize their ambition
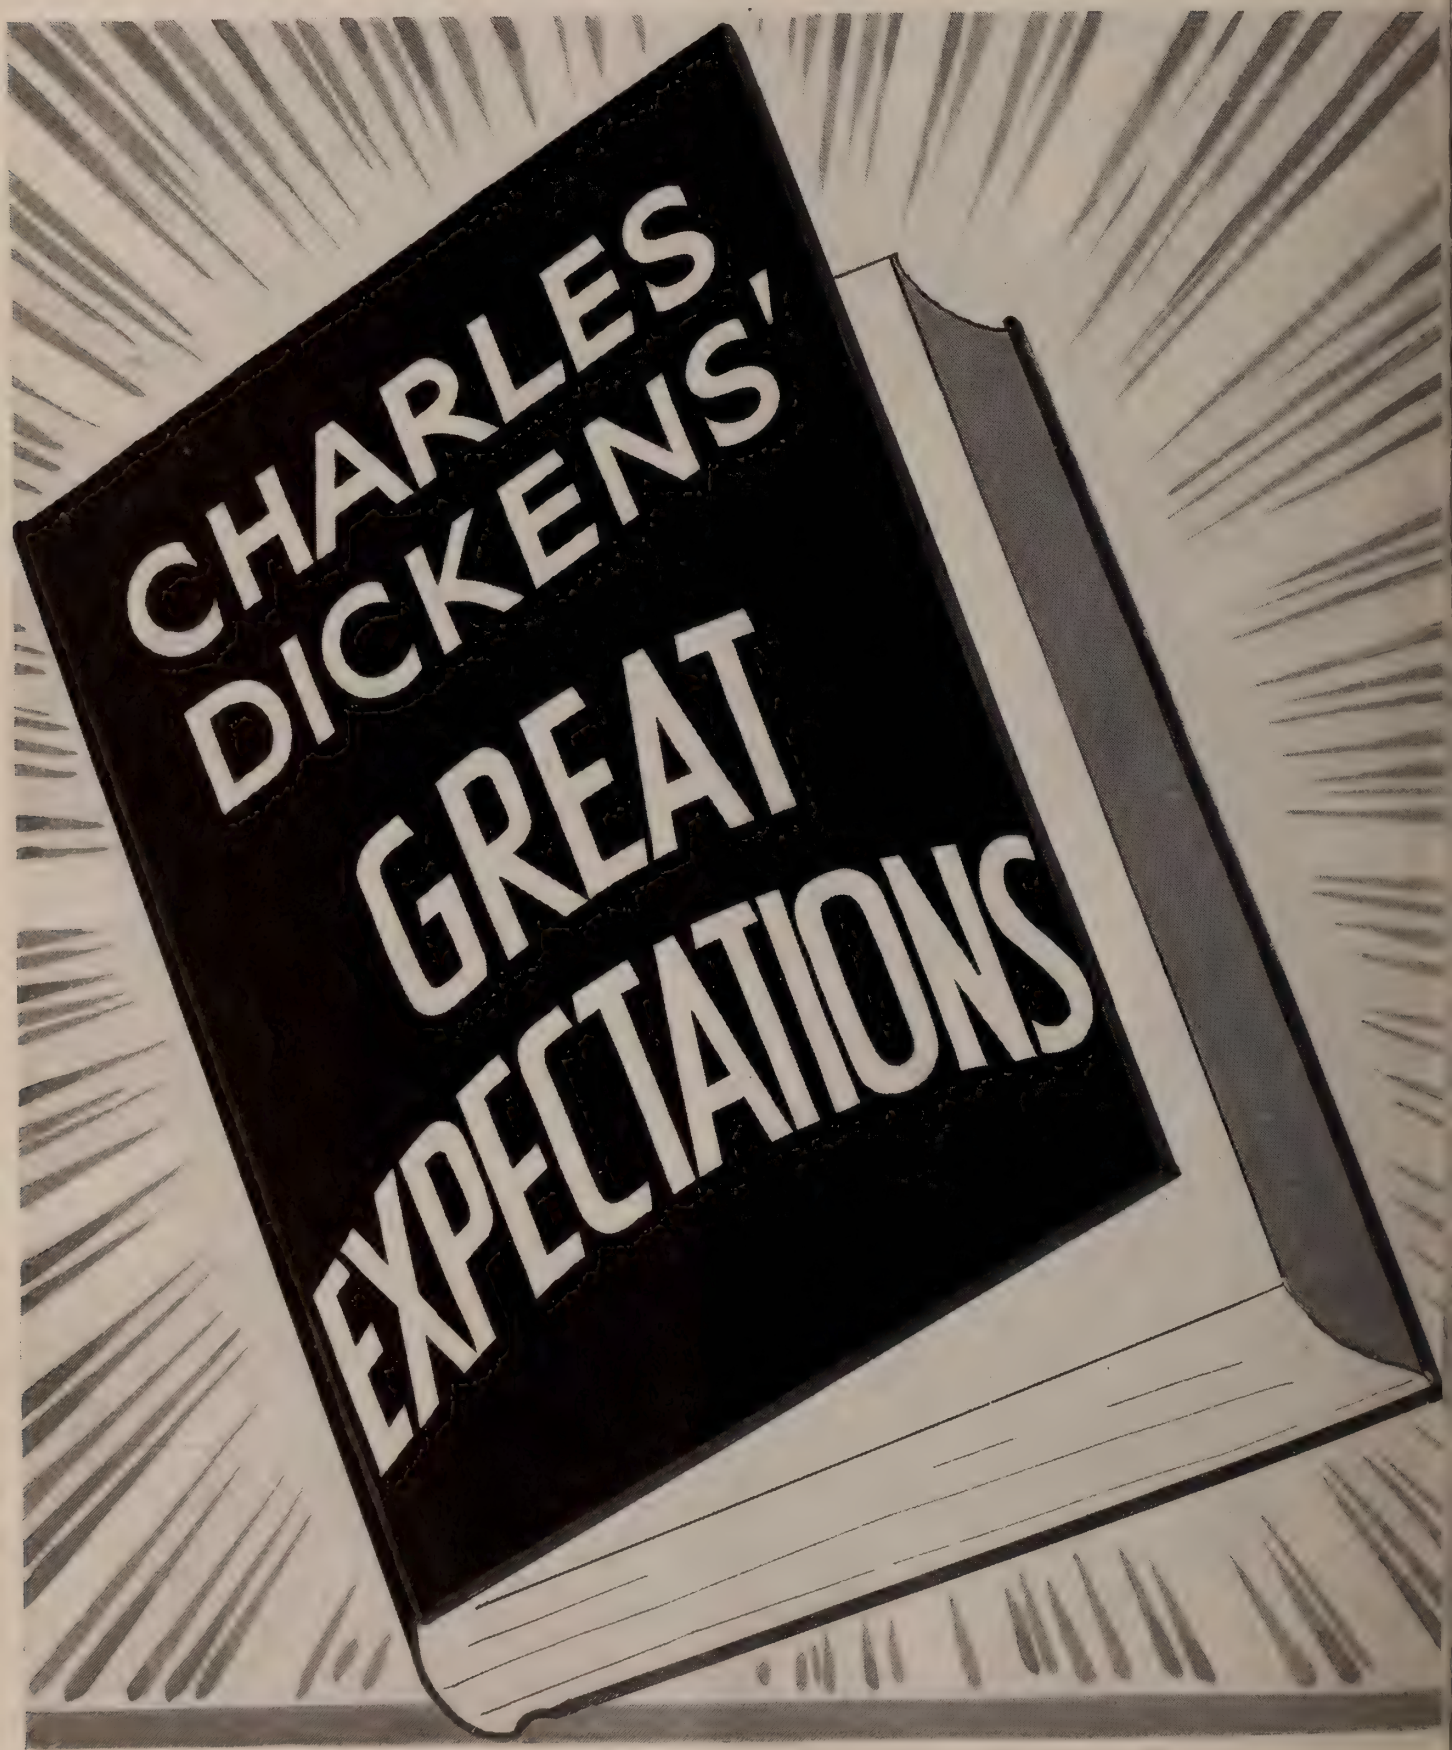
in
GREAT EXPECTATIONS

THE SCREEN SCOO



P OF THE YEAR!!

UNIVERSAL crashes through first with a Dickens picture in a Dickens year! . . . Bringing to life on the screen the well-known characters of one of his most popular stories . . . . . What a showman's opportunity — and what a wonderful picture to back up everything you do and everything you say about it!

•

WITH

HENRY HULL

PHILLIPS HOLMES — JANE WYATT

Florence Reed, Valerie Hobson, Alan Hale, Georgie Breakstone and many, many others. Screenplay by Gladys Unger. Directed by Stuart Walker.

A
STANLEY BERGERMAN
Production—Presented by
CARL LAEMMLE

OCTOBER'S

No. 790 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

Millions upon millions of the readers of the immortal Charles Dickens will agree that:

— the greatest romance he ever wrote,

— the tensest drama he ever wrote,

— and the most thrilling story he ever wrote,

is "Great Expectations."

This is the Charles Dickens masterpiece which Universal will show to the world this very month!

And the world will tingle to its finger-tips, because all the power and glory of the original book has been captured and transferred to the screen.

Directed by Stuart Walker, this Stanley Bergerman production will have at the head of its cast none other than Henry Hull, whose sensational and really dynamic performance in Broadway's great show, "Tobacco Road" made the critics practically punch-drunk and caused them to call him one of the outstanding actors of the times.

SMASH HIT

In the cast, also, you will see Phillips Holmes in the greatest role of his movie career.

Also from the stage, where she succeeded Margaret Sullavan in "Dinner At Eight," comes Jane Wyatt, whose first picture "One More River" gave you but a glimpse of her rare ability.

Florence Reed, Alan Hale and Francis Sullivan are three more in a cast which is not only large in numbers, but remarkably well chosen.

Be prepared for the pleasing shock which comes from seeing true greatness — because pure, true greatness is stamped on Universal's Dickens classic "Great Expectations."

Carl Laemmle

Played by HENRY HULL

MAGWITCH

MAGWITCH—one of the greatest characters ever drawn by Charles Dickens . . . the escaped convict . . . fearsome, desperate, hunted man, who met the boy Pip in the graveyard on Christmas Eve. and forced the boy to bring him food . . . thereby starting a relationship stranger than any other in fiction!

Played by
GEORGIE
REAKSTONE

PIP as a boy

PHILIP PIRIP was his real name, but nobody ever called him anything but Pip . . . Imagine him, an orphan, living with the kindly blacksmith, Joe Gargery and the shrewdish Mrs. Joe Gargery. When he stole the food for Magwitch and brought it to him in the cemetery he started one of the greatest stories ever written!

Played by PHILLIPS
HOLMES

PIP as a man

From a mysterious source had come a "legacy" to make him a gentleman—to make him a young man of "great expectations." His life in London was the opposite of his orphaned life in the country. When love came, it was with more trouble than he had had before . . . Other complications set in, giving story a screaming suspense!

Played by JANE WYATT

ESTELLA

Brought up to be a cold, heartless, ruthless girl by the queer woman whose life had been blighted by a man . . . All her life she had loved Pip, but her training was always to hurt him . . . She is a pivotal figure in this great drama of love and hate—and mysterious money!

The harsh MISS HAVISHAM; the kindly, shrewd Lawyer JAGGERS, Pip's pal, HENRY POCKET; the maid ESTELLA; the little girl ESTELLA; childish and mighty JOE GARGERY; merry UNCLE PIMBLECHOOK; the mysterious SARAH POCKET . . . MOLLY, BUDDY, ORLICK, WOPSLE, COMPEYSON, DRUMMLE . . . all the famous characters are here, come to life on the screen!

The Real Dickens Flavor In "Great Expectations"

"GREAT EXPECTATIONS" comes to the screen with the real Dickens flavor untouched, right out of the pages of one of the most human, absorbing and dramatic novels conceived by this greatest of English novelists, an ever-living classic of literature for all time. The story of 'Great Expectations" will never grow old. It is just as fascinating and thrilling today as it was when Dickens wrote it, almost a hundred years ago, in his beloved house at Gadshill. The story is full of descriptions of the countryside surrounding his home, of the Kentish lanes he loved so well; but it is also vivid with scenes of the London of his day, for Dickens was a great cosmopolitan figure and could write of that great city and its people with more understanding than any writer has been able to do.

'Lily and Swan' Comes to Life

One of the most interesting scenes in "Great Expectations," is the Cheapside Inn, 'Lily and the Swan.' The various signs on it, such 'Coffee Room,' 'Coach Office,' etc., were faithfully copied from books such as "Cruikshanks' "Days of Dickens" and actual places in which Charles Dickens himself stayed.

The inn itself is of the hotel variety and is not to be confused with the common English 'pub.' The 'Coffee Room' in such inns was always the rendezvous of the better class, while the lower class took their drinks in the 'tap room,' as it was called. Quite often, the post office was part of the inn, as was also the booking office for coaches in those days.

Jaggers' Home Perfect in Detail

So much attention was paid to getting the proper Dickensian flavor by Universal in the making of this film, that hardly a detail was overlooked. For example 'Jaggers' home, where a great deal of the action in the story takes place, is dignified in the extreme, the furniture suiting perfectly its decidedly massive master. The selection of Chippendale and Hepplewhite furniture, the pieces of old needlework on the walls and chairs, and the fine sporting prints, the dumb waiter table, silver, etc. all go to make up a most interesting and realistic picture.

A cast of unusual merit interpret the well-known characters of "Great Expectations." Henry Hull is starred as Magwitch, with Phillips Holmes, Jane Wyatt, Florence Reed, Alan Hale, Francis L. Sullivan, George Breakstone, Raefaela Ottiano and Valerie Hobson.

Henry Hull in the classic character of Magwitch in "Great Expectations" and George Breakstone, remarkable boy actor, as Young Pip play these parts in a way which will make them live forever.

From the vivid pages of a world-fam screen, come the characters and Color — drama — movement — thrills — this Dickens story the favorite f us book to throbbing life on the enes that have thrilled millions!

mor . . . every element that has made years, is magnified on the screen!

HENRY HULL MAKES TALKIE DEBUT

HENRY HULL AS MAGWICH AND GEORGE BREAKSTON AS YOUNG PIP

THE most noteworthy and outstanding stage star of the past four years to come to the screen is Henry Hull, who makes his talking picture debut in Charles Dickens' "Great Expectations."

Hull has had one of the most colorful careers of any actor. He was born at Louisville, Ky., Oct. 3, 1890, the son of a newspaperman, William Madison Hull. Two other brothers later won fame on the stage. Howard now married to Margaret Anglin, and Shelley, who died several years ago.

Educated at grammar schools in Louisville, then at the DeWitt Clinton and Commerce High schools in New York, College of the City of New York, Cooper Union and Columbia University, Hull is one of the most learned men in the profession. He left college to become mining engineer, assayer, mineralogist and electrical engineer. His first stage job was with Guy Bates Post in "The Nigger" company at the New Theatre, New York in 1911. The following year he joined Margaret Anglin's Greek Repertory company and for the next four years toured with various stock companies. One of his most famous characterizations was that of Henry Parker in "The Man Who Came Back." Other important plays he has been starred or featured in are "The Naked Man," "Lulu Belle," "Ivory Door," "Michael and Mary," "Grand Hotel" and last season he reached the epitome of his long and successful career as the star of "Tobacco Road." He left this show in June of 1934 to come out to Hollywood under a long term starring contract with Universal studio and make his bow to Hollywood films in the Dickens' classic.

Not since the days of the late Lon Chaney has there been such a striking make-up on the screen as that worn by Hull in "Great Expectations." As great as was the late master of make-up in his thousand and one different kinds of facial and body expressions, Hull, hailed as the greatest modern interpretive actor, is supreme in his stark, grim and realistic characterization of a hunted convict.

How Dickens Wrote "Great Expectations"

CHARLES DICKENS wrote "Great Expectations" the year after he moved to Gadshill. He had a tunnel constructed under the highway leading from his house, to a Chalet on the opposite side. It was in the Chalet that he did most of his writing. His salwart figure was a familiar sight, as he tramped through the Kentish lanes he loved so well, with his dog, Gurk, the mastiff, at his heels. In these romantic lanes of Kent, called 'the garden of England,' Dickens thought out the story of "Great Expectations," which was first published in the Household Magazine and ran serially during 1860-61.

Dickens loved London and could write of that great city and its people better than anyone else. But he also liked the country and frequently visited such places as Cobham, Gravesend and Cooling, where the first part of "Great Expectations" is laid.

It is a curious thing that when he was a small boy his father was employed in Chatham Dockyard. Dickens was attracted by a large house on a hill outside of Rochester. His father promised him that if he worked hard he might one day come to live in it. This, little Charles never forgot and it was this same house he later owned.

A distinguished cast is featured in the film, including Henry Hull, recognized as America's leading interpretive actor, Phillips Holmes, Jane Wyatt, Florence Reed, Alan Hale, Georgie Breakston, Francis L. Sullivan, Valerie Hobson, Philip Dakin and many others.

✚ ✚ ✚

Dickens' Characters Come to Life Again in "Great Expectations"

ALL lovers of Dickens will heartily enjoy the thrill of seeing their favorite Dickensian characters come to life in "Great Expectations." Nothing in the whole range of Dickens surpassed this great story of love, intrigue and adventure, either in perfection of technique or in mastery of all the resources of the novelist's art. Swinburne once said of it: 'to have created Abel Magwitch alone is to be a God.'

Henry Hull, who portrays the role of the convict, Magwitch, gives one of the most startling characterizations ever seen on the screen. The character, Pumblechook, enacted by Forrester Harvey, is actually better and droller and truer to imagination on the screen than in the book. Joe Gargery, the village blacksmith (Alan Hale) is quite the most lovable character, with his simple and delightful philosophy. Of all Dickens characters Joe is one of the most attractive.

●

The panel of pictures at the right depicts high-lights from the intensely dramatic "Great Expectations." Henry Hull, in chains, as Magwitch, is depicted in the top photograph; while Jane Wyatt as Estella and Phillips Holmes as Pip supply the romantic interest, in the center portrait; and in the bottom photograph Henry Hull as the convict is being driven to unbelievably torturing toil by the whip of the overseer of the chain gang.

"Great Expectations" Like A Painting

The still above is reminiscent of a beautifully conceived Christmas greeting card. One can almost hear the sound of Christmas carols being sung nearby and the chiming of church bells in the distance, as one looks at this photographic painting. Jane Wyatt is the girl greeted by Phillips Holmes. Very much like an oil painting by one of the old masters is this lower dramatic scene from "Great Expectations," with the stark, bare trees, the relentless expressions of the soldiers, at watch.

NEXT WEEK

THE importance of the Fannie Hurst novel, "Imitation of Life," the release of a Claudette Colbert-Warren William picture, the expectancy which always awaits a John Stahl production, have determined the editors of Universal Weekly to devote the entire issue of October 13th to this production. The issue will be in the hands of exhibitors far enough in advance of its release date to permit everyone to realize the importance and the box-office nature of

"Imitation of Life"

Mr. Laemmle Likes "Great Expectations"

UNIVERSAL CITY OCTOBER 4 1934

PREVIEWED GREAT EXPECTATIONS LIKED PICTURE VERY MUCH AND PUBLIC LIKED IT RECOMMEND HANDLING PICTURE BIG WAY FINE STORY BEAUTIFULLY ACTED SWELL CAST RIGHT STRAIGHT THROUGH

CARL LAEMMLE

GRAINGER TO COAST

J. R. GRAINGER, general manager of distribution for Universal, will arrive in California next week. The object of his visit is two-fold. There are a number of contracts pending which require his presence in San Francisco and Los Angeles. The other object is the annual conferences with Carl Laemmle and Carl Laemmle, Jr. on the pictures which will go into production at Universal City immediately after the new year. Carl Laemmle, Jr. will leave for New York immediately after these conferences, in order to sail for Europe on October 15th.

Mr. Grainger will return to New York by way of the Southern exchanges in about six weeks.

In referring to Mr. Grainger's departure, Red Kann, who has just returned to his post as editor of Motion Picture Daily, after his bereavement and his accident, reported as follows:

"With Universal sales to date 100% ahead of any identical period in any other year in its history and the first six 1934-1935 releases in the exchanges, James R. Grainger, general manager, left for the coast yesterday on a clean-up sales trip. He will stop in Chicago, then head straight for San Francisco, take in other important coast cities, and spend two weeks at the studio."

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, New York City
Copyrighted 1934
Universal Pictures Corp.
(All Rights Reserved)
OCTOBER 6, 1934
Vol. 35 No. 17

GOMERSALL RETURNS

EIGHT and a half weeks ago, E. T. Gomersall, Western Sales Manager for Universal, who had just been appointed a Kentucky Colonel, rode a horse in Central Park. He fell off the horse, and at first everybody thought it was a great joke. Gomersall has been in the hospital eight and a half weeks.

Last Wednesday he returned to his office, still in a cast, but very happy at the elaborate and Universal reception which was accorded him in his office.

✚ ✚ ✚

POLLY WALTERS ON WAY

BY the time this Weekly is in your hands, Polly Walters, that remarkable Broadway actress, who played for six months in "She Loves Me Not," will be on the way to Universal City. She is under contract to Universal and Carl Laemmle, Jr. thinks that she is just the type to play "Princess O'Hara," the Collier's-Damon Runyon story.

ENT

ERTAINMENT

– that's all!

•

WITH

RUSS COLUMBO
ROGER PRYOR
JUNE KNIGHT

Catherine Doucet, Henry Armetta, Andy Devine, Wini Shaw. Story by John Meehan, Jr. Directed by Kurt Neumann. A B. F. Zeidman Production. A UNIVERSAL PICTURE.

WAKE UP and DREAM

LATEST PRODUCTION NEWS F

Dramatic scene from "Cheating Cheaters," the Max Marcin melodrama which features a cast headed by Fay Wray, Cesar Romero, Francis Sullivan, Minna Gombell and Hugh O'Connell.

"Cheating Cheaters" Finished

UNIVERSAL has completed the first out and out melodrama on this year's program, "Cheating Cheaters," the famous play by Max Marcin, which started a vogue for double dealing character stories. None of them has ever approached "Cheating Cheaters," however. It is in a class by itself. Last week the production was completed under the directing hand of Richard Thorpe and to the utmost satisfaction of the officials who saw the rushes and regard "Cheating Cheaters" as being in the bag.

"Cheating Cheaters" has a cast which contains a number of surprises and which spells box office. Fay Wray plays the part of Nan Brockton, while Cesar Romero, Carl Laemmle, Jr.'s new Cuban-born leading man, plays Tom Palmer. "Cheating Cheaters" also marks the second American picture of Francis Sullivan, England's greatest character actor. Most of the comedy is in the competent hands of Hugh O'Connell, whose first screen work was in "Gift of Gab" and he works very smoothly opposite Henry Armetta, who is becoming known in Hollywood as the picture stealer. Others in the cast are Minna Gombell, Wallis Clark, Anne Shoemaker and John T. Murray.

✚ ✚ ✚

Carl Laemmle, Jr. To Europe

CARL LAEMMLE, Jr. will leave on October 15 for a two-months trip to Europe, the first he has taken in six years. One of the primary objects of the trip is to discover directors, writers and actors in the various centers of production in Europe. The other is for a certain amount of relaxation which he will be able to take after completing plans for four of Universal's most important releases for next season. Mr. Laemmle will be accompanied by Harry Zehner. The boss of Universal productions will hold a final conference with J. R. Grainger and Carl Laemmle, just prior to his departure.

Three Added to Cast of "The Great Ziegfeld"

THREE players were yesterday added to "The Great Ziegfeld." They are Baby Jane and Shaw and Lee, eccentric buffoons who appeared in many Broadway musical comedies and revues. This comedy team augments a cast which so far includes William Powell, who will portray the late Florenz Ziegfeld himself, Fanny Brice, who will play herself, and Harriet Hoctor, premiere danseuse, who led the ballet in each of the Ziegfeld extravaganzas, and who will play herself in the film which will glorify the Great Glorifier.

Shaw and Lee have appeared in Ed Wynn's "Grab Bag," "Five O'Clock Revue," "Pleasure Bound" and George White's 1933 edition of the Scandals, besides being stars on all the major vaudeville circuits.

Baby Jane will sing for the first time on the screen in "The Great Ziegfeld." This three year old actress is to be starred in her own right following her performance in this production.

Seymour Felix will stage and direct the dances and ballets in "The Great Ziegfeld," it was announced by Producer William Anthony McGuire yesterday. The music is being especially written by Walter Donaldson and Gus Kahn, who have already completed "Blue White Moonlight" for the production. Irving Berlin's hit song, "A Pretty Girl Is Like A Melody" will also be used in "The Great Ziegfeld."

✚ ✚ ✚

Valerie Hobson Progresses Fast

UNLIKE a great many newcomers to Hollywood, Valerie Hobson, Universal's latest British discovery, has dropped into a rapid routine of pictures. The English beauty has just completed a role in "Great Expectations," the role of Biddy, with Henry Hull, Jane Wyatt and Phillips Holmes.

(Continued on Page 22)

OM UNIVERSAL CITY STUDIOS

Cast of Claude Rains' Picture "The Man Who Reclaimed His Head" Adds More Big Names

"THE MAN WHO RECLAIMED HIS HEAD" is not a sequel to "Invisible Man," though it might well be. In the title role of his previous Universal thriller Claude Rains' clothes walked about in many scenes minus any semblance of head, since the man himself was invisible, some such title as this was necessary to bring him back to the plane of visibility.

As a matter of fact, "The Man Who Reclaimed His Head" was adapted from the recent Broadway play by Jean Bart.

Several new players were added to the cast at Universal City on Monday. They are G. P. Huntley, Jr., Lois January, Wallace Ford, Anderson Lawler, Judith Wood and Valerie Hobson, who comes to the picture direct from work in "Life Returns." Claude Rains naturally plays the man who reclaimed his head, and he has every right to, after his experience in 'The Invisible Man." Another splendid reason for his playing the part is that he created it in the Broadway version of this Jean Bart play.

Joan Bennett plays the feminine lead in "The Man Who Reclaimed His Head," while Lionel Atwill, last seen with Universal in "One More River," has the other featured part. Baby Jane also has a prominent place in the cast. Edward Ludwig is directing.

Universal To Star Baby Jane

CARL LAEMMLE, Jr. yesterday announced a new star for the Universal program, Baby Jane, the three-year-old actress who has already made three pictures, is working on her fourth, and will become a star in her fifth production.

The baby, who was known as Juanita Quigley when she first came on the Universal lot last spring to play Claudette Colbert's baby girl in "Imitation of Life," was re-named Baby Jane. Following this role, she played a part with Claude Rains in "The Man Who Reclaimed His Head" and will next support Chester Morris in "I've Been Around." A singing role is scheduled for Jane next, in "The Great Ziegfeld."

The picture in which Baby Jane will star is called "Straight from the Heart." It will be a B. F. Zeidman production and is by Doris Anderson.

FORD TO EDIT NEWSREEL

CHARLES E. FORD has succeeded Allyn Butterfield as editor of the Universal Newsreel. Mr. Butterfield resigned at the end of his contract and has joined another newsreel organization.

Charles Ford has devoted ten years of his life to newsreel photography. He started on the Chicago Daily News organization a newsreel department for local distribution in the Chicago theatres. In this way he came to the attention of Carl Laemmle, who commissioned him to provide the photographic material for Universal newsreel two years ago. It is natural and inevitable that his experience and ability should result in his taking full charge of the newsreel activities and become the editor of this greatest newsreel in the market today.

Binnie Barnes as the entertainer in "One Exciting Adventure." Binnie Barnes is having a vacation in England after her strenuous work in the United States, although she was drafted for the usual ship's concert on the Majestic.

Alan Hale Busy in New Popularity

SINCE he made such a resounding comeback in "Little Man, What Now," Alan Hale has been busier than the proverbial one-armed paper hanger with the hives. While he is at work in support of Margaret Sullavan and Herbert Marshall in the Universal drama, "The Good Fairy," he is also sandwiching in appearances in two RKO pictures, 'The Little Minister" and "The Portrait of Laura Bayles," jumping back and forth between the three pictures like a three ring circus. Hale's principal difficulty is in remembering what clothes to wear.

-always

ROXY THEATRES CORPORATION
133 WEST 50TH STREET
NEW YORK

OFFICE OF
HOWARD S. CULLMAN

September 24, 1934.

Mr. James R. Grainger,
Universal Pictures Corporation,
1270 Sixth Avenue,
New York City.

My dear Mr. Grainger:

I want you to know how very much we appreciated the extraordinary service rendered by the Universal Newsreel in getting the first pictures of the capture of the Lindbergh kidnapper to us so promptly last Thursday night. It really was remarkable evidence of a well-co-ordinated organization.

Our audience was entirely unaware of the event, and when the news was flashed on the screen, the fifty-two hundred people in the house were thrilled by it.

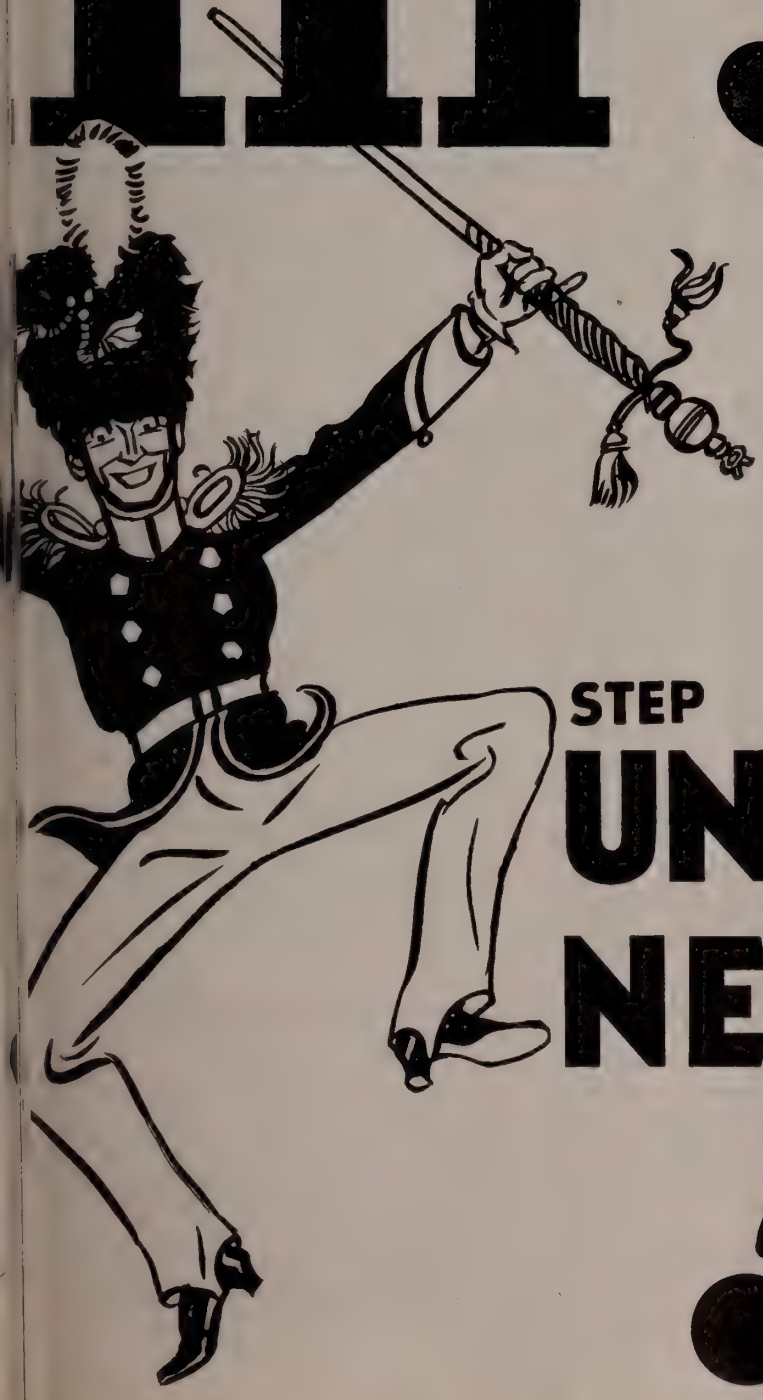
With all good wishes,

Cordially yours,

Howard S. Cullman.

hsc;rb

first!



STEP OUT WITH

UNIVERSAL NEWSREEL

NEWSREEL No. 289

PRESIDENT ASKS CAPITAL TO JOIN LABOR IN TRIAL PEACE

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Chief Executive, in an important newsreel interview, announces his intention of seeking the co-operation of representative of employers and workers and sees the country moving forward to "greater security for the average man."

HEAVYWEIGHT DOWNS SAVOLDI

LOS ANGELES, CAL.—"Man Mountain" Dean drops his 310 pounds on "Jumping Joe" Savoldi for a "smash" finish to an exciting mat contest.

ICKES BEGINS SLUM RAZING

ATLANTA, GA.—The Secretary of the Interior touches off the first blast wrecking unsanitary dwellings in the PWA'S nation-wide drive for low-cost housing.

TWO DIE IN TRIPLE WRECK

CLY, PA.—A team of locomotives plunges down a ten-foot embankment, killing an engineer and brakeman, and critically injuring a third member of the crew.

AIR MODEL AMAZES EXPERTS

SEATTLE, WASH.—An inventor exhibits his wingless, tail-less and rudderless aircraft which is designed to increase safety and comfort and use twenty percent less fuel.

HAUPTMANN WEAPON FOUND AS HIGH BAIL IS SET BY COURT

NEW YORK CITY.—A broken soup-spoon, ground to razor-like sharpness, is discovered in the prisoner's cell as Judge Patterson demands $100,000 bonds for the suspect's release. Detectives demolish the carpenter's garage in search of evidence.

SPILLS MARK STEEPLECHASE

WESTBURY, N. Y.—Skilful play brings the intersectional title back to the Atlantic as the Eastern four conquers the West, 14 to 13.

GUARDS RESCUE SHIP'S MATE

BUZZARD'S BAY, MASS.—Coast Guardsmen brave high seas to bring ashore the stricken First Mate of the S. S. New Bedford when the vessel rams a submerged rock ledge and is beached.

YOUNG GIRL WINS MARATHON

LA JUNTA, COL.—Twelve-year-old Ruth Myers races twenty-six miles in less than four hours, outdistancing veteran women runners.

"WELL, BY GEORGE" BEST MENTONE YET

IN spite of all the splendid Mentone pictures which have been released by Universal during the last year and a half, the producing company has far out-distanced itself in producing "Well, By George" featuring Georgie Price, Ramona, Dave Craft, Mills, Gold and Ray, and the 16 Mentonettes. Georgie Price plays a radio announcer and also sings the song which he made famous, "Over Somebody Else's Shoulder." This is his debut on the screen.

On his program he has Ramona who does not have to be introduced to those who are familiar with Paul Whiteman and his orchestra. She sings "To The Beat of My Heart" accompanying herself delightfully and then a number, "I Still Do" in which Georgie Price joins her. Dave Craft, the craftiest of them all when it comes to dancing up and down stairs leaves the audience impressed with his ability. Mills, Gold and Ray, who, Georgie Price assures us, are the world's best dramatic actors put on a skit guaranteed to give anyone a laugh. The sixteen Mentonettes close the program with a unique dance in military formation.

✚ ✚ ✚

"Wake Up and Dream" Syndicated

IN connection with the exploitation campaign on "Wake Up and Dream," Edward Churchill has written a fifteen thousand word novelization of the John Meehan story featuring Russ Columbo, June Knight and Roger Pryor. This is divided into fifteen chapters and is designed to start on the Sunday a week ahead of the showing of the picture in order to be completed at the end of a week's run of "Wake Up and Dream." Advance campaign with newspaper half tones of all of the characters in the serialization has been prepared and put in mat form. Mats also of the illustrations can be obtained by any exhibitor who wishes to place this novelization in his daily paper.

Communicate either with Joe Weil at the office of Universal Pictures Corp., Rockefeller Center, New York City, or with John Leroy Johnston, Universal City, California, whichever office is nearer to you.

✚ ✚ ✚

Valerie Hobson Progresses Fast

(Continued from Page 18)

The girl whose picture on the back cover of last week's Weekly excited so much comment is now working in "Life Returns" with Onslow Stevens, Lois Wilson, Stanley Fields, Richard Carle, Maidel Turner and George Breakstone. Upon its completion she will join the company making "The Man Who Reclaimed His Head" with Claude Rains, Joan Bennett and Lionel Atwill.

Miss Hobson, who is the niece of Lady Lawrence, and her mother have taken a small apartment in Hollywood and have settled down to accomplish things in the art of acting rather than in the line of entertainment.

"'Million Dollar Ransom' A Captivating Talkie" — Says Morning Telegraph

ANOTHER in the increasing cycle of Damon Runyon stories has found its way to the Rialto Theatre screen. It is "Million Dollar Ransom," and like its predecessors, has the faculty of being most entertaining in a rather unbelievable manner.

Again we find Mr. Runyon's racketeering heroes maneuvering a bit of kidnapping and creating considerable excitement, if you get me. Of course lots of things happen, but everything rights itself in the end, and we find our heroes quite as heroic as the author intended them to be. All of which isn't much by way of synopsis, but it has the merit of persuading that more is to be seen than is told here. Which is quite right.

Edward Arnold, who is one of my favorite screen racketeers, plays the leading underworld gentleman and, as usual, does a neat job of it. Phillips Holmes and Mary Carlisle are the two inevitable lovers, and as such fill the screen with the promise of young romance. Andy Devine, Winnie Shaw, Marjorie Gateson, Robert Glecker, and the others in the cast are quite, quite convincing in their respective roles.

✚ ✚ ✚

NEVER DULL MOMENT IN "GIFT OF GAB"

WEALTH OF NAMES AND PLENTY OF ENTERTAINING MATERIAL PUT THIS MUSICAL OVER WITHOUT TROUBLE.

In addition to having enough star names to bowl over almost any audience, this production has been given a story to string the sequences together, so that between the dramatic suspense and the musical specialties there is never a dull moment. For plot, Edmund Lowe is seen as an over-talkative announcer with a flare for the spectatcular and who fakes a broadcast of an event that doesn't happen, thereby putting himself on the toboggan, but later redeeming himself through another sensational broadcasting coup. The radio background supplies the opening for the long and varied list of entertainers. There's a romance, too, with Gloria Stuart as the heart interest opposite Lowe.

—Film Daily

Newsreels and Good Taste

THE destruction of the Morro Castle with its tremendous loss of life, and happening as it did in New York's front yard, gave newsreels a Roman holiday to lay on the gore, and most of them showed surprisingly bad taste. Each tried to outdo the other ingruesome shots and the public reaction has not been so good. At some of the shots expressions of disgust could be heard thruout the theaters in which they were shown.

In one clip a sound man is stationed at the gangplank of a rescue boat and tries to force a hysterical girl to tell of her experiences. He persists to the point where the girl breaks down and cries, pleading to be left alone.

In another, stretcher bearers are carrying an injured woman down the gangplank and the commentator says: "Listen closely, folks, and you will hear the agonizing cries of this victim."

To our mind Universal had the most complete coverage of the event and treated it with all the dignity and reverence it deserved.

Reprinted from The Billboard

NEWSREEL No. 288

LINDBERGH ARRIVES TO AID POLICE IN KIDNAP MYSTERY

NEW YORK CITY.—Startling events in rapid order bring the Hauptmann case nearer to its climax.—The Flying Colonel dashes across the continent to testify. — Heavy police guards protect the aviator from thousands of curious persons. — Damaging evidence continues to grow. — The police unearth additional hundreds of dollars in ransom notes and a loaded automatic pistol in the suspect's garage. — The prisoner's wife tenderly care for her child. —The Grand Jury receives the damaging facts. — And Bruno Richard Hauptmann is indicted.

EAST REGAINS POLO CROWN

WESTBURY, N. Y.—Little Dan takes the Meadow Brook cup from a fine field crossing the finish line the winner.

PRESIDENT'S MOTHER FETED

HYDE PARK, N. Y.—Celebrating her eightieth birthday, Mrs. Sarah Delano Roosevelt, in an interesting newsreel interview, expresses her approval of her son's plan for the renovation of the nation's homes.

U. S. BOAT TRIUMPHS AGAIN TO RETAIN FAMOUS 'OLD MUG'

NEWPORT, R. I.—Science and skill defeat the English challenger as Rainbow crosses the finish line ahead of Endeavour for the fourth time.

MILL HANDS RETURN TO WORK

GREENVILLE, S. C.—Looms whirr again as thousands of strikers resume their jobs.

TAIL-LESS PLANE TESTED

COATESVILLE, PA. — A queer craft, invented by Dr. George A. Spratt, dispenses with its tail but keeps its balance in the air with the aid of an unusual movable wing.

SCRIP BONFIRE HAILS BOOM

MADISON, WIS.—$10,000,000 in depression "money" go up in smoke at the municipal heating-plant.

PAINT CHARMS CHILD'S ILLS

OSAKA, JAPAN. — Bright vermilion is applied to the tops of children's heads to ward off disease.

TAILSPIN TOMMY—Eagle's Eye View!
By HAL FORRE
HAVE YOU EVER TRIED TO MAKE AN ALTITUDE RECORD AND NOTED HOW THE NEEDLE OF YOUR TACHOMETER DROPS BACK--AND BACK--UNTIL GOLLY--! THAT'S THEN--I CAN JUST SEE
HOPE THEY LAND BEFORE IT GETS DARK!
FOR TH' LOVE OF LOU! LOOKS LIKE THEY'RE GOING OVER INTO MEXICO--HAVE T GET DOWN CLOSE SETTING TO DARK.
SKEE FLYING HIGH ALTIT HAS FINALL TRAILED TH KIDNAPPERS OF SHIRLEY BARON TO THEIR SECRET RENDEZVOUS THIRTY MILES SOUTH OF VILLA ACUNA, MEXIC ACROSS BORD DEL R HE IS HIGH A ABDUC OUT--
NOAH BEERY Jr. AS SKEETER
MAURICE MURPHY AS TOMMY Copyright, 1934, by The Bell Sy
AL FORRES
TAILS
By HAL FORRE
BOY! THAT WAS EASY PICKINGS!
GOLLY! I JUST THOUGHT OF A SWELL IDEA-- I'LL HAVE TO TOMMY!
PATRICIA FARR AS BETTY LOU
Copyright 1934 by The Bell Syndi

The Cartoon Heroes Of Millions Now On The Screen!

The favorites of thousands upon thousands who follow their every exploit in the adventure strip now running in more than 200 newspapers, have come to life! . . . Now you can advertise them in Universal's smash serial — the chapter-play that blazes a new thrill-trail across the skyways of the country. Get behind this one with everything you've got. IT WILL PAY YOU WELL!

•

With William Desmond, Walter Miller, Edmund Cobb.
Directed by Louis Friedlander in

TWELVE TERRIFIC EPISODES

Get Ready For A

It's bigger than "Back Street"— bigger than "Only Yesterday" —bigger than any other picture you've had for many, many weeks or are likely to get in many, many more!...The perfect BIG-CROWD attraction from star, story, author, director and every other possible standpoint . . . GO TO IT!

Starring

CLAUDETTE COLBERT

with WARREN

WILLIAM

ROCHELLE HUDSON

Ned Sparks Henry Armetta

Presented by CARL LAEMMLE

A

JOHN M. STAHL

Production For

UNIVERSAL

Screen Sensation!

SCOOP

THE TOWN WITH THIS UP-TO-THE MINUTE SHOWMANSHIP PICTURE

George Breakstone as Young Pip

Jane Wyatt as Estella

Anne Howard as Young Estella

Florence Reed as Miss Havisham

A CINCH TO CAMPAIGN!

I'm back in the exploitation saddle again, boys! What a glorious feeling it is to be riding along on a picture like "GREAT EXPECTATIONS!" Here's one you can sink your teeth into and find it chock full of rich, juicy, exploitation meat! It's a cinch to campaign!

"GREAT EXPECTATIONS" is the first big Dickens picture to hit the screen this season. It comes at the peak of a new-found Dickens popularity. You can SHOW it while other studios are still racing against time to produce other Dickens pictures for you. You can scoop the town by booking it fast and packing real, up-to-the-minute showmanship behind it. The millions of Dickens fans of all ages are eagerly awaiting word from you.

Here is a picture every Better Films organization will boost to the skies. It is a Dickens classic every literary organization, school, library, boy's and girl's club should boost heavily.

Your newspapers should give you better than ordinary publicity on it because it exemplifies the desire of the motion picture producers to bring to the screen the classics of literature, and give to the public fine, clean, wholesome entertainment!

The pages following give you but a few of the highlights of the "Great Expectations" exploitation possibilities. The big press book will carry complete campaign details. Be sure to get your copy. JOE WEIL

Henry Hull as Magwitch

Phillips Holmes as Phillip

Alan Hale as Joe Gargery

Francis L. Sullivan as Jaggers

CHARLES DICKENS "GREAT EXPECTATIONS"

FRONT! SELL CLASSIC WITH CUT-OUTS!

GET over the bigness of this picture by building up a front from the impressive posters available on the production.

For a sign over the entrance doors utilize a giant open book with silhouetted cut-out letters of the title and author. Letter the catch line, "Immortal Characters Live Again on the Screen" across the pages as shown. In the center of the volume, spot a cut-out of the prison ship, which you can get from the poster, and cut-out from the litho paper heads and mob scenes to spot over the box-office. Inside the lobby, have signposts along the walls, carrying the names of the stars and characters they portray, alternated by life-sized figures of these characters.

You can utilize book jackets for empty spots in your lobby and by all means take advantage of the special showmanship accessories available on this picture.

CHARLES DICKENS IMMORTAL CLASSIC!
"GREAT EXPECTATIONS" WITH HENRY HULL
PHILLIPS HOLMES · JANE WYATT · ALAN HALE

PUT OVER A REAL CO-OP AD PAGE

HERE'S one picture that lends itself perfectly and naturally to a cooperative advertising page, inasmuch as you can build wonderfully around the catch line, "Everyone has Great Expectations—we are ready for yours!"

With this tie-up line for your co-op page, present the idea to the local newspaper's advertising director. He can contact stores that handle luxuries and higher priced items such as real estate agencies for homes, motor boat dealers, country resorts, automobile dealers, interior decorators, polo and sports shops, custom clothiers, night clubs, modernistic furniture dealers, hotels, country clubs, etc.

You can enlist the finest, highest grade of merchandise on a cooperative page of this kind, which will be in keeping with the class and quality of the picture "GREAT EXPECTATIONS."

ORPHANS

INASMUCH as the leading character of "GREAT EXPECTATIONS" is Pip, an orphan boy, you should invite the boys and girls of local orphanages to be your guests during an early showing. It would be a fine gesture and would undoubtedly reap its share of publicity and good will in your locality.

AUTO BALLYHOO

BECAUSE of the tremendous general interest in Charles Dickens, and the fact that the older folks are as familiar with the classic as the young people of today, you can put on the streets a ballyhoo which emphasizes this point.

Have a small car, such as a Ford, carrying passengers of assorted ages; two children, two middle-aged folks, and two older people. On the vehicle have a sign to this effect: "Our whole family is on its way to see Charles Dickens' characters come to life on the screen in "GREAT EXPECTATIONS." Distribute signs like these to use as windshield stickers.

BOOK-END STUNT

AS a novel and unusual ballyhoo, you can build up a large compo-board reproduction of the volume "GREAT EXPECTATIONS," and have a boy and girl dressed in character to resemble Pip and Estella, leading characters in the book, carrying this volume around with them, and lean against it at intervals in tableau fashion, as if bookends. After attracting the people for a sufficient interval, they can relax their positions, pick up the book and carry it to another spot.

A DICKENS STATUE DRIVE — EXTRA SPACE

STIMULATE local interest in the greatness of Charles Dickens by writing to your local paper, suggesting that some statue or memorial should be located in your city in honor of the author.

Several such statues exist in England, but there are few in America. Inasmuch as Charles Dickens was truly immortal in his art, you have a great reason for sponsoring such a tribute to the man. If possible, get the backing of a local Dickens or literary society to assist you on this stunt. Whether or not an actual memorial materializes, the publicity involved will be of direct benefit to you at the box-office. Inasmuch as the statue will likely prove too expensive a project—you can work on the idea of a placque—a local artist can be induced to make up a design which can be published with the story and exhibited in your lobby.

CATCH LINES

MILLIONS WILL HAIL THE NEWS! CHARLES DICKENS' CHARACTERS LIVE AGAIN ON THE SCREEN! SEE THE IMMORTAL CLASSIC "GREAT EXPECTATIONS."

* * *

HENRY HULL, GREATEST CHARACTER ACTOR OF A CENTURY, APPLAUDED FOR HIS REMARKABLE BROADWAY PERFORMANCE IN "TOBACCO ROAD," TRIUMPHS IN HIS FIRST GREAT SCREEN ROLE!

* * *

THIS IS CHARLES DICKENS' YEAR! HIS TOWERING REPUTATION ACHIEVES NEW AND SENSATIONAL FAME WITH "GREAT EXPECTATIONS," ON THE SCREEN!

* * *

FROM ACROSS THE SEVEN SEAS, A HIDDEN HAND REACHED OUT TO CHANGE AN ORPHAN'S LIFE! WHO WAS IT THAT PAVED THIS BOY'S PATH WITH GOLD?

* * *

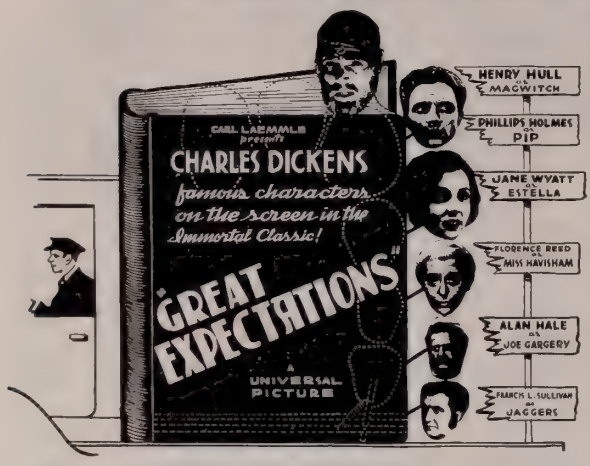
TWO LOVERS—DREAMING OF GREAT EXPECTATIONS, BUT IN THE SHADOWS LURKED —? ? ?

* * *

ORPHAN—OUTCAST—A CRUST OF BREAD! FROM A DEED DONE IN THE DARKNESS OF NIGHT, GREW A GREAT AND STRANGE FRIENDSHIP BETWEEN A FUGITIVE FROM THE SHIPS OF FORGOTTEN MEN, AND A POOR ORPHAN WAIF!

The Three Sheet "A"

ANIMATE YOUR TRUCK BALLYHOO



HERE'S an animated ballyhoo stunt that plays up the characters immortalized by Dickens in "GREAT EXPECTATIONS."

Build a huge book which can be placed on a truck as shown at the base for this hollow compo-board volume, place a series of laths standing on end. These can be used for the purpose of attaching an upright which will jerk out when pulled by a string or wire leading to the driver's cab. On the top of each upright should be a cut-out head of one of the characters as indicated by the arrows. For further details, see the illustrations.

DICKENS COSTUME PARTY

YOUNGSTERS, everywhere, as well as the older folks, are familiar with the delightful and droll characters immortalized in Charles Dickens' "GREAT EXPECTATIONS." Make this the basis of a Charles Dickens "GREAT EXPECTATIONS" Costume Ball, which can be sponsored by a local literary society. Everyone attending must be required to dress as characters from the books of Charles Dickens. Arrange for special prizes to be awarded to those that appear as any of the people in "GREAT EXPECTATIONS."

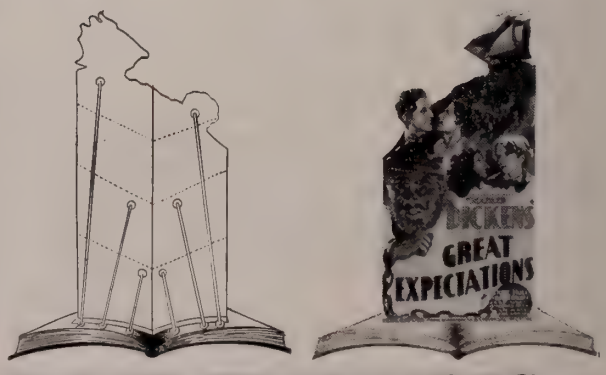
THE DEAF

IT is estimated that 10,000,000 people in the United States are hard of hearing. Play up to this huge hitherto neglected audience, by printing up a synopsis of "GREAT EXPECTATIONS" and offering copies free to patrons who wish to see the picture and cannot follow the dialog. It's good for newspaper publicity, too!

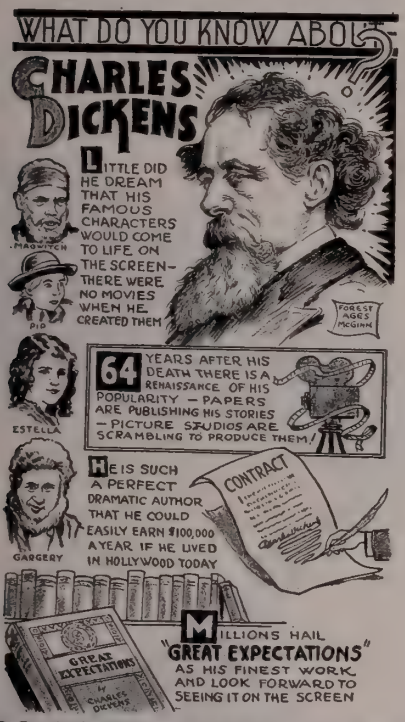
Use an easel in the lobby to advertise this stunt.

A NOVEL POP-UP FROM THE ONE SHEET

YOU are perhaps familiar with the pop-up book stunt which is now being used as a feature of several children's books. If not, visit a local store that handles these and observe how they are worked. Have your sign painter reproduce the same idea, utilizing one-sheet cut-outs and a large book made from compo board. Keep the book closed in the lobby, but have a sign inviting the public to open it. When someone does so, the cut-out will pop into view.



CHARLES DICKENS "GREAT EXPECTATIONS"



PLANT THIS MAT WITH LOCAL PAPERS

THERE is available a special publicity mat as illustrated here, which can be enlarged for an easel out front, as shown. It presents interesting highlights of Charles Dickens' career, and should be a display of special appeal to children.

CHILDREN'S ART CONTEST

TIE-UP with the newspaper to offer prizes for the best drawings by youngsters showing their conception of the various characters in the famous Dickens novel. Art schools, art classes of public schools will take an interest in this stunt.

— THE 24 SHEET STAND —

SMART CUT-OUTS POSSIBLE FROM POSTERS

THE six sheet reproduced on page 28 and the three sheet shown on the opposite page will be readily recognized as having great cut-out possibilities. From the six sheet, for example, in addition to the cut-out of the entire poster, you can get good sized heads, and a three foot ship with base for title that can be used as a hanger or other decorative piece.

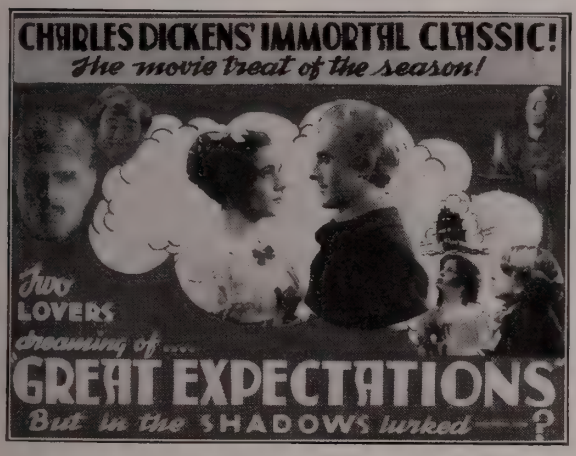
The three sheet also provides excellent cut-out possibilities as a whole and for heads and mob scenes. The cut-out head of Henry Hull is approximately two and a half feet high.

CASH IN ON THE BOOK TIE-UP

THERE is a popular priced edition of the famous Dickens classic ready for release just prior to the release of the picture. The publishers will provide the dealers with special window display material, in addition to the special jacket illustrated with heads of the picture players and playing up the title. Work closely with the book stores and libraries on this. Get the mat of the book mark at the right from your Universal Exchange and print up a good supply for distribution through the libraries, book stores and schools. For additional information address:

GROSSET & DUNLAP
1140 Broadway New York City

AN EYE-CATCHING SCRIM SHADOW BOX



AN idea for a flasher shadow box can be built around the layout of your 24-sheet. Utilize the small figures of the boy, Pip, and the little girl, Estella, in the foreground. Build up a scrim in the shape of a cloud as shown in the illustration. Behind the cloud should appear figures of the lovers, when older. This is managed by placing a cut-out of the figures behind the scrim, and have it illuminated at intervals by a flasher light. In the background, of the shadow box, should appear the "spectres" mentioned in the catch line.

BIG EDUCATIONAL TIE-UP COMING

AT the present time there is in preparation a contemplated tie-up with the National Council of Teachers of English! This tie-up will reach over twenty thousand teachers, schools, colleges and other educational institutions, with several ideas that will bring the message of "Great Expectations" to millions of students throughout the country.

The council is now waiting for an opportunity to preview and okeh the picture before announcing the completion of its extensive plans. Watch the Universal Weekly for further announcements regarding this tie-up. Complete details will appear in the comprehensive pressbook now in preparation.

"EXCELLENT"

says Motion Picture Herald of the Oswald Cartoon, "Ye Happy Pilgrims," continuing: "There's fun, heaps of it, in this travesty on the courtship of Miles Standish."

NIGHT LIFE of the GODS

IMAGINE

what the boys are going to say when HEBE (the filler of the pitcher) comes to life on Broadway to give them a new thrill! ... Whoopee ... she's changed her pitcher for a high hat...and does she step out? ... Wait and see!

•

THORNE SMITH'S

Great Novelty Comedy

•

A
LOWELL SHERMAN
Production

Gale

From

UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.

ROCKEFELLER CENTER

NEW YORK CITY

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
New York, N. Y.

Paid

Permit No. 949

•

NEW FACE IN UNIVERSAL PICTURES

•

Anne Darling

17 years old, no previous experience in pictures, but a face which Helen of Troy would have envied. So suddenly did fame come to her that her parents read in the newspapers that Anne Darling had been given a long-term contract by Carl Laemmle, Jr., who believes that she will develop into a very important screen star.

•

Printed in U.S.A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

VOL. 35 NO. 18 OCT. 13, 1934

WITH GREAT PRIDE I OFFER THE EXHIBITORS OF THE WORLD ONE OF THE BIGGEST ATTRACTIONS EVER PRODUCED BY UNIVERSAL------ "IMITATION OF LIFE"

CARL LAEMMLE

FANNIE HURST

author of "Imitation of Life." She has many other successes to her credit, such as "Back Street," "Lummox," "Five and Ten." A writer who knows screen values.

JOHN M. STAHL

director of "Imitation of Life." . . . . A master of entertainment if ever there was one! . . . Look at the record — "Back Street," "Only Yesterday," "Seed," and a half dozen other real smashes!

CLAUDETTE COLBERT

as Bea Pullman, in "Imitation of Life." A big star made even bigger by recent appearances in such pictures as "It Happened One Night" and "Cleopatra." Some say her new role is her greatest performance to date.

WARREN WILLIAM

as Stephen Archer, in "Imitation of Life." His popularity has been meteoric, and his appearance here is destined to gain him new thousands of ardent followers.

ROCHELLE HUDSON

as Jessie Pullman, in "Imitation of Life." She is one of the fastest-climbing of the younger feminine players, and this picture will help put her further toward the top!

NED SPARKS

as Elmer, in "Imitation of Life," adding another great serio-comic characterization to his already long list of splendid performances which includes "Lady for a Day" and many others.

BABY JANE

as the baby Jessie in "Imitation of Life." Watch this youngster. Her appearance in this picture is going to make YOU demand more and more of her.

ALAN HALE, HENRY ARMETTA,
MARILYN KNOWLDEN, G. P.
HUNTLEY, Jr., and PAUL PORCASI
in
"IMITATION OF LIFE"

"Imitation of Life" A Guaranteed Success

● John Stahl, Hollywood's most consistent directer of successes, and Claudette Colbert, whose pictures are equally successful at the box-office, in an informal meeting at Universal City during the filming of Fannie Hurst's great novel, "Imitation of Life."

Mr. Carl Laemmle Predicts "Imitation of Life" Will Be the Year's Greatest Box Office Success

BEFORE "Imitation of Life" was finally cut and previewed, Carl Laemmle saw the entire footage. He was thrilled and delighted with the result. Without a moment's hesitation, he declared that the picture is by far the greatest the company has produced since "All Quiet on the Western Front." He predicts that it will be the greatest production for exhibitors of 1934.

HERE is a formula for a successful production.

First, buy a book that everybody is interested in, will want to see on the screen.

Second, select a star who is tremendously popular, beautiful to look upon, and who can act.

Third, find a director who can make a successful picture, even if he has no story and no star.

Add these three things, and you have a great picture, even if it costs you a million dollars. The money is well spent.

Universal did all of these things to guarantee the success of "Imitation of Life." It bought Fannie Hurst's widely read and most intriguing story, "Imitation of Life." It placed Claudette Colbert under contract as its star and fortified her with a remarkable cast of players who were chosen after infinite pains, endless tests and exhaustive precautions. Finally, it entrusted the production of "Imitation of Life to John M. Stahl, a director who leaves nothing to chance.

John Stahl has already made three great pictures for Universal, "Seed," "Back Street" and "Only Yesterday." Carl Laemmle, Jr., bought "Imitation of Life" upon his recommendation. Stahl saw in it the greatest opportunit of his screen career, which covers more than twenty years. Time and money were expended with prodigal hand to transform this marvelous story in a more marvelous screen play.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, New York City
Copyrighted 1934
Universal Pictures Corp.
(All Rights Reserved)
October 13, 1934
Vol. 35 No. 18

● The strange dual life history of two women to whom the necessity of earning a living decreed an imitation of life so far as their hearts were concerned. Claudette Colbert and Louise Beavers with their film children, Baby Jane and Seibe Hendricks.

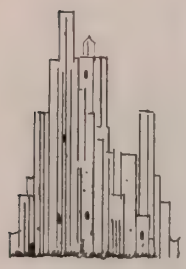
"Imitation of Life" Production Will Add To Miss Hurst's Fame

FANNIE HURST'S tremendous popularity and vogue as an author has been acquired almost as much by the translation of her stories to the screen as by the publication of the stories themselves. Until "Humoresque" made such a tremendous hit on the screen, Fannie Hurst was known only as a good author. "Humoresque" added thousands of readers to her admiring clientele. "Back Street" has been her greatest reputation builder, but even that success is certain to be topped when "Imitation of Life" is released as a picture.

A special edition of this book is being made by A. L. Burt, and they are preparing 100,000 copies as their first edition.



IMITATIO

No. 791 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

In letters as tall as a skyscraper, tell your people about Universal's forthcoming John Stahl triumph, "Imitation of Life."

Arrange for extended playing time.

Make use of all the advertising and exploitation helps which Universal has worked out for you.

Take every possible advantage of the box-office selling points with which it bristles.

Written by Fannie Hurst and by far the most powerful story that genius has ever produced—even more intensely human than her great "Back Street."

Claudette Colbert will show you easily the finest performance of her splendid career.

Warren William does superlatively fine work in the richest role he has ever had.

N OF LIFE

Thirty other talented movie artists make up a cast which has never been beaten for downright perfection of casting.

And, I repeat, it is a John Stahl triumph. The same director who gave you "Back Street" and "Only Yesterday" and "Seed" now steps out even beyond his own record of box office performances and delivers the most convincing knockout punch of the season.

Don't think of it as you think of the average picture. Remember that in "Imitation of Life" you are dealing with probably the most important screen property of many a year —

And again I say — arrange for extended playing time!

Carl Laemmle

IT'S BIG!
Bigger than "Back Street" — Bigger than "Only Yesterday" — The Biggest Picture John M. Stahl ever directed - - - -
Fannie Hurst's IM

TATION of LIFE

MAGNIFICENT

● Warren William and Claudette Colbert in the greatest of the three pictures in which they have starred together, "Imitation of Life," produced for Universal by John M. Stahl from Fannie Hurst's great novel.

SELDOM, if ever, has there been such a combination of elements which mean box-office as were assembled for "Imitation of Life." Immediately upon the publication of Fannie Hurst's great novel Universal realized that here was a tremendous document which would interest millions of women. "Back Street" had shown Universal that Fannie Hurst understands thoroughly what women like to see in a moving picture. John Stahl at the same time had proven that he knew how to transpose to the screen every last ounce of interest which lay in Fannie Hurst's closely knit story. There is no director in the world who has this faculty in the same degree that John Stahl possesses it. The photoplay world is always on tip-toe when a John Stahl production is in the offing. Then there is the popularity of the stars of the picture—Claudette Colbert and Warren William. John Stahl searched for three months before he was satisfied even with Claudette Colbert. The minute her tests were seen, however, he knew that she was the ideal Bea Pullman. A dozen leading men were discarded before John Stahl decided upon Warren William. These two are just now being acclaimed for their work together in "Cleopatra," and either one should have sufficient box-office power to head any story.

PRODUCTION

"IMITATION OF LIFE," IS THE GREATEST PRODUCTION OFFERED BY THE INDUSTRY SINCE UNIVERSAL MADE "ALL QUIET ON THE WESTERN FRONT"

"MAGNIFICENT" may be a much abused word, even in Hollywood, but nothing else will adequately describe "Imitation of Life," the Fannie Hurst novel which John M. Stahl has just made into a picture for Universal, starring Claudette Colbert and Warren William. It is a magnificent production. Some notion of the scale on which this film has been produced can be gained from the fact that one single setting cost $10,000. Nothing about this set was extraordinary. The cost came about merely to make the set perfect and authentic.

Money was spent lavishly to make the photoplay one of the high spots of this season. It will rank with the outstanding pictures of all previous years. John Stahl declared that here he had been given the opportunity of a lifetime. Those who have seen the rushes say that "Imitation of Life" will be the best picture turned out by the industry since "All Quiet on the Western Front."

In all, 48 sets were built for "Imitation of Life." One of these was a complete town house in New York City, containing 15 rooms, a real kitchen and a garden behind it. This garden was sodded with actual grass and flowers were planted there. From the garden a view of the East River was seen in the distance. Model vessels capable of operating under their own power were made for this scene and a small scale replica of the Fifty-ninth Street Bridge was erected in the background. A system of tiny moving electric lights in procession across this bridge indicating traffic in the night scene shot in the garden was effective.

Absolute realism was insisted on for this production. In the early sequences, Claudette Colbert operates a restaurant, specializing in flapjacks. For the week spent in shooting this sequence, a tank of real pancake batter was mixed, cooked and eaten every day. The daily cost of the food used in this restaurant, bread, butter, tea, coffee, doughnuts, cake and pie was amazing. A replica of the famous Atlantic City Boardwalk was built extending over 250 feet and furnished with shops and booths.

An apartment furnished in modernistic style was built for Warren William's home and the New York town house which was Miss Colbert's home was furnished in every room in Adam style from fireplaces to picture mouldings. IThis furniture wasn't to be had in Hollywood.

Eighteen different dresses, ranging from simple business frocks to three rich evening gowns are worn by Miss Colbert during the picture. They were specially designed for her by Vera West, Universal's costume creator. Each one is an original, well in advance of the season's mode. Miss West also originated five different costumes for Rochelle Hudson who plays Miss Colbert's daughter. These gowns were all very costly as were the furs, shoes and underthings that completed the ensembles. All these with hats, handbags and accessories were specially made for the film.

A deep sea fishing expedition was outfitted to bring in a collection of rare fish to stock nine small aquariums in the setting representing Warren William's study. William is a marine scientist in the picture. This expedition was out of sight of land for five weeks. A fishing ship had to be chartered for this voyage. Tank trucks were hired and filled with sea water to bring the fish to the studio in their own element. The setting itself beyond all this initial expense, cost upward of $10,000 to outfit, with its plate glass tanks and sheet iron reservoirs from which they were refilled.

All in all, "Imitation of Life" ranks among the most sumptuous productions ever made at Universal City. This was not extravagance but economy. Fanny Hurst, in "Imitation of Life" wrote a magnificent story. Universal has strained every nerve to give it to the film fans as a magnificent picture in a magnificent setting.

● Warren William declaring his love for Claudette Colbert in a beautiful scenes from "Imitation of Life," shot in the garden at Bea Pullman's home

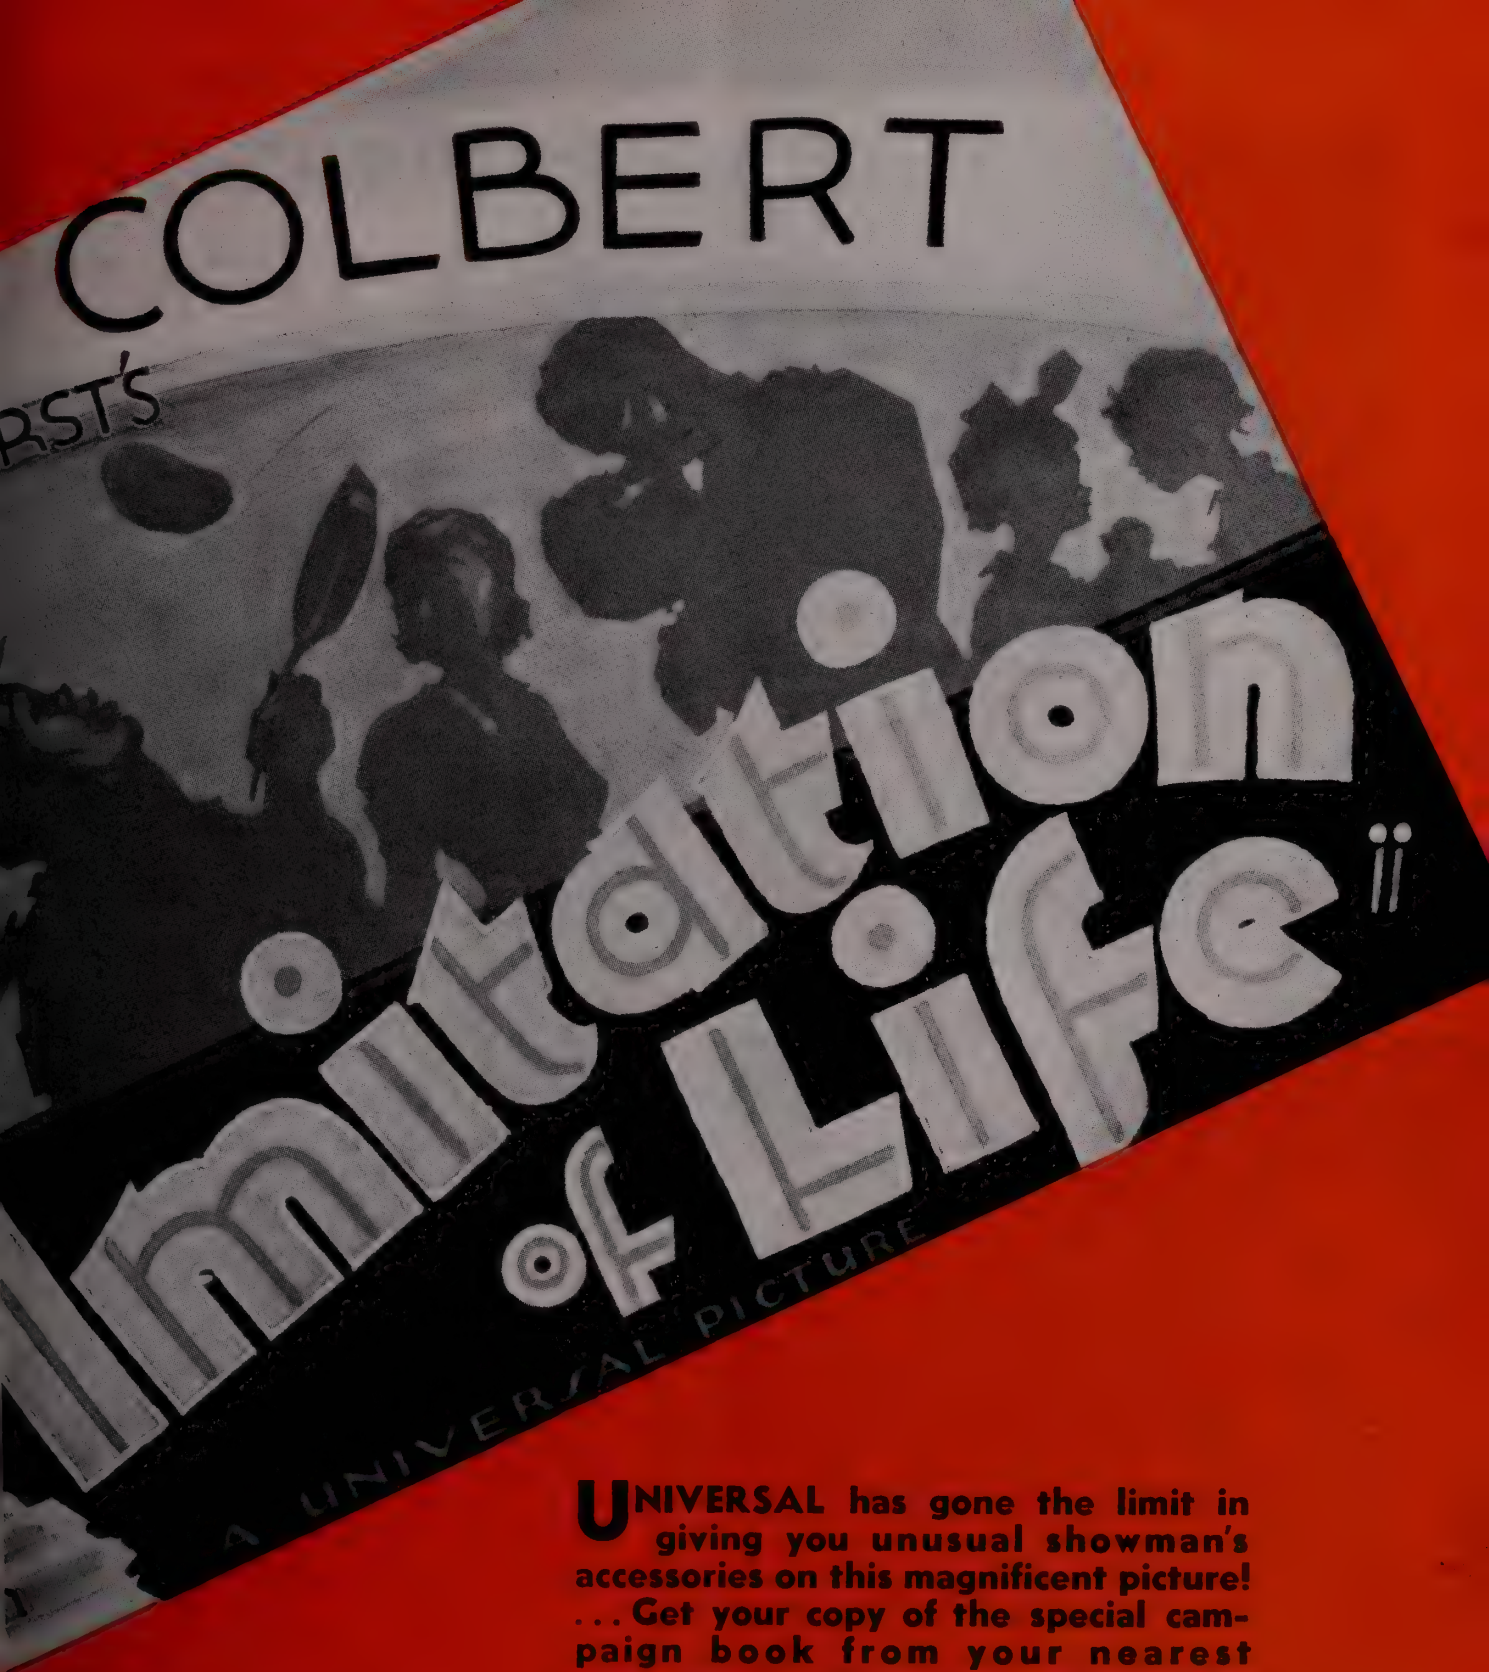
GIVE THIS BIG PICTURE BIG EXPLOITATION!



UNIVERSAL has gone the limit in giving you unusual showman's accessories on this magnificent picture! . . . Get your copy of the special campaign book from your nearest exchange . . . Give the campaign the concentration it deserves . . . Get after the picture in a big way for the BIG MONEY! . . . There's a gold mine of help in the campaign book. GO AFTER IT, BROTHER!

WHY FANNIE HURST WROTE THIS GREAT HUMAN STORY

WHAT does a woman call success in life? When a question like that strikes the mind of a writer like Fannie Hurst the result is very likely to be a novel that will set hundreds of thousands of people thinking. Her answer to the success question was written in the 352 pages of "Imitation of Life" which Universal has made into a motion picture, with Claudette Colbert starred. There is an interesting story behind this novel and its strange and provocative title which will give an idea how an author brings a literary creation into being.

Early in 1931, Miss Hurst was troubled. There was a great theme for a novel in the back of her head but it would not come clear. What indefinite shape it had was in the form of a success story. The author had already treated that theme in two previous novels, "Five and Ten" and "A President's Born." But each of these books had been about self-made men. Now she wanted to write about a self-made woman. The problem was what kind of a woman to center the story on.

FANNIE HURST
Famous Author of "Imitation of Life"

Miss Hurst had long considered the role that woman plays in the modern world the most exciting subject for an author, especially a woman author, of any that presents itself today. Women had become doctors, lawyers, politicians. They were active in business. What were the real thoughts in the minds of these successful women. Were they able to absorb themselves in business affairs during the business day, or, as Miss Hurst wrote in a letter to her publishers, was it always "still sex o'clock" with them. Her answer came to her unexpectedly.

In the daily papers of that time appeared the story of an amazing woman who from virtually nothing had built up a chain of food shops which brought her great wealth and social eminence. In these news articles ,Miss Hurst had found the character to build her story around. She sensed a missing element in this brilliant career and set to work to bring it out in a novel.

More than a year later her publishers, Harper, received the manuscript of "Imitation of Life" which told the story of one of the most appealing characters the novelist has as yet created, Bea Pullman. Bea Pullman is a young woman who after the death of her husband, whom she has never really loved, sets out to support her little daughter and herself by selling maple syrup from door to door. With the help of a colored woman she opens a little pancake shop and later makes a fortune by boxing the pancake flour and selling it. Then real love enters her life, but her daughter is then grown and an unusual triangle situation develops. Bea realizes that success and fame do not constitute real living, that it has all been an imitation of life until love came.

When the book was published, the newspaper reviewers recognized the real figure who served Miss Hurst as the model for Bea Pullman and commented on it. It remains to be seen whether film fans will also be able to pick out this personage in whose shops many of them in New York have dined, when "Imitation of Life" appears on the screen.

In "Imitation of Life," Warren William who played Caesar to Claudette Colbert's Cleopatra in the recent film of that title is with her again. John M. Stahl who directed Universal's previous Fannie Hurst success, "Back Street" directed "Imitation of Life." expending fourteen weeks of steady filming in the process of production.

John Stahl
Director of Successes

JOHN M. STAHL turns out box office hits so regularly that one would think he had a formula for being a sure-fire director. As a matter of fact he has such a formula. It is a simple one. It consists of telling the right kind of secrets. There are other ingredients to the formula but that is the principal one used by the director of "Seed," "Back Street," "Only Yesterday" and his latest, "Imitation of Life" just completed.

"Nobody wants to listen to a man's secrets," said Stahl recently when asked about the art of picture directing. "But when you tell a woman's secrets everyone wants to listen. When you tell that kind of secrets you have a picture which is potentially box office."

According to Stahl, women form the big bulk of movie audiences all over the world. Woman cannot resist the desire to pry into secrets and find out the hidden facts in the lives of the women they would like to be. The leading woman of a successful movie must have her private life laid bare so that the women in the audience may contrast it with their own and give or withhold their sympathy.

The eternal triangle is another ingredient which Stahl thinks cannot be dispensed with in building a box office picture. He does not mean the sex triangle exclusively. He means two people wanting a third thing which may be a woman, a man, an airplane, or a loaf of bread. He has found this motive present in all his successful films. The romantic triangle is of course the most effective.

● JOHN M. STAHL

Stories which are based on real life have a better chance of success on the screen than those which are pure fiction. This is one more important part of Stahl's directorial credo, formulated from twenty years experience of wielding the megaphone.

Then there is conflict. Every successful picture must boil down to the problem of what keeps two people apart, Stahl says. He would not consider touching a picture if this conflict was absent from the script.

The director feels utterly confident about "Imitation of Life" which is now editing. Every one of the four ingredients of his success formula is present in this film. It tells a woman's secrets, it is plotted on the ternal triangle, it is based on real life and there is the necessary conflict.

● John Stahl Choosing Baby Jane from Two Hundred Applicants

CARL LAEMMLE presents
CLAUDETTE
Colbert
in FANNIE HURST'S
Great Novel
IMITATION OF LIFE
with WARREN WILLIA
ROCHELLE HUDSON
Ned Sparks, Henry Armetta, Alan Hale, and mo
A JOHN M. STAHL PRODUCT

THE MOST CAREFULLY SELEC

EVERY John Stahl cast is carefully chosen. Often more footage is used in making tests, to be absolutely certain of perfection, than is used in the final cutting of the picture. "Back Street" and "Only Yesterday" had carefully selected casts, but the cast of Fannie Hurst's "Imitation of Life" breaks all records for the amount of film shot in screen tests, the time required and the care exercised in selection.

ED CAST IN SCREEN HISTORY

Here are a number of the members of this cast: 1: Warren Walker. 2, 14, 16: Claudette Colbert. 3: Henry Armetta. 4: Marilyn Knowlden. 5: Henry Kolker. 6: Alan Hale. 7, 9 and 21: Warren William. 8 and 15: Ned Sparks. 10: Baby Jane. 11: Seibe Hendricks. 12: Fredi Washington. 13: Clarence Hummel Wilson. 17 and 19: Louise Beavers. 20: Rochelle Hudson.

CLAUDETTE COLBERT

in Fannie Hurst's

"Imitation of Life"

Directed by JOHN

Produced by CARL LAEMMLE, JR.

UNIVERSAL PICTURE

PRESENTS

Watch This Column

THESE two outstanding players will lead the way in UNIVERSAL'S widely-known popular novel, "IMITATION OF LIFE," a story of a self-sacrificing mother of today—a business woman whose main idea was to prepare her daughter for life, and seek her own happiness when her dream had been made real. Miss COLBERT and Mr. WILLIAM are ably supported by Rochelle Hudson, Ned Sparks, Henry Armetta and others. Direction and production by John M. Stahl, who directed "Back Street," "Only Yesterday" and other notable screen plays.

"THERE'S ALWAYS TOMORROW"

In this eternal triangle, BINNIE BARNES, the beautiful and talented actress stepped immediately into stardom, by her clever portrayal of "the other woman" who rescues a fine husband and father from the extreme selfishness of his family. And the head of the family is that excellent and polished actor, [illegible] MORGAN. The wife is that charming [illegible] and the cast also includes [illegible] Direction

Watch This Column

CLAUDE[illegible]LBERT, whose talents have [illegible]ught by the screen's forem[illegible] stars, will appear in UNIVERS[illegible] adaptation of Fannie Hurst's best seller, "IMITATION OF LIFE," a story of human emotions. A John M. Stahl Production.

MARGARET SULLAVAN, famed for her great success in "ONLY YESTERDAY," is winning new fame in "LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?," Hans Fallada's fine story, assisted by DOUGLASS

Watch This Column

Claudette COLBERT in "IMITATION of LIFE" with Warren WILLIAM

This, my friends, is a splendid picture. It has no weak spots. I sincerely think it will be one of the biggest—if not the biggest—pictures of the year. There is every reason why it should be. Fannie Hurst, always the ingenious authoress, wrote the story. CLAUDETTE COLBERT, invariably the finished artist, takes the leading part, assisted by WARREN WILLIAM, a talented actor, plus an assisting cast of excellence which includes Rochelle Hudson and Ned Sparks. John M. Stahl, the genius of "Back Street" and "Only Yesterday" directed. What greater galaxy of prominence and ability could any [illegible] ask?

★

"NIGHT LIFE OF THE GODS"

In which the gods and goddesses of Greek and Roman mythology are spilled on the moderns on wicked Broadway and its night clubs. Oh my, what a [illegible] my countrymen — what a fantastic imagination conceived this bizarre idea! Lowell Sherman is the director, and who is there that doesn't know this unusual master? From the novel by Thorne Smith.

★

"THE GOOD FAIRY"

Coming soon, a screen version of Molnar's delightful play, with the peerless MARGARET SULLAVAN in the title role, HERBERT MARSHALL, co-star, assisted by FRANK MORGAN, of stage and screen fame. That fine actor, Alan Hale, is also in this production. The direction is by William Wyler.

Be sure to see UNIVERSAL'S extraordinary picturization of Charles Dickens' "GREAT EXPECTATIONS."

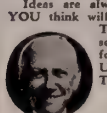
* * *

Ideas are always welcome. I want ideas that YOU think will help better UNIVERSAL PICTURES. Have you any? Be sure to send them to me. I will pay liberally for any ideas that I can actually use. UNIVERSAL WILL LISTEN TO YOU.



(To be continued in the Nov. 10th issue of The Saturday Evening Post)

Carl Laemmle

(Pronounced LEM-LY)

UNIVERSAL PICTURES

CARL LAEMMLE, President

Rockefeller Center New York City

FULL pages in the fan magazines, full columns in the Saturday Evening Post, have helped sell this show to literally millions and millions of fans throughout the country. YOUR community is one of those reached thoroughly by this national advertising. YOUR theatre will benefit from Universal's national advertising the minute you announce "Imitation of Life."

Claudette Colbert, as Bea Pullman, introduces Warren William (Stephen Archer) to her daughter, played by Rochelle Hudson, newly returned from school abroad. The situation which follows forms the bewildering climax of "Imitation of Life,"—mother and daughter both in love with the same man. But both willing to give him up because of their great love for each other.

Stills That

EVERY exhibitor loves a picture where the stills tell their own story. Advertising men, exploitation men, editors, and poster artists revel in that kind of a picture. "Imitation of Life" is that kind of a picture. It is a story of a successful business woman's problem with her own desire for love. Every woman in the world will be fascinated by the problems which Fannie Hurst has heaped together with skillful hand in this widely read novel.

The stills on this page graphically depict the problem of Bea Pullman, who was successful in business, but whose private life had been merely an imitation of life. The stills tell the story. Exhibitors and exploitation men will shout for joy when they get these story-telling stills.

Her Fortune Rested On Just Two Words

ON two words rested the fortune of Claudette Colbert in "Imitation of Life." With her colored cook, Louise Beavers, Miss Colbert had established on the boardwalk in Atlantic City a seaside restaurant known as Aunt Delilah's Pancake Shop, where the dusky servant's surpassingly delicious flapjacks had for five years been dispensed to delighted customers. Prosperity had come, but nothing approaching a fortune.

One rainy afternoon Ned Sparks, a rabid pancake fancier completely out of funds, approached the door shyly and boasted of his prowess as a flapjack eater when he had the money to pay for them, and the kind-hearted Miss Colbert proceeded to set before him all he could eat—on the house. In gratitude, Sparks gave her a hundred-thousand-dollar idea in two words. "Box it!"

And so it came about that Aunt Delilah's Pancake Flour made them a fortune.

Returning from the funeral of Delilah, Claudette Colbert, as Bea, is comforted by her ardent admirer, Stephen Archer (Warren William.) But isn't it more than just comfort?

Tell Their Own Story

● Mother and daughter, in an emotional crisis in their lives, are brought closer together by the mutual discovery of their love for the same man. Rochelle Hudson portrays the sixteen-year-old daughter of Claudette Colbert, a highly successful young business woman in her early thirties, in this Fannie Hurst dramatic novel now translated to screen, "Imitation of Life."

Negro Mammy A Born Matchmaker

A COLORED mammy is a born matchmaker.

Claudette Colbert learns the truth of this in "Imitation of Life." In the story Miss Colbert is a widow with a grown daughter when she meets Warren William, and the two are mutually attracted to each other. But Miss Colbert has admired other men in an impersonal fashion, and does not immediately sense that she is on the threshold of the one great love of her lifetime. She finds herself pleased at his compliments but, woman-like, accepts them lightly.

Not so Louise Beavers, her colored cook, who embarrasses her mistress by her frankly interested efforts to throw the two together and by her outspoken curiosity as to how the romance is progressing.

● "Why don't you-all marry this Mr. Stephen Archer, Miss Bea? And stop living this imitation of life? You're still a young woman and deserve happiness. This won't be like your other marriage. You know life now." An intimate scene between Bea Pullman (Claudette Colbert) and Aunt Delilah (Louise Beavers), who are partners in business and whose private lives have run along identical channels.

● Peola in despair at her lot in life, had run away from the southern colored college where Delilah had placed her. Bea Pullman assists the frantic mother to find her rebellious daughter.

What Would You Do?

WHAT would you do if you were a widow who had fallen desperately in love for the first time in your life and were planning on an early marriage to the man of your heart, only to find that your 16-year-old daughter loved him?

This is the situation which confronts Claudette Colbert in "Imitation of Life," with Miss Colbert as the mother and Rochelle Hudson as her daughter.

Having determined long before that nothing should ever come between herself and her daughter, should the mother nevertheless follow the dictates of her heart and proceed with her marriage? Or should mother-love outweigh any other consideration? Should she even give up the man to her daughter?

"—a great motion picture!"

"IMITATION OF LIFE" is the epitome of all that is superfine in acting, writing, directing and drama! It represents on the screen the master achievement of John M. Stahl, sterling director who gave you "BACK STREET," "SEED" and "ONLY YESTERDAY." In it, Claudette Colbert reaches new heights enacting a daring role that calls for and reveals the wonderful scope of her amazing talents. Fannie Hurst's noteworthy novel gains warmth and strength in its beautiful translation to the screen. When you are told that "IMITATION OF LIFE" was nearly a year in the making and cost almost a million dollars, you can better realize the daring enterprise and faith in perfection which brought this brilliant motion picture to you.

"IMITATION OF LIFE" is an "event" in motion picture history. It is a most important contribution to the screen—a truly outstanding attraction—and it must be handled as such.

Give it a gala premiere—a special preview showing with all the fanfare and trimmings and trappings that go to make one of these openings the greatest of possible dignified ballyhoos for a noteworthy film.

Only by such important handling can you impress upon your public the true greatness of this production. Invite the leading celebrities to your premiere showing, the social and civic lights, editors of newspapers, important people in every walk of life.

"Gala" your house for the occasion. Let giant arc lights lend that Hollywood touch and direct attention to your front. Let the radio broadcast from your lobby reach all the stay-at-homes and tell them of the distinguished visitors arriving for your premiere. Let the popping flashlights of the newspaper photographers help speed the news that something "BIG" is happening at your theatre.

"IMITATION OF LIFE will receive loud acclaim from your public. It deserves loud acclaim from you before you open it. You must establish this importance in order to realize on all of its great box office potentialities.

Claudette Colbert! Fannie Hurst! A John M. Stahl production! Warren William! Greater than "BACK STREET!" Finer than "ONLY YESTERDAY!" Wonderful phrases to conjure with. Wonderful names to start a box-office tidal wave.

"IMITATION OF LIFE" is magnificent!

JOE WEIL

STUNTS — LOBBY DISPLAYS — BOOK TIE-UPS!

SPOT DIALOGUE LINES IN DISPLAY

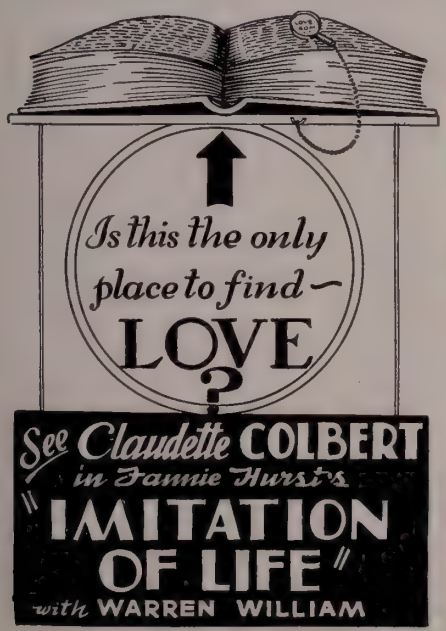
WITH a famous box-office star, a great author, and best-seller title to put over, your front should play up all angles as shown.

Use a cut-out of your 24-sheet, mounting it over the marquee and take advantage of the 3-sheets for sidewalk frames. For a display over the entrance doors, follow the layout as suggested on the sketch on page 28. Show a giant head of Claudette Colbert, through which a streak of lightning runs. This can be actually illuminated by use of the Neon light system. Stills can constitute the remainder of this display, so arranged as to appear fragmentary and shattered by the effect of the lightning streak. This catch line ties together the entire display. "Her heart was shattered by two great loves!"

The dialogue lines are dramatic and powerful. Spot these everywhere you can in your displays for extra effect. See page 31 for suggested lines to be used.

DICTIONARY DISPLAY SELLS LOVE ANGLE

BORROW from a local bookstore, a large unabridged dictionary, and place it on a stand in one corner of your lobby. Attach to the stand, a large magnifying glass, by a chain, and leave this rest on the book, which should be opened to the page which contains the word: "Love." On the base of the stand use a sign carrying copy as shown, "Is This the Only Place to Find Love? See "IMITATION OF LIFE," etc.



GIVE IT AN IMPORTANT HOLLYWOOD OPENING

UNIVERSAL gives you a picture which was nearly a year in the making, and which cost a million dollars!

You must establish it as a picture of that calibre with your public, and the one possible way open is to present it as Hollywood does one of its outstanding attractions. Give it a tremendous opening, a special preview showing the night before its regular engagement. Arrange for all the fanfare—the trimmings and trappings that go to make one of these openings the greatest possible ballyhoos.

Issue dignified invitations—invite leading celebrities in town to your showing, civic and social lights, editors of newspapers, important people in every walk of life. Dress up your theatre for the occasion. Drape flags and bunting in appropriate spots—run strings of pennants from the roof to the marquee top. Have giant arc lights of the Hollywood type leveled on your front. Have a local radio remote control hook-up, to broadcast the arrival of distinguished visitors. Have flashlight photographers present. Give the society editors special stories.

Give the picture all the acclaim it deserves. In so doing, you establish it with the public for what it is, an extraordinary piece of entertainment.

SET OF TIE-UP STILLS

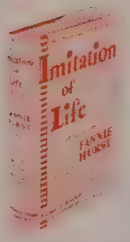
ORDER several sets of these attractive tie-up stills. They are already to go to work for you in the town's best store windows. Order from Universal Exchanges.

3-Sheet Peep Box

Take a head of Claudette Colbert, which appears on one of the 3-sheets and construct a peep-box with a heart-shaped opening, as shown, illuminated by a red light from behind. In back of the peep-box have several 11x14 cards, or stills, and use these catch lines:

This Vivacious Young Widow Never Knew What Love Meant Until She Met Stephen Archer! Then Her Debutante Daughter Fell in Love With Him Too! Should She Marry Him and Break Her Daughter's Heart, or Give Him Up and Break Her Own? Use this copy outside: Look Into Her Heart and Discover the Tremendous Drama of "IMITATION OF LIFE!"

SELL THE BOOK ANGLE WITH A FANNIE HURST WEEK!



GET the co-operation of all the book stores in town to help put over Fannie Hurst and the greatest novel she has ever written. "IMITATION OF LIFE." Sell not only its success, but also her past hits, such famous books as: "Symphony of Six Million," "Five and Ten," "A President is Born," "Anitra's Dance," 'Back Street." She is a great authoress, worthy of such a special campaign.

BOOK WINDOW DISPLAYS

Be sure that in all displays, prominent mention is given to her last big best seller, "IMITATION OF LIFE" and ask book dealers to push particularly, the popular-priced edition of this novel, which is issued by A. L. Burt and Company. You can carry this stunt into the libraries as well as the book stores. Arrange with them to distribute book-marks as illustrated at the right. Mat is available at your Universal Exchange. A good local printer will do the job inexpensively. For further information on the popular-priced edition of the book address: Harry Hund, A. L. Burt Company, 114 East 23rd Street, New York City.

Claudette Colbert in → SELLING ANGLES — STUNTS — DISPLAY LINES

PLAY UP THESE FEATURES BIG!

CLAUDETTE COLBERT

After a series of spectacular triumphs in "Sign of the Cross," "It Happened One Night," "Cleopatra," this beautiful star reaches the highest point of her acting career in "IMITATION OF LIFE." Level all you can on the box-office power of Claudette Colbert. Capitalize on the special tie-ups and stunts designed to exploit her mighty personality and success.

WARREN WILLIAM

The player who appeared opposite Claudette Colbert in "Cleopatra" is together with her again. Cash in on this box-office angle.

FANNIE HURST

Best-seller novelist, who has scored success after success! Authoress of "BACK STREET!" Her latest best-seller, "IMITATION OF LIFE" has been hailed by her readers as one of her finest works. It comes to the screen splendidly cast and superbly directed.

JOHN M. STAHL

His record as a money-maker speaks for itself, "ONLY YESTERDAY," "BACK STREET," "SEED," and now "IMITATION OF LIFE," to top them all.

PANEL SELLS COLBERT

PREPARE an easel upon which you can spot stills from her former pictures, "Cleopatra," "It Happened One Night," "Sign of the Cross," etc.

DISPLAY LINES

She had to choose! Daughter—Lover—Which would YOU sacrifice?

* * *

John Stahl Storms Your Heart Again! The Man Who Gave You "Back Street"—"Seed"—and "Only Yesterday"—Brings Fannie Hurst's Sensational Best-Seller to the Screen!

* * *

Claudette Colbert Triumphs Again in a Revelation of Woman's Innermost Emotions!

* * *

Claudette Colbert Stars! Fannie Hurst Wrote It! John M. Stahl Directed It! A Year in the Making; A Million Dollar Hit!

* * *

Claudette Colbert and Warren William, the Screen's Great Lovers, Together Again—in a Throbbing . . . Tumultuous . . . Moving . . . Heart-Shattering Drama!

* * *

Her Daughter in Love with the Man She Had Promised to Marry! Should She Marry Him—and Break Her Daughter's Heart? Or Give Him Up—and Break Her Own?

* * *

Infatuation that Threatened to Blast Three Lives! A Vivacious Young Widow in Whose Life Love Came Too Late! Fannie Hurst, Mistress of Emotions, Tells You the Secret of a Woman's Heart! Claudette Colbert Gives the Great Performance of Her Career!

* * *

She Loved—Was She to Blame? Her Mother's Happiness—Did It Mean Enough? Must Youth Be Served At Any Price? Fannie Hurst Flings Down Her Challenging Answer!

* * *

The Year's Most Outstanding Star! The Season's Most Brilliant Best-Seller! Today's Most Successful Hit Director! Here is Million Dollar Entertainment—"IMITATION OF LIFE!"

PRIVATE NOTES

UTILIZE a series of frames in your lobby for the purpose of "private" diaries of the mother and daughter in "IMITATION OF LIFE." These notes can be along the following lines:

Dear Mother: I will give him up. He is the one man I love. Even though it breaks my heart, you must know the truth.

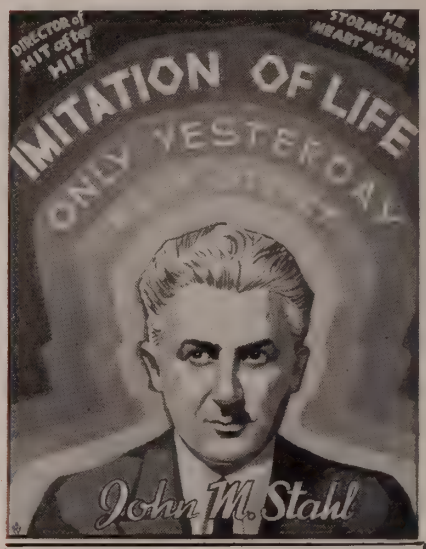
Jessie's Diary

My daughter: If you find that Stephen means so much to your life, I will not stand in your way, but you must realize that in taking him from me, you end the only real love I have ever known.

Bea's Diary

LOBBY PANEL TO SELL JOHN M. STAHL

JOHN STAHL is the outstanding showmanship director in pictures today! He has given you and the public such successes as "BACK STREET," "ONLY YESTERDAY" and "SEED." Sell him as the man who delivered these hits and who now storms all hearts again with "IMITATION OF LIFE." Here's an illustration of an easel that will sell the great director.



THE FOOD ANGLE AS A CAMPAIGN AID

CONTACT the most popular food expert in the city or one that is affiliated with a newspaper for their recipe for making griddle cakes. You can then prepare a throwaway which you can distribute through all the grocery stores in the city. On the reverse side of this give a brief summary of the story together with title and credits. Make it seem that the recipe is being distributed at the request of Aunt Delilah, world renowned for her pancake making. This idea, if plugged in the right way will get newspaper mention besides reaching all the women.

MAPLE SYRUP AND ACCESSORIES

Go after a tie-up on maple syrup and butter and coffee to go with the pancakes. Arrange to distribute free cakes of maple sugar with copy, "It's a real treat"—Blank's Maple Sugar and "Imitation of Life."

John M. Stahl's Magnificent Production of INQUIRING REPORTER—BUSINESS GIRLS

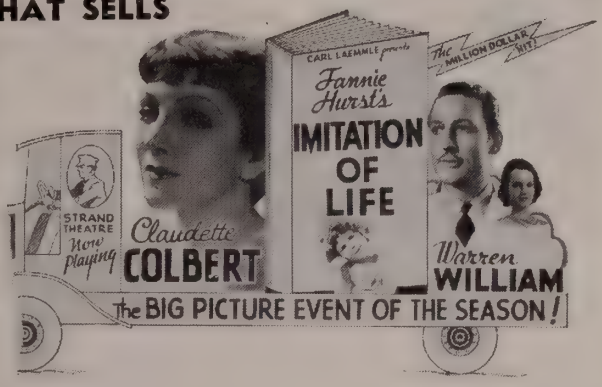
ONE SHEET

A BALLYHOO THAT SELLS

YOU have several smash angles to put over in "IMITATION OF LIFE," and illustrated here is a ballyhoo that utilizes them all.

Rig up a giant reproduction of a book, on which is lettered "Fannie Hurst's "IMITATION OF LIFE." On the rear end of the truck, feature Warren William and Rochelle Hudson. Use other lines as shown.



POSTER CUT-OUTS

THE posters for "Imitation of Life" have been designed to provide plenty of snappy cut-outs. Use them in all your displays, front, lobby and tie-up windows. Other ideas will suggest themselves to you when you see the picture.

GO AFTER THE BUSINESS GIRLS

INASMUCH as Claudette Colbert takes the role of Beatrice Pullman, modern business woman, in "IMITATION OF LIFE," you have a great reason for going after girls in business, and you should do so in several ways.

1st—SPECIAL BUSINESS GIRLS' MATINEE

This can be arranged for the lunch hour of office workers and the feature picture can be shown at that time, as a special convenience for the business girls.

If you can co-operate with a local restaurant and provide sandwiches and refreshments to the girls who attend the special showing, this will build extra patronage.

2nd—Distribute special memos to stenographers, typists, filing clerks, and other office girls, carrying the following message, which should be in script. Special exploitation mat is available.

MEMO

TO: (Personalize this by inserting the name of girl. Get names by contacting the payroll clerk of each organization which you circularize.)

Be sure to see "IMITATION OF LIFE." I play the role of a business woman in the picturization of Fannie Hurst's famous novel. Can a career take the place of love in a girl's life? This drama is the answer. Don't miss it.

Claudette Colbert

3rd—Distribute to stenographers a blotter which carries the above message in the SHORTHAND popular in your city: Pitman, Gregg, or whatever it may be. Have this message transcribed by a stenographic teacher in your local business school.

USE THESE PITHY DIALOGUE LINES

HEREWITH are several dialogue lines from the script of "Imitation of Life." You can find many uses for them. Spot them around your displays prominently.

JESSIE—Just that—a girl like me falls in love—it's forever—forever and ever . . .

JESSIE—You love him very much . . . don't you, Mother?

BEA—Next to you—more than anything in the world.

JESSIE—No, Mother—not next to me—I don't come first. He should . . . he must . . .

BEA—You're both first—Shall we go down now?

JESSIE—But how can the three of us go on living in the same house—it will be horrible.

JESSIE—I'd never let you down, Mother—you know that, don't you?—Never, Never—

DELILAH—Wid you' pretty face and dem pretty foots—you oughta have a man takin' ca'e of you, honey.

BEA—I guess I was too young to know much about love. My mother was dead. He was my father's choice—father thought I'd be taken care of—so I married him.

STAGE AN INQUIRING REPORTER STUNT

THERE as several important topics in the story of "Imitation of Life" to provide questions for this stunt. In addition to getting extra space for your campaign this stunt will create plenty of talk and discussion on the picture. You will find the newspaper willing to co-operate as the gag will provide additional reader interest. Supply the paper with stills from the production to use with their advance and current announcements. Play the stunt up in your lobby. The following questions are suggested: "If you knew that your daughter was in love with the man you planned to marry, would you give him up?"—"Can a career take the place of love in a woman's life?"

NOVEL LOBBY EASEL

CONSTRUCT an easel in which will be featured a large head of Claudette Colbert and Rochelle Hudson. Between them, have a full figure of Warren William, and use this heading: "They met—vivacious young widow and debutante daughter and the man between! What happened? Fannie Hurst dramatically reveals it in "IMITATION OF LIFE."

CORNER LOBBY DISPLAY

FOR an empty spot in your lobby, or for the back of the theatre, where it can be conveniently placed, (or for a men's store window), put a small taboret, on which you can level a spotlight. Place on this taboret, a man's high hat, silver headed cane, and opera gloves. A neat card should carry this caption: "He won the young widow's love—he won her daughter's love—which one did he choose?

NATIONAL TIE-UPS — SPECIAL DISPLAY IDEAS

GO AFTER GROCERS FOR TIE-UP ON BISQUICK

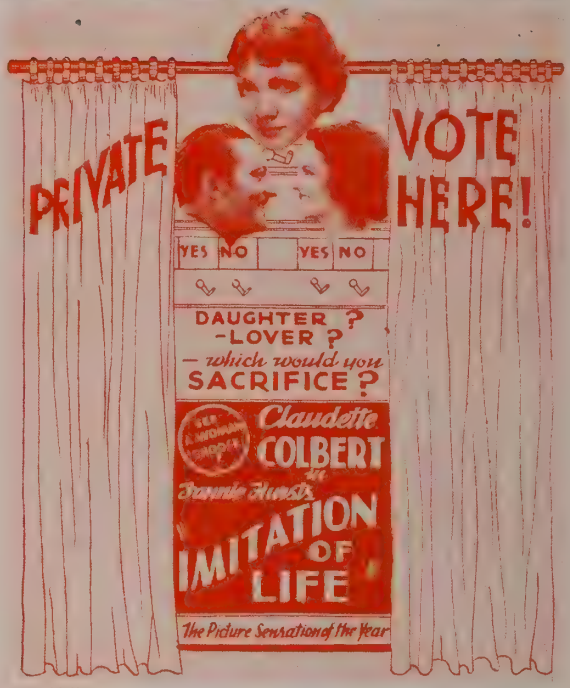
CLAUDETTE COLBERT has posed for a special photograph with the General Mills product, "Bisquick" as a tie-up for the pan-cake flour angle in the picture. The manufacturers are preparing special window snipes for dealers to use during the run of the picture and will also mention the picture and the tie-up in several of the radio broadcasts. Stores will be supplied with the window display material, but in case your local stores are not familiar with the tie-up communicate direct with Betty Crocker, the General Mills Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

LET THEM VOTE ON A MACHINE

IN many places, civic leaders are anxious to teach voters the proper use of voting machines.

By contacting a political club, or similar organization, it should be simple to secure a specimen voting machine, and utilize two levers for the purpose of voting on the machine as shown in the illustration.

The question to put before the voters is illustrated on the sign. Local newspapers may be interested in the result. It will certainly succeed in arousing discussion and interest in the picture.



SHADOWGRAPH DISPLAY

FOR an interesting lobby effect have your sign painter make cut-outs of the characters from the posters, and lift them a few inches from a compo-board background with small struts. Behind each cut-out paint a shadow as shown. Each character should then be spotted with a different catch line, over the actual character

PLAY UP BABY JANE

A NEW child star, Baby Jane, makes her first appearance in "IMITATION OF LIFE," and because of her excellent work is already set for a starring role. She should be capitalized upon in every possible way.

There are several apparel items that will be featured through a tie-up with the Modern Merchandising Bureau explained on this page. Contact local stores to feature her picture in connection with ads and window displays on health foods, schools, toys and children's furniture.

Arrange a baby show or photograph contest, sponsored by local developing and printing shops or the local paper. Display her photo in a special frame in your lobby with copy as follows:

"Cuteness! Charm! You will take to your heart this tiny star in "IMITATION OF LIFE" —Adorable! Darling!

NATIONAL TIE-UPS

THERE will be a Warren William shirt tie-up ready by the time you play this picture. It is now being consumated with one of the largest shirt manufacturers in the country. There will be special window display material and mats for dealers to use in their newspaper ads. All ads and displays will tie-up directly with "Imitation of Life."

Other national tie-ups featuring Claudette Colbert will be ready for announcement in the big pressbook now being prepared. Be sure to get your copy of it so that you can cash in on this showmanship material.

COLBERT AND BABY JANE FASHIONS

IN addition to the Claudette Colbert fashions tie-up through the Cinema Fashion Shops, there are special Baby Jane dresses, shoes, coats, berets, hair-ribbons, that will be featured by leading department stores in their children's departments with special newspaper ads and window displays. Contact your local Cinema Fashions Shop and arrange now for displays and co-operative ads. Provide stills, lobby photos and cut-outs to dress up display. If you cannot locate the department or specialty store that features Hollywood Cinema Fashions communicate direct with The Modern Merchandising Bureau, 36 West 44th Street, New York City. N. Y.

with Warren William and star Cast!

This ad appeared in the trade papers of December 1929!

The SCOOP of SCOOPS!

Universal signs GRAHAM McNAMEE

Man With Best Known Voice In World To Announce For Universal Newsreel

As the Talking Reporter, the Premiere Broadcaster will animate the latest news pictures with that life and fire and pep for which he is famous in all his talks

His Name Alone Means Money At The Box-Office!

Get in on the Money! Presented by Carl Laemmle

UNIVERSAL'S TALKING NEWSREEL

FIVE YEARS!

...and they're still trying to imitate

UNIVERSAL NEWSREEL

From

UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.

ROCKEFELLER CENTER

NEW YORK CITY

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
New York, N. Y.

Paid

Permit No. 949

Printed in U.S.A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
VOL. 35 NO. 20
OCT. 27, 1934

FAY WRAY in "Cheating Cheaters"

Coming!

A swell comedy-drama from the pen of

EDITH WHARTON

STRANGE WIVES

Send Your Crowd Up in the air with—

OSWALD

The Lucky Rabbit, in "SKY LARKS"

THERE IS ONLY ONE

No. 793 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

There can be only one "best newsreel in the world"—and Universal makes it.

The whole trade knows it.

The only reason why it does not get all the newsreel business is because many of the chain theatres have to buy the newsreel produced by their own company.

Universal has always had a smart newsreel. It has always been the leader.

But when sound came into the picture business, Universal took a sudden extra leap which has kept it ahead of the pack for several years.

Frantic efforts have been made (and will be made) to catch up with the Universal newsreel. Some of them may almost succeed, but never quite! No imitation in the world is on a par with the real thing.

Universal was the first to solve the newsreel problem when sound came to the business—the problem of how to use sound and yet make no sacrifice of speed. A newsreel without speed is not worth a tinker's dam.

"BEST" NEWSREEL!

We solved it by making our newsreel shots with the usual speed and then adding the famous voice of Graham McNamee as newsreel reporter, with no loss of time.

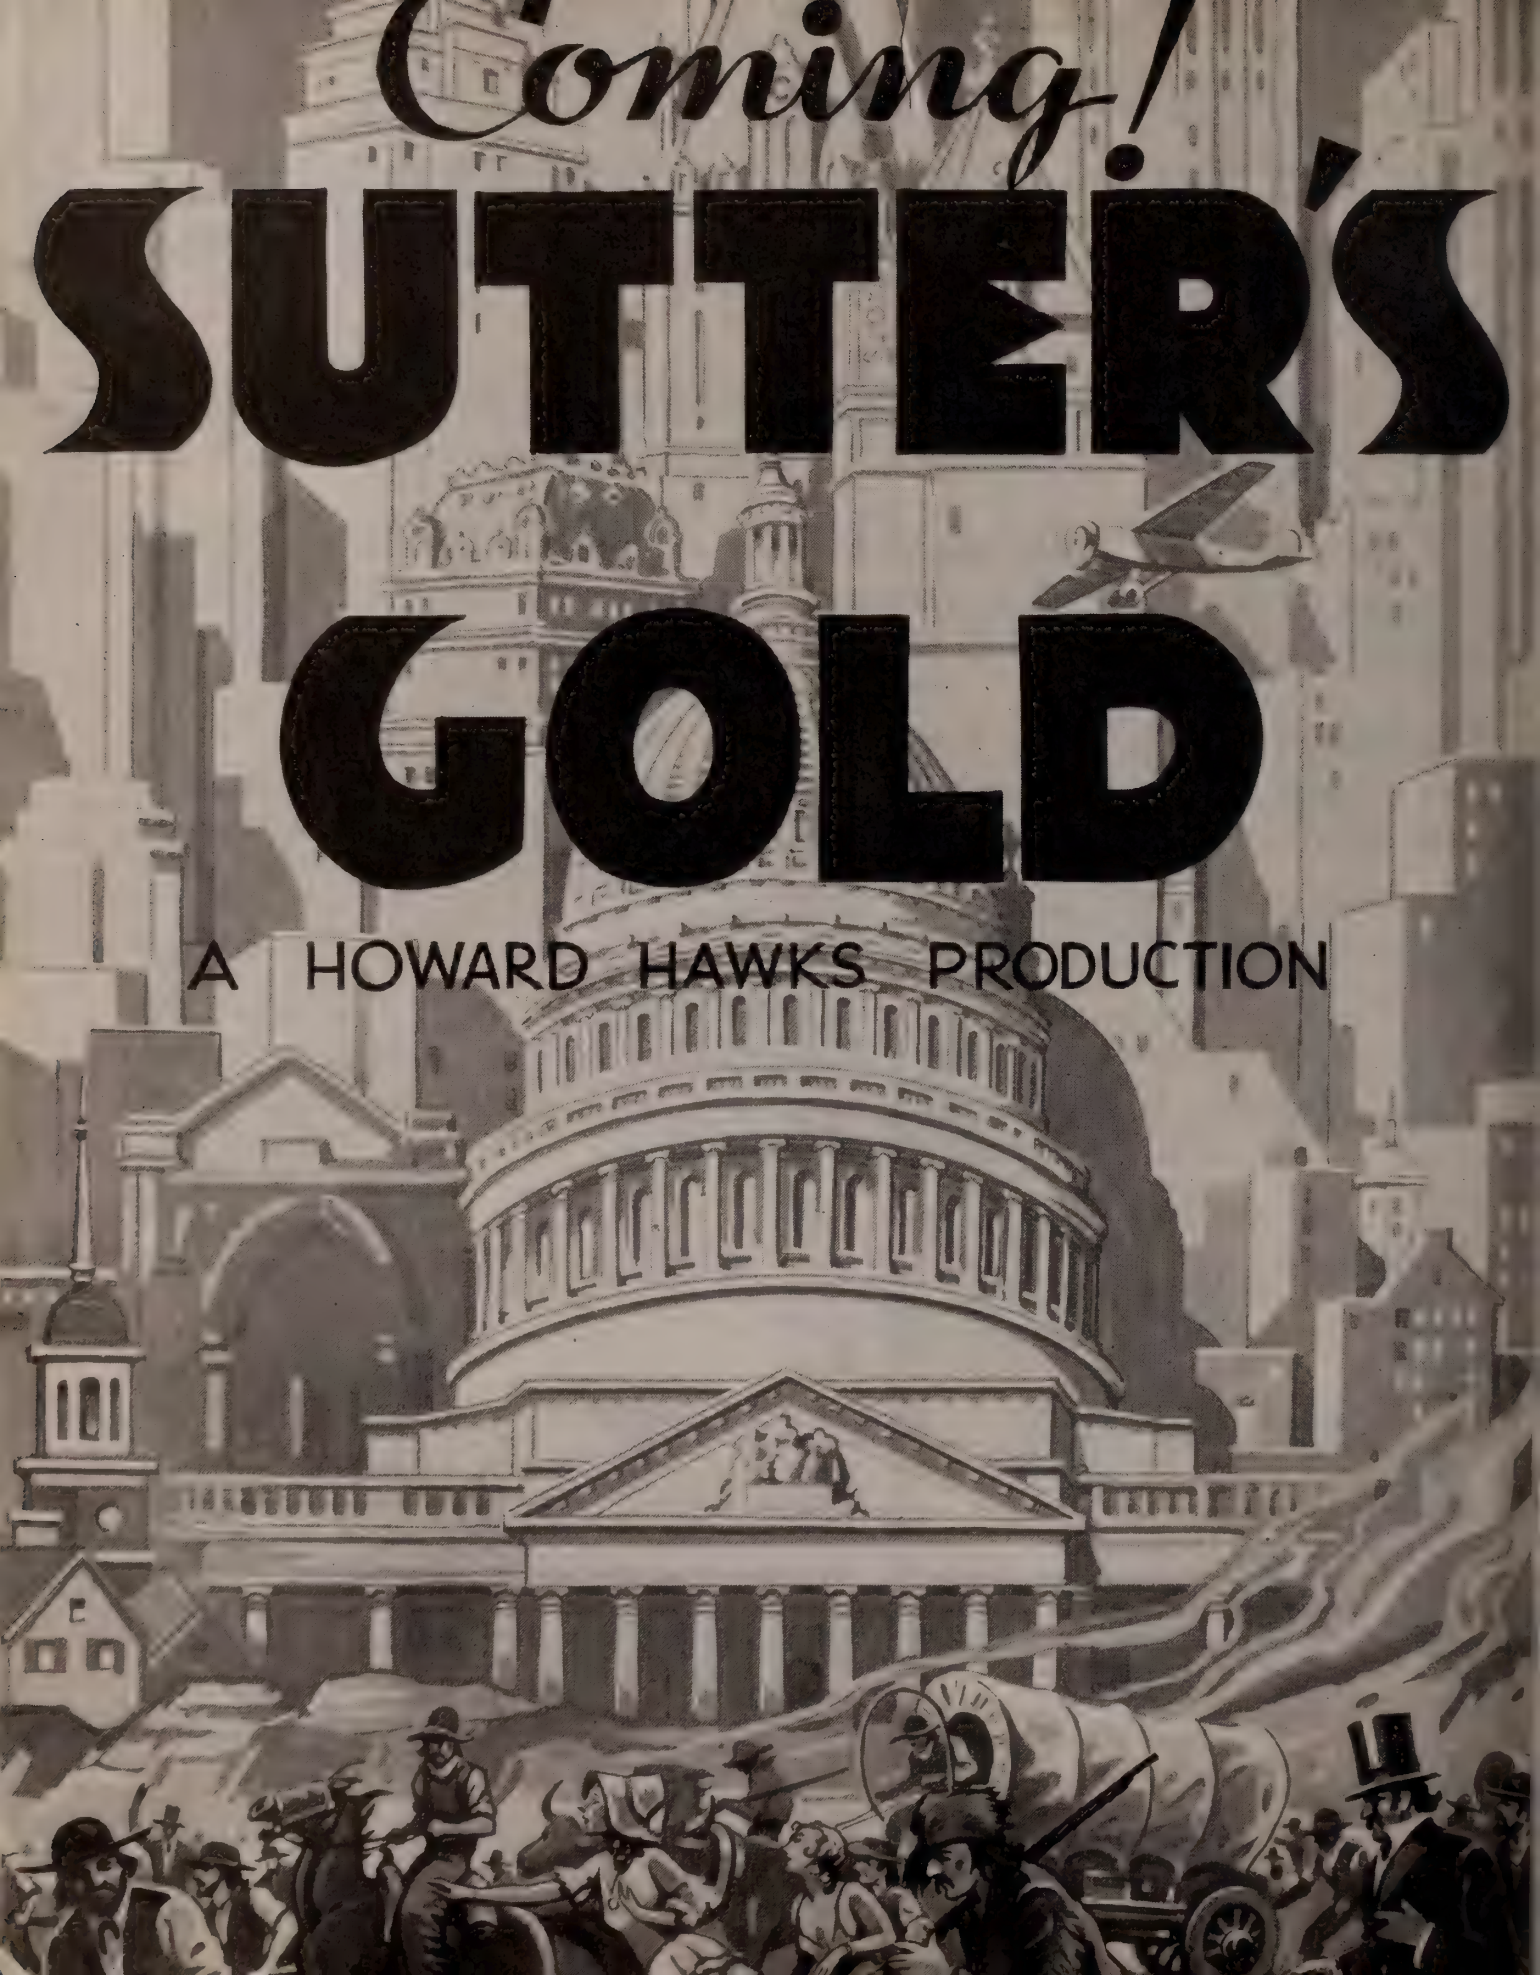
Efforts have been made to ape Universal's method and, as I said before, more efforts will be made to ape it more closely — but an ape is always an ape, and an original is always an original.

Those thousands of you who are using the Universal newsreel year after year must derive a tremendous satisfaction from knowing that you are always a leader.

And that is what you will always be in the newsreel field as long as you stick to the leading newsreel — the only one that is always the best.

Speed . . . action . . . humor . . . humanness . . . newsiness . . . good taste . . : progressiveness . . . . . all these you get in the Universal newsreel, twice every blessed week in the year!

Carl Laemmle



Coming!
SUTTER'S
GOLD
A HOWARD HAWKS PRODUCTION

Carl Laemmle, Jr. On Way To Europe

BENT on a three months vacation abroad, his first foreign trip in six years, Carl Laemmle, Jr. 25 year old general manager of all Universal production, sailed on the "S. S. Santa Rosa" this week on the first leg of a 12,000 miles of sea travel. He will arrive in New York November 3rd.

Accompanied by Harry H. Zehner, his assistant at the studio, Laemmle, Jr. will go to New York via the Panama Canal and then sail for Genoa aboard the "Comptesse de Savoia." From Genoa the young production head will go to Cairo, Alexandria, the Sahara and thence to Palestine, Constantinople, Athens, Vienna, Rome, Venice, Lucerne, Lausanne, St. Moritz, for the holiday season, Monte Carlo, Paris and London.

Young Laemmle has completed five years as studio head without a real vacation. During recent months the young executive's burdens have been many and upon his return from three months abroad himself, Carl Laemmle has insisted that his son take a vacation with studio details completely forgotten.

Laemmle, Sr. will take over production direction during his son's absence with Frank Mastroly, executive studio manager in charge of operations. Productions now under way at Universal City are "Man Who Reclaimed His Head" with Claude Rains, Joan Bennett and Lionel Atwill; "The Good Fairy" co-starring Margaret Sullavan and Herbert Marshall with Frank Morgan heading a large supporting cast; "Night Life of the Gods" which Lowell Sherman is directing with a featured cast of 23 players and "Strange Wives" with Roger Pryor, June Clayworth, Esther Ralston and Hugh O'Connell. "I've Been Around" with Chester Morris, "Straight from the Heart" with Baby Jane, Roger Pryor and Mary Astor and "Princess O'Hara" to enter production early in November.

✚ ✚ ✚

BUYS OPERETTA

STANLEY BERGERMAN has purchased for early production at Universal City, where he is a producer, an operetta by Robert Harris and James Mulhauser. The title is "Sing Me A Love Song."

Baby Jane finds an odd place to take a nap in the studio.

Phil Cahn Made Director

THE last official act of Carl Laemmle, Jr., before surrendering the production reins temporarily to his father, was to promote Phil Cahn to a directorship. Phil Cahn had been one of the most expert of the production corps of film cutters. The production which Cahn will handle is "I've Been Around" by John Meehan, Jr. It will star Chester Morris and will go into production next week, Tuesday.

June Clayworth will not be finished with her role in "Strange Wives" by that time, and will therefore be unable to play the female lead. It will be played by Rochelle Hudson.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

Paul Gulick, Editor
A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, New York City
Universal Pictures Corp.
Copyrighted 1934
(All Rights Reserved)
OCT. 27, 1934
Vol. 35 No. 20

Swell Variety Review Of Universal Broadcast

IN its issue of October 23rd, the radio reports of Variety contained a flattering review of the fifth broadcast of the Editor of the Universal Weekly. This broadcast had to do with Douglass Montgomery, Previous ones have described the human qualities of Binnie Barnes, of Mary Pickford, from the time she was a Universal star, Gloria Stuart and Myrna Loy.

The broadcast tomorrow afternoon will be on Claudette Colbert, the star of "Imitation of Life," and will be followed the following week by a human interest study of Henry Hull, who makes his talking picture debut in "Great Expectations."

Following is Variety's review.

PAUL GULICK
Theatre Chatter
15 mins.
COMMERCIAL WOR, New York

Paul Gulick is sponsored at 5:15 on Sundays. Gary's Style Set, good for the hair, is the sponsor. Program is a bit overboard on commercial copy but better than average in the conversational quarter hour category due to Gulick's intelligent preparation and delivery of his material.

A profile sketch of Douglass Montgomery was given with a good deal of light and shade. Gulick talks about stars in a short-story sort of way. He personalizes the people of whom he is speaking and brings in those colorful little details of everyday idiosyncrasy. He stands out among the tribe of Hollywood-Broadway Boswells to the great or near-great.

LAND

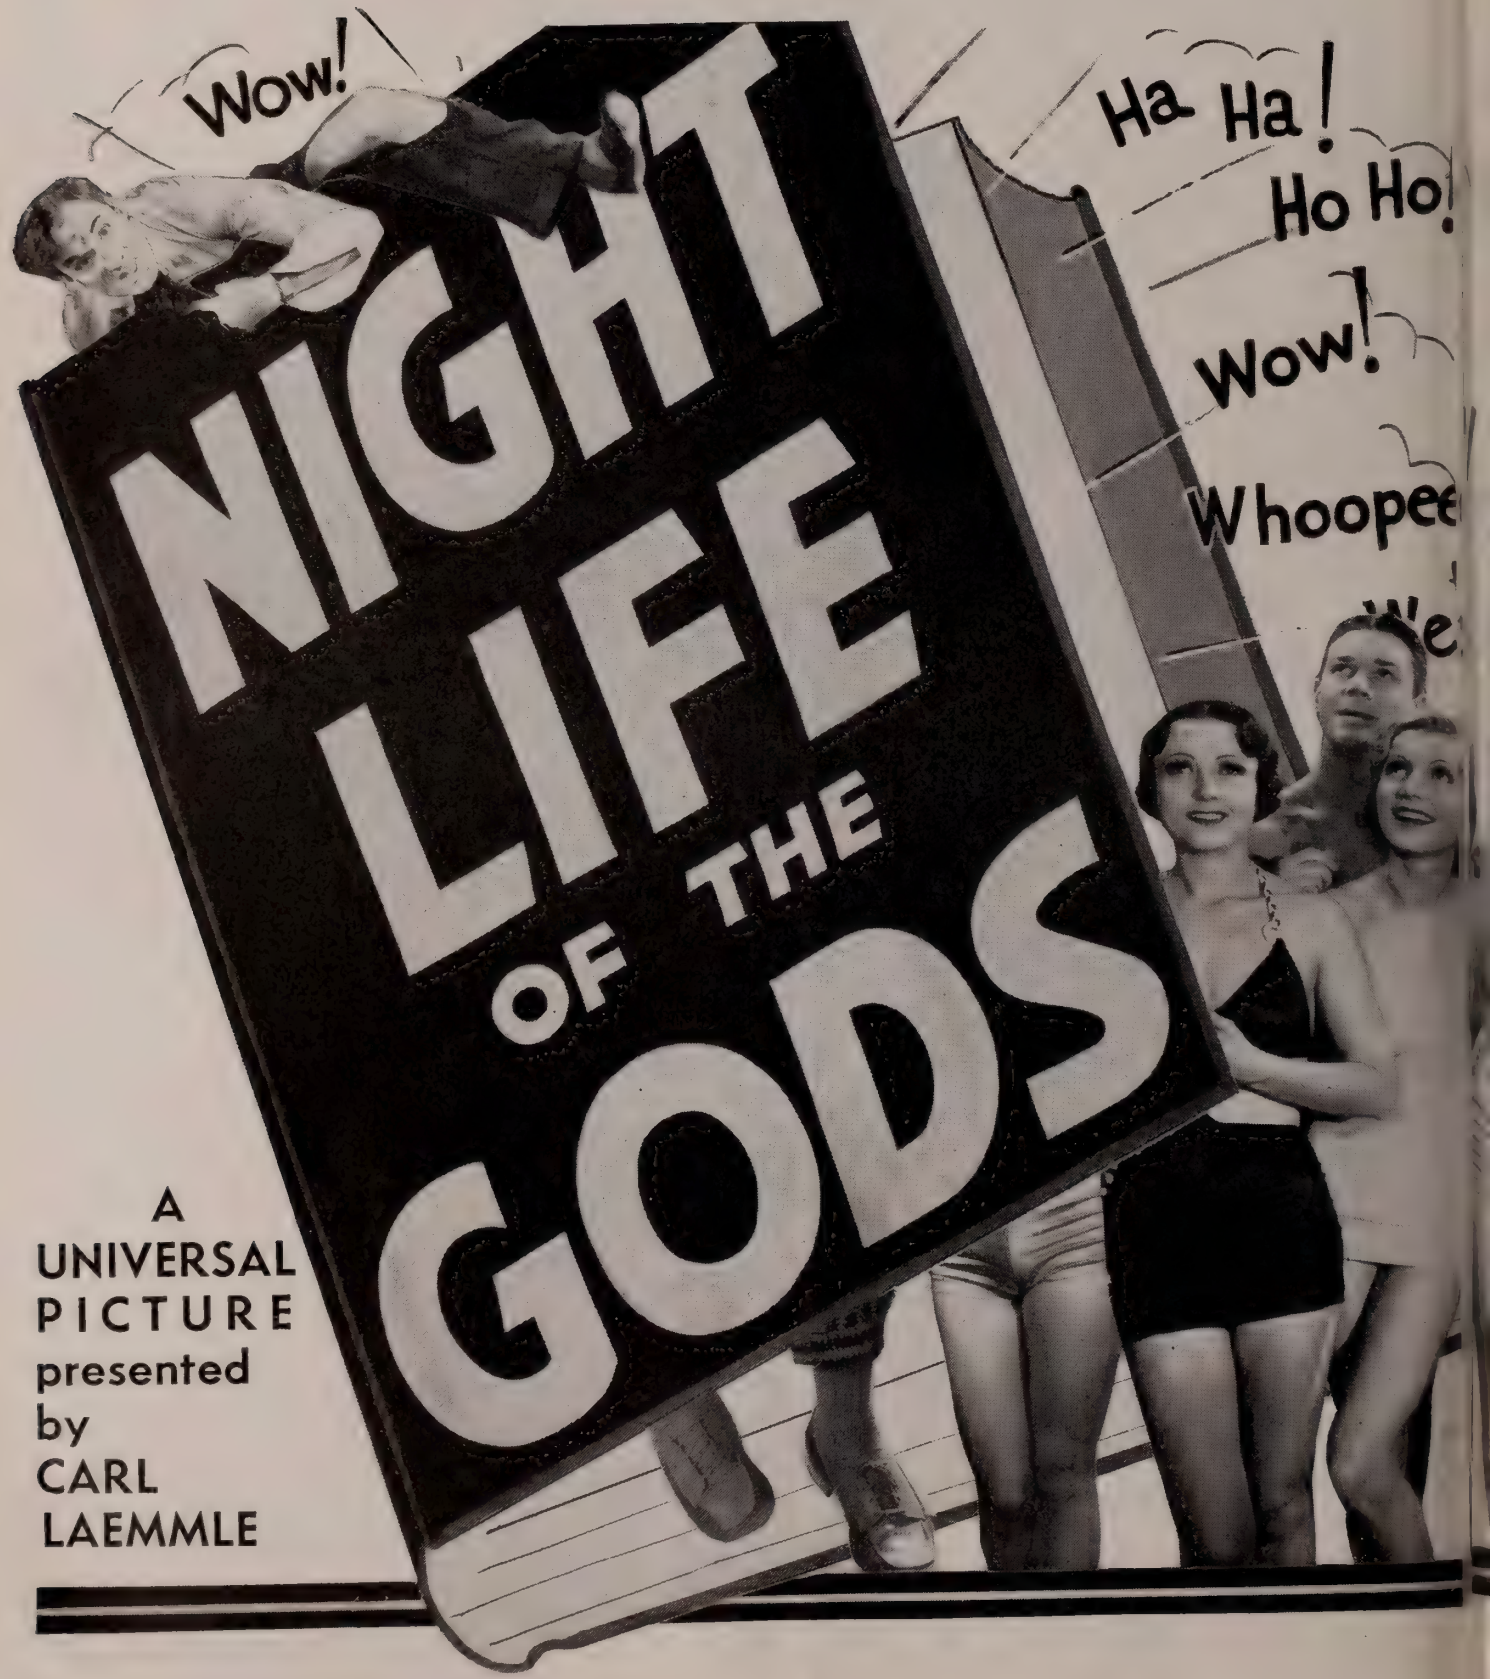
✚ ✚ ✚

WRITERS ACTIVE

AN imposing array of noted writers is found this week at Universal Studios, where production is at fever heat, with four pictures shooting and fifteen in process of preparation.

Zoe Atkins is working on "Food of Love," a yarn for use as a Margaret Sullavan vehicle. Preston Sturges is doing continuity on "The Good Fairy," a Margaret Sullavan—Herbert Marshall yarn. William Anthony McGuire is doing the continuity on "The Great Ziegfeld." John Meehan, Jr., is writing continuity on "I've Been Around," for Chester Morris.

The Book That Rocked T



ne World With Laughter
. . . NOW ON THE SCREEN!

Don't be incredulous; don't be surprised; don't be SHOCKED at ANYTHING you see in this, the maddest comedy ever screened! . . . IT'S ALL IN FUN! . . . Statues come to life! . . . Folks are turned to stone! . . . Broadway's hot spots are turned upside down by a bunch of sports who really know how to go places and do things! . . . IT'S A COMEDY CLEANUP!

LOWELL SHERMAN'S

Uproarious Production of

THORNE SMITH'S

Riotous Novel

"Life Becomes One Set of Whiskers After Another For Veteran Henry Hull"

LIFE has become one set of whiskers after the other for Henry Hull since he played in "Tobacco Road." In that Broadway hit he made up in his rags and false whiskers only once a day, with the exception of matinees. When he made his Hollywood motion picture debut in Universal's "Great Expectations," with Jane Wyatt, Phillips Holmes and Florence Reed, he used five different makeups. The shooting schedule called for him to change these sometimes five times during the day, and play roles as convict, sheepherder, Australian prisoner, gipsy, and returned fugitive, all different phases in the life of one man over twenty years.

Hull's part in "Great Expectations" is that of the convict Magwitch, one of Charles Dickens' major creations. He revelled in playing it, in spite of the hardships it involved. On the first day of production the director Stuart Walker, called on him to fight a rough-and-tumble battle in the liquid mud of a synthetic swamp. Later sequences require him to wage a life and death battle in a river. It was strenuous acting.

The makeups alone were difficult to invent and apply. During the whole picture, which took five weeks to film, Hull wore a set of specially elongated false teeth over his own perfect incisors. This was to give himself a look of especial savagery. So careful was he of details that as Magwitch grows older even the look of his hands changes. Hull accomplished this by pasting fishskin on the backs of his hands to give them the stiff and crackled look of age.

The stage star soon became a very popular member of the Hollywood screen colony. He was liked for his absence of pose. Acting is a business with Hull. He compares it to selling shoes or umbrellas. To him it is very definitely salesmanship. When his day's work at the studio is done his acting for that day is finished. He does not carry his job home with him.

Henry Hull visited New York on Thursday as one of the passengers of the fastest trip ever made by train between Los Angeles and New York. He made four broadcasts from the train, the Zephyr, at station stops. The story on this page is reprinted from last Sunday's New York American.

Although he made a silent picture for D. W. Griffith many years ago, "Great Expectations" is Hull's first important talking film. Unlike most strictly stage personalities who come to the movies for the first time, he finds no great difference in acting for the screen.

He said this however:

"Of course there is some difference. There is bound to be. Perhaps the most important thing a stage actor must remember in screen acting is that every audience of his is sitting in the first row. There is no gallery for the screen. You have to tone down every facial movement and gesture. On the screen you are under the microscope. There, you have to plan your interpretation of a role more carefully for the movies. On the stage you can ad lib or change your facial expressions to get over a bad spot but this will not do for one minute in pictures."

Of course, he missed the audience at first when he began to act in the studio. Facing audiences has been his daily work for so many seasons that feeling lost without one was natural. He has been constantly on the stage since he made his debut with Guy Bates Post in "The Nigger."

He had a four-ply job in this melodrama. He played the Negro boy who is lynched, the State Militia Captain, the doorkeeper of the Governor's mansion and also served as stage manager. The combined roles paid him $25 a week.

This was a bitter disappointment since he had quit gold mining in the frontier camps of Cobalt and Porcupine,

(Continued on Page 22)

UNIVERSAL BUYS "DIAMOND JIM"

Sensational biography of Broadway's most glamorous and famous figure will be the subject of a Universal production in the very near future. Every company was in competition for the right to make a movie of "Diamond Jim." Universal won out.

IMMEDIATELY upon its publication Monday, Carl Laemmle, Jr. made arrangements with Simon and Schuster and with the author, Parker Morell, to acquire the moving picture rights to "Diamond Jim." Contracts will be signed today. This novel presents the most original, the most splendiferous and most independent American of the gay decade, when Broadway was Broadway and spenders were spenders.

James Buchanan Brady acquired his moniker of "Diamond Jim" through the tremendous number of perfect diamonds which he owned and displayed so lavishly in every possible manner. He even had a bicycle made of gold and ornamented with diamonds. He gave one to Lillian Russell, to whom he also made an offer of a million dollars in cash if she would marry him. He was Broadway's best barometer of shows, and attended over 2,500 first nights.

One reason that Carl Laemmle, Jr. was so greatly interested in "Diamond Jim" the minute he read it, was that he saw a tremendous part for a great actor who seemed to be a natural for the part. Negotiations have not been completed for this actor as yet, and for that reason he cannot be announced.

Parker Morell came quite normally into his interest in Diamond Jim Brady. The Morell family have been in the jewelry business for four hundred years. Parker Morell is in business with his father, Alfred Morell, a specialist in fine gems. Many of the diamonds which Diamond Jim Brady had owned passed through the hands of the firm and the romance connected with each stone successively fired the growing enthusiasm of Parker Morell to write the story of the glamorous personality who had owned a full set of jewelry for every day of the month.

Young Morell was born in Bogota, N. J., but lives in Greenwich, Conn. He went to Massachusetts Institute of Technology with the ambition to become an engineer. Here he met Rudy Vallee. He would have graduated in the same class with him if Old Man Calculus hadn't got him down. He got a job on a Boston newspaper and was so interested in newspaper work and writing that he took a course in journalism at Columbia and worked on the New York Sun while also doing press work on the side for Rudy Vallee, with whom he roomed.

Since young Morell has so steeped himself in the story of Diamond Jim, the background against which the sparkling life was lived, and the times and personalities of that high spot in the life of New York's Rialto, one of the stipulations of the contract between him and Carl Laemmle, Jr., was that he go to California to assist in the adaptation of his own story. Immediately after a conference with Carl Laemmle, Jr. in New York, the first week in November, he will take a leave of absence from business and take up his temporary residence at Universal City.

At the right of this story is the reproduction of the clever advertisement which Simon and Schuster put out on "Diamond Jim." It appeared in all of the New York daily papers which concern themselves particularly with novels and attracted a very justifiable attention to the book, which is on the list of the Book-of-the-Month Club and has already received a tremendous buy from book stores prior to its publication. Reviews of the book are appearing now. All of them have been favorable. All of them have declared that "Diamond Jim" Brady was one of the most colorful characters that New York ever produced, and an ideal subject for a motion picture. These reviews will be reproduced in subsequent issues of the Universal Weekly.

from THE INNER SANCTUM of
SIMON and SCHUSTER
Publishers, 386 Fourth Avenue, New York

DIAMOND JIM
... Barnumesque ... Ripleyesque ... Rabelaisian ...

He was the original Great White Wayfarer.

He was the first multi-millionaire to put wine, woman, and song on the pay-roll.

He never drank and rarely sang.

He was America's first capitalist in the roaring nineties and naughty noughties to exploit to the limit the splendiferous and bacchanalian possibilities inherent in the private life of an expense account.

He offered LILLIAN RUSSELL a million dollars in cash to marry him.

He bucked J. P. MORGAN and backed FLO ZIEGFELD — and, believe it or not, won both times.

Lillian Russell

He gave a $100,000 party with a race horse as the guest of honor.

He used a diamond-studded bicycle, with silver spokes, pearl-inlaid handle-bars, and wheels and accessories sparkling with sapphires, rubies, and emeralds.

He owned a jewel set for every day of the month, and accumulated more than 20,000 diamonds and 6,000 other precious stones.

He ran $90 up to $12,000,000, prided himself on being the biggest sucker on Broadway, and liked it.

His name—surprise!—was JAMES BUCHANAN BRADY; a rampaging, Ripleyesque, Rabelaisian book about his life and times—Diamond Jim, by PARKER MORELL—has just been issued in a diamond-studded volume (literally); and if any reader of this column can think of a more fantastic, a more fabulous figure that ever walked the streets of little old New York, he will oblige by sending his name and address to

ESSANDESS

FAY WRAY in CHEATING

Mystery and drama piled on thrills — with laughs spilling over all—and a smash climax! That's ENTERTAINMENT!

With Cesar Romero, Minna Gombell, Henry Armetta, Hugh O'Connell, Francis L. Sullivan. Directed by Richard Thorpe. A Stanley Bergerman Production.

MAX MARCIN'S FAMOUS STAGE PLAY

CHEATERS

LATEST PRODUCTION NEWS FI

One of the intriguing stills from the fantastic Thorne Smith comedy, "Night Life of the Gods," which Lowell Sherman has just brought to completion at Universal City. In its un-cut form it has received the unqualified praise of Carl Laemmle, Carl Laemmle, Jr., and J. R. Grainger, who is now at Universal City. In the picture are George Hassell as Apollo, Irene Ware as Diana, Florine McKinney as the heroine and Alan Mowbray as the hero.

Cast of "Strange Wives" Grows

LAST week the cast of "Strange Wives" included merely Roger Pryor, June Clayworth and Esther Ralston. This week Stanley Bergerman who is making the production has added a long list of prominent players who go into the Edith Wharton production in its second week under the direction of Richard Thorpe. This list includes Doris Lloyd, Ralph Forbes, Leslie Fenton, Claude Gillingwater, Hugh O'Connell, Esther Ralston, Valerie Hobson, Francis Sullivan, Ivan Lebedeff, Carrie Daumery, Walter Waker, Harry Cording and Greta Meyer.

The production also requires a technical director since half of the cast are portraying Russian characters. Edith Wharton's novel dealt with an American business man who married a Russian wife. The Russian wife insisted on bringing her entire family of brothers, sisters and cousins to

(Continued on Page 28)

Universal Sets Productio

AT a final conference between Carl Laemmle, Jr. who started on a three months vacation Saturday, and Carl Laemmle and J. R. Grainger, the schedule of releases for the balance of this year was fixed. The nine productions involved are all in work or completed. They include works by Fannie Hurst, Thorne Smith, Charles Dickens, Edith Wharton and Franz Molnar and they feature Margaret Sullavan, Claudette Colbert, Claude Rains, Roger Pryor, Fay Wray, Warren William, Joan Bennett, Esther Ralston and two new comers June Clayworth and little Baby Jane.

"Great Expectations" brings the work of Charles Dickens to the talking screen for the first time. It is the beginning of a Dickens cycle. It also serves as the talkie debuts for two of the greatest stars of the stage, Henry Hull and Florence Reed. Jane Wyatt and Phillips Holmes are also featured. "Great Expectations" will be released on Octaber 22. In New York, it will be shown in the Music Hall, the world's largest theatre. A week later on November 5th, comes "Cheating Cheaters," Max Marcin's thriller, with Fay Wray and Cesar Romero in the leads.

"Strange Wives," the Edith Wharton story, released on November 12th, brings a new personality to the screen. She is June Clayworth, Broadway stage ingenue, who stepped out of "Are You Decent" into a role at Universal City over night. Roger Pryor is featured with her and the cast includes Hugh O'Connell, Doris Lloyd, Ralph Fay Wray and Cesar Romero in one of the crucial scenes of that great melodrama, "Cheating Cheaters," which thrilled audiences on Broadway ten years ago.

OM UNIVERSAL CITY STUDIOS

Until End of the Year

Forbes, Leslie Fenton, Esther Ralston, Valerie Hobson and Francis Williams.

Claudette Colbert and Warren William, fresh from their success in "Cleopatra" are starred in "Imitation of Life," filmed from Fannie Hurst's novel. John M. Stahl, who made the success, "Back Street," also from a Fannie Hurst story, directed.

"Night Life of the Gods," the November 26th release, was directed by Lowell Sherman from the novel by Thorne Smith, called one of the funniest modern books in years. It has a fantastic idea never before tried on the screen, silent or talking.

Claude Rains,, who created "The Invisible Man" is "The Man Who Reclaimed His Head." The film is released on December 3rd, with Joan Bennett and Lionel Atwill, prominently cast. It is followed on December 10th by "Secret of the Chateau," a mystery with an all star cast.

Baby Jane, three years old, a new child star, appears in "Straight from the Heart" which was written especially for her by Doris Anderson. It will be shown December 24th with Roger Pryor and Mary Astor.

Margaret Sullavan makes her first starring appearance of 1934 on the last day of the year December 31st, in "The Good Fairy" the famous Molnar play. Herbert Marshall and Frank Morgan play opposite her in this screen version of the recent Broadway success.

Margaret Sullavan in the first sequences of "The Good Fairy," when she is supposed to be an orphan in a Budapest orphan asylum, before she grows into the glamorous figure in the later scenes. Some contrast.

Here is the first still from "Strange Wives," showing Roger Pryor and June Clayworth, Universal's newest ingenue, who play the leads in the production of this Edith Wharton story, which is now in production at Universal City.

"Night Life of the Gods" Done on Sherman's Birthday

LOWELL SHERMAN has completed Thorne Smith's comedy, "Night Life of the Gods." Sherman completed it on his birthday and celebrated the double event with an elaborate studio party. He invited the entire cast and the entire corps and crew of his production. It was held in the huge set which contained the swimming pool around which a number of the scenes in the comdey centered..

"Night Life of the Gods" is a unique picture, but it also is a unique thing to have such personages as Venus, Apollo, Bacchus, Diana, Hebe, Mercury, Neptune and Perseus attend a director's birthday. They were all there, in the persons of Marda Deering, Raymond Benard, George Hassell, Irene Ware, Geneva Mitchell, Paul Kaye, Robert Warwick and Pat De Cicco. The complete cast includes Alan Mowbray, Florine McKinney, Peggy Shannon, Richard Carle, Theresa Maxwell Conover, Phillips, Smalley, Wesley Barry, Gilbert Emery, Ferdinand Gottschalk, Douglas Fowley, William (Stage) Boyd, Henry Armetta and Arlene Carroll.

✚ ✚ ✚

Four Hundred In "Good Fairy"

FOUR hundred clerks and customers are working at Universal City this week in the Ferenc Molnar play, "The Good Fairy." Margaret Sullavan and Herbert Marshall are starred in this picture with Frank Morgan, Reginald Owen and Hugh O'Connell. Owing to unexpected objec-

(Continued on Page 28)

LONDON LAUDS "LITTLE MAN"

WELL ACTED, THIS

In praise of "Little Man, What Now?" which is sweeping London because of the success of the picture at the Empire Theatre in its first London run, we have taken the review of the critic of the Daily Mail as a sample of the reviews which are appearing in all of the London papers.

"IN many ways, 'Little Man, What Now?' with Margaret Sullavan and Douglass Montgomery in the chief parts . . . is the most interesting of the new films in London. It is certainly one of the most sincere and one of the best acted. It should appeal with equal strength to those whose interest in films is based on personalities and to those who like to see what a film director has made of a favourite book, for a widely discussed novel has been made the "vehicle" for one of the most-talked of actresses of the past year.

Margaret Sullavan bounded into fame with "Only Yesterday." It is a comment on the relative publicity value of stage and screen work that, although she was already a recognized leading woman in drama, it was this first picture which made the world "Sullavan-conscious."

A prominent role in the stage version of "Dinner at Eight" was her last stage engagement before "Only Yesterday." Years of touring in the States have formed this actress, who ran away from home to go on the stage in 1925, when she was eighteen.

She is so shy that she goes into hiding when the first night of a picture is announced, and fled as far as London when "Little Man, What Now?" was shown in New York.

She is also convinced that her parts are failures, and has that belief entirely to herself.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Her leading man, Douglass Montgomery, used to be known as Kent Douglass. He was more or less forcibly endowed with that name when he signed his first Universal contract. The object of the studio executives was to avoid confusion with the other Montgomerys and

(Continued on Page 28)

"IMITATION of LIFE" will cap the career of Claudette Colbert

GREAT as Claudette Colbert's popularity is right now, it will be increased a hundred-fold when her performance of "Bea" Pullman in Fannie Hurst's "Imitation of Life" comes to the screen. Her interpretation of this colorful, thoroughly modern woman of today, whose problems of life, love and a livelihood constitute in reality only an imitation of life for her, will cause her name to be on everyone's lips. The thousands who are going to see "Imitation of Life" will want to know all they can about the personal side of Claudette Colbert's own life, and as reported to us, it is a very exhilarating, exciting one.

A kaleidoscopic personality is Claudette.

If she takes a boat trip, she would rather travel on a freight ship than in the luxurious splendor of modern passenger liners.

She is an expert photographer and prints and develops her own pictures, but has no pictures whatever on the walls of her home.

She collects jade, perfume bottles, amusing anecdotes and scarf clasps.

Her favorite color is blue, and her favorite actor is her husband, Norman Foster.

She admits that she is a little timid about horses, and for this very reason rides frequently.

Her idea of exhilirating travel is to ride in a taxicab driven by a reckless driver on a rainy day.

Though she has a lively sense of humor, she gets real enjoyment out of good poetry and editorial comment on national affairs.

She has a well-nigh perfect figure and an exceptional taste in clothes.

She is genuinely fond of spinach, and sings in her bath.

Her chief petty extravagances include Irish linen handkerchiefs, hand-made underthings and sheer stockings.

"Imitation of Life" presents Miss Colbert in her greatest screen role. Her supporting cast includes Warren William, Ned Sparks, Louise Beavers, Wyndham Standing, Rochelle Hudson, Baby Jane and many other popular players.

Can hers be an imitation of life? Does the glamorous, vital creature pictured above appear to lead an existence devoid of love, devoted only to duty and the earning of a living? This, however, is the truth about Bea Pullman, portrayed by Claudette Colbert in Fannie Hurst's "Imitation of Life."

Another glorious triumph by the man who directed "Back Street"!

IMITATION OF LIFE

Starring CLAUDETTE

COLBERT

with

WARREN WILLIAM

ROCHELLE HUDSON

Ned Sparks, Henry Armetta, Baby Jane, Alan Hale

•

FANNIE HURST'S Novel made into a great JOHN M. STAHL PRODUCTION

A UNIVERSAL Picture Presented by CARL LAEMMLE

ON

UNIVERSAL

With

HENRY HULL

Phillips Holmes — Jane Wyatt

Florence Reed, Alan Hale, Georgie Breakstone and many, many others. Screenplay by Gladys Unger. Directed by Stuart Walker. A STANLEY BERGERMAN Production — Presented by CARL LAEMMLE.

SMASHES THRU

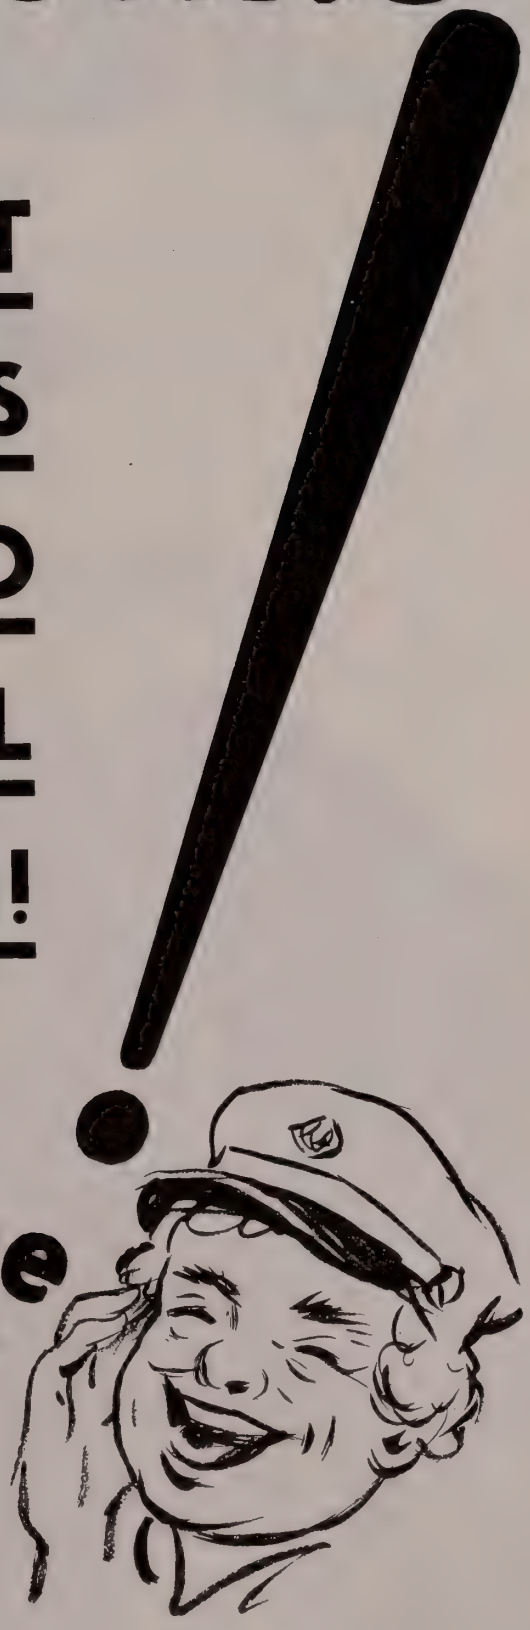
CHARLES DICKENS' + + GREAT

EXPECTATIONS

OPENS AT RADIO

CITY MUSIC HALL

NOVEMBER 15th!



"and that's only the beginning, folks"

BUCK

WHEN A MA

JONES

—comin' at ya like a whirlwind in the second of his

6 WESTERN FEATURES

FOR UNIVERSAL—

N SEES RED

Newsreel No. 295

SOLEMNITY SURROUNDS RITES FOR EUROPE'S SLAIN LEADERS

PARIS, FRANCE.—Foreign Minister Louis Barthou is laid to rest amid impressive ceremonies.—JUGOSLAVIA.—King Alexander's body reaches a home port to receive the tearful homage of his people in a setting of regal pomp.

HAUPTMANN MOVED FOR TRIAL

FLEMINGTON, N. J.—New York grants New Jersey's request for extradition of the Lindbergh suspect. Brought to Runterdon County to face charges of murder.

CLOUDBURST TOPPLES HOMES

LONG BEACH, CAL.—Torrential rain and high winds put the city under water, depositing many feet of mud on streets and gardens.

FINE CATTLE GIVEN AWARDS

KANSAS CITY, MO.—Entries from all over the United States and Canada vie for blue ribbons and cash prizes at the American Royal Live Stock Exposition and Horse Show.

SOPHOMORES CONQUER FROSH

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—Flour-filled bags flail the ears of first-year men as the bitter struggle for inter-class mastery begins at Long Island University.

FORDHAM LOSES TO ST. MARY'S IN BRILLIANT GRID CONTEST

NEW YORK CITY.—The "Galloping Gaels" from the Pacific Coast triumph 14 to 9 over a fighting Ram eleven.

COLLEGE HONORS PRESIDENT

WILLIAMSBURG, VA.—William and Mary confers a doctorate of Laws on President Roosevelt.

ENGLISH WIN LONG AIR RACE

ENGLAND.—Clipping many hours from the record, C.W.A. Scott and T. Campbell Black, British airmen, lead the world's finest aviators to the finish line in the London-Melbourne Speed Derby.

BATHING-GIRLS TURN CUPIDS

VENICE, CAL.—Beautiful young women defy gravity as they practice archery from the fore-decks of speeding motorboats.

CHURCH WORKMEN RISK DEATH

ROME, ITALY.—Suspended hundreds of feet above the ground, daring cleaners, remove the grime from dome of St. Peter's.

"ONE MORE RIVER" GETS FOUR STARS

THE Minneapolis Journal accorded "One More River" four stars when the Galsworthy drama played in its city, and not only this reviewer, but the reviewer of another Minneapolis paper, the Star, gave it a "rave" notice.

Here is the "four star" review:

"There's some magic about 'One More River' that seems to escape me. . . . The point is that the public is taking to it with an enthusiasm which must please W. A. Steffes, manager of the World theatre, managers being notoriously alert to box-office response.

"It is easy to grant that this adaptation of John Galsworthy's last novel is splendidly produced, that the cast is excellent, that the portrayal of English life is first rate.

" . . . the film meticulously follows the book on which it is based. . . . Miss Wynyard's performance is stately, reserved, yet warm and intelligent, and Clive, Lawton, Reginald Denny, C. Aubrey Smith, Jane Wyatt, Lionel Atwill, Gilbert Emery and many others, including Mrs. Pattions for other characterizations."

✚ ✚ ✚

American Story On Henry Hull

(Continued from Page 3)

Canada, because he could make only $30 a week at it, while his brother, Shelley, was getting $200 a week as an actor.

He made his New York debut at eighteen in "Green Stockings." Fame came with his portrayal of Henry Parker in William A. Brady's production of "The Man Who Came Back." Since then he has been in constant demand. He has had featured roles in such successes as "The Cat and the Canary," "Lulu Belle," "Grand Hotel" and, most recently, "Tobacco Road."

Hull was born in Louisville, Kentucky. His father was dramatic critic of the Louisville Courier Journal. He named the boy Henry Watterson Hull in honor of Watterson, the famous editor of the Journal. Hull was educated to be a mining engineer and, later, studied law. He speaks four languages and is married to Juliet Van Wyck Fremont, descendant of the general who won California for the United States in the Mexican War. They have three children.

✚ ✚ ✚

Chicago Prepares Relief Dance

THE entire film industry of Chicago and surrounding territories as well as the great Chicago newspapers, are all excited about this year's Film Relief Dinner Dance. It will take place Friday night, November 2nd at the Medinah Club of Chicago. All the exhibitors throughout the entire territory, independent, chain and neighborhood are vastly interested in the success of this affair. All the great daily newspapers are also interested in it as will be seen from the makeup of the publicity committee under the chairmanship of Herb Elisburg. The committee for this third annual affair which raises funds for the needy in the film business is as follows: Leo Abrams, James Ashcroft, Fred Barto, Louis Blaine, Sam Clark, Ed Davis, Hazel Green, Nat Green, Dan Goldberg, Calvin Hermer, Duke Hickey, Herman Marks, Harry Holquist, Wm. K. Hollander, John Joseph, Chas. Koterba, Joe McCune, Oscar Schenck, Chas. Segner, Al Sobler, Harry Steele, Chas. W. Steffens, Lawrence S. Stein, Jack Thoma, and Joe Wolf.

The Newsreel Scoop On Alexander Murder

SELDOM has a more definite scoop on time been scored than that which Universal Newsreel scored on the murder of King Alexander at Marseilles. Not only did it beat the other newsreels to the London screens, but it beat them to the New York screen, and to the screen of the Pacific coast and most of the intermediate cities.

The letter below, from the manager of the Trans-Lux Theatre, definitely acknowledges priority of the Universal Newsreel, and Red Kann in his paper, the Motion Picture Daily, made a careful check of the time when all of the newsreels reached Broadway and gave Universal Newsreel the victory in New York.

Hollywood Reporter acknowledges the victory of the Universal Newsreel in reaching the screens of Los Angeles first.

Again Universal is far ahead of its competitors in the matter of service on the most important newsreel event of the year.

He Showed It First!

TRANS-LUX MOVIES CORPORATION
247 PARK AVENUE
NEW YORK

October 18, 1934

Mr. R. V. Anderson
Newsreel Sales Manager
Universal Film Exchanges, Inc.
Rockefeller Center, New York.

Dear Mr. Anderson:

May I congratulate you on the speed with which you supplied us with the actual pictures of the "KING ALEXANDER ASSASSINATION." I understand that this was the first theatre in America to show them.

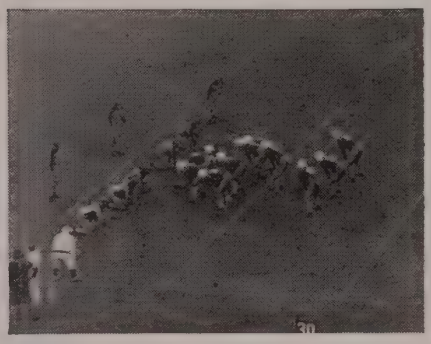
The complete coverage which you gave the story is certainly commendable and our audience was visibly pleased.

Wishing you continued success, I remain

Sincerely yours,

B. J. RYBAK
Trans Lux Movies Corporation

Newsreel No. 294



EXTRA!!

SCOOP!

FIRST ACTUAL PICTURES ASSASSINATION
of
King Alexander and Louis Barthou, Shot Down in Streets of Marseilles by Revolutionist. Furious Spectators Batter Killer to Death As His Victims Die.

MARSEILLES, FRANCE.—First actual assassination pictures—Murder of Barthou and King Alexander killed by mob.

NEW YORK CITY.—Hauptmann seen near Lindbergh estate, claims New Jersey carpenter.

HIGHLIGHTS IN THE NEWS

MEXICO CITY.—Girl gymnasts in gigantic display.

CHICAGO, ILL.—Explosion in cold storage plant wreaks havoc.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Lindbergh again before Federal Air Commission.

NEW YORK CITY.—Rodeo stars perform for hospital tots.

ABERDEEN, WASH.—Milk guzzling cat.

Covers Start Again for Margaret Sullavan

WITH the casting of Margaret Sullavan in her third picture, "The Good Fairy," after a screen absence of two months, the fan magazines are heralding her return this fall with a new barrage of magazine covers.

The season was inaugurated with the July issue of Motion Picture, which carried a head portrait of Miss Sullavan drawn by Marland Stone, New York's famous illustrator.

Next came Golden Screen, with Miss Sullavan decorating its front cover in a painting by Alberto Varges. In August, Screen Book, one of the Fawcett Publications, carried Sullavan on its cover.

The reproduction on this page is from the November (current) issue of Photoplay and it is a striking likeness painted against a background of vivid yellow, bringing out the brown coloring of Miss Sullavan's eyes and hair in expert fashion by Earl Christy.

The next fan magazine to follow with a Sullavan cover will be Screenland, which, in its January issue, on the stands the middle of November, will boast a magnificent color cover by Charles Sheldon. In this issue also will be published a double page spread on the Margaret Sullavan Guessing Contest, details of which will be announced in a short while. It is a sure-interest creator, however, with plenty of useful, valuable prizes offered to winners.

Following closely upon Screenland, will be two Sullavan covers for the month of February, 1935. These magazines, on the stands early in January, are Modern Screen, one of the Dell group, and Classic, one of the Motion Picture Publications. The latter cover design is being painted also by Marland Stone, and Larry Reid, editor of the magazine is enthusiastic about it, declaring it to be one of his punchiest covers.

Margaret Sullavan seems likely to outdo her own record for fan magazine spacegrabbing with her advent in "The Good Fairy." As we go to press, we have word of one-and two-page layouts of production stills from "The Good Fairy," displaying the star prominently in all of them, a fictionization of photoplay in Movie Classic, January number, and several full page gallery portraits of her.

Splendid Product Convinced Them

MAIN STREET THEATRE

Universal Pictures,
Kansas City, Mo.

Warrensburg, Mo., October 11, 1934

Dear Mr. Benjamin:

At the start of the season I was very skeptical as to the merits of your new product. Am happy to be able to advise you that my fears have been completely overcome by the splendid product which you have released so far.

To date have played four of your 1934-35 releases and it has been a pleasure to be able to present such pictures.

Any company should be proud to have such pictures as "THERE'S ALWAYS TOMORROW," "MILLION DOLLAR RANSOM," "GIFT OF GAB," and "WAKE UP AND DREAM," on their release schedule.

Keep up the good work and I am sure that you won't have much trouble selling the so called hard boiled exhibitors.

Yours truly,
(Signed) JOHN GRAHAM

SOUTH STATION THEATRE
SOUTH STATION
BOSTON, MASS.

R. E. MORRISON
MANAGER

TELEPHONE LIBERTY 5560

OPERATED BY TERMINAL THEATRE CO.

JOSEPH M. LEVENSON
PRESIDENT

MAX L. LEVENSON
TREASURER

Sept. 4, 1934.

Mr. A. J. Herman.
37 Piedmont St., City.

My dear Mr. Herman:-

I want to congratulate you on the excellence of your new series "Going Places" with Lowell Thomas. I have been playing short subjects exclusively here at the South Station Theatre for almost three years, and rarely during that time have I exhibited single reel subjects which showed a better combination of good photography, interesting subject-matter and general excellence. Keep up the good work!

Sincerely yours
Joseph E. Morrison Mgr
So Station Theatre.

REGINALD OWEN: VILLAIN OR COMEDIAN?

In "Countess of Monte Cristo" In "The Good Fairy" In "The Human Side"

REGINALD OWEN: a paradox in Hollywood, where most actors are neatly catalogued or definitely "typed." Once a villain, always a villain, as far as the screen is concerned. But here is Reginald Owen cleverly defying the conventional maxims of the film city, and hopping from villainy to comedy and back again or hesitating half-way between the two, as it were, in a semi-villainous role which keeps you guessing until the climax, as to whether he is a deep-dyed rascal, a suave crook, or a well-intentioned blunderer. When Owen comes on the screen, the audience is never sure just how the plot is going to turn; and that audience suspense is his greatest box-office pull.

Right now he is working at Universal City in "The Good Fairy" with Margaret Sullavan and Herbert Marshall, in the role of The Waiter, the erstwhile companion of the little movie usherette who attained wealth and fame. This part leans more toward the whimsical, comedy side than most of his recent roles, and Owen plays it for all it's worth.

The panel of pictures above shows Reginald Owen as the Baron Weineroffsky (left) in "The Countess of Monte Cristo" in support of Fay Wray, his first engagement on the Universal lot. So successful was he in this part of the European gentleman-crook with the irresistible manner, that he was cast in the part of James Dalton, in "The Human Side" (right). But here he played a distinctly different type, a "menace," it is true, but a character with the very best intentions in the world, even though he was at the wrong end of the domestic triangle with Adolphe Menjou and Doris Kenyon the two whose happiness he might have wrecked.

What Owen will play next no one knows, but if the part intrigues him, he is sure to play it well, even though it be the hero of the play. He is well equipped by training to play any sort of a part, having attended Sir Beerbohm Tree's Academy of Dramatic Art in London, graduating at the age of eighteen with honors. He immediately went into His Majesty's Theatre in "The Tempest" and has been on the stage ever since. He came to America to do several Broadway productions, and then Hollywood claimed him. In addition to the work he has done for Universal, Reginald Owen has also been seen in important parts in "Queen Christina," "Voltaire," "House of Rothschild" and "Nina."

✚ ✚ ✚

Two Telegrams Tell "Gift of Gab" Triumph

J J SPANDAU LINCOLN NEB
OMAHA NEB OCT 13 1934

GIFT OF GAB OPENED TO EXCEPTIONAL BUSINESS YESTERDAY AT LINCOLN THEATRE STOP HOUSE CROWDED TO CAPACITY ALL EVENING STOP PICTURE VERY WELL RECEIVED AND COMMENTS MOST ENTHUSIASTIC REGARDS—JERRY ZIGMOND

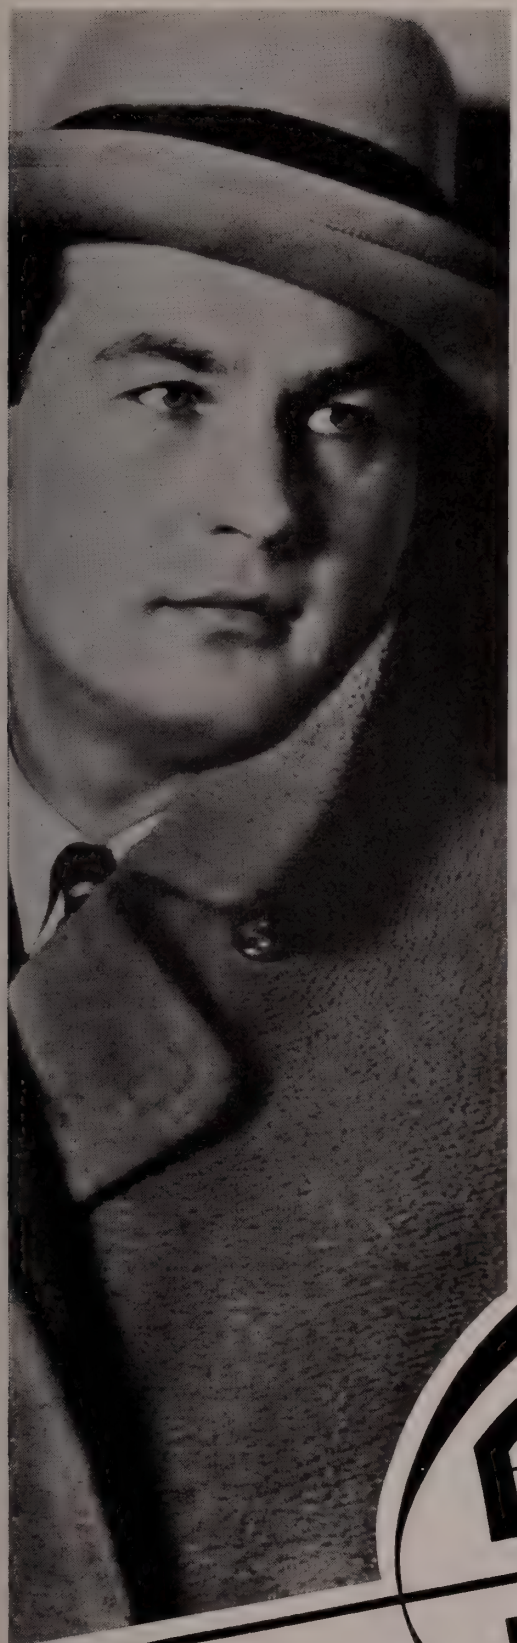
E T GOMERSALL OMAHA NEB
NEW YORK OCT 13 1934

OPENING GIFT OF GAB LINCOLN THEATRE YESTERDAY BEST THIS THEATRE HAS HAD FOR LONG TIME OUTGROSSED THE STUART BY FIFTY PERCENT STOP COMMENTS EXCEPTIONALLY FINE EVERY ONE VERY ENTHUSIASTIC ABOUT THIS FINE PICTURE REGARDS—
J J SPANDAU UNIVERSAL FILM EXCHANGE



MUSICALS

have the call on the big money these days, and one of the most successful of all musicals is—

BE MINE TONIGHT

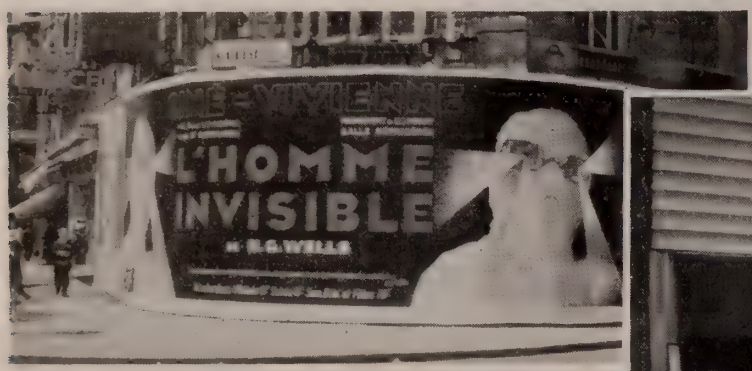
Starring
The Singing Hero
JAN KIEPURA

French Government Gives "Invisible Man" Special Permit On "Artistic Merit"

"UNDER present quota restrictions in France, Foreign language pictures can play in a maximum of five houses in Paris and ten in all the rest of France. On the theory that "INVISIBLE MAN" is an extraordinary artistic production, the Government agreed to let it be shown in ten theatres in Paris and immediate suburbs, and thirty in the rest of France."

—VARIETY

N. B. This is the first time this has ever happened.



Two exploitation pictures taken in front of the Cine Vivienne, the Paris house where "The Invisible Man" had its real Paris premiere. It also played in nine other first-run theatres in Paris and in thirty outside Paris.

"Little Man What Now," London Smash

(Continued from Page 14)

Douglasses in films.

After he had made good, Kent Douglass secured a starring engagement on the New York stage — as Douglass Montgomery. When he returned to Hollywood he was strong enough to insist on using his own name in films.

These two artists are admirably teamed in "Little Man, What Now?" In their depiction of these two victims of circumstance, Margaret Sullavan and Douglass Montgomery achieve a really affecting realism.

We feel that we are seeing not individuals but Man and Woman up against the problem of the future, the problem posed by the young couple to their first-born in the phrase, "Little Man, What Now?"

There are two outstanding humorous characterizations: DeWitt Jennings as the corn dealer, and Alan Hale as a gentleman adventurer who in the end goes to prison singing merrily because he has given the young couple a dinner and the girl a new dress.

With all its rich comic background "Little Man, What Now?" is fundamentally a story of sentiment, and it is by the touching realism of its picture of the boy-girl lovers in their fight against the world that it will appeal most strongly.

This is, in fact, a very clever film of a very clever book. Artistic direction and skilful characterization could safely have been assumed from the name of Frank Borzage. And Hans Fallada, the farmer-author of "Little Man, What Now?" has provided a theme of Universal application and a positively embarrassing wealth of picturesque characters.

Cast of "Strange Wives" Grows

(Continued from Page 12)

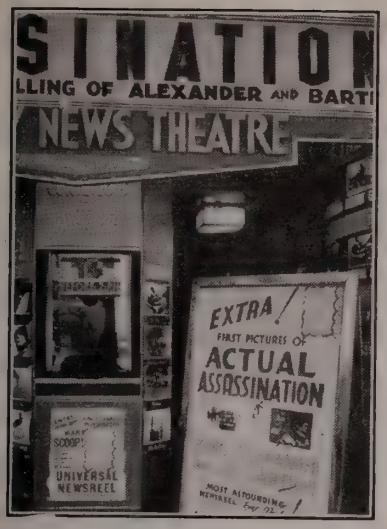
this country and finding openings and matrimonial prospects for them. In the end all of these "promotions" worked out so well that the American business man found himself sitting on the top of the world. Nicholas Koplansky who was the technical director of the Russian scenes of "British Agent" has been engaged for this technical work on "Strange Wives."

Four Hundred In "Good Fairy"

(Continued from Page 13)

tion to some of the daring scenes Preston Sturges is writing the script for the production only a day or so ahead of William Wyler's shooting schedule.

The great influx of extras is due to the scenes in a Hungarian department store supposedly in Budapest which were reproduced in Universal's largest sound stage. The entire production has a Hungarian background.



Embassy Newsreel Theatre, N. Y.

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
SHOWMANSHIP
SECTION
A DIGEST OF THE BEST
EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

CONVERT GREAT NEWSREEL DRAMA INTO B. O. CASH

Smart showmen all over the country grabbed a lot of extra money for their theatres by playing up big, Universal's King Alexander assassination pictures in their lobby displays and in newspaper advertising. Other less alert showmen gave no emphasis to these unusual pictures and therefore did not bring in any extra money on this unusual newsreel.

There are many times during the year when special newsreel subjects can draw FEATURE money at your box-office if you put them over right. Wise showmen are wide-awake and watching eagerly for such opportunities. The World Series, the Morro Castle disaster, the assassination of King Ferdinand were happenings that caused tremendous excitement everywhere and made people rush to theatres THEY KNEW WERE SHOWING PICTURES OF THE EVENTS. They KNEW because the live wire manager ADVERTISED the specials.

WATCH YOUR NEWSREEL SYNOPSIS SHEETS. Have special boards for your lobby ready to play up newsreels of a special local interest.

WATCH YOUR NEWSPAPER HEADLINES! Have your lobby artist ready to turn out some smash banner copy the minute you hear of a big event breaking which the newsreels are bound to cover!

Make a habit of cashing in on your newsreel. It costs Universal a fortune to bring you some of the shots that run on your screen only a few minutes. They are precious. And they are box-office—IF YOU ADVERTISE THEM QUICKLY!

JOE WEIL

N. Y. RIALTO FEATURES ACE FRONT FOR "GAB"

NO place knows or uses the 'gift of gab' better than Broadwayites. Consequently when Arthur Mayer of the Rialto Theatre set in "Gift of Gab" he decided to give the picture a real whirl.

In fact he gave it two speedy whirls right on the bang-up front, pictured below. In the upper corners of the panel over the entrance he arranged vivid color drums and moving belts that rotated constantly and were illuminated from within with flasher lights. The effect stopped the huge crowds passing the theatre and drew their attention to the rest of the showman-like front where Mayer capitalized on the thirty stars angle, and stressed the four hit song numbers. The photo above shows one of the fifty shirt windows tied up through the Edmund Lowe shirt promotion.

You tell 'em, Herald!

Stranger Than Fiction
(Universal)
Interesting

There is considerable general interest in this subject, number three of the series, with James Wallington, popular radio announcer, supplying the accompanying descriptive material. Pictured: alligators having teeth pulled; a young negro turned white; the activity of a Paris fish hospital; the pair of zebras, used by a St. Louis milk company to draw a wagon; the Canadian who uses steel hands with remarkable skill; a girl who uses her toes in uncanny fashion; the Arizon woman who catches snakes for a living—and a good one. Diversified, and of general interest.—Running time, 8 minutes.

The eye and ear-catching ballyhoo put on the street by Gus Lampe, Manager, Eckel Theatre, Syracuse through the co-operation of Wurlitzer's.

"GIFT OF GAB" GETS FINE ECKEL, SYRACUSE SEND-OFF

ON "Gift of Gab," Gus Lampe, manager of the Eckel Theatre, gauged his campaign to pull out all the radio stay-at-homes as well as the movie fans.

The radio was one of his best bets. For three weeks in advance of the opening the most popular bands on the air broadcast the four hit song numbers. Six window displays in the city's finest music stores, featured the sheet music and records.

Here is the big flash "Gift of Gab" front at the Eckel Theatre, Syracuse, N. Y. Note the giant electric sign used to sell the picture.

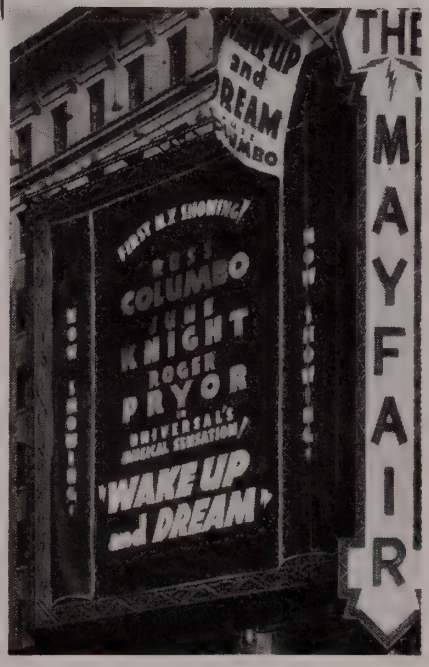
Because Phil Baker uses a Wurlitzer accordion, the local stores co-operated by providing a flash street ballyhoo, window displays and newspaper ads. The ballyhoo, as can be seen in the photograph above, featured a group of accordion students supplied by the Wurlitzer School of Music.

Other tie-ups which Lampe used to good advantage were: the Edmund Lowe shirt—6 windows; Gloria Stuart fashions—2 displays; Armour's—snipes on 12 dealer windows; Union Leader tobacco—100 cards for window and counter displays. Postal Telegraph, took advantage of several flash scenes in the picture showing the time in different parts of the world on Postal clocks. They arranged a lobby display of similar clocks showing the time in Syracuse as compared to the time in other important world cities. They also distributed 3,000 heralds tying up their service and the picture.

The front was exceptionally attractive, using special art, posters, enlargements, stills and electric signs to sell the 30 Star Sensation and the great cast. The songs from the picture were played over an amplification system on the marquee. Albert Nathan, Universal exploiteer assisted.

PALACE, CHICAGO, PLUGS "GIFT OF GAB" MUSIC

FRANK SMITH, Manager and John Joseph ,Publicity Manager for the Palace Theatre, Chicago, Ill., realizing the selling power of the catchy tunes in "Gift of Gab" made a concentrated drive to get them plugged by all radio stations and hotel orchestras. They did this in two ways, through the radio station and hotel orchestras, and the many music stores. Arrangements were made with the radio station announcers to mention the title, theatre and play dates whenever the numbers were broadcast. The co-operation of the music stores netted Smith and Joseph flashy window and counter displays.



This "Wake Up and Dream" banner covers the entire Seventh Ave. front of the Mayfair Theatre, New York City. Brightly illuminated, it was visible for blocks up and down Broadway. Credit Leo Justin, Manager and Stockton Leigh, Publicity Manager.

"WAX" FIGURE MAN HELPS SELL "WAKE UP"

A TIE-UP that incurred no expense but brought excellent results for the showing of "Wake Up and Dream" at the Virginia Theatre, Champaign, Ill. was one of the outstanding features of the campaign conducted by Grant A. Martin, Manager. As part of the Roger Pryor shirt tie-up two of the city's biggest haberdashery stores employed Renaude LeClair, the "wax figure" man as a ballyhoo for both the shirt and the picture. LeClair paraded the streets with mechanical movements, carrying a sign announcing the showing of the picture and the store's display of the shirts.

GOOD SHOWMANSHIP IN THESE ADS

(1.) Smart star ad in 2 columns x 9" from Lyceum, Winnipeg, Canada. (2.) Attractive single column x 3½" from Rialto, Louisville, Ky. (3.) Two column x 3½" from Stanton, Philadelphia, Pa. with excellent layout and plenty of class. (4.) Three column x 3½" from Mayfair, New York City. (5.) Punchy copy sells this 2 column x 10" ad from Granada, Sioux Falls, S. Dak

Coming!

CLAUDE RAINS

in

The

MAN WHO RECLAIMED HIS HEAD

From

UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.

ROCKEFELLER CENTER

NEW YORK CITY

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
Paid
Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

NEW BABY FACE ON SCREEN

—

Baby Jane

Who was selected by John Stahl for an important role in "Imitation of Life" and signed by Carl Laemmle, Jr. to a long term contract.

•

Larry Edmunds Bookshop
6658 Hollywood Blvd.
Hollywood, Calif. 90028
HO 3-3273
World's Largest Collection
Of Books on Motion Pictures

Printed in U.S.A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

BRITISH EDITION
VOL. 36 • No. 3
DECEMBER 1, 1934

Best luck
Edmund Lowe

EDMUND LOWE
in
"Gift of Gab"

NIGHT LIFE of the GODS

A Comedy Colossus!

IMAGINE

what the boys are going to say when HEBE (the filler of the pitcher) comes to life on Broadway to give them a new thrill! . . . Whoopee . . . she's changed her pitcher for a high hat...and does she step out? . . . Wait and see!

•

THORNE SMITH'S
Great Novelty Comedy

•

A
LOWELL SHERMAN
PRODUCTION

COMING SOON!!

Gale

Universal's brilliant adaptation of John Galsworthy's "Over the River" introduced Jane Wyatt to the screen. Now see her as Estella in "Great Expectations." A sensational newcomer.

THERE IS ONLY ONE

No. 741 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, Chairman of Universal Pictures, Ltd.

There can be only one "best newsreel in the world"—and Universal makes it.

The whole trade knows it.

Universal has always had a smart newsreel. It has always been the leader.

But when sound came into the picture business, Universal took a sudden extra leap which has kept it ahead of the pack for several years.

Frantic efforts have been made (and will be made) to catch up with the Universal newsreel. Some of them may almost succeed, but never quite! No imitation in the world is on a par with the real thing.

Universal was the first to solve the newsreel problem when sound came to the business—the problem of how to use sound and yet make no sacrifice of speed. A newsreel without speed is not worth a tinker's damn.

"BEST" NEWSREEL!

Efforts have been made to ape Universal's method and, as I said before, more efforts will be made to ape it more closely — but an ape is always an ape, and an original is always an original.

Those of you who are using the Universal newsreel year after year must derive a tremendous satisfaction from knowing that you are always a leader.

And that is what you will always be in the newsreel field as long as you stick to the leading newsreel—the only one that is always the best.

Speed . . . action . . . humour . . . humanness . . . newsiness . . . good taste . . . : progressiveness . . . . . all these you get in the Universal newsreel, twice every blessed week in the year!

Carl Laemmle

"GREAT EXPECTATIONS" COMES TO

Universal's Super Production Shown on Walls of Author's London Study

Modern Miracle of the Talkies

WITH innumerable portraits of the great author himself looking down upon the scene from the wall, the study of the Dickens House, Doughty Street, London, W.C.1, became the scene of the strangest first presentation a motion picture has yet received.

There, in the room where Charles Dickens created many of his immortal characters, the men and women, boys and girls of "Great Expectations" came to life through the medium of Universal's super production of the famous story. Such a screening was undoubtedly a showmanship masterstroke, being unquestionably the finest piece of exploitation seen in this country since the advent of talking pictures.

Space for the screening in the study was so limited that only 16 of the most eminent Dickensians could attend the show. Surrounded by prints, busts, portraits, and etchings of both the author and the beloved people his pen created, they watched, fascinated, as Magwitch, Pip, Estella, bluff Joe Gargery, the shrewish Mrs. Gargery, pitiful Miss Havisham and the many other dearly-loved people of "Great Expectations" told their dramatic and thrilling story.

When the curtain was at last rung down in the study, the spontaneous outburst of applause told its own story vividly enough that Universal's picture had passed the acid test.

The Dickensians present included Sir Andrew Taylor, Chairman of the Dickens Trustees, Mr. A. W. Edwards, Hon. Secretary of the Trust and the Dickens Fellowship, Mr. Walter Dexter, Hon. Editor of the "Dickensian," Major-General H. S. Neville White, C.B., M.V.O., and others, who gave it as their opinion that not only does "Great Expectations" provide magnificent screen entertainment, but the whole picture is carried through in the true Dickensian tradition, and will certainly give complete conviction everywhere it is shown.

Actual scene in the study of the Dickens House, London, during the screening of "Great Expectations."

Universal's Brilliant Royal Wedding Scoop

Exclusive Newsreel Recording of Abbey Ceremony

Voices of the Duke and Duchess

A BRILLIANT scoop for the Universal Talking News over the Royal Wedding is announced by S. F. Ditcham, who states that the Universal newsreel was the only one to contain the wedding ceremony at Westminster Abbey, with the actual voices of Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Kent as part of the recording.

The full story of the scoop, as given to us yesterday by Mr. Ditcham, is as follows :

The recording of the ceremony is one of the greatest newsreel triumphs of modern times. Every word of the responses by the Duke of Kent and Princess Marina, and the individual plighting of their troths, is heard with exceptional clarity, as are the words of the Primate conducting the ceremony.

Completing this remarkable achievement is the recording of the magnificent Abbey organ during other parts of the ceremony.

The pictorial side of the actual wedding is covered by many shots of the only official picture to be taken in the Abbey. Long shots, close-ups of the bride and bridegroom, the bridesmaids, the King and Queen, and the Prince of Wales, give a wonderful impression of the brilliant scenes in the Abbey.

Mr. Ditcham further stated that Universal sent every newsreel subscriber a Stop Press edition of the wedding on Thursday, while every release customer received a full-length film, including the Abbey ceremony, by yesterday (Friday) morning.

The Abbey scenes were in addition, of course, to the complete record of the wedding procession, both to and from Westminster.

THE SCREEN IN DICKENS HOUSE!

Press Declares First Great Dickens Talkie "Excellent Entertainment"

Following the screening of "Great Expectations" at the Dickens House, this being the first time the film was shown in this country, the Universal-Dickens picture was trade shown at the Adelphi Theatre, London, to a representative audience which packed the theatre to the doors. In the audience as a guest of Universal was Phillips Holmes, who plays the part of Pip as a young man in the picture.

Rave reviews by all the critics were printed after the screening. These reviews are quoted on another page of this issue of the Universal Weekly, but a few extracts will show the triumphant praise given to "Great Expectations" in the Press.

"The Star" said : "Makes excellent screen entertainment . . . . all the characters live and the story has suspense value throughout seldom seen in a film." The "Morning Advertiser" critic wrote : "Ideal entertainment for young and old. I recommend all to see this."; while the "Impartial Film Report" said : "A delightful screen interpretation of Charles Dickens' famous novel . . . . a credit to all concerned." "Delightful entertainment with obvious box-office possibilities," wrote "The Cinema," adding "the picture came in for sustained applause," and the "Daily Film Renter" commented "Offers abundant drama making attractive entertainment . . . a thoroughly competent piece of work."

Famous Dickensians photographed outside the Dickens House after the "Great Expectations" screening. Group includes Sir Andrew Taylor, Chairman of the Trustees, Mr. A. W. Edwards, Hon. Secretary, and Mr. Walter Dexter, Hon. Editor of "The Dickensian."

"Imitation of Life" Smashing Roxy Records !

"Imitation of Life," the Universal super of supers, starring Claudette Colbert and Warren William, which will soon be seen in this country, has scored a triumphant hit on its premiere screening in New York. Details of this are contained in a cable to Universal from the New York office.

The cable reads as follows :—

" 'Imitation of Life' a smash hit at the Roxy. Opening sensational. Fans, critics raving here. Few samples : TIMES : Gripping, powerful. SUN : Audience eating it up. AMERICAN : Packed with tear-drenched, poignant drama daringly done. Colbert approaches perfection. DAILY NEWS : Perfectly corking performance. TRIBUNE : Played admirably. MIRROR : A treat for the women. Handsomely made. Splendidly acted. DAILY VARIETY : Should rate high in box-office strength. Surefire for audiences."

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors of the U.K.

Published by Universal Pictures Ltd., Film House, Wardour St., W.1
Carl Laemmle, Chairman
S. F. Ditcham, Managing Director

Editors :
J. Leslie Williams
David Bader

Vol. 36 Dec. 1, 1934 No. 3

Get Ready For A

It's bigger than "Back Street"— bigger than "Only Yesterday" —bigger than any other picture you've had for many, many weeks or are likely to get in many, many more!... The perfect BIG-CROWD attraction from star, story, author, director and every other possible standpoint . . .

Starring

CLAUDETTE COLBERT

with WARREN

WILLIAM

ROCHELLE HUDSON

Ned Sparks Henry Armetta

Presented by CARL LAEMMLE

A

JOHN M. STAHL

Production For

UNIVERSAL

Screen Sensation!

Margaret Sullavan Weds Her Director

Margaret Sullavan

Thriller Revivals Good

Prominent Exhibitor's Successful Screening of "Old Dark House"

Support for the revival of famous thrillers is forthcoming from P. E. Giles, General Manager of the Scala, Liverpool, who states that the revival of Universal's Karloff thriller, "The Old Dark House," was a decided success. "The film was accorded a wonderful reception," Mr. Giles writes, "and in spite of bad weather, the opening of a new super cinema close by, election time, and the fact that the film has played the territory before, business was well above average and the picture still stands as a good money-maker."

WATCH FOR "CHEATING CHEATERS"!

WILLIAM WYLER

Romance of "The Good Fairy"

ROMANCE with a capital "R" came on to "The Good Fairy" set the other day when Margaret Sullavan, star of the picture, and William Wyler, the director, linked arms, and, after a romantic aeroplane dash to Yuma, Arizona, became man and wife.

This studio romance came as a complete surprise to Universal executives, both in America and London, who were astonished to find front page splash stories the following morning in all the national dailies detailing the marriage of the happy couple.

Two months ago Margaret Sullavan and William Wyler had not met. Then Wyler was assigned to direct Miss Sullavan's third starring picture, "The Good Fairy," and, from that moment, it appears, the studio romance was born. But even Cupid's work had to wait upon studio activities, and it was not until the last shot was taken on "The Good Fairy" that director and star stepped into an aeroplane bound for Yuma—and arrived back, as Mr. and Mrs. Wyler, by 'plane the same evening at Universal City!

(Continued from Col. 3)

The "Hollywood Filmograph" selects Gladys Unger, the adapter, for special praise, saying: "For those who know their Dickens, who never spared words even when writing about a chimney-pot, too much praise cannot be lavished upon Miss Unger for keeping the screen story so close to the original that it lost nothing by the transcribing and, in fact, added to one's interest by holding the mystery with a delicate touch. Stuart Walker showed infinite care in his direction and deep study as to his characters, which he played across the screen to the profound interest of the audience.

"GREAT EXPECTATIONS" TRIUMPHS IN U.S.

"EXCELLENT ENTERTAINMENT" says "VARIETY"

THAT Universal, in producing the first of the current cycle of Dickens films, has scored an outstanding success with "Great Expectations" is shown by the praise showered unanimously on the film by the American Press.

Calling the picture "a well-rounded entertainment that leaves a memorable impression," "Variety" goes on to state that " 'Great Expectations' offers excellent entertainment, and looks headed for important grosses. Henry Hull as the convict and Florence Reed in the role of the loveless woman who plants hatred and selfishness in young hearts like dragon's teeth, vividly and superbly dominates the cast. Phillips Holmes interprets the role of Pip with conviction, and Jane Wyatt tellingly enacts the part of Estella. Stuart Walker's direction is highly commendable for its sincerity, its persuasive mood and deft handling of character interplay—in fact, every name connected with the production makes a definite contribution."

"A Credit To All"

"The picture is a credit to Universal and all those who had anything to do with its making," says the "Hollywood Reporter." "Universal has romped home with the first Dickens' picture of the year, which scores a well-earned victory in every department of its production. There is perhaps more audience appeal in this particular Dickens' story than in a great many of his more familiar works, due to the fact that there is a great mystery in it, so that active audience interest is created and held right from the opening scenes to the end. Henry Hull and Florence Reed are superb in their parts, Phillips Holmes comes through with the performance we always knew he could give, Jane Wyatt is very good and utterly believable, and don't forget the children, who play the hero and heroine as kids. George Breakston and Ann Howard are really child ACTORS."

(Continued in previous column)

"Are You a Mason?" on Broadway

Universal-Twickenham Production at the Westminster

Another Broadway triumph for a Universal-Twickenham production has been achieved in the booking of "Are You A Mason ?" for a premiere run at the Westminster Theatre, Broadway. This follows closely on the heels of the Universal-Twickenham Edgar Wallace thriller, "The Man Who Changed His Name," also at the Westminster.

"Are You A Mason?" is the Sonnie Hale-Robertson Hare comedy, based on the famous stage success. It played the Empire, Leicester Square, for its premiere, and followed at the Marble Arch.

Universal in Colour Cartoon Field

"JOLLY LITTLE ELVES"

Universal's contributions to the coloured cartoon field this season will take the form of a series of "Cartune Classics in Colour," the first of which, "Jolly Little Elves," was screened with "Gift of Gab" at the Prince Edward Theatre trade show, in November.

The colour work, executed by the Technicolour process, is reported to be perfect, while Universal prophesy that the theme song of the cartoon, "The Dunking Song," will be a hit of the pantomime season.

Reprinted from "The Star," Tuesday, November 20, 1934.

Film Box-Offices Will Welcome Dickens

"Great Expectations" a Fine Picture. By Richard Haestier

Had Charles Dickens been alive to-day, he would have been in great demand as a writer for the films.

I have come to this conclusion after seeing Universal's production of "Great Expectations," which I confess I was a little surprised to find makes excellent screen entertainment.

The picture is not to be put into a programme anywhere immediately, but the producers are so proud of their achievement that they showed it to the critics and members of the Dickens Fellowship at the first opportunity and with as much Dickensian atmosphere as possible.

In Dickens's Study

This was achieved first by an old English lunch at the Cheshire Cheese and then the screening of the picture in the room which Dickens used as a study when he lived in Doughty-street, W.

Had the famous novelist's ghost been present I do not think he would have rattled his chains or made any manifestations of his disapproval.

That, I think, is the highest praise one can give the producers.

Universal have treated Dickens with respect — which is more than Hollywood usually accords the great.

If anyone doubts that Dickens was a grand story teller this film should correct the error, for even in the guise of a talkie all the characters live and the story has suspense value throughout, seldom to be seen in a film. It is well acted and photographed.

Henry Hull, Convict

Honours, I think, go to Henry Hull, who plays the convict Magwitch vigorously but without strain. Phillips Holmes is Pip as a young man. He gives an intelligent and highly satisfactory performance.

Francis L. Sullivan, who went to Hollywood a few months ago, is the lawyer.

More to Follow

The outstanding performance by women are those of Jane Wyatt as Estella and Florence Reed as Miss Havisham.

"Great Expectations" is the first of a batch of Dickens's works that are being filmed. If all the other productions are as good as this, cinema proprietors will be glad to see them because they will have a unique box-office appeal that should prove satisfactory to audience and exhibitor alike.

Claudette Colbert and Rochelle Hudson in a scene from "Imitation of Life" which is now rocking records at the Roxy, New York.

Carol Coombe Cast

Carol Coombe, who created the leading role in "Madchen in Uniform" in the stage version in London, will make her American debut in "Straight from the Heart."

It will star Baby Jane who is the discovery of Carl Laemmle, Jr., and John Stahl, and who played her first Universal role in "Imitation of Life" with Claudette Colbert. At the present moment she is playing with Claude Rains in "The Man Who Reclaimed His Head."

"Straight from the Heart" is now in production. Its cast will include Roger Pryor, Mary Astor and the always necessary Henry Armetta.

"NOT A DULL MOMENT! EN

"Vastly Entertaining, loaded with appealing sentiment, crackling good humour, and ocular appeal. Victor Moore . . . is a comedy joy."
—The Cinema

• •

"Merry, romantic comedy . . . a diverting show which should have no difficulty in bringing enjoyment. Victor Moore, a real discovery, is great in a comedy character role"
—Kine Weekly

Watch for

"IMITATION OF LIFE"

starring

CLAUDETTE COLBERT
WARREN WILLIAM

ROMANCE

ERTAINMENT FOR ALL TASTES"

says "The Era"

starring

HEATHER ANGEL
ROGER PRYOR

with

VICTOR MOORE
ESTHER RALSTON
RUTH DONNELLY
PAUL KAYE

Directed by

STUART WALKER

Coming!

"NIGHT LIFE of the GODS"

Screen's Merriest, Maddest Mirthquake

in the RAIN

A Stanley Bergerman Production
Presented by CARL LAEMMLE

Two Letters Important to All Exhibitors

THE DICKENSIAN

The Dickens House,
48, Doughty Street,
LONDON, W.C.1.
19th November, 1934.

S. F. Ditcham, Esq.,
Universal Pictures Ltd.

Dear Sir,

Will you please convey to your American company my heartiest congratulations on their "Great Expectations" film which I saw this morning screened in Dickens' old study here.

It is the most faithful reproduction of Dickens which I have yet seen on either stage or screen. It is no small task to reproduce the atmosphere of both time and story, but your people have managed this most successfully, and the highest praise is due to them for the care with which they have carried out their work.

In choosing "Great Expectations" as their first Dickens film, your company made a very wise choice, for in its simple story (as compared with the many involved plots of Dickens' better known works) it presents all the attributes necessary for a successful screen play, and I am confident that the public, whether they be Dickens lovers or not, will welcome "Great Expectations" for the excellence of its story, its acting, its direction and its production in general, and I wish you every success with it.

Yours faithfully,
(signed) WALTER DEXTER,
Hon. Editor.

THE DICKENS HOUSE

48, Doughty Street,
LONDON, W.C.1.
20th November, 1934.

Frank S. Ditcham, Esq.,
Universal Pictures Ltd.,
Film House,
Wardour Street,
London, W.1.

Dear Sir,

I cannot claim to be a Film Critic, no doubt the Press experts will express their views, but I wish to give my impression of the "Great Expectations" film as screened at the Dickens House yesterday, by the Universal Pictures Ltd.

I was greatly impressed by the faithful representation of the incidents recorded from the book, the naturalness of the actors, the cohesive and coherent manner in which the story was knit together, and the delightful photography of the film gave one the utmost pleasure. I would compliment "Universal Pictures" on a production which I am convinced will make a tremendous appeal to Dickens lovers, wherever the picture is shown.

Wishing you every success,
Yours very sincerely,
(signed) A. W. EDWARDS
Hon. Secretary.

"Kentucky Minstrels" on the Air

The B.B.C. have announced that one of the highlights of this year's Christmas wireless programmes is to be the finest "Kentucky Minstrels" radio show that has ever been put on the air. A particularly strong cast is being lined up by John Watt, C. Denier Warren, Harry S. Pepper and the other B.B.C. personalities responsible for these shows, and some grand Christmas entertainment can be confidently anticipated.

Such a show provides excellent publicity for Universal's Twickenham production, "Kentucky Minstrels," the cast of which includes all the stars of the wireless show, in addition to a great many other box-office favourites such as Nina Mae McKinney, Debroy Somers and his Band, and many more.

Junior Laemmle Sails for Europe

Combining pleasure with business, Carl Laemmle, Jnr., Universal's 26-years-old General Production Manager, is now in Europe, having sailed from New York on November 23rd on the "Comte de Savoia." While on this side of the Atlantic he intends making a survey of the film and stage situations in Northern Africa, Palestine, Greece, Italy, Switzerland, Austria, Hungary, France, Spain, and England, before sailing back to New York in February. With him is Harry H. Zehner, his assistant.

Carl Laemmle, Jr.

Mr. Laemmle, Jnr., is the only studio head actually "born to the film business," for his birth followed his father's first venture in the movie field by only a few months. Appointed Production Manager of Universal on his 21st birthday, he at once showed his mettle with "All Quiet on the Western Front," which won more international awards for merit than any other picture in film history. Since then he has put a long line of successes to his name, among them "Frankenstein," "Seed," "Back Street," "The Invisible Man," "Only Yesterday," "Little Man, What Now?" and "Over the River."

There can be no gainsaying the fact that Mr. Laemmle has earned his holiday. He reads more than 1,200 books, plays, short stories, and screen scenarios each year, his average working day is 15 hours, and this is his first holiday trip for six years!

While in Europe, Mr. Laemmle intends to interview actors, directors, and writers qualified to go to Universal City and make pictures for the world market.

TAKES OVER PRODUCTION REINS AT 67: SIX PICTURES BEING SHOT

CARL LAEMMLE, SNR., at the age of 67, has again taken over active charge of production direction at Universal City while his son, Carl Laemmle, Jnr., the youngest production manager in the film business, is away in Europe on his first holiday for five years.

Meanwhile Carl Laemmle, Snr., now has six pictures in production at Universal City. These are "The Man Who Reclaimed His Head," in which Claude ("Invisible Man") Rains makes his first visible screen appearance for Universal; "The Good Fairy," Margaret Sullavan's third starring vehicle, the cast of which also includes Herbert Marshall, Frank Morgan, and Hugh O'Connell; "Night Life of the Gods"—one of the most fantastic stories ever brought to the screen, in which the gods and goddesses of Greek mythology play leading roles; "Strange Wives," starring Roger Pryor and June Clayworth, the latest Laemmle "discovery"; "I've Been Around," with Chester Morris in the leading role, and "Straight From the Heart," Baby Jane's first starring vehicle, in which Universal's clever 3-year-old star appears with Carol Coombe, the young British star recently signed on a long-term contract by Universal.

★ ★ ★

FRANCIS L. SULLIVAN FOR ENGLAND AT XMAS

FRANCIS L. SULLIVAN, the famous young English character star, recently signed on a long-term contract by Universal, whose performance as "Jaggers" is one of the outstanding features of "Great Expectations," is finding the call of an English Christmas very strong away in Universal City—so strong, in fact, that he is planning to return to London for Christmas if his picture schedule can be so arranged.

At present Sullivan is working in "Strange Wives," the film adaptation of Edith Wharton's "Bread Upon the Waters," in which Roger Pryor and June Clayworth have the romantic leads, and he expects to complete his role in this within the next two weeks.

Prior to his appearance in "Strange Wives," and following his role in "Great Expectations," Sullivan played the part of one of the gentlemen crooks in "Cheating Cheaters," a print of which has now arrived in this country. Fay Wray heads the cast in this picture, other members of it being Cesar Romero, Minna Gombell, Hugh O'Connell, and Henry Armetta.

By an interesting coincidence Francis L. Sullivan was a classmate of Charles Laughton, whom he greatly resembles both in appearance and versatility. The two are still fast friends.

"IMITATION OF LIFE" IS UNIVERSAL'S MOST POWERFUL PICTURE, CABLES LAEMMLE

FURTHER news concerning Universal's super production of Fannie Hurst's "Imitation of Life" has been received by S. F. Ditcham in a cable from Carl Laemmle, Snr., who is now in active control of all production at Universal City.

"GET READY FOR THE THRILL OF A LIFETIME," stated the cable, "RUSHING ANOTHER GREAT PRODUCTION TO YOU—'IMITATION OF LIFE'—MOST POWERFUL PICTURE EVER HANDLED GRIPPING STORY MASTERFUL DIRECTION PERFECT CAST BRILLIANT COMBINATION THAT WILL SEND PICTURE INTO WORLD BEATERS CLASS CLAUDETTE COLBERT WARREN WILLIAM UNQUESTIONABLY BEST WORK THEIR CAREERS. . . . LAEMMLE."

It is anticipated that a copy of the picture will be shipped almost immediately for trade showing in London before Christmas.

★ ★ ★

"U" TWICKENHAM THRILLER TRIUMPHS IN U.S.

DURING the Provincial trade shows of Universal's "Kentucky Minstrels," it is interesting to notice the success scored by another Universal-Twickenham production in America—"The Man Who Changed His Name."

This Edgar Wallace screen thriller has found immediate favour with American cinemagoers, being held over for a second week after a triumphant opening at the Westminster Theatre, New York, and is thus well in the van of the overwhelming successes scored recently by British pictures in the 'States.

The American critics, too, have been loud in their praises of "The Man Who Changed His Name." The "Motion Picture Daily" wrote: "An engrossing mystery drama from the pen of Edgar Wallace. Well directed, finely acted, and provided with rich and tasteful settings, it ought to click with American audiences.

"The story strikes an original note and it is a tribute to the film that it fools the audiences completely until the last few minutes. Betty Stockfeld possesses as exquisite a voice as has been heard on stage or screen. The picture should make a tremendous hit."

In a long review the "Hollywood Reporter" said: "Edgar Wallace's name has become so associated with murder mysteries that with this picture one necessarily feels here is another of that ilk. But such is not the case. It is quite different from the average run of Edgar Wallace's literary efforts.

"The picture's adaptation and good cast keep one interested. The direction and acting are good, and the photography shows a vast improvement over some recent English productions."

ONE Exciting ADVENTURE
starring
BINNIE BARNES
•
Cash in on the brilliant star's new and greater popularity and play this smart comedy romance.
•

UNIVERSAL'S BIG SIXTEEN FOR THE NEW YEAR: ELABORATE PLANS

"The Great Ziegfeld" Now Being Cast

ELABORATE plans for the production of sixteen exceptionally important films between this month and the early part of 1935 are now receiving the finishing touches at Universal City, Mr. S. F. Ditcham announces to-day.

"Carl Laemmle, Jnr., chief of all Universal production, is supervising the preparations which are on such a lavish scale," states Mr. Ditcham, "that it can safely be announced that next year's output will be by far the most impressive and entertaining in Carl Laemmle's career.

"The schedule embraces every type of production from the music, drama, and spectacle of 'The Great Ziegfeld' and 'Show Boat,' to the shocks and thrills of the combined Edgar Allan Poe works: 'The Raven' and 'The Gold Bug,' both of which will feature in one film, and 'The Return of Frankenstein.'

"Edwin Drood"

"Probably of greatest interest from the British viewpoint is the fact that, following the big success scored by 'Great Expectations,' Universal is planning to transfer 'The Mystery of Edwin Drood' to the screen, thus adding to the Dickens' cycle which is a feature of the current movie season.

"Already lined up to play roles in this production are Heather Angel, Claude Rains (of 'Invisible Man' fame), and Francis L. Sullivan, the young British star who has already a big success to his name in 'Great Expectations.' Perhaps the most interesting feature of this production, and the one most keenly anticipated, will be the finish, for Dickens died before completing the novel. To two thoroughly experienced screen-play writers, Leopold Atlas and Bradley King, was assigned the momentous task of completing the story in the way likely to please everybody—even ardent Dickensians! Their solution of the mystery is being kept a closely-guarded secret, only to be revealed to the general public when the picture is screened.

William Powell as Screen Ziegfeld

"A huge studio concentration is to take place at Universal City on another production now in preparation —'The Great Ziegfeld.' No pains are being spared to make this picture a remarkable screen record of the life of the world-famous showman. William Anthony McGuire, who, besides writing many of Ziegfeld's smash hits, was a close personal friend of the brilliant impresario, has prepared the script, in collaboration with Billie Burke, Ziegfeld's widow. William Powell will create the role of Florenz Ziegfeld on the screen, and every effort is also being made to place under contract for this picture as many as possible of the stars who made the big Ziegfeld stage spectacles. Harriet Hoctor and Fanny Brice have already been signed up to play themselves, and announcements of the signing of other famous Ziegfeld stars can be expected shortly. In addition, much of the music of the great hits in past Ziegfeld shows will be heard as well as a number of brand new songs, one of which has been specially written by Irving Berlin.

"Another big concentration is due to take place on 'Sutter's Gold,' the remarkable story of the world's first billionaire, who died in poverty after the ups and downs of a stormy life. The screen-play for this production has been prepared by William Faulkner from the novel by Blaise Cendrars. Howard Hawks has been assigned to direct and the cast will shortly be lined up. Advance statements claim that 'Sutter's Gold' will be the biggest out-of-doors picture ever made.

"Showboat"—and Shocks from Karloff

A Better-Than-Ever "Show Boat"

"Carl Laemmle, Jnr., is personally to supervise the production of 'Show Boat,' which will bring to the screen in a new and lavish setting this famous story by Edna Ferber, the stage version of which was produced at Drury Lane, with great success, a few years back, and is still fresh in the minds of Londoners. No cast or director have yet been set for this picture, but Jerome Kern, the composer of all the song hits of the stage play, has already written some new numbers for the film.

Two Shockers in One!

"Chester Morris is to star in 'The Raven' with Karloff and Lugosi, who scored a big hit together in 'The House of Doom.' The screen-play for this is being prepared by Guy Endore, and, besides being based on the famous poem by Edgar Allan Poe, it will also incorporate the plot of Poe's story, 'The Gold Bug'—perhaps the most intriguing mystery story ever written. B. F. Zeidman will produce. Howard Hawks is to direct a Margaret Sullavan production based on an untitled story by Zoe Akins, and another picture shortly to go into production is 'Rendezvous at Midnight,' based on a story by Gaetano Sozio, which W. Christy Cabanne is to direct.

"Having recently completed 'Wake Up and Dream,' Roger Pryor is now about to star in 'Straight From The Heart' in which his leading lady is but three years old! She is Baby Jane, who has just completed her first screen role in 'Imitation of Life' with Claudette Colbert. So impressed was Carl Laemmle, Jnr., with her performance in this picture that she is being starred in her second screen part. B. F. Zeidman is producing 'Straight From The Heart,' which is a story by Doris Anderson. Camera-work is to start very shortly and then, advance reports have it, Shirley Temple will have to look to her laurels!

(Continued on page 18, col. 1)

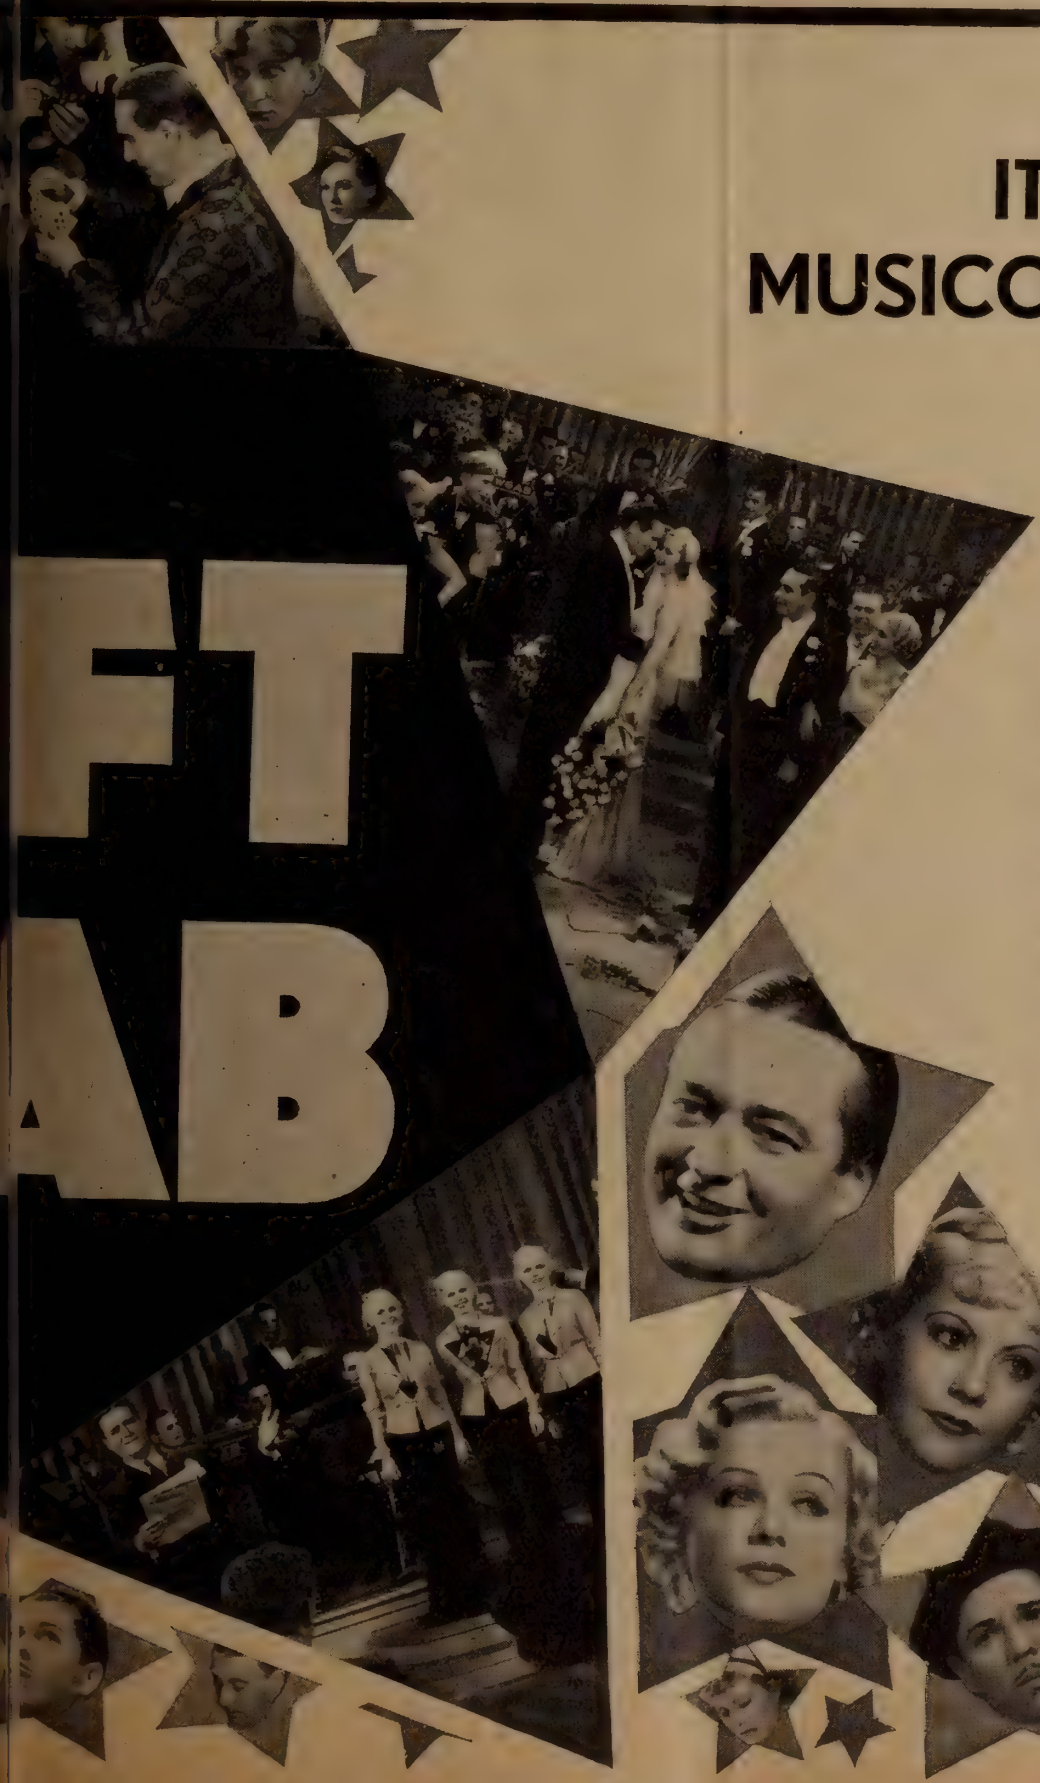
MORE STARS THAN YOU CAN

30 BIG STARS

Edmund Lowe
Gloria Stuart
Binnie Barnes
Paul Lukas
Chester Morris
Karloff
Graham McNamee
Alice White
Victor Moore
Hugh O'Connell
Sterling Holloway
Downey Sisters
Douglas Fowley
Helen Vinson
Alexander Woollcott

Story by Jerry Wald and Phil Epstein. Screenplay by Rian James. Produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr.

BILL ON YOUR THEATRE FRONT



IT'S MUSICOLOSSAL!

Ruth Etting
Phil Baker
Ethel Waters
Douglass Montgomery
Roger Pryor
Gene Austin
Bela Lugosi
June Knight
Andy Devine
Henry Armetta
Beal Street Boys
Wini Shaw
Candy and Coco
Three Stooges
Gus Arnheim's Orchestra

Associate Producer, Rian James. Directed by Karl Freund. Presented by CARL LAEMMLE.

Broadway Beauty Starred in "U's" 1935 Line-up

(Continued from page 15, col. 2)

"Another newcomer to the screen is to be seen shortly in 'Strange Wives,' which Stanley Bergerman is producing from an adaptation from Edith Wharton's famous novel, 'Bread Upon the Waters.' Her name is June Clayworth, and she is a well-known Broadway ingenue, who has recently signed a long-term contract with Universal. Resigning her part in 'Are You Decent ?' at the Ambassadors Theatre, New York, June Clayworth was at Universal City within 24 hours, and was given a test for the lead in 'Strange Wives'—that of a Russian girl. Four days later, producer Stanley Bergerman gave her the lead and production of the picture is scheduled to start very shortly. A brunette, and distinctive in style and personality, June Clayworth is reputed to be one of the smartest-dressed actresses Broadway has ever sent to Hollywood. Carl Laemmle, Jnr., is confident that in her he has a screen 'find' of the greatest importance.

"The B. F. Zeidman production, 'I've Been Around,' now in preparation at Universal City, will probably provide June Clayworth with another starring role, this time opposite Chester Morris. The story and screen-play for this production have been written by John Meehan, Jnr., and Kurt Neumann is already assigned to direct. I've Been Around' deals in a highly entertaining fashion with a young girl who runs away from home and finds success as the head of a big dress house on Broadway.

Karloff Again

"Two more productions already have the leading parts settled. These are 'The Joy of Living,' in which June Clayworth is to star with Douglass Montgomery, and 'The Return of Frankenstein,' the star of which is to be the one and only possible man for such a role—Karloff. James Whale is to direct the thriller maestro in this picture from an original screen-play by R. C. Sherriff and John L. Balderston, the clever director and adapter responsible for 'The Invisible Man' and 'Over the River,' thus coming together again for the third time.

"Other productions in preparation include 'Magnificent Obsession,' from the story by Lloyd C. Douglas, the screen-play of which is to be written by William Anthony McGuire; 'She Married a Million,' which is to be directed by Leonard Fields; 'Lady Tubbs,' from the best-seller of the same name by Homer Cory, and 'Within This Present,' taken from the story by Margaret Ayer Barnes, which may possibly provide Margaret Sullavan with another starring vehicle."

★ ★ ★

"Great Expectations" in the Provinces

Following the success scored by Universal's "Great Expectations" at its London trade show last Thursday at the Adelphi, S. F. Ditcham announces the following provincial trade screenings of this picture, the first of the current cycle of Dickens films :—December 4th, Tuesday, Queens Hall, Newcastle, 10.30 a.m., and at Glasgow, Picture House on Thursday, December 6th at 11 a.m.

LATE NEWS.

Duke and Duchess to see "Great Expectations"

During Honeymoon at Himley Hall

H.R.H. THE DUKE OF KENT HAS REQUESTED THAT A COPY OF UNIVERSAL'S "GREAT EXPECTATIONS" BE SENT TO HIMLEY HALL, STAFFORDSHIRE, TO BE AVAILABLE FOR SCREENING IN THE TEMPORARY THEATRE THERE, DURING THE HONEYMOON OF THE DUKE AND DUCHESS.

London Trade Shows

•

TUESDAY, Dec. 11
Phoenix Theatre • 3 p.m.

"THE HOUSE of DANGER"
"When a Man Sees Red"

★

TUESDAY, Dec. 18
Phoenix Theatre • 3 p.m.

"CHEATING CHEATERS"
"TERROR of the PLAINS"

★

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY SHOWMANSHIP SECTION

MORE "AMMUNITION" FOR LATEST RELEASE

Lee Tracy's "I'll Tell The World"

Another issue of "Ammunition" is now available from the Universal Exploitation Department, devoted, this time, to detailing novel ideas and stunts for putting over the smashing Lee Tracy comedy, "I'll Tell The World."

Newspaper Serial

As in previous numbers of "Ammunition," there are to be found in the new issue all manner of interesting ways of publicising this wonderful box-office picture. Beginning by setting out in full a great many shop tie-ups found to be available, this valuable exhibitors' aid continues with some specially-devised stunts. Among these are an "I'll Tell The World" dance, a grand newspaper tie-up, a competition for amateur town-criers that should be a "roaring" success, a street stunt, and a laugh competition, full details being given in each case as to how these can be carried out. An unusual means of utilising the telephone—which plays a large part in the story of the picture—as a way of making patrons roll up in their hundreds to the box-office is also described, as well as a full account of an effective stage prologue that can be staged either as a trailer a week prior to play-date or to give added interest just before the screening of the picture.

Details of the posters available and the best method of arranging the most eye-catching canopy and lobby displays are also included.

It is obvious from this issue of "Ammunition" that "I'll Tell The World" is an exploitation natural, and it will be seen that the methods I advocated in my article in the last number of the "Universal Weekly" have been followed in drawing up the suggested stunts and ideas.

Yet, there are many more stunts to be worked, which I feel sure you will be originating. Write in and give us full particulars of what you do. There may be a Universal Showmanship Award awaiting you!

THE SHOWMAN

Great Snakes!

The stunt devised by Mr. S. F. Cunningham, of the Theatre Royal, Merthyr Tydfil, for putting over "Bombay Mail." A snake-charmer played beside a box labelled "Beware of the Cobra"—with astonishing effect!

HOT!!

BUTTON IDEA AIDS B.O. BUSINESS

Among the schemes available for publicising "The Red Rider"—as mentioned in the December Advertising Accessories Bulletin—is the distributing to children of specially-designed coat buttons advertising Buck Jones in the picture. These are available to exhibitors at the low price of 35/- per thousand.

In this connection a notable piece of work has been accomplished by Mr. D. Hourahane, Universal's Cardiff Branch Manager, and his staff of salesmen, who have sold three times as many as all the other branches put together. And not only have Mr. Hourahane and his men accomplished this excellent selling feat, but they have devised a novel method of utilising these buttons.

Advance Sales

They are suggesting to exhibitors that instead of selling admission tickets to children, the buttons themselves should be sold for whatever is the cost of admission, and then the children are admitted on presentation of the button. This scheme has been found to work very well, because frequently parents visit the cinemas alone in the evenings, leaving the children at home. As a consolation for the youngsters left behind in bed they purchase a "Red Rider" button, thus enabling the children to see the picture at one of the afternoon shows.

STAGE PROLOGUE for "GREAT EXPECTATIONS"

SMART EASEL

Four-foot lobby easel for "Affairs of a Gentleman," one of the new stylish Universal accessories. Hire fee 15/- for 14 days.

Publicity that Pays!

Now available from the Universal Poster and Accessories Department at Film House is the December issue of the Advertising Accessories Bulletin, detailing all kinds of unique lobby displays, throwaways, and other methods of putting over the Universal pictures released during this month.

For "Affairs of a Gentleman" there are available many framed coloured enlargements, complete with chromium chains, for hanging, of any desired length, a novel lobby easel display four feet high, and a three-colour throwaway of unusually attractive design. Coloured enlargements are also available for "Half A Sinner," "Let's Talk It Over," and "The Love Captive"—all outstanding December releases. For the last-mentioned there is a photographic 4-ft. lobby display made from coloured stills—particularly valuable to exhibitors because it is not only very original but is a sample of what patrons will actually see.

What The London Trade Show Proved

Designed in order to demonstrate to exhibitors one way in which the picture can be presented, a prologue was staged before the London trade show screening of "Great Expectations" at the Adelphi Theatre.

When the curtain rose Dickens was seen seated at a desk just finishing "Great Expectations." A librarian then entered and Dickens talked with him about his book and the characters to whom he was then saying goodbye.

Following this introductory scene, the centre of interest moved to the back of the stage, where was placed an enormous book, 12 feet by 8 feet, with "GREAT EXPECTATIONS" by CHARLES DICKENS written on the cover. The librarian moved over to the book and introduced six of the principal characters—Pip, Magwitch, Joe Gargery, Estella, Miss Havisham, and Compeyson—who made their entry by bursting through the different pages as the cover was opened and re-opened. Finally the librarian came to the front of the stage and announced that through the medium of the screen Dickens' famous characters would now live before the eyes of the audience.

With remarkable celerity the tabs were then lowered, the stage cleared, and the screening of the picture was started—all within a minute. When the names of the cast were already on the screen the theatre was still echoing to the applause of the audience, which gave a rousing reception to a very well-presented prologue. The popularity of the prologue, with such outstanding hits, was undoubtedly confirmed.

★ ★ ★

Perfume at the Pictures

Universal again proved to be first in the field in the matter of film presentation novelties, when the second Binnie Barnes starring vehicle, "One Exciting Adventure," was screened at the Prince Edward Theatre.

One of the earlier sequences in the picture depicts two detectives sleuthing Binnie Barnes by means of a particularly exclusive and expensive perfume which she is known to favour. Taking this as the cue, Universal arranged for waves of exclusive perfume to be wafted over the Prince Edward Theatre at the moment when the sequences featuring the perfume were being screened.

Binnie Going Back

The scheme was carried through with perfect success and was the subject of much favourable comment and congratulation at the conclusion of the trade show.

Incidentally, it was nice to have a word with Binnie Barnes who was at the show with her husband, Sam Joseph, the Charing Cross Road Book expert. In between accepting a barrage of congratulations, she told me that she is looking forward to returning to Universal City in February to continue her starring contract with the Laemmles. Apparently, no picture has yet been fixed for her, but the "U" literary brains and production experts are conferring good and heavy on a number of elaborate vehicles. I know that the Laemmles have every confidence in their new star and that they are giving her the biggest and best on their line-up.

Sign Please!

The fans were much in evidence at the Prince Edward to grab Binnie's autograph. How the news travels round, goodness only knows, but the autograph-hunters were outside the theatre well before the show started and a really nippy evening didn't prevent them waiting the two hours of the presentation till the star left.

J.L.W.

"Great Expectations" will fulfil your Greatest Expectations!

STRANGER THAN FICTION
One of the Biggest Single Reel Series on the Market . . . .
Not Comedy, Not Drama, Not Mystery — Not any of them — But ALL OF THEM, Staged by Mother Nature all over this Planet.
THE WORLD'S Oddities Brought to Your Screen for the Entertainment of Your Patrons.

Larry Edmunds Bookshop
6658 Hollywood Blvd.
Hollywood, Calif. 90028
HO 3-3273
World's Largest Collection
Of Books on Motion Pictures

RAWLINGS & WALSH LTD., PRINTERS, CHERTSEY

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
VOL. 35 NO. 25
DEC. 1, 1934

JOAN BENNETT
co-starred with CLAUDE RAINS
in
"The MAN WHO RECLAIMED
his HEAD"

coming...and o-o-o-o-o-o-h!...what a comedy-romance!

The GOOD FAIRY

Margaret Sullavan

Herbert

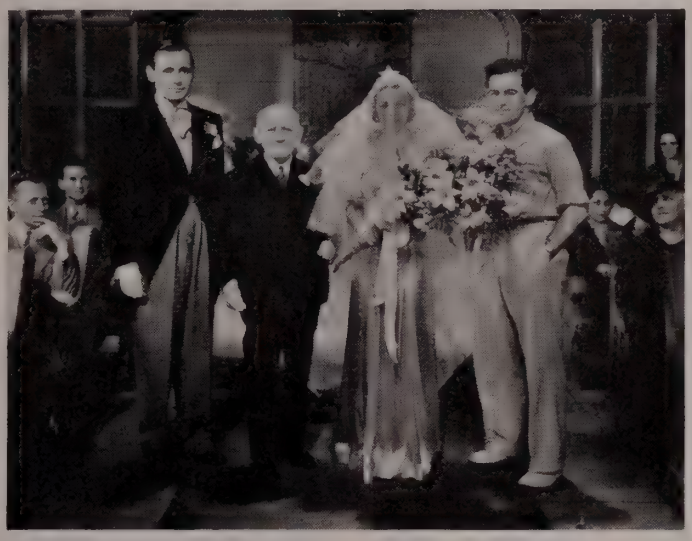
MARSHALL

FRANK MORGAN

in Universal's production of Ferenc Molnar's masterpiece of entertainment... Directed by William Wyler.

Margaret Sullavan Flies To The Altar

THE news of the week as far as moving pictures are concerned is the marriage of Margaret Sullavan and William Wyler, who was directing her in "The Good Fairy." Any elopement is news in Hollywood, and when Margaret Sullavan, whose insistence on her own independance of action at all costs, eloped, it made the front pages of every daily newspaper in the world. This, in spite of the fact that Miss Sullavan, in accordance with her invariable custom, endeavored to keep the wedding a secret until after the picture had been finished.



Here is a press agent's darb of a photograph. A picture of Margaret Sullavan in bridal costume, and William Wyler, the director to whom she was married on Saturday, posing for a publicity photograph at Universal City several weeks before the elopement. In the photograph are Herbert Marshall, her leading man in "The Good Fairy," and Carl Laemmle, President of Universal Pictures.

Like a good trouper, she worked on Saturday night until 11.30 and then she and Mr. Wyler eloped to that Gretna Green of the West, Yuma, where they were married by Justice E. A. Freeman. As soon as "The Good Fairy" is completed, the newlyweds will come to New York, arriving here about December 20th for the Christmas holidays.

Universal Weekly congratulates the happy couple.

Buffalo Times Sponsors Newsreel

LAST week another important link was forged in the chain of newspaper sponsorship which girdles the United States with Universal Newsreel dominance. Its issues of November 22nd and 23rd carried huge advertisements and news stories announcing the sponsorship of the Universal Newsreel in the Buffalo territory by the Times. These advertisements were headlined with this slogan:

"The Buffalo Times Covers the World News in Its Columns—and on the Screen."

The advertisement also specified the theatres in Buffalo and neighboring towns in which the Universal Newsreel is a feature of the program. There are twenty-five first run and subsequent runs in the territory which will be influenced by this Newsreel tie-up and will be publicized all the time in its columns. There are now a hundred and twenty-six papers in the nation wide tie-up with Universal Newspaper Newsreel.

✚ ✚ ✚

Daily News Writes Editorial About JANE WYATT, Actress

JANE WYATT was the subject of an editorial in the Daily News of Tuesday because of the fact that she, like Samuel Insull, had been dropped from the Social Register. Mr. Insull has been acquitted legally, officially and popularly of the charges which were brought against him. Jane Wyatt has been convicted of being a success. Because she has become a star of the stage and screen and a successful one, is the only reason that the Daily News editorial can assign for dropping her from the Social Register. The same thing was true of Whitney Bourne, an actress and the step-daughter of Harvey D. Gibson.

We quote from the editorial;

"Since her aristocratic father's death in 1931, Miss Wyatt has made the stage her career, as against the little Junior League playlets and sim-

(Continued on Page 28)

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, New York City
Universal Pictures Corp.
Copyrighted 1934
(All Rights Reserved)
DECEMBER 1, 1934
Vol. 35 No. 25

"Imitation of Life" Smash Roxy Hit

THE big news from Universal this week is the expected, but astounding success of "Imitation of Life" at the box-office. The Roxy Theatre issued a statement on Monday announcing the breaking of a five-year attendance record by the crowds which flocked to the Roxy Theatre on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. On all of these days the police and fire departments ordered, and justifiably so, the theatre to stop selling tickets for more than an hour.

A telegram attesting this remarkable feat, accomplished against the toughest kind of competition, will be found on page 19. It was sent to J.R. Grainger by Howard S. Cullman.

"Imitation of Life" is knocking them dead everywhere it is opening, and the critical praise in most cities is on a par with the crowds that jam

(Continued on Page 28)

COAST SCOUTS "GRAB THI

No. 798 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

The electric news has spread throughout the trade that "Imitation of Life" is not only big, but so much bigger than anyone anticipated that it is sensational.

The Hollywood scouts who keep track of what is going on in the studios in order to give advance information to the big theatre circuits have been trying to scoop each other in getting the word to their bookers:

"This picture is big in every way."

Big in star value. Big in direction. Big in settings. Big in author value. And almighty big in story!

John Stahl directed it and as I hinted to you before, it tops his whole career as a director.

Claudette Colbert and Warren William head the cast. And in this same cast you are going to discover a brand new screen light in Baby Jane.

TELL CIRCUITS S, IT'S BIG!"

Fannie Hurst poured a world of humanness into her story and, in my opinion, wrote the greatest book of her career. It is big in its utter simplicity.

There are many good pictures on the market this season but not many really BIG ones.

This is one of the very few BIG results of excellent work in any studio.

The story itself has such popular appeal that it would be good with almost any cast — but with the cast which we have used, it is lifted to the heights.

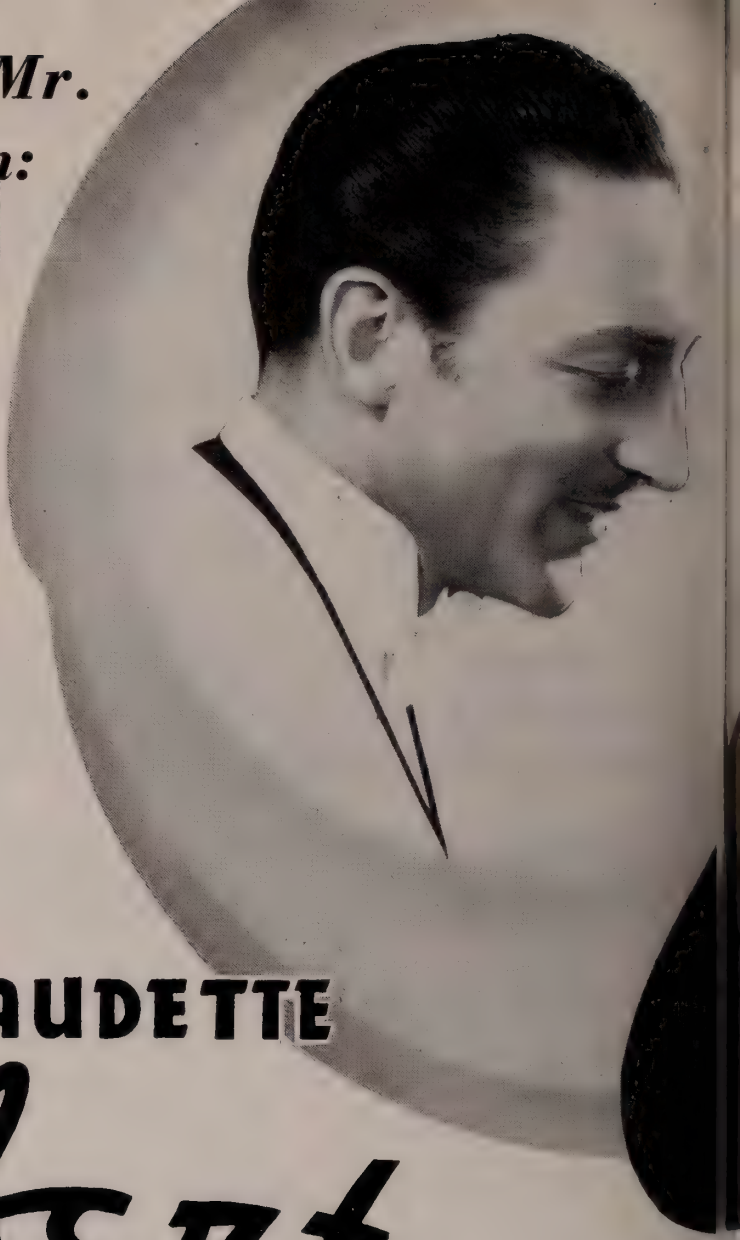
Warn your patrons not to miss it. Tell them they will be hearing it discussed for a long time to come.

It's a dramatic treat — a slice of life — and BIG!

Carl Laemmle

Take it from Mr. Howard S. Cullman:

"ON OPENING DAY IT ROLLED UP THE LARGEST GROSS OF ANY FIRST-RUN PICTURE IN SEVERAL YEARS AT THE ROXY THEATRE (N. Y.)"!



CARL LAEMMLE
presents

CLAUDETTE Colbert

in FANNIE HURST'S

IMITATION

with

WARREN WILLIAM

Ned Sparks, Henry Armetta, Baby Jane, Alan Hale

A JOHN M. STAHL Production

N OF LIFE

ONLY UNIVERSAL

COULD HAVE MADE IT!

HT LIFE GODS

"Funny, Colossal, Exciting? . . . . . Brother, That's Only the Half of It!"

Says Carl Laemmle of this Lowell Sherman Production.

Photoplay Likes 'Em and they're all Universal

MILLION DOLLAR RANSOM — Universal. — In the role of a former liquor baron trying to go straight, Edward Arnold is superb. Phillips Holmes and Mary Carlisle do nice work, too. (Oct.)

* * *

AFFAIRS OF A GENTLEMAN—Universal. Cleverly handled murder mystery film, with Paul Lukas as the author who makes women in his life characters in his stories. Good cast includes Dorothy Burgess, Sara Haden. (July)

* * *

★ LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW? — Universal. — Touching and very real is this story of a young couple's struggle with life. Margaret Sullavan is superb, and Douglass Montgomery's role fits him like a glove. (Aug.)

* * *

ROCKY RHODES—Universal. — Good fare for Western devotees, with fist fights and lots of fast riding by Buck Jones. (Nov.)

* * *

★ GLAMOUR—Universal.—The well-directed Edna Ferber story will have great appeal. Constance Cummings, chorine who became a star, Paul Lukas, her composer husband, and Phillip Reed, her leading man, all add to the films merit. (June)

* * *

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS—Universal.—In the role of a practical joker, Chester Morris does an excellent acting job, and there's never a dull moment. Marian Nixon, Walter Woolf. (Aug.)

* * *

★ ROMANCE IN THE RAIN — Universal. — An amusing fantastic semi-musical with Roger Pryor, Victor Moore and Heather Angel, handsomely mounted and uproariously funny. (Oct.)

* * *

THERE'S ALWAYS TOMORROW—Universal.—Frank Morgan turns in top-notch job as taken-for-granted father. Binnie Barnes, Lois Wilson. (Nov.)

* * *

★ HUMAN SIDE, THE—Universal.—Accurately titled—a family story that is entertaining from start to finish. Adolphe Menjou, Doris Kenyon, Reginald Owen. (Nov.)

I'LL TELL THE WORLD—Universal.—Lots of action as reporters Lee Tracy and Roger Pryor hop about the globe trying to beat each other to the big story of the hour. Gloria Stuart lovely. (June)

* * *

WAKE UP AND DREAM—Universal.—A field day for June Knight, Roger Pryor and Henry Armetta, despite the late Russ Columbo's unsurpassed vocalizing. (Nov.)

The Preview Parade of Universal Pictures

CLAUDE RAINS

. . . dominates drama of the dealers in death . . .

★★★★ A man who put a price on his own head and bartered his love in the bargain!

★★★★ A man who saw all that he hated—bloodshed, anguish, carnage, WAR—as the doing of his own red hand!

★★★★ A man who turned at last and vindicated himself with terrible vengeance—reclaimed his honor, his heart, and his head, with a single desperate stroke!

JOAN BENNETT

★★★★ Such is the story of the "MAN WHO RECLAIMED HIS HEAD" and the voice of the "Invisible Man" is the now victorious victim of a crime with passion!

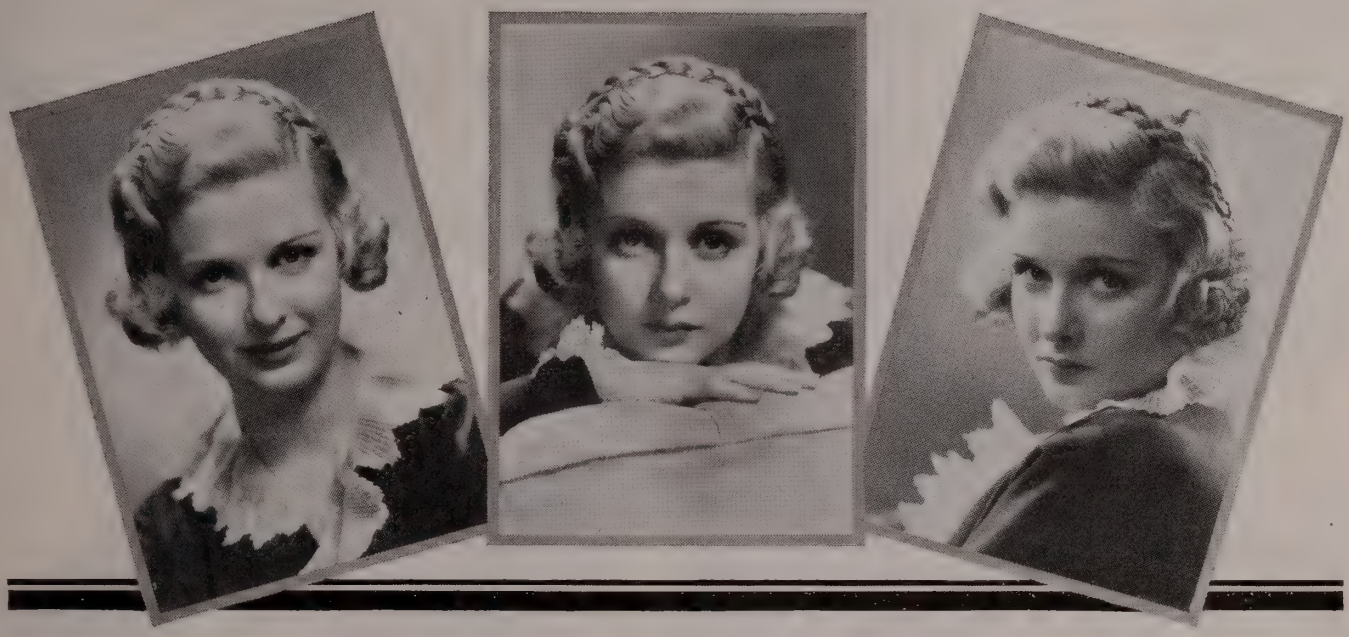
★★★★ CLAUDE RAINS dominates this drama of the dealers in death who enslave those who serve them best — gutting their minds and shattering their lives!

★★★★ Jean Bart's Theatre Guild play comes to the screen, more sensational than it was on the stage, touching a theme as timely as tomorrow's front page!

★★★★ Producers of the extraordinary in entertainment, Universal proudly presents another cycle-starter in "THE MAN WHO RECLAIMED HIS HEAD!"

JACTHALL

JOAN BENNETT, Feminine Appeal



of the
MAN WHO RECLAIMED HIS HEAD

"The Man Who Reclaimed His Head" is the second picture in which beautiful Joan Bennett has played for Universal. The first one was "The Mississippi Gambler." In "The Man Who Reclaimed His Head," Joan Bennett exerts to the full that subtle influence which is variously called sex appeal, feminine appeal, or feminine personality.

JOAN BENNETT has it. We do not mean the kind of "it" which Elinor Glyn made famous as a phrase to describe sex appeal. We mean something the same but a little bit different. We mean feminine appeal, the fragility and delicacy that makes strong men swell out their chests and their biceps and feel very manly and protective. Feminine appeal makes them think of cradles and their slippers by the fire and home made pie and they are soon caught in wedlock. That is the kind of "it" which Joan Bennett has. That is why she was chosen by Universal for the feminine lead in "The Man Who Reclaimed His Head," opposite Claude Rains.

This feminine appeal can be very misleading. Sometimes it covers a very determined character. This is the case with Joan Bennett. She is just a little slip of a girl very blonde with large eyes of the melting type. She looks like a high school girl and in fact she is not much beyond that age. But in addition to being one of the most capable troupers in Hollywood she is one of the most competent housewives in the movie colony. She plans her own menus and budgets her grocery bill. She will not spend a dime over that set amount. Although she makes a spanking big salary and her husband Gene Markey is a highly paid scenarist, she recently found that a second maid was superfluous for their small household. She has established a trust fund. Markey gets plenty of home made pies and can always find his slippers by the fireside. During their recent trip abroad, Markey said in an interview that she made a trans atlantic phone call almost every night to inquire about her little daughter Adrienne.

Though only twenty-three, Miss Bennett has been in pictures since 1929. She broke in as a star. She was playing on the stage in "Jarnegan" with her father Richard Bennett when Hollywood scouts signed her to act opposite Ronald Colman in "Bulldog Drummond." Following that came her first Universal role in "Mississippi Gambler." Then came leads for Warners and Fox. Her latest screen appearance was in "The Pursuit of Happiness."

Miss Bennett is quite alive to the feminine appeal she exerts. Her clothes are chosen with that end in view. She will not wear a gown unless the sleeves are tight. These she claims emphasize daintiness. Full sleeves are for tall women. She never wears cheek rouge off set. Every day her hair must receive a hundred brush strokes.

In "The Man Who Reclaimed His Head" she plays Adele, the lovely young blonde, who marries Paul Verin, the character play by Rains a brilliant young French journalist whose ideas are stolen by the editor of his paper. This editor is impersonated by Lionel Atwill. Dumont also steals the love of Adele from Paul.

Magnificent Portrayals GREAT EXP
GREAT EXP

HENRY HULL
JANE WYATT
Broadway's most acclaimed stage stars — now the screen's newest sensations!
PHILLIPS HOLMES
FLORENCE REED
ALAN HALE AND
VALERIE HOBSON
A Universal Picture
Presented by
CARL LAEMMLE. A
STANLEY BERGERMAN
Production.
ECTATIONS

Margaret Sullavan USHERS IN THE "ONLY

Margaret Sullavan in the role she plays in "The Good Fairy," which because of her marriage last week, is also so appropriate in real life.

THE theatre inspired Margaret Sullavan with a desire to amount to something on her own initiative. The theatre induced her to run away from home twice to go on the stage. It was the theatre that made Margaret Sullavan a world wide figure of joy and interest to millions of people.

In "The Good Fairy," in which Margaret Sullavan is starred with Herbert Marshall, the character that she plays, Lu, was inspired by looking at romantic and heroic motion pictures to become "The Good Fairy." You see, Lu is a theatre usherette. Her outlook on life is very much circumscribed, but the screen opens to her a world of opportunity to do good deeds. While the flicker romance is on the screen, a tremendous determination to help others grows in Lu's heart, until she is inspired to do the most amazing, most unconventional and most dangerous things, all for the good of other people, and all without any selfish interest or thought of the position in which she might be placed.

THIS coy idea was coined by Ferenc Molnar, famous European author. It was played on the stage with great success by Helen Hayes. It is being brought to the screen by Margaret Sullavan under the direction of William Wyler, to whom she has also entrusted her future happiness.

William Wyler has given to these theatre sequences a gorgeous production. Most of them were taken in the Carthay Circle Theatre, in which Margaret Sullavan's first picture, "Only Yesterday," had its world famous premiere. The scenes could very well have been taken in the day time, because the theatre is closed. Nevertheless, a corps of trained usherettes had to be assembled and a number of these usherettes were employed in other theatres during theatre hours. Under these conditions, Margaret Sullavan very willingly consented to make the scenes which are shown in these two pages after theatre hours. For that reason, work in the theatre started at eleven o'clock and finished at five A. M.

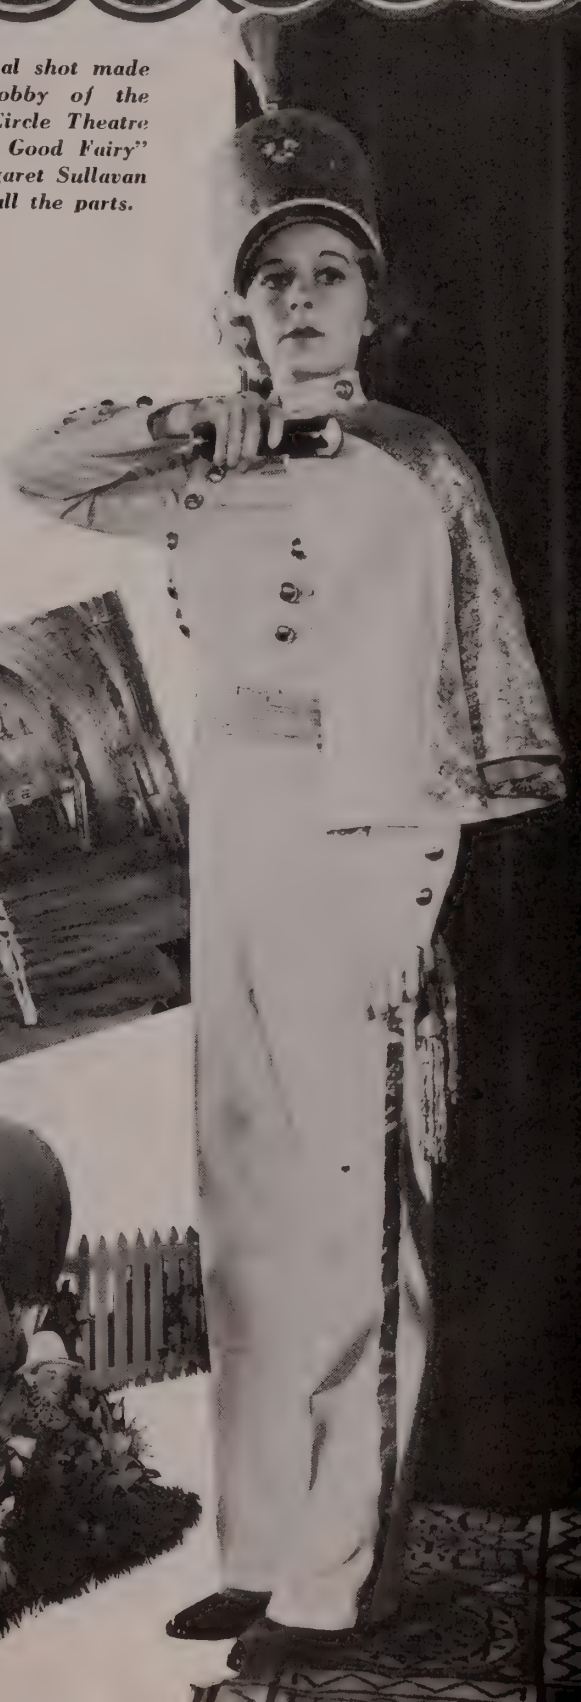
The psychology of "The Good Fairy" is the same psychology that Margaret Sullavan has always exhibited, anyway. No deserving person has ever applied to her without awakening a warm response.

"The Good Fairy" contains a cast of superlative actors. Herbert Mar-

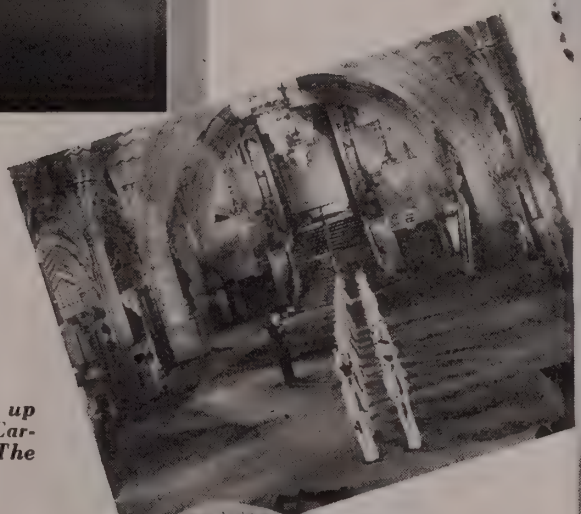
A scene from "The Good Fairy"

"THE GOOD FAIRY" in SAME THEATRE WHERE YESTERDAY" WAS PREMIERED

An unusual shot made in the lobby of the Carthay Circle Theatre for "The Good Fairy" with Margaret Sullavan playing all the parts.



shall plays Dr. Max, for whom she plans many of her desperate good deeds. Frank Morgan plays Konrad. Reginald Owen, Alan Hale, Hugh O'Connell, Beulah Bondi, June Clayworth, Al Bridges, George Davis, Cesar Romero, Matt McHugh, Frank Moran, Dick Winslow, Anne Darling.



Theatre ushers line up in the lobby of the Carthay Circle for "The Good Fairy."

Reginald Owen and Margaret Sullavan in "The Good Fairy."

The stars of "The Good Fairy," Margaret Sullavan, Herbert Marshall.

Universal City Merry-Go-Round

Henry Hull back in Universal City after his triumph in "Great Expectations," finds himself a Kentucky Colonel. Hull was born in Louisville, Kentucky, and it is no wonder that Governor Ruby Laffoon conferred this honor upon such a distinguished native son. Henry was also named after Marse Henry Watterson of the Louisville Courier-Journal.

A La Follette Tries the Movies

AMONG those who have applied for parts in "The Great Ziegfeld," which William A. McGuire is preparing to make at Universal City, was Marion La Follette. Miss La Follette has just arrived at Universal City to determine for herself if she can crash the gates to screendom or whether she will take up a political career. Her father, Warren E. La-Follette, who recently retired from eighteen years in the aviation section of the Department of Commerce, is anxious for her to go into politics as are her cousins, U. S. Senator, Robert M. La Follette and Governor William La Follette of Wisconsin. She will if the movies don't want her. Incidentally, on December 1, Miss La Follette comes into her share of a vast French estate bequeathed by her mother, who was a descendant of Marie Antoinette. "The Great Ziegfeld" stars William Powell. Fanny Brice and Harriet Hoctor are already signed and important announcements about its cast will be forthcoming this week.

Here's Marion La Follette, who has deserted politics to carve out a career for herself in the movies. All the La-Follettes are fighters and this young lady looks as if she had the qualities it takes to become a success in moving pictures. She is up for a role in "The Great Ziegfeld."

● All California was excited about the last election. Universal City was no exception. Henry Armetta placed an unusual bet. The bet was a spaghetti dinner, and here the busiest actor in Hollywood is shown entertaining his guests at a really and truly Italian repast made in the good old Italian way.

At the right, Henry is shown welcoming Carl Laemmle, while June Clayworth and Stanley Bergerman supervise from the doorway.

In the photograph above, reading from left to right, the following personages will be discovered: Standing, Alexander Pantages, proprietor of Pantages Theatre, where so many Universal pictures are shown; Frank Mastroly, executive studio manager; Maria Gambarelli, the ballet dancer, Dan Kelley, Eoli Galli, Universal's new Italian singing star, and sister of Miss Gambarelli, Henry Hull, June Clayworth, Mrs. Henry Armetta, Henry Armetta's daughter, and the redoubtable Henry himself. Henry Armetta has just been thrust into the cast of another picture, "I've Been Around," with Chester Morris and Rochelle Hudson. Henry's acting is as good as his spaghetti, and both are in high demand.

The Actor Who Reclaimed His Head!

CLAUDE RAINS has one of the finest heads on the screen; a broad high forehead topped with a great unruly shock of dark hair, magnetic eyes and a firm, expressive mouth. It is the head of a great actor which he is. But when Rains broke into the movies, he didn't have any head at all as far as the screen was concerned. His first role was in the Universal production of H. G. Wells' "The Invisible Man." Rains in the title part was sometimes partly visible but his head was never seen.

Now he is back at Universal City in another dramatic thriller, "The Man Who Reclaimed His Head." This time his head will be with him just as it appears in the picture at the right. He plays the role of a brilliant French Journalist who exacts a terrible price for the treachery practiced upon him by his wife and another man. Joan Bennett plays the wife and Lionel Atwill business in bringing them to book.

Rains has been acting since he was ten years old. His first stage part like his first screen role was an invisible one. He was an offstage noise at the Haymarket Theatre in his native London. When he grew up he played for the famous Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree. Later he starred in Australia. He fought through the whole four years of the World War in the British Army. After the Armistice he came to New York to star for the Theatre Guild and then left for Hollywood to do "The Invisible Man." His next for Universal will be "The Mystery of Edwin Drood."

Claude Rains, whose magnetic eyes and forceful face had no chance to register in "The Invisible Man," but which will be seen with full force in "The Man Who Reclaimed His Head."

A scene from "The Man Who Reclaimed His Head," with Wallace Ford, Joan Bennett and Lionel Atwill.

Full of Timeliness

"THE MAN WHO RECLAIMED HIS HEAD" is as timely as a calendar. A pitiless exposure of the armament racket it comes at the exact moment when the world is scrutinizing the plots of the munitions makers to set peaceful nations at each others' throats. The picture will be shown just when Congress is preparing to assemble for the purpose of making a complete investigation of the profits of these merchants of death and show Sir John Simon and the other functionaries of the League at Geneva that America means business in bringing them to book.

The hero of "The Man Who Reclaimed His Head" played by Claude Rains is a clever French journalist with leanings toward international amity. He finds his ideas distorted by his editor at the behest of the armament makers. Drafted to fight in the World War, his wife's love stolen by the editor, he returns to take revenge. The picture is from a Longacre Theatre play by Jean Bart and was directed by Edward Ludwig.

WHEN YOU TELL THEM...

that the star of "The Invisible Man" is SEEN in this dramatic powerhouse — that means the utmost in thrills!

ON'T FORGET TO TELL

. .that it is MORE than a picture of thrills lorious story affects all human life and all
!

EMMLE PRESENTS

5 • Joan Bennett

in an WHO aIMED his HEAD

A UNIVERSAL PICTURE WITH

Lionel Atwill • Baby Jane

HENRY O'NEILL

HENRY ARMETTA · LLOYD HUGHES

BESSIE BARRISCALE · CAROL COOMBE

Directed by EDWARD LUDWIG. From the play by Jean Bart

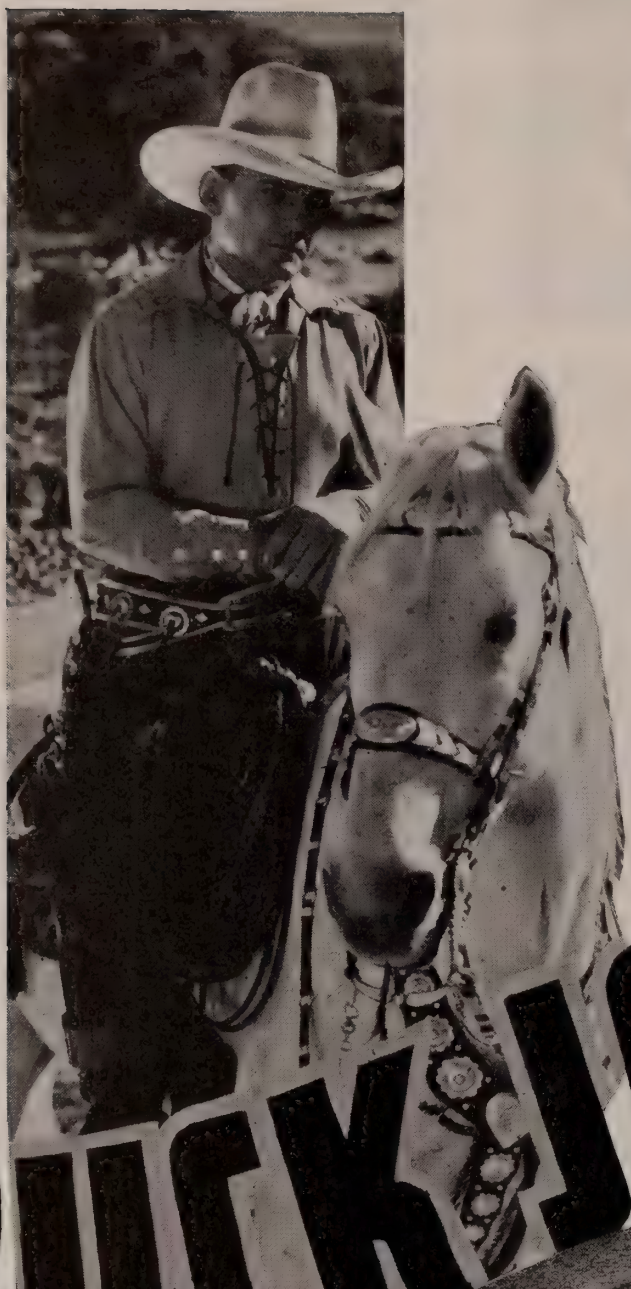
Produced by CARL LAEMMLE, Jr.



WHEN AN EXHIBITOR "SEES RED" ON HIS BOOKS... IT'S HIGH TIME HE BOOKED THIS AND OTHER UNIVERSAL WESTERN WHOPPERS!

BUCK JONES

in

WHEN A MAN SEES RED

"IMITATION OF LIFE" Breaks Five Year Record

TELEGRAM

NHI 100-BZ..NEWYORK NY NOV 26 1047A

JAMES R GRAINGER.. UNIVERSAL PICTURES —

MY CONGRATULATIONS TO UNIVERSAL ON IMITATION OF LIFE STOP... IT IS THE BIGGEST BOX OFFICE ATTRACTION ROXY THEATRE HAS HAD IN ALMOST FIVE YEARS STOP IN ITS FIRST THREE DAYS THIS EXTRAORDINARY PICTURE BROKE ALL ATTENDANCE RECORDS AND ON SUNDAY AT OUR PEAK HOUR BETWEEN SEVEN AND EIGHT OCLOCK POLICE AND FIRE DEPARTMENT QUITE PROPERLY FORCED US TO STOP SELLING TICKETS FOR ONE FULL HOUR BECAUSE OF EXTRA CAPACITY CROWDS INSIDE STOP IF YOU CONTINUE TO PRODUCE PICTURES OF THIS QUALITY AND MASS APPEAL WE WILL NEED A FIFTEEN THOUSAND SEAT HOUSE INSTEAD OF A SIXTY TWO HUNDRED SEAT HOUSE

HOWARD S CULLMAN

From Variety

"Imitation of Life" Shooting Roxy to Big $45,000

ONE of the best theatre holidays of the year, Thanksgiving, comes around this week, and most New York theatres are fortunate enough to have attractions that should mean something at the holiday scales.

Current smash is "Imitation of Life" at the Roxy. With Thursday (29) to help, house has a chance to hit a terrific $45,000 this week. On Sunday (25) the Fire Department made the theatre stop selling tickets between 7 and 8 P. M. Picture holds over.

Roxy (6,200; 25-35-55)—"Imitation of Life" (U) and stage show. Opened very strong and $45,000, with holiday, will be best house has had in a long time. Stays a second and maybe a third week. "Evensong" (GB-Fox) last week turned out pretty good $26,100.

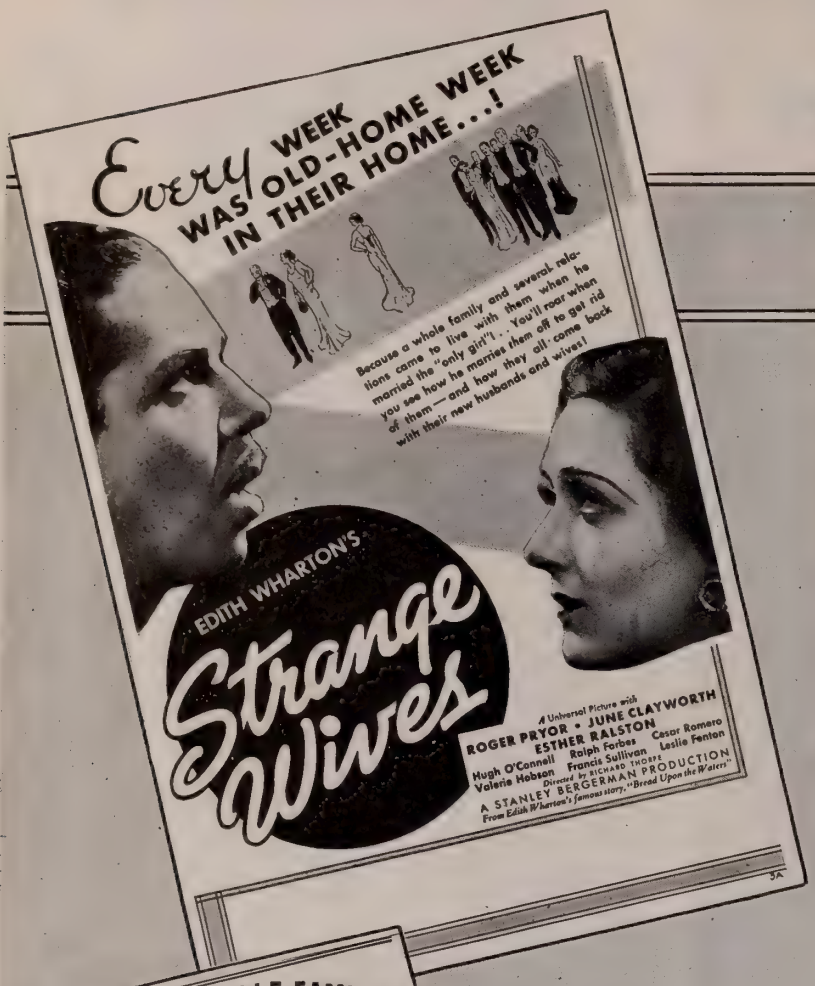
From Hollywood Reporter

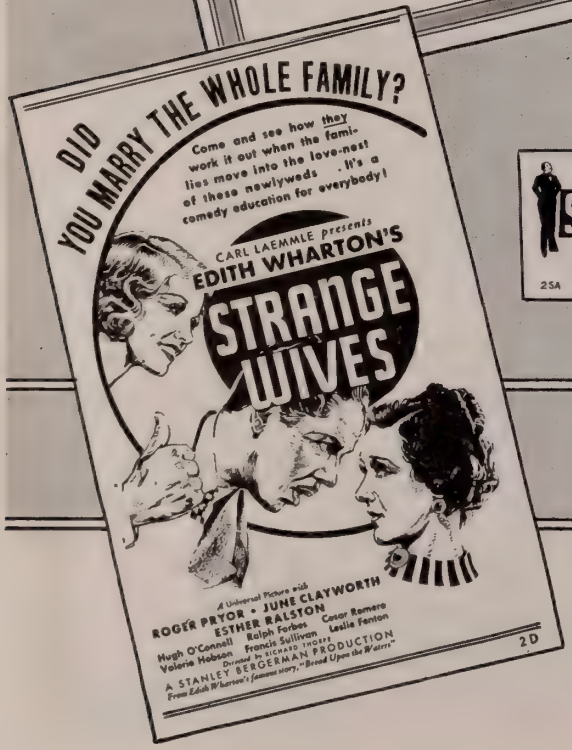
U HAS GREAT PICTURE IN "IMITATION OF LIFE"

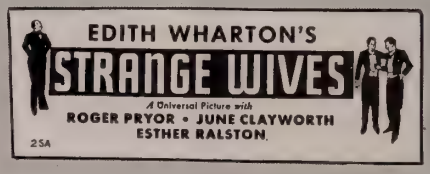
SO simply poignant, so beautifully told, so honestly acted, and so magnificently directed, this picture tears your heart out and gives you one of the loveliest hours you can spend in a theatre. To give the commercially interested the right answer right away . . . it's one hundred per cent box-office and John Stahl chalks up another terrific winner for himself, Universal and every exhibitor fortunate enough to book it.

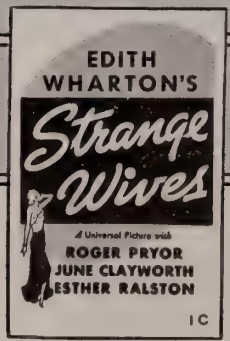
Taken from Fannie Hurst's tribute to the trials and tribulations of the negro race, William Hurlbut in his screen translation and John Stahl in his direction bring forth a quietly dramatic and tragic story of motherhood that presents a new version of the theme and an intelligent one.

A WOMAN'S CAMPAIGN

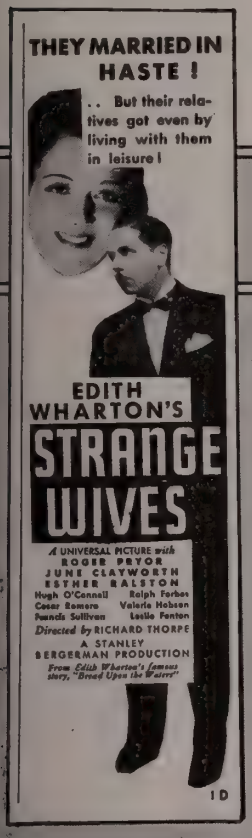


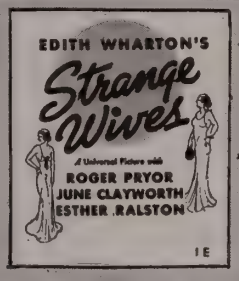


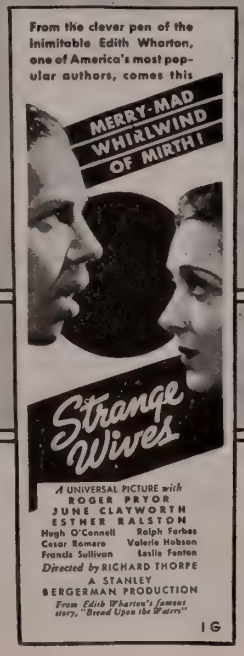




FOR "STRANGE WIVES"







"The Man Who Reclaimed His Head" Is Coming

NEWSREEL No. 305

PRESIDENT VISITS OWN FARM ON THANKSGIVING DAY TRIP

WARM SPRINGS, GA.—The Chief Executive inspects cattle and agricultural machinery on his Southern estate during a brief holiday.

FOOTBALL SEASON NEARS END

NEW YORK CITY.—The Notre Dame Ramblers upset the Army in a hotly-contested game.—At Madison, Wis., Minnesota clinches the "Big Ten" title with a victory over Wisconsin.—At Berkeley, Cal., Stamford defeats California.

NIPPON WATCHES WAR DAMES

MAYEBASHI, JAPAN.—The Mikado and high officials of the realm attend a stirring review of sections of the Imperial Army in a test of the Empire's land forces.

INSULL'S FETE 'VINDICATION'

CHICAGO, ILL.—The former utilities magnate, with his family, celebrates the acquittal.

SEAS POUND STRANDED BOAT

PANAMA CITY, FLA.—Forty-five men face death in a night of terror on a $750,000 Government dredge, beached by a storm during harbor improvement works.

HIGH LIGHTS IN THE NEWS

TENAFLY, N. J.—Capturing ten prisoners, the police seize complete counterfeiting equipment, including plates for $5, $10 and $20 bills.

BANGOR, ME.—A "Queen of Spuds" is chosen to celebrate a record potato crop.

MARIETTA, O.—Two old drillers whom nobody would hire strike oil in the backyard of the county poor farm where they took refuge.

OMAHA, NEB.—A terrific blast wrecks an 11,000,000 bushel grain elevator, killing one man and injuring many others.

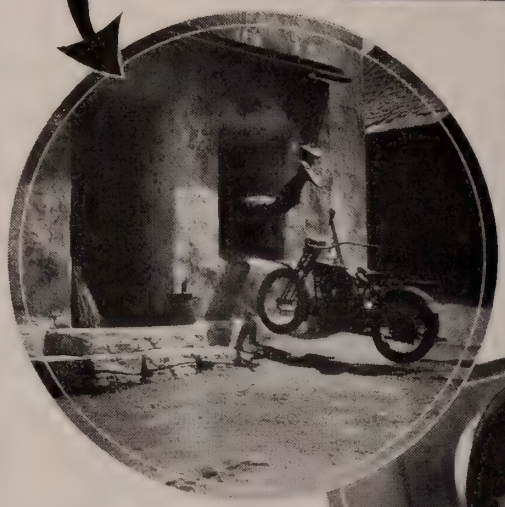
SHANGHAI, CHINA.—Sailors of the United States Asiatic Fleet commemorate Navy Day on board with an unusual acrobatic show.

NEW YORK CITY.—Bootblacks in the financial section greet better times with high hats and full dress suits.

NUTLEY, N. J.—Champion cyclists harden their muscles by strenuous training in preparation for the coming Six-Day Bike Race.

SODA SPRINGS, CAL.—The first heavy snow of the year blankets the Sierra Nevada.

Here Was The Stunt That Earned NOAH BEERY



Universal is sure that Noah Beery, Jr., is going somewhere. In the illustration, you see him going through a window off a motor cycle. Nevertheless, that is what earned for him a long term contract and star billing in his next picture.

Noah Beery, Jr. and Maurice Murphy as characters in the serial, "Tailspin Tommy," now current.

JULIUS ROSENWALD said success in life was 80% luck and 20% ability. If that is so, almost the whole 80% rode with Noah Beery, Jr. when he deliberately ran his motorcycle into this building and dived head first through the window for the big spectacular thrill of Episode No. 11 in the Universal serial, "Tailspin Tommy." Every episode of this serial, which was filmed from Hal Forrest's famous cartoon strip ends with a tremendous bang, and this bang ending is the bangiest of them all. It banged Noah Beery, Jr. right smack into a long term contract with Universal.

Noah Beery, Jr. started his movie career with Universal Pictures several years ago when he played in another serial called "Heroes of the West" with Onslow Stevens and Jacqueline Wells. He was good in that serial, but

✚ ✚ ✚

Big Time Papers Go For "TOMMY"

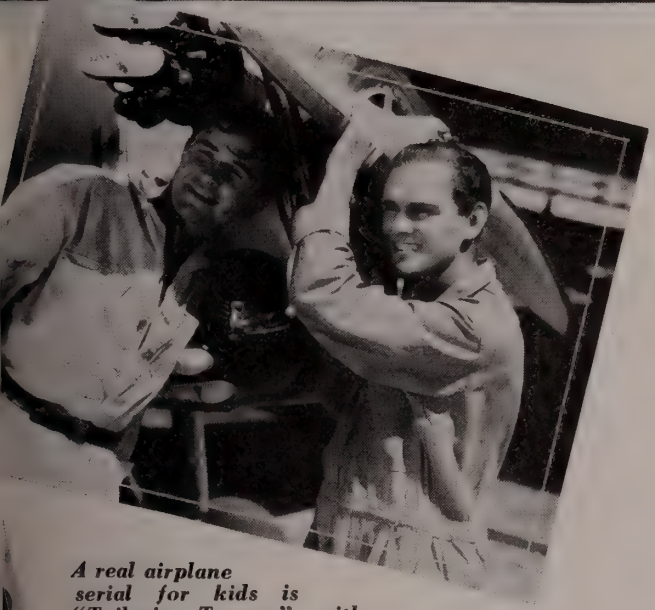
THE possibilities of worthwhile exploitation on serials made from popular cartoons have been definitely tested in the cast of "Tailspin Tommy"—and with amazing results.

The Baltimore Sun tie-up was the first when "Tailspin Tommy" went into the Keith theatre in that city for a splendid downtown first run. The tie-up made the first run possible, created fine grosses for the theatre each time it was shown, paved the way for more first runs for serials and SOLD ADDITIONAL RUNS in Baltimore and surrounding territory. Ed Heiber set this one.

Then came Chicago with its fine tie-up with the Chicago Daily Times, arranged by Henry Herbel. This deal

(Continued on Page 28)

"TAILSPIN TOMMY" Jr. A Long Term Contract



A real airplane serial for kids is "Tailspin Tommy" with Maurice Murphy and Noah Beery, Jr. and pretty Peggy Farr.

when it was over, no one had given the ingenuous looking young man more than a passing thought, and for a time Noah Beery, Jr., passed out of the Universal picture.

When Louis Friedlander was casting for "Tailspin Tommy," he needed a happy-go-lucky kid not too handsome of face, whose honesty was apparent in every lineament of his face and movement of his body to play Skeeter. He didn't have far to look. Noah Beery, Jr. filled all of these requirements and more than fulfilled Louis Friedlander's expectations. As the serial unwound in the movie houses, the rather stupid but humorously honest Skeeter advanced to equal importance with Tailspin Tommy himself and when the episode of the motor cycle was reached, there was no longer a chance that Noah Beery, Jr. would fade out of another Universal picture without a long term contract.

Here is the situation in the film which brought about this crackerjack film ending.

Skeeter had followed Tommy to Hollywood with Betty. Both were tremendously interested in Tommy's screen career. They hung about the

(Continued on Page 28)

✚ ✚ ✚

"JOLLY LITTLE ELVES" Booked Solid Over Lowe Met. Circuit For 160 Days

"JOLLY LITTLE ELVES" hops right into the LOEW METROPOLITAN CIRCUIT in New York for full time in the SIXTY THEATRES giving this COLORED CARTUNE CLASSIC 160 days of De Luxe playing time.

Leo Abrams of big U engineered.

"ELVES" is a top-notcher. It's a big time leader! This Classic is being routed over the big time majors like a headline veteran. Theatres report audience applause for this subject every time its shown. And that's a record for any short.

Just another reminder that Universal shorts have what it takes to make the grade. They are built for entertainment and tailored with showmanship.

NEWSREEL No. 304

GEN. BUTLER WARNS OF "PLOT" TO SEIZE U. S. GOVERNMENT

NEWTOWN SQUARE, PA.—Smedley Butler explodes a bombshell with his statement that certain interests asked him to head an army of 500,000 men in a "Fascist" march on Washington.

VIVID RITES MARK JUBILEE

CHICAGO, ILL.—The nation's churchmen gather for impressive ceremonies honoring George Cardinal Mundelein on his silver anniversary.

COLLEGE STUDENTS WALK OUT

NEW YORK CITY.—Undergraduates at the College of the City of New York stage a strike.

CARS CRASH IN WEIRD MEET

MEMPHIS, TENN.—Daredevil drivers race their automobiles into a head-on collision at forty miles an hour.

"JEEM" RETAINS MAT CROWN

NEW YORK CITY.—Swan dives into the customers laps feature a "groan and grunt" session at Madison Square Garden in which Jim Londos out-lasts Everett Marshall.

HIGH LIGHTS IN THE NEWS

MEXICO, D. F.—Trained athletes join in a monster demonstration of gymnastics at exercises commemorating the Mexican Revolution.

WONALANCET, N. H.—Malemute pups get their first lessons in sleigh-pulling for Arctic expeditions after an early snowfall.

SALINAS, CAL.—Japanese Buddhists perform ancient rites marking the thirty-fifth year since missions were established in North America.

PARIS, FRANCE.—Thousands of ex-servicemen march in a stirring parade with banners announcing their condemnation of war.

GENESEO, N. Y.—Children and grown-ups file before officials to have their fingerprints taken.

CORVALLIS, ORE.—State College students light up a bonfire 72 ft. high.

EDDYSTONE, PA.—The largest foreign shipment of locomotives since 1929 loaded for the Chilean Railways.

Chicago and Boston Both Praise "GREAT EXPECTATIONS"

(Chicago Tribune)

DICKENS STORY IS POIGNANTLY RETOLD IN FILMS

By Mae Tinee

GOOD MORNING!

Universal could be excused for getting a swelled head over "Great Expectations." Because it's GOOD!

No sinecure to adapt a Dickens story, with its plethora of characters, and plots within plots! There are enough of the latter in this photoplay to make at least three pictures. But the adapters have captured and skillfully interwoven the pith of them all without making "Great Expectations" either unwieldly or too long.

The action starts with Little Pip in the graveyard among the resting places of his departed family. A lonely little boy, telling those who had loved him about the things he has to endure from the vitriolic elder sister with whom he makes his home . .

Descends upon him the fearsome figure of Magwitch, escaped from a convict ship and ravenous with hunger.

The terrified Pip is dispatched to beg, borrow, or steal food, under threats of direct disaster if he fails in his mission—or tells whom he has encountered in the cemetery. Pip neither fails, nor tells . . .

The tears he sheds when he sees Magwitch finally captured and dragged away to serve the rest of his time—after a most hideous fight with another escaped prisoner against whom he cherishes a deep personal hatred, for reasons the picture shall reveal—are magic drops that influence his entire future . . .

Pip, the boy is played by that highly strung little fellow who did such marvelous work in "No Greater Glory," and is so wistfully appealing as Jimmy Wiggs in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch." Here he gives another outstanding characterization. Phillips Holmes takes care of the character, later, with skill and sympathy.

Magwitch is unforgettably portrayed by Henry Hull. And Florence Reed plays the difficult part of the strange Miss Havisham, who for many years has never looked upon the sunshine, with art and comprehension. Stage training DOES tell, doesn't it!

Jane Wyatt is charming and aristocratic as Estella, grown. A uniquely interesting depiction of little Estella is provided by Anne Howard.

(From the Boston Traveler)

Great Expectations — Great Realization

Challenged to produce right pictures, movieland answers convincingly with Charles Dickens's "Great Expectations," which opens at Keith's Memorial Theatre next Thursday evening.

"Dickens?" say you. "Will the public like it?"

Will the public like it? Will the public be charmed by the liveliness of it all, and the exquisite artistry that deftly mixes action and day-dreams, beauty and felon-ships, romance and blighted love! And all in excellent taste, for all its thrill.

No mincing, primping dolls, the girls. No, indeed. Lovely is the heroine, with a loveliness you have seen in girls you know. Manly the hero, without a parade.

A picture, indeed, and more than a picture. A long forward stride of a great art; the cinema showing what can be done.

No press-agent plug this; but news welcomed by the public, that will be glad to have been told of it.

✚ ✚ ✚

Clever
CROOKS!
Ruthless
MURDERERS!
Dauntless
DETECTIVES!
Innocent
YOUNG LOVERS!
SECRET of the CHATEAU
With
Claire Dodd + Clarke Williams + Alice White + Osgood Perkins + Jack La Rue + William Faversham + George E. Stone + Ferdinand Gottschalk and DeWitt Jennings
Directed by Richard Thorpe
A UNIVERSAL PICTURE Presented by CARL LAEMMLE
KULZ

MENTONE Shorts

Big Time Vaudeville Stars! . . . Big Time Radio Stars! . . . At prices you can afford to pay!

FROM COCKTAIL TO DESSERT . . .

Let Universal serve your spiciest programs!

Exhibitors couldn't believe their own ticket machines at first - but it's a fact . . . This short has drawn ten times its cost in business!

STRANGER than FICTION

OSWALD
The Lucky Rabbit

When that hole in your program needs a real life-saver — quick, Mr. Showman, shout for OSWALD!

FROM SOUP TO NUTS...
Universal has everything to please everybody!

Novel, fascinating, adventurous!...With a personality your patrons know well, and a voice they can't resist!

GOING PLACES
with LOWELL THOMAS

"THE MAN WHO RECLAIMED HIS HEAD" IS COMING!

"TAILSPIN TOMMY"

(Continued from Page 23)

set until the director gave them parts. set so much that finally the director gave them both parts—Skeets that of Curier—who rode hell bent on a motor cycle with messages from headquarters in the war area. Having a message for Tommy he is riding through a village when he sees Tommy standing in a cottage room with Betty, who plays the part of his sweetheart. Without a minutes hesitation he dives off his motor cycle head long through the window, scrambles to his feet and gives Tommy a snappy salute.

✚ ✚ ✚

Jane Wyatt Editorial

(Continued from Page 1)

ilar amateur performances customary with debs and sub-debs. In other words, she has gone in for worthwhile work, the objects being money and a real stage career. So the veiled prophets who run the Social Register dropped Miss Wyatt, as soon as she achieved stardom on the stage, from their alleged list of Those Who Matter.

"As we see it, Insull and the Social Register are in the same picture—a picture of an age that is fading. Until the war, the Social Registerites did matter in New York City and elsewhere. They held onto a sort of phosphorescent glow of superiority until 1929. Since then, it has been less and less a symbol of achievement or worth to be listed in the Social Register."

GRANT MITCHELL COMPLETES CAST

WITH the signing of Grant Mitchell for the important role of "Austin," casting has been completed for "Straight from the Heart" at Universal.

Mary Astor, Roger Pryor and Baby Jane are featured in the film and Scott R. Beal is directing. Other members of the cast include Carol Coombe, star of the English stage version of "Maedchen in Uniform;" Andy Devine, who replaces Warren Hymer, Robert McWade, Henry Armetta, Willard Robertson, Clara Blandick, Douglas Fowley, Doris Lloyd, Hilda Vaughn and Louise Carter.

Mitchell's last appearance at Universal was with Binnie Barnes in "One Exciting Adventure."

✚ ✚ ✚

Papers Go For "Tommy"

(Continued from Page 22)

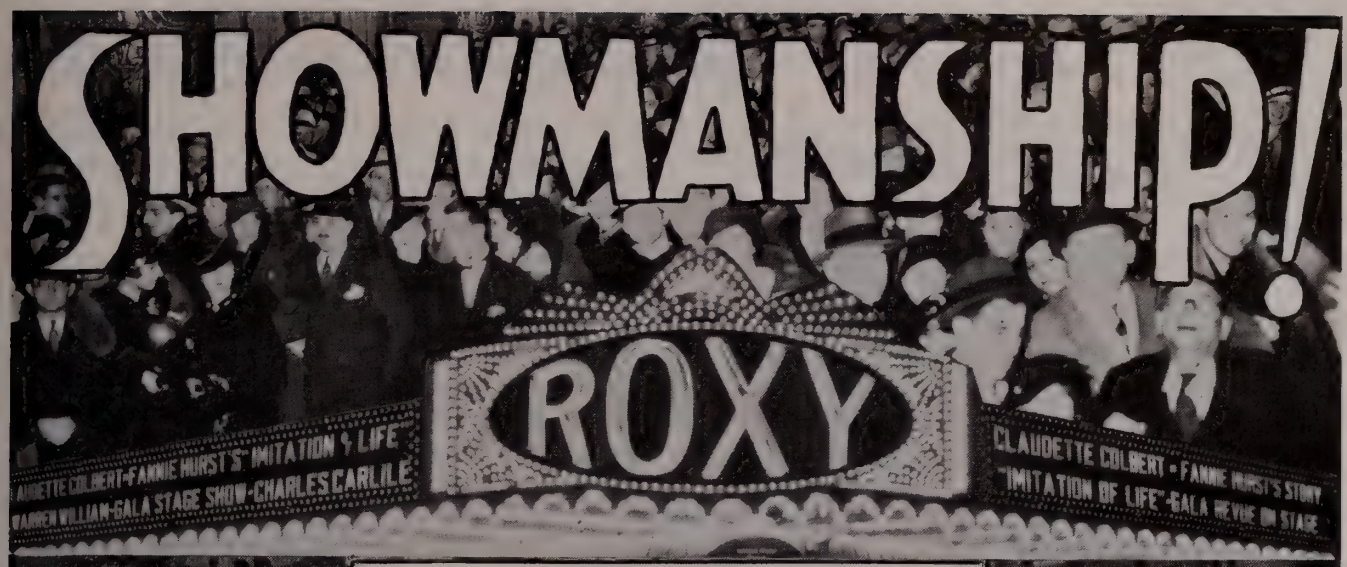
helped to set immediately many additional runs giving the theatres a chance to cash in on the great publicity break. Here again the tie-up not only got a great break for "Tommy," but built up in the minds of theatre managers the real importance of good serials.

✚ ✚ ✚

"Imitation of Life," Smash Roxy Hit

(Continued from Page 1

the theatres. This Fannie Hurst picture bids fair to be a candidate both for box office supremacy for the year and has already been mentioned as the most promising candidate for the award of the Academy of Arts and Sciences and the Photoplay medal.



The Pictures Tell the Story!

CROWDS! CROWDS! CROWDS!

A line five deep in the street stretching far down the block! Ten abreast in the rotunda waiting to get into the theatre! Orchestra and balconies packed to the last seat with crowds jamming the passageways and overcrowding into the aisles and on the stairways, until the firemen: called a halt and the box-office had to be closed twice!

That's news in any man's town; but on Broadway, New York, today, that's simply sensational and you'll have to accept that word for what it is—sensational!

The Roxy Theatre is smacking records of five year standing with "IMITATION OF LIFE."

Universal has given you a picture which is the talk of the show world! When you grab it for a run—that's good business! When you get it, key your campaign to smack records as the Roxy is doing! That's showmanship! And the pictures on this page prove it!

JOE WEIL

"EXPECTATIONS" CHICAGO CAMPAIGN

Two of the giant advance lobby displays selling the characters with life-sized cut-outs set against atmospheric backgrounds. The figures blown up from photos and colored were set away from the background.

HERE are pictured highlights of the Chicago campaign for the run of "Great Expectations" at the RKO Palace Theatre. Other items in the campaign included:

Co-operation of school board in plugging picture through high school principals and english teachers.

Five weeks advance showing of regular and special trailers.

The distribution of 26,000 roto heralds.

Posting of 25 twenty-four sheets.

A pick up by local schools of the NBC chain broadcast of "Great Expectations" playlet on opening day.

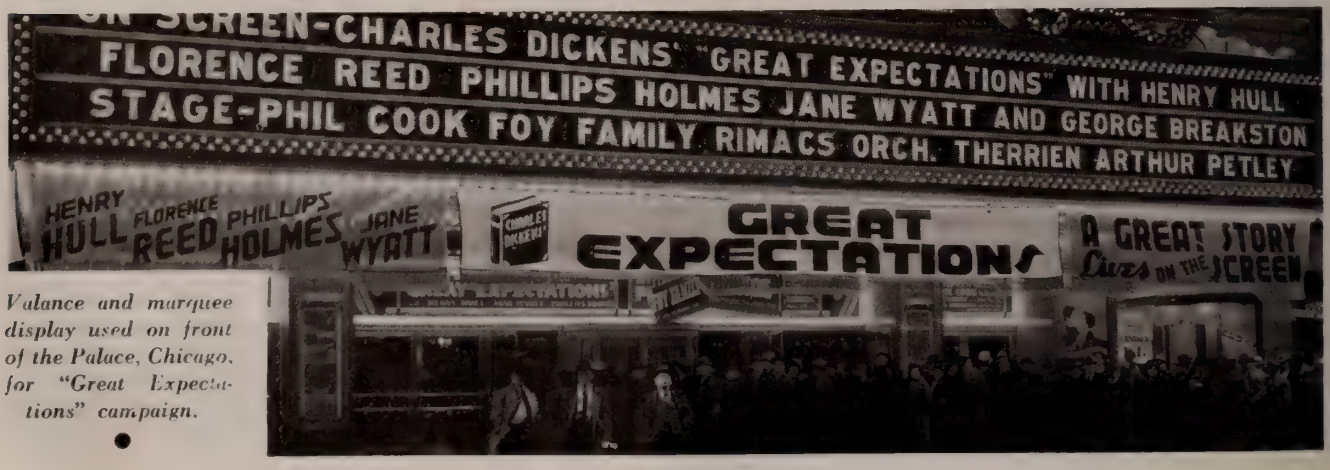
Several window displays in book and department stores featuring the popular priced edition of the book and the Palace engagement of the picture.

Frank Smith, manager and John Joseph, publicity manager for RKO in Chicago, put over the campaign. Duke Hickey, Universal exploitation representative, assisted.

SEE PAGE 32 FOR "AD" ANGLES

Helen Richmond modeling modern adaptations of gowns worn in the picture, featured this display tie-up in Mandel Brothers department store.

The advance and current ballyhoo truck with giant book and poster cut-outs. Used on Chicago streets two days in advance of opening and first three days of engagement. The other side of the truck also played up the book but it was flanked by different cut-out heads.



Valance and marquee display used on front of the Palace, Chicago, for "Great Expectations" campaign.

Announcing Universal's

"RUSTLERS OF RED DOG" SERIES

Twelve Episodes of Adventurous Romance, Pack-Jammed With Furious Excitement!

STARRING

JOHN MACK BROWN

with

Joyce Compton, Raymond Hatton, Walter Miller, Harry Wood, Fred MacKaye

•

Produced by MILTON GATZERT

Directed by LOUIS FRIEDLANDER

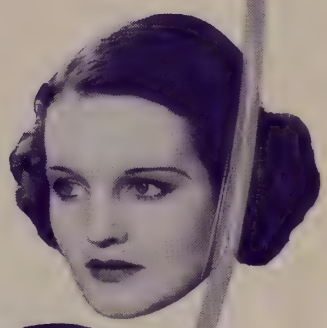
SMART SHOWMANSHIP IN THESE ADS!

LOUISVILLE KY. 3 COL X 9"

HARTFORD CONN. 3 COL X 17"

WASHINGTON D.C 2 COL X 7¼"

HE... thought he knew all kinds of women!
SHE... thought she knew all kinds of men!
UNTIL ... they learned a lot from each other!



CHESTER MORRIS

in Universal's Love Revelation

I'VE BEEN AROUND

WITH

ROCHELLE HUDSON + ISABEL JEWELL + RALPH MORGAN
GENE LOCKHART

Directed by PHILIP CAHN

A B. F. ZEIDMAN Production

From

UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.

ROCKEFELLER CENTER

NEW YORK CITY

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
Paid
Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

ROBERT B WEMNER
22 CROSS ST
MALDEN MASS

Printed in U.S.A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
VOL. 36, NO. 7
JAN. 26, 1935

Margaret Sullavan in THE GOOD FAIRY

Carl Laemmle presents

MARGARET

SULLAVAN

HERBERT

MARSHALL

in Ferenc Molnar's Masterpiece

"The GOOD FAIRY"

A Universal Picture with

FRANK MORGAN

Reginald Owen · Alan Hale

Eric Blore · June Clayworth

Directed by William Wyler

Produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr.

Screenplay by Preston Sturges

Translation by Jane Hinton

Associate Producer: Henry Henigson

THE CAST

Luisa (Lu) Ginglebusher	Margaret Sullavan
Dr. Max Sporum	Herbert Marshall
Konrad	Frank Morgan
Detlaff	Reginald Owen
Schlapkohl	Alan Hale
Dr. Schultz	Beulah Bondi
Joe	Cesar Romero
Dr. Metz	Eric Blore
Doorman	Al Bridges
Chauffeur	George Davis
Actress	June Clayworth

Also Matt McHugh, Frank Moran, Dick Windlow, Anne Darling, Phyllis Ludwig, Alene Carroll

WE HAVE CLEAN-UP!

WESTERN UNION

UNIVERSAL CITY, CALIF., JAN. 8th;—(Special Wire)—

SCREENED GOOD FAIRY LAST NIGHT . . . PICTURE GREAT . . . SULLAVAN'S FINEST PERFORMANCE HER CAREER . . . MY OPINION DO FAR MORE BUSINESS BOX-OFFICE THAN IMITATION . . . FULL OF ROMANCE FINE COMEDY SPLENDID BACK-GROUNDS . . . AND SEEING THIS TODAY AND EDWIN DROOD FRIDAY WAS BEST TONIC SINCE ARRIVAL . . . EVERYONE WILL BE PROUD GOOD FAIRY WHEN SEE IT . . . WE HAVE CLEANUP IN OUR HANDS.

J. R. GRAINGER.

A NEW TYPE OF

No. 804 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

You are about to see one of the most satisfying pictures any studio ever produced. Its title is "The Good Fairy."

It tells the life story of a girl named Ginglebusher, heaven forbid!

I can't imagine an odder start for what promises to be one of the best pictures ever shown — best from the entertainment viewpoint as well as from the box office results.

Imagine a girl named Ginglebusher in any picture anywhere!

Yet, I am glad Universal has the nerve to get away from all the routine of picture-making and offer you something refreshingly, daringly, gloriously new and fine.

Margaret Sullavan is the girl named Ginglebusher. She is an usherette in a theatre. Day after day she sees the movies — and she believes them!

She wants to become a good fairy to everyone. Her soul expands. She wants to help bankers, lawyers, waiters and all other two-legged human beings who have troubles.

So she tries to help them through what she has learned by seeing the movies.

ENTERTAINMENT!

Miss Sullavan is thus given a role such as no real movie star has ever had. She treats it deliciously.

Co-starring with her in "The Good Fairy" you will find Herbert Marshall, assisted by Frank Morgan and Reginald Owen and Alan Hale and a whole cast-full of able troupers under the direction of William Wyler.

The story gives you everything your heart desires. It is new, bright, sympathetic and even a bit glamourous. It is refreshingly different.

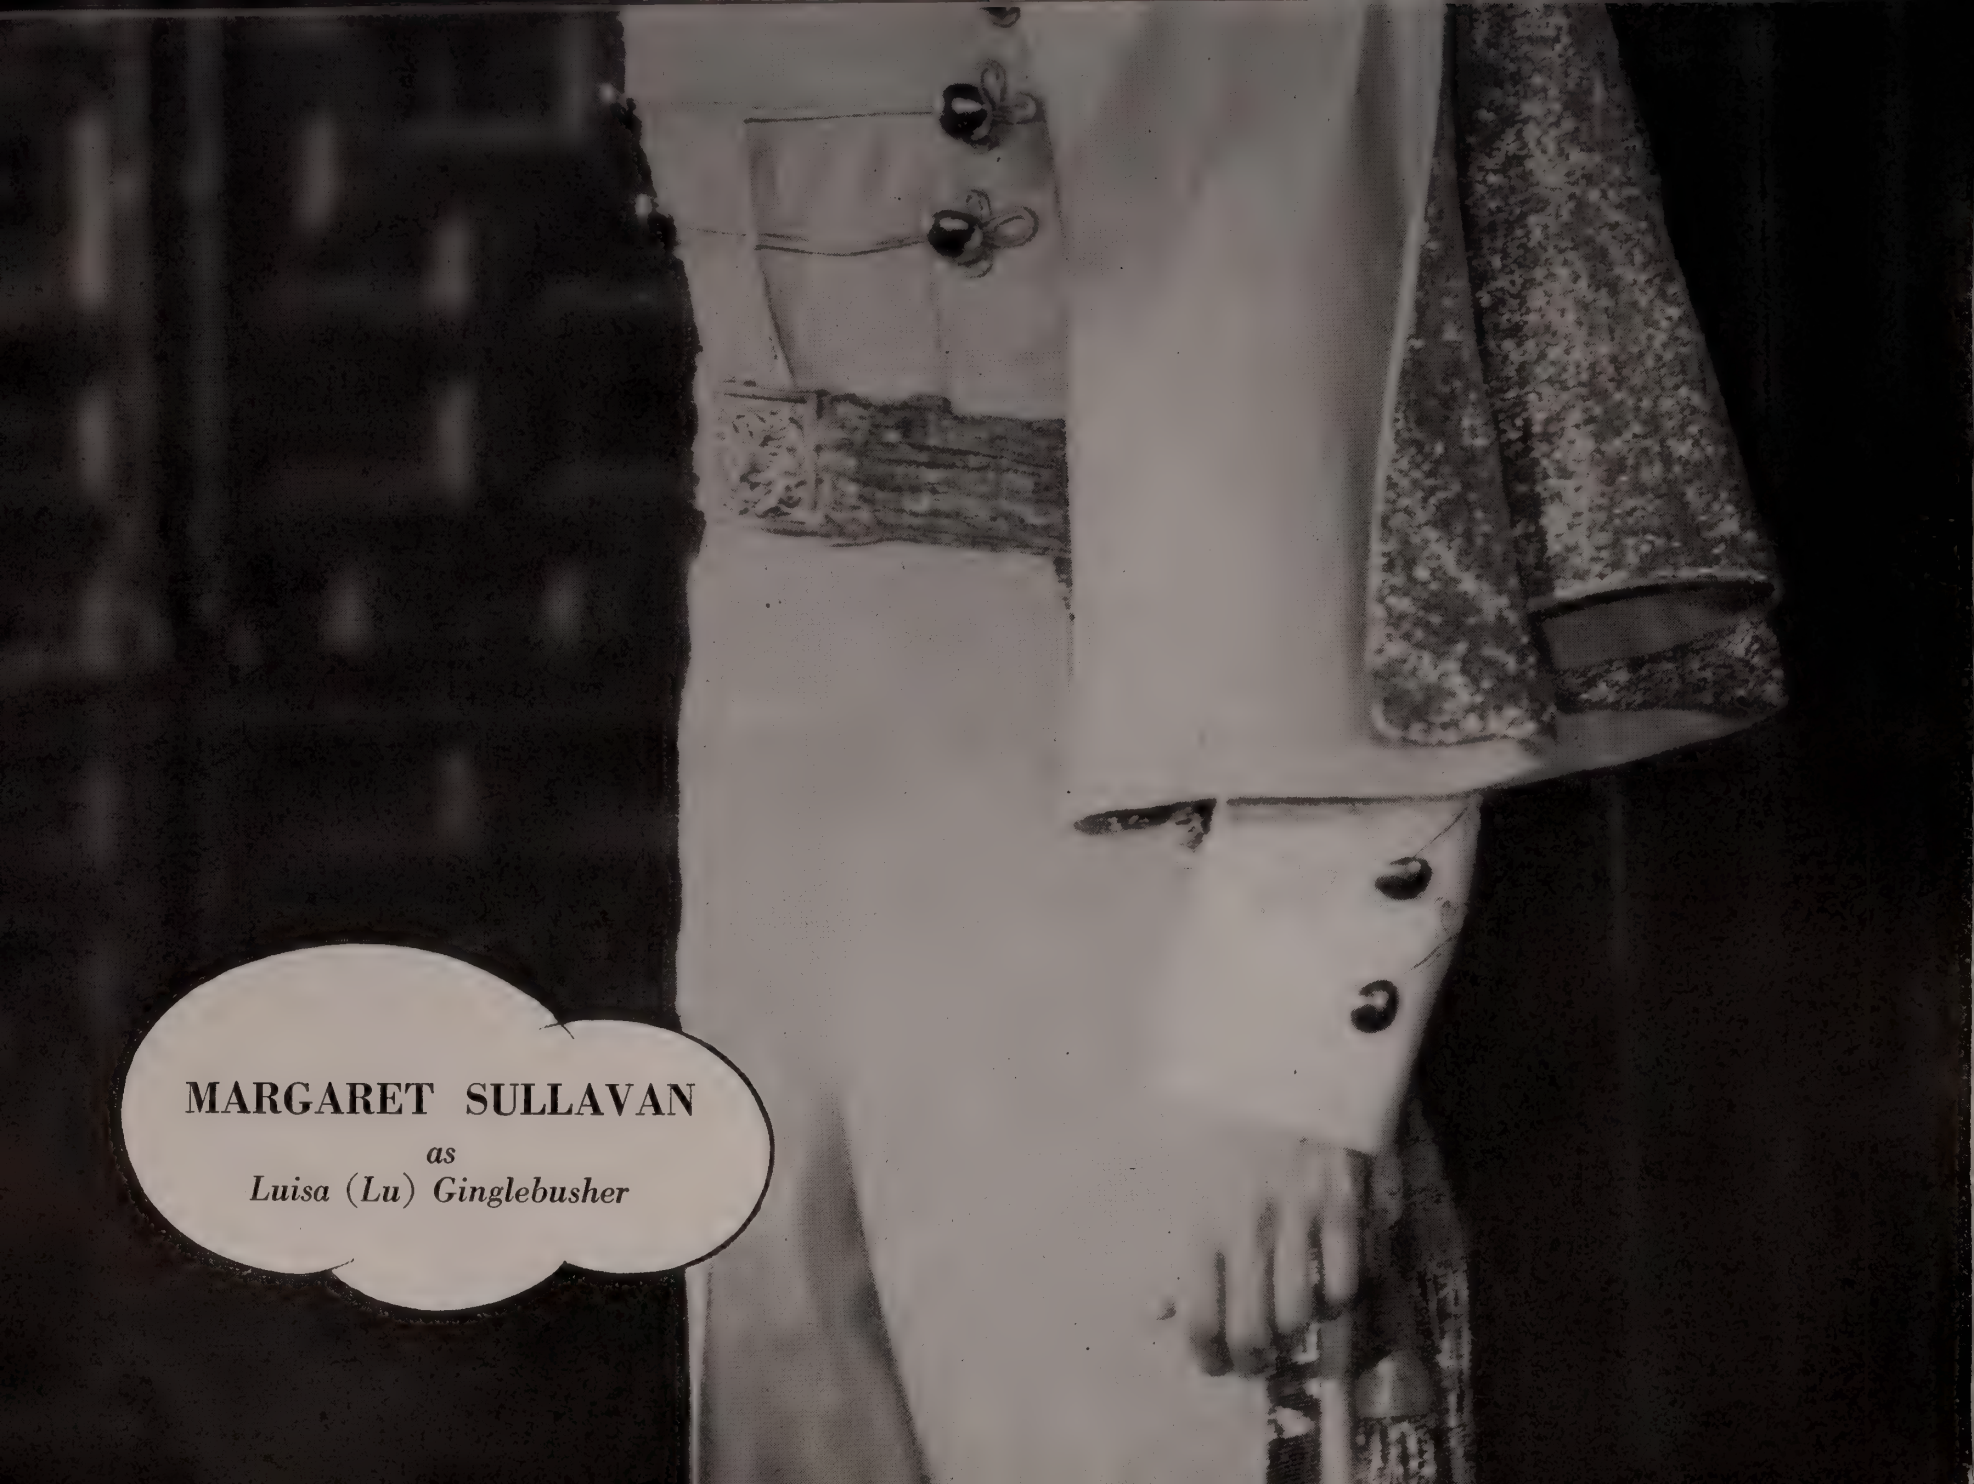
It gives Miss Sullavan all the opportunities you have asked us to give her — and she carries them out with a swagger that will tickle your soul.

"The Good Fairy" is in the mood of today. It meets all of the timely requirements of entertainment and decency and entertainment.

I think it will be known as one of the "ten best" of the year.

It will be imitated! Before the imitations flood the market, tie your theatre up with the original of a new type of movie!

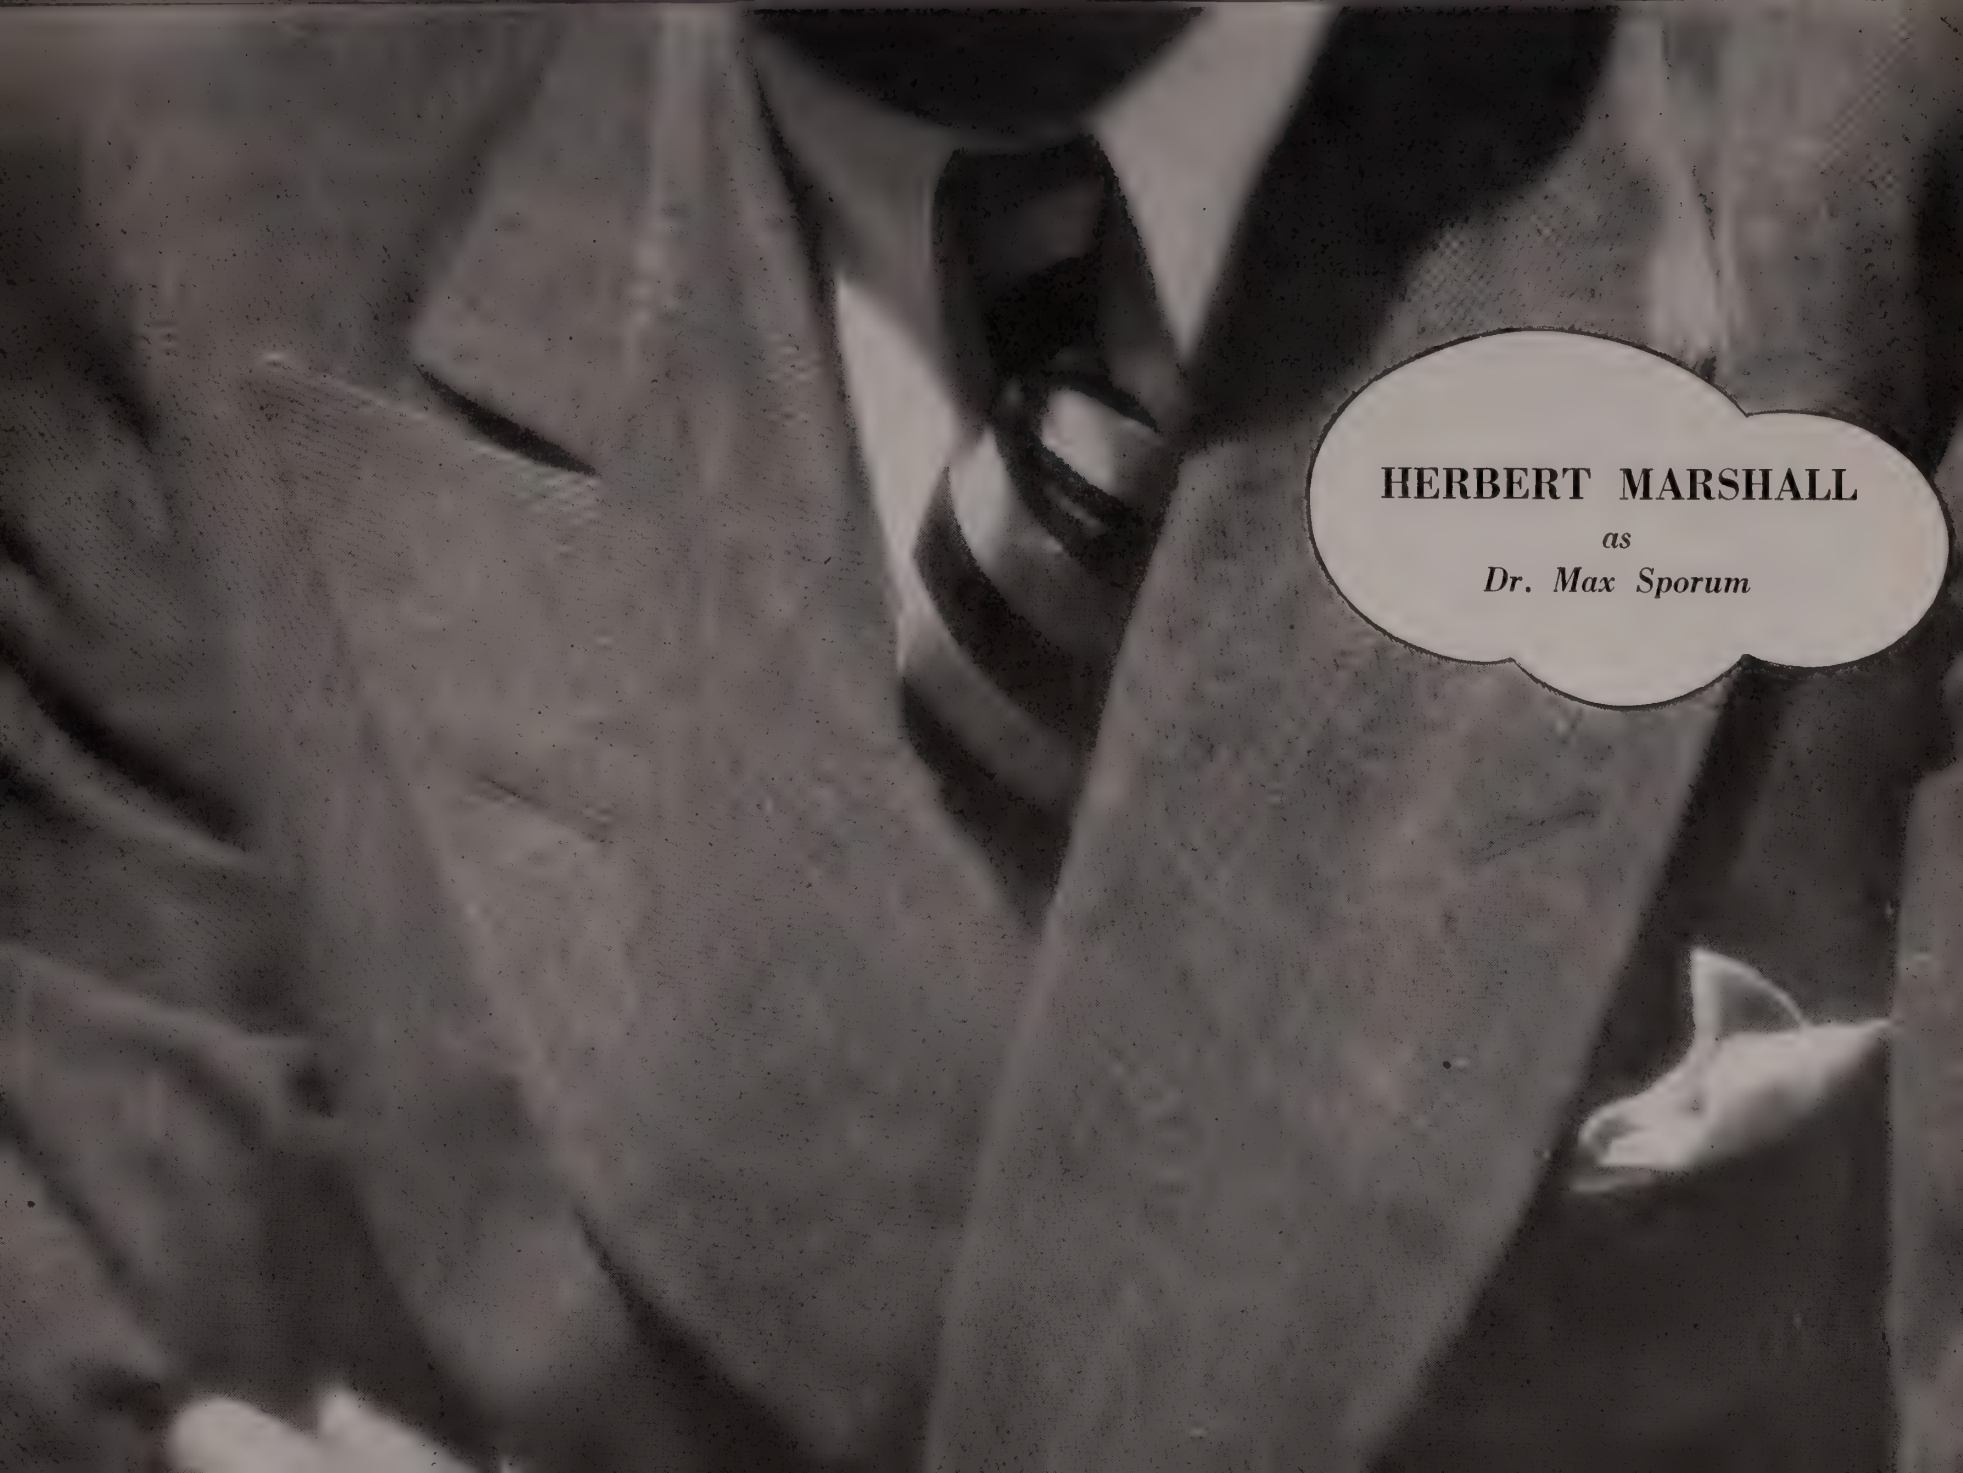
Carl Laemmle



MARGARET SULLAVAN

as

Luisa (Lu) Ginglebusher



HERBERT MARSHALL
as
Dr. Max Sporum

FRANK MORGAN
as Konrad

REGINALD OWEN
as Detlaff

ALAN HALE
as Schlapkohl

JUNE CLAYWORTH
as
The Actress

ERIC BLORE
as
Dr. Metz

MOLNAR WROTE "THE GOOD FAIRY" IN TWO YEARS AND EIGHT DAYS

Ferenc Molnar, famous author of the famous play and famous motion picture, "The Good Fairy."

FERENC MOLNAR created "The Good Fairy" in eight days, from pencilled notes written on cigarette papers, from an idea which had taken two full years to conceive.

Molnar is Europe's most famous playwright. Strangely for a writer whose view of the fairer half of humanity is frequently so unflatteringly cynical, Molnar is the most popular playwright with women playgoers. In spite of his cynicism, he confesses that he puts individual women on pedestals.

His favorite dramatic theme is the Cinderella story, of which "The Good Fairy" is a notable example.

Ferenc Molnar has been writing plays for 25 years. Like the man himself and the views he expresses, his method of composition is distinctly original. It takes him two years and three days to write a play on the average. Two years to think it out and three days to transfer it to paper. During the two years nothing is written in dramatic form. The work is entirely mental. Every scene from beginning to end is made ready in his mind and kept in mind. He sits and chats and sips brandy with his cronies at the Otthon club in Budapest, idling to the unknowing observer. But a play is simmering in his mind.

At this stage of creation he takes notes on cigarette papers with a tiny pencil stub and stows them in his pockets. When he gets home at dawn he puts them away in a drawer. This continues until suddenly the whole drama is watertight in its mental state.

Then Molnar disappears. He retires to his apartment, pulls down the shades to keep out the daylight which he detests and which distracts him when working, turns on the electric lights and begins to write his play in longhand. He works for eighteen hours a day. At the end of three days unless some unforeseen difficulty is encountered, the play is finished. During these days of furious work he never leaves the room, even to dress. Only on two occasions has he exceeded his three days limit. One of these was "Liliom." The other was "The Good Fairy." Both of these took eight days to write.

The Preview Parade of UNIVERAL PICTURES

MARGARET SULLAVAN

"This Way, Please—"

She was a little usherette—young and lovely. Innocent of life, except as it flitted across the screen.

All her hopes—her dreams—her thoughts—were gilded by the glamour of what she saw—in the movies.

Men were Nature's noblemen and women Beautiful Visions. And Life was a high adventure, filled with exciting surprises . . .

HERBERT MARSHALL

In the pretty head of that usherette, no other world existed than that which she watched from her aisle every day.

So when she tried to cope with people who were not shadows—pouf! air castles tumbled and bubbles burst. How she salvaged happiness from these vanishing mirages, Ferenc Molnar reveals in "THE GOOD FAIRY."

Once a stage hit, now it is on the screen with Margaret Sullavan more logical than ever in the starring role. Herbert Marshall plays opposite and as a pair, they're perfect.

Big names, swell angles, top performances—"THE GOOD FAIRY" makes every showman's wish come true.

JACTHALL

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
PAUL GULICK, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, N. Y. City
Universal Pictures Corp.

Copyrighted 1935
(All Rights Reserved)

Vol. 36 JANUARY 26, 1935 No. 7

The GOOD FAIRY" was a f

Here is a scene from "The Good Fairy" as it was played on the stage by Helen Hayes and Walter Connelly at the Henry Miller Theatre.

Here is the same scene as played by Margaret Sullavan and Herbert Marshall in the moving picture version of the Molnar play.

"THE GOOD FAIRY," before it ever was made into a moving picture, was a successful Broadway play. It not only was a successful Broadway play—it was a successful play in Budapest and in Berlin as well. In these three stages of its existence, it had three noted producers. In Budapest, Hungary, the play was produced in October, 1931, by Ferenc Molnar, the author, who is famous on the Continent not only as an author but as a producer of his own and of other plays.

In Berlin, the production was made by the famous Max Reinhardt at the Komoedie Theatre under the title, "Die Fee."

In New York, the production was made by Gilbert Miller, then a producer for the Frohman company, at the Henry Miller Theatre. The production in New York opened on November 24, 1931. The settings were by Joseph Urban, and Mr. Miller, who had not appeared on the stage as an actor since 1918, played the role of the producer in his own production.

Four Famous Stars

"THE GOOD FAIRY" has had four famous stars. Margaret Sullavan is the star of the moving picture version. Helen Hayes was the star of the Gilbert Miller production on Broadway. Grete Mosheim was the star of the Reinhardt production, and Franciska Gaal was the star of the original Hungarian production, which was entitled "A Jo Tunder." It is interesting to note that both of these foreign stars are coming to America next year. Franciska Gaal is a Universal star and has made six pictures for Universal in Hungarian, German and French. She has been studying English for a year. Between pictures, she runs over to London to live in an English atmosphere, and to perfect her accent and idiom.

America Hails It

THE press reviewers in New York were enthusiastic in their comments on "The Good Fairy."

Brooks Atkinson of the Times considered it "an odd and cheerful little comedy." Percy Hammond of the Herald-Tribune called it "a good show well acted by charming actors" and found it provided "an evening of grins and chuckles." The critic of the American, Gilbert Gabriel, reported "an altogether gay, audacious little pleasantry, free of any twinges of conscience riding around the clock on cherub's wings of wit." Burns Mantle, commentator of the Daily News praised it as "a knowing little comedy." Whitney Bolton, Morning Telegraph scribe wrote that "Master Molnar, the good Ferenc, trifles idly and deliciously in his new comedy, "The Good Fairy." It is gossamer, adult and gay."

John Anderson of the Evening Journal, tabbed it as a hit and thought it "an airy and generally sparkling piece of amiable nonsense." Ed Sullivan, then of the Evening Graphic, headed his article with, "Some of the brightest dialogue to arrive on Broadway this season is compressed in Ferenc Molnar's comedy 'The Good Fairy' which floated airily into the Henry Miller Theatre last night." The Women's Wear critic Kelcey Allen liked it as "a gay little comedy, forceful, imaginative and humorous." Arthur Pollock of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle described it as follows: "the idea is charming, the play a delight." The World-Telegram observer Robert Garland concluded his reviews: "if Mr. Miller wants something to print in his advertisements he is at liberty to report that Mr. Garland of the World-Telegram recommends 'The Good Fairy' with all sincerity."

This auspicious metropolitan debut was not unexpected for the tenor of the critiques from Cleveland, where the play opened on Monday, November 9 and from Pittsburgh where it began a stay on Monday, November 16 had been most favorable. George Davis of the Cleveland Press found it "amusing." William McDermott in the Plain Dealer was delighted with its "bland and airy comedy" and compared it to Barrie at his best. Archie Bell of the News said, "it is theatre, for the theatre and then more theatre. The result is magnificent. The second act is the most amusing that I have sat through for months and I have not heard such constant laughing in a local theatre for the same length of time."

AMOUS BROADWAY PLAY

George Seibel of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph commented that "Molnar turns it into a delicious morsel, spicy and sweet." Karl Krug of the Press set it down as "a delightfully audacious comedy."

Unusual Ending

MANY people remember the unusual ending of "The Last Laugh." The author stated in a subtitle that he did not want to leave his actors in so sad a case that the audience was sorry for them so he added a new scene to make them happy. Mr. Miller did this too.

In the stage production, Gilbert Miller, at the end of Act III, appeared on the boards in character. He acted as a producer, much like himself, and improvised on announcement (which happened to be the truth in actual life) that he had persuaded Molnar to write an Epilogue showing what fate befel the characters later in life. This Molnar agreed to do.

This small part marked the first appearance of Gilbert Miller on the stage since 1906. He is the son of a famous American actor of another generation, Henry Miller, Gilbert Miller, producer of "The Good Fairy" at the Henry Miller Theatre, then unde the auspices of the Frohman company.

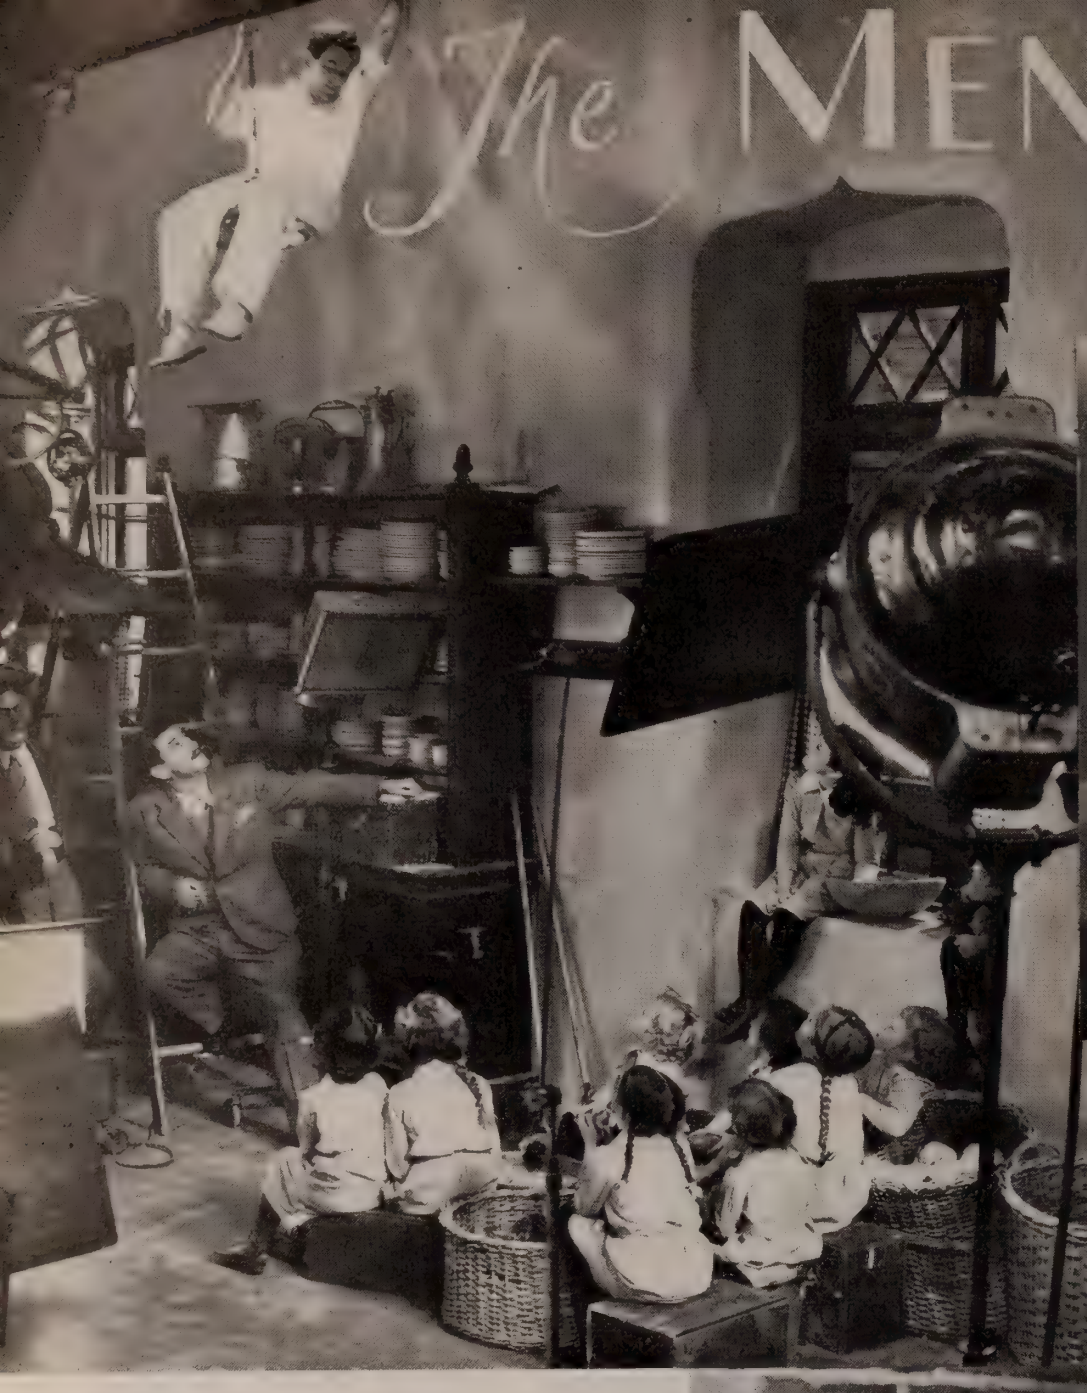
Photo by Joe Weil

Here is the Henry Miller Theatre on 43rd Street, New York, photographed by the Universal Weekly staff photographer this week. Our artist, however, has changed the sign over the marquee to read as it looked in 1931, when "The Good Fairy" had its memorable run at this theatre.

The MEN

Who M
"The



William Wyler, director of "The Good Fairy"

William Wyler, the director, experiments from a high perch to see how the scene below will look through the eyes of Margaret Sullavan, who has to hang from this perilous perch and to drop from it to the floor. After a number of rehearsals, Miss Sullavan was pretty sore and retired from the final take with the saying, "There ought to be a law against acrobats working without nets under them." Preston Sturges is on the ladder below Wyler.

—●—

Margaret Sullavan and playwright Preston Sturges, who wrote "Strictly Dishonorable" expressing their satisfaction with the progress of the filming of "The Good Fairy." Margaret Sullavan is co-starred with Herbert Marshall, and Preston Sturges did the adaptation of the Molnar play to the screen.

ade A Picture of GOOD FAIRY"

Preston Sturges, adaptor of "The Good Fairy"

The Adaptor

THE screen adaptation ot "The Good Fairy" was written by Preston Sturges, author of "Strictly Dishonorable," "Child of Manhattan," "Recapture," "The Guinea Pig" and "The Well of Romance," all of which were produced with success on New York's Broadway. Entering motion pictures in 1929 to write "The Big Pond" for Maurice Chevalier, Sturges has since achieved fame as a brilliant scenarist with "Fast and Loose," "Thirty Day Princess," "We Live Again" and "The Power and the Glory"—the latter recently adjudged the gold medal screenplay of the year. Sturges was born in Chicago on August 29, 1898, and attended schools in France, Germany, Switzerland and the United States.

A study of William Wyler, the director, behind one of the new sound cameras with which "The Good Fairy" was photographed.

The Director

WHEN Carl Laemmle returned from Europe in the Fall of 1908 he brought back with him a very promising and a very young man. His name was William Wyler. He started in the New York office doing publicity for European newspapers. Wyler was born in Mulhouse and was educated in Lausanne. Switzerland and in Paris. He first entered his father's glove store in Paris but was delighted to accept Mr. Laemmle's invitation to come to America. His success has been doubly sweet and gratifying. It has been achieved in the face of all the difficulties which beset a very young man, unfamiliar with a new country's language and customs and underestimated by every one because of the natural thought that he had influence at headquarters.

Wyler has been directing for ten years, starting with two reelers and graduating into features.

The Settings

WHEN William Wyler started "The Good Fairy," he made certain that the settings would be not only appropriate but would be an outstanding feature of this production. Wyler was born in Alsace Lorraine and has many times been in Budapest. The entire story of this Ferenc Molnar play is laid in and around the city of Budapest. The huge department stores, the cafes, the orphanage, the theatres, the street scenes, everything in fact, about the settings, has been designed and constructed with the utmost care and precision and also with an eye to bringing out the most striking photographic possibilities.

One of the most elaborate settings is that representing an internationally famous cafe, every feature of which has been reconstructed with the utmost precision and will be recognied with delight by anyone who has been in Budapest.

Many of the most expressive scenes of "The Good Fairy" were taken in the Carthay Circle and the theatre lobby. This was the theatre in which Margaret Sullavan's first picture, "Only Yesterday," had its world premiere. This illustration shows the ushers rehearsing Margaret Sullavan as usherette Number 1.

BOOKED SIGHT UNSEEN IN

O RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL!

CARL LAEMMLE Presents

MARGARET
SULLAVAN
HERBERT
MARSHALL

in Universal's Production of Ferenc Molnar's

The GOOD FAIRY

with

FRANK MORGAN

REGINALD OWEN · ALAN HALE
ERIC BLORE · JUNE CLAYWORTH

Story translation by Jane Hinton

Screenplay by Preston Sturges

Directed by WILLIAM WYLER

Produced by CARL LAEMMLE, Jr.

Watch This Column
Margaret SULLAVAN
Herbert MARSHALL
in The GOOD FAIRY
You will remember the charm of Miss SULLAVAN as the star in "ONLY YESTERDAY" and "LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?" In "THE GOOD FAIRY," she has a totally different kind of role as an usherette in a Viennese movie theatre, who has ambitions to enjoy life's luxuries. Co-starred with her is HERBERT MARSHALL, whose talent is known to every movie-lover. "THE GOOD FAIRY" is a bright whimsical comedy with sparkling dialog, and you will enjoy it from end to end. In the cast is that outstanding actor, FRANK MORGAN. The story is by Ferenc Molnar and direction by William Wyler.
In "NIGHT LIFE OF THE GODS," UNIVERSAL has produced a bizarre picture in which Neptune, Mercury, Venus, Diana, Hercules and other gods and goddesses come to real life and descend on the modern life of Broadway. Naturally, situations are startling and ludicrous. Lowell Sherman has revealed in directing this production (from Thorne Smith's novel) and the whole world should love it.
Have you seen UNIVERSAL'S splendid production of Charles Dickens' "GREAT EXPECTATIONS?" If not, then see it by all means.
Let's get together and discuss by mail what you think could be added to improve UNIVERSAL PICTURES. If you have any ideas—send them to me. I will pay for any ideas that I can actually use.
(To be continued in the Dec. 1st issue of The Saturday Evening Post.)
Carl Laemmle
(President 1536-LT)
UNIVERSAL PICTURES
CARL LAEMMLE, President
Rockefeller Center New York City
Watch This Column
Margaret SULLAVAN
HERBERT MARSHALL
in The GOOD FAIRY
This excellent daddy-long-legs type of story, by Ferenc Molnar, is beautifully presented and I heartily commend it to young and old. It portrays a most hilarious, fast-moving comedy drama wherein a girl goes from an orphanage into the world—plays havoc with the lives of three men by selecting her husband from a telephone book and failing to tell her victim she has done so. As a result, she finds herself in serious, though amusing, complications which audiences like. You will long remember this outstanding picture when you see it. MARGARET SULLAVAN, famed for her great successes, co-stars with HERBERT MARSHALL. Others of note in the cast are: FRANK MORGAN, Alan Hale, Reginald Owen, Eric Blore and June Clayworth. A WILLIAM WYLER PRODUCTION.
• • • •
"A NOTORIOUS GENTLEMAN" is an intense, modern drama, emotional, thrilling and tragic, yet lightened by pleasing love interest. The cast of players is so able that every thought of the authors is splendidly developed. The cast: Charles Bickford, Helen Vinson, Dudley Digges, Onslow Stevens, Sidney Blackmer, John Darrow and others. Directed by Edward Laemmle.
"THE MYSTERY OF EDWIN DROOD," starring the talented CLAUDE RAINS (The Invisible Man) and DOUGLASS MONTGOMERY, involves a choir-master in a village church who is a veritable Jekyll and Hyde. The story is suspenseful and eerie, written by a master-mind, DAVID MANNERS. Remarkable—HEATHER ANGEL, Douglass Montgomery, Francis L. Sullivan and Valerie Hobson. Direction by Stuart Walker.
"IMITATION OF LIFE," with CLAUDETTE COLBERT, WARREN WILLIAM, ROCHELLE HUDSON, Ned Sparks, Alan Hale, Louise Beavers, Fredi Washington, Baby Jane and others. Story by Fannie Hurst and direction by JOHN M. STAHL, the human interest director.
Watch out for "NIGHT LIFE OF THE GODS," hilarious comedy; "THE MAN WHO RECLAIMED HIS HEAD" with CLAUDE RAINS, JOAN BENNETT and LIONEL ATWILL. Demand Universal pictures at your favorite theatre, see the best entertainment.
• • • •
Until further notice, every time that this column gives I will pay $50 for the best letter received containing a suggestion for the betterment of UNIVERSAL PICTURES. I myself will be the judge as to the best letter and my decision will be final. In each and every letter you write please state whether or not you wish your name used in this column—your request will appear here in this column—your name may be listed. Furthermore, I will be glad to listen to how much we will pay for EXTRAORDINARY suggestions. Send your ideas in. NOW!
(To be continued in the February 3rd issue of The Saturday Evening Post.)
Carl Laemmle
(President 1536-LT)
UNIVERSAL PICTURES
CARL LAEMMLE, President
Rockefeller Center New York City
Watch This Column
Margaret SULLAVAN
Herbert MARSHALL
in The GOOD FAIRY
WHEN such artists get together, both artistic, sincere and understanding, and are flanked by an able cast, a good picture is bound to result—providing the story is right—which it is in this instance, as the famous Hungarian playwright, Ferenc Molnar, is the author. As the title implies, THE GOOD FAIRY tries to please everybody and as a result finds herself in serious, though amusing, complications. The picture is modern, and it will please you in every way. The assisting cast includes FRANK MORGAN, Reginald Owen, Alan Hale, Hugh O'Connell, June Clayworth and others. Screen play by Preston Sturges. Directed by William Wyler.
• • • •
Put these on your "MUST SEE" list:
CLAUDE RAINS, (The Invisible Man) in "THE MYSTERY OF EDWIN DROOD" with Heather Angel, Douglass Montgomery, David Manners, Francis L. Sullivan, Valerie Hobson and others. Direction by Stuart Walker.
"NIGHT LIFE OF THE GODS," in which the Greek and Roman gods come to life and join modern life of Broadway. A LOWELL SHERMAN production from Thorne Smith's novel.
CLAUDETTE COLBERT in Fannie Hurst's "IMITATION OF LIFE," with WARREN WILLIAM, ROCHELLE HUDSON, Ned Sparks, Fredi Washington, Alan Hale, Louise Beavers, Baby Jane and others. Direction by JOHN M. STAHL, the human interest director.
"THE MAN WHO RECLAIMED HIS HEAD" with CLAUDE RAINS and JOAN BENNETT, assisted by LIONEL ATWILL, Lloyd Hughes, Dorothea Wieck, Carol Coombs and others. Story by Edward Ludwig.
• • • •
Carl Laemmle is interested only in extraordinary suggestions. Before, he has recommended anything himself towards an outstanding production, $25,000.00 will be the minimum he pays for the betterment of our pictures. Mr. Laemmle will be the judge as to best suggestions and there will be no limit as to how much we will pay for extraordinary suggestions. Send your ideas in. NOW!
(To be continued in the February 3rd issue of The Saturday Evening Post.)
Carl Laemmle
(President 1536-LT)
UNIVERSAL PICTURES
CARL LAEMMLE, President
Rockefeller Center New York City
Watch This Column
Margaret SULLAVAN
Herbert MARSHALL
in The GOOD FAIRY
FERENC Molnar, the leading Hungarian playwright of today, wrote "THE GOOD FAIRY," and it seems to me more than fitting that the charming MARGARET SULLAVAN plays the leading role. She is an usherette in a theatre and is animated by a desire to please everybody. One of her contacts is a South American banker who, of course, misunderstands her motives. Thus come the complications which audiences love. HERBERT MARSHALL has the leading male role. Miss SULLAVAN and Mr. MARSHALL are ably assisted by Frank Morgan, Alan Hale, Reginald Owen, Hugh O'Connell, Henry Armetta and others. Direction by William Wyler.
★
De Luxe Pictures Which I Cordially Recommend:
CLAUDETTE COLBERT in "IMITATION OF LIFE," with WARREN WILLIAM, including ROCHELLE HUDSON, Ned Sparks, Alan Hale, Baby Jane, Fredi Washington and Louise Beavers, et al. Next Sunday, and will believe it to be picture of the year. It is from Fannie Hurst's famous novel, presented by players of known and proven ability, and will, I believe, set the pace for screen productions of the year. It is directed by the artistic John M. Stahl.
★
"NIGHT LIFE OF THE GODS"—a merry and comedy bringing to life the Greek and Roman gods. It is from the ingenious story by Thorne Smith, and Lowell Sherman's directing is notable. You'll laugh till you cry.
★
"THE MAN WHO RECLAIMED HIS HEAD"—a powerful drama of the eternal triangle in which CLAUDE RAINS who scored in The Invisible Man—plays the lead with JOAN BENNETT opposite, assisted by LIONEL ATWILL, Lloyd Hughes and Dorothea Wieck. Direction by Edward Ludwig.
• • •
Heartiest wishes to you all for a fine Christmas, and still further prosperity and happiness for the New Year.
(To be continued in the Dec. 1st issue of The Saturday Evening Post.)
Carl Laemmle
(President 1536-LT)
UNIVERSAL PICTURES
CARL LAEMMLE, President
Rockefeller Center New York City

The GOOD

MILLIONS OF FANS have been told and sold for months in advance through these ad columns in the Saturday Evening
Post, the magazine with the largest circulation of all!

FAIRY

HIGHLIGHTING "The

Margaret Sullavan in the role of Lu Ginglebusher, the altruistic moving picture theatre usherette.

★

WITH her first picture, Margaret Sullavan became a star. "Only Yesterday" required a personality like hers, and Margaret Sullavan required a picture like "Only Yesterday" to display the remarkable dramatic ability which she possesses.

Margaret Sullavan's second picture, "Little Man, What Now?" demonstrated that her success in "Only Yesterday" was no flash in the pan. She was not a one-role actress; she had ability to portray diametrically opposite forms of emotion and she had the ability to take the second role in a picture, if necessary. As an actress, she could take it.

Literally thousands of columns of publicity have been written about Margaret Sullavan, her personality, her ability, and her performance in these two roles. Fan magazine stories and covers have been given her with such regularity that Margaret Sullavan today stands on the top-most rung of the ladder of popularity and praise.

Everyone is anxious to see a Margaret Sullavan picture. Their curiosity and expectancy will be thoroughly gratified in "The Good Fairy," in which Margaret Sullavan is starred with Herbert Marshall in a role made famous on the stage by Helen Hayes.

It is a role with glamour painted all over it, a role in which Margaret Sullavan has the opportunity to further her popularity with the public.

Herbert Marshall and Margaret Sullavan in a scene from "The Good Fairy."

★

★

One of the many elaborate scenes in "The Good Fairy."

"The Good Fairy" has unusual advertising, p li ten by Europe's most noted playwright, Moln . York's most famous theatres, the Henry Mill mous showmen, Gilbert Miller, and interprete b Hayes and Walter Connelly.. Its screen play w w tinction, Preston Sturges. Its cast includes su Herbert Marshall, Frank Morgan, Reginald O n Cesar Romero and Beulah Bondi. It was dire d

MOVIES INSPIRED "THE GOOD FAIRY"

IN "The Good Fairy," in which Margaret Sullavan is starred with Herbert Marshall, the character that she plays, Lu, was inspired by looking at romantic and heroic motion pictures to become "The Good Fairy." You see, Lu is a theatre usherette. Her outlook on life is very much circumscribed, but the screen opens to her a world of opportunity to do good deeds. While the flicker romance is on the screen, a tremendous determination to help others grows in Lu's heart, until she is inspired to do the most amazing, most unconventional and most dangerous things, all for the good of other people, and all without any selfish interest, or thought of the position in which she might be placed.

William Wyler directed the picture from the play by Ferenc Molnar.

MARGARET SULLAVAN USHERS AT PANTAGES

MARGARET SULLAVAN recently served as an usherette in Pantage's, the very theatre in which she made her screen debut as a star a year ago. In certain sequences of "The Good Fairy," Miss Sullavan is seen as an usherette and these scenes were made in Pantages theatre in Hollywood, scene of the world premiere of her first screenplay, "Only Yesterday." And her associates in the work for the new picture were a score of regular usherettes who a year ago were answering questions about the new star.

For five successive nights the "Good Fairy" company assembled at the theatre upon the conclusion of the regular performance and worked until late the next morning, when they must retire from the scene so that the daily show might be resumed.

Good Fairy" in ADVANCE

y and exploitation value. It was writ- had a splendid run in one of New duced by one of New York's most fa- o of the finest stage players, Helen ten by a New York playwright of dis- en luminaries as Margaret Sullavan, lan Hale, Eric Blore, June Clayworth, the talented William Wyler.

ENTIRE TOWN BUILT FOR "GOOD FAIRY"

ROME was not built in a day but Budapest was. It was built not in Hungary, but in Hollywood for the production of "The Good Fairy." Not a stone of this city's walls was ever quarried. Like the bricks they were imitations made of cardboard and wood. Some of them even were of paper. All the glass windows were made of celluloid. The only real things used were those that would sound, such as the cobbles in the streets, the trolley cars, the automobiles, the horses and drays, the furniture of the buildings and the "hand props." Yet this city had it architects, blueprints, masons and mechanics just like a real city.

The movie Budapest was 250 feet long, 220 feet wide and two stories high. No building over two stories was allowed. No buildings had roofs.

PICKS A HUSBAND OUT OF 'PHONE BOOK

WHEN Lu, the movie usherette heroine of "The Good Fairy," embarked on her career of doing good deeds for others, she little thought that she would be forced to the extremity of picking a husband for herself out of the telephone book!

But when she introduced herself to an amorously inclined wealthy gentleman, from whose golden horde she fondly hoped to scatter riches, honors and happiness about the world, she soon discovered that, for her own protection, it would be necessary to provide herself with a husband to present to the impatient millionaire. So she passes herself off as a married woman of the fashionable world as a defense against his advances. She has no husband, but she glibly tells her admirer that her husband is a lawyer. To further his suit, the millionaire offers to give this lawyer all of his legal business. From this point its a riot of mirth.

Margaret Sullavan and Frank Morgan in a scene from "The Good Fairy," wherein Morgan, as the millionaire, bewilders the usherette with promises of great fortune.

★

★

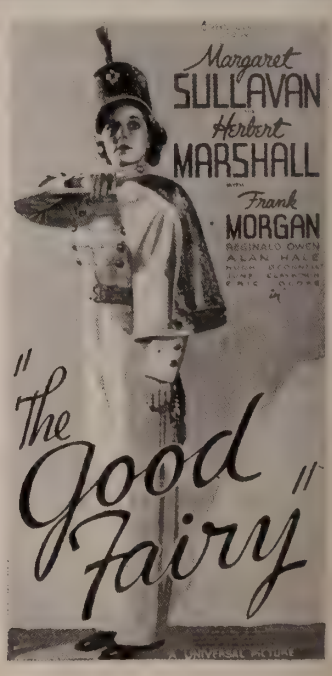
Herbert Marshall, whose charm of manner and voice, have made him the most popular male star of the day. His voice has been called 'the voice with the sex appeal."

Herbert Marshall Has Most Seductive Voice

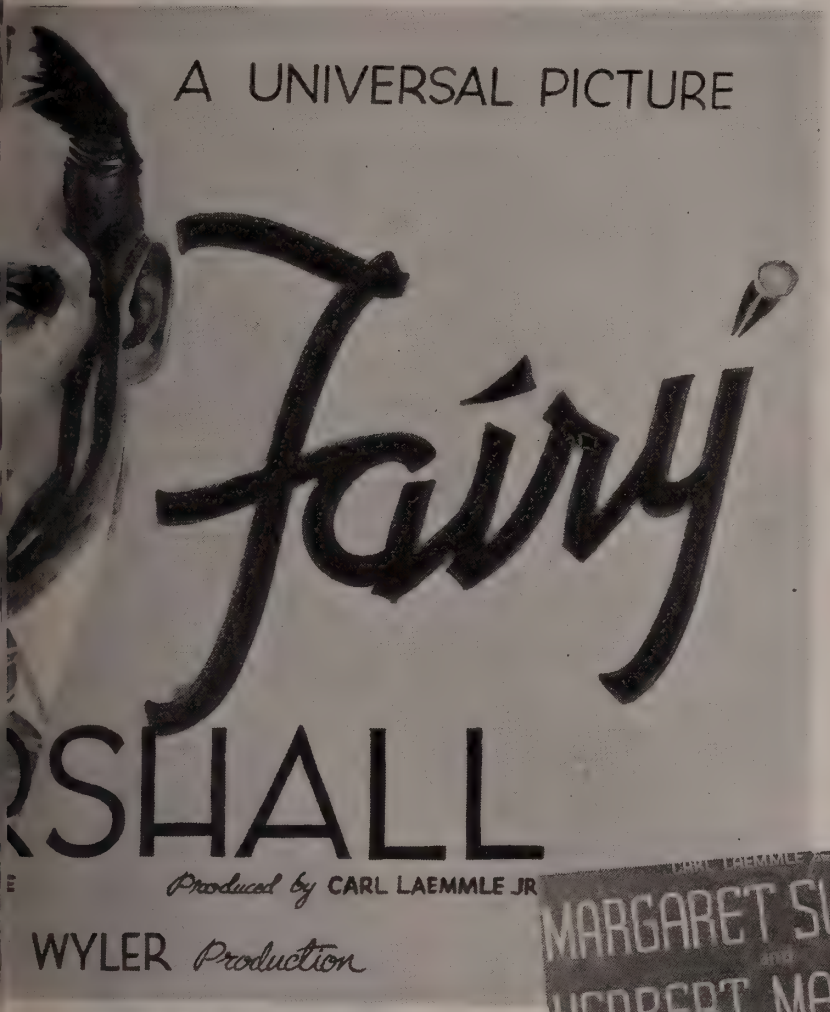
NO other screen actor is in such heavy demand as leading man for Hollywood's feminine screen stars as is Herbert Marshall. All, it seems, are clamoring for the services of this quiet, finely attuned Englishman who is already achieving with theatre audiences the same degree of popularity that has been lavished on him by the stars themselves. Gerta Garbo, Constance Bennett, Claudette Colbert and Norma Shearer are among those who have been successful in bringing about his engagement as their screen lover and have followed with high praise of Marshall both as a man and as an actor.

Their expressions have been such as to turn the head of any man who did not have his feet firmly fixed on the ground. "He has a miraculous quality of sincerity and sympathy, which is subtly conveyed to the person playing with him." "The secret of his charm is his gallant and courteous attitude toward all women." "He is both manly and wistful. The sympathy of women goes out to him because his face expresses silent suffering and a great sympathy. His voice is the most seductive in motion pictures." —Stars Opinions

PAPER YOURSELF INTO A



HOLDOVER WITH THESE!



HERE'S a 24-Sheet that has everything in color, in star art, in maximum display values! Don't pass it up!

Showmanship

. . . let's be obvious!

There are no trick angles needed to sell Sullavan-Marshall-Morgan in "Good Fairy"

No need to twist your brain or spend hours doping up stunts on "THE GOOD FAIRY." No trick angles needed. It's obvious to sell Sullavan and Marshall and Morgan in this story but it's the right and only thing to do! That leaves all your time clear for the selling job!

No need to think up swell lines on Sullavan. The critics have done it for you:

" . . . to Margaret Sullavan can go only the laurels reserved for the truly great of the silver screen." Rochester Journal and Post Express. ". . . a constant delight!" Boston Traveler. " . . . superior gift, simple, irresistibly natural . . . the most versatile of recent discoveries and the one that will last longest in popular favor." Los Angeles Times. " . . . a very great actress." Toronto Mail and Empire. " . . . superb performer." Washington Evening Star. " . . . glorious." New Orleans Tribune " . . . a freshness, spontaneity, and sincerity that are all her own." Chicago Tribune. " . . . hits high note as film star . . . superlative talent." New York World-Telegram. " . . . hail Miss Sullavan!" Kansas City Star. " . . . lovely, sensitive . . . brings intelligence and an unusual poise to the screen." New York Daily News.

Plus HERBERT MARSHALL, her co-star and FRANK MORGAN, reigning new favorite, a triumvirate of box-office names that spells money if it is flashed to your crowds!

The angles are obvious—but the attack must be impressive! The more glitter and glamour you attach to the opening of this picture the bigger your returns. The reports tell us it is a great picture . . . Sullavan's finest, topping even "Little Man, What Now" and "Only Yesterday." That means it is worthy of a big campaign with big newspaper space. It is worthy of immediate lobby billing and pre-advance screen announcement. It is worthy of all that goes with a gala premiere.

Let's be obvious by giving it all of these things and launching "THE GOOD FAIRY" as the big picture that it is!

. . . JOE WEIL

BALLYHOO — CONTESTS — LOBBY DISPLAYS — STUNTS

Display Lines

The Exciting Adventures of a Lovely Vixen Who Bedeviled A Romancing Millionaire Into Making Her Poor Sweetheart's Dreams Come True.

* *

Brilliant! Glamorous! Mysterious! Actress Superb! The Supreme Sullavan In A Triumph Greater Than "Only Yesterday" and "Little Man, What Now?"

* *

She knew Nothing About Life or Love—Yet She Had to Choose—The Poor Young Stranger or the Romancing Millionaire.

* *

Call It Chance—Destiny Was "The Good Fairy" That Threw Wealth and Success Into the Lap of One Man and a Strange and Lovely Girl Into the Arms of Another!

* *

She Was Dainty Dynamite That Burst Like A Blazing Bombshell Into the Lives of Three Worldly Men!

* *

Through The Whim Of A Young Lady Whose Innocent Loveliness Enthralled A Romantic Millionaire, A Young Attorney Is Catapulted to Sensational Success!

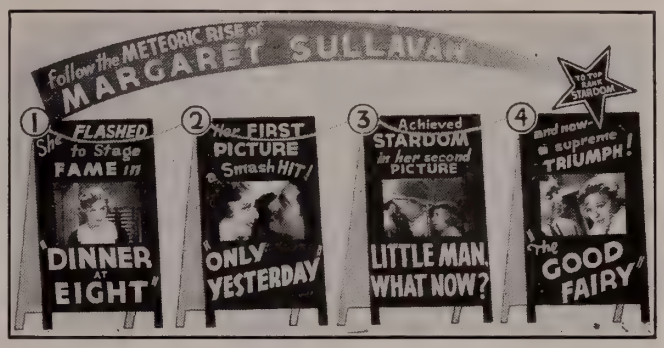
Telephone Directory Tie-Up

A lawyer's listing in the classified telephone directory brings him riches in this picture. (In explanation, Margaret Sullavan runs to a telephone book and finds an unknown lawyer's name at random, as a result of which he gets a big retainer.) Here is your chance to tie-up with distributors of the local classified telephone directory, and possibly to have them do advertising in your local newspapers. They may assist in your telephone campaign, or co-operate in other ways.

GIRL BALLYHOO

The girl is dressed in an usher's uniform and carries a giant flashlight, which you can probably promote from the local electrical store. Add a catch-line to the banner hanging from the flashlight. The girl should parade on the busiest streets and hand out heralds whenever a crowd gathers. Particularly good for the evening hours.

Lobby Panel to Sell the Star!



Illustrated above is a suggestion for a series of lobby panels which will attract special attention to the meteoric rise of Margaret Sullavan and all her fans for her new picture. Use four easels one for each of her four big hits. Use silk ribbon to connect these panels as indicated and swing a comet trail from the first easel to the last with the copy as shown.

QUESTIONAIRE NEWSPAPER CONTEST

ILLUSTRATED herewith is special Exploitation Service Mat Number GF2, available at your local Universal Exchange. Good for two columns in your newspaper.

Run it as an easy self "contest," having the answers to the questions apper on another page of the paper. This feature will make it an especially desirable stunt from the viewpoint of the newspaper.

Here Are The Answers

1. Signed by Universal because of her success in the stage production of "Dinner At Eight." "Only Yesterday." John Boles.
2. "Little Man, What Now?" Douglass Montgomery.
3. Ferenc Molnar.
4. The title role, that of a pretty little vixen who brings great success to a man she never saw before.
5. Herbert Marshall and Frank Morgan.

Suggestions For Plugging the Star

Here are tried and proved suggestions to sell her wide following created by "ONLY YESTERDAY" and "LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?"

RESEMBLANCE CONTEST—Find local girl who most resembles Margaret Sullavan. Make her town's guest during showing.

PLANT TIE-UP STILLS—Order an extra supply of Margaret Sullavan photos and plant them in milliners, drug stores, etc.

EXHIBIT PUBLICITY—Innumerable fan magazine articles have appeared about the star. Look over back numbers, clip out articles, and mount on a board with the caption: "Fans! Your favorite is here in her grandest role—'THE GOOD FAIRY.'"

16 MM. TRAILER IN MINIATURE THEATRE

HAVE your sign painter construct miniature theatres with daylight screens, and use a portable projector to run off 16 mm. trailers of this picture around town. These trailers can be ordered directly from the Exploitation Department for a rental of $7.50 for two weeks. Put signs in store windows announcing the times when you will show the trailer. One print should be enough for several locations. We suggest using empty store windows, department store windows, mezzanines and other popular spots where a crowd will gather. Available on special order only, which must be accompanied by check.

LET GIANT HEADS AND NAMES SELL SHOW!

Love Query Contest for Newspaper.

THERE is a half-tone mat which can be planted in your local newspaper for "Love Query Contest." Ask your Universal Exchange for Exploitation Service Mat GF No. 1. Use the following copy:

WHICH DO YOU THINK SHE WOULD BE MOST HAPPY WITH AND WHY—THE ROMANCING MILLIONAIRE OR THE POOR YOUNG STRANGER WHO LOVES HER?

Herbert Marshall and Frank Morgan are screen rivals for Margaret Sullavan in her latest picture, "THE GOOD FAIRY," adapted from the Broadway stage hit by Ferenc Molnar. The Strand Theatre, which is showing the picture wants the fans to decide which man Margaret Sullavan would most likely be happy with?

Here is your opportunity to win a pass by picking the proper man, by giving your reasons in full. For the best fifty-word letters you can get free admission to see the picture.

Send this Letter to Lawyers!

ONE of the most important characters in "THE GOOD FAIRY" is a lawyer, which gives you an opportunity to contact all legal men in town, attorneys, law students, law clerks, etc. Send them the following letter:

Dear Sir:

Imagine this! A poor, unknown lawyer, living a hand-to-mouth existence for years—suddenly catapulted to success through the whim of a lovely lady, whose innocent loveliness enthralled a romantic millionaire.

Imagine when his first client arrived and offered him a $100,000 retainer! Suppose that this happened to you? Suppose that in the shape of destiny, "The Good Fairy," stepped in to pick you from the ranks and put you on the path of dazzling, professional achievement?

It happens in the new Margaret Sullavan romantic comedy-drama "THE GOOD FAIRY." You will particularly enjoy this screen version of Ferenc Molnar's famous stage play. Herbert Marshall as the young lawyer, gives a fine performance and Frank Morgan is superb as the romantic millionaire. Be sure to see it!

Very truly yours,

The Management.

FOR USHERETTES — NOT FOR THE BOSS!

Where Is the Prettiest Usherette — We Want to Know!

Cora Jean Doonan who hails from Larned, Kans.

MOSTLY the stories, ads, etc., in this magazine are addressed to the manager—but this one is not! It's for the usherettes only! Three weeks ago we announced that we were looking for the most beautiful motion picture theatre usherette in America, and that we would present the one selected with the usher's costume which Margaret Sullavan wore while starring in "The Good Fairy."

Now then, Miss Usherette, would'nt you like to strut your stuff in this handsome uniform? Particularly when your boss plays "The Good Fairy?" Well all you have to do is ask your boss to send your photograph, either head or full length, together with your name, height, weight, hip and bust measurements, to the Editor of the Universal Weekly. You must see to it that this is done not later than February 16th, however, as the contest closes on that date. The winner will be announced in the Universal Weekly of February 23rd.

Lillian Baer

This is the Uniform

Judging from the number of usherettes who have already sent in their pictures there's going to be a good fight for that uniform. It's a very glamorous costume, too, of metallic cloth and flannel, trimmed with fancy braid and big shiny buttons. That visored hat is pretty with its pom-pom! Yes, ma'm it's a uniform that any theatre would be proud to have the distinction of exhibiting—especially when worn by America's prettiest usherette!

In the upper left is Cora Jean Doonan of the Electric theatre, Larned, Kansas—Above at right is Lillian Baer of the Sierra theatre, Sacramento, Calif., first two entries.

ALLITERATION CONTEST TO PLAY-UP THE STARS!

AS a means of attracting additional attention to the stars of this picture arrange with the local newspaper to run an alliteration contest offering ticket prizes for the best alliterative line descriptive of Margaret Sullavan and Herbert Marshall. The folks will have fun thinking up adjectives. You can use the winning lines in your lobby displays and in your newspaper ads. If it is not practical for the newspaper to run the contest carry it in your house organ the week preceding your opening. The following are examples of alliterative lines:

"Sweet, Svelte, Sullavan"
"Manly, Masterful, Marshall"
"Amazing, Amusing, Morgan"

FLASHLIGHT CUT-OUT

FROM the three-sheet poster, make up a life-sized standee cut-out of Margaret Sullavan or have your sign painter build a jumbo sized cut-out along the same line. In the hands of the girl insert a practical flash light, which can be illuminated by attaching to a base plug. Let this focus on a dark spot in the lobby, where your message can appear on a circular card. Also a good stunt for the rear of the auditorium or dim-spot, in the busy corner windows about town.

Use Your Staff of Ushers In Campaign

BECAUSE of the fact that Margaret Sullavan has the role of an usherette in this picture, use your house staff as much as possible in campaigning and publicizing the attraction.

One way to do this is to have a telephone campaign with the usherettes or ushers calling up friends and strangers and delivering the following message:

"I am ushering at the Strand where Margaret Sullavan in "THE GOOD FAIRY" this week takes the role of an usherette and gives a splendid, realistic performance and I should know. Don't miss this picture!" It is more interesting than "LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?" and Margaret Sullavan is more adorable than she was in "ONLY YESTERDAY."

Also prepare letters or reviews of the picture by the ushers and have these circulated among your mailing lists, use as newspaper ads, and for blow-ups in the lobby.

STAGE A PARADE OF USHERS

Use your house staff to ballyhoo this attraction in the morning before your theatre opens. Have them wear dress uniforms, if possible, and carry banners with copy as shown. Going up and down the main streets of your town, this gag should attract plenty of attention.

STREAMER — HANGER — HERALD — Other Accessories

9½" x 14"

Ample Imprint Space

The Beautiful

ROTO HERALD

Handsomely printed in two rich tones of rotogravure. Illustrations and copy sell the delightful story and the stars. Priced at $3.50 per thousand at Universal Exchanges.

← 2 PIECE - 3 COLOR - DIE-CUT HANGER

Above is a reproduction of the hanger. A great accessory for dressing up your front and lobby. Also suitable for use in tie-up display windows. Priced at 20c. each. Order from Universal Exchanges.

TIE-UP STILLS—A set of ten specially selected stills that will help considerably in landing the best windows in town. They are also good material for tie-up newspaper ads. Complete set is $1.00. You may order them singly at 10c. each from Universal Exchanges.

TINTED STILLS—There is also available at Universal Exchanges a set of hand tinted stills for use in adding class to your lobby and window displays. They are the regular 8 x 10 inch size. The set of six is priced at 90c.

POSTERS—You will find reproductions of all the posters for this picture on pages 22 and 23. Note the cut-out possibilities of the three, six and twenty-four sheets. There are also regular size, jumbo and midget window cards.

AUTOGRAPHED PICTURES of Margaret Sullavan are available at Universal Exchanges at the low price of $6.50 per thousand. These pictures have many uses and will help materially in your campaign. Regular 8 x 10 inch size.

A THREE COLOR, DIE-CUT LOBBY STREAMER!

This streamer is printed on extra weight die-cut board and printed in three bright colors. Five pieces come strung ready for hanging. Suitable for marquee and lobby decoration and for mounting on your regular hanging sign. The beautiful head of the star forming the centre piece is available separately for 40c. Complete streamer priced at $2.50 each. Order from Universal Exchanges.

UNIVERSAL'S NEW SMASH HITS ARE

ON THE WAY

—"and in the bag!"

SAYS

CARL LAEMMLE

HENRY HULL

in

"THE WEREWOLF OF LONDON"

Story by Robert Harris

Screenplay by John Colton

EDMUND LOWE

in

"THE GREAT IMPERSONATION"

From the novel by

E. Phillips Oppenheim, master of mystery and detective fiction!

KARLOFF

and

LUGOSI

in

Edgar Allan Poe's

"THE RAVEN"

Screenplay by Jim Tully

You'll be surprised when we announce the cast of singing stars for

"SING ME A LOVE SONG"

Original operetta by Robert Harris

Screenplay by Harvey Gates

Directed by Stuart Walker

IRENE DUNNE

in

Edna Ferber's

"SHOW BOAT"

Screenplay by Zoe Akins

Produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr.

JOHN M. STAHL'S

successor to his record-breaking "Imitation of Life"

"THE MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION"

By Lloyd C. Douglas · Screenplay by Eugene Walter and Elizabeth Meehan

Directed by John M. Stahl

Produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr.

3,666,736*

PERSONS IN THE UNITED STATES HAVE PAID TO SEE "IMITATION OF LIFE" UP TO JANUARY 19TH!

– CARL LAEMMLE

★597,024 More cash customers in 7 days!

From
UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.
ROCKEFELLER CENTER
NEW YORK CITY

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
Paid
Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

ROBERT B WENNER
22 CROSS ST
MALDEN MASS

Printed in U. S. A

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
VOL. 36, NO. 9 FEB. 9, 1935

To Carl Laemmle =

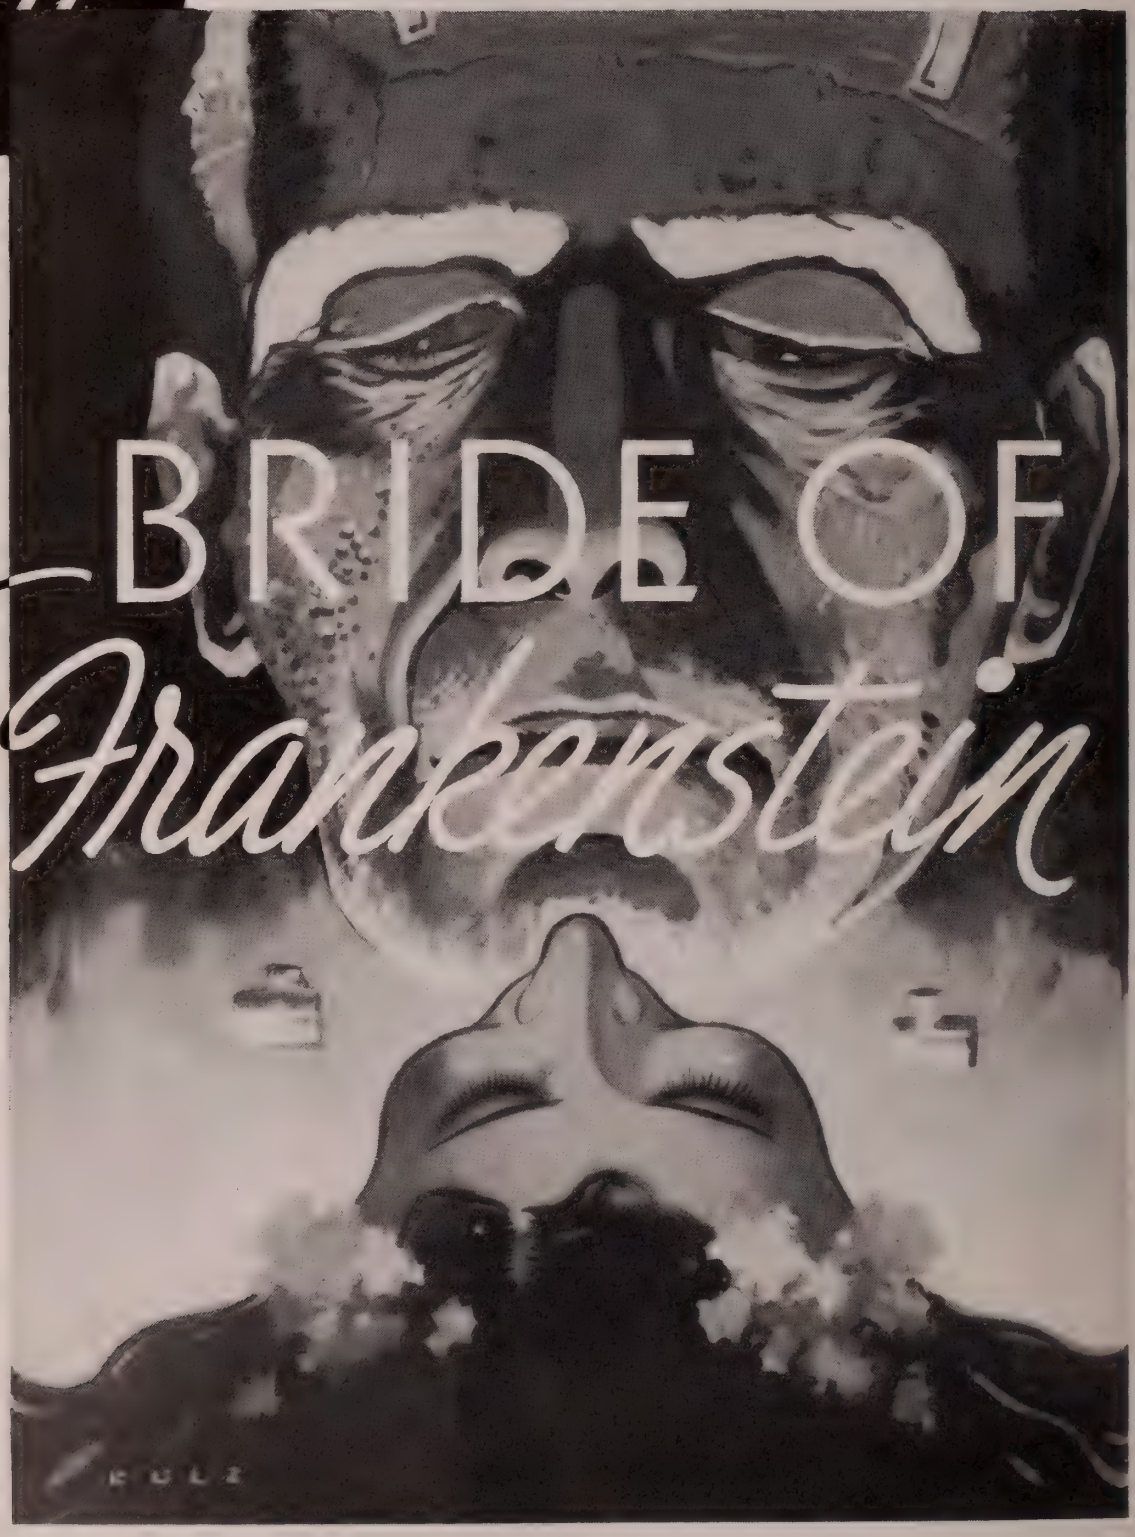
The Good Fairy is one of the greatest comedies I have ever seen.

W. G. Van Schmus
Managing Director
Music Hall

Margaret Sullavan

Karloff in

THE MASTER MYSTERY THRILLER OF ALL TIME IS ON THE WAY! LOOK OUT! WATCH OUT! STEP OUT!



4,903,896*

PAID ADMISSIONS TO

"IMITATION OF LIFE"

UP TO FEBRUARY 2ND!

– CARL LAEMMLE

★ 629,152 More
since last week!

THE GOOD FAIRY IS S

No. 805 Straight-from-the- Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

Margaret Sullavan at her best.

Herbert Marshall at his best.

A wonderfully human story, dealing with an usherette in a movie theatre.

A superb bit of directing, in the glamorous atmosphere of a motion picture palace.

There you have the principal parts of "The Good Fairy" which will shortly be released by Universal as one of the finest contributions it has ever made to the amusement business.

You remember Margaret Sullavan for her work in "Only Yesterday" and "Little Man What Now"—but in "The Good Fairy" you will find a finer Miss Sullavan. If she gained your sympathy and admiration in the former pictures, she will win you utterly in "The Good Fairy."

She has one of the most natural and human roles ever give to any screen star.

Miss Sullavan plays the part of a girl who thinks her greatest happiness must lie in doing good for others.

MPLY EVERY WOMAN

Every girl in the world has pictured herself at one time or another in such a glorified position. She wants to help others. She wants to make sacrifices.

At no matter at what personal sacrifice, she wants to bring happiness and contentment into the lives of others —no matter who they are.

Girls dream of these things. They don't always do them, but just the same they dream of doing them.

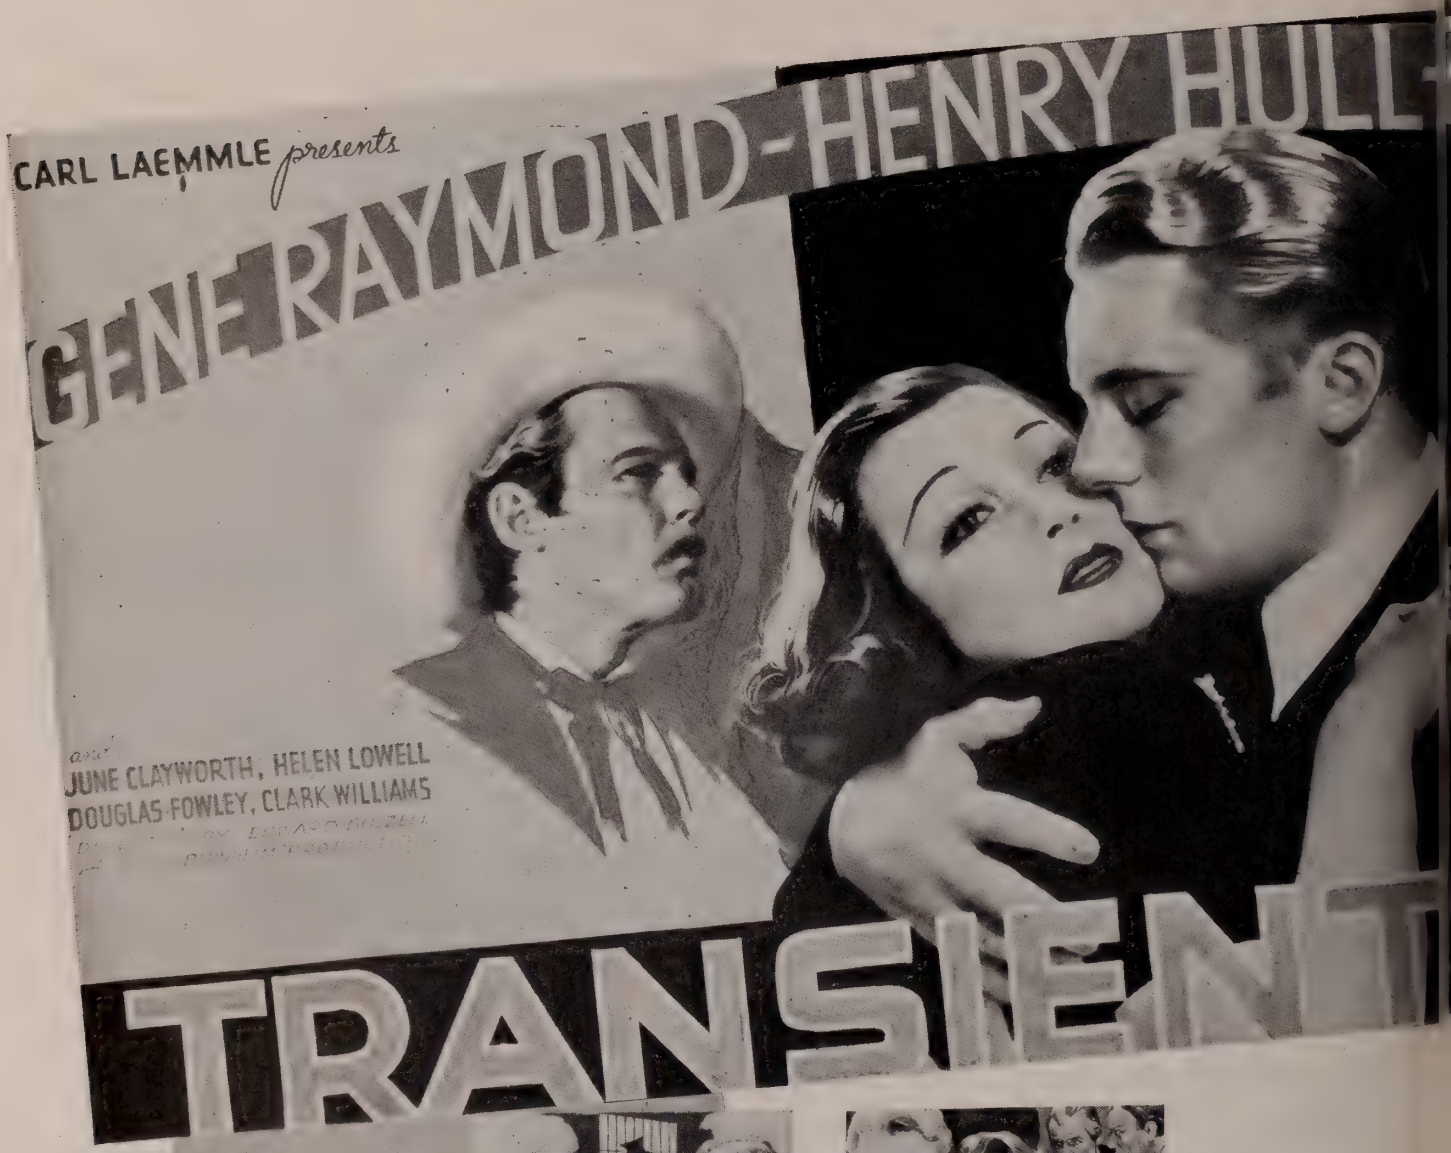
Every girl and every woman in the world will understand what the good fairy was trying to do in this story.

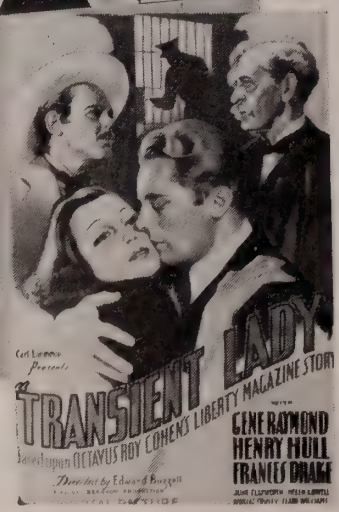
Every understanding man will know from his own experience, through his mother, his sister or his wife, what a good fairy is.

With a heart-story, with Miss Sullavan and Herbert Marshall playing the leads, with a beautifully set and directed picture you will have in "The Good Fairy" just about everything your showman's heart could desire.

Carl Laemmle

GET THESE UP AND YOU





LL GET THEM COMING!

Paper designed to sell its grand stars and cast — and its famous story! A flash that means cash!

BANG! GO THE FUN, EXCITEMENT AND FIRE-WORKS . . . When a thrill-seeking movie queen tries to steal a handsome taxi-driver from a sweet little stenographer!

It Happened in NEW YORK

CARL LAEMMLE presents
a Universal Picture, with

GERTRUDE MICHAEL
HEATHER ANGEL
LYLE TALBOT
HUGH O'CONNELL
PHYLLIS LUDWIG + BESS STAFFORD
ADRIENNE D'AMBRICOURT

From an original story by Ward Morehouse and Jean Dalrymple. Screenplay by Rian James.

Directed by ALAN CROSLAND
An EDMUND GRAINGER Production

R
T
Y
U
I
G
H
J
K
L
A
S
D
B
N
M
Z

Joy Will Break Loose Everywhere!

You can't stop it when you have a combination like DAMON RUNYON'S Collier's Magazine story

JEAN PARKER and CHESTER MORRIS

in

Princess O'HARA

With LEON ERROL

A Universal Picture presented by Carl Laemmle . . . Directed by David Burton . . . Leonard Spigelgass, Associate Producer

"The B
Is Give

● First shot of the gigantic studio where the scientists put together and animated the body of the female they designed to be the mate of the "Frankenstein" monster. Remarkable photography made in Universal City studios.

● Just a suggestion of the huge, elaborate, beautiful, awe-inspiring and characteristic sets which James Whale has constructed as the background for the thrilling picture he is making in "The Bride of Frankenstein." This scene shows Colin Clive ("Frankenstein") in bed, and Valerie Hobson and Una O'Connor in the foreground.

de of Frankenstein" Magnificent Production

THE moving picture world is coming to realize that a James Whale production is perfect from every angle, story, cast, settings. It is a question at Universal City right now whether the cast or the settings will be the more interesting part of "The Bride of Frankenstein," the strange compelling drama which is now being made as a sequel to the amazingly successful "Frankenstein."

Karloff, of course, is starred and the cast already includes such players as Colin Clive, Elsa Lanchester, wife of Charles Laughton; Valerie Hobson, Ernest Thesiger, Dwight Frye, Una O'Connor, E. E. Clive, Gavin Gordon, Douglas Walton, Neil Fitzgerald and Lucien Prival.

In spite of this remarkable cast, a typical James Whale cast, by the way, the immediate interest at Universal City is centered upon the sets. It is generally agreed in the production department that no picture ever made at Universal City has so many and so remarkeable sets as the "The Bride of Frankenstein." All of them are pitched in a more or less sombre note, to accord with the mood of the story. Many of them are of stone; several of them have been made permanent. The most striking is probably the huge laboratory, which is seventy feet in height, made of solid stone construction.

There is a huge, underground burial crypt, also made of stone. There is three-quarters of a mediaeval castle, with vaulted ceilings, tapestried walls, ornate, ancient-appearing furniture in huge reception rooms, bedrooms, central hall and dining room.

● Karloff donning his make-up under the artistic hand of Jack Pierce, ace Universal studio make-up man. The new make-up will be considerably like last year's monster make-up, with the addition of some terrific burned patches on the face and head.

"DIAMOND JIM" TO A "T"

As promised last week on this page. Here is Edward Arnold in the role of "Diamond Jim" shaking hands with Parker Morell the author.

AL SANTELL DIRECTS "DIAMOND JIM"

EDMUND GRAINGER, who will produce "Diamond Jim," on Monday engaged Al Santell to direct it. As previously announced, Edward Arnold will create the character of James Buchanan Brady, the man who made the gay nineties gay, and the subject of the unusual biography of Parker Morell, which Universal purchased several months ago. The author, who has been at Universal City for the last three months, working with Harry Clork and Doris Malloy on the screenplay, arrived in New York on Saturday, having completed the screenplay and advised with Mr. Grainger on the cast and scenes. Casting will begin next week on the basis of the types discussed with Mr. Morell.

"Diamond Jim" will go into production on the 18th of February.

The story of "Diamond Jim" has had a remarkable circulation already. The man himself is a tradition. His life was one constant publicity stunt and he lived it and profited financially by every stunt. The story ran serially in Cosmopolitan. As a best seller Simon & Schuster gave it a great publicity build up. It has had a great record in sales.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, N. Y. City
Universal Pictures Corp.
Copyrighted 1935
(All Rights Reserved)
FEBRUARY 9, 1935
Vol. 36 No. 9

The Preview Parade of UNIVERSAL PICTURES

HEATHER ANGEL as "CHRIS"

Twinkle, twinkle, movie star . . .
How did you get the way you are?

Vania! Lovely! Alluring! Elusive! Adored by millions! Queen of the talkies! Spoiled and pampered darling of the screen!

Her appearance in person panicked New York and jinxed the lives of two young lovers, Chris and Charlie.

LYLE TALBOT

Charlie cruised around New York and his tough knuckles introduced him to the famous star. Chris was thrilled because she idolized the glamorous Vania. But when the two-fisted cabbie became the famous star's gigolo . . . Chris simply went berserk!

She snatched a Prince away from Vania and was squired all about the town by the blueblood who turned out to be a blackguard. Figure out when Charlie and Princey met—what a shambles! One smashed hack—one smashed nose—one smashed romance—before the brawl was over!

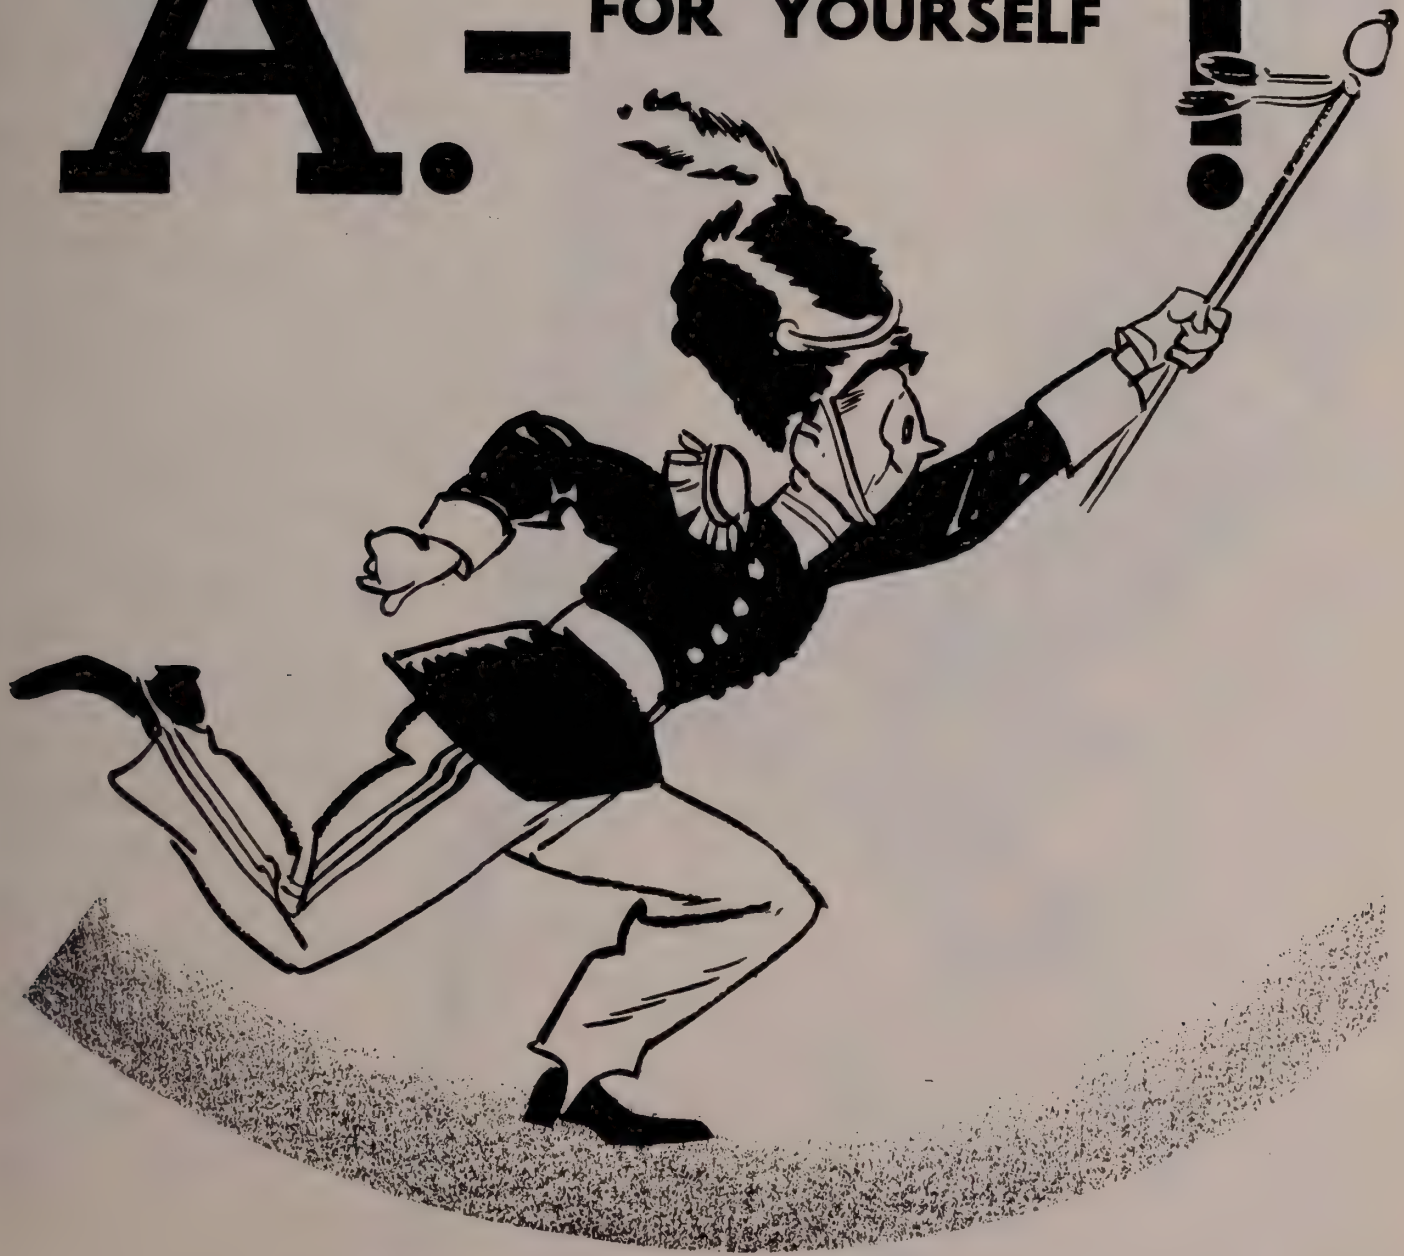
It started in Hollywood—IT HAPPENED IN NEW YORK! Only in gay and glamorous Gotham, only on the madcap isle of Manhattan could it all occur!

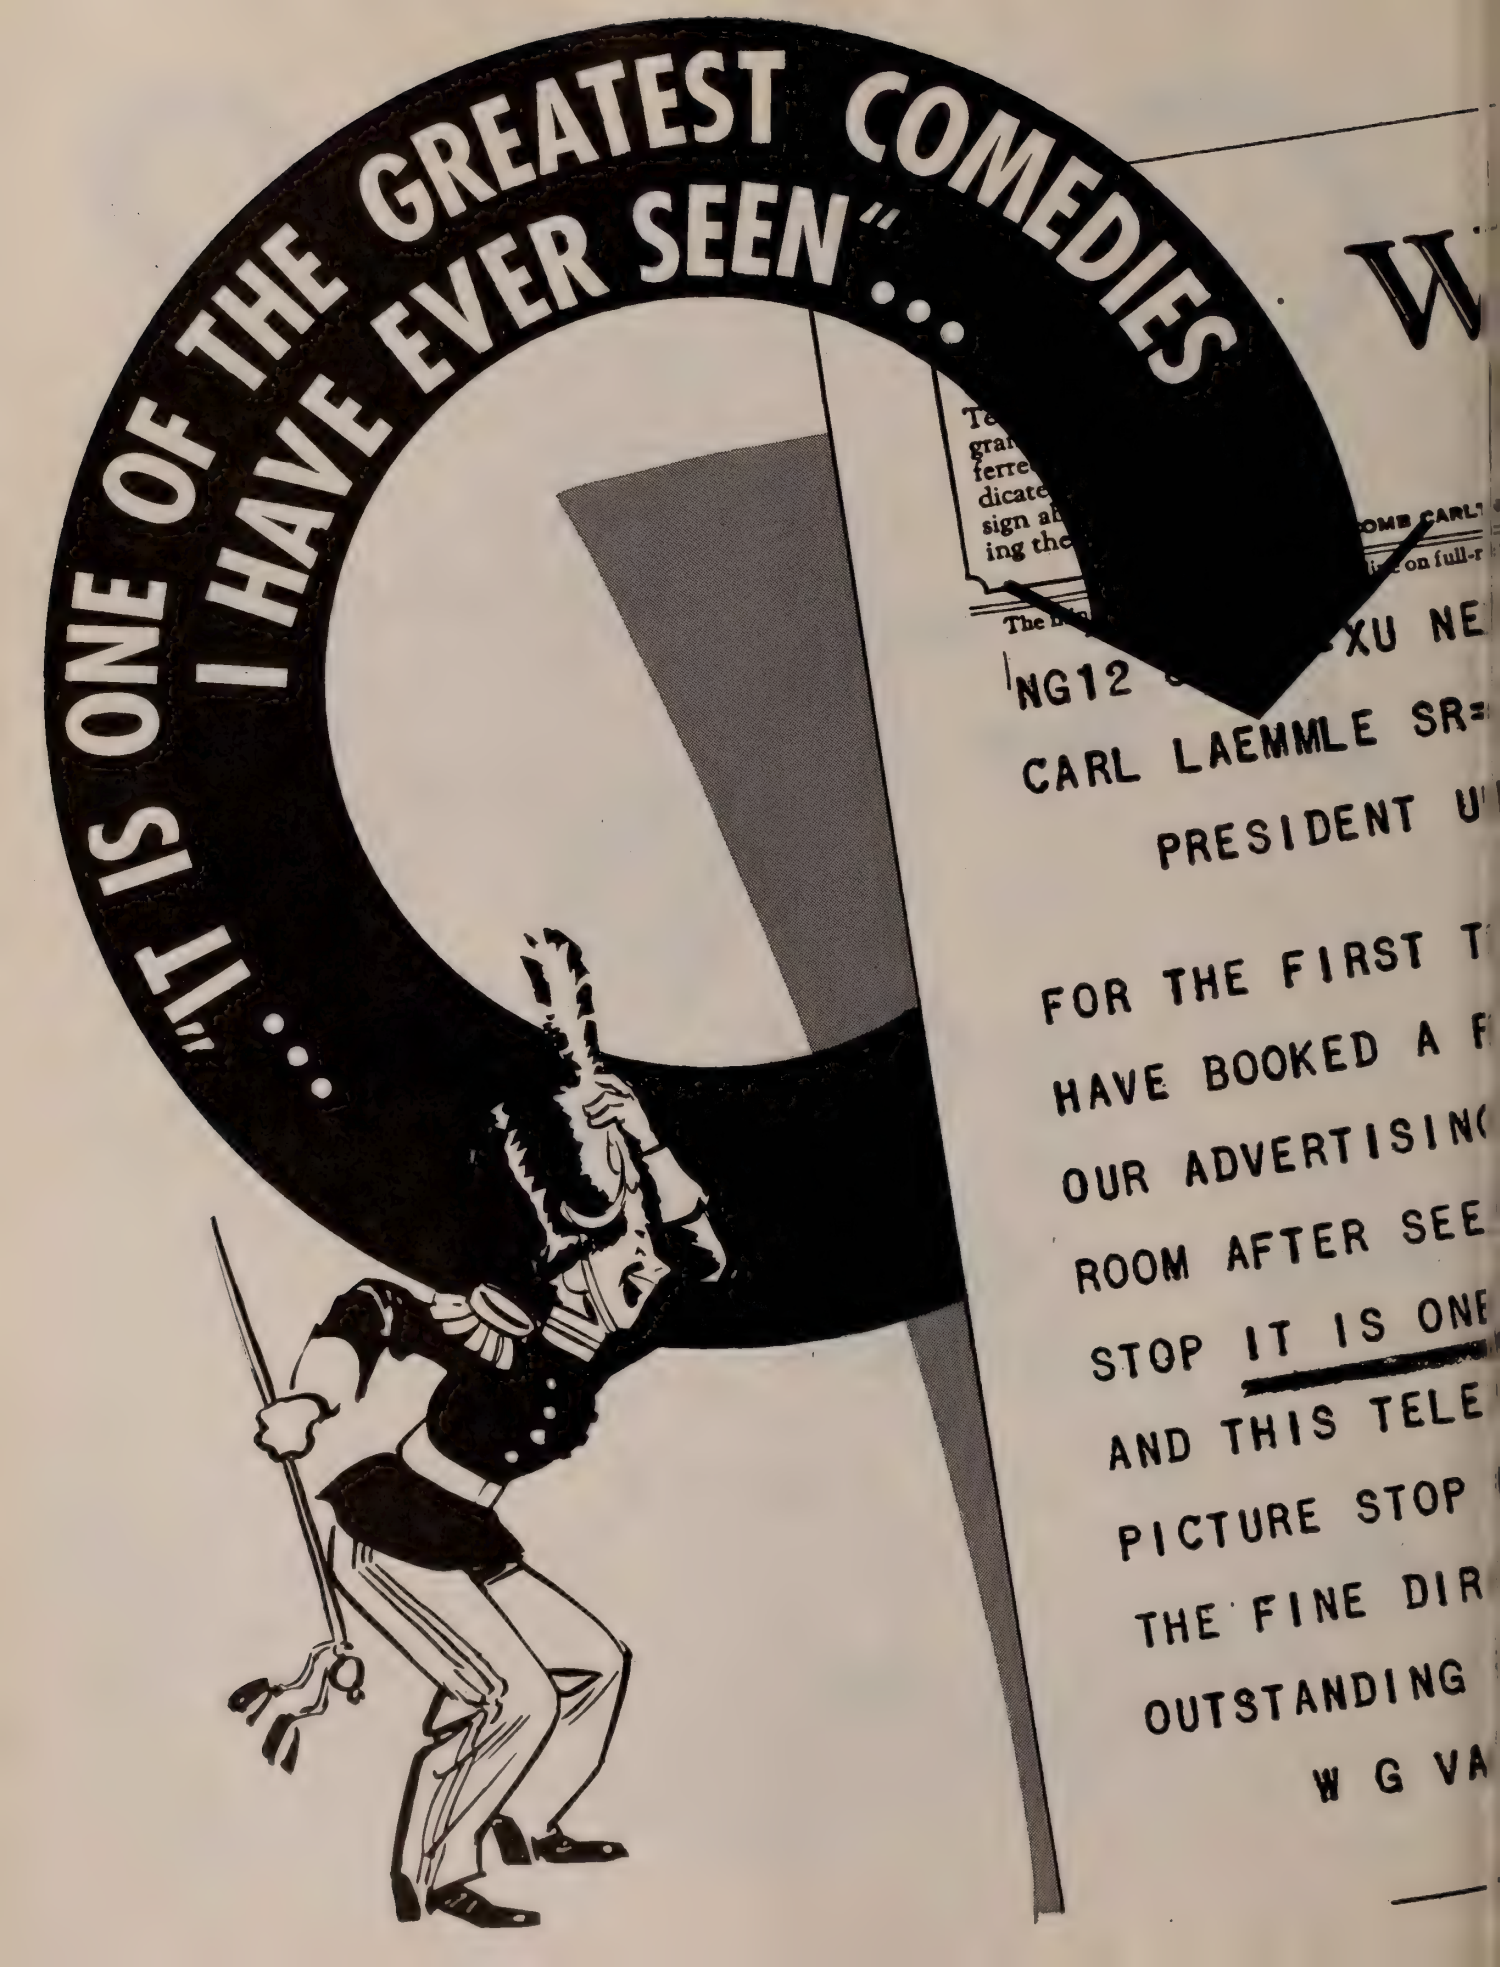
Get set for a fun-packed farce with giddy Gertrude Michael, huggable Heather Angel, manly Lyle Talbot, and hilarious Hugh O'Connell!

JACTHALL

Q. — IS IT TREMENDOUS ?

A. — JUST READ FOR YOURSELF !





"IT IS ONE OF THE GREATEST COMEDIES I HAVE EVER SEEN"...
"IT IS...
W
NG12
CARL LAEMMLE SR=
PRESIDENT U
FOR THE FIRST T
HAVE BOOKED A F OUR ADVERTISIN(
ROOM AFTER SEE
STOP IT IS ONE
AND THIS TELE
PICTURE STOP
THE FINE DIR
OUTSTANDING
W G VA

1225

Y DIRECT WIRE FROM

ESTERN UNION

SIGNS
DL = Day Letter
NM = Night Message
NL = Night Letter
LCO = Deferred Cable
NLT = Cable Night Letter
WLT = Week-End Letter

J. C. WILLEVER, FIRST VICE-PRESIDENT

PRESIDENT

egrams and day letters, and the time of receipt at destination as shown on all messages, is STANDARD TIME.

ORK NY JAN 30 1935

VERSAL PICTURES CORP UNIVERSALCITY CALIF=

IE IN THE HISTORY OF THE MUSIC HALL WE CTURE WITHOUT PREVIEW AND BACKED IT WITH ON FAITH STOP I HAVE JUST LEFT OUR PREVIEW
G THE GOOD FAIRY WHICH OPENS TOMORROW NOON
F THE GREATEST COMEDIES I HAVE EVER SEEN
AM IS SENT TO CONGRATULATE YOU ON THIS RGARET SULLAVAN AND THE ENTIRE CAST UNDER TION OF WILLIAM WYLER HAVE ACHIEVED AN CCESS=

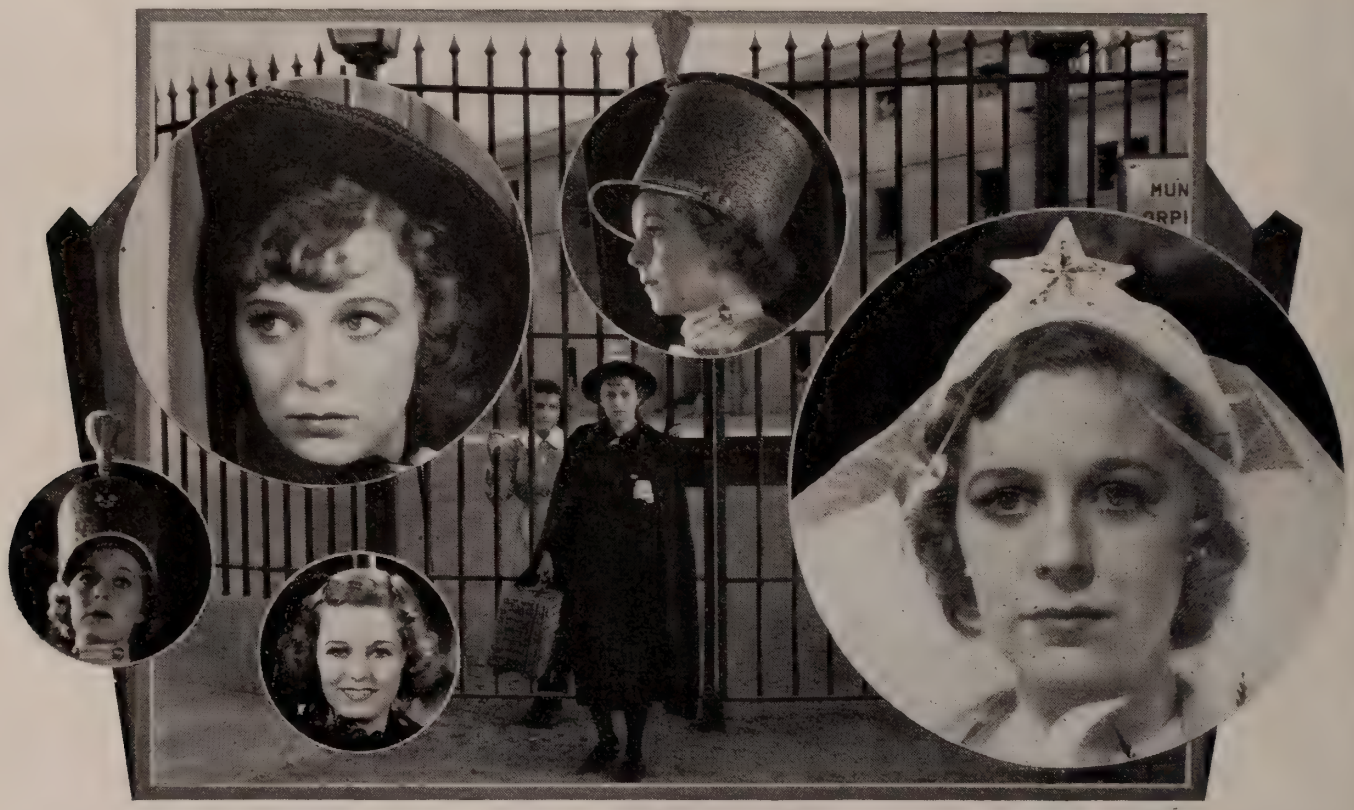
SCHMUS MANAGING DIRECTOR RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL.

1935's FIRST AND E

IGGEST SENSATION!

NEW YORK CRITICS RAVE



Composite picture of Margaret Sullavan in various expressive costumes and situations she employs in "The Good Fairy"

"CHARMING COMEDY" Says REGINA CREWE in American

A DELIGHTFUL, heart-warming comedy with an incessant ripple of laughter ruffling the charm of its surface, the new Margaret Sullavan film fixes its star even more firmly in the affections of her audience, and brings the Music Hall its most appealing entertainment since "Little Women."

The adaptation of the Molnar fantasy has been wrought to retain all the bubbling mirth of the original plus that soupcon of pathos that points the comedy so effectively. And the drama, played as it is by a quartette of Hollywood's most adept thespians rates tops for Universal film fun. And that "universal" may be spelled with a big "U," as well, in compliment to the producers.

Maybe it isn't quite fair to rely on a heroine's name for a laugh, but when Margaret Sullavan, the little Orphan Annie of the film, is introduced as a Luisa Ginglebusher, the name, tossed about by such skilled farceurs as the Messrs. Morgan and Owen, becomes good for hilarity at every mention. But even though the fair Luisa's name be Ginglebusher, and such artifices as Mr. Marshall's beard, Mr. Morgan's funny falls and Mr. Owen's gesticulations are made the basis for fun factions, there are plenty of forthright comic situations, laughable lines and a good sturdy comedy foundation upon which towers of mirthful hokum are erected.

Just how things work out you must see for yourself at the Music Hall. And we mean "must." For "The Good Fairy" is as thoroughly enjoyable a film as the new season has brought forth. Miss Sullavan's artistry, her wistful charm, the wide range of her talent become here more apparent than even in her earlier accomplishments. Mr. Marshall fits finely into the romantic role, both before and after he shaves.

And those thrice-gifted harlequins, Reginald Owen and Frank Morgan, make two chuckles grow where even Molnar planted only one. Distinguishing lesser roles are Alan Hale, Beulah Bondi, Cesar Romero and Eric Blore. William Wyler's direction is as smooth as Miss Sullavan's portrayal, which is praise indeed.

ABOUT "THE GOOD FAIRY"

"Delicious Comedy" Says Kate Cameron in Daily News

★ ★ ★ ½★

"THE GOOD FAIRY" presiding temporarily over the destiny of the Music Hall undoubtedly will bring good luck to the house this week. For the picture is a delightful adaptation of Ferenc Molnar's play of the same name and is heartily recommended as an efficacious antidote for those mid-Winter blues which are afflicting nearly every one at this time.

Margaret Sullavan, under the expert guidance of her director-husband, William Wyler, makes the most of the role which Helen Hayes created on the stage when Gilbert Miller presented the Hungarian comedy in New York three years ago. She is charmingly ingratiating as the orphan Luisa, the little usherette whose prettiness and innocence combine to make her a potent magnet for amorous, elderly gentlemen. Miss Sullavan's versatility is demonstrated by the effective way in which she puts over the comedy. She is as sure of herself in this medium as she was in the serious dramatic roles in "Only Yesterday" and "Little Man, What Now?"

But while Miss Sullavan is well nigh irresistible as the little Cinderella who believes in passing on to others the good that comes to her, the Molnar film would not be the delirious entertainment it is if Frank Morgan had not been cast to play the rich and fluttery Mr. Konrad and if the producers had failed to assign Reginald Owen to the role of the jealous waiter, nor, for that matter, if Herbert Marshall had not been available to take care of the more romantic aspects of the story and to wear the whiskers of Dr. Max Sporum. As it is, however, the picture has been expertly cast in all its parts, including that of Dr. Metz, played by the Eric Blore who created considerable comment for his work in "The Gay Divorcee."

"Gay Nonsense" Says Rose Pelswick in Evening Journal

A LIGHT and airy farce dotted with bright dialogue and nimbly played by a capable cast, "The Good Fairy" provides amiable entertainment this week at the Radio City Music Hall. It is Universal's picturization of the Molnar play in which Helen Hayes appeared some seasons back.

It is also Margaret Sullavan's first screen comedy role, her previous cinematic excursions having found her in such tear-drenched dramas as "Only Yesterday" and "Little Man, What Now?" Here she skips through whimsy and gay nonsense, assisted by the always amusing Frank Morgan and Reginald Owen.

It's featherweight as to plot, but Director William Wyler keeps both the story and his players moving briskly. What it lacks in substance it makes up in diverting episodes, such as the one in which Mr. Morgan and Mr. Owen argue over the dinner menu, and adroit directorial touches such as the one in which Miss Sullavan tries on a fur scarf in front of innumerable mirrors. Morgan and Owen are excellent in their roles, and there are outstanding if much too brief bits by Beulah Bondi as the orphan asylum director and Alan Hale as the movie palace manager.

"Bewitching Comedy" Says Bland Johaneson in Daily Mirror

ENCHANTING and whimsical little orphan girls have become the new fad in movie heroines. None has been more appealing and captivating than the latest, Margaret Sullavan, who is the Luisa of "The Good Fairy." She plays the role, interpreted by Helen Hayes, when the sparkling Molnar comedy graced the stage of Broadway.

"The Good Fairy" is no sappy account of a suffering orphan who is rescued from drudgery by a kindly bachelor. It is smart, spicy comedy. The high merriment, is balanced skillfully by genuine pathos and charm.

The conclusion of the tale is perfectly obvious, but it is reached through a series of highly amusing and vastly charming complications. They range from rowdy slapstick to delicate wit. The dialogue sparkles.

Miss Sullavan is an exquisite Luisa and her support is great. With Frank Morgan, Herbert Marshall and Reginald Owen in the principal roles no comedy need lack spirit.

"The Good Fairy" is lighter, but no less distinguished than the star's previous hits.

"GOOD FAIRY" SPARKLING FILM Says EILEEN CREELMAN in the SUN

THE Music Hall offers one of the movie season's brighter items, a refreshingly human version of the Cinderella story. Based on a Ferenc Molnar stage play of a winter or two ago, "The Good Fairy" is a gay variation on a theme that never grows too old. The picture can thank William Wyler's imaginative direction and his choice of an expert cast for its present cheerfulness.

This is one of those bubble-light comedies that the forlorn "Romance in Manhattan" tried so desperately to be. "The Good Fairy" succeeds, carries off all those difficult qualities of naivete, quaintness, charm, and sweetness without getting messed up in a bog of saccharinity. The naivete here is neither Hollywood infantilism nor the heavily boyish pranks of a mature star. "The Good Fairy," in spite of its pretty orphan heroine and its sympathetic villains, relies upon the comic spirit to carry its tender romanticisms. It is properly rewarded.

The story, too frail a bit to linger over long, concerns the first adventures of one Luisa Ginglebusher

(Continued on Page 25)

BROADWAY WILL BE A MADHOUSE OF MIRTH WHEN THOSE BEAUTIFUL GODDESSES START THEIR RIOTING AT THE N. Y. ROXY THEATRE
NOTHING LIKE IT EVER ATTEMPTED BEFORE! ... IT'S THE MASTERPIECE OF NUTTY, NERVY NONSENSE!
Carl Laemmle presents
THORNE SMITH'S NIGHT
of the

ON FEBRUARY 22nd!...
Leon Gargonoff
MERLE OBERON
JOHN LODER BATTLE
LIFE GODS
LOWELL SHERMAN
PRODUCTION
A Universal Picture
Produced by CARL LAEMMLE, JR.

AD-POWER BEHIND "THE M YSTERY OF EDWIN DROOD"!

Like Universal Pictures More Each Year

Royal Theatre
FORT RECOVERY - OHIO

Jan. 10, 1935

Mr. Carl Laemmle,
Universal Pictures Corp.,
Rockefeller Center
New York, N.Y.

My dear Mr. Laemmle,

I have just signed my twentieth consecutive Universal contract. I started the Royal Theatre, Fort Recovery Ohio in 1915 with Universal and have used your product ever since.

Your salesman has been telling me of your twenty ninth anniversary. Please accept my sincerest congratulations and earnest wish that you will have continued success and keep on giving the small exhibitor the kind of pictures that have always made us money.

With best regards,

Very truly yours

Emil Wagner

Emil Wagner,
ROYAL THEATRE

PIONEER THEATRE
POWERS - OREGON

January 3, 1935

Mr. Carl Laemmle
Universal Pictures Corp.
Rockefeller Center
New York, N. Y.

Dear Mr. Laemmle:

Very recently I had the extreme pleasure of signing my 18th yearly contract for your service and feel gratified in stating that the progressive line-up coming from your studios make me feel and believe your pictures will prove successful at the box office, especially IMITATION OF LIFE, MAN WHO RECLAIMED HIS HEAD, NIGHT LIFE OF THE GODS, THE GOOD FAIRY, SHOW BOAT, THE GREAT ZIEGFELD, SUTTER'S GOLD, MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION, PRINCESS O'HARA, etc.

This is just a note of compliment to Universal on the program they are making for the exhibitors.

With best wishes for a Happy New Year, I am

Yours very truly,

G. P. Stewart

G. P. Stewart

Sutherland To Direct "The Great Ziegfeld"

PROGRESS toward the production of "The Great Ziegfeld" was made yesterday when William Anthony McGuire selected Edward Sutherland to direct this picture, which he and Billie Burke had written.

Two other persons important to the cast were also announced at the same time. One is Bill Robinson, King of tap dancers, who will play the role of Bert Williams, and the other is Jack Chertok, former head of MGM music department, who has been added to Mr. McGuire's production staff, which already includes John Harkrider on costumes and Seymour Felix on dancing.

The cast so far includes William Powell as the Great Ziegfeld, Fannie Brice and Harriet Hoctor as themselves; Frank Master's Orchestra, Shaw & Lee, Kathryn Hereford and Irene Biller, who will play the role of Anna Held.

Edward Sutherland is the director of "Murders in the Zoo," "Too Much Harmony," and more recently the musical production, "Mississippi" which has not as yet been released.

✚ ✚ ✚

N. Y. Praises "The Good Fairy"

(Continued from Page 19)

when released from an orphanage to join the uniformed ranks of the usherettes at a movie palace. She meets, on this venturesome evening, a waiter with a heart of gold. Everyone in the picture has a heart of gold; and that, although it seems hard to believe, is a most pleasurable and diverting thing. They are all delightful people whom Luisa, through this encounter with the golden-hearted waiter has the good fortune to meet. They include a meat magnate with a magic bank roll, a young lawyer with a beard and a future, and even a drunken statesman.

The little usherette has promised to do one good deed a day; and she manages this very nicely indeed, through the small white lie of pretending to be married, by getting the millionaire to enrich Dr. Max Sporum, a name she has just picked out of the telephone book. The ensuing complications prove highly confusing to everyone in the cast, but never anything but a merry diversion to their audience.

This department, never before at all Sullavan-conscious, greets with enthusiasm the development of that once mousy and somewhat colorless leading woman into a comedienne of charm and sure talent. Her performance of the ingenuous Luisa, a role only too easy to spoil through overemphasis, is a delight. Margaret Sullavan plays with intelligence and imagination, well deserving the stardom that was thrust upon her too soon. She plays easily with such comedy experts as Herbert Marshall, as the bearded attorney; Ralph Morgan, playing the wistful meat magnate; and Reginald Owen, cast as the suspicious waiter.

DERMODY DEAD

J. F. DERMODY, Universal District Manager for New England, died suddenly in St. Vincent's Hospital on Tuesday, February 5th, following a tonsil operation. Mr. Dermody had made his residence recently in Elmhurst, Long Island. The sympathy of the entire Universal organization and the thousands of exhibitors who knew him, go out to his wife, his parents and three sisters. The funeral will take place at St. Bartholomews Church, Elmhurst, L. I. at 10.30 today.

"Merriment is Rife" Says William Boehnel in World-Telegram

IT is as light and fluffy as this synopsis sounds. But artificial comedies in which criss-crossed love affairs are to be taken no more seriously than murders in mystery melodramas have got along before on less than this—and very nicely, too. This one has a lively and genial swish about it and is done in the same pleasant, lighthanded, bouncing manner it is intended to be taken.

Miss Sullavan gives a very adroit performance as the little orphan, Frank Morgan gets all there is to be got out of his role of the produce dealer. Herbert Marshall is alert to all the opportunities the part of the lawyer offers and Reginald Owen gives many amusing twists to the character of the waiter.

Every effort has been made to convert a preposterous little comedy into something which, if you meet it half way, will certainly succeed in keeping you more than just tolerably amused.

"Nutty As A Fruitcake" Says Andre Sennwald in The Times

THE new Music Hall film is performed with such scatter-brained skill by Frank Morgan and Reginald Owen that it proves to be an engaging and often uproariously funny work. It is, to borrow a sacred Burns and Allen simile, as nutty as a fruit cake, and it contains some of the most painfully hilarious merriment of the new year, if you except W. C. Field's Micawber in "David Copperfield."

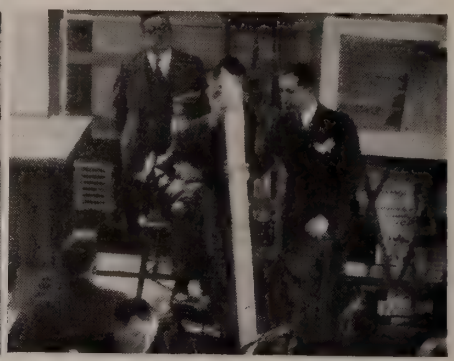
✚ ✚ ✚

New Players Add to It Happened in New York

FINISHING easily to meet its release date, which is March 11th, 'It Happened in New York," went into the cutting room yesterday at Universal City. This comedy-drama by the well known newspaperman, Ward Morehouse and Jean Dalrymple, added a number of well known players in its finel scenes. The featured players are Lyle Talbot, Gertrude Michael, Heather Angel and Hugh O'Connell.

The players in the final scenes included Edward Martindel, Francis J. McDonald, Gladden James, Earl Eby, Phyllis Ludwig, Richard Elliott, Booth Howard, Harry G. Bradley, Frederick Santley and Phil Tead.

So ably did Alan Crosland direct the picture, that he was immediately assigned to direct " Mr. Dynamite," the Dashiel Hammett mystery story which will go into production at Universal City with Edmund Lowe in the star part.



The first picture in this layout shows Bruno Richard Hauptmann on the stand, being cross-examined by Attorney General David T. Wilentz. An uninformed court attendant stands back of him.

In the second picture, Mr. Wilentz is showing Hauptmann a copy of the private book he kept and asking him to identify his own handwriting.

In the third picture, Attorney General Wilentz is asking Hauptmann to identify the board taken from his own closet and bearing the address and

NEWSREEL No. 325

CUNNINGHAM TAKES FEATURE AT 28th MILLROSE MEETING

NEW YORK, N. Y.—16,000 thousand spectators shake rafters of Madison Square Garden as Glenn Cunningham leads Venzke and Bonthron to finish in four minutes.

AVIATRIX GETS U. S. TICKET

BURBANK, CALIF.—Laura Ingalls,heroine of a 17,000-mile solo flight around South America, receives the coveted Department of Commerce transport pilot's license.

CELESTIALS FETE NEW YEAR

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Chinatown turns out for the first big festival of the Oriental calendar.

BOULDER DAM'S JOB BEGINS

BOULDER CITY, NEV.—The gigantic structure starts to back up the waters of the Colorado River.

NOVEL FASHIONS EXHIBITED

CORAL GABLES, FLA.—Gladys Parker puts her latest creations on show.

DOG TEAM HAULS U. S. MAIL

MINOT, ME.—Postmaster Pulsifer difies snowbound roads, carrying letters to outlying farmhouses on a sled drawn by huskies.

TWO DIE AS GAS BLAST RIPS SEVEN FLOORS OF BIG STORE

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—An explosion rocks business section, killing watchman and police officer and injuring several.

SCRIBES HONOR 'DIZZY' DEAN

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—The Sports Writers Association presents the baseball hero with a trophy and a dinner, nominating him as the oustanding athlete of 1934.

MARDI GRAS FLOATS RUSHED

VIAREGGIO, ITALY.—Dozens of workmen construct huge, fantasti cfigures to be drawn in Carnival parades.

WATERS BLESSED BY CHURCH

BELGRADE, JUGOSLAVIA.—Priests perform an ancient ceremony purifying river water.

SKI-JUMPER LEAPS 190 FEET

MT. HOOD, ORE.—Braving glassy snow surfaces, winter sportsmen make remarkable jumps at the Pacific Northwest Championship Meet.

CAMPBELL ATTACKS OWN MARK

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Sir Malcolm arrives with his new Bluebird.

THE TRUTH ABOU
AND THE HAU

IN reply to Attorney General David T. Wilentz, who sent a wire to the Editor of the Universal Newsreel, which was released to the newspapers before it was received at the Universal office, R. H. Cochrane, vice-president of Universal Pictures Corporation, on Tuesday afternoon sent the following telegram to Mr. Wilentz, stating the Universal company's position in regard to the Hauptmann pictures and refusing to withdraw the famous Newsreel No. 324. This reel is devoted entirely to the Hauptmann Trial and is the first reel containing the sound of his voice, which everyone in the United States wants to hear after this prolonged trial, and the first to show the two attorneys, Attorney General David T. Wilentz, and defense counsel, Edward J. Reilly, in action.

The following day—telegram was Universal's formal answer to Mr. Wilentz's wire, which was sent immediately these movies were shown in the theatres. Many of the newsreels backed down from the position which all the newsreels agreed to take in regard to these Hauptmann shots. More of them withdrew their pictures from circulation only in certain areas. Universal, however, regards these pictures as a duty to the theatres, and is going to stand back of them.

MR. COCHRANE'S WIRE

ATTORNEY GENERAL DAVID T. WILENTZ
FLEMINGTON, N. J.

ILLNESS HAS PREVENTED AN EARLIER ANSWER TO YOUR TELEGRAM IN WHICH YOU REGISTERED A PROTEST AGAINST THE USE OF SCENES FROM THE HAUPTMANN TRIAL IN OUR NEWSREEL. THE UNIVERSAL COMPANY HAS VIOLATED NO AGREEMENT WITH THE COURT IN USING TRIAL SCENES IN OUR NEWSREEL. THE TRUTH OF THE MATTER IS THAT THE WHOLE TRIAL HAS BEEN BALLYHOOED IN SOME OF THE NEWSPAPERS AND OVER SOME OF THE RADIO STATIONS DAY AFTER DAY WHILE THE NEWSREELS HAVE BEEN SO DECENT AND DIGNIFIED THAT THEY HAVE DEFAULTED IN THEIR DUTY TO THE THEATRES THEY SERVE. SOME OF THE NEWSPAPERS HAVE SPREAD THE TRIAL OVER INNUMERABLE PAGES. THEY HAVE NOT STOPPED WITH HANDLING THE NEWS. THEY HAVE EDITORIAL-telephone number of "Jafsie" Condon. These are in Hauptmann's handwriting, but Hauptmann can't remember.

The fourth picture shows Hauptmann before a map of the Bronx. This map shows St. Raymond's Cemetery and Woodlawn Cemetery and the roads and approaches to them. Hauptmann swears he never saw them before and has never been in either.

The fifth picture shows Hauptmann looking at the ladder which was found several hundred yards from the Lindbergh house. Mr. Reilly is conducting the examination. He asks Hauptmann if he built that ladder and Hauptmann, in an attempt at heavy humor, replies, "I am a carpenter."

The last picture shows the "concealed" sound apparatus which has been in the balcony of the court house at Flemington, in plain view of the judge, the jury and the two attorneys, and would be about as difficult to hide as an elephant in a tea room. The cable conducting the sound wires down from this apparatus to the microphone, is also in plain view, right between the window and the balcony.

THE NEWSREEL MANN MOVIES!

IZED IN ARTICLES BY SPECIAL WRITERS AND IN CARTOONS. THEY HAVE FOUND HAUPTMANN GUILTY, SO HAVE MILLIONS OF READERS WHO HAVE BEEN SOAKING UP THE VERBATIM REPORT OF THE TRIAL WITH ALL OF THE QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. ON THE RADIO THE TRIAL HAS BEEN HANDLED DIRECTLY FROM FLEMINGTON AT FIFTEEN MINUTE PERIODS. ON SOME OF THE STATIONS, ACTORS AND ACTRESSES HAVE BEEN USED TO IMPERSONATE HAUPTMANN HIS WIFE AND YOU YOURSELF. I DO NOT KNOW WHETHER THIS HAS BEEN DONE WITH YOUR CONSENT BUT WHETHER IT HAS OR NOT A GREAT SHOW HAS BEEN MADE OF THE WHOLE TRIAL. I AM TOLD THAT TICKETS OF ADMISSION IN THE FORM OF SUBPOENAS HAVE BEEN ISSUED TO PARK AVENUE DEBUTANTES AND TO BROADWAY STARS. MEANWHILE THE NEWSREELS HAVE CONTINUED DURING THE COURSE OF THE TRIAL TO HANDLE THE WHOLE THING WITH REPRESSION. I THEREFORE TAKE THE FULL RESPONSIBILITY FOR INSTRUCTING OUR NEWSREEL EDITOR TO COVER THE TRIAL IN SCENE AND SOUND ON THE DAY WHEN HAUPTMANN TOOK THE STAND. I TOLD HIM TO ACT AS A REPORTER NOT AS AN EDITOR, AND HE CARRIED OUT MY INSTRUCTIONS TO THE LETTER. HE HANDLED THE WHOLE MATTER WITH IMPARTIALITY AND DIGNITY AND WITH ALL DUE RESPECT TO THE COURT. MEANWHILE WE HAVE BEEN PILLORIED IN SOME OF THE NEWSPAPERS AND TO A CERTAIN EXTENT IN YOUR TELEGRAM FOR DOING SOMETHING "DISHONORABLE." YOU AND I ARE BOTH WELL AWARE OF THE FACT THAT THE MOTION PICTURES OF THE TRIAL WERE NOT MADE BY TRICKERY OR CONCEALMENT. WE KNOW VERY WELL THAT NO APPARATUS HAS BEEN CONCEALED IN THE COURT ROOM. NOT ONLY BECAUSE IT IS TOO CUMBERSOME TO CONCEAL, BUT BECAUSE NO NEWSREEL REPRESENTATIVE HAS DONE ANYTHING ON THE SLY. ALL TALK OF PHOTOGRAPHY BY TRICKERY IS NONSENSE. IN VIEW OF THE ABOVE AND BECAUSE I BELIEVE YOUR REQUEST IS INCONSISTENT, I HAVE NOT RECALLED OUR PICTURE FROM CIRCULATION.

R. H. COCHRANE, VICE PRESIDENT, UNIVERSAL PICTURES

NEWSREEL No. 324

HEAR HAUPTMANN TESTIFY AT LAST!

With bated breath, millions and millions have anxiously awaited the sensational day in this terrific trial!

Millions upon millions want to hear and see and know exactly what happened and how!

"What does Bruno Richard Hauptmann say? . . . How does he look? . . . What will be the jury's and public's reaction to his testimony?"

For weeks every newspaper has front-paged and built up this tremendous real-life drama!

Now UNIVERSAL NEWSREEL takes it out of the imagination and flashes it right before the very ears and eyes of your patrons—fast and hot!

Universal Tests "Dixie" Howell

Here is "Dixie" Howell, making his first screen test for the role of Frank Merriwell. He is the type.

The Universal "Juniors" seem to approve of "Dixie" Howell, as he is explaining to them the mechanics of throwing a forward pass. On the left, Valerie Hobson in the costume of "The Bride of Frankenstein;" next, Eoli Galli. Back of her. Phyllis Brooks, and beside "Dixie," Mary Wallace.

In competition with pro-football and professional basketball, all from Detroit, Universal seeks Alabama triple-threat football phenom, for lead in "The Adventures of Frank Merriwell," to start as soon as he graduates from University of Alabama.

ANOTHER football giant has fallen for the movies. "Dixie" Howell, whose Christian name was Millard when he entered the University of Alabama, is the new movie prospect and Universal wants him to create the role of Frank Merriwell in "The Adventures of Frank Merriwell," which it recently purchased from the author, Gilbert Patten.

"Dixie" Howell is the outstanding college hero of the past season. His career parallels that of John Mack Brown, who halfbacked his way into pictures. His most recent starring venture is "The Rustlers of Red Dog."

Howell's sensational forward-passing at this year's Rose Bowl Game, which utterly bewildered the entire Stanford team, convinced the Universal officials that this brilliant player was the ideal choice for the role of Frank Merriwell, whose athletic exploits have for many years furnished exciting reading for millions of young Americans. "Dixie" Howell is best known for his football prowess, but his versatility as an athlete has made him also a star at Alabama in baseball and basketball. The recent offer of the Detroit American League Baseball team is only one of the thirty-seven contracts offered to him since the New Year's Day game.

"Dixie" Howell made a flying trip from Detroit to Hollywood over the weekend for a screen test, on the result of which will depend a contract to play the lead in "The Adventures of Frank Merriwell." On account of examinations, it was necessary for Howell to fly back to Tuscaloosa, having remained in Universal City for one day.

\+ \+ \+

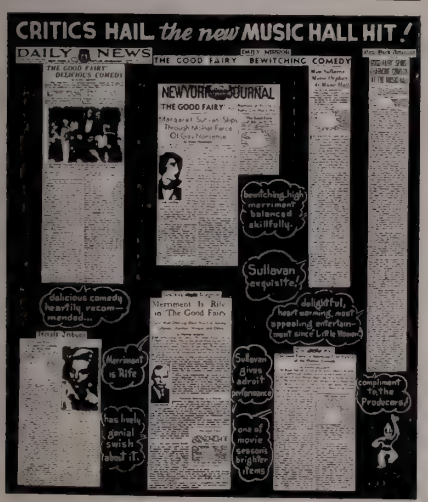
WILL COMPLETE "BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN" MONDAY

REGINALD BARLOW and Mary Gordon have been added to the cast of "The Bride of Frankenstein," which will enter its final week of production next Monday at Universal City. Karloff, of course, is playing the role of the monster, and Elsa Lanchester, that of the bride. Karloff is seven feet, seven inches tall in the picture, and Elsa Lanchester, who measures five feet, seven inches, has added ten inches to her stature in the picture. The cast includes Colin Clive, Valerie Hobson, Una O'Connor, Dwight Frye, Ernest Thesiger and E. E. Clive. James Whale is directing.

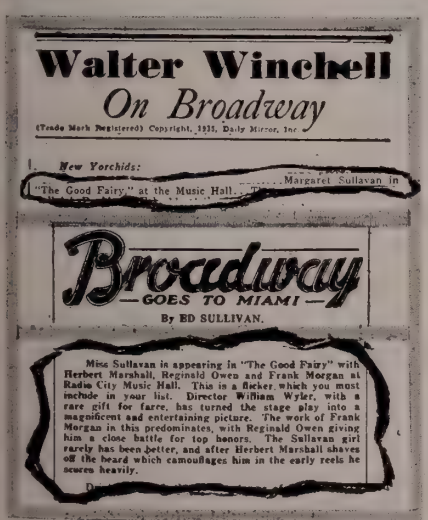
THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY SHOWMANSHIP SECTION

A DIGEST OF THE BEST EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

Praise from the Press!



Reproduction of New York reviews on the "Good Fairy." The full size is 17 x 22 inches. Copies are being sent to all first run theatres playing the picture. You can pick out lines for local use, or make still greater enlargements of the sheet for use on a lobby easel.



Walter Winchell

On Broadway

(Trade Mark Registered) Copyright, 1935, Daily Mirror, Inc.

New Yorchids:

"The Good Fairy" at the Music Hall. . . . Margaret Sullavan in Broadway

—GOES TO MIAMI—

By ED SULLIVAN.

Miss Sullavan in appearing in "The Good Fairy" with Herbert Marshall, Reginald Owen and Frank Morgan at Radio City Music Hall. This is a flicker which you must include in your list. Director William Wyler, with a rare gift for farce, has turned the stage play into a magnificent and entertaining picture. The work of Frank Morgan in this predominates, with Reginald Owen giving him a close battle for top honors. The Sullavan girl rarely has been better, and after Herbert Marshall shaves off the beard which camouflages him in the early reels he scores heavily.

Walter Winchell, popular syndicated columnist, tosses an orchid at "The Good Fairy" during its engagement at the Radio City Music Hall. Ed Sullivan, another popular columnist, also fires glowing praise at the picture and Margaret Sullavan, the star.

. . . *with a hop — a skip ‡ — a jump § — the star of youth flames!

We told you so last week! We told you what a fine picture "THE GOOD FAIRY" is. We told you of its swell story and superb direction—its brilliant cast. And of its opening at the Radio City Music Hall. And today, on other pages of this weekly you can read of the praise the New York critics showered on the picture—and on Margaret Sullavan! We told you so!

Margaret Sullavan—with a hop—skip—and a jump has vaulted into the high heaven of stardom and is flaming brightly there, and dimming, by her brilliance, older stellar headliners.

The telescopes of leading showmen are focused on her. Wherever showmen-astronomers gather, the discussion runs like this: "That Sullavan girl is far more than a sky rocket even though she did blaze to fame in her very first picture. Even though she hits a new high in "THE GOOD FAIRY," it is nothing compared to what can be expected of her in the future. I'm for Margaret Sullavan because she is a star of youth. People, a little weary of the old timers, enthuse over Miss Sullavan, because of her brilliant capabilities. She is an accepted star, but, best of all, she is on the upward swing of the orbit.

"That is why I want to launch "THE GOOD FAIRY" with a big campaign. In spending exploitation money on this swell picture, I will not only reap immediate returns but I am investing also in even bigger returns on the Sullavan pictures to come. She is a decided asset to my theatre and my theatre's future!"

To which we add: "When a picture does as much on the last day of its run as it did on the first (with a real campaign too)—that's some picture! And that's "THE GOOD FAIRY."

JOE WEIL

* "Only Yesterday"
‡ Little Man, What Now?"
§ "The Good Fairy"

Composite picture showing the marquee billing of "The Good Fairy" at the Radio City Music Hall, New York, and crowd waiting for opening of the Sullavan picture.

CHARNINSKY'S "MAN WHO RECLAIMED HEAD" TRAILER SETTING HAS DALLAS ALL AGOG!

TRICKY, striking presentations of the trailer is always good showmanship. Louis Charninsky of the Capitol Theatre, Dallas, Texas, knows this and gave his setting for the "Man Who Reclaimed His Head" trailer plenty of chills. Before the trailer started, he projected a silhouette of a headless man on the wall of the theatre—moved it slowly across from one side to the other and followed it with the silhouette of a head! Louis says it made people talk plenty, and we can well imagine that it did just that!

He used a trick shadow box in the lobby that showed the body of a man in the lower half and the head in the upper. The sections were lighted alternately, producing the effect of the man losing and regaining his head. This was in addition to the two lobby displays suggested in the pressbook. A two-way mike set-up with a headless dummy in front of the end on the street, drew large crowds to the theatre front where they heard snatches of the dialogue direct from the film.

For a week before the opening all house attaches wore ribbon banners announcing the picture. A tie-up with a local bakery secured the distribution of ten thousand cards advertising the picture. Extra newspaper space was used for a teaser campaign, both types of accessory heralds distributed and Dallas was well posted with threes, sixes and twenty-fours.
threes, sixes and twenty-fours. Headless dummies provided material for two window displays and for a striking ballyhoo in the theatre lobby. Claude Rains, the star, is a favorite in Dallas and the newspapers gave him a big play.

Charlie Smakwitz' advance lobby display for "Imitation of Life" at the Strand Theatre, Albany, N. Y.

HOW SMAKWITZ AND ROY SOLD "IMITATION OF LIFE" TO ALBANY

WHEN Andy Roy, manager, and Charlie Smakwitz, advertising manager of the Strand Theatre, Albany, N. Y., get a picture like "Imitation of Life" to work on they go after it hammer and tongs from every possible angle.

They started the campaign three weeks in advance by planting special stories in the local dailies. These were followed by increased advertising space, a full cooperative ad page, through the Aunt Jemima tie-up, and a broadcast of the radio script.

The Baby Jane doll tie-up was given a full window display in the city's largest department store. The Colbert fashions were pushed by the local Cinema Shop. Through co-operation of the distributors of "Liberty," which gave the picture four stars, cards stressing this angle were placed on all newsstands and in newsdealers windows. Book stores and circulating libraries featured the book and the picture in their windows.

The local Ford dealers came through with a parade of new Fords bannered to tie-in with the engagement of the picture. They also distributed ten thousand heralds imprinted with tie-up copy for both the car and the picture.

The illustration shows the advance lobby display. It was thirty feet long and ten feet high, and painted in bright colors for a flash display. In addition twenty-five foot overhead banners and poster cut-outs with colored spots were used in the advance lobby. A cut-out of Claudette Colbert from the twenty-four sheet was used on top of the marquee.

The dictionary stunt and the shorthand notes for office girls from the press book were also used in the campaign. Albert Nathan, Universal exploiteer, assisted.

AND HERE'S HOW J. P. HARTMAN DOES IT IN ABERDEEN, S. D.

TO many of the boys in the big first run houses, the picture at the left will bring back memories of other days when they, too had to sell their show without the aid of an artist, either actual or alleged. Aberdeen, S. D., is not a large town and so manager J. P. Hartman of the Aster Theatre can't afford to keep an artist or to have work done at a studio—he has to depend on posters and accessories to sell his show.

The picture shows his display for "Great Expectations" and the Buck Jones serial, "The Red Rider." Hartman used sixes, threes, ones, window cards, hangers, eleven by fourteens, twenty two by twenty-eights and a cutout for the chapter play which was good for fifteen weeks. Rudimentary showmanship—but showmanship!

"Entertainment and Exploitation Value . . . Interest Created Immediately and Maintained . . . Realistically Presented, Moves Fast and Packs Much Thrilling Entertainment!"

—Motion Picture Herald

A NOTORIOUS Gentleman

CARL LAEMMLE presents
A UNIVERSAL Picture with

Charles BICKFORD
Helen VINSON

Dudley Digges, Sidney Blackmer
Onslow Stevens

Directed by EDWARD LAEMMLE.
Produced by CARL LAEMMLE, Jr.

New York's GOOD FAIRY Newspaper Campaign!

RADIO CITY
MUSIC HALL
ROCKEFELLER CENTER

offers
AN EVENT EXTRAORDINARY

Starts TOMORROW
Doors Open at 11:30 A. M.

MARGARET
SULLAVAN
HERBERT
MARSHALL
in
"THE GOOD FAIRY"
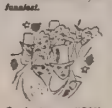
with FRANK MORGAN
A Universal Picture

The laughter-swept romantic comedy of Ferenc Molnar, his stage hit made into one of the most eagerly awaited pictures of the year... and the funniest.



On the Stage..."CONTRAST", an extravaganza in music and dance created by Leonidoff, with Jan Peerce, Robert Weede, Aimee Deloro, Daphne Vane, Hilda Eckler, Alex Rothov, the Rockettes, and the Corps de Ballet, and the Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Erno Rapee.

Last Times Today
"THE IRON DUKE"
11:40, 2:30, 5:05, 7:57, 10:32

First Mezzanine Seats may be Reserved in Advance...
Phone COlumbus 5-6535

1 COL. X 10¾"

RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL

SHOWPLACE OF THE NATION • ROCKEFELLER CENTER
where better pictures are shown

She dreamed about
ICE CREAM AND CAVIAR, FROG'S LEGS AND EVERYTHING!...

...and then she met a waiter, a meat packer, and a lawyer, and—but we haven't the heart to spoil this precious story for you.

CARL LAEMMLE PRESENTS
MARGARET
SULLAVAN
HERBERT
MARSHALL
in Ferenc Molnar's Masterpiece

The GOOD FAIRY

A Universal Picture with
FRANK MORGAN
REGINALD OWEN • ALAN HALE
ERIC BLORE • JUNE CLAYWORTH

Story translation by Jane Murfin
Screenplay by Preston Sturges

Directed by WILLIAM WYLER
Produced by CARL LAEMMLE, Jr.
Associate Producer: Henry Henigson

ON THE STAGE

"CONTRAST", an extravaganza in music and dance created by Leonidoff, with Jan Peerce, Robert Weede, Aimee Deloro, Nicholas Daks, Hilda Eckler, Alex Rothov, the Rockettes, Corps de Ballet, and Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Erno Rapee.

Last Times Today
"THE IRON DUKE"
11:40, 2:30, 5:05, 7:57, 10:32

First Mezzanine Seats may be Reserved in Advance...
Phone COlumbus 5-6535

4 COL. X 13½"

RADIO CITY
MUSIC HALL
SHOWPLACE OF THE NATION • ROCKEFELLER CENTER
where better pictures are shown

Announces AN OCCASION—

the World Premiere of
One of the Outstanding Pictures of the Year.

MARGARET
SULLAVAN
HERBERT
MARSHALL
in
THE GOOD FAIRY
with FRANK MORGAN
Directed by William Wyler
A UNIVERSAL PICTURE

Starts
TODAY
DOORS OPEN
11:30 A.M.

Molnar's romantic comedy hit, deliciously played as a new triumph by the star of "Little Man, What Now" and "Only Yesterday"...a scintillating, modern picture that hits the year's high peak in entertainment.

ON THE STAGE

"CONTRAST", an extravaganza in music and dance created by Leonidoff, with Jan Peerce, Robert Weede, Aimee Deloro, Nicholas Daks, Hilda Eckler, Alex Rothov, the Rockettes and the Corps de Ballet, and Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Erno Rapee.

Picture at 12:00, 2:32, 5:04, 7:45, 10:20
Stage Show at 1:30, 4:05, 7:00, 9:24

First Mezzanine Seats may be Reserved in Advance
Phone COlumbus 5-6535

3 COL. X 9½"

RADIO CITY
MUSIC HALL
SHOWPLACE OF THE NATION • ROCKEFELLER CENTER
where better pictures are shown

Hails and welcomes
THE FIRST COMEDY HIT OF THE YEAR!

MARGARET
SULLAVAN
HERBERT
MARSHALL
in
"THE GOOD FAIRY"
with FRANK MORGAN
Directed by William Wyler
A Universal Picture

Starts
TOMORROW
Doors open
11:30 A.M.

Molnar's great stage hit, the gay and witty comedy of the adventures that befell a young girl in a big city...modern, in the mood of today ...in a picture that is one of the Music Hall's proudest presentations.

ON THE STAGE..."CONTRAST", an extravaganza in music and dance created by Leonidoff, with Jan Peerce, Robert Weede, Aimee Deloro, Daphne Vane, Hilda Eckler, Alex Rothov, the Rockettes and the Corps de Ballet, and the Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Erno Rapee.

Last Times Today—"THE IRON DUKE"
At 11:40, 2:30, 5:05, 7:57, 10:32

First Mezzanine Seats may be Reserved in Advance... Phone COlumbus 5-6535

3 COL. X 7¼"

2 COL. X 9"

RADIO CITY
SHOW PLACE OF THE NATION MUSIC HALL ROCKEFELLER CENTER
Where Better Pictures Are Shown

MARGARET SULLAVAN and HERBERT MARSHALL
In "THE GOOD FAIRY"
A Universal Picture

ON THE STAGE—"CONTRAST" an extravaganza in music, dance in color, brilliantly produced by Leonidoff with full Music Hall ensemble.

DOORS OPEN 11:30 A. M. PICTURE at 11:45, 2:20, 4:55, 7:39, 10:14.
STAGE SHOW at 1:22, 3:57, 6:41, 9:16.

1st Mezzanine Seats Reserved — Phone COlumbus 5-6535

2 COL. X 2¼"

RADIO CITY
MUSIC HALL
SHOWPLACE OF THE NATION • ROCKEFELLER CENTER
where better pictures are shown

Margaret Sullavan
Returns a Salute

"Uproariously funny...most hilarious entertainment." —N. Y. Times

"Miss Sullavan is exquisite...appealing...captivating." —N. Y. Mirror

"One of the season's brightest, most refreshing comedies." —N. Y. Sun

"As enjoyable a film as the new season has produced." —N. Y. American

MARGARET SULLAVAN
HERBERT MARSHALL
in
"THE GOOD FAIRY"
with FRANK MORGAN
Directed by William Wyler • A Universal Picture.

• ON THE STAGE •

"CONTRAST", an extravaganza in music and dance created by Leonidoff, with Jan Peerce, Robert Weede, Aimee Deloro, Nicholas Daks, Hilda Eckler, Alex Rothov, the Rockette and the Corps de Ballet, and Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Erno Rapee.

First Mezzanine Seats Reserved Phone COL. 5-6535

Doors open 11:30 a. m.—Pictures at 11:45, 2:20, 4:55, 7:39, 10:14
Stage Show at 1:22, 3:57, 6:41, 9:16

OSWALD

The Lucky Rabbit

UP AMONG THE BIG LEADERS—AND THE ENVY OF ALL!..... WAIT'LL YOU SEE HIM IN HIS LATEST

"TWO LITTLE LAMBS"

From
UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.
ROCKEFELLER CENTER
NEW YORK CITY

ROBERT B WENNER
22 CROSS ST
MALDEN MASS

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
Paid
Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

Printed in U. S. A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

Vol. 36 No. 11

March 23rd, 1935
BRITISH EDITION

JOAN BENNETT
co-starred with CLAUDE RAINS
in
"The MAN WHO RECLAIMED
his HEAD"

Coming Soon!

The amazing adventures of a movie queen on a visit to New York . . . .

starring

HEATHER ANGEL
GERTRUDE MICHAEL
LYLE TALBOT
and many other popular stars

•

Directed by

ALAN CROSLAND

It Happened in NEW YORK

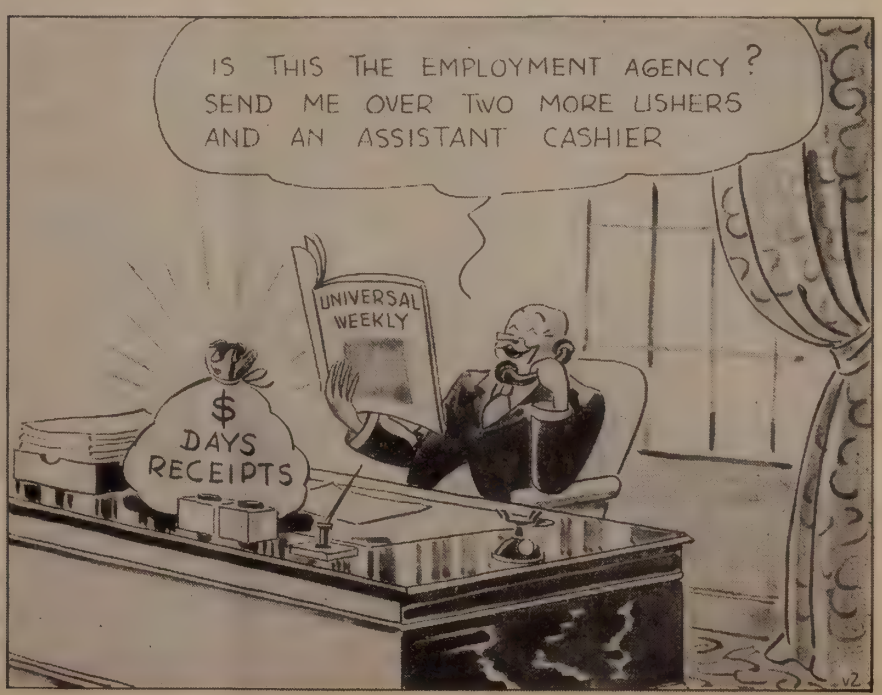
From the gay, giddy and exciting story by WARD MOREHOUSE . . . With HEATHER ANGEL in a new, more lovable, more endearing role than she has ever played . . . A UNIVERSAL PICTURE presented by CARL LAEMMLE

Mr. X. IBITOR . . . . . No. 2

Before playing

UNIVERSAL'S "NIGHT LIFE OF THE GODS"

—and After!



THE GOOD FAIRY IS S

No. 748 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, Chairman, Universal Pictures Limited.

Margaret Sullavan at her best.

Herbert Marshall at his best.

A wonderfully human story, dealing with an usherette in a movie theatre.

A superb bit of directing, in the glamorous atmosphere of a motion picture palace.

There you have the principal parts of "The Good Fairy," one of the finest contributions Universal has ever made to the amusement business.

You remember Margaret Sullavan for her work in "Only Yesterday" and "Little Man What Now"— but in "The Good Fairy" you will find a finer Miss Sullavan. If she gained your sympathy and admiration in the former pictures, she will win you utterly in "The Good Fairy."

She has one of the most natural and human roles ever given to any screen star.

Miss Sullavan plays the part of a girl who thinks her greatest happiness must lie in doing good for others.

IMPLY EVERY WOMAN

Every girl in the world has pictured herself at one time or another in such a glorified position. She wants to help others. She wants to make sacrifices.

At no matter at what personal sacrifice, she wants to bring happiness and contentment into the lives of others—no matter who they are.

Girls dream of these things. They don't always do them, but just the same they dream of doing them.

Every girl and every woman in the world will understand what the good fairy was trying to do in this story.

Every understanding man will know from his own experience, through his mother, his sister or his wife, what a good fairy is.

With a heart-story, with Miss Sullavan and Herbert Marshall playing the leads, with a beautifully set and directed picture you will have in "The Good Fairy" just about everything your showman's heart could desire.

Carl Laemmle

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors of the U.K.

Published by Universal Pictures Ltd., Film House, Wardour St., W.1
Carl Laemmle, Chairman
S. F. Ditcham, Managing Director

Editors:
J. Leslie Williams
David Bader

Vol. 36 Mar. 23, 1935 No. 11

THE GIRL ON THE COVER

JOAN BENNETT—member of filmland's great "sisterhood" of stars—other two being Constance and Barbara Bennett. Is world-renowned as one of Hollywood's most glamorous blondes — has played in "Little Women," "Week-ends Only," "Arizona to Broadway," "Wild Girl," and "The Trial of Vivienne Ware." Proves herself one of the screen's most versatile stars in Universal's "The Man Who Reclaimed His Head" by a brilliant portrayal of a sympathetic, understanding wife—novel type of role for her. Has a tremendous box-office appeal in this country, which will be still further increased by her work opposite Claude Rains in this picture.

★ ★ ★ ★

RAINS SUPER AT THE REGAL

Negotiations have been concluded for the premiere presentation of Universal's "The Man Who Reclaimed His Head," at the Regal Cinema, Marble Arch, shortly.

Claude Rains has the starring role in this super-thrill drama with Joan Bennett, Lionel Atwill, Baby Jane, Henry Armetta and Wallace Ford in support, heading a cast of hundreds. The picture exposes the ramifications of munition manufacturers and war-makers, and varies in locale from Bohemian Paris in carnival time to the war zone and the fashionable quarter of Paris.

"BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN" FINISHED

Universal's Dramatic New Karloff Thriller

Sensational Production Effects

CABLED information received from Universal City states that James Whale has completed camera-work on "The Bride of Frankenstein," Karloff's latest thriller, which, advance reports indicate, has a number of novel and sensational production effects—even for pictures in the "spine-chiller" class!

Besides Karloff—who plays his old role of the Monster—there are in the all-British cast of this picture Colin Clive, again cast as Dr. Frankenstein; Valerie Hobson, in the leading feminine role; Elsa Lanchester, as the mate of the Monster; Ernest Thesiger, in the important role of Dr. Pretorius, a mad scientist; Una O'Connor, contributing another of her delightful Cockney characterisations, and E. E. Clive.

Making-Up at Dawn!

James Whale's assignment on "The Bride of Frankenstein" has been a long and involved piece of work. The make-ups of many of the players have been so intricate that, even though the make-up department started work at dawn, it has, on numerous occasions, been impossible to start shooting until the afternoon. Karloff's make-up alone took five hours to assume.

Full details of the story of "The Bride of Frankenstein" are being kept secret until the picture is shown in this country, but it can be revealed that the tremendous fire at the end of "Frankenstein" did not prove fatal to the Monster, who re-emerges in "The Bride of Frankenstein" in a guise made still more fearsome by the searing marks of the fire through which he has passed. The fade-out of the picture, in which the Monster reaches the height of his ambition by acquiring a mate, is said to be one of the most thrilling that has yet been seen on the screen.

LATE NEWS

EMPIRE PREMIERE FOR "THE GOOD FAIRY"

As we go to press it is announced that Universal's "The Good Fairy," starring Margaret Sullavan and Herbert Marshall, is to start its London premiere at the Empire, Leicester Square – the West End's largest Cinema – on Friday, April 5th. The fact that it has been booked for the Empire represents another triumph for this magnificent picture, which has been enthusiastically received at all the big provincial centres where it has been trade shown during the last fortnight, following the ovation it was given at the London trade screening.

DRAMA OF "NOTORIOUS GENTLEMAN"

Charles Bickford and Sidney Blackmer in a graphic scene from Universal's "Notorious Gentleman," founded on the story, "I Murdered a Man."

BRITISH AND AMERICAN TRIUMPHS FOR UNIVERSAL'S "GOOD FAIRY"

Record Grosses in 'States: British Provincial Trade Show Hits

THREE WEEKS' RUN AT THE PANTAGES

"Don't Miss It — It's Grand Fun" says "Glasgow Sunday Post"

"THE GOOD FAIRY," Universal's Margaret Sullavan-Herbert Marshall super, which recently completed a triumphal round of provincial trade shows in this country, is putting up some of the biggest grosses ever known in the 'States.

The gross for the brilliant premiere at the Radio City Music Hall—where the picture created a remarkable precedent by being booked without the precaution of a preliminary preview—amounted to $75,000, a figure approaching a record for this theatre, the biggest cinema in the world.

A similar triumph was reported from the Palace, Chicago. "Variety's" comment on this screening was "Notices were raving and comments continue ace-high on the picture, which is building steadily and indicates a finish at big $19,000. Excellent for everybody concerned."

Pantages Hold-Over

Of the screening at the Pantages, Los Angeles, "Variety reported: "A corker. Business more than treble the regular average. Whirlwind pace, and will wind up with big $8,500." "The Good Fairy" continued with, among others, the Albee, Cincinnati—"An audience smash. Rare, high-class comedy. Building to a good $10,000"; the Roxy-Mastbaum, Philadelphia—$28,000, and the Indiana, Indianapolis, where a hit of $7,500—very big for this house—was registered.

Following close on this news came figures from the Brandford, Newark—"over $9,000"; Keith's, Washington—"O.K. $10,000"; The Tower, Kansas City—"$9,000 following a first week of $10,500"; and a total of $6,500 for the second week at the Pantages, with an announcement of a hold-over to a third week.

Other grosses reported include the Keith Memorial Theatre, Boston—$20,000; the Orpheum, San Francisco—$5,000 the first week and $6,500 the second; and a gross of $14,000 from the Palace, New York, following the phenomenally successful opening at the Radio City Music Hall.

Press praise for the picture continues to be universal throughout the American Press. "Production is class throughout" commented "Variety," continuing, "Margaret Sullavan is excellent as the young girl out to make the world slightly better. Expertly photographed, she displays remarkable charm, while Herbert Marshall is a fine piece of casting as the bewildered lawyer. Frank Morgan also takes honours. Dialogue and situations are continually laugh-provoking and photography is excellent."

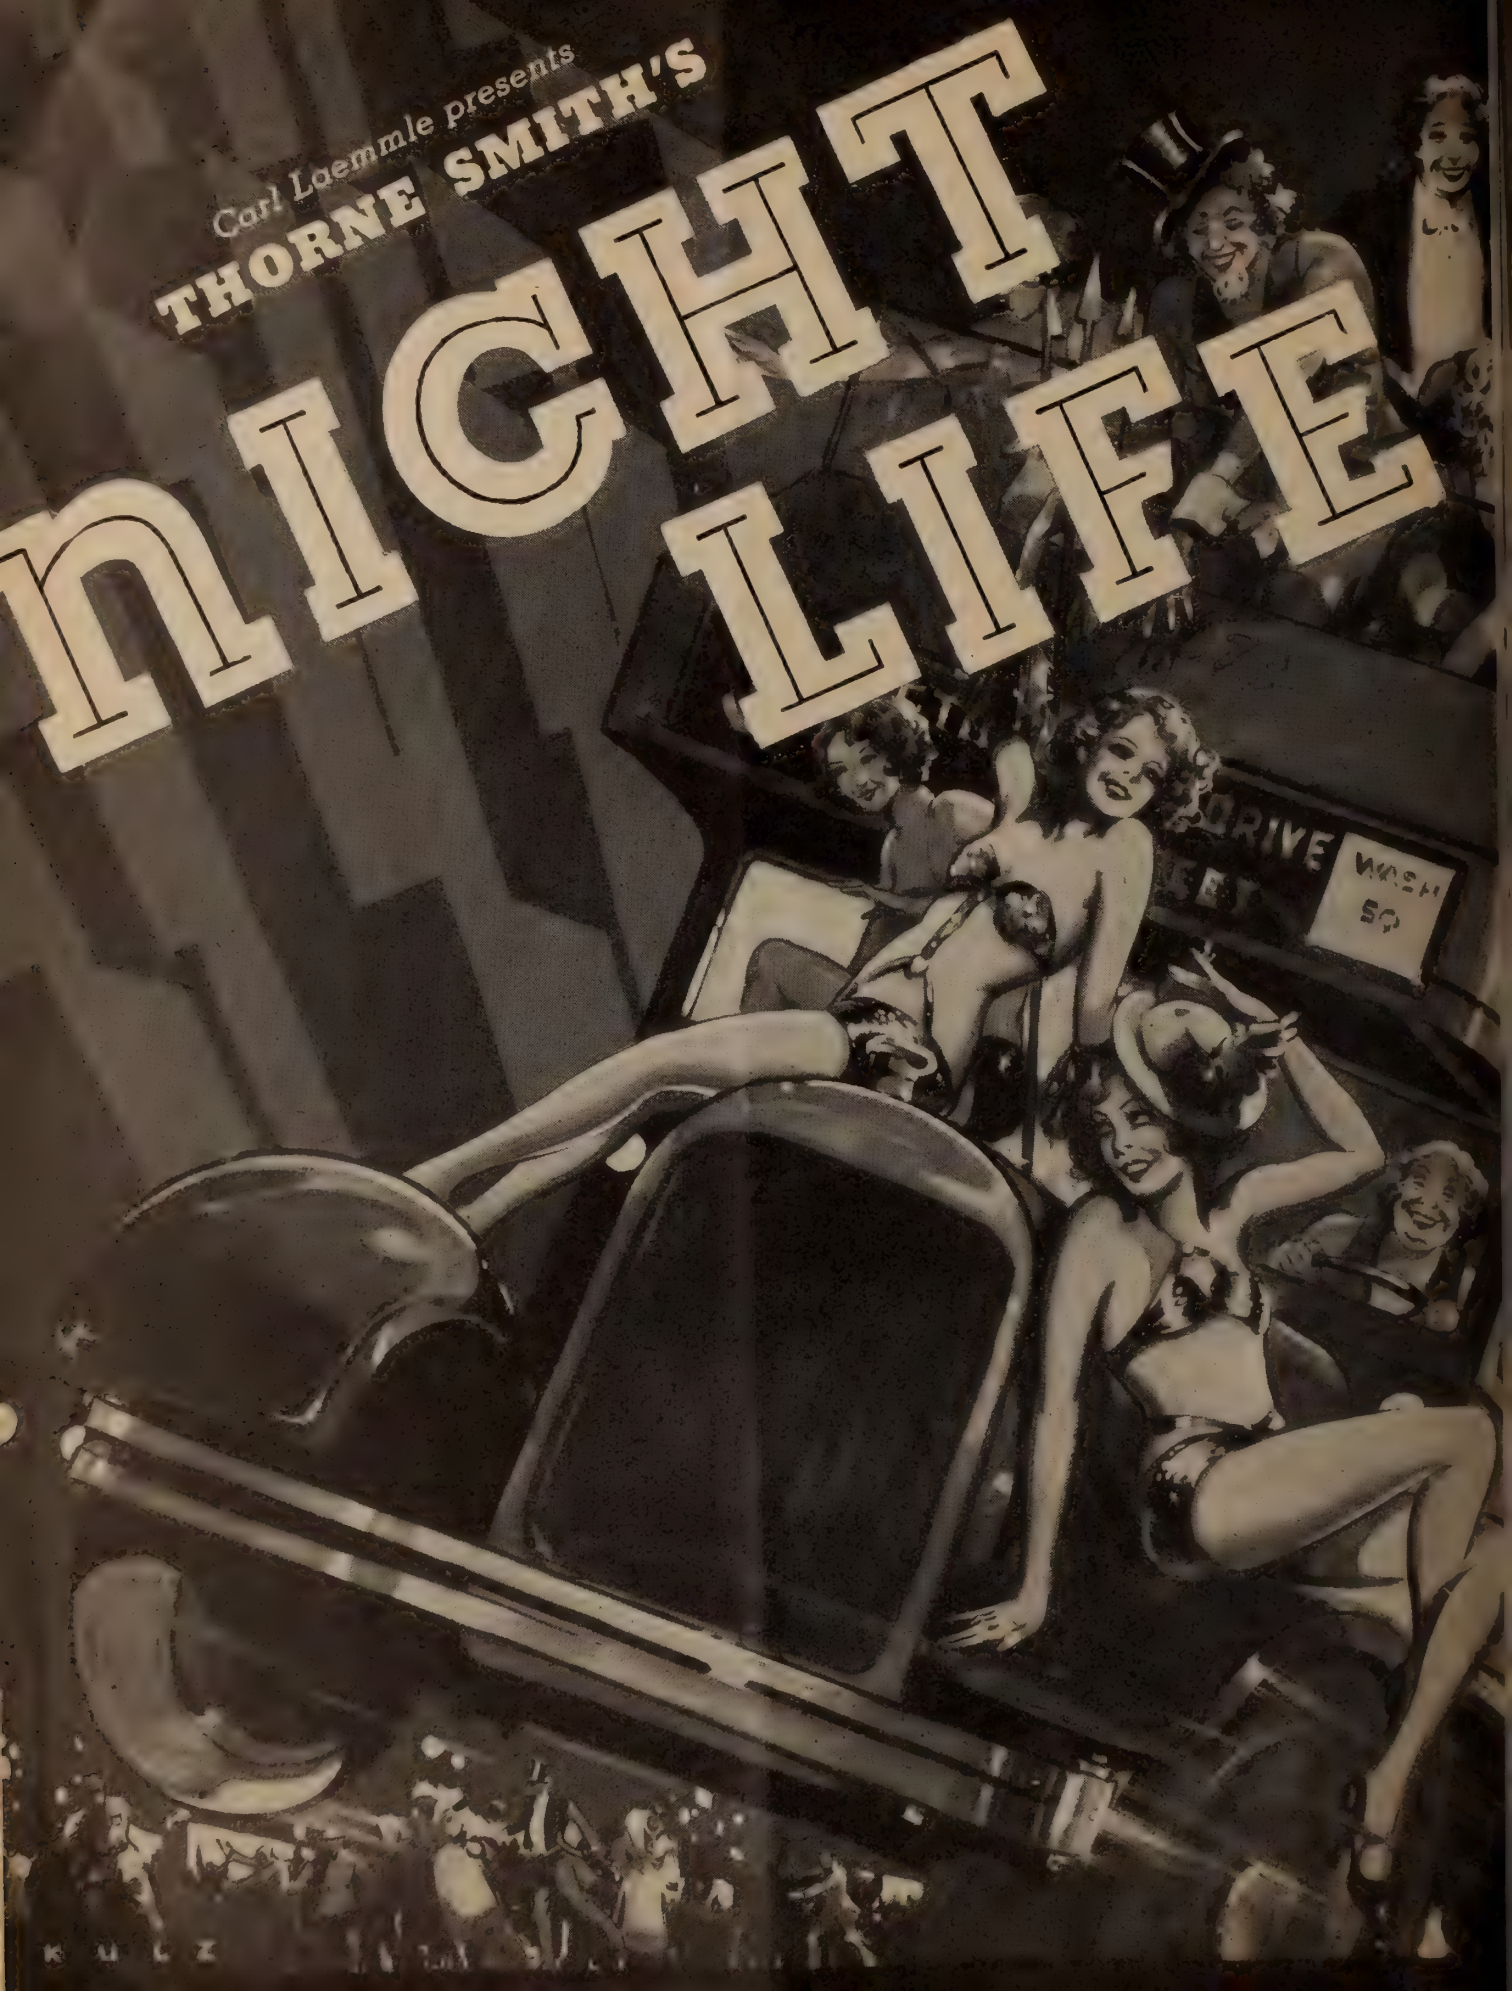
The "Motion Picture Daily" wrote: "A mixture of moods—wistful, romantic, gay to the point of being explosively funny, tender, and with an occasional tear; a gorgeous choice of ingredients so skilfully blended as to make the whole production delightful. All the principals are excellent. It is one of those pictures women and girls talk about in a way that re-acts on box-office to the benefit of everybody." "A smart, spicy comedy" commented the New York "Daily Mirror," "with the high merriment skilfully balanced by genuine pathos and charm. Altogether bewitching—an exhilarating blend of mirth and pathos. Miss Sullavan is an exquisite Luisa, and her support is great. This picture proves Miss Sullavan to be as fetching a comedienne as she is an impressive dramatic actress.

"The Good Fairy" has also scored a hit with the British provincial critics. Following the picture's trade show in Glasgow the "Sunday Post" wrote: "A trio of first-class artists, excellently produced, unusual story, and oodles of humour—that sums up 'The Good Fairy.' Frank Morgan makes a tremendous hit; Margaret Sullavan is delightfully romantic and sweet, and Herbert Marshall gives a splendid performance. Don't miss it. It's grand fun."

A Birmingham correspondent stated that the West End Cinema was in a continual uproar of laughter throughout the trade screening of "The Good Fairy." Exhibitors were unanimous that the picture is one of the most outstanding ever shown in Birmingham.

"THE MYSTERY OF EDWIN DROOD"

A tense moment in Universal's great classic screen mystery, starring Claude Rains, Heather Angel, Valerie Hobson and Douglass Montgomery.



Carl Laemmle presents
THORNE SMITH'S NIGHT LIFE

of the
GODS
A Universal Picture with ALAN MOWBRAY · FLORINE McKINNEY
PEGGY SHANNON · RICHARD CARLE
WESLEY BARRY · HENRY ARMETTA
FERDINAND GOTTSCHALK · WM. BOYD
A LOWELL SHERMAN
PRODUCTION

8,000 At One "Night Life" Show

Universal's Fantasy of the Gods Cleaning Up at the Roxy

New Record-Maker For Famous Broadway House

Business at such high pressure that 8,000 people alone were present at one show is reported by cable from New York for Universal's comedy-fantasy, "Night Life of the Gods," which was recently trade shown round this country.

The premiere is taking place at the famous Roxy Theatre, Broadway, where, the "New York Sun" reports, 6,000 people were seated at one show, with 2,000 others standing.

In his cable to S. F. Ditcham, Carl Laemmle states that " 'Night Life of the Gods' did bigger week-end business than record-breaking 'Imitation of Life' (Universal's Claudette Colbert-Warren William production). Reviews great." Here are some of them:

" 'New York Sun': Generally mad atmosphere. Hilarious moments. Theatre packed and overflowing with 2,000 standees in addition to 6,000 seated. 'Daily Mirror': Totally different movie fare. Fantastic slapstick farce that gets the hearty laughs. 'Times': Hilarious screen transformation. Weird and madly funny. The 'New York Evening Post': Roxy's new movie is swell. Cast dandy. Direction just the nuts. We giggled all the way through from start to final fade-out. 'New York Daily News': Rated three stars. A racy, spicy, appetising dish.

★ ★ ★ ★

"Strange Wives"

Bright and Clever !

(Preview Press)

The "Daily Film Renter" said of "Strange Wives": "Amusing variation on comedy of husband saddled with wife's relatives. Good situations, bright lines, capable acting. Many good laughs, with many clever cameos from supports. The humour is shrewd and sparkling, and many amusing scenes are heightened by clever contrast."

The "Kinematograph Weekly" commented: "Bright domestic comedy with a novel theme, well acted, and containing many very good comedy situations. Roger Pryor is very good as the worm husband who eventually turns, to considerable effect. The husband's meeting with his wife, and the gradual accumulation of unwanted relations who sponge regally on him are exultantly depicted and are full of natural humour."

Universal Scoop Gresford Colliery Descent

Amazing Newsreel Death-pit Pictures

What is undoubtedly the biggest news reel scoop of the year so far has been secured by Universal Talking News, which obtained exclusive pictures of the first descent into the "Death Pit"—Gresford Colliery, the scene of the mining disaster of last year.

To secure the right to take pictures of the descent was no easy matter, but permission was eventually granted. All aspects of the descent were then covered by Universal cameramen, from the donning of the specially-designed oxygen apparatus, rendered necessary by the deadly fumes which are filling the pit at the moment, to the actual descent into the pit itself. There are also sequences devoted to the complicated process of entering the "air-lock" at the head of the shaft, the necessity for which, in addition to the method of working, are clearly explained in the commentary.

The whole sequence provides a graphic pictorial record of one of the most dangerous tasks ever undertaken in this country.

Binnie Barnes Back to Hollywood

To Star in Universal's "Diamond Jim" with Edward Arnold

Binnie Barnes, the popular British star, is now on her way back to Universal City to appear in "Diamond Jim."

This is the biography of one of the most colourful characters in America's gay life. When he appeared in public he literally "dripped diamonds" . . . . wore a fortune of the precious gems in the form of rings, studs, links, and pins . . . gave away diamonds like every-day people give good wishes.

Binnie Barnes

His real name was James Brady and the role on the screen is to be portrayed by Edward Arnold who has long been overdue a starring role. Al Santell is to direct, with Edmund Grainger supervising. Parker Morrell, author of the biography, has just completed three months' work on the script.

UNIVERSAL SIGN HENRY MOLLISON

29-Year-Old British Stage Veteran with 26 Years' Stage Experience!

OFF TO HOLLYWOOD SHORTLY

UNIVERSAL'S latest Hollywood capture from the British stage and screen, Henry Mollison, is due to go to Universal City shortly to begin his long-term contract with star-making Carl Laemmle.

Son of a famous stage star, William Mollison, and brother of Clifford Mollison, popular British stage comedian, and of William Mollison, prominent stage producer, he had his first experience of the stage by blinking lazily at the footlights at the age of three! His father carried him on to the stage in "Rob Roy," at the Lyceum, Edinburgh.

With that promising start, Mollison stuck to the stage and screen for practically all of the 26 years that have gone by. His only break was school and a spell in journalism, on the "Daily News," London.

Educated at St. Paul's College, London, and, afterwards, in Caen, France, he started his actual stage career with Sir Frank Benson, in Shakespeare, at Bedford.

For the last few years, he has, of course, been featuring prominently in British films, but previously, he appeared in Gordon Daviot's "Richard of Bordeaux," in London, New York and Chicago.

HENRY MOLLISON in one of his recent British screen roles.

Six years ago, he married beautiful Jane Welsh, who accompanies him to Hollywood. Their English home is The Old House, West Drayton, a picturesque old Georgian manor. He was born at Broughty Ferry, Dundee, the original home of the Mollison family.

"Drood's" World Premiere Success

Within 100 Dollars of House Record at Pantages, Hollywood

Rushed into the programme without preliminary advertising or exploitation, Universal's Claude Rains superthriller, "The Mystery of Edwin Drood," almost broke the house record during its world premiere at the Pantages Theatre, Hollywood.

The record is held by Universal's "Imitation of Life," and "Edwin Drood" netted within 100 dollars of the top figure.

A further tribute to the picture's box-office value has been paid by the 6,000-seat Radio City Music Hall, the directors of which have chosen "Edwin Drood" as one of their 52 pictures this year.

Reports of the picture's progress in British provincial trade shows indicate that it will be one of Universal's best-sellers this year. Exhibitor reaction has been unanimously favourable, states S. F. Ditcham, and many big deals are pending.

"FOR MEN ONLY!"

Wembley Exhibitor's Novel Scheme for "Are You A Mason?"

Miss Nora Thomson, of the Wembley Hall Cinema, Wembley, Middlesex, is to be congratulated on an excellent stunt she put over during the run of Universal's hilarious comedy, "Are You a Mason?", starring Sonnie Hale and Robertson Hare.

Miss Thomson had thousands of small folders prepared with the intriguing words "FOR MEN ONLY," printed on the outside. Inside were found full details of the screenings of "Are You a Mason?", with the title of the picture used as a catchline and providing sufficient reason for the command on the cover.

The distribution of this folder, Miss Thomson reports, aroused great interest in Wembley — particularly among women patrons!—and was the cause of considerable word-of-mouth recommendation of the picture in the district, which resulted in bumper houses

S.R.O. FOR KARLOFF THRILLER!

Exceptional business with Universal's Karloff - Lugosi thriller, "The House of Doom," is reported by John H. Royston, Manager of the Futurist, Liverpool, in a letter to S. F. Ditcham:

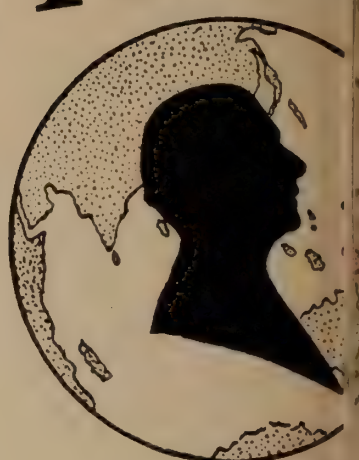
"You will be pleased to know that "The House of Doom" was most enthusiastically received by our patrons," he wrote. "We have full houses every day with standing room only most of the time. We are very delighted with the results and are definitely of the opinion that in this subject you have one of the finest ready - made box - office certainties ever turned out by your company."

Such a triumph augurs well for Universal's next Karloff picture "The Bride of Frankenstein," which has just been completed with an all-British cast.

ANOTHER SCOOP FOR UNIVERSAL TALKING NEWS!

THE STAR, THURSDAY, MARCH 14, 1935

THE INVISIB OF THE



R. E. JEFFREY, Who Must Be Heard And Not Seen

JUST for a change let us take a peep at the private life of a film star you all know but none of you has seen. I mean, of course, that permanently invisible man of the screen, Mr. R. E. Jeffrey, the Universal Talking News Reporter.

"R. E." has been a friend of mine for a good many years—since the days when he was Director of Drama at the old B.B.C. in Savoy Hill.

In spite of this, I am unable to show you a picture of him so that

This is because he leads a largely open-air life, frequently, even in winter, sleeping in his caravan on the scene of a big story for which he has to do the commentary in his own inimitable style.

Here is another "secret." He has four homes! He has a beautiful house at Sunbury-on-Thames, two pieds-à-terre, one at Worthing, and the other at West Wittering in Sussex, and his caravan, which is his travelling home and office.

There is only one home that counts for the purpose of this article, however. That is the one at Sunbury, for

You have often h
Universal Talking News
—R. E. JEFFREY.
often wondered what
It will not be poss him. He must only be you may take it tho
without good looks.
What is more,
homes, and, being architect, is plannin
Let's discover hi important of his h bury-on-Thames, o man with the silv

LE MAN SCREEN

Film Stars At Home—
By Richard Haestier, "The Star" Film Critic

at his word and sent him not only a song, but words, music and long letters as well. Now "R. E." is more than careful about his casual comments.

"Twixt Dark And Dawn".

Then again, when you pop in unexpectedly, Mr. Jeffrey might be writing more serious stuff, for he is an author and playwright. One of his best-known works is "Twixt Dark and Dawn," written first as a play and later published as a book. The play was produced in Glasgow, with a cast of more than 400 players, including Miss Marion Terry and the author.

left B.I.P. to become the first Talking News Reporter.

As such he goes all over the country with the Universal sound news apparatus to make his famous commentaries—hence the caravan.

Inventor, Too

In addition to his many other activities, he has also been an actor. At one time he was appearing in London as the stage-famous character Raffles.

He is also something of an inventor, for it was "R. E." who thought out the idea of the control panel for broad-casting and had the first one made to

No program is complete without UNIVERSAL TALKING NEWS

A portion of the whole-page story in the London "Star" publicising R. E. Jeffrey, Universal Talking News Reporter. Through the "Star" this story was read in hundreds of thousands of British homes!

Margaret Sullavan USHERS IN THE "ONLY

Margaret Sullavan in the role she plays in "The Good Fairy," which because of her recent marriage, is also so appropriate in real life.

THE theatre inspired Margaret Sullavan with a desire to amount to something on her own initiative. The theatre induced her to run away from home twice to go on the stage. It was the theatre that made Margaret Sullavan a world-wide figure of joy and interest to millions of people.

In "The Good Fairy," in which Margaret Sullavan is starred with Herbert Marshall, the character that she plays, Lu, was inspired by looking at romantic and heroic motion pictures to become "The Good Fairy." You see, Lu is a theatre usherette. Her outlook on life is very much circumscribed, but the screen opens to her a world of opportunity to do good deeds. While the flicker romance is on the screen, a tremendous determination to help others grows in Lu's heart, until she is inspired to do the most amazing, most unconventional and most dangerous things, all for the good of other people, and all without any selfish interest or thought of the position in which she might be placed.

THIS coy idea was coined by Ferenc Molnar, famous European author. It was played on the stage with great success by Helen Hayes. It has been brought to the screen by Margaret Sullavan under the direction of William Wyler, to whom she has also entrusted her future happiness.

William Wyler has given to these theatre sequences a gorgeous production. Most of them were taken in the Carthay Circle Theatre, in which Margaret Sullavan's first picture, "Only Yesterday," had its world-famous premiere. The scenes could very well have been taken in the day time, because the theatre is closed. Nevertheless, a corps of trained usherettes had to be assembled and a number of these usherettes were employed in other theatres during theatre hours. Under these conditions, Margaret Sullavan very willingly consented to make the scenes which are shown in these two pages after theatre hours. For that reason, work in the theatre started at eleven o'clock and finished at five a.m.

The psychology of "The Good Fairy" is the same psychology that Margaret Sullavan has always exhibited, anyway. No deserving person has ever applied to her without awakening a warm response.

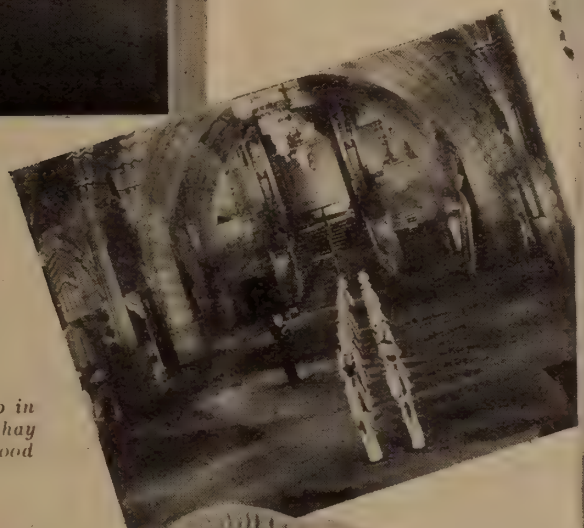
"The Good Fairy" contains a cast of superlative actors. Herbert Mar-

A scene from "The "Good Fairy."

"THE GOOD FAIRY" in SAME THEATRE WHERE YESTERDAY" WAS PREMIERED

An unusual shot made in the lobby of the Carthay Circle Theatre for "The Good Fairy" with Margaret Sullavan playing all the parts.

shall plays Dr. Max, for whom she plans many of her desperate good deeds. Frank Morgan plays "Konrad," Reginald Owen "Detlaff," while Alan Hale, Beulah Bondi, June Clayworth, Al Bridges, George Davis, Cesar Romero, Matt McHugh, Frank Moran are others featured in the cast.



Theatre ushers line up in the lobby of the Carthay Circle for "The Good Fairy."

Reginald Owen and Margaret Sullavan in "The Good Fairy."

•

The stars of "The Good Fairy," Margaret Sullavan, Herbert Marshall.

She gets 'em!

"Powerful emotional drama . . . charming child interest . . . the well-varied ingredients are attractively blended and provide unflagging entertainment." — Daily Film Renter

•

"Here is that heart-tug which all the showman world knows is an assured winner."
— The Cinema

CARL LAEMMLE PRESENTS

STRAIGHT from t

A Universal Picture with

MARY ASTOR
ROGER PRYOR
BABY JANE

Grant Mitchell · Andy Devine · Henry Armetta

A. B. F. ZEIDMAN Production

HEART

"FALSE WITNESS"

Love and Intrigue in a novel setting as told in the story "TRANSIENT LADY"

• •

HENRY HULL

the magnificent Magwitch of "Great Expectations" in another superb screen role

CARL LAEMMLE Presents A Universal Picture Based on OCTAVUS ROY COHEN'S Liberty Magazine Story with

GENE RAYMOND
HENRY HULL
FRANCES DRAKE

JUNE CLAYWORTH · DOUGLAS FOWLEY

Directed by EDWARD BUZZELL

A JULIUS BERNHEIM PRODUCTION

TRADE SHOW:

Thursday, April 4th

PRINCE EDWARD THEATRE at 3 p.m.

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

SHOWMANSHIP SECTION

A Red-Letter Year for Live Showmen!

Magnificent Exploitation Angles in the 1935 Pictures

WE are now fast approaching the end of the first quarter of 1935 and we can already form a good idea, from the first batch of 1935 productions that have already reached us, of the quality of Universal's new season pictures. I can state, without fear of contradiction, that THE UNIVERSAL PICTURES SO FAR PRODUCED THIS YEAR ARE THE FINEST I HAVE EVER KNOWN, particularly from the point of view of the live showman.

Starting with "Imitation of Life" Universal has put on the screen such magnificent pictures as "Night Life of the Gods," "A Notorious Gentleman," "Straight From the Heart," "Rendezvous at Midnight," "The Man Who Reclaimed His Head," and "The Mystery of Edwin Drood," as well as a splendid bunch of British pictures, among them "Annie, Leave the Room!", "The Lad"—two of the funniest comedies I have ever seen—and "Death on the Set," a fascinatingly ingenious mystery picture which will baffle audiences right to the last moment.

"The Good Fairy"

Now, as if this magnificent line-up were not enough, comes "The Good Fairy," starring Margaret Sullavan and Herbert Marshall, which I have no hesitation in describing as one of the finest—if not THE finest—most delightful, witty comedies I have ever seen. And I have no doubt that, when you have seen this grand picture, you will endorse my opinion.

These pictures have all been trade shown, and are now awaiting their premiere screenings in the West End. They will not, of course, be generally released for some time yet, but that is no reason why live exhibitors should not even now be devising schemes for exploiting these pictures with all the resources at their command. When the time comes an edition of "Ammunition" dealing with each of these important releases will be issued, and, in the meantime, I will give you advance information in the "Universal Weekly" as to ideas for campaigns and tie-ups in connection with them. Don't forget that there are Showmanship Certificates and Cheques waiting for those showmen putting over original and comprehensive campaigns, and nothing would give Mr. Ditcham more pleasure than to have to award a record number of these certificates and cheques this year!

A scene from Universal's "Night Life of the Gods," the hilarious screen version of Thorne Smith's novel, which, as mentioned in the article on this page, provides showmen with countless splendid exploitation angles.

(Continued on page 20)

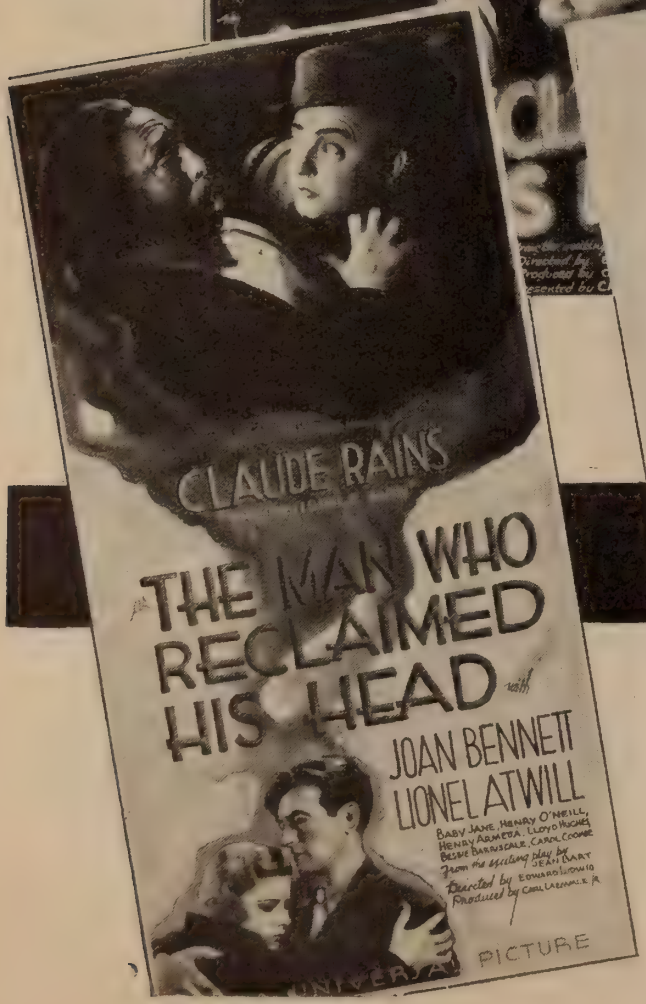
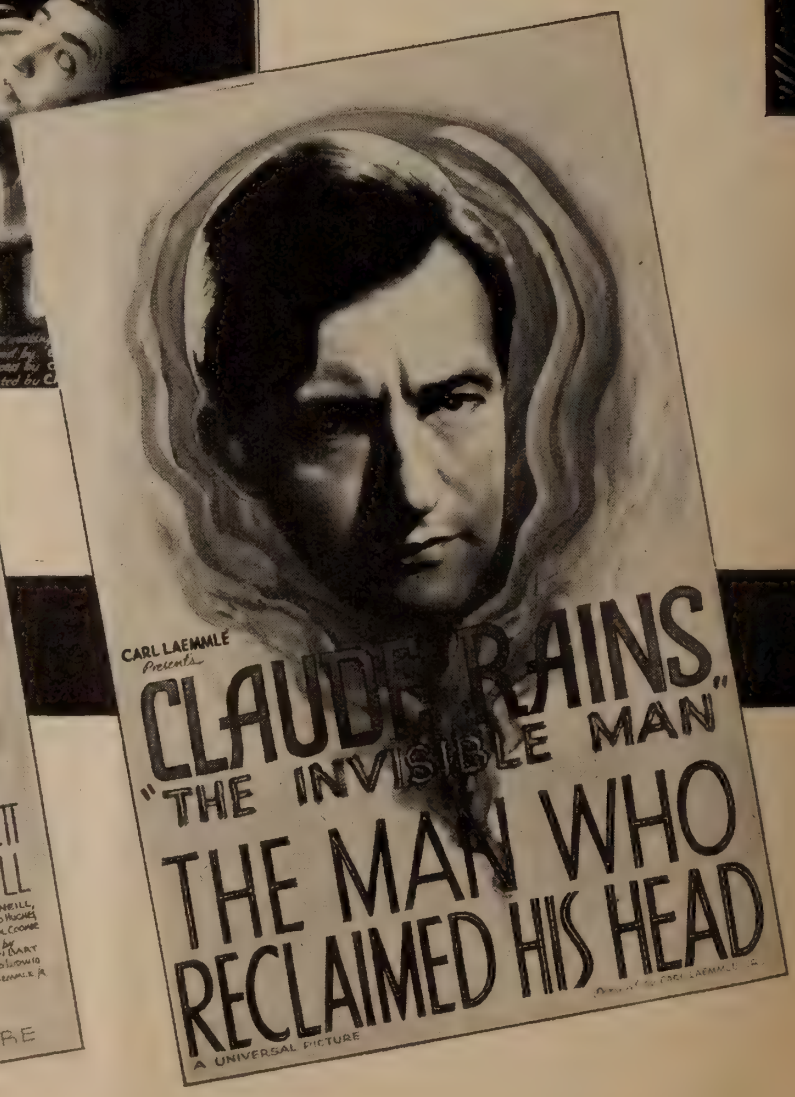
USE THESE SUPERB POSTERS -





THEY'RE BUILT FOR BUSINESS!

"Buck Jones" Visits Paisley!

Mr. Walter Hinks Arranges "Personal Appearance" of "The Red Rider"

ONE of Scotland's finest showmen, Mr. Walter Hinks, of the Alex Cinema, Paisley, has again put over an excellent campaign for a Universal picture—"The Red Rider," starring Buck Jones, being the subject this time.

Like the wise showman he is, Mr. Hinks started his campaign well in advance of playdate—three weeks, to be exact—when slides were thrown on the screen announcing the forthcoming attraction, and it was stated that Buck Jones, dressed as "The Red Rider," would appear on the stage, in addition to visiting the schools, riding his famous white horse.

Mr. Hinks was fortunate enough to find a man who is almost Buck Jones's double, and he possessed the additional advantage of being a crack rider—the result of Army experience. For the stunt he was dressed in full Western kit, the effect being completed with the use of a red mask.

A Monster Rally

When the great day of the screening arrived, "Buck Jones" appeared, guns in hands, in the centre of the stage under the glare of a red pin focus light. He told his youthful audience how delighted he was to be there and that he would be appearing each week in the screen chapterplay. During the first week's screening a monster rally was held, the rider on his horse visiting all the streets in the neighbourhood, and being followed everywhere by a crowd of excited children who unconsciously added greatly to the eye-catching nature of the display. During the rally 5,000 handbills were distributed.

"Buck Jones" touring Paisley as part of Mr. Hinks' campaign.

The campaign proved once again what a tremendously popular star Buck Jones is with children—in fact, as Mr. Hinks says, any picture featuring this popular star is, to use racing parlance, a "good thing."

Nerve Tonic for Cinema Patrons!

Harlesden Exhibitor's Excellent "House of Doom" Campaign

A Model Tie-up

Further evidence that a good tie-up is the basis of all successful exploitation campaigns is provided this week by Mr. Hector A. McCullie, General Manager of the Picardy Cinema, Harlesden, who put over a splendid stunt in connection with the screening of "The House of Doom" at his cinema.

Envelopes were prepared with the following lettering on the outside :—"The Picardy Cinema dares you to see Karloff and Lugosi in 'The House of Doom.' Take the enclosed samples of 'Lightning Nerve Tonic' and your nerves will be completely restored after this shattering experience." The envelopes also stated that they were presented by a chemist with premises opposite the cinema. A large display in the window of the chemist's shop also supported the tie-up.

10,000 Handbills

Mr. McCullie arranged for no fewer than 10,000 of the sample envelopes to be distributed to patrons during the run of "The House of Doom." The entire scheme proved a great success, the co-operation between exhibitor and shopkeeper being greatly to the advantage of both and providing other showmen with an excellent model tie-up for exploiting this outstanding picture.

(Further Exploitation News on page 9)

(Continued from page 17)

In the exploitation section of the last issue of the Weekly were given details of a splendid tie-up arranged by Mr. I. Walton, of the Regal, Kiveton Park, in connection with his screening of "The Poor Rich." That such an expensive tie-up can be arranged, at no cost to the exhibitor, proves that business men are willing to go to great lengths when co-operating with showmen. It also shows how valuable tie-ups can be.

This should be a rule for all exhibitors. Arrange as many tie-ups as possible—they are the fundamental basis of all good exploitation campaigns. I have one picture in particular in mind when I say this—"Night Life of the Gods." This is a picture on which you can tie-up with every single business organisation in your territory. In fact exploitation campaigns on this picture are so obvious and so numerous that I am tempted here and now to dive right into an orgy of suggestions which occur to me as I write. But space, unfortunately, will not permit, so I must wait until the time arrives to issue "Ammunition" with "Night Life of the Gods" as its subject. Then I can promise you a bumper edition!

THE SHOWMAN

OSWALD
Bigger and Better than Ever in SKYLARKS

The Most Novel and Amusing Story ever screened, with fascinating

JEAN PARKER

in the leading feminine role

CHESTER MORRIS

in

Princess O'HARA

ONLY

DAMON RUNYON

could have written this grand story of a girl cabby for Universal! . . . It's his finest — and he's written screen hit after screen hit!

RAWLINGS & WALSH, LTD., PRINTERS, CHERTSEY

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
VOL. 36, NO. 16
MAR. 30, 1935

« « "Just watch her mouth, you lip experts, and note its delicate beauty. She is exceptionally beautiful." » »

See what Rob Wagner says of

GERTRUDE MICHAEL

in

"IT HAPPENED IN NEW YORK"

On page 14 of this issue

WEREWOLF OF LONDON

A UNIVERSAL PICTURE... Produced by STANLEY BERGERMAN

MOTION PICTURE HERALD GETS THE TRUTH ABOUT UNIVERSAL!★

Read Next Page.....

★ Reproduced from—
Motion Picture Herald
of March 23rd, 1935.

THE TRUTH ABO

1...Universal's "It Happened in
N. Y. Roxy Theatre for April

2...Universal's "Princess O'Ha is being sought after by seve

3...Universal's "The Mystery of ing audiences everywhere in 4...Universal's "Mr. Dynamite," Dashiell Hammett's successor

5...Universal's "The Bride of darndest sensation your aud

6...Universal's "The Unholy surprises of the year!

7...The truth about Universal strong line-up of box-office tor's heart!

UT UNIVERSAL!

New York" is booked into the 5th!

:a," Damon Runyon's best story,
:al big Broadway houses!

Edwin Drood" is now fascinat-the United States!

starring Edmund Lowe, will be to "The Thin Man"!

Frankenstein" will be the golences have ever gasped at!

Hour" will be one of the big is something to shout about—a babies to gladden every exhibi-

Carl Laemmle presents
It Happened

. . . sure-fire laugh entertainment . . . having mass entertainment appeal, should do good business in any locale. —Motion Picture Daily

. . . a good picture . . . amusing . . . good yarn . . . capable cast.

—Hollywood Reporter

. . . clicks smartly as a breezy satiric comedy and should find no trouble cashing.

—Daily Variety

Picture is ideal for a regular Hollywood opening. It's also a natural for screwy gags.

—Showmen's Trade Review

Dandy comedy with story bolstered by good performances and effective direction. —Film Daily in NEW YORK

GERTRUDE MICHAEL HEATHER ANGEL
LYLE TALBOT HUGH O'CONNELL

Directed by Alan Crosland

ASSOCIATE PRODUCER, EDMUND GRAINGER

THE DEVIL'S O

No. 812 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

You will slip up badly on your showmanship if you do not present "The Mystery of Edwin Drood" with all the advertising smartness at your command.

Here is a picture not only rich in advertising value, but so impressive that it will be remembered for years to come. It is screen dynamite.

But what I want to emphasize just now is the fact that it gives the fans another presentation of Claude Rains, the star who made "The Invisible Man" one of the unforgettable productions of the screen's history.

No less thoughtful a critic than Mr. Andre Sennwald of the New York Times gives a summing up of Mr. Rain's work in "The Mystery of Edwin Drood" which should give a tip to every real showman.

Mr. Sennwald says:

"Mr. Rains, who has become the devil's own brother during his brief and hair-raising screen career, is brilliantly repellant. His searching eyes and malignantly arched brows are tainted with mania. Mr. Rains makes your flesh crawl.

WN BROTHER

"You are nerveless with fear when he walks in the gloom of the cathedral crypt at midnight plotting his awful crime."

You will remember, of course, that Universal gave Lon Chaney his greatest opportunities, just as it has developed scores of your greatest box office attractions and just as it now presents one of the most superior performers the screen has ever had, in the person of Mr. Rains.

The Times calls him "The devil's own brother" — not a bad title to use in describing an actor who can lift you out of the ordinary emotions and make you really believe in the reality of the picture you are seeing.

We took a long chance when we produced "The Mystery of Edwin Drood" because we had to take liberties with Charles Dickens! He had never finished his story, so we developed the sort of a climax which we considered the most plausible.

Treat this picture frankly as a startler! Don't pussy-foot about it. Capitalize on everything Mr. Rains did in "The Invisible Man" and he will more than live up to your hopes and the expectations of your fans in "The Mystery of Edwin Drood."

Carl Laemmle

"Excellent screen edition of 'The Mystery of Edwin Drood' at the Rialto Theatre. Mr. Rains makes your flesh crawl. The sinister, crawling darkness of the cathedral crypt has been captured brilliantly on the screen. Good Dickens and a genuinely fine horror story in the bargain."

Andre Sennwald
--N. Y. Times

"A thoroughly entertaining, exciting and atmospherically fine screen version of the novel. All in all, 'The Mystery of Edwin Drood' is not only acceptable thriller entertainment but it is also a fine contribution to the screen's current cycle."

William Boehnel
--World-Telegram

"'The Mystery of Edwin Drood' is now a gruesome melodrama with enough action and background mystery. They have built up an effective background of suspense and horror. One of those fast-moving shockers which Universal turns out every so often.

Eileen Creelman
--New York Sun

 (Three Stars)
"'The Mystery of Edwin Drood' is having the desired chilling effect. Rains makes the soft spoken, secretive opium addict a sinister figure."

Kate Cameron
--Daily News

"Good motion picture entertainment. Mr. Rains is again excellent as the opium-addicted choirsinger, and Mr. Montgomery equally fine as Nemesis. Stuart Walker has built up and sustained just the right chiller-thriller atmosphere for such eerie drama."

Regina Crewe
--N. Y. American

"'Edwin Drood' subtle horror picture. Handsomely produced and acted by an unusually fine company, this film is an engrossing character drama. It exercises a fascination, holds complete interest. All give vividly effective performances."

Bland Johaneson
--Daily Mirror

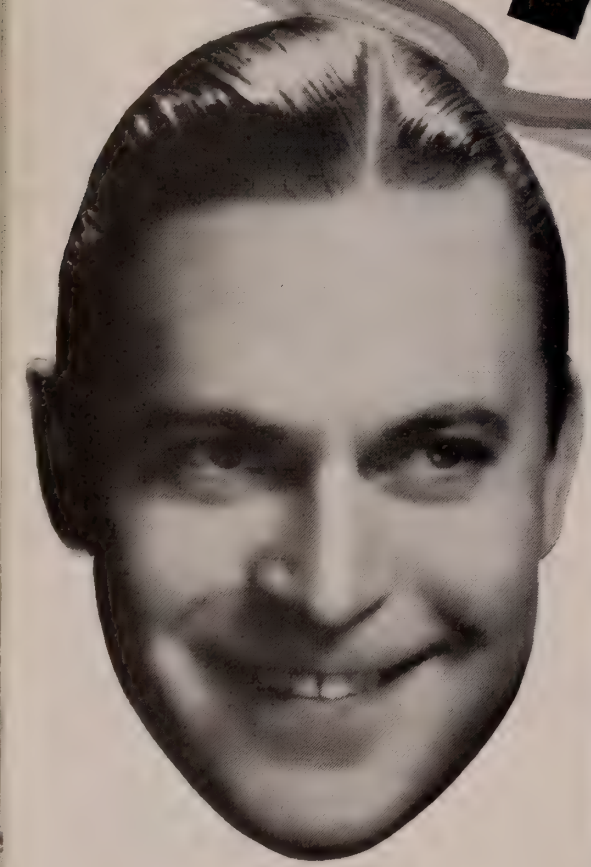
GLORY BE, MR. RUNYON!

The nation's box offices are still blessin' yiz for "Lady for a Day" and "Little Miss Marker"! Now look what they're sayin' about your newest cleaner-upper:

Motion Picture Daily: Exciting, well-made entertainment that is CERTAIN to please!

Daily Variety: Just the right combination of sentimental hokum, freshly furbished, and comedy, both homely and slapstick, to give it entertainment range and substantial box office!

Princess



Carl Laemmle presents

Jean and Chester PARKER MORRIS

in DAMON RUNYON'S Collier's Magazine story
A Universal Picture with
LEON ERROL · HENRY ARMETTA
VINCE BARNETT

Directed by David Burton

Leonard Spigelgass, Associate Producer

"A PEACH OF A STORY" Says Rob Wagner

(From Rob Wagner's Script of March 16)

"IT HAPPENED IN NEW YORK" (Universal)

BUT it could happen, and perhaps does, in Hollywood. You see, Gertrude Michael was a beautiful movie star fed up on personal appearance publicity stunts framed up by her manager, Hugh O'Connell. So in order to duck a big 'premeer' which she is scheduled to attend with 'Prince' Rafael Storm, she drops off the train at 125th St., Manhattan, and takes a taxi to her hotel hideout. It was a fatal trip, for Lyle Talbot was the taxi driver, and you know Lyle. After the handkissers of Hollywood, Lyle looked good to Gertrude. But alas, he was engaged to little Heather Angel, so there's the complication.

It's a peach of a story (Ward Morehouse and Jean Dalrymple, excellently screened by Seton I. Miller and Rian James), directed with speed, fast fun and the native good taste of Alan Crosland. Indeed Alan has decidedly challenged "IT HAPPENED ONE NIGHT" and "THE GOOD FAIRY."

My particular enthusiasm is for Gertrude Michael. She is exceptionally beautiful, particularly in her make-up, or lack of it. With lips exactly right, she is able to show subtleties of expression utterly impossible through the usual axle-grease. Just watch her mouth, you lip gooers, and note its delicate beauty. Even the dainty Heather Angel can learn something about make-up from this film.

Further, Miss Michael gives a remarkable demonstration of the value of repression. I've noted before that when movie gals lose their tempers and explode, they are invariably coarse and unlovely. Miss Michael is constantly burned up by the flamboyant aggressiveness of her manager, but it is a slow burn that rarely reaches a violent climax and never becomes profane and vulgar. It may not be true to life—I understand that many movie stars swear like marine sergeants—but it is altogther charming.

Lyle Talbot (much plainer than Paul Gerard Smith, or even Jimmie Starr, but not so plain as Irv Cobb) and the appropriately named Heather Angel (but angels should lay off Max Factor's lip goo!) both give their usual excellent performances.

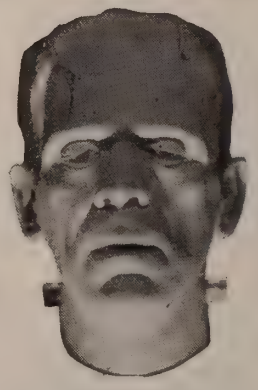
But it is Hugh O'Connell who puts over the delicious satire of the publicity racket, getting the loudest laughs of the picture when he shoves his pets away from the microphone in front of the premeer theatre and tells the

(Continued on Page 23)

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, N. Y. City
Universal Pictures Corp.
Copyrighted 1935
(All Rights Reserved)
MARCH 30, 1935
Vol. 36 No. 16

The Preview Parade of UNIVERSAL PICTURES



KARLOFF

. . . What creature will claim the monster's love?

The Monster did not die!

Fire could not burn him! Vengeful villagers could not kill him! The scientist who made him could not destroy him!

Averting certain doom — escaping seeming destruction—the monster survives—for love!

New terror strikes as this incredible and awesome Thing—this monstrosity of science — this half-human inconceivable stepson of Death demands a Mate!

Prepare for a super-shocker! With the same star that stunned audiences before— directed by the man who delivered the former money triumph—"THE BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN" is a terrific sequel to the box-office behemoth that was the sensation of six continents.

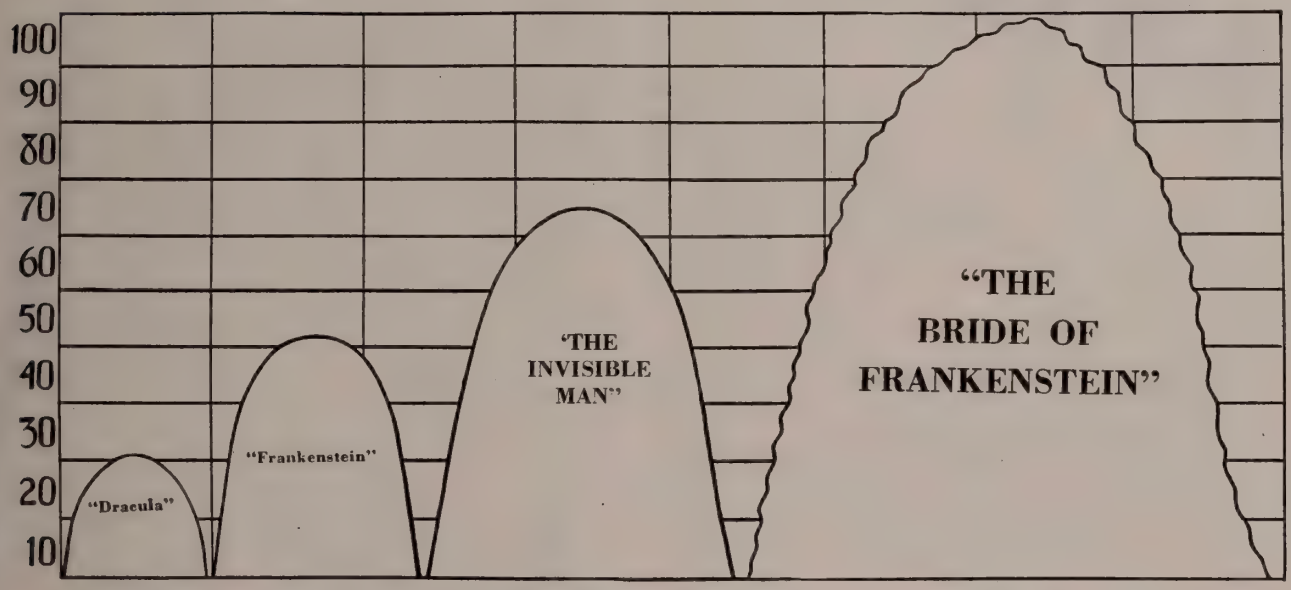
It is not for the young—the nervous—the scarey. Those who get nightmares and tantrums will stay away!

But the millions will come to lay their money at the till, to see what creature will claim the monster's love—what heart—what soul—what flesh could be so brave!

If YOU want to know—wait until next week! This column will tell!

JACTHALL

BIGGER 'N BETTER GOOSE PIMPLES!



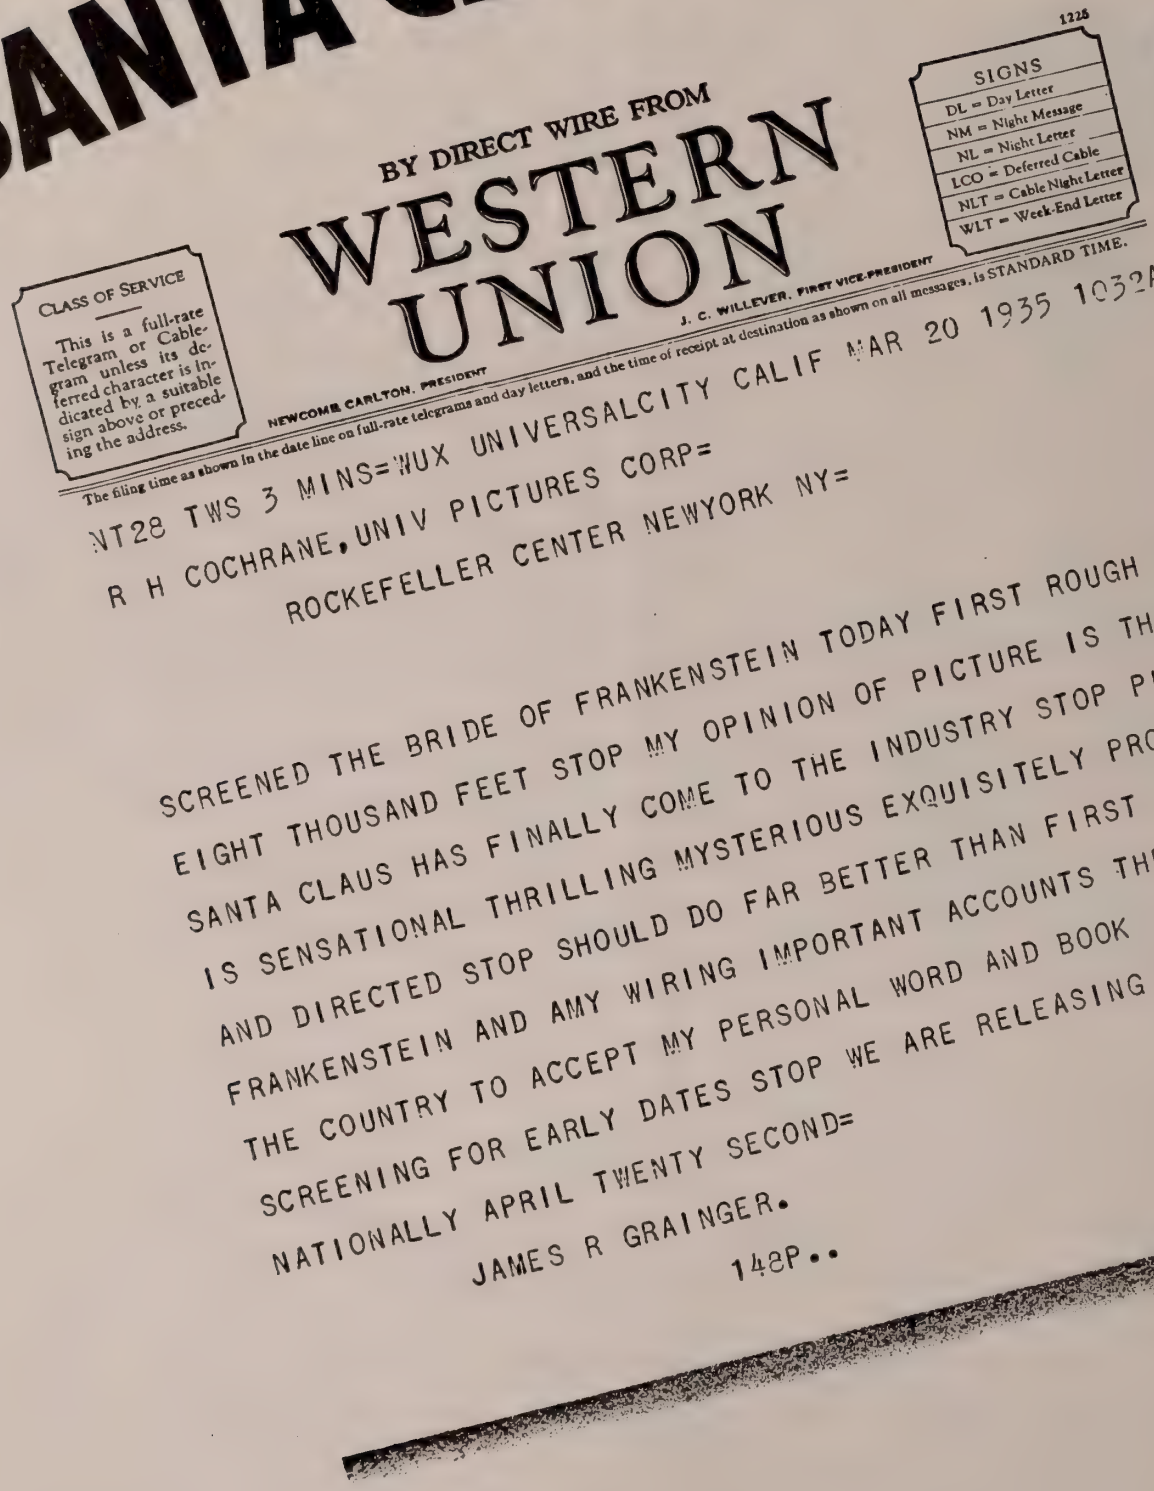
(Side Elevation Chart of Famous Goose Pimples)

What this business needs is bigger n' better goose pimples. Stories of pure horror. Gasps. Thrills. Shivering spines. Stories so downright shuddery that they will send the youngsters to bed with more goose pimples to the square inch that the human frame has ever enjoyed before.

Away with Mother Goose. She was a pansy! All hail the modern child and the movie-educated public. Let us give them something creepy and ghastly that they may sleep in peace and enjoy bigger and better nightmares. Above all, let us be up to the minute and as smart as our children.

WITH THIS SWEET THOUGHT IN MIND WE HAVE PRODUCED "THE BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN" AND WE GUARANTEE MORE GOOSE PIMPLES TO THE SQUARE INCH THAN YOU HAVE EVER HAD BEFORE!

SANTA CLAUS COMES IN



1228

BY DIRECT WIRE FROM

WESTERN UNION

NEWCOMB CARLTON, PRESIDENT — J. C. WILLEVER, FIRST VICE-PRESIDENT

SIGNS
DL = Day Letter
NM = Night Message
NL = Night Letter
LCO = Deferred Cable
NLT = Cable Night Letter
WLT = Week-End Letter

CLASS OF SERVICE
This is a full-rate Telegram or Cablegram unless its deferred character is indicated by a suitable sign above or preceding the address.

The filing time as shown in the date line on full-rate telegrams and day letters, and the time of receipt at destination as shown on all messages, is STANDARD TIME.

NT28 TWS 3 MINS=WUX UNIVERSALCITY CALIF MAR 20 1935 1032A

R H COCHRANE, UNIV PICTURES CORP=
ROCKEFELLER CENTER NEWYORK NY=

SCREENED THE BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN TODAY FIRST ROUGH CUT EIGHT THOUSAND FEET STOP MY OPINION OF PICTURE IS THAT SANTA CLAUS HAS FINALLY COME TO THE INDUSTRY STOP PICTURE IS SENSATIONAL THRILLING MYSTERIOUS EXQUISITELY PRODUCED AND DIRECTED STOP SHOULD DO FAR BETTER THAN FIRST FRANKENSTEIN AND AMY WIRING IMPORTANT ACCOUNTS THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY TO ACCEPT MY PERSONAL WORD AND BOOK IT WITHOUT SCREENING FOR EARLY DATES STOP WE ARE RELEASING THE PICTUR NATIONALLY APRIL TWENTY SECOND=

JAMES R GRAINGER.

148P..

THE SPRING tra la

BRINGING YOU THE BIGGEST BOX OFFICE SENSATION YOU'VE HAD IN YEARS!

Carl Laemmle presents the inimitable KARLOFF in "THE BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN," a Universal Picture with Colin Clive, Valerie Hobson, Una O'Connor, Ernest Thesiger and E. E. Clive . . . Directed by JAMES WHALE . . . Produced by CARL LAEMMLE, JR. . . . Screenplay by William Hurlbut and John L. Balderston.

THOUSANDS OF EXHIBITORS CAN'T BE WRONG!

EVERY MAJOR CIRCUIT uses Universal Serials, and thousands of exhibitors besides.

Universal Serials are business builders, because Universal is the biggest and most successful producer of serials in the industry!

That's why exhibitors are only too happy to write testimonials such as these to trade papers:

RUSTLERS OF RED DOG:

John Mack Brown—Believe it will pull better than "Red Rider" did here. First three chapters fine.—John H. Forrester, Pines Theatre, Waldron, Ark.

TAILSPIN TOMMY:

Noah Beery, Jr., Maurice Murphy—All patrons from 6 to 60 should like this even though transients. The episodes are as entertaining as any two-reel short. Running time, 20 minutes each.—W. M. Allen, Mission Theatre, Clayton, N. M.

THE RED RIDER:

Buck Jones—This has been the best serial I have ever shown. Has held interest all the way through and brings them back. That's the purpose. Running time, 2 reels each.—John H. Forrester, Pine Theatre, Waldron, Ark.

THE RED RIDER:

Buck Jones.—A western serial sure to go over wherever serials are used. One of the best in a long time. 15 chapters. —Martin S. Lane, Logan Theatre, Noblesville, Ind.

TAILSPIN TOMMY:

Maurice Murphy, Patricia Farr, Noah Beery, Jr., Grant Withers—Have run four episodes of this serial and it's holding up very good. Doesn't repeat very much of the preceding chapter and has a lot of good airplane stunt flying and there is plenty of action on the ground to keep interest.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan.

THE RED RIDER:

Buck Jones.—We are almost at the end of this one. Good entertainment. Kept the folks coming every week at a pretty fair rate. Fifteen episodes.—Jack Green, Geneseo Theatre, Geneseo, Ill.

THE RED RIDER:

Buck Jones—Building up every chapter. Wish it was 20 chapters. Running time, 19 minutes.—Garnett Staneil, Opera House, Fort Payne, Ala.

TAILSPIN TOMMY:

Maurice Murphy, Noah Beery, Jr.—A very good and interesting serial; plenty of action and stunts. Have played three episodes and business is holding up good. I have yet to see a company that can produce better serials than Universal. Two reels each episode.—M. S. Porter, Orpheum Theatre, Nelsonville, Ohio.

TAILSPIN TOMMY:

Maurice Murphy, Noah Beery, Jr.—An off-with-a-bang serial. Plenty of action, suspense and thrills. Is pleasing 100 per cent.—Mary M. Ross, Strand Theatre, St. George, S. C.

VANISHING SHADOW:

Onslow Stevens, Ada Ince—Am now in the sixth chapter of this serial, and it is holding interest thus far better than any chapter play we have shown in a number of years.—W. H. Brenner, Cozy Theatre, Winchester, Ind.

THE RED RIDER:

Buck Jones.—Good serial. This serial held up for fifteen weeks.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kan.

THE RED RIDER:

Buck Jones.—One of the best serials I ever saw. Boys, better book this one, it will bring in the extra customers.—Al Johnston, Rialto Theatre, Jacksonville, Texas.

TAILSPIN TOMMY:

Maurice Murphy, Noah Beery, Jr.—Very good serial. Showed eight chapters and getting better as they go along. —P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa.

That's why UNIVERSAL again is proud to announce that the 4 Serial Champions of 1935-1936 will be BUCK JONES in "THE ROARING WEST," "THE NEW ADVENTURES OF TAILSPIN TOMMY," "THE ADVENTURES OF FRANK MERRIWELL" and "FLASH GORDON."

•

For more information about them, please inquire at your nearest Universal Exchange!

NEWSREEL No. 339

COIFFEUR COIFS AT SEASIDE

MIAMI BEACH, FLA.—An enterprising hair-dresser moves his shop out on the sands so his lovely clients may have their tresses dressed under blue skies.

HOUSE PASSES PATMAN BONUS

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Rep. Wright Patman explains his bill for payment of ex-soldiers' adjusted compensation with a paper money issue of $2,000,000,000.

RANGERS CAPTURE ICE TILT

NEW YORK CITY.—The home team defeats the Canadiens by a narrow margin in a hockey playoff.

STORM OF DUST DARKENS SUN

KANSAS CITY, MO.—Automobile headlights burn at noon as clouds of fine sand cast a murky haze over the city.

GAR WOOD AFTER NEW RECORD

(Exclusive)

MIAMI, FLA.—The noted motorboat racer arrives with Miss America X.

MODELS SHOW PARIS STYLES

CHICAGO, ILL.—Pretty mannequins parade the beauties of the very latest in gowns from the French capital.

BOY BECOMES HALF-AND-HALF

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—An almost straight line divides three-year-old Wilford Price into two distinct persons, one of them a blue-eyed blonde and the other a brunet.

F.D.R. AIDS FILIPINO FREEDOM

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The President signs a certificate approving a proposed constitution for the Philippine Islands, thus establishing Home Rule in the territory.

GREEKS FETE REBEL DEFEAT

ATHENS, GREECE.—The President of the Republic and high officials join thousands of loyal adherents at a stirring military display.

WATER-POLOISTS GET DUCKED

CORAL GABLES, FLA.—There's water, water everywhere as horses take their place in a noted indoor sport. The riders play with spirit despite handicaps brought into the game by churning hoofs.

ANIMALS IN MULTIPLE BIRTH

PHELPS, N. Y.—Five kids are born to a mother goat at the same time.—At Chili, N. Y., a cow gives birth to healthy but wobbly triplet calves.

AIR PATROL ESCAPES DEATH

MELBOURNE, AUSTRALIA.—Jammed controls plunge a 'plane into the sea during the rescue of a swimmer from man-eating sharks.

Scene from Universal thriller "Werewolf of London," taken at Vasquez Rocks, California. Henry Hull and Warner Oland have the principal parts.

COURT OKAYS SHOWING OF DEAD GANGSTERS IN NEWSPAPERS AND NEWSREELS

THE newspapers can run pictures of dead men; the newsreel can run pictures of dead men; and they cannot be subjected to legal action or suits for damages. The courts have said so.

The text of the decision of Judge Joseph Sprouls in the case of Doris Preisler against Universal Pictures and Pantages Theatre of Los Angeles was received by wire yesterday in New York. It embodies a sweeping decision which establishes a precedent not only for newsreel and feature pictures but which affects equally all newspapers and magazines throughout the United States.

Mrs. Doris Preisler and her husband Sidney Preisler, sued the Universal as the owners of the Universal Newsreel and the Pantages Theatre in Los Angeles on the ground that the witnessing of a scene showing the dead body of Baby Face Nelson caused Mrs. Preisler to lose a prospective child. She and her husband each sued Universal and the theatre for damages altogether totalling $4,150,000. In his instructions to the jury, Judge Sprouls directed a verdict and stated that the theatre had obviously posted notice of the Nelson pictures in its lobby and in newspaper advertisements and that it was not liable for damages. Judge Sprouls also took occasion to commend the newsreel for aiding the campaign against crime, despite such a gruesome scene as the shot of Baby Face Nelson in the morgue. The jury brought in a verdict for the defendants.

In the event that this case in the Superior Court of the State of California had gone against the defendants, every one of the newsreels and every theatre in the United States would have been in danger of similar suits. Furthermore, a precedent of this kind would have inevitably affected every newspaper and magazine which shows realistic pictures.

The Universal Newsreel has pioneered in defending actions of this kind in behalf of newsreels and newspapers. In 1919, the Universal Newsreel established a precedent which was as important and far-reaching as the one established in the Preisler case, when Grace Humiston sued the Universal and the Universal Newsreel for displaying her picture in its newsreel without her authorization.

The relentless monster in his search for a bride destroys all who get in his path. Karloff in a scene from "The Bride of Frankenstein."

"WEREWOLF OF LONDON" IS FINAL TITLE

AFTER considerable juggling, Universal has decided to retain the original title of the story that Robert Harris wrote for the newest Universal chiller. This original title was "Werewolf of London." This shocker on a variation of the "Dracula" formula, features Henry Hull and Warner Oland with a cast including Valerie Hobson, Spring Byington, Lester Matthews, Clark Williams and Charlotte Granville. It was directed by Stuart Walker and was completed last week at Universal City and is now in the hands of the cutters.

The story deals with a legend which is prevalent over Central Europe of a flower growing in the high Tibetan mountains which produces a strange transformation in human beings and also acts as an antidote against persons who are subject to the spell of the werewolf. This strange creature, wolf by night and human by day, is a phenomenon of which there have been numberless instances in Central Europe for the last five hundred years. It is the first time this strange creature has been exploited on the screen. Advices from the coast are enthusiastic over the way "Werewolf of London" has been filmed.

✚ ✚ ✚

"It Happened In N. Y." Peach of a Story

(Continued from Page 14)

pop-eyed rubbernecks just what they ought to hear.

The rest of the cast all do well, and the photography (George Robinson), sets (Charles Hall) and sound (Gilbert Kurland) are all bang-up.

Edmund Grainger, producer, should be very happy. And Alan Crosland, who directed the first sound picture, need have no fear that the younger fellows are passing him by. He is still making pace for most of them.

——Rob Wagner

NEWSREEL No. 338

PRESENTING MR. CECIL DILL

(Exclusive)

TRAVERSE CITY, MICH.—Using no other instrument than his own bare hands, Prof. Dill gives a program of musical selections chosen among popular favorites.

1 DEAD, MANY HURT IN RIOT

NEW YORK CITY.—Harlem's colored district is strewn with the wreckage of looted shops following a furious outburst of mob violence.

NATION GIVES LAND TO POOR

COLHUACAN, MEXICO.—Dozens of peasants receive title to individual plots of farm land as the Government moves to break up enormous estates once held by wealthy absentee landlords.

DIVES 165 FEET IN SAFETY

SEATTLE, WASH.—Ray Woods leaps from the dizzy height of the George Washington Memorial Bridge in a demonstration before 50,000 persons.

SKIDS IMPERIL AUTO RACERS

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—Sideslips and lost wheels interrupt the terrific pace of racing drivers, threatening death at every turn on the Legion Ascot Speedway.

PIRATES MAN NIGHT RESORT

MIAMI BEACH, FLA.—Buccaneers in the flashing rig of harsher days welcome the patrons and wait on table at the Southland's latest after-dinner rendezvous.

SIAMESE GET TINY WARSHIP

LONDON, ENGLAND.—The world's smallest torpedo boat zips at 55 miles an hour on the Thames in a trial spin before shipment to Siam.—Two Peruvian submarines put in at Philadelphia, Pa., for repairs.

CYCLIST HITS 80-MILE CLIP

(Exclusive)

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—A bike rider travels at a terrific pace with his flimsy machine rocketing along behind a roaring supercharged automobile.

WAITERS SHOW RUSH TACTICS

FRENCH LICK, IND.—Well-trained "garcons" at the French Lick Springs Hotel carry trays on their heads and a table over each arm in a race over rough territory.

CAMERA GUN TRAPS CROOKS

(Exclusive)

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—An unusual revolver takes motion pictures to aid in identifying criminals.

DASHIELL HAMMETT'S Crackin

Successor to "The Thin Man"!

EDMUND LOWE in

MR. DYNAMITE

With

JEAN DIXON

Esther Ralston • Verna Hillie • Joyce Compton
Mary Wallace • Victor Varconi • Matt McHugh

•

A Universal Picture presented by CARL LAEMMLE . . . Directed by ALAN CROSLAND . . . E. M. Asher, Associate Producer . . . .

Binnie Barnes, red headed, glamorous and gay, arrived in New York on the Berengaria and flew at once to the coast to play an important role in Universal's picture, "Diamond Jim."

ENLARGES "RAVEN" CAST

SEVERAL additions will be made today to the cast of "The Raven," now in production at Universal City. The new members of the cast of this Edgar Allan Poe chiller include Inez Courtenay, Arthur Hoyt, Maidel Turner, Spencer Charters and Ian Wolfe. Louis Friedlander is directing this Karloff-Lugosi starring picture from a screenplay by Jim Tully.

"FRISCO LADY" STARTS

WITH four more members of the cast to be chosen for "Frisco Lady," Murray Roth placed this L. G. Blochman story in production Monday at Universal City. Last week the cast included only Hugh O'Connell and Valerie Hobson. Maurice Pivar, the associate producer, has engaged Lyle Talbot for the hero role. Others include Ruthelma Stevens, Henry Armetta, Andy Devine, Leslie Fenton, E. Allyn Warren and Clay Clement.

Sally Eilers Starts "Alias Mary Dow"

SIX players have been selected to support Sally Eilers in her first Universal Picture, "Alias Mary Dow." They are Henry O'Neill, borrowed, Ray Milland, Lola Lane, Chic Chandler, Katherine Alexander and Clarence Muse. The story by William A. Johnston and Forrest Halsey was put in production Thursday under the direction of Kurt Neumann. Gladys Unger made the adaptation and Arthur Caesar the dialogue.

Binnie Barnes Arrives

Glamorous Star Will Have Big Role in "Diamond Jim" and "Delay in the Sun."

HOWEVER deliberate and langourous Binnie Barnes may be in England, she does everything in America on the fly. When she arrived here last year, she made the trip from London to Hollywood in six and one-half days. No sooner had she finished with her first picture, "There's Always Tomorrow," when she was rushed pall-mall into a second entitled "One Exciting Adventure," and then she was rushed home again to England.

All of a sudden, last week Universal discovered that it needed Binnie Barnes right away to play in "Diamond Jim." Miss Barnes had been playing in England in vaudeville and in pantomime and was rehearsing for "Life, Love and Laughter," which was scheduled to open in London early in March. She played it two weeks in the tryout theatres. By some characteristically fast movements, Miss Barnes extricated herself from the play and caught the Berengaria. The Berengaria arrived Wednesday a day late and on Thursday was rushed to Newark and again airplaned to Hollywood.

Has Two Big Roles

Miss Barnes has an important role to creat in "Diamond Jim," the novel by Parker Morell, which is only awaiting her appearance to get under way at Universal City. Edward Sutherland will make the production, with Edward Arnold playing the role of Diamond Jim Brady. Preston Sturges has been lending his dialogue talents to the script made by the author, Parker Morell, in association with Doris Malloy and Harry Clork.

Upon completion of "Diamond Jim," Binnie Barnes will undoubtedly be rushed into another story which was purchased especially for her. This story is "Delay in the Sun" the novel by Anthony Thorne and in it, she will be co-starred with Frank Lawton. Another possibility for her is "Storm Over the Andes" with Chester Morris.

Paul Kohner Here

On the Berengaria are also Paul Kohner and his wife, the former Lupita Tovar. Mr. Kohner has been engaged in production for Universal in Europe for the last two years. He is returning to Universal City with contracts of a number of stars, directors and writers with which he will establish a production unit at Universal City. Among these contracts are those of Marthe Eggerth, European motion picture and concert star, Anatol Litwak, who directed "Be Mine Tonight" and Willy Forst, who directed "Unfinished Symphony" in which Miss Eggerth appeared and who made "Masquerade" and is regarded as the best director in Europe today. He has also a contract with Ladislaus Fodor, European playwright.

Theatre Men Receive Carl Laemmle Money

R. G. Hewitt, Manager — All-Talking Pictures

STAR THEATRE
MILFORD, MICHIGAN

March 22, 1935

Universal Pictures Corp.,
Dear Mr. Laemmle or Uncle Carl, which ever you prefer:

Your letter of March 18th, with an enclosed check in the amount of $50.00, so completely shattered my idea of all producing companies, that it has taken me three days to recover wits enough to write and thank you very sincerely for your generosity. Words fail me in trying to express my thanks to you.

I have booked one of the new issues of GOING PLACES for April 16th, and will gladly write Mr. Ford the reaction to this subject.

Yours very truly,

R. G. HEWITT

WHEN Carl Laemmle announced through the Saturday Evening Post that he would pay money for suggestions to theatre men or people who worked in moving picture theatres, probably a lot of people who read it didn't believe it. The above letter is from R. G. Hewitt, manager of the Star Theatre of Milford, Michigan. He didn't believe it. But he does now. The suggestion he made had to do with the musical score used in connection with "Stranger Than Fiction." His suggestion was adopted and put into practice. Announcement of this prize will be made in the Saturday Evening Post of May 18th.

Another theatre man, who has just received a check from Carl Laemmle for a suggestion is C. Patrick Theriot operator in the Royal Theatre of Lafayette, Louisiana. Mr. Theriot has already received his check and the announcement of his winning the prize will be found in the May 4th issue of the Saturday Evening Post.

Mr. Theriot's suggestion was particularly pertinent to his line of work. The suggestion that he made was that the leader on the newsreel be numbered in the same standard fashion as that used on all other films which are shown in the theatre, instead of in the distinctive way in which the Universal Newsreel leader had heretofore been numbered. This suggestion was adopted by Charles Ford immediately, and has been put into operation for the benefit of all other operators who have found the difference between the numberings on the leaders confusing.

Claude Rains returns to New York on the Majestic, right in the middle of the run of "The Mystery of Edwin Drood" at the Rialto Theatre.

"RATTLING GOOD MURDER MYSTERY"

Says Toronto Telegram of "The Mystery of Edwin Drood"

"THE MYSTERY OF EDWIN DROOD" is something more than Dickens classic brought to life. It is a rattling good murder mystery, too, and therefore will appeal to that great majority of us who like chills and thrills sprinkled among our movies . . . Claude Rains is hauntingly sinister as the story's central character . . . His performance is so outstanding in the dismal role of Jasper . . . David Manners . . . Douglass Montgomery . . . Heather Angel, are all splendid in their parts.

"The Mystery of Edwin Drood" is hereby heartily recommended . . . it is mystery entertainment of a very high order.

THE MOST YOU EVER GOT!

- in rip-roaring action!
- in lightning-speed scenes!
- in red-hot Western thrills!

BUCK JONES

in

STONE of SILVER CREEK with Noel Francis • Peggy Campbell • Marian Shilling • Niles Welsh

A Universal Western Feature.
Directed by Nick Grinde

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY SHOWMANSHIP SECTION

A DIGEST OF THE BEST EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

OUR HAT'S off to—

TO the manager of the Majestic, Utica, N. Y. (sorry we haven't his name) for his four column by nineteen inch return engagement ad on "IMITATION OF LIFE." He headed the copy with: Another Glorious Triumph By The Star Who Won The 1934 Academy Film Award. A very sound piece of showmanship!

* * *

TO GUS LAMPE of the Eckel, Syracuse, N. Y., for the modern Venus contest he landed in the Syracuse Journal as part of his campaign for "Night Life of the Gods." Paper gave it plenty of space daily for a week. Professors from the University of Syracuse acted as judges! Gals sent in photos from which candidates were chosen. These appeared on theatre stage for final judging. Prizes were supplied by merchants and theatre. We'll wager it was a big help to the campaign, too!

* * *

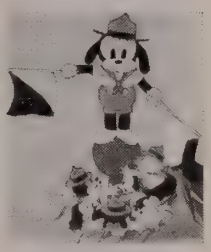
To RODNEY PANTAGES, manager of the Hollywood Pantages Theatre. He landed cards, as illustrated at the left, on 5,000 newsstands and in newsdealers' windows. Distributors of Liberty Magazine will work with you, too, when you play "Transient Lady."

* * *

To BILL APPLEGATE, manager of Century Circuit's Kingsway Theatre in Brooklyn, N. Y., for his "Good Fairy" campaign. Bill stressed the "don't-let-the-title-fool-you" angle with cards tacked all over Flatbush, and in special throwaways. Nice work, Bill!

In the week's wash—

Lotta things to hang on the line this week. And here's a good place to air them!



Wanna draw your attention to that new Oswald "DO A GOOD DEED." It's fast, funny, frothy, fascinating, frolicking — one of the top cartoons of the year. Full of magic and mischief. Especially interesting to boy scouts and girl scouts, and even greater for the grownups! You'll get special critic comment on this cartoon if you bring it to their attention. It's worth a break! And lobby display too!

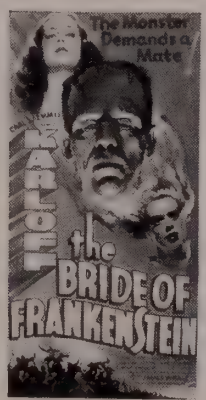
$ $ $ $ $

"EDWIN DROOD"—and Dickens. We didn't say much about Dickens in the "EDWIN DROOD" pressbook because it's a mystery and shocker yarn a little off the Dickens track. Those of you who have done big with "Copperfield" can emphasize this as another Dickens screen treat. In the words of the New York Times critic: "It's heartily recommended!"

$ $ $ $ $

Calling Dashiell Hammett fans! Calling "Thin Man" enthusiasts! Calling sleuth story seekers! "MR. DYNAMITE" is your man. And Edmund Lowe is "MR. DYNAMITE." And he has a new side kick—a wise dame who can hold her own when it comes to wise cracking and snappy conversation but gets terribly sore when other gals oggle her man! And before Mr. Eddie Lowe, as Dashiell Hammett's super sleuth, untangles his mystery in this picture, he's got a grand job set out for him to keep his new pal friendly.

$ $ $ $ $



Our hair is standing on end—our fingers are shaking—our eyes are popping—our heart is plopping—and omigosh how our knees are wobbling. The finishing touches are being put on the "BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN" campaign and it IS a campaign! Even the stenos around here are going around whispering, "I'm afraid to see it—but when can I?" Next week brings you the special "BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN" number of the Weekly. Set your favorite lobby space aside now for a big advance display. Get ready to invite the whole town to the nuptials! Wotta bride, boys—WHAT a bride!

. . . . . JOE WEIL

RAMPAGING "GODS" BALLYHOO STIRS "NIGHT LIFE" EXCITEMENT IN ST. LOUIS

IN their campaign for "Night Life of the Gods," Charles Kurtzman and Francis Curley of the Ambassador Theatre, St. Louis concentrated their efforts on the goofy—"it's simply c-r-A-z-y" angle. It was smart showmanship, plainly proved by the large crowds their exploitation attracted.

The robed young man in the picture at the bottom of the page provided plenty of campaign excitement. He carried five big wooden blocks, each of which had one of the words of the title lettered on it. With his outlandish dress and crazy antics he attracted crowds at busy corners and proceeded to lay the blocks on the sidewalk for all to see. At times the mobs stopped traffic.

One of the Ambassador's pieces of statuary as it was placarded, suggesting the goofiness of "Night Life of the Gods."

The chariot, shown at the top of the page was another interest provoker as it raced through the busy section of the town with its odd passengers. It toured the city, stopping at every busy intersection to give out heralds to the crowd that collected.

The theatre's thirty-two pieces of statuary, one of which is shown above, were placarded with signs that read: "What would you do if this statue suddenly came to life and ran down the main street—That's what happens in 'Night Life of the Gods'—It's simply c-r-A-z-y."

A three way tie-up that included the cooperation of the American Airways, the Globe-Democrat (newspaper) and the theatre, resulted in a swell boost for all. The Airline set aside a plane for the exclusive transportation of "Gods" and "Goddesses" and bannered it with picture title and theatre. The newspaper gave the stunt a pictorial and story break. The theatre had motion picture made of the plane, for use with the regular trailer.

Martha Washington coffee was served to patrons in the lobby through a tie-up with the local distributors. Cards referred to the drink as the nectar of the 'Gods.'

Five hundred stock accessory snipes were used around town to tease the title.

Ten thousand roto heralds were distributed in the lobbies of other theatres of the Fanchon and Marco circuit by pretty girls dressed as "Goddesses." Duke Hickey, Universal exploiteer, assisted.

The chariot and its tunic-garbed passengers used by the Ambassador Theatre as a ballyhoo. Heralds were distributed whenever large crowds collected.

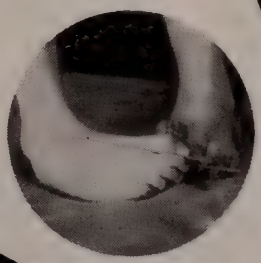
Advance lobby set-piece placed in a spot in the Ambassador Theatre visible to all entering.

$1500 CASH PRIZES AWARDED

Here Are The Winners In The Universal–Quaker Oats Co. "Imitation" Contest

FOURTEEN showmen have been awarded cash prizes totaling $1,500.00 in the contest conducted by the Quaker Oats Company for the best campaigns on "Imitation of Life." Announcement of the winning managers has just been made by the Quaker Oats Company. They are: Al Spindler, Appleton Theatre, Appleton, Wisc., first prize of $500.00; Lou Richmond, National Theatre, Boston, Mass., second prize of $250.00; Wm. J. Soutter, Fox Palace Theatre, Wichita, Kans., third prize of $150.00; E. M. Hart, Strand Theatre, Plainfield, N. J., fourth prize of $100.00; and the following ten, fifty dollars each: E. A. Patchem, Stuart Theatre, Lincoln, Nebraska; W. E. Baty, Jr., Palace Theatre, Ft. Worth, Texas; Barney Dubinsky, Missouri Theatre, St. Joseph, Mo.; M. M. Mesher, Winter Garden, Seattle, Washington; Manager, Fox Mayan Theatre, Denver, Colorado; Herbert Bloom, Loew's Olympia, Worcester, Mass.; A. J. Kalberer, Paramount Theatre, Ft. Wayne, Indiana; J. H. Black, Capitol Theatre, Calgary, Canada; F. E. Petch, Capitol Theatre, Regina, Canada; Ray Tubman, Capitol Theatre, Ottawa, Can.

A NOVEL series of one-reelers, each compiled from oddities the world over. People and things: the rare, the quaint, the unusual and the extraordinary!



Always fascinating and educational entertainment!

STRANGER than FICTION

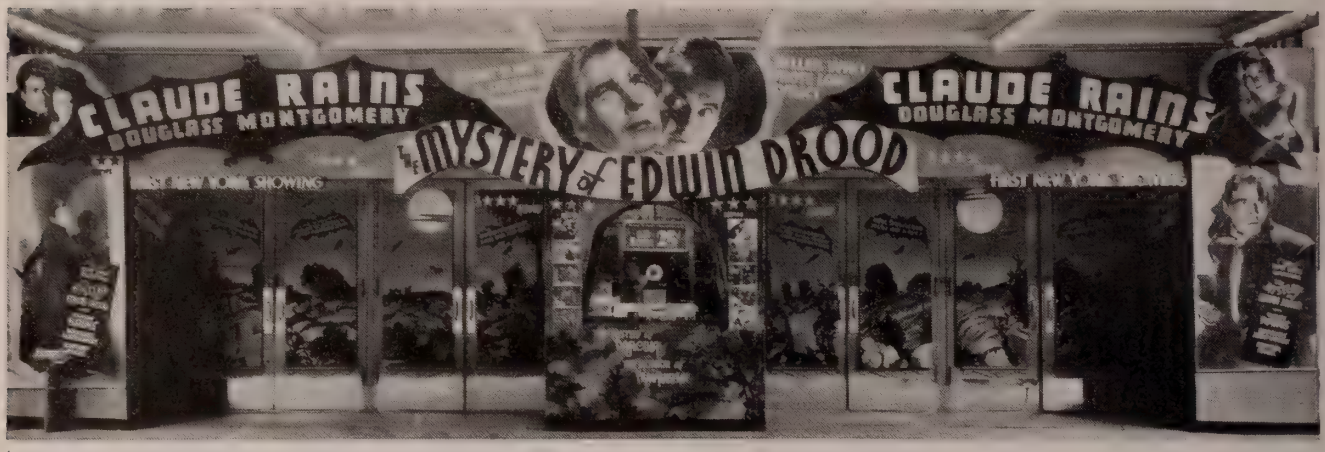
Produced and Released by
UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.

RIALTO, N. Y. GIVES "DROOD" SMASH FRONT!



BATS, with spread wings, full moons and desolate church-yards, were the dominating notes in Arthur Mayer's front display on the Rialto Theatre, N. Y. for his engagement of "The Mystery of Edwin Drood." Giant photograph enlargements, highly colored, provided side pieces and the startling display over the box-office. The bats on the doors carried catch lines. Flasher lights in eerie colors animated the eyes of the giant bats and were used behind the cut-out heads over the box-office.

The theme used in the front decoration was carried out in the newspaper ads. Mid-town New York was plastered with accessory snipes and window cards. Letters were sent to grammer and high-schools touching on the Dickens unfinished novel angle, but stressing the drama and mystery of the picture.

CROSS COUNTRY WITH THE ADS

(1.) Double column x 8" from Strand, Akron, Ohio. (2.) Two column x 7¾" from Orpheum; San Francisco, Calif. (3.) Three column x 2¼" from Tower, Kansas City, Mo. (4.) Double column x 5½" from Rialto, New York City.

OSWALD the GREAT RABBIT steps out with another big laughing role in "ELMER THE GREAT DANE"

From

UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.

ROCKEFELLER CENTER
NEW YORK CITY

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
Paid
Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

ROBERT B WENNER
22 CROSS ST
MALDEN MASS

Printed in U.S.A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

VOL. 36, APRIL 13, 1935 NO. 18

MR. DYNAMITE

Coming with a BANG!

EDMUND LOWE

A BOMBARDMENT OF L

AUGHTER AND MYSTERY!

CARL LAEMMLE PRESENTS

Edmund LOWE

in DASHIELL HAMMETT'S Successor to "THE THIN MAN"!

. . . With JEAN DIXON, Esther Ralston, Verna Hillie, Joyce Compton, Mary Wallace, Victor Varconi and Matt McHugh . . . A UNIVERSAL PICTURE directed by ALAN CROSLAND . . . E. M. Asher, Associate Producer

WHEN A NEWSREEL

No. 814 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

Cecil Dill is one of the repeated reasons why the Universal Newsreel is the smartest newsreel in the business.

You never heard of Cecil Dill until Universal Newsreel No. 338 hit the movie world right in the nose.

You may forget his name when you grown old and feeble, but you will never forget what a riot he caused in your theatre, if you had him.

He created it in a newsreel—not in a comedy or in a feature picture, but in the Universal Newsreel No. 338.

Who is Cecil Dill?

In two words, he is Cecil Dill. Listen to his story. He lives out in Michigan, which is one of the United States. One day he was out in very cold weather. Believe it or not, his hands became cold.

To get them warm, he squeezed them together. Imagine his surprise when a tune squeaked out of his squeezing hands! Yes, bless your heart, a tune! True, it was not an aria from Aida nor even from Faust — but a modern, up-to-date, heart-throbbing tune!

He squeezed his hands together (or should I say squoze) and out came a tune!

This was more interesting to the nearby Universal Newsreel cameraman than all the Elks parades and all the football games and all the tenement fires and all the big bloods put together.

IS A WHOLE SHOW!

He photographed Cecil Dill in the act of squooshing his hands together. He used our best sound apparatus to record the sound of the tuneful squooshing.

We featured Cecil Dill and his frozen mitts in our Newsreel No. 338.

And what was the result? Nothing, except that a newsreel CAN be by far the best bet on any program if it is smart. The world has rocked with laughter as fast as it has seen Cecil Dill and his operatic hands.

Moral:—Use the newsreel which is more than merely a recording of deadly events. Use the newsreel which packs showmanship into every number. Use the newsreel which, time after time, gives the audience the biggest kick of the whole show — whether a thrill or a laugh or a kick of some other sort.

The average newsreel is just a newsreel. But the Universal newsreel is a whole show in itself. Book the whole show every issue!

Carl Laemmle

EDMUND LOWE

as "Dynamite;" dapper, deadly — and funny!

JEAN DIXON

as Lynne, Dynamite's side-kick; always wise, always cool —and always hungry!

ESTHER RALSTON

as Charmion; very greedy, plenty tricky—but not tricky enough for Dynamite!

VERNA HILLIE

as Mona; she almost cost Dynamite his life — but it was worth it!

"LOADED WITH LAUGHS AND SUS

MOTION PICTURE DAILY

"Mister Dynamite"

(Universal)

HOLLYWOOD, March 28.—Marked by sparkling dialogue and farcical situations, this good mystery comedy loaded with laughs and suspense does credit to Dashiell Hammett's original. Thoroughly entertaining all the way, it seems certain to click in most spots. Three murders and a suicide lift it out of the ordinary mystery category with the solution equally involved, however.

Edmund Lowe, who runs out of town regularly for shady activities with his companion, Jean Dixon, also slightly shady, annexes fat revenues for knowing lots and talking little. When Verna Hillie is suspected of murder, however, Lowe changes his tune and tries to solve a triple murder legitimately.

He finally finds himself in a tri-cornered romance with Miss Dixon, Miss Hillie and Esther Ralston, with the women doing most of the romancing, Lowe using them to solve the crimes. Miss Ralston finally is found guilty of murdering her husband, Victor Varconi, and the other victims.

Miss Hillie's heart is broken when Lowe gets shipped out of town again with Miss Dixon, which is all right with the latter duo.

Alan Crosland's direction is keyed well for suspense and laughs, with all performances good, as is George Robinson's photography.

Production Code Seal No. 692. Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

PENSE . . . . .

CERTAIN to CLICK"!

THE Hollywood REPORTER

UNIVERSAL'S 'MR. DYNAMITE' SUREFIRE MYSTERY COMEDY

Edmund Lowe And Jean Dixon Grand

"MISTER DYNAMITE"
(Universal)

Producer.....E. M. Asher
Direction .....Alan Crosland
Original .....Dashiell Hammett
Screen Play: Doris Malloy and Harry Clork.
Photography .....George Robinson
Cast: Edmund Lowe, Jean Dixon, Esther Ralston, Victor Varconi, Verna Hillie, Minor Watson, Robert Gleckler, Jameson Thomas, Matt McHugh, G. Pat Collins, Greta Meyer, Bradley Page, James Burtis.

Here is a fast-moving, wise-cracking bundle of entertainment that fairly whizzes across the screen to establish a new character in murder-mystery melodrama which should rival the popularity of the "Thin Man." From the same pen, that of Dashiell Hammett, "Mister Dynamite" is sure-fire for box-offices anywhere. If the customers fail to yell for further adventures of this slightly-shady detective, we miss our guess.

The plot is involved, as are all Hammett yarns. Yet with the aid of a dandy screen play by Doris Malloy and Harry Clork, and the speedy direction of Alan Crosland, there isn't a dull moment. Three murders are committed. A gambler, his daughter and sundry assorted characters are involved. The local police are baffled. Then Mister Dynamite solves the case.

An unusual fellow, this Mister Dynamite. His methods of working are unorthodox. He is in disrepute in all the cities he visits. He works for the fee that is in the case, not for glory, for love, or for Yale. Clues are disregarded. False leads he ignores. He wastes no time—his or yours.

Edmund Lowe plays Mister Dynamite for a solid personal hit. The part is a perfect fit and he gives it a lusty reality. Jean Dixon, as his secretary, runs Lowe a dead heat for first honors. How this girl can handle wise-cracks!

The others are uniformly excellent, although limited. Robert Gleckler is a standout as a police detective, with James Burtis and Bradley Page fellow members of the force. Esther Ralston is very good as the estranged wife of the pianist, Victor Varconi, who is capital. Minor Watson, Verna Hillie, Jameson Thomas all do well by their assignments. Photography and production top-notch.

There is no love interest—praise Allah—in "Mister Dynamite," but there is plenty of what it takes to send audiences out singing praises.

"SURE-FIRE FOR BOX-OFFICES ANYWHERE"!

FILM PREVIEWS

Mister Dynamite

Universal production and release. Directed by Alan Crosland. Screen play by Doris Malloy and Harry Clork. From original story by Dashiell Hammett. Photographed by George Robinson. Associate producer, E. M. Asher. Cast: Edmund Lowe, Jean Dixon, Esther Ralston, Victor Varconi, Verna Hillie, Minor Watson, Robert Gleckler, Jameson Thomas, Matt McHugh, G. Pat Collins, Greta Meyer, Bradley Page, James Burtis. Previewed at Pantages, March 27. Running time, 69 mins.

Highlighted by a fast tempo and decidedly breezy lines, 'Mr. Dynamite' provides sparkling entertainment as a murder mystery farce. Picture is geared to click merrily with any audience, and will undoubtedly build in any spot through word of mouth propaganda.

Lead is a typical Edmund Lowe part, with the latter wisecracking his way through as a smart copper who had been tossed off the police force for his taking ways. Jean Dixon proves an excellent running mate for Lowe as his wife, and both have many chances in the dialog layout to hit the high spots of laughs.

Alan Crosland turned in an efficient job of direction, and kept the story moving at a rapid pace. Script by Doris Malloy and Harry Clork was bulging with laugh lines and substantial wisecracks that strike the happy medium of being neither highbrow nor too rough.

Cast has been finely balanced, with Verna Hillie, new Universal contract player, turning in a sincere job as the ingenue. Minor Watson and Robert Gleckler were particularly effective in strong supporting roles. Esther Ralston and Victor Varconi also okay in major parts.

Victor Varconi, finishing a concert tour in San Francisco, has an eye for the ladies, and focuses attentions on Verna Hillie, daughter of Minor Watson, operator of a swank gambling layout. Pianist's wife, Esther Ralston, countenances his flirtations as long as substantial allowances are forthcoming. In Watson's gaming room, a young man hits a lucky streak at the roulette table, cashes in, and is then killed.

Police start to unravel the mystery without success, but with suspicion directed at Watson. Edmund Lowe, accompanied by Jean Dixon, is unceremoniously asked to leave the small town he decided to make his home when the local gendarmes discovered he was too smart and slick. Reading of the murder mystery in the big city where he had been tossed off the detective squad, he is on his way to handle investigations for Watson, deciding that move himself.

Lowe moves into a swank hotel, getting the expected retainer from Watson. Next night, he investigates the Varconi home, and discovers many others had preceded him. Vernie Hillie is listening to Varconi playing the organ, when the pianist is shot. Suspicion is centered on several persons by the coppers.

Through the succeeding jumble of charges and suspicions, Lowe is successful in solving the crimes with laughs aplenty in the process.

Team of Lowe and Jean Dixon, predicated on their work here, could be made a permanent and successful tieup for a succeeding series of marital comedy-dramas. Pair crossfire their lines and wisecracks effectively, which could easily click in two or three features annually.

Photography throughout, handled by George Robinson, was excellent.

ARKLING ENTERTAINMENT!

Geared to click merrily with every audience"!

Unique Mat to Publicize "MR. DYNAMITE"

The illustration above can be had in mat form by any theatre which wants an unusual and striking feature which advertises "Mr. Dynamite," outside the advertising columns. See the press book on this splendid picture. You will find this press book packed with interesting exploitation material, and ticket selling advertisements.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, N. Y. City
Universal Pictures Corp.
Copyrighted 1935
(All Rights Reserved)
APRIL 13, 1935
Vol. 36 No. 18

The Preview Parade of UNIVERSAL PICTURES

DASHIELL HAMMETT

. . . his "MR. DYNAMITE" muscles into the movies . . .

After the third murder in the same mansion, the ambulance interne opines, "It would be a good idea to make a regular stop here."

Which identifies the author of "MR. DYNAMITE" as Dashiell Hammett and establishes a comedy successor to "The Thin Man."

JEAN DIXON

His first original for the screen, this detective-mystery-romance pops and crackles with Dashiell Hammett action, Dashiell Hammett come backs, Dashiell Hammett swashbuckling heroics.

"MR DYNAMITE" takes manslaughter lightly and love-making seriously. Nobody, as a matter of fact, takes the homicides seriously except the corpses.

Edmund Lowe, in the title role of this-tongue-in-cheek entertainment looks like Sergeant Quirt in civvies. Three blondes with him are stunners: Jean Dixon, Esther Ralston and Verna Hillie.

We warrant that "MR. DYNAMITE" will pull more repeaters than any picture you've played this season. It's the type of thing patrons must attend twice in order to catch the topping wisecracks submerged by loud laughter.

Tip off your ushers to keep a seat reserved for you in the rear of the house. You'll want to see this one, yourself, as often as you can. To miss "MR. DYNAMITE" would be a crime!

JACTHALL

✚ ✚ ✚

CHARLOTTE WINS LAEMMLE CONTEST

IN the great contest celebrating Carl Laemmle's Anniversary Jubilee, the results have just been announced by J. R. Grainger, general manager of distribution for Universal. The Eastern Division won over the Western Division, and the Charlotte, N. C. exchange tops the list of exchanges throughout the country. In order then come Winnipeg, Toronto, Washington, D. C., Atlanta and

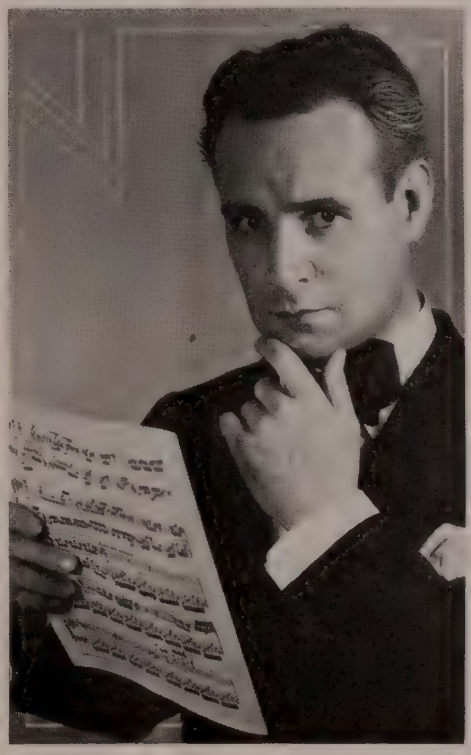
(Continued on Page 25)

BACK STAGE WITH "MR. DYNAMITE"

Jean Dixon, whose infectious smile and wise-cracking comments run throughout "Mr. Dynamite," continues to smile even after cameras have stopped grinding.

Verna Hillie, screen newcomer, listens to an amusing stage experience related by Jean Dixon, with Alan Crosland.

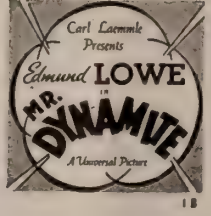
Esther Ralston making up for her role of the mysterious Mrs. Dvorak, the musicion's wife, in "Mr. Dynamite."

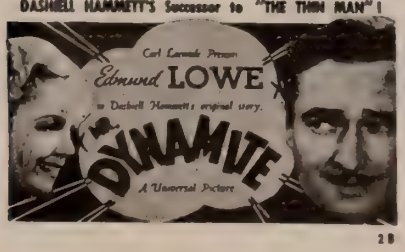


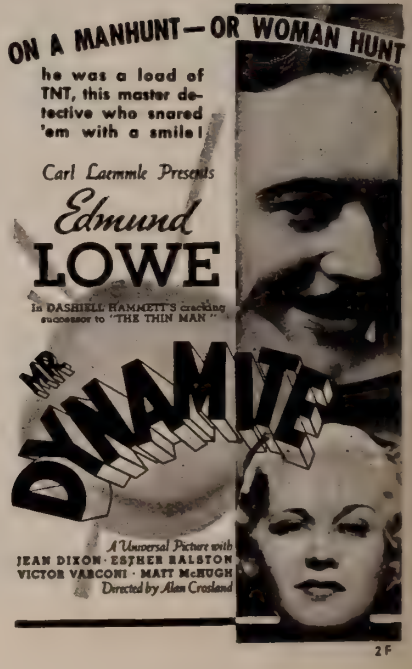
Victor Varconi studying the score of the song which brings him death as the philandering musician in "Mr. Dynamite."

Verna Hillie, who looks and acts exactly like a society debutante, applying eye-shading for role in "Mr. Dynamite."

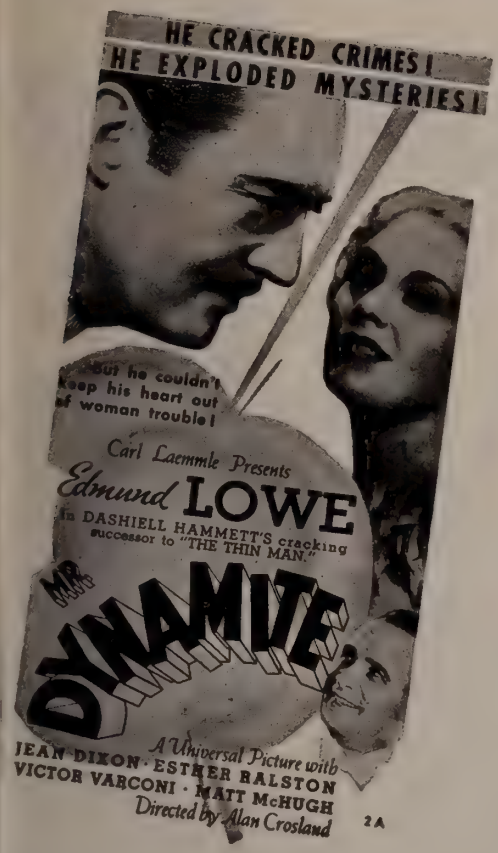
EVERY AD MEANS TH

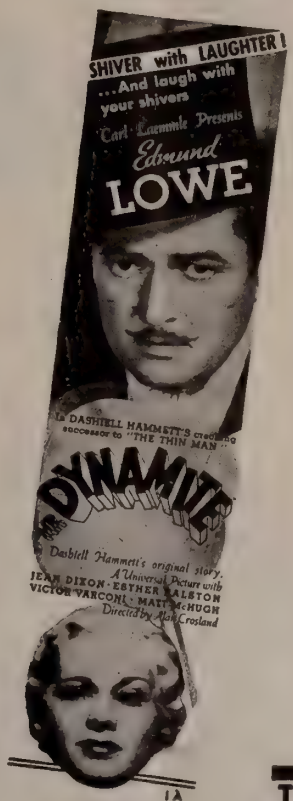


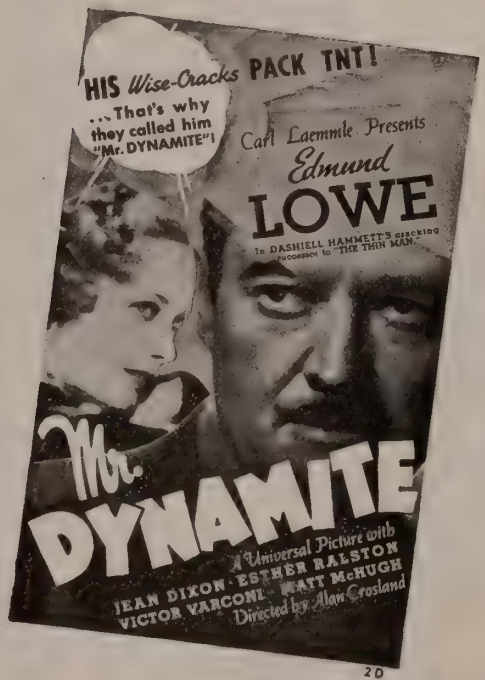




USANDS OF PATRONS!







Dollars WILL THE praise

Carl Laemmle presents

Edmund LOWE

in DASHIELL HAMMETT'S Successor to his "THE THIN MAN"!

MR. WA

CLINK because IS GOLDEN!

MITE

. . . With JEAN DIXON, Esther Ralston, Verna Hillie, Joyce Compton, Mary Wallace, Victor Varconi and Matt McHugh . . . A UNIVERSAL PICTURE directed by ALAN CROSLAND . . . E. M. Asher, Associate Producer

AUTHOR OF "THE THI IN "MR. DYNAMITE"

Photo by Freulich

Edmund Lowe as "Mr. Dynamite"

"THE THIN MAN" discovered a great author for moving pictures in the person of Dashiell Hammett. Strangely enough, one has to mention "The Thin Man"' for most people to know who Dashiell Hammett is, but with "Mr. Dynamite" on the screen as his fourth moving picture, Dashiell Hammett moves into the front rank of screen writers, as he has moved into the front rank of the mystery writers of literature.

No wonder Dashiell Hammett can write mystery stories about detectives. He was one himself. He was even a Pinkerton detective. He left school at the age of fourteen to become a news boy. He was success-

Mr. Dynamite and his assistant, Jean Dixon, discover the first of the incredible murders.

LOWE CREATES NEW DETECTIVE, "MR. DYNAMITE"

WHEN Dashiell Hammett, author of "The Thin Man," wrote "Mr. Dynamite" for Universal, he did two things. He created a tremendously interesting photoplay for the first. Secondly, he created a new detective character which fits Edmund Lowe like a glove. 'Mr. Dynamite" is an original creation of an entirely new sort of detective, utterly human and without hokus pokus.

If it needed any proving, "The Thin Man" proved that Dashiell Hammett is the best writer of mystery stories today. "Mr. Dynamite" demonstrates this fact anew. "Mr. Dynamite" is so good that he is going to live in a series of new detective stories in which Edmund Lowe is likely to star for Universal. Harry Clork and Doris Malloy are already hard at work on one.

Verna Hillie, ...the heiress,... trying to bite her way out of an alibi.

ALAN CROSLAND

RING up another for Alan Crosland, who started in moving pictures back in 1912 in the days of the old Edison Studio in New York. Some of the stars he worked with were Elsie Ferguson, Alice Brady and Erich von Stroheim. Then came the war and Crosland enlisted in the photographic corps. In 1925 Crosland joined Warners

MAN" SCORES AGAIN with EDMUND LOWE ively a messenger boy, a machinist, a stevedore, a writer for pulp magazines, a detective and a soldier in the World War. He was born in Maryland, raised in Philadelphia, became a detective in San Francisco, a writer in New York, and a screen writer in Hollywood.

Dashiell Hammett is six feet, three, and weighs one hundred and thirty pounds. He has prematurely white hair, a compelling personality and writes from a wide and first-hand experience. He is an omnivorous reader but never reads anyone else's mystery stories.

Wounded in the World War, and apparently doomed to a life of invalidism, he achieved a recovery through skillful surgery and amazing will power until now he is a crack tennis and pingpong player. While in the hospital, he started writing detective stuff for the pulp magazines, and was an immediate success. Without the intercession of an agent, he sent his first novel, "Red Harvest," to a publisher, cold, and was amazed to have it accepted immediately. Alexander Woollcott calls him his favorite detective writer. Sinclair Lewis says "Dashiell Hammett is undoubtedly the best of American detective story writers," and Dorothy Parker says "anybody who doesn't read him misses much of modern America."

Such is the author of "Mr. Dynamite."

Alan Crosland has made a swell movie from Harry Clark and Dorris Malboy's screen play.

Photo by Pinchot

Dashiell Hammett, author of "Mr. Dynamite" and of "The Thin Man"

Mr. Dynamite discovers the location of the key to the death dealing machinery in the floor.

IVERS A KNOCKOUT

and remained there until last year. He directed the first talkie, "The Jazz Singer," also "Glorious Betsy," "Don Juan," "General Crack," "On with the Show," "Viennese Nights" and many others.

He came with Universal to direct this year. He is under long time contract and he directed "Mr. Dynamite"

Jean Dixon has devised a swell hiding place for the hunted heiress.

Here are the two people about whom the following jingles in "The Bride of Frankenstein" are written, the Monster and his Mate

The Monster had a cruel Bride,
Her heart was cold as snow,
And everywhere the Monster went,
The Bride would never go.

B. L.

•

Sing a song of six-pence
Exhibitors start to cry
But play the Bride of Frankenstein
And good times—bye and bye

L. K.

•

"Where are you going, my Monster Maid?"
"I'm going a-wooing, Kind Sir," she said.
"May I go with you, my Monster Maid?"
"You may go to the devil, Kind Sir!" she said.

B. L.

•

Little drops of water, mixed with blood and hay,
Make the mighty Monster and his fiancee.

L. K.

One monster was bad enough,
But now we'd better hide,
As it will be especially tough,
The Monster has a Bride.

E. H.

•

The monster spoke of love undying
For a mate his heart was sighing
Yet the monsteress sat there crying
For a Gable she was a trying

L. K.

•

There was an old Monster who lived in a mill,
His favorite occupation was to plunder and to kill,
He wanted a Bride, so they made him a Mate,
And she turned on the Monster in terror and hate.

B. L.

THE GREATEST REVIEW EVER WRITTEN OF THE GREATEST SHOCKER EVER MADE

(From Variety Preview April 8)

THIS tops all previous horror pictures in artistry and popular entertainment values, and credits Carl Laemmle, Jr., with a smash hit as his first offering under his new production status.

Money making history of its predecessor, Universal's 'Frankenstein,' in which Karloff created the title role and which James Whale also directed, offers a gauge as to its box office probabilities. By adding a bride to complement the monster—a laboratory-created Eve for the grisly Adam—the more skillfully produced sequel has widened the appeal with added exploitation and marquee ammunition.

Daring sex implications have been carefully handled within limits of censorship and good taste and spell one of the excellent showmanship qualities of the picture.

Production is loaded with merit in presentation, performance, writing and direction. But first and foremost, without detracting in the least from the other credits, the picture is a triumph of technical skill, with John Mescall its presiding genius at the camera.

Mescall herewith puts himself securely among the top flight of his craft as an imaginative, creative artist with the lens. His use of physical props, the lighting, the striking emphasis of the macabre and fantastic and the process shots to build the horrific mood is an extraordinary piece of mechanical spell-binding. Outstanding, too, is the contribution of Charles D. Hall in the art direction. Sets and atmosphere are certain to get highest critical praise, since they are such an essential part in building the terrific suspense and awesome support of the players.

Cast is superb, individually and as a unit. Karloff does a striking job in keeping his role as the Frankenstein creation on the fantastic borderland between the ruthless laboratory monster and a bewildered, pathetic being with human impulses. His makeup is not too bizarre. In contrast to his insensate killing fury when crossed, his scenes with the hermit who befriends him and teaches him like a child to talk are emotionally very moving. Similarly, his strange excitement in the presence of Elsa Lanchester, the synthetic Eve created out of the mad scientific passions of Frankenstein and the even more ghoulish Doctor Pretorious, is impressively played.

The Dr. Pretorious creation by Ernest Thesinger is extraordinary in its cunning and power and intensity—a flawless piece of psychopathic characterization, haunting and diabolic.

Colin Clive effectively plays Frankenstein, beset by the monster he regrets creating as he plans to renounce his blasphemous meddling with life's secrets during his honeymoon with Valerie Hobson. Miss Hobson's alluring femininity and the contrasting normalcy of her role, excellently played for its full value, is an agreeable contribution. Elsa Lanchester invests her role as the monster's intended mate with eerie power, her scene as she comes to life from other human fragments to face Karloff being a stunning conception. O. P. Heggie plays well the blind hermit who gives the monster temporary asylum. Dwight Frye gives his part skillful importance as the escaped gallows bird Thesinger uses in his ghoulish chores. E. E. Clive injects scarecrow humor in his smartly played burgomaster. Una O'Connor leaves memorable impression and rates high distinction for her frantic, gibbering display of terror, running like a dreadful oracle through the play. Fine bits are contributed by Reginald Barlow, Mary Gordon, Anne Darling, Douglas Walton, Gavin Gordon, Lucien Prival.

James Whale turns in an ace job of direction, measuring his pace and suspense for terrific climax when the monster destroys himself, his intended bride and their creators by blowing up the dark castle of necromancy. Direction also keeps characters consistent, drama tight and within acceptable taste for mass or class audiences.

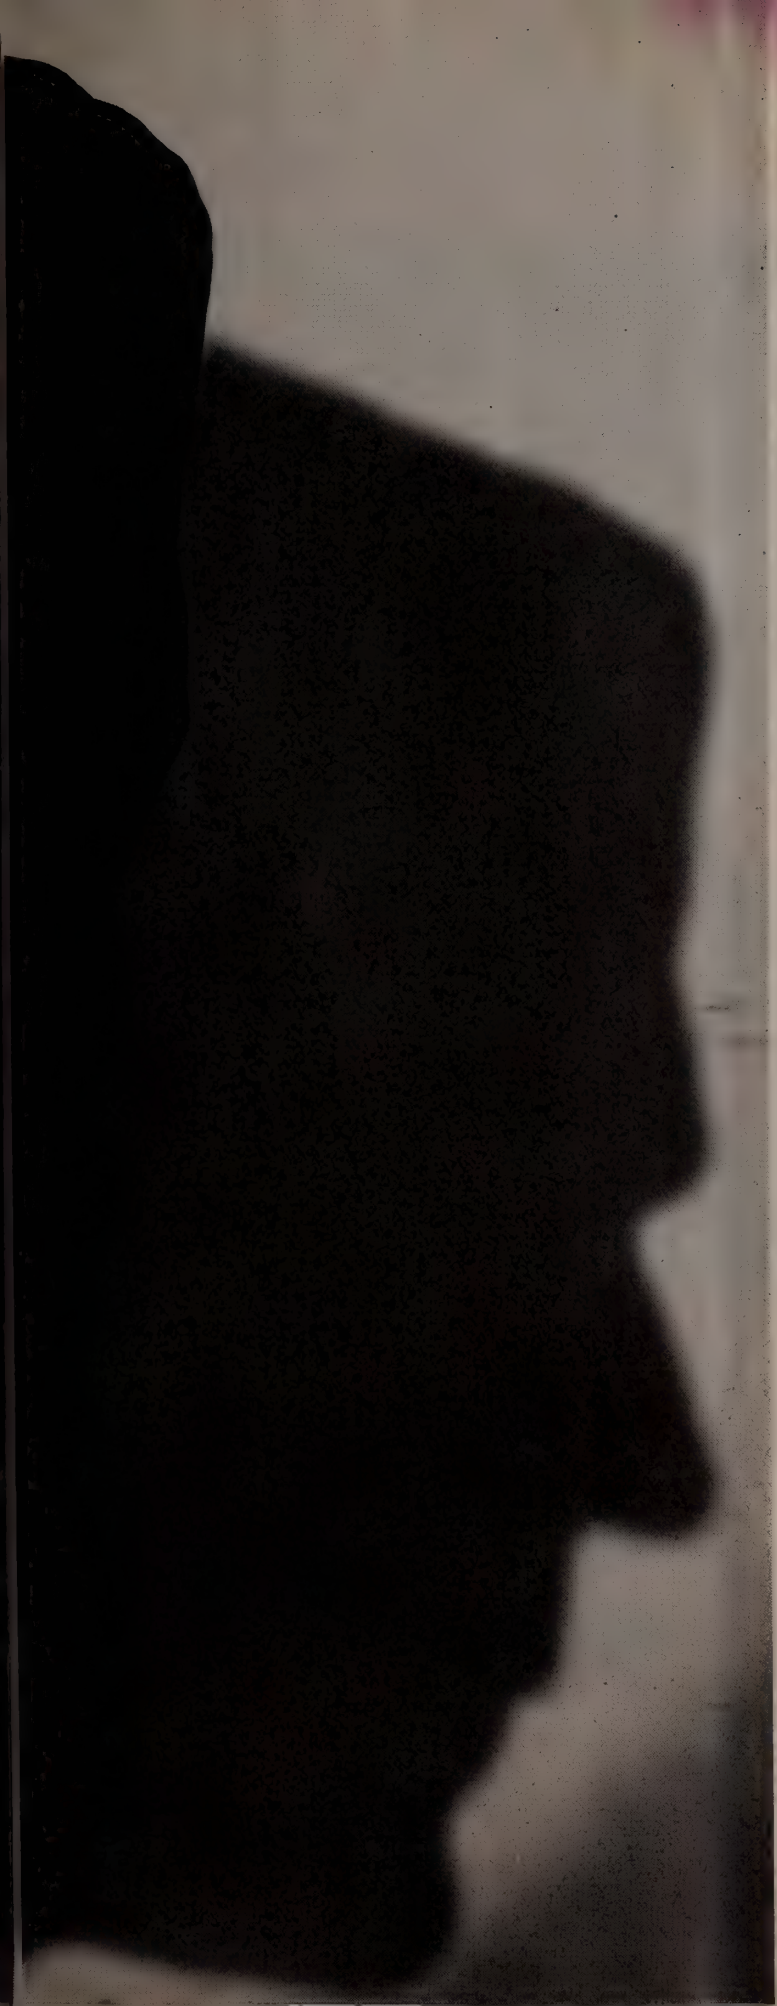
Original screen play by John L. Balderston and William Hurlbut is exceptionally fine writing, cunningly contrived for general entertainment, and offering full fill of legitimate theatrical chills without being too abhorrent. Their guidance, together with the superlative technical contributions from every department, make of the final action in the tower of doom the most magnificent mechanical scene within recollection—awesome as a page from Genesis. Laboratory here becomes one of the stars of the picture in its absorbing use of device, ably abetted by Franz Waxman's musical score and Constantin Bakaleinkoff's musical direction.

SEE:

Motion Picture Daily
April 9th

Hollywood Reporter
April 8th

For Other Reviews on
"Bride of Frankenstein"



And so it came to pass that Universal gave unto the Monster a Bride— "The Bride of Frankenstein"!

A CARL LAEMMLE, JR. PRODUCTION

USED UNIVERSAL 24 YEARS

• George Rosing, proprietor and manager of the Roosevelt Theatre, Buffalo, New York, at his desk.

Universal product has always proven to be a staple and consistent business-getter for me. I have used it twenty-four years. I wish Mr. Laemmle a splendid and profitable anniversary and many more years of usefulness to this business.*—George Rosing

AFTER twenty-four years of using Universal product, Mr. George Rosing in a letter to Mr. Laemmle has made the above statement, which accounts in no small measure for the remarkable success that he has enjoyed in Buffalo. Mr. Rosing started in the moving picture business at the age of fifteen. He began at the bottom. He learned all about bill posting, ushering in the theatre, helping out on the stage, and taking money at the ticket window when the cashier went to dinner. The next year found him in New Orleans, with a keen desire to become a showman and every evidence that he had splendid aptitude for his prospective life work.

Then came an offer to go to Buffalo to operate the Fillmore Theatre, located on Fillmore Avenue near Broadway. The theatre had been losing money and it was young Mr. Rosing's job to put it on a paying basis. He did. One of the first moves he made in the direction of bringing a profit to the theatre was to sign a Universal contract with Art Schmidt, who represented Universal in Buffalo in 1911. He has been a consistent user of Universal films ever since.

Two years later Mr. Rosing bought a one-third interest in the Fillmore Theatre for $125.00 and became one of the partners. Three months later, he turned an unexpected profit. It seems the theatre received a refund of $900.00 from the Electric Light Company. He had his investment back, and $175.00 in addition.

Mr. Rosing, sitting at his desk in his private office at the Roosevelt Theatre, which he built in 1927, recounted with amusement some of the interesting sidelights on the moving picture business in 1912.

"The old Fillmore Theatre, which, incidentally, has now been converted into a United States Post Office, was quite a theatre in those days. It seated nine hundred without a balcony, and was situated in a thickly populated Polish section of the city. We had to take precautions against a number of things. For instance, we had a bouncer with a club and a $16.70 a week operator who carries the films from the exchange.

• Interior of the Roosevelt, a splendid, modern theatre of 2,000 seats, of which Buffalo can well be proud.

• The Fillmore Theatre, in which Mr. Rosing purchased a one-third interest, after he put it on a paying basis as manager at $15. a week.

Mr. Rosing is married and has three boys, of whom he is very proud. One is in the automobile business, one is a star football and basketball player at the University of Buffalo, and the other is still a youngster going to school.

George Rosing of the Roosevelt Theatre in Buffalo signed his first Universal contract in 1911. Universal has been a standby with him ever since. Read his congratulations to Carl Laemmle.

CHARLOTTE WINS LAEMMLE CONTEST

(Continued from Page 12)

Memphis, where a great celebration will take place tomorrow night.

This celebration is one of a number which have been inspired by the Carl Laemmle Anniversary Jubilee. It is to take place in the Gayoso Hotel in Memphis. It takes the form of the biggest banquet Memphis film circles have ever seen, and its object is to honor William Sipe, manager of Universal's Memphis exchange. Mr. Sipe is celebrating his twentieth anniversary with Universal. The banquet will be arranged by a committee of exhibitors in the Memphis territory, of which Howard Waugh, manager of the Warners Theatres in that zone, is chairman.

Another event which is an outgrowth of the Carl Laemmle Anniversary Jubilee is the celebration of Morris Joseph's twenty-first year with Universal in New Haven.

G. W. Wilkinson
Wallingford Theatre
Wallingford, Conn.

A RECORD FROM CONNECTICUT

CONNECTICUT'S oldest and most colorful showman joins the parade of exhibitors honoring Mr. Laemmle on the occasion of his Anniversary Jubilee. This showman is G. W. Wilkinson, who owns and operates the Wilkinson Theatre of Wallingford, Conn. Although he is as up-to-date and successful a showman as there is in New England, his experience dates back to thirty-five years ago when he started a show house in the top of the old Town Hall in Wallingford, where he was born and where his ancestors have played a dominant part in the military, executive and social life of the State of Connecticut.

Wilkinson's Show, in the Town Hall, was three stories above the street level, and it was often necessary for him to take heavy scenery and even horses up four flights of stairs in order to entertain the audiences which flocked to be entertained in Wilkinson's theatre. When the movies came in, Mr. Wilkinson turned his show shop into a movie house and operated it until the War came along. Then he built the present Wilkinson Theatre of twelve hundred seats, which is today the theatrical center of the fine old town of Wallingford.

Though Mr. Wilkinson is still active, it is his son, G. W. Wilkinson, Jr., vice president of the Wallingford Bank, who acts as manager of the Wilkinson Theatre, today, and Wilkinson, Jr., has all of his sire's originality of thought, showmanship and knowledge of show business.

In the letter which Mr. Wilkinson wrote to Mr. Laemmle, and which is reproduced on this page, he not only acknowledges twenty consecutive contracts for Universal pictures, but twenty consecutive contracts signed with the same exchange manager, Mr. Morris Joseph. Here is not only a record for an exhibitor, but for an exchange man.

Dick Scaglione
Plaza Theatre
Tampa, Florida

PLAZA THEATRE
Dick Scaglione, Manager
TAMPA, FLORIDA

February 8, 1935

Dear Mr. Laemmle:

I want to congratulate you on your twenty-ninth Anniversary. I'm not an old showman, but in all my three years in show business I have been treated fairly by UNIVERSAL. I have found that UNIVERSAL makes the best pictures suited to my type of patrons.

I want to thank too all the staff of the Atlanta branch, and also your Florida salesman, Mr. Harry Williams.

Very truly yours,
DICK SCAGLIONE
Plaza Theatre

WILKINSON THEATRE
Wallingford, Conn.

March 30, 1935

Dear Mr. Laemmle:

In the Universal Weekly of Dec. 29, 1934, I read with a great deal of interest that Mr. F. Nowak, Lincoln Theatre, Buffalo signed his 26th consecutive contract for Universal pictures. .

Mr Nowak has me topped by six years. This year I have signed my 20th consecutive contract for Universal pictures, but the most surprising thing is this: that in all that length of time, I have done business with only one branch manager — Morris Joseph, and I do not believe there is another exhibitor in the U. S. who can say the same. Twenty years ago I bought my first Universal Contract from Mr. Joseph. It consisted of 3 reels per day or 18 reels per week for which I paid $18.00 per week.

It must be very gratifying to you to celebrate your 29th year in the Motion Picture Business and still be the head of the organization as you started.

Please accept my heartiest felicitation on your 29th Anniversary with the hope that we will continue to do business with you thru' your Mr. Morris Joseph for a good many more years to come.

Very truly yours,
G. W. WILKINSON

HE'LL BE A RAVING, HALF-MAN!
HALF-BEAST!
and
ALL BOX OFFICE!
WI
OF

TEARING SENSATION!

CARL LAEMMLE PRESENTS

REWOLF OF LONDON

A UNIVERSAL PICTURE with

HENRY HULL • WARNER OLAND • VALERIE HOBSON

LESTER MATTHEWS • SPRING BYINGTON • CLARK WILLIAMS • LAWRENCE GRANT

Directed by STUART WALKER - A STANLEY BERGERMAN PRODUCTION

Robert Harris, Associate Producer

Watch

EVERY MAIL DELIVERY!

Make sure you get YOUR copy of next week's special

"WEREWOLF OF LONDON"

issue of

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY SHOWMANSHIP SECTION

A DIGEST OF THE BEST EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

IDEAS THAT ARE Clicking!

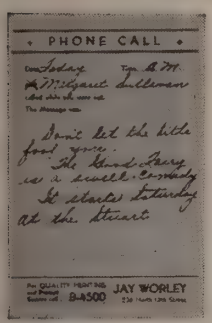
CREDIT Frank P. Larson, manager of the Paramount, Idaho Falls, Idaho, for capitalizing on the honorable mention awarded Edna Robinson, one of his usherettes, in the "Good Fairy" contest Larson dedicated his engagement of the picture to girl and induced the mayor to come down and make award presentation. Stunt plugged in ads and newspaper gave plenty publicity. Larson says: "Attendance was boosted and everybody was happy."

* * *



E. A. Patchen of the Stuart, Lincoln, Neb., deserves a salute for the smart way he plugged the don't-let-the-- title fool-you angle in his "Good Fairy" campaign. Tied up with a local print shop for a batch of phone call memorandum slips printed up with a message from Margaret Sullavan. No cost to theatre as printer's ad appeared at bottom. Also for his use of the special 16 mm. trailer as an advance lobby stunt and as a current window display.

* * *

Henry J. Sarzin, of the Lyric Theatres, Manilla, P. I., successfully used the model airplane contest to feature the "Tailspin Tommy" campaign at the Tivoli Theatre. Fourteen prizes were awarded to the best of the several hundred entrants. Local air taxi service donated a free ride as prize. Newspaper devoted considerable space to contest. Models were given to poor children after award of prizes.

* * *

Gus Lampe, manager of the Eckle, Syracuse, N Y., gets a hand for the smash advance lobby he installed for "THE BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN." Harry Joslin, theatre artist, turned loose on the job built 8 x 15 feet frame of electric lights, covered with strip of curved. shellaced parchment, to make attractive setting for background of maroon velour. On this was mounted, in different planes, cut-out heads of monster and bride. Title and catchlines in giant cut-out letters.

Just A Minute Please—!

Here's special Easter news. They're raising quite a hullabaloo over Universal's latest color Cartune Classic, "CANDYLAND." One of the finest most amusing and entertaining color shorts to reach the screen. Splendid opportunity to feature it in your Easter program and tie up with large local candy distributors. Worth special critic screening.

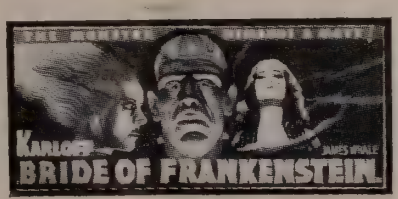
The fifteen minute radio script for the "BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN" is now ready. Many theatres are having fine success using amateur talent to present picture dramatizations over their local stations. The "BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN" script calls for simple but eerie sound effects which intensify its dramatics. Cast of six. Try it. Easy to put on. Get a home sponsor to include it in his program. Scripts free upon request to the Exploitation Department.

We spoke to you in this space several weeks ago about a grand little picture "IT HAPPENED IN NEW YORK." Now playing New York Roxy. Critics bear us out. Said the staid New York Times, "One of the year's best comedies."

"Bright . . . entertaining . . . countless chuckles," opined the New York American. "Grand fun . . . moves with rare zip . . . superior entertainment," New York Telegram. If you want copies of these reviews, let us know and we will shoot them to you.

Speaking some more about the "BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN," Andy Sharick tells us that the advance accessories orders swamping him for this big box-office attraction have completely exhausted the entire first runs from the presses. Bears indication that the showmen of America are getting behind the grand picture in super showmanship fashion. Teaser trailers are running on screens three and four weeks before playdate. Lobbies boasting weird, eerie shocker displays far in advance of opening. Country's going FRANKENSTEIN crazy again! Better rush accessory orders in early to insure shipment in time! Yours 'til the "Bride" screams—

JOE WEIL



Keith's Theatre's (Baltimore) front for "Good Fairy." Notice how Manager J. Lawrence Schanberger played up the review excerpts.

SCHANBERGER'S CAMPAIGN SELLS "GOOD FAIRY" TO HOLD-OVER

J. LAWRENCE SCHANBERGER, manager Keiths Theatre, Baltimore, in his campaign for "Good Fairy" tied-up with the local distributor of Photoplay. The magazine house posted cards on four hundred newsstands and in store windows. The card played up Photoplay's selection of "Good Fairy" as the best picture of the month.

A tie-up with a local chain of circulating libraries landed book covers, with a boost for the picture, in several thousand homes.

Through the Margaret Sullavan fashion tie-up, Schanberger secured large window displays in two of the city's department stores. Hutzler's played up the dress, and Hochschild Kohn the hat. In both windows, enlargements, lobby cards, stills, and announcement card gave a boost to the picture.

The reviews were blown up and used in the front display.

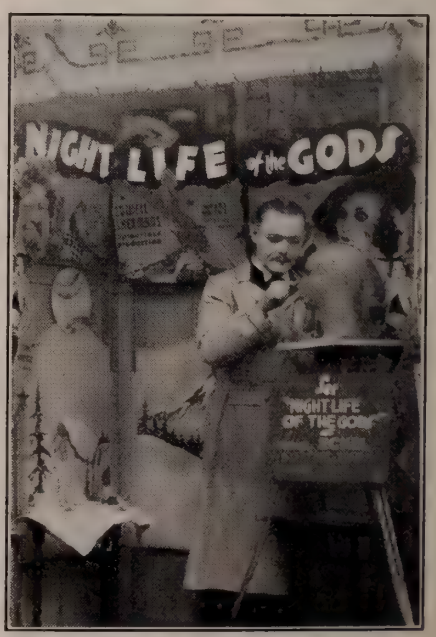
Big herald distribution and wide posting of accessories, and advance give-away of Margaret Sullavan gift photos were other features of the campaign. Albert Nathan, Universal exploiteer assisted.

LAMPE'S "GODS" STUNTS GET SYRACUSE, N. Y. BOX-OFFICE INTEREST

TO give Syracuse residents a sample of the C-r-A-z-y antics in "Night Life of the Gods" to talk about, Gus Lampe, manager of the Eckel Theatre, staged a statue-coming-to-life stunt in a store window on the city's busiest corner. A local sculptor was used for the stunt. He covered his face with clay, and remained in a set position long enough to attract a crowd. Then he moved and wiggled, giving the impression that he was coming to life. To hold the crowd, he modeled funny faces in clay, and showed the crowd stills of the beautiful girls in the cast. When interest was at its height, he exhibited a sign carrying the theatre announcement. The window was dressed with accessory cut-out streamer and hangers.

Lampe made a special appeal to the women through a Modern Venus contest that included the cooperation of newspaper and department store. The newspaper ran advance announcements of their quest for the Modern Venus, being held in conjunction with her appearance at the Eckel Theatre in "Night Life of the Gods" The department store provided a spring outfit as first prize and plugged the stunt in its window. Professors in the art and dramatic departments of Syracuse University acted as judges. Final judging was made on the stage of the Eckel Theatre, resulting in extra publicity.

Other highlights of Lampe's campaign, included over a dozen book windows, distribution of book marks, and flash front and lobby displays.



Gus Lampe's window sculpting stunt for "Night Life of the Gods" at the Eckel.

LAUNDRY TIE-UP WITH BABY JANE

IN conjunction with the engagement of "Straight From the Heart" throughout New York and New Jersey, the Holland Laundry, Jersey City distributed to customers, thousands of circulars as shown herewith.

CONGRATULATIONS AL SINDLINGER!

CONGRATULATIONS from friends and fellow contestants are being heaped on Al Sindlinger of the Appleton Theatre, Appleton, Wisc. for winning the $500 first prize in the "Imitation of Life"—Quaker Oats contest. We add our congratulations to the many, Al Sindlinger!

WANT AD TIE-UP NETS EXTRA BOOST

HERE is another neat stunt in the big "Night Life of the Gods" campaign conducted by Hal Neidas, manager and Bob Harvey, p. a. at the Orpheum, San Francisco. Through a want ad tie-up with the San Francisco Examiner they secured three column by ten inch space daily in return for a few passes.

Congratulations!

"I wish to congratulate you on the fine news value that the Universal Newsreel contains!"

Sam Bendheim, Jr.
General Manager,
Capitol Theatre,
Richmond, Va.

UNIVERSAL NEWSREEL

with GRAHAM McNAMEE

BALLYHOO!

LOUIE CHARNINSKY, who guides the destinies of the Capitol Theatre in Dallas, not only believes that pictures should have plenty of publicity, but goes out and gets it. For his engagement of "THE MYSTERY OF EDWIN DROOD," he induced one of the local movie editors to devote practically his entire two-column space to a discussion of the picture, and the Dickens book. Then he backed it up with a smash front, in lobby he used the mirror gag explained in the pressbook. On the screen, he personally endorsed the picture with a trailer.

That's nice work, Louie! And we are sure that this is but an echo of what the box-office told you!

* * *

THE Jolly Little Elves," Cartune Color Classic, with its lilting, "Dunking" song, inspired the country's doughnut makers to make up the window paster shown here—copies of it landed on a thousand windows.

If you have not played this short, we suggest that you book it in now and cash in on the doughnut-makers' enthusiasm.

* * *

TYING up the scene in "IT HAPPENED IN NEW YORK," where Heather Angel unsuccessfully attempts to make some biscuits for her boy friend, Lyle Talbot, George McKenna, Manager, and Dick Walsh, p a., of the Lafayette in Buffalo, landed a cooking recipe contest in the Buffalo Times. The stunt, which ran for one week, offered readers ticket prizes, for the best daily recipes.

* * *

WHEN "NIGHT LIFE OF THE GODS" opened at the Allen Theatre in Cleveland, the May Department Store was in the throes of a soap sculpture exhibit as a special promotion stunt. Nat Holt, Division Manager and Al Gregg Publicity Manager seized the opportunity for an extra plug in their "NIGHT LIFE" campaign. Sculptress was induced to model scenes direct from production stills. Photographs of these statuettes landed in the newspapers, together with a story about "NIGHT LIFE OF THE GODS." All of which is an excellent example of how wide awake showmen take advantage of local commercial promotions, that are receiving public attention.

Showmanship In Large and Small Ads

(1.) Two column x 6" from Palace, Peoria, Ill. (2.) Double column x 6¼" from Orpheum, Spokane, Wash. (3.) Single column x 2¼" from Palace, Peoria, Ill. (4.) One column x 2" from Karlton, Philadelphia, Pa. (5.) Double column x 6" from Fairbanks, Springfield, Ohio. (6.) Two column x 5" from Orpheum, St. Paul, Minn. (7.) Single column x 3¼" from Pantages, Hollywood, Calif.

HERE THEY COME

FOR YOUR 1935-1936
BOX OFFICE
UNIVERSAL
ANNOUNCES

1ST

"The HUNCHBACK OF NOTRE DAME

WITH AN ALL STAR CAST

1. "THE HUNCHBACK OF NOTRE DAME"
2. WATCH FOR THE OTHERS
3.
4.
5.
6.
7.
8.

From
UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.
ROCKEFELLER CENTER
NEW YORK CITY

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
Paid
Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

OAKMAN THEATRE CO
OAKMAN THEATRE
12728 WOODROW WILSON
DETROIT MICH

Carl Laemmle presents A Universal Picture
with

HENRY HULL
WARNER OLAND
VALERIE HOBSON
LESTER MATTHEWS • SPRING BYINGTON
CLARK WILLIAMS • LAWRENCE GRANT
Directed by Stuart Walker
Produced by STANLEY BERGERMAN

WEREWOLF OF LONDON

Printed in U.S.A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

VOL. 36, NO. 20

MAY 4, 1935

Sally Eilers as the Girl of Two Worlds in "ALIAS MARY DOW"

ARE YOU KEEPING YOUR EAR TO THE GROUND? . . . These Universal Cartune Classics In Color Are Becoming Bigger Business-Getters With Each Release!

VARIETY

'Frankenstein' in 1st Day Equals Previous Full Week in L. A.;

Los Angeles, April 23.

Though trade is better this year over the Easter Sunday week than last year, majority of the houses with top attractions are not clicking as anticipated. They had to overcome a stagnant Good Friday intake, with Saturday in most of the spots being way off and, in quite a few, Sunday little better.

Outstanding on the take was Pantages with 'Bride of Frankenstein.' Pic opened there Saturday with an 11-show grind that included two of the midnite affairs and hit over $2,700 on the day, which is on a par with the usual weekly take the house has had. Then Sunday ran along the same gait, with seven shows and a straight 40-cent admission, which equaled the previous day take, giving house one of biggest weeks it has had in its career.

Pantages (Pan) (2,700; 25-40)—'Bride of Frankenstein' (U). Best take house has had and with limited advance campaign did $5,500 on first two days, Sat and Sunday, and looks as though its first week will be a cinch, $13,000.

'Frankenstein' Big $24,000, Chicago;

(Best Exploitation: Palace)

Battling it out for the big coin this week are 'Bride of Frankenstein' at the Palace and Casino de Paree unit at the Chicago.

Smash full-page feature yarns, contest tie-ups with the newspapers and other angles were arranged for 'Frankenstein' by John Joseph of RKO and Duke Hickey of Universal here for a bang-up exploitation campaign.

Palace (RKO) (2,500; 25-35-55)—'Bride of Frankenstein' (U) and vaude. Excellent $24,000. Last week 'Roberta' (Radio) finished a walloping four-week march to great $20,100.

'Frankenstein' Wow $12,000;

San Francisco, April 23.

Orpheum (F&M) (2,662; 30-35-40)—'Frankenstein' (U). A wow at $12,000. House turned 'em away in droves on Good Friday, opening day. Looks like a sticker.

'Frankenstein' $9,000,

Seattle, April 23.

Orpheum (Hamrick) (2,700; 25-35) 'Bride of Frankenstein' (U) and vaude. En route to smacko $9,000.

. . . except that "The Bride of Frankenstein" is HELD OVER at the Pantages, Los Angeles, is HELD OVER at the Orpheum, San Francisco; moved from Portland Orpheum to Blue Mouse and CONTINUES its first run, moved from Chicago Palace to Apollo and CONTINUES its first run!

Words fail us—

IF I MANAGED 1

No. 816 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

If I had one theatre or a thousand theatres, I would wrack my brains or even break my neck, if necessary, to do the unusual thing every now and then.

Profitable showmanship is made up of breaking away from the routine, not in following it.

We are not producing soap or shoes which demand a certain uniformity, but entertainment which depends more upon breaking away from the ordinary thing rather than on making it uniform.

So, if I were running say just one theatre, and if I were about to exhibit a picture like "The Bride of Frankenstein," I would smash all precedent to smithereens.

I would advice parents to come and keep their kids at home.

Maybe your first reaction to this suggestion is that it is going to drive business way—ruin your matinees and so on.

Just forget that!

Never be afraid to do the thing that has not been done before, because that is true showmanship.

The truth is that "The Bride of Frankenstein" is a blood-curdler.

000 THEATRES—

You cannot possibly earn any more good will on the part of your regular customers than by telling them the plain, blunt truth.

It is not a picture for children. Tell that to the parents. If they haven't enough common sense to watch over the movie fare of their kids, they will at least appreciate guidance which you can give.

For every kid that you keep away by telling the truth, you will attract ten adults. It's a ten to one shot, and it's in your favor.

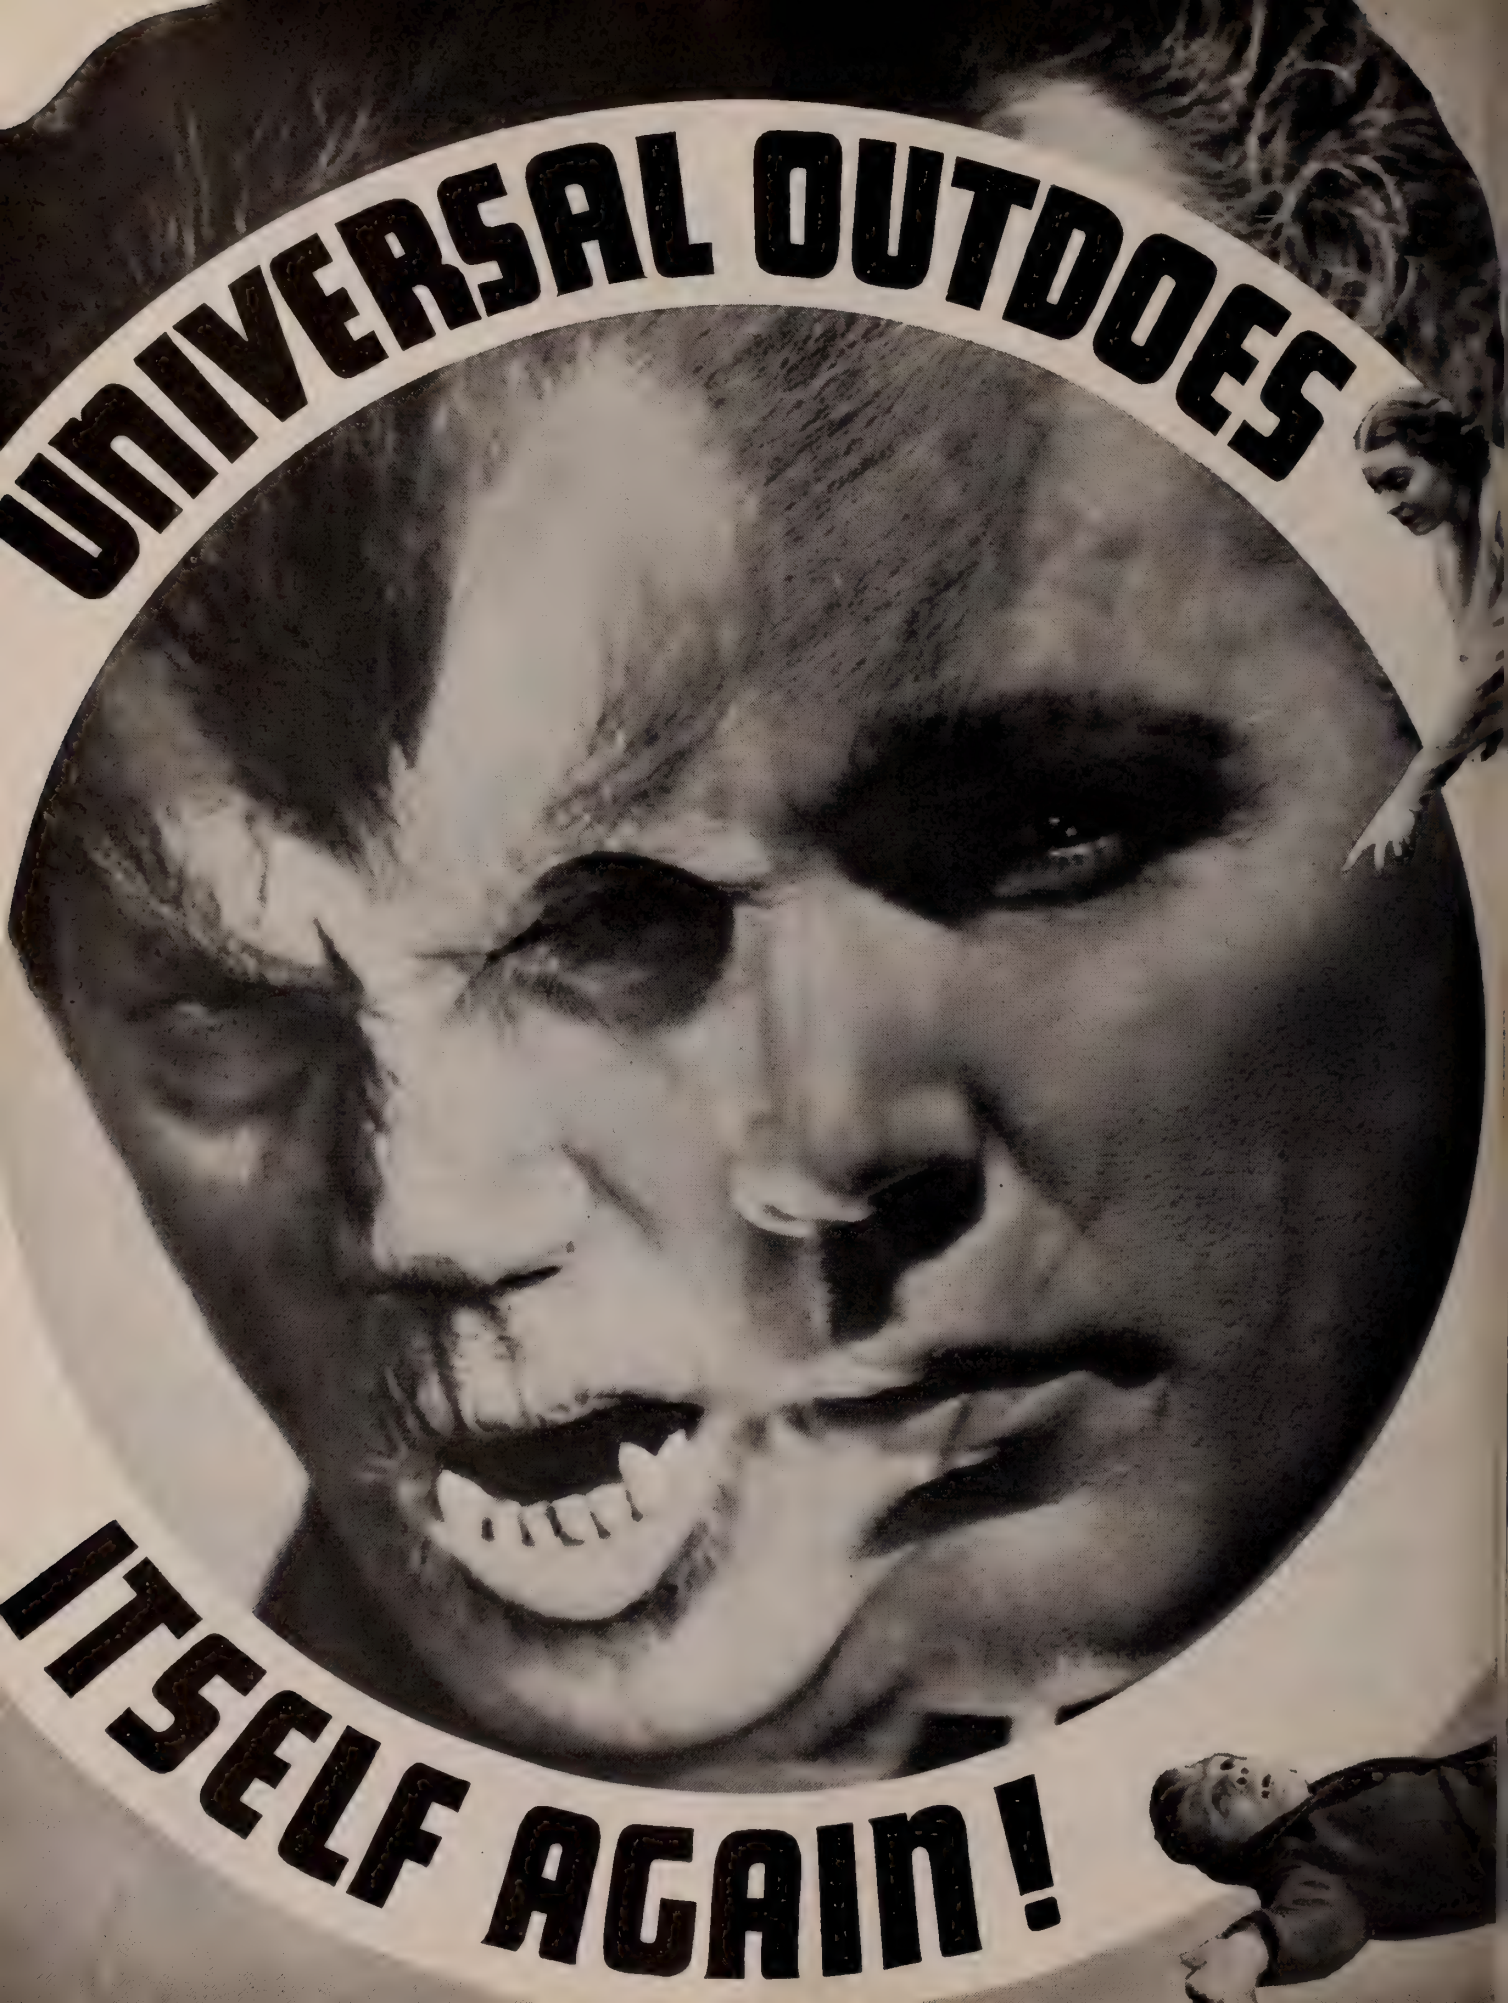
If the kids come in spite of your frank advertising, that's not your fault nor your responsibility.

Thousands of exhibitors were afraid of our first "Frankenstein" picture, but they showed it and made a terrific clean-up. The same thing will hold true of "The Bride of Frankenstein."

Don't be afraid of it. Advertise it for exactly what it is and watch the profits pile up.

If you want Santa Claus to come to your house right now instead of next Christmas, give smash advertising to "The Bride of Frankenstein" and tell the blunt truth about it in every ad.

Carl Laemmle



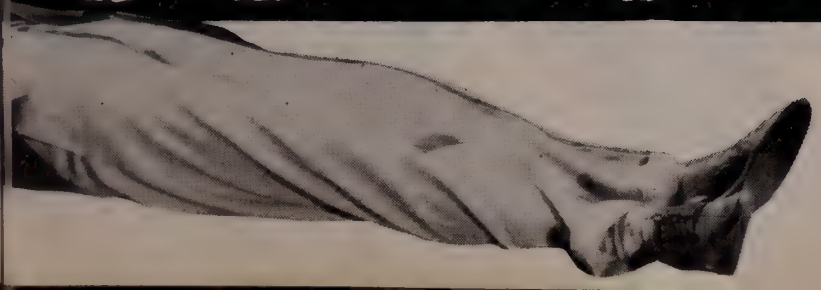
UNIVERSAL OUTDOES
ITSELF AGAIN!

"WILL BE ABLE TO HOLD ITS OWN WITH THE BEST CHILLERS!" . . . Daily Variety

"RIGHTFULLY TAKES ITS PLACE ON THE HORROR PICTURE ROLL OF HONOR BESIDE 'FRANKENSTEIN,' 'BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN,' 'DRACULA' AND THE REST OF THE BETTER SPINE VIBRATORS" . . . Hollywood Reporter

CARL LAEMMLE presents

WEREWOLF OF LONDON



With HENRY HULL • WARNER OLAND • VALERIE HOBSON

LESTER MATTHEWS • SPRING BYINGTON
CLARK WILLIAMS • LAWRENCE GRANT
Directed by STUART WALKER. A STANLEY BERGERMAN PRODUCTION. Robert Harris, Associate Producer

POPULAR APPEAL FOR A

NEW, POPULAR STORY!

"BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN" A TREMENDOUS SMASH

WITH attendance records being smashed daily, with theatres holding over its engagement, with critics falling over themselves in praise, "The Bride of Frankenstein" has opened a new avenue of profit to exhibitors.

Never in the history of Universal has a picture so early been booked so avidly as "The Bride of Frankenstein." Every trade paper gave it smash reviews in its preview in Los Angeles. The critics of every city have hailed it as a marvelously effective piece of entertainment. It has monopolized the headlines in Variety and Motion Picture Daily for the last two weeks.

On page 1 of this issue, will be found the headlines from last week's Variety. Here are some from Motion Picture Daily:

" 'FRANKENSTEIN' FRISCO SMASH PULLS $16,000"

" 'BRIDE' SHOW PULL $23,000 CHICAGO LEAD"

And here is a wire from Kansas City, where "The Bride of Frankenstein" opened on April 26th to smash business, and on Sunday gave the theatre the biggest Sunday business in its history, despite a downpour of rain. It topped "Broadway Bill" and kept long queues out in the rain from 2 P. M. on :

J R GRAINGER
UNIVERSAL FILM EXCHANGES Inc
NOTHING CAN IMPAIR THE SUCCESS OF A GREAT BOX OFFICE PICTURE STOP DESPITE DOWNPOUR RAIN WHICH LASTED ALL DAY SUNDAY WE DID BIGGEST BUSINESS ON BRIDE FRANKENSTEIN HISTORY OF THEATRE PEOPLE STOOD IN LINE FROM TWO O'CLOCK IN AFTERNOON UNTIL TEN THIRTY AT NIGHT AUDIENCE REACTION MARVELOUS THANKS TO YOU AND UNIVERSAL FOR GIVING US THIS GREAT BOX OFFICE ATTRACTION
BARNEY JOFFEE
MANAGER TOWER THEATRE

In regard to this, Motion Picture Daily says in its issue of April 30th:

"Frankenstein" Ads Fail to Halt Kids

KANSAS CITY, April 29.—The perversity of human nature is demonstrated here this week at the Tower where "The Bride of Frankenstein" is drawing an unusually heavy child attendance. The picture is proving to be a family attraction, and Barney Joffee ,manager, is at a loss to explain inasmuch as his ads stressed it is "not for the young, the scary or the nervous."

Reviewers on local papers also

(Continued on Page 26)

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, N. Y. City
Universal Pictures Corp.
Copyrighted 1935
(All Rights Reserved)
MAY 4, 1935
Vol. 36 No. 20

The Preview Parade of UNIVERSAL PICTURES

VALERIE HOBSON
. . . vocal girl makes good . . . in a screaming success . . . !

"Variety" in its unrestrained review of "THE BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN" alludes to Valerie Hobson's "alluring femininity."

Other critics have commented equally favorably on the presence of this dainty actress in Universal's current shocker hit . . .

Which calls for headlines: "Vocal Girl Makes Good," inasmuch as this pretty English actress has literally screamed her way to success.

VALERIE HOBSON

Both in "THE WEREWOLF OF LONDON," and in "CHINATOWN SQUAD," she plays the part of beauty-in-peril with ear-splitting realism.

And now, in "THE BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN" she meets with the monster, amid harrowing outcrys that work up any audience's mood to the proper goose-pimple pitch.

Your fans will want to know more about this girl. Tell them that Valerie Hobson is an eighteen-year-old actress who first gained recognition in England.

Since her arrival nine months ago, Miss Hobson has proven herself in stellar roles of six pictures.

She will be seen again, very often, as Universal has her under long term contract.

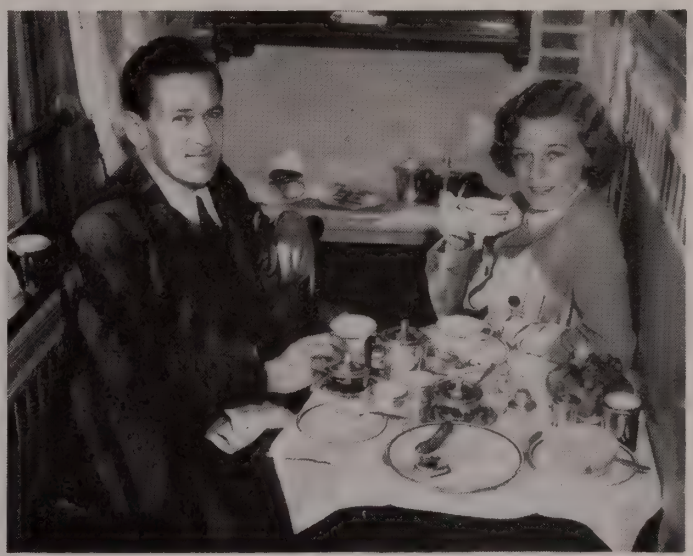
Begin billing Valerie Hobson now, as no actress has ever seemed more certain for stardom than this lovely lady of the vociferous tonsils. JACTHALL

OFF STAGE WITH UNIVERSAL STARS

Buck Jones On Location

BUCK JONES has started his lead-off serial for next year's Universal serial program. It is entitled "The Roaring West" and it is going to be made in west that is west. The story was taken from Edward Earl Rapp's "Mustang Mesa" and is one of the most exciting and fast moving that Universal ever compressed into a serial. Buck Jones has as leading lady Muriel Evans, former baby star, who is growing into superb young womanhood and who should earn a permanent place in Universal City.

The cast includes Walter Miller, Frank McGlynn, Harlan Knight, Eole Galli, William Desmond, William Thorne, Pat O'Brien, George Ovey, Rred Humes, Harry TenBrook, Charles King, Tom London, Dick Rush, Cecil Kellog and Paul Palmer. It is being directed by Ray Taylor from continuity and dialogue by George Plympton, Nate Gatzert, Ella O'Neill, Basil Dickey and Robert Rothafel. The scene above is "The Roaring West" company on location near Mt. Whitney.



Margaret Sullavan Returns for 4 Universal Pictures

MARGARET SULLAVAN and William Wyler, after a three months' honeymoon in Europe, arrived home last week on the Rex, accompanied by two St. Bernard pups, three months old, that the Universal star had acquired in Switzerland. Miss Sullavan is being loaned to Paramount for the picture, "So Red the Rose" in a role which few actresses on the screen besides Margaret Sullavan could play.

She will return to Universal City in July for four pictures. The first of them is likely to be "Strangers at the Feast" by Beatrice Lubitz. Another story for Miss Sullavan is "Next Time We Live" by Ursula Parrott, which will be in the book stores this week. Rose Franken is adapting this story to the screen. Universal has also just consummated the purchase of "Time Out of Mind," current best seller by Rachel Field for Margaret Sullavan's use, and it still has the last year's best seller, "Within This Present," by Margaret Ayer Barnes, as its fourth Margaret Sullavan picture.

WHAT MOTION PICTURE PRO
TO KEEP THE INDEPENDEN
"CARL LAEMMLE IS THE MA

Jones, Linick & Schaefer

Theatrical Enterprises.

54 W. RANDOLPH ST.
707 WOODS BUILDING
CHICAGO

April 10, 1935

Mr. Paul Gulick,
Editor Universal Weekly,

My dear Gulick:

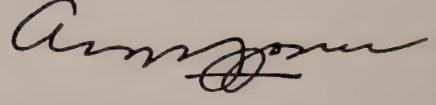
Yours of the first received. I started in moving picture business in 1896 which is a little before Uncle Carl. In Fall of 1905 we opened a nickle theatre on State Street next to the Palmer House and I believe that was the first picture theatre that Laemmle ever saw. In fact he told me once that he came down from Oshkosh and stood in front of the theatre for quite a while marvelling that people would pay five cents to go in. In those days we thought it necessary to have a barker on the street, besides having a loud phonograph in the lobby. As you know, the entire show lasted about fifteen minutes. Sometimes the patron found himself going out before he got in.

My first experience in pictures was with Amet's Magniscope in 1896 which we took on the road with a Variety Show. My first theatre was in 1902 with pictures as a chaser. My first nickle theatre was opened in December 1905 as noted above.

Met Carl Laemmle in 1907 or 1908. I consider him a very good friend of mine since that time. He certainly fought for the independent exhibitors from the time he went in business and I think he has done more to keep them in business than all the other distributors combined. He is a great old guy and I hope he lives for a long time.

Very best regards,

Sincerely,



DUCER HAS DONE THE MOST T EXHIBITOR IN BUSINESS? V" - - - Says AARON J. JONES

"THE man who has done more than all other distributors combined to keep the independent exhibitor in business," is Aaron J. Jones' opinion of Carl Laemmle.

This opinion was expressed in a letter received by the Editor of this paper during the Carl Laemmle Anniversary Jubilee. His letter is printed on the opposite page.

Aaron J. Jones of Jones, Linick & Schaefer, is a name to conjure with in moving picture business. He is one of the real pioneers, one of the men of whom Chicago as a center of moving picture interest can well be proud.

As a matter of fact, it was the theatre which Aaron Jones operated which Mr. Laemmle saw that day in 1906 when he came on from Oshkosh with the idea of finding a site in Chicago on which to establish a mercantile 5 and 10 cent store. By that time Aaron Jones was already in the moving picture business. He was operating a theatre which he had opened in 1905, the name of which he doesn't even remember now. It probably didn't have a name, any more than Carl Laemmle's first theatre had a name. Laemmle's theatre was later called the White Front, merely because the front of the theatre was white.

When the Editor of the Weekly discovered that it was the theatre which Aaron J. Jones ran which decided Carl Laemmle to go into the moving picture business. He wrote to him and asked about this experience. As a result of that request, he received the letter which is reproduced in full on the opposite page, which contains one of the most heartfelt and generous estimates of a man's accomplishments which has ever been given to a man still in active operation of his company.

AARON J. JONES

If Aaron J. Jones, president of Jones, Linick & Schaefer isn't the pioneer of all Chicago moving picture interests, the diligent efforts of the Universal Weekly staff have failed of their purpose. We believe he is. It was in that belief that Mr. Jones was requested to take part in the Carl Laemmle Anniversary Jubilee. The letter on the opposite page is the way in which Mr. Jones responded. Mr. Jones is still active in the management of Jones, Linick & Schaefer, although his son has superseded him in the day-in-and-out duties of the firm.

KARLOFF
of "Frankenstein" fame!

LUGOSI... of "Dracula" fame!

Together

The masters of fiendish roles, out-deviling each other in the weirdest story your patrons ever gasped or shuddered at!

DAVID DIAMOND, ASSOCIATE PRODUCER

again!
CARL LAEMMLE presents
A UNIVERSAL PICTURE
KARLOFF
in Edgar Allan Poe's
the RAVEN
with BELA LUGOSI
IRENE WARE · LESTER MATTHEWS
INEZ COURTNEY
Screen play by Jim Tully and David Boehm
Directed by Louis Friedlander

THEY'RE SHOUTIN
THEY'RE YELLING

BANG!

BY DIRECT WIRE FROM

WESTERN UNION

1223-S

SIGNS
DL = Day Letter
NM = Night Message
NL = Night Letter
LC = Deferred Cable
NLT = Cable Night Letter
Ship Radiogram

CLASS OF SERVICE
This is a full-rate Telegram or Cablegram unless its deferred character is indicated by a suitable sign above or preceding the address.

NEWCOMB CARLTON
CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD

J. C. WILLEVER
FIRST VICE-PRESIDENT

R. B. WHITE
PRESIDENT

The filing time as shown in the date line on full-rate telegrams and day letters, and the time of receipt at destination as shown on all messages, is STANDARD TIME.

NF27 46 DL=XU LOSANGELES CALIF APR 21 1935 1015A

JAMES R GRAINGER=

UNIVERSAL FILM EXCHANGES INC ROCKEFELLER CENTER=

DEAR JIM YOUR PREDICTION WAS CORRECT THE BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN BROKE ALL RECORDS SINCE WE REOPENED THE THEATRE TWO YEARS AGO BIGGEST DAY WE HAD WAS IMITATION OF LIFE THE BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN DID BETTER TWO HUNDRED SATURDAY STOP IT DID BETTER SEVEN HUNDRED SUNDAY REGARD

ALEXANDER PANTAGES.

UNIVERSA

"THE BRIDE OF

G ITS SUCCESS
ITS GROSSESS!

BANG!

BY DIRECT WIRE FROM

WESTERN UNION

NEWCOMB CARLTON
CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD

R. B. WHITE
PRESIDENT

J. C. WILLEVER
FIRST VICE-PRESIDENT

1223-S

SIGNS
DL = Day Letter
NM = Night Message
NL = Night Letter
LC = Deferred Cable
NLT = Cable Night Letter
Ship Radiogram

ASS OF SERVICE

This is a full-rate telegram or Cable-gram unless its deferred character is indicated by a suitable sign above or preceding the address.

The filing time as shown in the date line on full-rate telegrams and day letters, and the time of receipt at destination as shown on all messages, is STANDARD TIME.

NG31 43 DL=XU SANFRANCISCO CALIF APR 19 1935 1123A

J R GRAINGER GEN SALES MGR=
UNIVERSAL FILM EXCHANGES INC=ROCKEFELLER CENTER=

FRANKENSTEIN OPENED ORPHEUM AT THREE OCLOCK TODAY WITH WAITING TICKET LINE A FULL BLOCK LONG EACH WAY FROM BOX OFFICE THESE CROWDS CONTINUED THROUGHOUT UNTIL CLOSE OF BOX OFFICE STOP GROSS SENSATIONAL FOR THIS HOUSE STOP UNQUESTIONABLE WE HAVE SMASH HIT PICTURE REGARDS=

W J HEINEMAN..

L'S

FRANKENSTEIN"

THEY'RE SCREAMIN
THEY'RE GOING CR

BANG!

SS OF SERVICE

his is a full-rate gram or Cable-n unless its deed character is in-ated by a suitable n above or preced-
g the address.

WESTERN UNION

NEWCOMB CARLTON
CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD

R. B. WHITE
PRESIDENT

J. C. WILLEVER
FIRST VICE-PRESIDENT

SIGNS
DL = Day Letter
NM = Night Message
NL = Night Letter
LC = Deferred Cable
NLT = Cable Night Letter
Ship Radiogram

e filing time as shown in the date line on full-rate telegrams and day letters, and the time of receipt at destination as shown on all messages, is STANDARD TIME.

J23 52 DL=XV SEATTLE WASH APR 20 1935 421P

E T GOMERSALL, WESTERN SALES MANAGER=

UNIVERSAL FILM EXCHANGES INC ROCKEFELLER CENTER NY=

BIG ALL DAY LINES GREETED OPENING BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN AT HAMRICKS ORPHEUM SEATTLE TODAY STOP THIS RECEPTION PARTICULARLY GRATIFYING AS BRIDE BUCKING STIFFEST COMPETITION
TOWN EVER BOASTED STOP CRITICS RAN AWAY WITH THEMSELVES
TOUTING PICTURE AND CONFIRM PUBLIC ESTIMATE BRIDE PRONOUNCIN
IT FAR SUPERIOR PRODUCTION MORE ENTERTAINING MORE THRILLING ORIGINAL FRANKENSTEIN REGARDS=

L J MCGINLEY. . .

UNIVERSAL

"THE BRIDE OF

G ITS RECORDS
AZY WITH JOY!

BANG!

UNION

NEWCOMB CARLTON
CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD

R. B. WHITE
PRESIDENT

J. C. WILLEVER
FIRST VICE-PRESIDENT

LC = Deferred Cable
NLT = Cable Night Letter
Ship Radiogram

...ated by a suitable
...n above or preced-
...g the address.

...he filing time as shown in the date line on full-rate telegrams and day letters, and the time of receipt at destination as shown on all messages, is STANDARD TIME.

NJ14 40 DL=XV PORTLAND ORE APR 20 1935 345P

E T GOMERSALL, WESTERN SALES MANAGER=
UNIVERSAL PICTURES INC ROCKEFELLER CENTER NY=

BRIDE FRANKENSTEIN OPENING ORPHEUM GOOD FRIDAY TO POSITIVE SENSATIONAL BUSINESS CONTINUED LINES ALL DAY STOP THE CROWDS WERE SO GREAT IT BECAME NECESSARY TO ISSUE REFUNDS A THING UNHEARD OF THESE DAYS STOP IT WILL UNQUESTIONABLY ESTABLISH NEW HOUSE RECORDS=

G C CRADDOCK

THE QUICKEST, SUREST AND SAFEST

Extra!

PALACE, CHICAGO:

"ONE OF THE SWELL WEEKS OF THE YEAR! ..AUDIENCE REACTION FINE!"—Nate Blumberg, General Manager, RKO Theatres

S

FRANKENSTEIN"

Noah Beery, Jr., Dorothy Short, Bryant Washburn and Don Brody are horrified as the steel-studded ceiling slowly descends upon them.

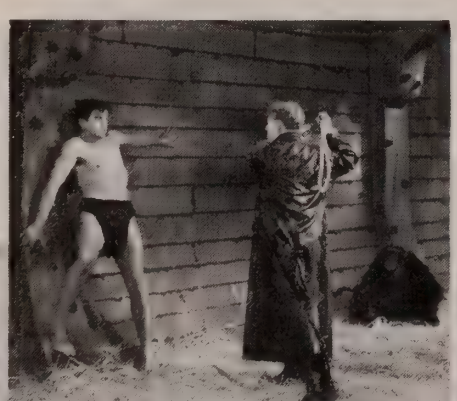
EXHIBITORS GRAB "CALL of SAVAGE"

A JUNGLE picture was just what the doctor ordered for Universal's final serial of the closing year. "Call of the Savage," adapted from Otis Adelbert Kline's magazine story, "Jan of the Jungle," made a crackerjack serial under the guiding hand of Louis Friedlander. "Call of the Savage" was not only a great bet for exhibitors. It was a great bet for Louis Friedlander. It earned him a promotion to features.

Bookings on "Call of the Savage" have been pouring in like rain on a parched land from every exchange center. The Big U in New York prereleased the serial and before the month is over, expect to hang up a record for bookings which will eclipse that of any other serial, with the possible exception of Buck Jones in "The Red Rider."

Noah Beery, Jr., hero of "Call of the Savage."

Jan is chained in the hold and beaten daily.



Beautiful Dorothy Short, the heroine.

Harry L. Woo and Dorothy Short are tie up and pre pared for t burning.

Noah Beery, Jr., who played Buffalo Bill in his first serial, "Heroes of the West," rose to immense popularity in his second serial, "Tailspin Tommy." For that reason, he was made the star of "Call of the Savage." The selection was amply justified and thoroughly rewarded. Noah Beery, Jr., came through like a veteran in a serial which had more personal hardships, difficult scenes and dangerous situations than any which has been made on the Universal lot in the last three years. It is no easy task to work with wild animals, and Noah Beery, Jr., never spared himself in any of the trying situations in which he was placed. His acting in this serial and the success of the serial itself, will undoubtedly result in his playing one and possibly two of the serials on next year's list.

Louis Friedlander gave him an intrepid partner in Dorothy Short. This was Dorothy's first screen work. She had been chosen as one of the girls for another production, but when Louis Friedlander saw her, he grabbed her right out of that production and made her a serial queen in her first picture. Dorothy didn't have any easier time than Noah Beery, Jr. either.

In one of these scenes, she was bitten by the chimpanzee which had acted as protector of Jan, and was supposed to be friendly and safe. Chickma, however, had been working in a serial with some negroes who were on the enemy side of the story and had learned to hate and detest them. A group of the colored natives passed the scene where Chickma was working with Dorothy Short, and to register his animosity toward the negroes, he bit Dorothy on the leg. It wasn't any affectionate bite, either.

"BEST SERIAL WE EVER HAD"

Here is a letter from Eli Mullinax of the Auditorium theatre, Delphos, Kansas, regarding "CALL OF THE SAVAGE" which is an example of the swell letters coming in on this serial right along.

"This serial, 'CALL OF THE SAVAGE,' is one of the best we have ever had and it is a pleasure to play a serial of this kind. During these times you have to have something extra good to get the people in and this is it."

Dorothy Short in the costume she wears most of the time in "Call of the Savage."

One of the perilous situations in which Noah Beery, Jr., and Dorothy Short are placed in "Call of the Savage."

BOX OFFICES PROFIT W

HILE CRITICS PRAISE!

CARL LAEMMLE Presents

EDMUND LOWE

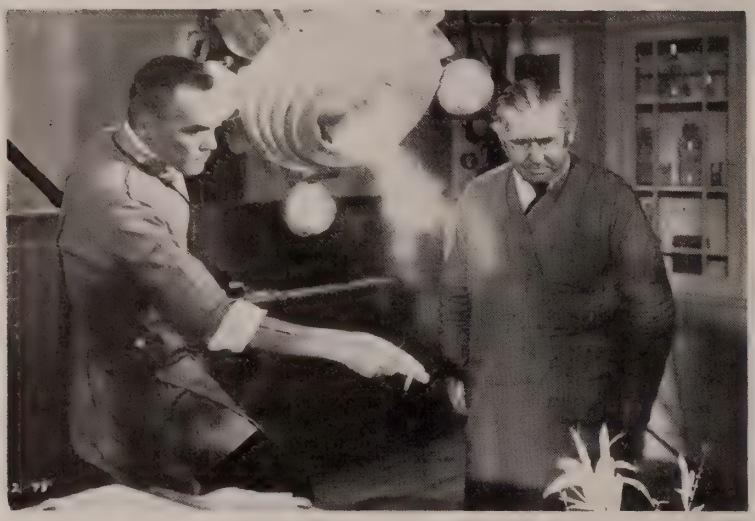
in Universal's production of

DASHIELL HAMMETT'S grand story

DYNAMITE

With JEAN DIXON, Esther Ralston, Verna Hillie, Joyce Compton, Mary Wallace, Victor Varconi and Matt McHugh . . . Directed by ALAN CROSLAND . . . E. M. Asher, Associate Producer

PREVIEWS PREDICT SMASH HI



"This flower," said Dr. Glendon, "was plucked from the jaws of death in a valley at the end of the world where there are stranger things than human eyes have ever beheld . . . Within the crystal chalice of this blossom lies the destinies of two men . . . if it dies their fate is worse than death . . . it MUST be kept alive at all costs . . . If anything happens to this blossom not only the lives of these two men, but the welfare of an entire city may be at stake . . . Guard it with your life . . . let no one within these doors . . . "

MAXIMUM OF THRILLS

(Motion Picture Daily's Hollywood Preview)

(Universal)

HOLLYWOOD, April 29.—A weird story produced and acted in a manner calculated to bring a maximum of thrills and chills, this picture maintains the horror pace set by Universal. Fast-moving with vivid action and dialogue plus nerve-tingling make-up changes building dramatic suspense, the show capitalizes the full entertainment value of its eerie premise.

Hull and Oland are outstanding in difficult roles. The meager romantic contrast is nicely carried by Miss Hobson and Matthews. The chief comedy relief is carried by haggish Ethel Griffies and Zeffie Tilbury. Minor roles are filled by Clark Williams, Charlottte Granville, Spring Byington, J. M. Kerrigan and Louis Vincent. The eerie writing quality of Robert Harris, who collaborated with Harvey Gates on the screen play, is expertly amplified by Stuart Walker's intelligent handling of the personnel and production backgrounds.

The show affords a wide field for sock exploitation.

Production Code Seal No. 714. Running time, 75 minutes.
"A"

"Will Hold Its Own with Best Chillers"

Variety Preview

HERE'S a horror picture, which, due to expert casting and direction, should attract those who are not 100 per cent creep and chill fans. For those who like the shivers, it has sufficient horror, suspense and action to please. 'Werewolf' will be able to hold its own with the best chillers.

Makeup of Hull is startling after the manner of Frankenstein's creations His performance as the monster is excellent. Warner Oland displays his usual suavity as the rival for the blossom, makes the characterization real. Exceptionally fine is the work of Spring Byington, a flighty old maid. Her handling of the dialog is excellent. Charlotte Granville impresses as a dowager, give a regal atmosphere to the character. Valerie Hobson brings a quiet grace to the screen, should go far. As Hull's wife her work is very good. Lester Matthews, as Miss Hobson's childhood sweetheart, indicates that he has a lot on ball. With the screen clamoring for new male leads, his personality augers success.

J. M. Kerrigan does a nice job as a cockney gardner. Unprogrammed are Zeffie Tilbury and Ethel Griffies who play two gin drinking biddies. Both are toppers in this line of work. Clark Williams is okay.

Stuart Walker's direction gives the picture all the qualities it possesses without reaching for effects. No little help is Charles Stumar's photography and Al D'Agostino's sets.

Dialog and continuity are both smart and direct. Locale is England with everyone acting and talking like cultured English people. Story moves smoothly with a reason advanced for everything, unusually in this type picture.

✚ ✚ ✚

Liberty Likes "MR. DYNAMITE"

THE garrulous Edmund Lowe forsakes his roughneck mannerisms in Mr. Dynamite to take his place on what is known as the right side of the law. In this fast-moving, quick-talking murder mystery. latest of the hard-boiled Dashiell Hammett bafflers.

Brightened with sharp dialogue and swift pace, this surprisingly enjoyable film is as full of laughs as it is of chills. Though it features three murders and so neatly disguises its clues that the picture is capital fare for sleuthing fans, Mr. Dynamite is also a completely pleasant comedy. Copying the mood of The Thin Man—and for a follow-up coming off very well

IN "WEREWOLF OF LONDON"
"TAKES ITS PLACE IN ROLL OF HONOR"
Hollywood Reporter

RIGHTFULLY this takes its place on the horror picture roll of honor beside "Frankenstein," "Bride of Frankenstein," "Dr. X," "Dracula," "Wax Museum" and the rest of the better spine vibrators.

Beautifully photographed by Charles Stumar, well acted by a proficient cast, and strikingly mounted, it is deserving of a place in any first-run house whose audiences generally go for this sort of thing.

Hull, as the werewolf, has perpetrated many a grisly murder before the pistols of Scotland Yard rub him out as he is about to murder his young beautiful wife, done by Valerie Hobson.

The picture is a little slow striking its note of horror but once it has it never lets down. Hull's magnificent acting ability is submerged by the grotesque requirements of the role, but nevertheless his performance is thrilling, convincing and skillful. Warner Oland, as the Oriental werewolf who is not above stealing Hull's flowers to rid himself of werewolfery, is also magnificent and very important to the story development.

As the childhood sweetheart of the unhappy bride of the werewolf, Lester Matthews turns in a splendid performance. Spring Byington is good in what might be called an Alice Brady-Una Merkel-Ruth Donnelly sort of part, and there is good portrayal of a faithful butler by J. M. Kerrigan. Two actresses without screen credit provide a light note as gin-soaked cockney crones, and Clark Williams and Louis Vincent stand out in minor supporting roles.

Robert Harris, Harvey Gates and John Colton have contributed a fine piece of screen writing in plot and dialogue and Stuart Walker's direction sustains their best efforts.

✚ ✚ ✚

"LADY TUBBS" STARTS MONDAY

JUNE CLAYWORTH left New York last week by plane for Universal City, where she will go into the cast of "Lady Tubbs," the novel by Homer Croy, which Alan Crosland will place in production Monday. His cast is headed by Alice Brady, who took the place of May Robson, due to a confusion of engagements. The cast also includes June Clayworth and Anita Louise, whose last picture for Universal was "Heaven on Earth" with Lew Ayres.

✚ ✚ ✚

Hear Buck Jones Tonight

MILLIONS of kids will be listening in tonight, Saturday, May 4th, when National Youth Week brings a full week's celebration to a close with a nation-wide broadcast over the N. B. C. network. The broadcast takes place at 6 P. M., Eastern Daylight Saving Time, coming over Station WEAF in New York City. It utilizes the entire red network.

Buck Jones, who is busily engaged in making "The Roaring West," will act as master of ceremonies and will introduce the youngsters who will talk over the radio. These youngsters include Baby Jane, the youngest of them, who has just completed a role in "Alias Mary Dow;" Jimmy Butler, Dickie Moore, Frankie Darro, Freddie Bartholomew and David Holt. Among those who will speak from New York are Jane Wyatt, now appearing in "The Bishop Misbehaves" at the Golden Theatre.

✚ ✚ ✚

UNIVERSAL HAS A THREE-NAME STORY

WITH the issue of Liberty, this week, one of Universal's productions for next year saw its first literary form. It is a story by Eric Hatch which was sold to Universal under another name, is running serially in Liberty under another, and will be brought out by Little, Brown in the fall under still another name.

When Universal bought the Eric Hatch story, it was known as "1011 Fifth." It was then only in manuscript form. When Liberty bought it as a serial, they decided to release it under the title of "Irene, the Stubborn Girl." When Little, Brown brings it out as a novel on October 1, it will be called "My Man, Godfrey." Mr. Hatch, the author, is wondering what Universal will call it as a picture.

Yesterday Zoe Akins completed the screen treatment for it and Robert Presnell is writing the continuity and will in all probability have charge of the production when it goes into work.

✚ ✚ ✚

Henry Mollison and Dorothy Page in Universal Debut

HENRY MOLLISON, Universal's latest leading man acquisition from the other side, was yesterday cast for his first American picture. He will play an important role in Robert Harris's story, "Sing Me a Love Song," which will have another releasing title.

Ricardo Cortez is being borrowed for an important role, and it will also mark the debut of Universal's radio star, Dorothy Page, who won the recent Paul Whiteman award. Hugh O'Connell is the only other member of the cast so far.

Carl Laemmle announced yesterday that it would be directed by Stuart Walker instead of by Kurt Neumann. The production will be ready to get under way on May 10. It will have a number of musical numbers. Its screenplay is being written by Robert Presnell who will supervise its production.

MEMPHIS EXHIBITORS HONOR W. E. SIPE

Photograph of the exhibitors' testimonial banquet to W. E. Sipe, in recognition of twenty years' constructive service with Universal, held at the Gayoso Hotel in Memphis, Tenn. on April 14th. H. D. Wharton of Warren, Arkansas was toastmaster and Edward Kuykendall, president of the M.P.T.O.A., presented the gift which expressed the good wishes of two hundred film people for Mr. Sipe's continued success.

THE high spot of the meeting of the M.P.T.O.A. in Memphis this year was the testimonial banquet given to W. E. Sipe, Universal manager in Memphis for twenty years. At a banquet in the Gayoso Hotel, two hundred of his friends and associates in the moving picture business were assembled to pay honor to a man who is regarded as the father of the film business in Memphis. Every exhibitor in the territory who was in business at the time Mr. Sipe came to the Universal Exchange in Memphis was present, and sat at the table with him, sharing in the honors which the exhibitors paid to a veteran, a leader and a man in whom every exhibitor in the territory places the utmost confidence.

Tribute Paid to W. E. Sipe at Banquet

Here is the way the Memphis Commercial-Appeal referred to the banquet:

Motion picture theater owners of Arkansas, Mississippi and Tennessee, assembled in Memphis for their two-day annual meeting, last night paid tribute to W. E. (Dad) Sipe, head of Universal Film Exchange here and "father" of Memphis film row, at a testimonial banquet at the Gayoso which was the main feature of the opening day.

H. D. Wharton, Warren, Ark., was toastmaster and Ed Kuykendall of Columbus, president of the Motion Picture Theatre Operators of America, presented to Mr. Sipe several articles of luggage given by friends of the veteran film row operator.

Others making short talks were Howard Waugh, Warner zone manager; A. B. Morrison of Memphis' Warner's M. A. Lightman, R. X. Williams, mayor of Oxford, Miss., and secretary of the Motion Picture Theatre Operators of Arkansas, Mississippi and Tennessee; W. L. Landers of Batesville, president of the Tri-State group, and Harry Martin, columnist and dramatic critic of The Commercial Appeal.

\+ + +

AMAZING REPEAT BOOKINGS ON "IMITATION OF LIFE"

NO picture in the history of talking pictures has had the repeat bookings which have piled up on "Imitation of Life." Most of these bookings have come through the amazing box-office vitality which the picture has shown. Some of them have come through the fact that Claudette Colbert, its star, won the award of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences this year.

In the Chicago Exchange territory, "Imitation of Life" has already reported forty-eight repeat bookings, twenty-one of them in the city of Chicago.

The Big U of New York reports one hundred and two repeat bookings on "Imitation." This exchange is in the lead at the present time in this respect.

Philadelphia exchange comes next, with ninety-six.

Detroit reports fourteen repeat bookings, two of them in Detroit theatres.

Cleveland has already played eleven repeat runs, including repeat first-runs in Akron and Youngstown and is making arrangements for many more.

San Francisco, among its repeat bookings, reports this unusual incident. The Sierra Theatre of Stockton on its repeat booking raised its price from twenty-five cents, at which it had first played "Imitation," to thirty cents on the repeat. A repeat booking at advanced prices is a unique accomplishment. But this is an unusual picture. It can do surprising things for box offices.

"ALL QUIET ON THE WESTERN FRONT" For Dcoration Day
and Fourth of July
and
"THERE'S ALWAYS TOMORROW"
For Father's Day
JUNE 16th

U PICTURES IN VET HOSPITALS

UNIVERSAL Pictures was yesterday awarded the contract to supply features and short subjects for seventy-five soldiers homes and hospitals by the U. S. Veterans Administration in Washington. The contract, which was closed by Herman Stern of Universal's Non-Theatrical department, goes into effect as of July 1, and is operative for one year thereafter. This is the fifth consecutive year that this contract has been awarded to Universal by the Veterans Administration.

U. S. Army Motion Picture Service

New York Branch
RKO Building, Rockefeller Center
New York, N. Y.

Mar. 19, 1935

Mr. Herman Stern
Universal Film Exchanges, Inc.
1250 Sixth Avenue
New York City

Dear Mr. Stern:-

I will appreciate it if you will furnish me with a new special opening for use with the Universal News reel at Fort Monmouth, where both issues are shown weekly.

As you know, the Universal News, due to its rating as offering the best of values in variety and news interest, is being shown on regular schedules at Army Camps, Posts and Stations throughout the country.

The comments on your News have been highly satisfactory and commendable to the extent that warrants our continuing the showing of this reel at War Department Theatres. Another factor is the good service we always receive from your various exchanges.

With kindest personal regards, I am
Yours very truly,
(Signed) THOMAS H. MARTELL
Director of Bookings

Martin Opens Another In A Growing Chain

Photograph of the Campus Theatre of Milledgeville, Georgia, which R. E. Martin built and opened last week as the nineteenth theatre in his extremely successful chain in Georgia, Alabama and Florida.

MILLEDGEVILLE, GEORGIA, MARCH 23, 1935—

All records were smashed in Milledgeville's theatre history last Monday night when over 5000 people attended the opening of the beautiful new Martin Theatre, "The Campus."

The play house, which was completed a few days before the opening at a cost exceeding $50,000, was opened to the public at one o'clock for inspection. When the first show started at three, everyone of the 1328 seats was taken and it was necessary to give four performances before the crowds could be accommodated and even then it was necessary to turn several hundred people away.

Mr. Roy Martin, head of the Martin chain of theatres, with General Manager, A. E. Adams and managers of other play houses in his organization were here for the opening and appeared on the stage with a group of Milledgeville citizens who expressed appreciation to him for his faith in Milledgeville and the future. Later in the evening Mr. Martin entertained at a banquet at Milledgeville's Country Club.

The theatre is modern in every detail and is one of the most beautiful in the state. Stage shows will be presented in connection with the regular run of pictures. Mr. Frank D. Adams, who operated one of the first picture houses in Milledgeville, is manager of the new theatre, and he is receiving a cordial welcome back to Milledgeville by his legion of friends.

Binnie Barnes as Lillian Russell in "Diamond Jim"

BINNIE BARNES GLORIFIES Lillian Russell in "Diamond Jim"

"DIAMOND JIM" is well into production. From the standpoint of story, entertainment value, public interest and cast, "Diamond Jim" promises to be one of the greatest lead-off pictures ever made. Aapted by Preston Sturges, Parker Morell, its author, and Harry Clork and Doris Malloy, it has every advantage in transposition from a best selling novel to a screenplay. In Edward Sutherland it has a talented, successful and sympathetic director.

Its cast has been carried out with the utmost care and with an eye to the box-office. Edward Arnold, of course, plays Diamond Jim, the man who made the gay nineties gay. He is James Buchanan Brady to the last gasp, and has been equipped with a full set of amazing jewelry which gave Diamond Jim his name. Everyone is anticipating a tremendous performance from the actor who will have in "Diamond Jim" an opportunity to capture the coveted Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences Award next year.

Binnie Barnes plays Lillian Russell. Edmund Grainger, who is producing the picture told her that if she would gain ten pounds, he would give her the role of Lillian Russell. Who wouldn't sacrifice ten pounds to play the most beautiful actress that ever appeared on the American stage? Binnie Barnes, of course, was delighted to gain ten pounds and took a chance on losing it afterwards. And Binnie Barnes is going to play Lillian Russell as she conceives Lillian Russell would play herself, if she lived in this day and generation, instead of 1900.

The last thing Binnie Barnes wants to do is to make Lillian Russell look corn-fed, hour-glassed and hefty in an era when grace, slenderness and unstayed figures are the vogue.

The role of John L. Sullivan as a young man has been entrusted to William Hoolahahn, former Fordham collegian, professional wrestler, boxer and actor. He is six feet, two, and weighs two hundred pounds and, according to Parker Morell, is ideal in every way. The romantic leads are in the hands of Jean Arthur, who gave such a splendid account of herself in "The Whole Town's Talking," and Cesar Romero, who played the romantic lead in "Cardinal Richelieu."

✚ ✚ ✚

"BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN" A TREMENDOUS SMASH

(Continued from Page 8)

pointed out the picture is not suitable for children, but over the week-end many parents brought their families.

Joffee decided he would not refuse admission since, he said measures taken with the previous "Frankenstein" picture and other horror films, such as age limitations and the sale of only adult admissions, have proved to be subterfuges and parents cannot be prevented from bringing their children.

Two late trade reviews are also worthy of comments. Bob Wagner's Script says:

The physical laboratory is so spectacularly well done that the preview audience cheered. John Mescall's camera work kept the horror mood throughout and his shots of the electric explosions are nothing short of sensational.

Karloff again appears as the male monster—marvelous make-up and fine performance. Elsa Lanchester is perfectly cast, first as Mary Shelley and later as the monstrous mate made in the laboratory. Extraordinary eyes.

James Whale directs with fine intelligence, never letting the horror stuff tip over far enough to get an audience-reaction of kidding. Franz Waxman's music is dramatic and at all times keeps to the horror motif. Gilbert Kurland triumphs with his sound effects.

This is a knock-out.

—Rob Wagner

Cinema Hall Marks of April 29th says:

Its reviewer gives it next to the highest rating in its power.

"BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN," (Universal) should do a better business than "Frankenstein" (made in 1931) because all the people who wanted to see "Frankenstein" but missed it will flock to see its sequel, and all who saw "Frankenstein" will want to see them do the same thing with a woman's body that they did with a man's.

Action TO SPARE!

MORE LOADED WITH RIDING, SHOOTING AND DARING ESCAPADES THAN ANY BUCK JONES FEATURE YOU EVER SAW!

Buck JONES in Border Brigands

A Universal Picture with LONA ANDRE FRED KOHLER . . . Directed by NICK GRINDE . . . Produced by Irving Starr.

UNIVERSAL

SHORTS

AND THIS IS ONLY ONE OF THE NUMEROUS LETTERS OF PRAISE THAT POUR IN EVERY WEEK TO CONFIRM UNIVERSAL'S LEADERSHIP IN THE BIG-MONEY SHORTS!...

OXNARD THEATRES, INC.
OXNARD, CALIFORNIA.

March 9th, 1935.

A. J. O'Keefe,
Universal Film Exchanges, Inc.,
1960 So. Vermont Ave.,
Los Angeles, Cal.

Dear Mr. O'Keefe -

We have just finished playing the latest of your Mentone 2-reel Musicals, - "MEET THE PROFESSOR". These are really so good that we want to compliment you sincerely on these 2-reelers. "MEET THE PROFESSOR" is the finest short of its type we have played this year, and this same thing applies to all of this Mentone series. You are to be complimented on producing the best musical shorts of the season.

In discussing the short subjects of the current season with my partner, Paul Dietrich, we both agree that all of the Universal short subjects, including Oswald Cartoons, Stranger Than Fiction, Going Places with Lowell Thomas and your Colored Cartunes are by far the most outstanding so far this year.

Very truly yours,

OXNARD THEATRES, INC.
By Harry Feldstein

IDEAS THAT ARE Clicking!

Seymour L. Morris, enterprising showman from the Palace Theatre, Oneonta, N. Y., unwittingly started a local "war" with his campaign for "IT HAPPENED IN NEW YORK." Made a deal with taxi company to take people to and from theatre for the price of a one way ride. Taxi company announced tie-up in local paper with other cooperative ads. Next day, rival taxi company announced FREE ROUND TRIP rides to see "IT HAPPENED IN NEW YORK!" Which gave Morris a swell break as the newspaper naturally made a news story out of the incident.

We can't pass Morris without mentioning his stunt for "NIGHT LIFE OF THE GODS." Put a man on street dressed as Santa Claus, in April, mind you! On his jacket he carried a sign reading: "If You Think This Is Crazy —Wait Until You See "NIGHT LIFE OF THE GODS" at the Palace.

* * *

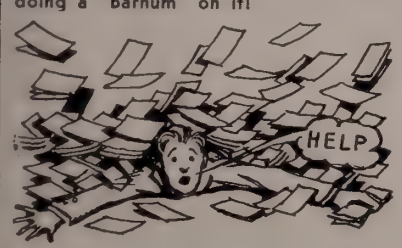
Manager Myron Van Beuren, Majestic, Grand Rapids, Michigan, organized several theatre parties made up of members of women's clubs, girls who are Margaret Sullavan fans, and the entire Alpha Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi, for his showing of "THE GOOD FAIRY." The theatre parties not only helped the box-office but spread plenty word-of-mouth advertising on the picture.

* * *

Credit Dick Belber, Manager of the Walt Whitman in Camden, for an ambitious telephone campaign on "THE GOOD FAIRY." Put two telephone girls to work calling every home in the city to tell the folks about Margaret Sullavan's new picture. Unlimited telephone service, so cost a trifle. Among other things, five-day advance posting of 24-sheets, covered every road within a nine mile radius. Nice work, Dick!

SWAMPED!

While "BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN" is cracking records at the box-office, it is cracking a new kind of record at the Universal Home Office. Although Universal tripled its accessory orders on this road-show attraction—ALL ACCESSORIES WERE SOLD OUT BEFORE THE PICTURE PLAYED IN ANY THEATRE! Andy Sharick has been forced to reorder 24 sheets three times! Roto heralds, snipes and all the other sock accessories likewise. Ample proof that theatres are wide awake to the immense exploitation possibilities on this picture. And doing a "Barnum" on it!



THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY SHOWMANSHIP SECTION

A DIGEST OF THE BEST EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

"East coast—west coast— All around the land—!"

WE TOLD YOU SO!

Above is reproduced, in miniature, a postcard circulated to the trade one month ago by Universal. When we mailed it—it was a forecast. As you see it now, the prediction has turned to fact. The "BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN" is a socko hit!

On other pages of this Weekly you will see the Variety reports reproduced. " 'Bride of Frankenstein'—smash business in Frisco—held over!" "Biggest ever at Pantages, Hollywood—Held over!" "Chicago sweli business—extended run!" "Portland, Oregon — Held over." "Kansas City—just opened—record breaking! "San Diego, Calif.—smash!"

These are only the first few runs. As we write this, the picture is opening in key spots throughout the country. Watch the smacko business everywhere! . Check what we say in the trade papers!

Our hat is off to the men who produced this box-office natural. The newspaper critics reach to the sky for adjectives to describe its superb thrill-shock showmanship!

Our hat goes off a second time—and it stays off—to the crackerjack showmen who know a swell piece of box-office property when they see it and have gotten behind "BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN" in monster style!

They have enjoyed that grand and glorious feeling of putting everything they had into a bangup campaign and then sat back to listen to the sweet music of the Niagara of coin pouring through the box-office windows! The tinkle that tickles tops!

"BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN," said the monster,—"I love you!" "Says you!" chorus the showmen exhibitors—"Says we, too!"

JOE WEIL

6000 ENTER MONSTRES CHICAGO GOES "BRIDE

Portions of the huge crowd that lined u early on opening day for "BRIDE O FRANKENSTEIN" at the Palace, Chicag The lobby was jammed and the line exten ed for hundreds of feet, in triple formatio

"IT'S a record!" yelled Harold Essex, promotion manager of the Chicago Times when six thousand entries in the "BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN" drawing contest, a pressbook idea sponsored by the RKO Palace Theatre, Chicago, swept into the newspaper office in a few days. This response gives ample evidence of how Chicago had gone "BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN" crazy when the picture was announced.

The competition, which offered cash and ticket prizes for the best fill-in jobs on the face of the "bride," was one of a series of bang-up stunts in a smash showmanship campaign that, according to Nate Blumberg, R.K.O. chief, carried the picture through one of the swell weeks of the year for the Palace Theatre, and into a second, extended run week at the first-run Apollo. Frank Smith, Palace Manager, and John Joseph R. K. O. division publicity chief, handled the campaign with the assistance of Duke Hickey, Universal Exploiteer.

The Emotion Test, which will be explained in more detail in a later issue, was successfully engineered with the cooperation of Verne S. Lyon, Psychologist at the Institute of Juvenile Research. The test was made with what is known as the Behavior Research Photopolygraph using as subjects two girls, one five and the other twenty-five years old, as they watched the picture. Newspaper photographers and reporters were invited, and in addition to the space given by the Herald and Examiner, as shown below, news stories were put on the Associated and United Press wires.

Hammering away with the shock thrill angle a first aid booth, following the pressbook suggestion, was erected in the lobby two weeks in advance. During the engagement the

CHICAGO HERALD AND EXAMINER

WHO'S THRILLED MOST

ADULT? Movie Provides Test CHILD?

EMOTION COUNT—Muriel Highland, 25, undergoes the emotional reaction test with Dr. V. D. Lyon, psychologist of the Institute of Juvenile Research keeping check on the registering device

SEEING A MOVIE—Dorothy La Verne, 5, takes the test with Dr. Lyon. She and an adult were subjected to the registering machine similar to the lie detector to determine their relative reaction.

Herald and Examiner photos.

RESULT—What emotions look like during a movie thriller, according to science.

Children vs. adults in a thriller scene.

"Which shows the most emotion"

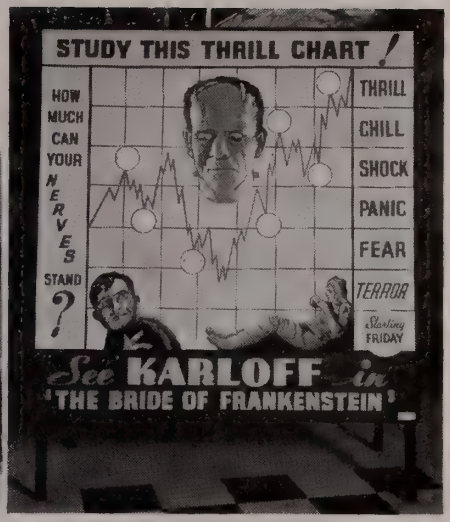
Child psychologists differ whether grownups or their offspring get more excited. The Institute for Juvenile Research, 907 S. Lincoln st., arranged yesterday for a test.

Emotion-detecting machines similar to the "lie detector," were used. Wriggly curves traced the subjects reactions while they watched the guaranteed-to-make-your-hair-stand-up scenes of a motion picture, "The Bride of Frankenstein."

The curves showed how blood pressure, breathing and other functions varied in synchronism with the picture's big moments. The results will be studied.

ABOVE: Two column newspaper space devoted to the emotion test part of "Bride of Frankenstein" Palace, Chicago, campaign. RIGHT: Window display of Mandell Brothers' Cinema Fashion Shop, with professional mannikin.

DRAWING CONTEST AS FRANKENSTEIN" WILD!



effect of this stunt was heightened by placing in attendance two registered nurses equipped with table containing first-aid necessities. On the opening day there were three legitimate "scare" casualties requiring the services of the nurses and, incidentally, supplying material for an extra news story.

Opposite the booth a thrill chart, (shown in upper right) which also followed the pressbook suggestion, was given a two weeks' advance display. It was equipped with flasher lights, giving the display the added advantage of animation.

Surrounded by several accessory 14 x 17 colored enlargements on the picture, a professional manikin modeled evening gowns in a window of Mandel Brothers Cinema Fashion Shop. The stunt created considerable attention in the busy "Loop" district.

The high spot of the front display was an animated hanging sign with cut-out figures of the monster and the bride. As the monster's arms raised up and down, the body of the woman rose from a cofin, producing a decidedly weird effect.

A series of advance teaser trailers were used four weeks before the opening, drawing gasps from the audience between numbers of the program. The regular trailer was added the week before opening.

Special news stories, featuring the psychological effects of horror films on children, were placed in the local papers. The Chicago Daily News devoted an entire page, profusely illustrated, to a special production story. Another newspaper featured an article on moving picture make-up stressing the unusually weird one used by Karloff in this picture.

ABOVE: Emergency booth used as lobby ballyhoo in advance and during run. An adaptation of pressbook suggestion. LEFT: Giant advance display in foyer.

This reproduction typifies daily space alloted drawing contest by Chicago Daily Times. Stunt drew over six thousand entries!

Sending it off to smash openings!

(1.) Shrieking 7 column streamer teaser ad used by Rodney Pantages, for the Pantages, Los Angeles. (5.) and (7.) Balance of Pantages ad campaign—2 columns x 11" and 1 column x 1¾". (2.) Swell single column x 12½" ad used by Eddie Rivers and William Champion at Hamrick's Orpheum, Portland, Ore. (3.) and (8.) Two fine ads, by the same boys, for Orpheum, Seattle, Wash. 2 columns x 5" and 1 column x 3". (4.) and (6.) Dynamic attention getters from Hal Neides, for Orpheum, San Francisco,—1 column x 4½" and 3 columns x 7½".

Dazzling!

THE OPENING GUN OF UNIVERSAL'S GREATEST SEASON!

DIAMOND JIM

Starring

EDWARD ARNOLD
JEAN ARTHUR
BINNIE BARNES

Cesar Romero + George Sidney + Hugh O'Connell Eric Blore . . . From Parker Morell's best-selling novel . . . Directed by Edward Sutherland . . . An Edmund Grainger Production.

From
UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.
ROCKEFELLER CENTER
NEW YORK CITY

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
Paid
Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

ROBERT B WENNER
22 CROSS ST
MALDEN MASS

WHETHER IT HAPPENED IN ZANZIBAR OR ZION . . . THEY'LL SEE IT FIRST AS UNIVERSAL NEWS!

with
GRAHAM McNAMEE

Printed in U.S.A.

Larry Edmunds Bookshop
6658 Hollywood Blvd.
Hollywood, Calif. 90028
HO 3-3273
World's Largest Collection
Of Books on Motion Pictures

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
VOL. 36, NO. 25
JULY 13, 1935

Alice Brady
at her funniest best
in the comedy smash of the year
LADY TUBBS

He can

EAT

more than six men at one sitting!

He can

DRINK

a gallon of orange juice after a meal!

He can

SLEEP

in a boiler factory!

He can

MAKE

more money for you than any picture Universal's ever made!

"DIAMOND JIM"

EDWARD ARNOLD

JEAN ARTHUR

BINNIE BARNES

The Roll of Honor

OKLAHOMA CITY EXCHANGE

R. I. PAYNE, Manager

Exhibitors Who Have Used Universal Pictures Continuously for 3 Years

EXHIBITOR	THEATRE	TOWN	EXHIBITOR	THEATRE	TOWN
Ray Rector	Columbia	Anadarko, Okla.	D. C. Crites	Alamo	Higgins, Tex.
D. Bredbeck	Grand	Canton, Okla.	Fred G. Vincent	Pettit	Hominy, Okla.
W. E. Wolfenbarger	Nu Art	Cordell, Okla.	T. Miller Davidge	Ritz	Madill, Okla.
Lester Miller	Palace	Coweta, Okla.	Pat Duffy	Rialto	Mangum, Okla.
Bob Powell, Jr.	Gem	Dumas, Tex.	Hollis Boren	Palace	Memphis, Tex.
Allen Adam	Alta	Forgan, Okla.	J. Rudolph Smith	Royal	Mt. View, Okla.
Joe McDaniel	Ritz	Gage, Okla.	Sam Caporal	Yale	Okla. City, Okla.
W. E. Barringer	Broadway	Geary, Okla.	Mrs. E. Mohrbacher	Savoy	Prague, Okla.
D. Buffo	Liberty	Hartshorne, Okla.	F. M. Oliver	Liberty	Shamrock, Tex.
			John H. Forrester, Jr.	Pines	Waldron, Ark.

For Five Years

EXHIBITOR	THEATRE	TOWN
H. A. Walling	Princess	Bristow, Okla.
D. A. White	Nusho	Collinsville, Okla.
Geo. Graff	Ritz	Crescent, Okla
J. G. Bennett	Strand-Midwest	Drumright, Okla.
W. J. Chesher	Palace	Littlefield, Tex.
Wm. Slepka	Crystal-Jewel	Okemah, Okla.
Mrs. A. T. Waldron	Blue Moon	Okla. City, Okla.
W. P. Moran	Southwestern Theatres	12 houses
P. R. Isley	in Okla. and Missouri
Roy McAmis	Princess	Sayre, Okla.
Roy McAmis	Max	Erick, Okla.
Ralph Talbot	4 houses	Tulsa, Okla.
Northrup & Brown	Dreamland	Tulsa, Okla.
A. R. Patterson	Wollam	Walters, Okla.
Ed Crew	Empress	Waurika, Okla.
J. P. Terry	Key-Paramount	Wewoka, Okla.
D. V. Terry	Woodward-Terry	Woodward, Okla.

For 10 Years or Since Have Been in Business

EXHIBITOR	THEATRE	TOWN
Griffith Amusement Co.	Operating 100 theatres	In Oklahoma, Texas and N. Mexico
Loomis & Enloe	Criterion-Royal & Empress	El Reno, Okla.
R. D. Howell	Grand-Liberty	Holdenville, Okla.
Mrs. Margaret Day	Dome	Lawton, Okla.
Proctor & Marsh	Ritz-Bdwy-Yale	Muskogee, Okla.
F. M. Phipps	Palace & Monogram	Childress, Tex.
A. R. Bender	Melba	Cleveland, Okla.
R & R Theatres	Metro & Ritz	Durant
R & R Theatres	Okla. & Mecca	McAlester
R & R Theatres	(see above)	Muskogee, Okla.
E. G. Kadane	Ramona & Grand	Frederick, Okla.
E. R. Adams	American	McLean, Tex.
Frank Miller	Whiteway	Marlow, Okla.
L. E. Brewer	Royal	Pauls Valley, Okla.
F. B. Pickrel	Poncan-Murray & Ritz	Ponca City, Okla.
Kemp & Hughes	Victory	Poteau, Okla.
Kemp & Hughes	Liberty	Heavener, Okla.
Kemp & Hughes	Grand	Dequeen, Ark.
Arthur A. Keys	Texan-Old Court	Quanah, Tex.
Claud Thorp	Gem	Ryan, Okla.
John McGinley	American	Wilburton, Okla.

IT'S PHE

IRENE DUNNE

in JOHN M. STAHL'S Production

"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION"

From the famous best-seller by Lloyd C. Douglas with ROBERT TAYLOR, Ann Sothern and Charles Butterworth

•

MARGARET SULLAVAN

and

FRANCIS LEDERER

in Ursula Parrott's newest story

"NEXT TIME WE LOVE"

•

No other company in the industry can boa row, released one after another for the NOMENAL!

WILLIAM POWELL
in
"MY MAN GODFREY"
From the recent Liberty Magazine serial by Eric Hatch

•

IRENE DUNNE
in EDNA FERBER'S immortal
"SHOW BOAT"
Music by Jerome Kern Directed by James Whale
A CARL LAEMMLE, Jr. PRODUCTION

•

HOWARD HAWKS' PRODUCTION OF
"SUTTER'S GOLD"
From epic novel by Blaise Cendrars. Screenplay by Gene Fowler t five such tremendous productions in a nd-up of Universal's Current Season!

UNIVERSAL PROVES THAT

No. 821 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

Thirty-one weeks of first run on Broadway are now guaranteed to Universal!

This in spite of the fact that Universal hasn't ten cents worth of interest in any Broadway theatre!

Thirty-one weeks of guaranteed first runs on Broadway are all that Universal (or any other company) would have the nerve to ask for, even if we owned all of the first run houses on Broadway.

No company in this business has ever produced more than thirty-one pictures per year worthy of a Broadway first run. Few have ever reached such a big percentage in a year, even though they owned first run theatres.

Thirty-one big weeks out of fifty-two is a very large percentage in this business.

If you could be assured of thirty-one big weeks out of every year, you would be rather happy and very lucky. You would be perfectly satisfied to break even during all the rest of the weeks of the year.

But this percentage of thirty-one weeks out of fifty-two is even larger than it looks. Universal does not produce 52 pictures per year. It produces only 42, including its westerns.

BLOCK BOOKING IS OKAY

So, out of only 42 pictures including westerns, Universal has a guaranty of thirty-one weeks of first run on Broadway.

I don't believe this percentage has ever been equalled.

It is not only a convincing argument in favor of Universal's new list of pictures, but it is a sweeping argument in favor of block booking — block booking as practiced by Universal.

This very minute, as I write these words, big and little exhibitors, chain theatres and independents, are signing up for Universal's entire output for 1935-36.

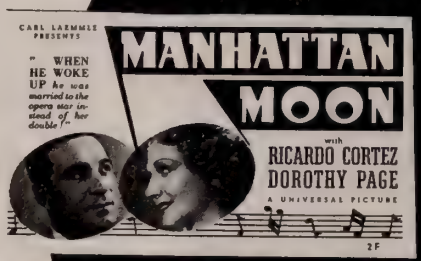
Why? Simply because they know that in the course of the year they are going to get the best of it and make a handsome profit.

Universal takes a rather keen pride in justifying block booking. Universal is somewhat happy to prove, for the whole trade, that block booking enables thousands of theatres to do business at a profit rather than at a loss.

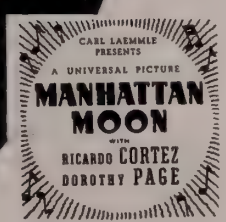
Block booking may be a political foot-ball for your senator or congressman, but it is meat and drink to you if you do your block booking through Universal.

Carl Laemmle

YOU'LL SING ITS PRAIS



S WITH BANKNOTES! . . .



UNIVERSAL SET BOTH EAST AND WEST BEST IN 29 YEARS

Howard S. Cullman and James R. Grainger signing contract for Universal product for the Roxy Theatre, while Harry Arthur, Fanchon & Marco's executive looks on in Mr. Cullman's penthouse apartment.

UNIVERSAL pictures are all set in two of the most important releasing points in the country, New York City, and Los Angeles.

James R. Grainger, general manager of distribution for Universal Pictures, this week announced a playing arrangement in the city of Los Angeles which gives Universal Pictures the finest representation they have ever had in the picture making capital in the history of the company. By this arrangement, the entire list of Universal's thirty-six features will play day and date in two Los Angeles houses. One is the RKO Hillstreet, downtown house, and the other is the Pantages Theatre, Hollywood, in which the product has been played during the current season.

In order to effect this arrangement, Rodney Pantages and W. J. Heineman, western district manager of Universal, came to New York, where the deal was worked out with the RKO officials in Mr. Grainger's office.

Pressing hard on the heels of the Universal-RKO Hillstreet Pantages deal in Los Angeles, J. R. Grainger, general manager of distribution, yesterday announced the terms of the deal by which Universal will be assured of at least thirty-one first-run weeks in New York City. Yesterday, in the office of Howard S. Cullman, Mr. Grainger and Mr. Cullman signed a contract which calls for the showing of twenty-six Universal feature pictures in the Roxy Theatre during the coming season. This is the most important and extensive first-run contract Universal ever secured in New York City. It is also the biggest con-

(Continued on Page 27)

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, N. Y. City
Universal Pictures Corp.
Copyrighted 1935
(All Rights Reserved)
JULY 13, 1935
Vol. 36 No. 25

The Preview Parade of UNIVERSAL PICTURES

DOROTHY PAGE

—In "Manhattan Moon"

. . . her voice beguiles . . .

The millions who "listen-in" know her golden voice well.

Now, for the first time they will see it matched by her golden loveliness.

Dorothy Page, songbird who swept to stardom on the air, warbles the lilting tunes in "MANHATTAN MOON" and this Page by name will be paged by fame before many moons.

RICARDO CORTEZ

Some of the melodies in which she puts magic are "First Kiss," "My Other Me," and the title number "Manhattan Moon" which licks all the other lunar lyrics.

As a little girl in Gotham, Dorothy Page meets Ricardo Cortez, a big boy on Broadway, and a madcap romance ensues amidst the topless towers of the merry metropolis.

Among those present: Hugh O'Connell, Luis Alberni, Henry Armetta.

It's fine company for the new screen find and perfectly calculated to precipitate a Grace Moore furore. It's entertainment suited to the season and made-to-order for the music-minded.

Names! Dames! Love-games! Tunes! Moons! Buffoons! Here's a Manhattan cocktail that's a box-office tonic!

—JACTHALL

31

FIRST-RUN WEEKS ON BROADWAY FOR UNIVERSAL

— which doesn't own a Broadway Theatre!

Howard S. Cullman books 26 of Universal's 1935–36 productions for the N. Y. Roxy, the largest contract he ever signed with any company!

Radio City Music Hall buys 5 of Universal's current season's productions while they're still before the camera!

WATCH UNIVERSAL — because Universal WATCHES THE BOX-OFFICE!

Zasu PITTS

Hugh O'CONNELL

MR. AND MRS. AMERICA ARE WAITING FOR THESE NEWEST SCREAM-MATES!

They're laughing already at the thought of Zasu as a comedy G-Woman and Hugh as a fast-talking promoter! . . . With Helen Twelvetrees, Lucien Littlefield, Warren Hymer, Ed Brophy, Ward Bond and Virginia Grey . . . Directed by William Nigh . . . David Diamond, Associate Producer.

IN

"SHE GETS HER MAN"

READ WHAT TH

"Swell comedy . . . It's a field day for Alice Brady and a three-ring circus for her audience when she's fitted out with such a trouping part as 'Lady Tubbs' offers her! . . . The audience troops after her shrieking with laughter, and everybody has a gorgeous time!"

—Hollywood Reporter

"Picture has been kept broad and fast in pace, without ever getting away from the mass level . . . is liberally studded with laughs!"

—Daily Variety

"Rollicking farce, well played and directed . . . provides many laughs in this picture!"

—Motion Picture Daily

SHE'S A PANIC!

EY'RE SAYING:

CARL LAEMMLE

presents

Lady TUBBS

A UNIVERSAL PICTURE WITH

ALICE BRADY ~ DOUGLASS MONTGOMERY

ANITA LOUISE ~ JUNE CLAYWORTH

ALAN MOWBRAY

MILDRED HARRIS ~ HEDDA HOPPER

PHYLLIS BROOKS

From the novel by Homer Croy Directed by Alan Crosland

L. L. Ostrow Associate Producer

Alice Brady in one of the funniest scenes of "Lady Tubbs" which is a swell comedy.

"LADY TUB

"LADY TUBBS" burst on the Universal Home Office without any previous realization of how marvelous a comedy it really is. All the superlatives in the dictionary can be used for this picture. Its preview audiences went nuts about it; the trade reviewers in Hollywood all acclaimed it; the San Francisco preview audience laughed until it was sick, and the unprepared reviewers raved about it. All in all, "Lady Tubbs" is a royal entertainment.

"SWELL COMEDY"

Says The Hollywood Reporter

IT'S a field day for Alice Brady and a three-ring circus for her audience when she's fitted out with such a trouping part as Lady Tubbs offers her in this adaptation of Homer Croy's novel.

She's Ma Tubbs, construction camp cook on a western railroad when the story opens, and Lady Tubbs, sportswoman par excellence, mistress of the fox hounds, and the winner in every event she enters before the last laugh has died away. In between, she inherits half a million from a lonesome baronet she had befriended and all but forgotten, acquires a load of Continental dog and accent, confounds her niece's persecutors by digging up their poor relations, captivates a jolly old British aristocrat, irons out Anita Louise's romance and grabs a title for herself.

Miss Brady romps through the story with just the right amount of comedy and minus the broad farcial tempo so many of her late roles have demanded of her. The audience troops after her, shrieking with laughter, like Mrs. Ash-Orcutt's guests following the pack, and everybody has a gorgeous time.

It's ninety per cent Alice's picture, of course, but Alan Mowbray, is an admirable foil for her as the British lawyer and baronet who is her mentor through the mazes of culture and society. Anita Louise makes a charming niece, a trifle self-conscious at times, but thoroughly lovable. Douglass Montgomery suffered from too much accent most of the time. Hedda Hopper, Lumsden Hare and Virginia Hammond were all admirable. A dozen other actors contributed excellent characterizations.

Crosland's direction is smooth and skillful. Barry Trivers' screen play is a smart and clever contribution to the general success of the picture. Brodine's photography is top-hole.

"ENJOYABLE COMEDY"

Says Pete Harrison

AN enjoyable program comedy; it has human interest and suspense. The comedy is provoked by Alice Brady's attempts to become a lady so as to establish a social background for her niece, who was in love with a young society man. The funniest situation is that in which she goes fox hunting, riding a horse for the first time, and not understanding any of the hunt terms used. The fact that she is the first to arrive at the catch adds to the comedy because it is by accident that this happens. The closing scenes hold one in suspense besides being amusing, for in making known her deception she uncovers facts about her society friends that puts them all on the same level. The love interest is pleasant.

✚ ✚ ✚

"ROLLICKING FARCE"

Says M. P. Daily

THE smart screen play by Barry Trivers from the Homer Croy novel and Alan Crosland's direction keep things moving merrily. Hedda Hopper, Lumsden Hare and June Clayworth stand out in support, although the brunt of the picture is carried by Miss Brady and Mowbray.

The pictures s Stanley Bergerman's curtain effort for the company and the production is a credit to him.

BS" IS A WOW!

Audiences want to laugh in hot weather and we are still not far enough out of the depression to throw a A KNOCKOUT marvelous comedy like this over our shoulder. It belongs in your theatre as soon as you can possibly book it in. Don't delay. Don't procrastinate. Get busy on it today.

It will do a lot to make your theatre a riot of fun and a barrel of money. Don't take our word for it. Read these previews and reviews from the critics. Then go out and get behind this swell comedy, as it deserves, and make a lot of money for yourself and a lot of friends of your patrons. EDITOR

'SWELL AUDIENCE PLEASER'

Says Joe Blair in Showman's Trade Review — "Fine Acting By All"

SUMMARY: In any man's town or theatre picture audiences must have their laughs, periodically at least. Here is a picture that can rock any theatre with laughter, clean fare and can positively be listed as family fodder. Word of mouth advertising should build proceeding showings. It's the best role Alice Brady has ever enacted for the screen. Montgomery and Anita Louise do well as the young lovers while Alan Mowbray and Lumsden Hare, always perfect in silly ass roles, turn in fine performances. The story is fine and Crosland's work is near perfect. Play up Alice Brady as the new Marie Dressler and if there is a construction camp near your theatre, arrange a tie-up with workers on SERA idea. There is a fox hunt scene in the picture, very funny, which should be ideal for a street stunt. Have your lunch stands, hamburger and even the best restaurants run a "Lady Tubbs" special. Don't ask what—just anything so long as the title is tied in. (FAMILY)

JOE BLAIR, Hollywood

✚ ✚ ✚

FRISCO SAID IT WAS A RIOT

Universal took "Lady Tubbs" up to San Francisco for its preview and here are the comments of the San Francisco papers.

The Call Bulletin says: " 'Lady Tubbs' is the perfect light comedy. If nominations are still open for a successor to Marie Dressler, it goes to Alice Brady, considerably younger, but with the same plain punch. As Lady Tubbs, she's grand. She is given wide sweep by Homer Croy's story, abundance of riotously funny lines and fine support."

Katherine Hill in the Chronicle: "Alice Brady is a grand comedienne and she enjoys a veritable field day in 'Lady Tubbs.' "

Ernest S. Lenn in the News, says: "Alice Brady cavorts delightfully in 'Lady Tubbs.' Miss Brady proves conclusively that she can handle a character part and make it convincing, while studding it with ingratiating light comedy."

A. H. in the Examiner says: "A thoroughly entertaining picture from the novel by Homer Croy gives Alice Brady a real opportunity to disclose her ability as a comedienne. A capital supporting cast is headed by Alan Mowbray."

"Broad Comedy," Says Daily Variety

BROAD comedy of social pretensions, "Lady Tubbs" provides Alice Brady with a farcical romp. Picture has been kept broad and fast in pace without ever getting away from the mass level, is liberally studded with laughs. Alice Brady scores in the best role she has had in a long time.

"Rib Tickling Comedy," Says McCarthy in Motion Picture Herald

WHAT this picture may lack in the way of outstanding names is adequately compensated in the amusement and exploitation worth of its story and production values. Spun out of the popular stuff that makes for rib-tickling comedy, laughs come thick and fast in its action, dialogue and situations. Additionally, the locales are colorful and interesting, running all the way from a rough and tough railroad construction camp to the swanky domains of the pseudo-elite.

Get the patrons to understand that this is enjoyable comedy with a definite appeal to all classes and give it the brand of showmanship to which it is entitled.

McCARTHY—Hollywood

"AUDIENCE REACTION TRI says JOE

about Universal's

"DIAMOND JIM"

First of the Big Productions for 1935-36

Produced by EDMUND GRAINGER

Directed by EDWARD SUTHERLAND

RELEASED SEPTEMBER 2, 1935

MENDOUS"

BLUMENFELD*

✱ And Joe Blumenfeld ought to know, because he's one of America's outstanding exhibitors, president of Blumenfeld Theatre Corp. and operator of the following California houses:—

Roxie, Oakland
Oaks, Berkley
Sierra, Sacramento
Sierra, Stockton
American, Oakland
Del Paso, North Sacramento
Sequoia, Mill Valley
Tamalpais, San Anselmo
El Camino, San Rafael

WHEN BUSINESS

REPEAT "IMITA

Hundreds of smart exhibito up! . . . Hundreds of others ideal way to beat the hot w has had 140 repeat bookin

delphia and 70 in Chicago

1,000 theatres, many first-r

"Imitation of Life"

IS HARD TO GET
TION OF LIFE"!

have done it and cleaned e doing it now! . . . It's the ather! . . . "Imitation of Life" in New York, 110 in Phila-alone! . . . To date almost s included, have re-booked ne or more times!

LATEST UNIVERSAL CITY PRODU

Randolph Scott, handsome actor, who is now supporting Margaret Sullavan in "So Red the Rose," chosen by Carl Laemmle, Jr., for the lead in "The Hangover Murders."

THE cast that Carl Laemmle, Jr., has selected for his first production for Universal for next season, "The Hangover Murders," is one of those 100% affairs. It is what one would expect from this young producer who is now devoting his entire time to production, rather than to administrative work.

He has borrowed Randolph Scott from Paramount, where he is completing his role in support of Margaret Sullavan in "So Red the Rose."

He has recalled Edward Arnold from a personal appearance tour, and he is now on the way to Hollywood.

Three other members of the cast have also been chosen. They are Robert Armstrong, Frances Drake and Ed. Brophy.

"The Hangover Murders" is the sensational novel of Long Island high society life by Adam Hobhouse. James Whale will direct it from a screenplay by Harry Clork, Doris Malloy and Dan Totheroh.

AIR WAR MADE REAL IN "STORM OVER THE ANDES"

AWARTIME airport, complete with hangers and administration offices, has been constructed by Universal Pictures Corporation at Triunfo, California, for outdoor scenes of the screenplay "Storm Over the Andes," starring Jack Holt and being directed by W. Christy Cabanne. The production deals with the activities of air forces in a South American war. This week Cabanne took a hundred people to the new movie war zone.

The airport and buildings, costing $50,000 to construct, will be headquarters for 14 modern fighting planes, including six observation planes, six combat planes and two bombers, the latter having a speed of more than 200 miles an hour. The ships are being flown by former World War and commercial fliers who have from 3,000 to 7,000 hours of flying to their credit.

The activity of the picture will center at Triunfo for more than ten days. Several "dog" fights will be staged, in addition to the strafing of the airport by machine gunners, the bombing of two specially constructed ammunition depots, and the loading and unloading of the giant bombers.

Among those working on location are Jack Holt, Antonio Moreno, Mona Barrie, Gene Lockhart, Grant Withers, Barry Norton, George Lewis, Jose Crespo, Juanita Garfias, Lupita Tovar, and Romualdo Tirado. Lieutenant-Commander Frank Wead, Hollywood's most experienced war scenarist, adapted "Storm Over the Andes."

DEMAND BINNIE BARNES

AT the Universal convention in Chicago several weeks ago, it was the unanimous vote of the assembled sales managers that Binnie Barnes be cast as the lead in Nina Wilcox Putnam's story, "Her Excellency, the Governor." This sales opinion was given to Mr. Laemmle at the convention. Upon his arrival at Universal City yesterday, he issued the required orders for Binnie Barnes to play the role and also nominated Stuart Walker to direct the picture.

The adaptation of "Her Excellency, the Governor," was made by Rose Franken, author of "Another Language" and the screenplay is by Miss Franken and R. C. Sherriff. Production cannot get under way until Binnie Barnes completes her role with William Powell in "The Black Chamber" for Metro.

TO DIRECT MAY ROBSON

UNIVERSAL yesterday designated Edward Ludwig to direct the May Robson starring picture for next year. The story selected is "Three Kids and a Queen" by Harry Poppe and Chester Beecroft. The screenplay was completed yesterday by Barry Trivers and production will get under way as soon as May Robson returns.

TION NEWS

Beauty and the Beasts in Universal's "Stormy"

Arizona Wranglers Make Debut in Unique Picture Being Made on the Painted Desert with Jean Rogers, Latest Beauty Prize Winner to Capture Hollywood and Noah Beery, Jr.

TO round out a program of pictures for next season that was designed to meet every motion picture taste, the Convention of Universal salesmen in Chicago demanded a hill-billy picture. The Universal City Studio decided to make it a Western hill-billy picture. The first step was the purchase of a novel by Cherry Wilson entitled "Stormy." The next element in this Western hill-billy was the engagement of the original Arizona Wranglers, famous radio experts in frontier music. Louis Friedlander is directing.

Henry MacRae, who is supervising it, selected Jean Rogers to incorporate the beauty element in the picture. Noah Beery, Jr., will play the lead. Others in the cast include J. Farrell McDonald, Fred Kohler, Raymond Hatton and James Burtis.

"Stormy" is a story written about a wild horse, and MacRae was fortunately able to get Rex, the world famous equine actor, to play the villain of the plot. Tomorrow the entire company, numbering nearly a hundred people, will move to Tuba City, Arizona, where they will work three weeks in the Navajo Indian Reservation and the Painted Desert. It is the most pretentious location trip which a Universal company has made in two years.

✚ ✚ ✚

Frank Lawton Flies to Universal City

FRANK LAWTON, Universal star who returned to England to act following his appearance in "One More River" and "David Copperfield," flew to Universal City last week. Several pictures have been planned for Lawton by Universal. One of them is "Delay in the Sun," with Binnie Barnes.

Francis Lederer, who will be featured with Margaret Sullavan in "Next Time We Love," which is the slightly changed title of Ursula Parrott's current novel, "Next Time We Live."

"King Solomon of Broadway" Has Unique Two-Story Set

PRODUCTION started this week on the tuneful Universal comedy-drama, "King Solomon of Broadway," starring Edmund Lowe, and directed by Alan Crosland. In the cast with Lowe are Dorothy Page, Pinky Tomlin, Louise Henry and Edward Pawley.

The story is an original by Albert J. Cohen and Robert T. Shannon, who are also credited with adapting it to the screen. Harry Clork and Doris Malloy are credited with dialog. Julius Bernheim is supervising the production.

Three new songs will be introduced by Tomlin, formerly a singer with the Jimmy Grier orchestra, and Miss Page, internationally known radio singer.

"King Solomon of Broadway" also has a set that is unique in the annals of sound pictures.

It's the first two story night club and dance hall ever constructed on a sound stage.

The first floor of the night club and dance hall consists of reception room, main dance hall, private dining rooms, ticket booths, and orchestra pit, which will accommodate forty musicians. The sides of the rooms extend upward where, on the second floor, are several small rooms for entertainment, a suite of offices and a complete apartment.

The two floor construction, with stairs leading from one floor to another, is made necessary by the script, which calls for a desperate battle between Lowe and Edward Pawley, the "No. 1" gangster, on the two floors.

IMPORTA

James R. Grainger, General Manager of Distribution, writes a letter to an exhibitor. You will be just as interested as was this man who immediately signed a contract for 1936.

July 5, 1935

Dear Mr.——:–

We have just finished our Convention and we have all come away with a tremendous amount of enthusiasm for the pictures which Universal will release next year as well as for the great productions with which we are going to wind up the present season.

Naturally, we all feel very sorry that the best pictures of this season are coming so late. However, when you get Irene Dunne in "Show Boat," Margaret Sullavan in "Next Time We Love," William Powell in "My Man Godfrey," Irene Dunne in "Magnificent Obsession," which John Stahl is just putting into production today, and "Sutter's Gold," which will be a tremendous epic, if there ever was one, I am sure you will realize that this season will average up with previous money making Universal schedules.

For next season, we are going to start off with "Diamond Jim," a story which has all the sparkle and glamour that its name implies. It has that sterling actor, Edward Arnold, in the title role, and Edward Sutherland has told me that it is his greatest production. The cast includes Jean Arthur, who is coming along very fast now, and Binnie Barnes in the role of Lillian Russell.

We will have two tremendous productions in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" and "Phantom of the Opera," and Mr. Laemmle is endeavoring right now to find just the right man to play the famous Lon Chaney roles. No money or effort will be spared to make these two real Road Show productions.

Then, we have Carole Lombard in a Faith Baldwin story called now "Spinster Dinner," which Walter Lang will direct. We will have a football picture for September. Edmund Lowe will make two productions. One will be the best novel that E. Phillips Oppenheim ever wrote, "The Great Impersonation," and the other. "King Solomon of Broadway," in which he will be supported by Pinky Tomlin and Dorothy Page.

NT NEWS

Early in the year we will introduce a new European sensation in Marta Eggerth. Her first picture will be called "Song of Joy" and we have every confidence that it will be a song of joy to every exhibitor.

Carl Laemmle, Jr., will make six pictures. Two of them have already been selected. They are "Dracula's Daughter," a sequel to "Dracula," and "Hangover Murders," which will go into production next week, made from a well known novel on the order of "The Thin Man."

Edward Everett Horton will make "His Night Out" by Henry Irving Dodge. Jack Oakie will make a picture centering around the Indianapolis 500 mile race classic, entitled "Fast and Furious."

Jack Holt will make a picture of the Bolivian-Paraguay War entitled "Storm Over the Andes," and a gambler story by Bret Harte entitled "Riverboat Gambler."

May Robson will make a picture called "Three Kids and a Queen."

Karloff will be represented by two and possibly three, pictures. One of them is "Bluebeard" and the other one will be "The Invisible Ray," in which he will be co-starred with Lugosi. Charles Bickford will make a picture called "East of Java," to mention only a few of the interesting box- office pictures which we plan for next season.

Personally, I don't think that any exhibitor can afford to be without these Universal pictures for next season. Everyone at Universal City is enthusiastic. Our production troubles are all solved, and the general opinion of the industry is that Universal is certainly going places this year. We have the money; we have the pictures; we have the people. I sincerely hope that you will be one of those to take advantage of a situation which cannot help but make a lot of money for exhibitors.

Sincerely,

J. R. GRAINGER,
General Manager of Distribution

ST OF 15 CH
THRIL
Buck
in THE
With M and W

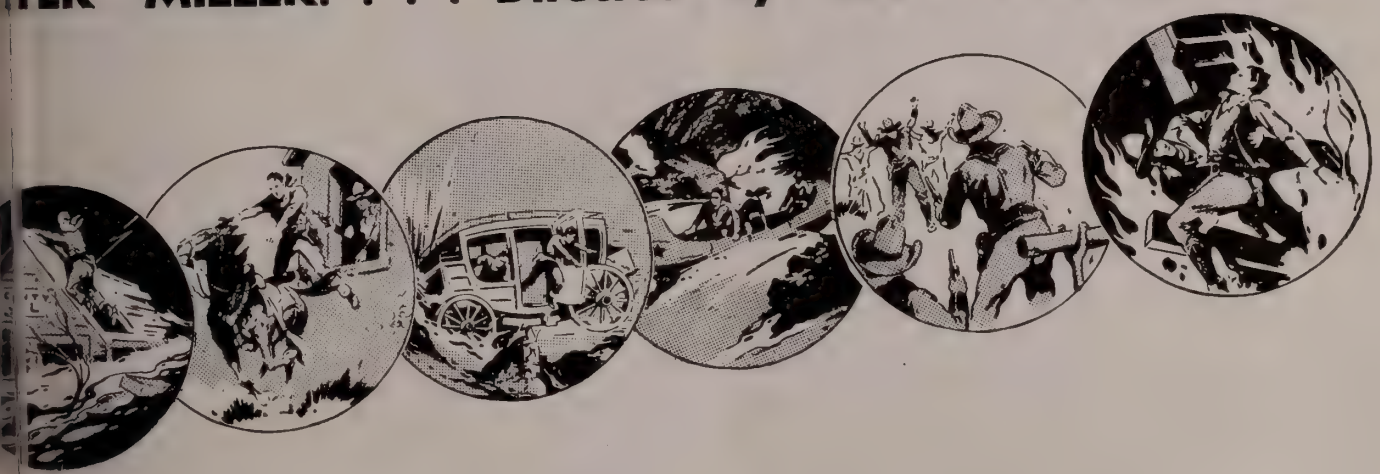
THE 1935-36 SERIALS!

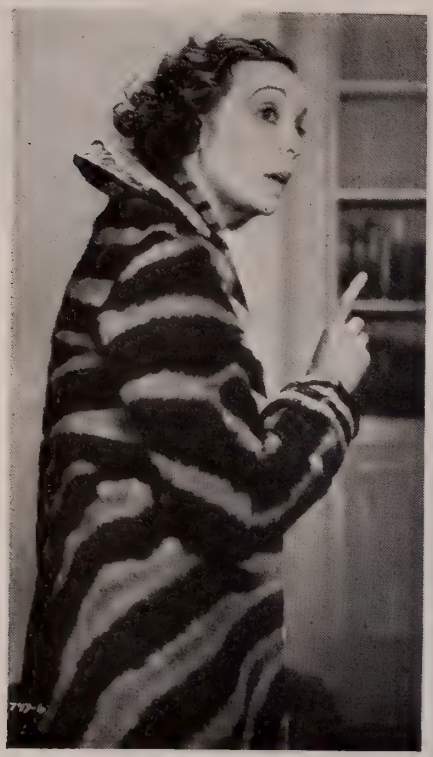
TERS OF THE BIGGEST WESTERN ACTION
RS UNIVERSAL HAS EVER PRODUCED!

JONES
OF THE ROARING WEST

IEL EVANS, EOLE GALLI, WILLIAM DESMOND,
TER MILLER. . . . Directed by RAY TAYLOR.



Pitts and O'Connell Finish "SHE GETS HER MAN"



ZaSu Pitts, the timid tiger woman of "She Gets Her Man." She is a lecturer on crime who is suddenly placed in a position where she has to try to practice what she preaches.

In "She Gets Her Man," ZaSu Pitts plays the role of a well me[illegible]siast on crime prevention. In her enthusiasm, she advocates [illegible] measures of suppressing gangdom and immediately her manager [illegible]ess agent, Hugh O'Connell, builds her into a national figure, though it pr[illegible]tes a terrific headache with his sweetie, Helen Twelvetrees. ...The [illegible] of them are in the center of this still.

ZASU PITTS and Hugh O'Connell yesterday completed the first of their co-starring pictures for Universal. It is entitled "She Gets Her Man" and was directed by William Nigh from the story by Aben Kandell and David Diamond.

"She Gets Her Man" is a story burlesqueing the recent government agent films and has a cast in support of the stars including many of the finest comedians in Hollywood. The supporting cast is headed by Helen Twelvetrees and Lucian Littlefield and includes Ed. Brophy, Warren H[illegible]mer, Bert Gordon, Ward Bond [illegible]ginia Grey, King Baggot, Lola [illegible]smith and Louis Vincenot.

ZaSu Pitts, the greatest comme-dienne on the screen today, is also one of the most active players in Hollywood. Since her recent hit in "Ruggles of Red Gap," she has played in "Crashing Society," "Dames" and "Le[illegible]er Clicks." Hugh O'Connell [illegible] rose to stardom on Broad[illegible] in "The Milky Way" following his hit in "Once In a Lifetime," has recently appeared in "It Happened in New York," "Broadway Through a Keyhole" and "Manhattan Moon."

William Nigh's recent pictures include "Mystery Liner," "Monte Carlo Nights," "Two Heads on a Pillow," "Men Are Such Fools" and "Sweepstakes Annie."

"BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN" BROKE RECORDS

JUNE 11 1935

MR JOSEPH ENGEL MANAGER

308 N 13TH ST UNIVERSAL FILM EXCHANGE PHILA

BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN BROKE ALL HOUSE RECORDS SIXTEEN YEARS SATURDAY STOP DURING WORST RAIN STORM IN YEARS STOP PATRONS STOOD IN RAIN FOR HOURS STOP YESTERDAY SECOND DAY ALL MONDAY RECORDS BROKEN STOP THANKS FOR YOUR COOPERATION

J C LUNG WASHINGTON THEATRE

"Alone Together" Next For Pitts-O'Connell

SOON after completion of "She Gets Her Man," ZaSu Pitts and Hugh O'Connell will start upon another co-starring picture for Universal. The title of this second picture will be "Alone Together." This is the story by Frank T. Dazey and Agnes Christine Johnston which has been known in the studio as "Unconscious."

Kurt Neumann will direct from a screenplay by H. M. Walker and Andrew Dennison. Starting date will be on or about July 15th.

31 First Run Weeks on Broadway Assured for Universal Feature Pictures at Roxy and the Music Hall tract the Roxy ever gave to a producer of American films.

(Continued from Page 8)

Taken in connection with the five pictures still to play the Music Hall, to complete the current season, the deal gives Universal a minimum of thirty-one first-run weeks on Broadway. These five Music Hall pictures are Irene Dunne in "Magnificent Obsession," Margaret Sullavan and Francis Lederer in "Next Time We Love," "Sutter's Gold," Irene Dunne in "Show Boat" and William Powell in "My Man Godfrey."

The first of the new season's product which goes to the Roxy will be "Diamond Jim," which has just been completed at Universal City and is being prepared for its newspaper preview in Los Angeles this week, Friday. Edward Arnold, its star, has just completed a personal appearance tour and returned to California

Never in its 29 years history has the quality of its forthcoming product been so impressive and never has it met with such an enthusiastic reception from Exhibitors.

yesterday to enter Carl Laemmle, Jr.'s first production for the new season, "Hangover Murders," which will soon go into production under the direction of James Whale, and which will also play the Roxy.

Other important productions under the Roxy deal include "Hunchback of Notre Dame," "Phantom of the Opera," "Edmund Lowe in "The Great Impersonation" and "King Solomon of Broadway," Carole Lombard in "Spinster Dinner," May Robson in "Three Kids and a Queen," Universal's new star, Marta Eggerth, in two productions; Carl Laemmle, Jr.'s production of "Dracula's Daughter," Binnie Barnes in "Her Excellency the Governor," Karloff and Lugosi in "The Invisible Ray," Edward Everett Horton in "His Night Out," Margaret Sullavan in two productions, Charles Bickford in "East of Java" and Karloff in "Bluebeard."

Among the authors of stories are many of the most famous writers of fiction in the history of literature. They include Victor Hugo, E. Phillips Oppenheim, Henry Irving Dodge, Faith Baldwin, Gaston Leroux, Bayard Veiller, Parker Morell, Adam Hobhouse, John L. Balderston, Nina Wilcox Putnam, R. C. Sherriff, Preston Sturges, James Warner Bellah, Gouverneur Morris, Bret Harte, Rachel Field and Beatrice Lubitz.

Howard S. Cullman, writing to Mr. Grainger immediately upon the signing of the contract, expressed his enthusiasm for the connection in the following words:

(Continued on Page 28)

Lugosi Appears with "The Raven" at the Roxy

TO the profit of all concerned, — the Roxy, the Universal, "The Raven" and Bela Lugosi, — the famous villain of the screen spent a week in New York just as the "Raven" was opening at the Roxy. He was on the way to Europe to make a picture for Hammer Productions and his visit was made the occasion of a tremendous outpouring of publicity.

Lugosi had an interview in the New York Times with Ross Parmenter, with Regina Crewe in the New York American, with Eileen Creelman in the Sun, with Irene Thirer in the Post, and with Rose Pelswick in the Journal. On top of this, Mr. Lugosi agreed to make two personal appearances at the Roxy on the 4th of July. The opening date of "The Raven" had been set forward one day to permit this. In spite of the holiday and the fact that it was a wonderful day to be in the country the Roxy enjoyed one of the greatest days in its history, and certainly one of the greatest summer holidays.

Here is that sterling actor Bela Lugosi, who will make three pictures for Universal next season, and his wife.

As a result of all this publicity and Lugosi's personal appearances, the Roxy had one of its biggest summer weeks. The Motion Picture Daily in its issue of July 6th, 1935, states:

"With $8,900 chalked up as the gross for July 4, 'The Raven' broke all holiday marks at the Roxy since the theatre went into receivership in 1932. In its eight days, the Universal film is expected to tally more than $35,000."

(Continued on Page 28)

"'THE RAVEN' a Good Horror Flicker" Says Abel in His Review in Variety

(Continued from Page 27)

Lugosi is making three pictures for Universal for the coming season. He will be the Dracula of "Dracula's Daughter," and co-starred with Karloff in "The Invisible Ray." The other one has not as yet been decided.

Great Box Office Film

Variety on Wednesday had this to say of the Roxy showing.

"Answering to good merchandising, 'The Raven' will be second best this week at the Roxy. On eight days, having opened the 4th, it will hit $30,000. The Roxy did a nice job selling 'The Raven' from the thriller angle. House front and lobby effectively dressed and advertising was well steered for curiosity and horror seekers."

Abel Green, in his review of "The Raven," is quoted as follows:

A Swell Review

"Good horror flicker. With both Karloff and Lugosi in the cast, it should scare 'em into G. O. S. in spades.

"Just vaguely 'suggested' by the Poe classic, David Boehm's adaptation wanders not a little, but the basic romance is wisely kept to the fore, and Lugosi as the psychopathic medico to whom Irene Ware is indebted for her life, contributes the shocker aspects forcibly. Director Louis Friedlander likewise has kept the pace at a nice pitch, stripping it down to its fundamentals and letting the shock troupers Karloff and Lugosi, do their worst to sock over the big punches.

" 'The Raven' maintains Universal's high batting average with the shockers and should come through with nice grosses."

EXHIBITOR GETS 50 BUCKS

LARRY WOODIN, manager of the Arcadia Theatre of Wellsboro, Pa., won the first of the Laemmle $50. prizes for exhibitor suggestions. This offer was made in Mr. Laemmle's column in the Saturday Evening Post. Mr. Woodin made a suggestion about Universal Trade Mark, which was adopted and paid for.

Here, in part, is what Mr. Woodin writes to Mr. Laemmle:

"My only wish is that the new improvement on the trade mark will give you just one small part of the thrill that the sight of that check gave me. That is the type of gesture that makes it worth while to stick in this business for so many years. My father, W. L. Woodin of Towanda, Pa., has been an exhibitor since the beginning of this century. Many, many thanks, and may I wish Universal and the grandest man in the business, Carl Laemmle, continued success."

Have you called to the attention of your projectionist the offer that Mr. Laemmle made in the Universal Weekly of June 29th? If you haven't, turn to page 27 of that issue, and read the offer again.

3 WEEKS ON B'WAY

(Continued from Page 27)

"My dear Mr. Grainger:

"I am delighted that the Roxy Theatre and Universal Pictures are entering into a contract for the exhibition of your product here for the new season.

"I am very hopeful this contract will be mutually profitable. You can, of course, count on me as well as my associates' full assistance and cooperation in every way, to see that your product is properly promoted."

John Stahl Reproduces the Normandie For "Magnificent Obsession"

NOTHING so colossal as the "Normandie" could stay out of motion pictures very long.

A replica of a part of the great French liner is now under construction at Universal studios, and will be used for scenes in "Magnificent Obsession," the John M. Stahl production which will star Irene Dunne with Robert Taylor and Charles Butterworth in the leading role of her support. On the famous "back lot" a large force of carpenters and technicians is engaged in building a replica of a section of the ship's hull more than 150 feet long and reaching from the water line to the deck above. The gigantic vessel will serve as the background for scenes to be made at the dock and others supposedly taking place in mid-ocean. Members of the supporting cast are now being selected and Stahl expects to begin actual filming early in July.

✚ ✚ ✚

Most Complete and Unique Line of Accessories Ever Made For A Film on "Diamond Jim."

NEVER before has a motion picture had such a complete and unusual line of accessories provided for it as "Diamond Jim." One thing that made this possible was the length of time required to produce and cut the picture. Another was the remarkable number of exploitation angles that this great picture affords. All departments have therefore gone overboard on this picture. There is nothing that any other picture ever had that "Diamond Jim" does not possess as an accessory. In addition there are a number of beautiful and new exploitation aids and accessories furnished that no other picture ever had.

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY SHOWMANSHIP SECTION

A DIGEST OF THE BEST EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

OUR HAT'S off to—

CALDWELL BROWN and Sam Lind of the Liberty Theatre, Zanesville, Ohio—two more showmen who hit front pages of local papers with the midnight solo-audience stunt for their "BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN" campaign. Offered five dollars reward to young lady who would sit alone in the darkened theatre through a midnight showing of the picture. Girl selected came out of theatre with chewed finger nails and a handkerchief torn in shreds. Newspaper gave stunt a big plug. It is a great gag and always good for publicity and plenty word of mouth advertising.

MYRTLE BUCKMILLER, Orpheum, Baker, Oregon, for the attractive de luxe type front (shown above) constructed from poster cut-outs and stills on "The Good Fairy." The accessory cut-out head of Margaret Sullavan was also used to good advantage on the two central uprights.

* * *

J. P. HARTMAN, of the Aster Theatre, although a subsequent run in Aberdeen, S. D., for going to bat in true showmanship style on "Imitation of Life." Posters, stills and window cards formed the basis of the front, shown below! The "Free!" card under the box-office offers autographed photos of Baby Jane to the first one hundred child patrons on opening day. Oswald, also on the program, rates and gets that flash in the lower right hand corner.

We're Sore At Our Studios— The Meanies!

Doggone those guys at Universal City! We're sore at them! They just slipped one over on us and they probably think it a grand joke! Probably laughing up their sleeves at us!

●

Without any hullabaloo they sneaked in a picture called "Lady Tubbs." From here on this blurb starts to read like a pep ad. It isn't though—it's just fact ! "Lady Tubbs" was a "sleeper." The home office gang found that out and oh what a different gang it is now! "Lady Tubbs" just jumped all over that screen and woke up the pack. Not since the days of dear Marie Dressler have we seen a performance that so captivated the crowd as did Alice Brady's work in this cock-eyed movie!

●

We say it is cock-eyed because of its hilarious plot. La Brady starts out as a "mama" in a railroad construction camp and ends up smashing conventions and crashing Long Island's exclusive society set. And when she crashes, boys -- she c-r-a-s-h-e-s!!

●

For all around audience appeal—for right down to the earth mob interest — for madcap, belly-laugh comedy —for everything that goes to make great screen entertainment —you just can't beat "Lady Tubbs."

We're begging you to screen this picture. It's not one of those big pictures — it's just one of those SWELL pictures.

●

You will yell "Hurray!" for this gay gal—Alice Brady—for she scores one ringing bull's eye hit in "Lady Tubbs." And she's ably aided and abetted by Doug Montgomery, Anita Louise, June Clayworth and Allan Mowbray, who join in the fun and give right royal performances, too!

●

Ask for your pressbook on "Lady Tubbs" right away. You'll be glad we tipped you off on this!

JOE WEIL

WHAT IS UNIVERSAL'S LINE-UP FOR 1935-36?

•

Phone, wire or run to your nearest Universal Exchange for your copy of the MOST IMPORTANT YEAR BOOK IN UNIVERSAL'S HISTORY!.....

GREAT STATES THEATRES BACK "CHINATOWN" WITH SMART STUNTS

THE following campaign for "Chinatown Squad," lined up by City Manager Gil Brown, Kankakee, Ill., for the Luna Theatre engagement, was sent to all managers of the Great States chain by Maurice M. Rubens, one of the leading operators of the Balaban and Katz circuit, with instructions to duplicate it.

Brown dressed his entire service staff in Chinese costumes four days in advance of the opening and during the run; used twenty-four sheet cut-outs on the front and six sheet cut-outs on the marquee with Chinese lanterns and spotlights; used a police siren atop the marquee, with control in the box-office. He burned Oriental incense in the fan room, difusing it in the theatre through the blowers. Arranged several window display tie-ups, increased the regular newspaper advertising budget and distributed large quantities of the accessory herald.

Mr. Rubens appended these remarks: "I am convinced that the picture has good box-office possibilities with the proper selling campaign put behind it. Remember—the front flash and ballyhoo stressing Chinese atmosphere—is the thing."

See the "Chinatown Squad" pressbook for details of these and other campaign suggestions.

Eerie Shadow-Box Sells "The Raven"

AT left is Hal Neides' advance display for the run of "The Raven" at the Orpheum Theatre, San Francisco. The shadow box, at the right, caused no end of comment and served to dramatize the shocker angle. The background is black velour; the line: Symbol of Death, the raven setting and the base for the skull are in silver flitter. The skull was borrowed from a local dentist. Warning copy reads: "In Keeping with This Theatre's Policy of Frankness, We Warn You . . . That THE RAVEN Is a Picture of the Wild and Shocker Type. Highly Nervous, Timid People Should Stay Away . . . Those, However, Who Enjoy Excitement and Having Their Hair Stand On End, Will Love This Horrific Sensation." Neides stressed the shocker angle in his newspaper ads also, and posted fifty twenty-four sheets.

"BRIDE" FRONT PACKS WALLOP!

A palm to Charles A. Smakwitz, Warner's Strand, Albany, N. Y., for a real smash front on "The Bride of Frankenstein." He certainly put EVERYTHING in it! Cut-out heads of the monster from the twenty-four sheet dominated each end of the marquee. Eyes, mouth and chin were slit and backed with green gelatine and flasher lights mounted behind, producing a very weird and eye-stopping display. A cut-out of the other twenty-four sheet was used over the main entrance doors. The emergency first aid cabinet and the operating table with dummy bride were also part of the arresting display. In addition to a wide distribution of heralds and letters to doctors and medical students, Smakwitz circulated ten thousand "warning" cards, reading: Beware, He's Loose! The Monster Demands a Mate! Lookout for Karloff! Ten thousand throwaway cards played up the not-for-kids angle.

REFRIGERATOR TIE-UP LANDS BIG AD SPACE

IT'S a far cry from Frigidaires (pardon, we mean Kelvinators) to the frigid mug of the monster in "The Bride of Frankenstein," but Victor Meyer, manager and Gar Moore, p. a. at the Orpheum, New Orleans, bridged the gap and landed a three column by 14 inch ad for their campaign. (See ad.) They also had a "bride" wrapped in gauze, wheeled around town on a hospital table by the "monster;" an ambulance in front of the theatre and nurses inside; a newspaper tie-up featuring a search to find New Orleans "bride," and an advance distribution of 10,000 envelopes containing "Life Savers" and carrying an ad for the picture.

UNIVERSAL RADIO SCRIPTS

ARE you taking advantage of the special fifteen minute radio scripts prepared on such pictures as "BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN," "WEREWOLF OF LONDON," "IMITATION OF LIFE," "GREAT EXPECTATIONS," and other Universal Pictures which lend themselves to this type of exploitation? Big theatres everywhere are using these scripts with great success. Broadcasting stations are willing to cooperate with you because of the value of the script as a program builder. Talent can be secured by contacting a dramatic school or club, the members of which will be willing to donate their time and effort in return for the training and publicity the dramatization affords them.

In addition to giving you a sure-fire campaign help these scripts will add considerably to your theatre's good will as they provide entertainment and give the home town an opportunity to hear local talent. Address Universal Pictures Exploitation Department at Rockefeller Center, N. Y. City for copies of the above named scripts and for the one now being prepared on "DIAMOND JIM." There is no charge for this service.

"Lady Tubbs" Hints

(From the Pressbook)

Contact your local newspaper editor with the idea of having "LADY TUBBS" sponsor an "Ettiquette Hints" feature in a box on the woman's page. Run it for two weeks in advance of your opening. Any local ettiquette authority can do the ghost writing.

* * *

Prepare visiting cards with the name of "LADY TUBBS" and your theatre and play dates in the corners. These cards are always a good gag when properly presented. Have your ballyhoo girl distribute them.

* * *

Fix up a girl with a fine riding habit and tie a pillow on her back at bottom of coat to indicate a novice horsewoman. Have her lead a saddle horse through the streets. Horse can wear blanket with picture billing. This stunt will get laughs and draw plenty of attention.

* * *

Arrange with local merchants for a co-operative campaign on fashions with the line: "We Are Ready to Help 'LADY TUBBS' Crash Society with these Proper and Fashionable Clothes." All manner of wearing apparel and other social paraphernalia can be included in the co-op ad page and window displays that you can work up on this angle.

* * *

See the pressbook for further details on these suggestions and for illustrations of several lobby stunts and ballyhoo that will give your campaign the pep and zip that "LADY TUBBS" deserves.

Aimed Straight for the B.O.!

1

2

3

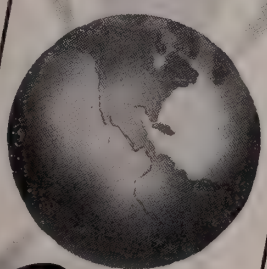
5

4

(1.) Double column by 5¾ inches from Palace, Milwaukee. (2.) Two column by 8½ inches from Orpheum, Seattle. (3.) Two column by 3½ inches from Roxy, New York City. (4.) Palace, Akron, Ohio, used this double column by 4½ inches. (5.) A two column by 6 inch shocker ad from the Orpheum, San Francisco.

N. Y. SELLS IT BIG!
3 styles of 1 col. x 10½ ads with which the N. Y. World Telegram will plug its Universal Newsreel tie-up!

See
THE WORLD-TELEGRAM UNIVERSAL NEWSREEL



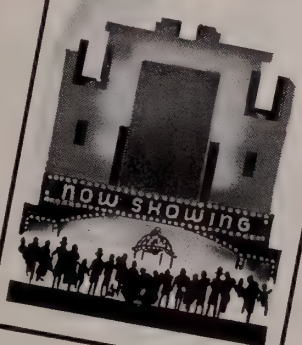
Hear
GRAHAM McNAMEE

Now
At Leading Theatres Everywhere

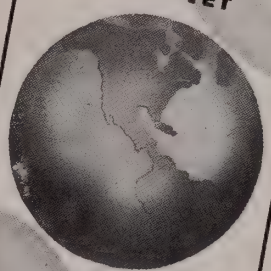
Now Showing
At Leading Theatres Everywhere

THE WORLD-TELEGRAM UNIVERSAL NEWSREEL

with
GRAHAM McNAMEE
At the microphone!



Out Today
The latest release of
THE WORLD-TELEGRAM UNIVERSAL NEWSREEL
with
GRAHAM McNAMEE
as the talking reporter



You Can See It at Leading Theatres Everywhere!

UNIVERSAL NEWSREEL
WITH GRAHAM McNAMEE

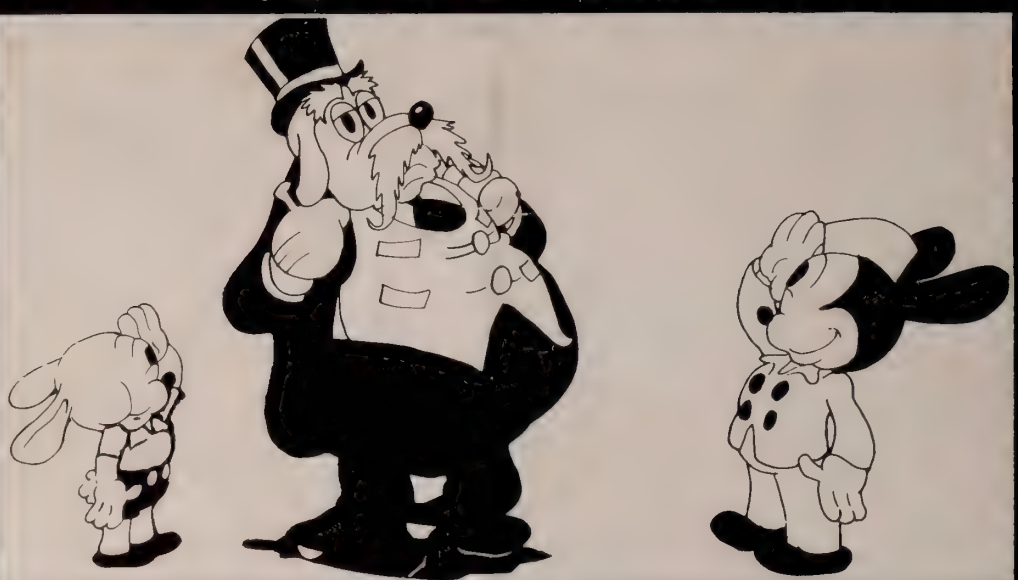
From
UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.
ROCKEFELLER CENTER
NEW YORK CITY

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
Paid
Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

ROBERT B WENNER
22 CROSS ST
MALDEN MASS

OSWALD

The LUCKY RABBIT



IN

AT YOUR SERVICE

And Watch the Next Issue of Universal Weekly for the COMPLETE LINE-UP of Universal SHORTS for 1935—36!

Printed in U. S. A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
VOL. 36, NO. 26
JULY 20, 1935

Raising the curtain on the greatest Line-up of short subjects in the business - Universal Shorts for the season of 1935-1936

UNIVERSAL SHORTS for 1935-36

27
TWO-REELERS

including

13 Mentones
13 "U" Comedies
1 Special - "Camera Thrills"

52
SINGLE-REELERS

including

13 Oswalds
13 Going Places
13 Stranger Than Fiction
13 Studio Novelties

Will Make

PERFECT PROGRAMS!

STAR of CARTOON STARS!

Short Subjects

"Toyland Premier"
(Universal)

This is one of the Oswald series, but done in Technicolor, and should afford mild entertainment to adults, while the kids will probably eat it up. Oswald sends a telegram to Santa Claus inviting him to a party. Santa's preparations, his arrival and the party itself, with various screen stars drawn in as guests, are then shown. The characters of Laurel and Hardy provide most of the comedy. Production Code Seal, No. 418. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Springtime Serenade"
(Universal)

In spite of old Professor Groundhog's warning, all the wood folk imagine spring has come to stay and start their spring cleaning. Oswald, the rabbit, opens his summer hotel; Mrs. Pig gives her little ones a bath, brother turtle and his girl friend abandon their shells and the squirrel family start out on a round of calls. Suddenly snow begins to fall and there is a wild scramble to regain their shelters on the part of the animals. Old Professor Groundhog just sits back and laughs as the reel runs.

Done in color, this is a very amusing reel and one highly recommended. Production Code Seal No. 755. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

"Hill Billys"
(Universal)

This Oswald cartoon has all the characters of the series as hill billys, and their songs and antics should prove entertaining. Oswald is in love, but the object of his affections is a member of the family with whom he is feuding. To the accompaniment of mountain music the lovers manage to get married and stop the feud, but only momentarily. This one is slightly above the average set by preceding members of the series. Production Code Seal No. 549. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Two Little Lambs"
(Universal)

Oswald, in this cartoon, is an aviator trying to win a prize for stunting so he can marry Bunny Lou. While talking to her, two little lambs steal his plane and fly away. They get all mixed up with the air circus, but Oswald saves them to find that their antics in his plane had won him the prize.

Satisfactory. Production Code Seal No. 607. Running time, 8½ mins. "G"

Spring in the Park
(Universal)
Entertaining

An entertaining number of the Oswald cartoon series, in which the little hero, as a policeman, flirts with the nursemaid, impelled by the springtime, until the sergeant arrives to replace him with the nursemaid. Oswald, forced to walk the baby, substitutes in the carriage, and the fun begins.—Running time, 7 minutes.

"Elmer, the Great Dane"
(Universal)

Oswald, the rabbit, is awakened during the night by his dog, who is suffering from hiccoughs. He then proceeds to try all the common cures on the animal, such as making him dizzy, frightening him and by applying heat to his stomach. The last method creates much consternation because the dog had eaten some pop corn and it explodes inside him.

There are many very funny sequences in this reel and it should provoke howls from most audiences. Production Code Seal No. 705. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

OSWALD
THE LUCKY RABBIT

UNIVERSAL NEWSREEL

with GRAHAM McNAMEE

The most advertised,

the most featured,

the most billed,

the most famous,

the most successful

newsreel in the world!

SCOOP RECORD-HOLDER!

STAR-STUDDED MUSICALS!

Short Subjects

"The Simp-Phoney Concert"

(Radio)

The old vaudeville star, Eddie Conrad, is featured in this short that appears to be ideally suited for his talents. Audiences should get many a laugh out of this.

Conrad, an impresario, arranges a concert at a barn theatre and presents a comedy quartet and a duet along with himself at the piano. Things go along swell until a duck spoils things for the four singers and a leaking pipe ruins the act of the duet. Conrad winds things up with himself at the piano. Production Code Seal, No. 453. Running time, 21 minutes. "G."

Knickerbocker Knights

(Universal)

Entertaining

A vaudeville show on the screen, and entertaining with the word-twisting Roy Atwell acting as master of ceremonies, introducing Gypsy Nina, playing the accordian and singing; the Pearl Twins, in a bit of eccentric dancing; Hayes, Haig and Howe, in novelty dancing and acrobatics; Jerome Mann, whose impersonations of such as Winchell, Durante, Ben Bernie and Joe Penner are expert. The Cecil Mack Choir sing the negro spiritual, "Roll Dem Cotton Bales," to conclude the subject, which has varied entertainment.—Running time, 20 minutes.

"Revue a la Carte"

(Universal)

This Mentone short, with the usual cabaret setting and guest stars, maintains the entertainment average set by preceding members of this series. In this one are presented Tom Patricola, Jans and Whalen, Alice Dawn and the Maxcellos. Production Code Seal, No. 0129. Running time, 17 minutes. "G."

SHORTS

"Doin' The Town"

(Mentone Production)

Universal 18 mins.

Entertaining

Strung together on a slender thread of story, this short makes a tour of cabarets including a French Cafe, where Rachel Carlez sings with zip and tunefulness; a Russian spot where Adia Kuzneezova and his band of Russians hold forth entertainingly; the Club Alabam, where the Five Rhythm Racketeers, colored boys, put on a first-rate instrumental exhibition, and another spot where the Holman Sisters offer an interesting specialty with two pianos. Gracie Worth and Billy Taylor, the couple making the tour, wind up with a good song and dance specialty by themselves.

MENTONE Musicals

James Barton in "The Whole Show"

Universal 20 mins.

First-Rate

Assisted by a group of able performers, Barton appears in four burlesque skits that are, with one exception, little gems of entertaining comedy.

GOING PLACES
with LOWELL THOMAS

"Going Places with Lowell Thomas, No. 5"

(Universal)

A diverting short that takes the audience to Algiers and Nassau. The West Indies scenes have been captured by the camera in beautiful fashion. The rest of the short pictures a burglar-proof showcase for jewels and strange ships that serve as other than sea-going craft. No code seal. Running time, 9 1/4 mins. "G."

"Going Places"
with Lowell Thomas

Universal 9 mins.

Good Diversion

On this journey Thomas leads us through Algiers, the Atlantic City of Africa, and Nassau, the Isle of June, showing us something of the life and activities there. Several ships marooned on dry land are shown and also some of the world's most famous diamonds and the crowns worn by past and present European monarchs.

SHORTS

"Going Places"
with Lowell Thomas

Universal 9 mins.

Excellent

The first of a new series, this subject sets a fast and interesting pace. Following a short introduction by Lowell Thomas comes the subject of Venice and the glass-blowing craft. This art, jealously guarded for years, is shown and explained in detail. The second subject is a beautifully photographed sequence of scenes on the Crimean coast, known as the Russian Riviera. The closing subject starts with the duck-billed women of the Ubangi tribe in Africa, the Turkannas, and finally the pigmy natives of the Belgian Congo. Scenes are extremely interesting. The narration by Thomas is carefully delivered without the usual artificial speed of most announcers. If the remainder of the series keeps to this standard, its success is sure.

"Going Places"
with Lowell Thomas

Universal 10 mins.

Very Interesting

With Lowell Thomas' rich melodious voice graphically and colorfully describing various spots of interest, this makes for a pleasant trip.

Short Subjects

"Going Places with Lowell Thomas"

(Universal)

Starting in Turkey Lowell Thomas journeys on to Mount Hood in America and then to Bermuda. His remarks are by far the most interesting part of this short

Short Subjects

"Going Places with Lowell Thomas"

(Universal)

This, No. 9 of the series, provides considerable entertainment. It contains three subjects. One has to do with a chap who captures antelopes on the western plains for zoos. Another deals with mountain climbing, with the top of Mt. Rainier the goal in this instance. An Austrian folk wedding serves as the subject of the third. There is some fine photography in the mountain-climbing scenes.

PERSONALITY PLUS!

The WORLD'S WONDERS!

"Stranger Than Fiction"
(No. 5)

Universal 9 mins.

Highly Entertaining

The items include a young man who is an expert marksman with a slingshot; a view of an American diamond mine; German firemen who travel on skiis; the oldest fire engine; federal game protectors catching young antelope afoot with the aid of a dog; an armless ball player; a fog-dispersing machine; a young man who supplies de luxe meals for dogs and has 4,000 customers, and other clips.

"Stranger Than Fiction"
(No. 4)

Universal 9 mins.

Good

Among the unusual items in this issue are the Mexican custom of requiring passports including photo, footprint and noseprint for dogs; the world's longest rifle; the woman expert in supplying animal eyes; the new Mexican ice caves adjacent to earth so hot you can fry eggs on it; the Japanese custom of burning punk on people's skins to cure ailments; an armless marble player and other clips.

"Stranger Than Fiction"
(No. 3)

Universal 8 mins.

A Good Number

Plenty of curiosities in this one, which has been snappily handled by Allyn Butterfield and narrated by James Wallington. The reel includes an alligator dentist, a negro who turned white, fish doctoring, a team of zebras, a man with steel hands, a pet hippo, an Australian girl who uses her toes almost as well as the average person with hands, a horse 7 feet 10 inches tall, a woman who catches about 8,000 rattlesnakes a year, and grapefruit 15 inches in diameter.

"Stranger Than Fiction" No. 9"

(Universal)

This reel presents shots of two-headed trout, the manufacture of gasoline from sea water, a New Mexico salt mine, a fish taxidermist and the world's shortest railroad all in an interesting fashion.

Audiences should be pleasantly interested and entertained. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 9½ mins. "G."

Stranger Than Fiction (No. 8)

(Universal)

Several Unusual Turns

Something to interest each of several kinds of patron interest is found in this issue. There's the choking of miles of forest by shifting sand (in Douglas county; Oregon), a 24-compartment trailer pullman for pedigreed dogs (Cincinnati), a carwheel tombstone of a railroad messenger boy (Nashville), a fire-walking by the Schingon sect in Japan, the coffin that won't stay put under the dirt floor of a mission church in New Mexico, a traveling dentist, a midget and her 6 ft. 2 partner in a shoe store (Kansas City), a gander that stands sentinel over a Negro boy statue on a hitching post (Prospect, Ky.), Cleveland's oxygen hotel, and the cartoning of baby alligators.—Running time, 10 minutes.

"Stranger Than Fiction"

(Universal)

No. 10 of the series. An American town run by women, a girl shoemaker, a wishing well, a fellow who captures alligators bare-handed, a woman who operates a tugboat, these and a number of other realities that run counter to the usual order of things are pictured here. Highly worthwhile. No production code seal. Running time, 9½ mins. "G."

STRANGER than FICTION

LET'S GET DOWN

No. 822 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

Are you satisfied with the contracts you have made with any and all producers during the last few depression years.

Over 8,000 exhibitors are satisfied with their deals with Universal.

That's a lot of satisfied contractees. And, believe it or not, a huge number of these eight thousand have been on the books of the Universal for anywhere from ten to twenty-eight years consecutively!

These exhibitors are not dumb. They are not completely sentimental. They would not follow Universal year after year for over a quarter of a century unless they made a decent profit by doing so.

The truth is that in the long run Universal enables its customers to make more profit year after year than they can make anywhere else.

They MIGHT stick to Universal through sentiment, but they can't get away from dollars and cents — and that means they can't get away from Universal.

We make our full share of ordinary pictures, but so does every other producer. It is a part of the business. But we also make our full share of profit-producers and we have been doing this since some of you were in diapers.

TO BRASS TACKS

We are all in a cock-eyed business — a gambling business. Over 8,000 of the exhibitors of the United States and Canada have gambled on Universal—and you are still in business. Thousands of others have gone where the woodbine twineth—meaning failure, receivership, trustees, bankruptcy or some other form of business death.

Universal is still here. So are over 8,000 of its steady customers.

It must mean something.

Maybe it means the survival of the fittest—and maybe Universal is the fittest. Maybe it means that 8,000 out of about 11,000 theatres equipped for sound are also equipped with foresight and with brains. Maybe it means that the vast majority of smart exhibitors consider Universal an ace in the hole.

Next week I think I shall talk to you about Universal's releases of the near future and I think over 8,000 of you will be inclined to pat yourselves on the back for sticking to Universal, year after year.

I think I can prove to you that you are as smart as you think you are in treating Universal's output as the mainstay of your business.

Let's continue this talk next week.

Carl Laemmle

We're SHOOTIN!

IRENE DUNNE
in John M. Stahl's production of
"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION"
With ROBERT TAYLOR, Charles Butterworth,
Betty Furness . . . Now in Production.

MARGARET SULLAVAN
FRANCIS LEDERER
in "NEXT TIME WE LOVE"
From Ursula Parrott's newest novel!

WILLIAM POWELL
in "MY MAN GODFREY"
From the Liberty Magazine serial by Eric Hatch

"SUTTER'S GOLD"
A Howard Hawks Production
From the epic novel by Blaise Cendrars!

IRENE DUNNE
in "SHOW BOAT"
Edna Ferber's Immortal Classic!
A Carl Laemmle, Jr. Production
Directed by James Whale

5 OF THEM!!!

Signs First Canadian Contract

George Cockels of System Theatre, Montreal, Greets Leduc's Return from Universal Convention in Chicago with a Contract Months Earlier Than Is His Custom.

THE first sign of an unusually early and unusually successful selling season has just come out of Canada. At least it is a sign of an early and successful season for Universal.

George Cockels has just signed for Universal pictures. This is not a startling thing at all. He usually signs for Universal pictures. The point is that he usually waits until very late in the season to make his contracts. This year he signed on June 19th and thus became in all probability the first exhibitor in Canada to sign one of the new Universal contracts. At least he is the first in the Montreal territory.

George Cockels operates the System Theatre of Montreal City. As soon as Mr. Leduc, the Universal manager in Montreal returned from the Convention in Chicago he met Mr. Cockles. The result was that the exhibitor became so interested in the product Universal has for next season that he signed then and there.

The Universal Weekly also congratulates Mr. Cockels.

PROJECTIONISTS ATTENTION!

YOU are on the firing line. You are a close observer of pictures and audience reaction. Perhaps you have thought of an idea that you think will improve Universal pictures. If so send it in. Carl Laemmle is paying $50. each for acceptable ideas. Open both to exhibitors and projectionists.

Silver Jubilee for Clair Hague

THE six Canadian offices have just started a special celebration which will continue through the remainder of July and the entire month of August. It is to be called the "Canadian Silver Jubilee" and is really to be a tribute to Clair Hague, Canadian general manager, who is now in his 25th year with Universal.

Mr. Hague had his schooling in showmanship with touring attractions, circuses and carnivals. He was one of the first men of the theatre in Canada to go into pictures. His first connection was with the famous Klein Optical Company and Allen Amusements. He became manager for the Canadian Film Company in 1911 and handled the Universal Pictures in Canada before Universal took over the Company. In March, 1913 Universal purchased the Canadian Company and established Clair Hague in the position he has held for twenty-five years, general manager of the Canadian Universal Film Co., Ltd.

In all those years Clair Hague has conspicuously and consistently grown into the affections of his big boss, Mr. Laemmle, of his several general sales managers and of every last one

(Continued on Page 28)

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, N. Y. City
Universal Pictures Corp.
Copyrighted 1935
(All Rights Reserved)
JULY 20, 1935
Vol. 36 No. 26

The Preview Parade of UNIVERSAL PICTURES

GRAHAM MAC NAMEE
. . . incomparable commentator on camera scoops . . .

UNIVERSAL'S TALKING NEWSREEL comes to you through Hell—but comes through!

In our squad of news-hawks, there is no quitter! In their code there is no "Can't!"

These dare-alls endure wounds, imprisonment and privation! They face floods—famine—and fires! They defy death—disaster—doom!

Week after week—issue after issue—they perform deeds of peril in the teeth of perdition to get their pictures—and WHAT pictures!

ONE OF THEM

During one short year, UNIVERSAL'S TALKING NEWSREEL delivered to you the assassination of King Ferdinand, the Morro Castle disaster, the trial of Hauptmann, and the Cuban revolt!

These are the highlights of an astounding year—sample scoops from scores captured by the enterprise and extraordinary heroism of these hand-crank heroes.

On the screen, every scene becomes enhanced by that extraordinary commentator on catastrophe and cataclysm, Graham MacNamee.

Universal still proudly maintains the tradition of supremacy in news service established years ago with the inception of sound.

Others have imitated—but none have emulated UNIVERSAL'S TALKING NEWSREEL or its electrifying headline reporter.

JACTHALL

IT'S SO BIG,
THE WHOLE DARN INDUSTRY WILL BE PROUD OF IT
DIAMO

DJIM
Directed by EDWARD SUTHERLAND
ERMUND GRAINGER
RELEASED BY UNIVERSAL
SEPTEMBER 2nd

Four Smashing Serials From Universal Next

WITH a season of serials like the current Universale lineup, the Serial Production Department at Universal City has been given a difficult assignment. It has been directed by Carl Laemmle to make four serials which will in each instance top the four in the current season. With such an assignment Henry MacRae, the producer, has set to work with an eager and efficient staff. Ray Taylor will direct most of the serials. George Plympton, Ella O'Neil, Nate Gatzert, Basil Dickey and Bob Rothafel are handling the continuities, and four published properties have been purchased as the basis for four crackerjack serials.

These serials in order are: "The Roaring West," a magazine story by Edward Earl Repp, "Tailspin Tommy in the Great Air Mystery," a sequel to the newspaper strip "Tailspin Tommy" by Hal Forrest, "The Adventures of Frank Merriwell" by Bert L. Standish, whose real name is Gilbert L. Patton and who wrote over two hundred novels dealing with the life and adventures of this amazing hero and "Flash Gordon."

This latter is also a newspaper strip issued by King Features and drawn by the New Rochelle artist Alexander Raymond. It is a full page in color and appears on Sundays in seventy-three newspapers. This list of papers was printed in the Weekly of June 29th on page twenty-five.

"The Roaring West," is a serial dealing with the most colorful period of the development of this country, the period which actually started this country of ours along the road to its present prosperity, the period of the discovery of gold in California. E. E. Repp has chosen both real and ficticious characters to portray the drama, the lust for gold, the lawlessness and the danger of this amazing chapter in the development of this country. California, Nevada, Arizona and Colorado were truly the roaring west in the fifties and sixties of the last century.

One of the stirring moments in the Buck Jones serial for next season, "The Roaring West." A fitting vehicle to start a great serial season.

Men and women mounted on horseback, and countless others in wagons of every description, ride pall-mall across the prairie in all the wild confusion of a land rush. Wagons crash and horses fall to the ground, only to scramble up and continue across the plain—some riderless and some still bearing their owners bent on securing favorable locations in the newly opened territory. The air is filled with shouts and screams, and the entire picture is one of feverish excitement.

This is one of the thrilling scenes of the opening episode of "The Roaring West."

Buck Jones is seen as Montana Lar-

This is the famous gold ru

Serials
xt Season

Buck Jones star of "The Roaring West."

In addition to hair-trigger action, smashing drama and gripping suspense, "The Roaring West," is set against majestic backgrounds in awe inspiring locations.

kin, a cowboy heading a party of friends attempting to file on valuable gold claims of which they have learned, and the story deals with the efforts of a rascally outlaw band to secure the property for themselves. As the story progresses from week to week, the conflict increases in intensity with the embattled cowboys in constant danger of their lives.

One smashing climax follows another in this rousing 15-episode chapter-play, and the story does not come to an end until Jones and his hard-riding companions have survived a swift succession of thrilling adventures.

"The Roaring West" was directed by Ray Taylor, the screen's leading serial director, and Jones' supporting cast includes Muriel Evans, Frank McGlynn, Sr., Harlan Knight, William Desmond, Eole Galli, Walter Miller and many others.

ne from "The Roaring West"

"MERRIWELL,' A FIND

Universal considered half a dozen of the greatest heroes of boy life before it settled upon Frank Merriwell as the prototype of boyland's hero. After all is said and done Merriwell was the original and none of his followers and imitators ever received the wide spread circulation, the hero worship or the release of youthful energy and harmless reading that made Frank Merriwell the national imaginative figure.

Merriwell excelled in all sports and he typified the model which all mothers and fathers held up to their sons for, after all, every boy is a hero worshipper. (Continued on Page 26)

News and Reviews of Unive

Here are the Eton boys, the leading novelty male singing quartette in radio. They are featured in five Coast to Coast hookups and appear in the Mentone Musical, "A Great Idea."

"SPEEDY JUSTICE" READY

ONE of the new Mentone Musicals, just completed for next season's release, is entitled "Speedy Justice." The script, prepared by Ballard Macdonald, deals with a busload of entertainers who are apprehended for speeding. Unable to meet the amount of the fine imposed upon them by a slick rural magistrate, they compromise with the august minion of the law by presenting a complete vaudeville entertainment right in the courtroom. The local citizenry is rounded up, at a dollar a head, and everybody—judge, jury, defendants and audience—has a good time. Audiences, too, are bound to enjoy the performances of such stellar artists as: Lew Hearn, famous veteran comedian of the American musical comedy stage; Eddie Foy, Jr., one of the country's foremost stage juveniles, featured with Beatrice Lillie in the new Broadway musical show, "At Home Abroad;" Glenn & Jenkins, the American theatre's outstanding team of colored comedians; Bobby Lane, a little acrobatic dancer who is really remarkable; The Southland Rhythm Girls, a deluxe hot-cha quartet that is absolutely tops amongst entertainers in New York's swankiest night clubs; The 12 Danny Dare Dancers, six prepossessing young couples formed into a sensational adagio dancing troupe; and Arthur Boran, the nation's leading radio impersonator.

✚ ✚ ✚

THEY HAVE PLEASED

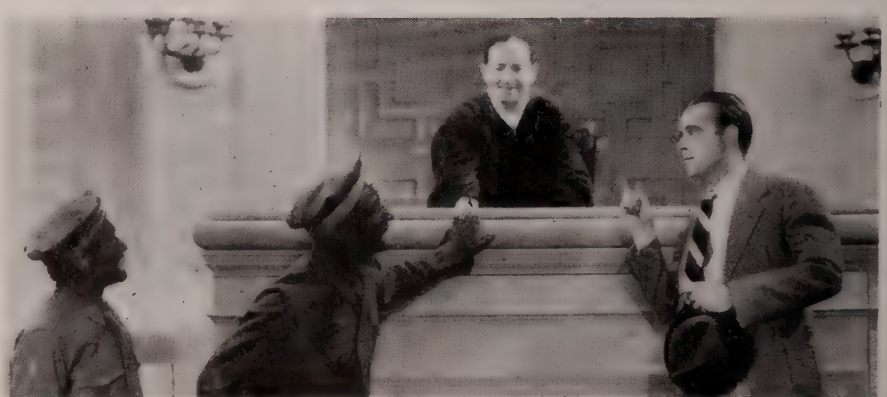
W. BENJAMIN,
Kansas City, Mo.

"May we compliment you on your short subjects that we have run so far. They have pleased very well."

(Signed) J. J. BOOK,
Bird City Theatre,
Bird City, Kansas

Another Entertaining Mentone Musical

GREAT entertainment is offered in "A Great Idea," another new Mentone Musical made for early autumn release. It was directed by Milton Schwarzwald, from a script by John Guy Sampsel. Besides being a prominent and prolific author, Sampsel has been known for fifteen years as a vaudeville headliner. It is no accident therefore, that he contributes a swell comedy characterization to the delightful Mentone production made from his own script. As Johnny Saunders, a glib and breezy talent salesman who overcomes a reluctant motion picture producer with a novelty entertainment idea, exhibitors and their patrons will recognize, in Sampsel, a peculiarly interesting combination of Ed Wynn and Walter Catlett. Featured in "A Great Idea" along with the author, are the following: The Eton Boys, preeminently the leading novelty male singing quartet in the radio field today; Consuelo Gonzales, dynamic young Spanish songstress; Marcy Brothers & Beatrice, personable trio of acrobatic dancing stars, who literally stepped into the new Mentone production immediately after completing a record-breaking, seventy-week tour of stage appearances; and that charming youngster Sugar Cane who, at the age of twelve, is one of radio's best and most popular singing stars.



Some of the principals of the Mentone Musical, "Speedy Justice;" Lew Hearn acting as the judge, Eddie Foy, Jr., on the right and the celebrated colored comediennes, Glen & Jenkins at the bar.

sal Short 1935–1936 Pictures

The Phila. Exhibitor Reviews A Few Universal Shorts

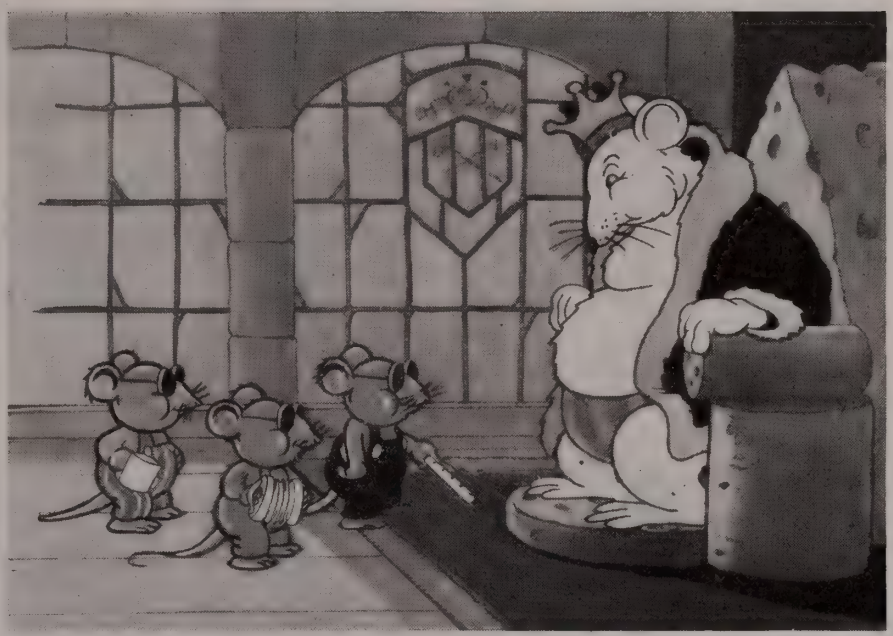
THREE LAZY MICE. Universal—Color Cartune. 7m. Three mice don't want to work, think up an idea whereby they act blind, are given permission by the king to sing and play all day. Everything is okay until they walk out of mouse town, run into a big cat who nearly bags them, chases them back to town where the king finds out about their deception, puts them to work washing dishes. This is a pleasant number with a cute tune running through it. GOOD.

GOING PLACES WITH LOWELL THOMAS, No. 11. Universal. 10m. Lowell Thomas talks while shots of Rome and the Vatican city are shown. Various sights often seen in other similar travelogue subjects are repeated, with ceremonies. Coliseum, St. Peter's highlights. Audiences religiously minded will appreciate this. INTERESTING.

GOING PLACES WITH LOWELL THOMAS, No. 12. Lowell Thomas takes the listener to Mexico, Sky Gardens and in a clip colled "Nerve" introduces the audience to a young boy lion tamer. The last clip is worth the price of admission as to novelty because it has some excellent shots of the young Texas boy who now tames lions. The other two clips are familiar, with some Radio City garden shots rather interesting. GOOD.

MY GIRL SALLY. Universal—Comedies. 17m. Sterling Holloway, feminine voiced zany, stars. Story is silly enough to register. Banker's daughter is due to marry prince, because of mother's social ambitions. She really loves Holloway, an innocent country boy. Holloway arrives for wedding, through connivance with banker, who favors him, delays wedding. Prince is found to be "phoney," girl and country boy are united. VERY GOOD.

AT YOUR SERVICE. Universal—Oswald. 7m. Oswald is gas station attendant. His nephew arrives to help out, gums up works, blowing up cars, generally being nuisance. Some good laughs, fast adequate musical accompaniment, make this fine stuff. GOOD.



"Three Lazy Mice" is a gold mine of mirth and audience satisfaction. The best color cartune yet.

"Three Lazy Mice" Praised — "Clever" Says Film Daily

THIS is the nursery rhyme of the Three Blind Mice adapted to the cartoon technique and done with nice color composition. It's in the Kingdom of Mouseland, and the King issues an edict that every mouse subject must henceforth work for his cheese. The three lazy mice who want to play and sing and dance all the time, hit on what they think is a clever way to avoid work. They put on dark goggles and claim to be blind, so the King excuses them from work. But they wander outside of the Mouse Kingdom, and encounter a big ugly cat, who proves to be a nightmare to them. After exciting adventures they escape their arch enemy, and are glad to go to work washing dishes in the King's kitchen. Very cleverly conceived.

✚ ✚ ✚

"'Double Crossed' Should Fit Well In Any House" Says M. P. Daily

ANOTHER of the series featuring Sterling Holloway, this short should fit well in any house. Story is good and gives the characters ample chance to do their stuff, particularly Holloway. Doubles and impersonators of other Hollywood stars are used to aid comedy sequences. Fired from a hotel in Palm Springs, Holloway and Joey Ray thumb a ride from Barbara Pepper into Hollywood and pose as contact men for the stars. This gets them involved in a deal with her mother when they contract to fill her hotel with celebrities. Recommended.

HERE COMES THE G-WOMAN!

Carl Laemmle presents

ZASU PITTS
HUGH O'CONNELL

AMERICA'S NEWEST SCREAM-MATES!

WITH

HELEN TWELVETREES
LUCIEN LITTLEFIELD
EDDIE BROPHY, WARD BOND AND VIRGINIA GREY

•

A Universal Comedy Riot

Directed by William Nigh

David Diamond, Associate Producer

SHE GETS HER MAN

"MANHATT HAS THEM A

In line with the requirements of the amusement dema versal has provided a capital picture in "Manhattan M Manhattan. It is a story of the opera house. It is the her, and a night club king who was able to see through hattan cocktail compounded of glamour, melody, come taking beauty and box office songs.

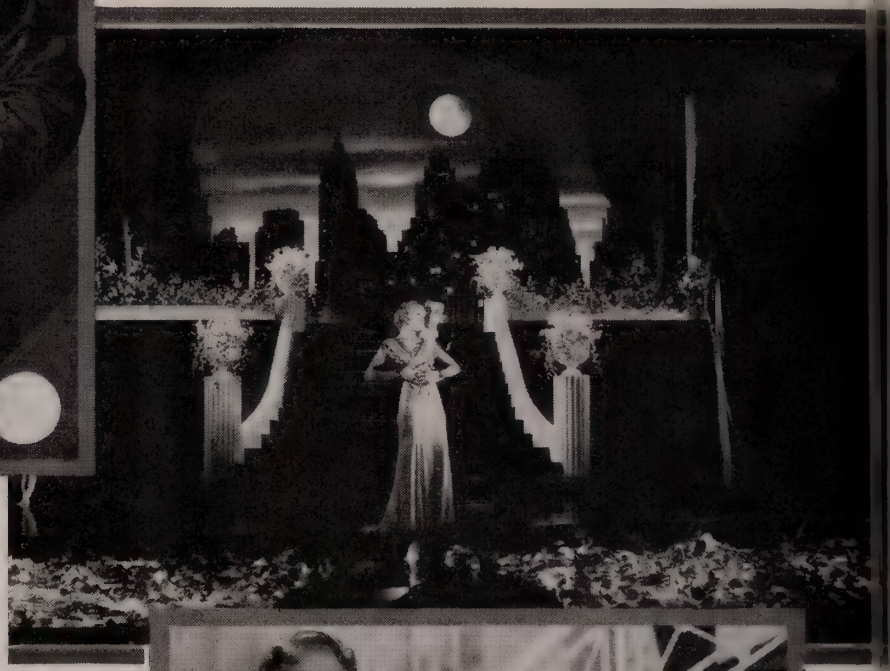
Ricardo Cortez, featured player in Universal's romantic musical, "Manhattan Moon."



"MANHATTAN MOON" is the first musical that Universal has made since "Wake Up and Dream." It harks back, however, to "Moonlight and Pretzels" in several respects. Stanley Bergerman produced them both. Its title, like "Moonlight and Pretzels," was taken from a song number in the picture. E. Y. Harburg also had a hand, or rather a pen, in both. Harburg wrote "My Other Me," which Dorothy Page sings as one of the two numbers allotted to her in the screen debut of this well known radio star. Her other song, "First Kiss," was written by Barry Trivers, who was also responsible for the screenplay, with Ben Graumann Kohn. The adaptation is by Aben Kandel.

Romance and moonlight are written all over "Manhattan Moon"

"Manhattan Moon," strangely enough, is based on an actual experience which was known to its author, Robert Harris. It would be upsetting to several prominent people if their names were mentioned. Nevertheless, a friendship which began through an introduction to a double of the real personality is the inspiration for "Manhattan Moon."

In addition to Ricardo Cortez and Dorothy Page the cast includes Henry Mollison, Regis Toomey, Hugh O'Connell, Luis Alberni, L'Estrange Millman, Irving Bacon and Henry Armetta. Stuart Walker directed.

Dorothy Page and Henry Armetta in a scene from "Manhattan Moon"

AN MOON" ECLIPSED!

August,—moonlight, romance, music, comedy,—Uni-" It is a story of the moon-splashed topless towers of of a beautiful singer and a double who often posed for ption which almost fooled everyone else. It is a Man-d romance. It has a swell cast, superb direction, breath-

Dorothy Page, radio star, newcomer to the screen, in her film debut in "Manhattan Moon"

Hugh O'Connell and Regis Toomey in a scene from "Manhattan Moon"

Dorothy Page and Ricardo Cortez in "Manhattan Moon."

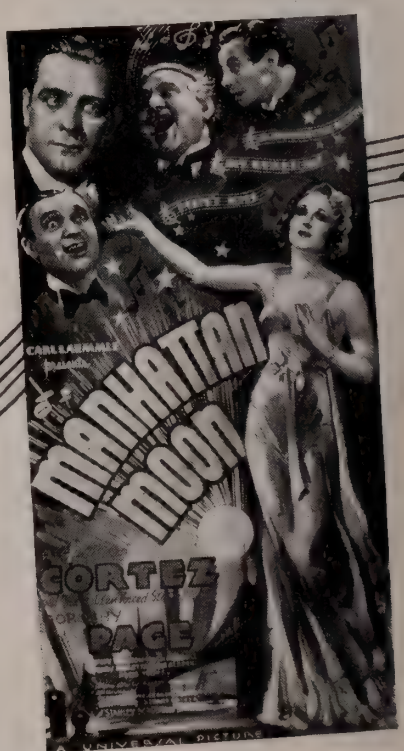
Stage and Radio Stars Make Their Screen Debut in "Manhattan Moon"

STARS in two fields of amusement,—radio and the stage,—make their film debut in Universal's "Manhattan Moon." The young people are Dorothy Page, who for the last four years has been heard by millions on the radio, and Henry Mollison, slim, dapper and talented star of British stage and screen. Miss Page, a native of Northampton, Pa., has been given a dual role—that of a glamorous opera singer and her hardboiled "double." Mollison appears as a typical New York socialite, who spends more than his allowance in an effort to appear a man-about-town.

Miss Page's picture was seen in Los Angeles newspapers by Universal casting officials, and she was summoned to Universal City for tests. They placed their stamp of approval on her, and the leading role in "Manhattan Moon" was the result.

Mollison, after appearing in a score of stage plays and in as many motion pictures in London, was seen by European representatives of Universal and was sent to Hollywood for tests.

PLASTER THE TOWN WITH



GAYETY AND ROMANCE!

Universal Answe
MARTA EGGE

THE six major studios of Hollywood have launched organizational preliminaries to create 40 to 50 new stars this year. So many big names of yesterday have been gradually fading without replacement, that there is a crying need for new idols. Spurred on by the success of Grace Moore, Jan Kiepura, Jeanette MacDonald, Lawrence Tibbett, Nelson Eddy and ot her top-notch singers, the film industry has become decidedly opera-minded and all Europe, as well as America, is being fine-combed for good-looking artists of light and grand opera and the concert stage, to be groomed as new screen stars.

Carl Leammle Scores First

Carl Laemmle, head of Universal Studios, has captured Marta Eggerth, glamorous and versatile Hungarian blonde, who is equally at home in stage, screen, concert and opera work. "We will start her in popular American singing roles, concentrating on strong stories wherein the plot permits of the logical introduction of two or three classical arias," says Laemmle. "Later if the public takes kindly to the current trend toward an elevated musical plane, she will be starred in heavier operatic roles. Miss Eggerth, already known here in two of her British made productions,—'The Unfinished Symphony' and 'My Heart Is Calling,'—is acknowledged one of the foremost emotional actresses on the Continental stage. Not only has she sung in musical comedy, concert and opera in five languages, but she has made pictures in Germany, England, and Italy with equal success. She is as renowned for her beauty as for her varied talents, so I feel confident she will become a sensation in America."

Coming in August

Marta Eggerth will reach New York early in August. Her arrival date coincides with that of her fiancee, Jan Kiepura, celebrated Polish tenor who becomes her friendly competitor at a rival studio. Her first Hollywood picture will be "Song of Joy" by E. P. McEwen. Franz Winterstein, Viennese author of "Eight Girls in a Boat" and "The Tunnel," has already preceded the mercurial Marta to California, where he is busily engaged in preparing

MARTA EGGERTH,
Beauty Songstress Star

s Call For New Stars TH Is One Answer

the script. The story will have an American background, an American supporting cast and an American director to be chosen shortly. Willy Forst, European ace director of "The Unfinished Symphony," "Masquerade" and "Mazurka," who has also been contracted by Universal, will direct at least one of her later films.

A native of Budapest, Marta Eggerth began her meteoric career at the Opera House there when only nine years old. She entered the ballet school, showing such marked ability in the art of pantomime, that a few months later, she was given the role of the "Doll" in Offenbach's "Tales of Hoffman." Endowed by nature with a clear lyric voice and a dynamic personality, at the end of six years as a student-artist, the ballerina-singer became a full-fledged comedienne on the light opera stage, though not yet sixteen years old. On her first tour of Europe, she was heralded as "the baby prima donna."

Her English Is Perfect

In 1932, Marta went to England to appear opposite Owen Nares in "Where Is This Lady?" She knew scarcely a word of English, and learned her part parrotwise, though nobody seeing the completed film would have suspected it. Since then, her English has become as fluent as her Hungarian, German and French, a slight accent adding individuality and distinction. Two years ago, she perfected herself in Italian, as well, and her most recent picture, "Casta Diva" produced in Rome by the Allianza Cinematographica, with Phillip Holmes playing opposite, is now being released in the principal Italian cities, Paris, London, Vienna and Berlin, simultaneously. It will be shown in this country soon after Eggerth arrives early next month, to conquer new cinematic laurels. "Casta Diva" is founded on the life of Vincenzo Bellini, composer of "Norma" and "La Sonnambula," and was produced as a memorial of the 100th anniversary of Bellini's death.

Dallas Star Makes Film Debut

VIRGINIA GRAY, former Dallas, Texas, stock star, makes her film debut in "She Gets Her Man." This ZaSu Pitts-Hugh O'Connell comedy has just been completed at Universal City. Miss Gray was cast for a small but important role. Others promnent in the cast of this take-off on government agent films are Helen Twelvetrees and Lucien Littlefield, Warren Hymer, Ed Brophy, Bert Gordon, Ward Bond, King Baggot and Phil Dunham.

"She Gets Her Man" was written by Aben Kandel and Dave Diamond and was directed by William Nigh.

NEW NAMES IN "MURDERS" CAST BY CARL LAEMMLE, Jr.

THE new cast of "Hangover Murders" received a number of additions this week by announcement of Carl Laemmle, Jr. at Universal City. Randolph Scott's place will be taken by Ricardo Cortez, who has just completed a role at Universal in "Manhattan Moon." Scott could not finish his role with Margaret Sullavan in "So Red the Rose" in time. Edward Arnold, who arrived in Universal City yesterday, heads the cast with Robert Armstrong and Frances Drake still in their original roles.

Others who were added yesterday are Frank Lawton, who arrived from England recently, where he has been on the stage, Jack LaRue, Arthur Treacher and Beula Bondi. There are still three very important roles to be assigned. The leading feminine role will go to Constance Cummings who has just arrived from a very successful Broadway run in "Accent on Youth."

"Hangover Murders" is the story of Long Island polo set life, which was written by Adam Hobhouse and immediately became one of the best seller mysteries of this season. The title, which is somewhat misleading, may be changed.

HIGH CLASS

"Diamond Jim" (Universal) is another in this classification. So honestly contrived is the Edward Arnold delineation of one of Broadway's more colorful characters, "Diamon Jim" Brady, that Arnold just about is Brady. Incidentally, Diamond Jim is the first of the Universal product under the new regine which we so enthusiastically praised a few weeks ago.
Cinema Hall-Marks

"Stormy" Actually Stormy

ONE of these production breaks that usually have to be manufactured in an enclosed studio with carefully prepared sound and lighting effects has happened to "Stormy." The picture which has this unusual title is a story of wild horses written by Cherry Wilson. Louis Friedlander, the director, and Henry McRae, the producer, took the entire company last week to Tuba City in the painted desert fifty miles from Flagstaff, Arizona. It is one of the biggest location trips a Universal company has taken in over a year.

"AT YOUR SERVICE" (OSWALD)

"A short subject fit for any program."
M. P. Daily

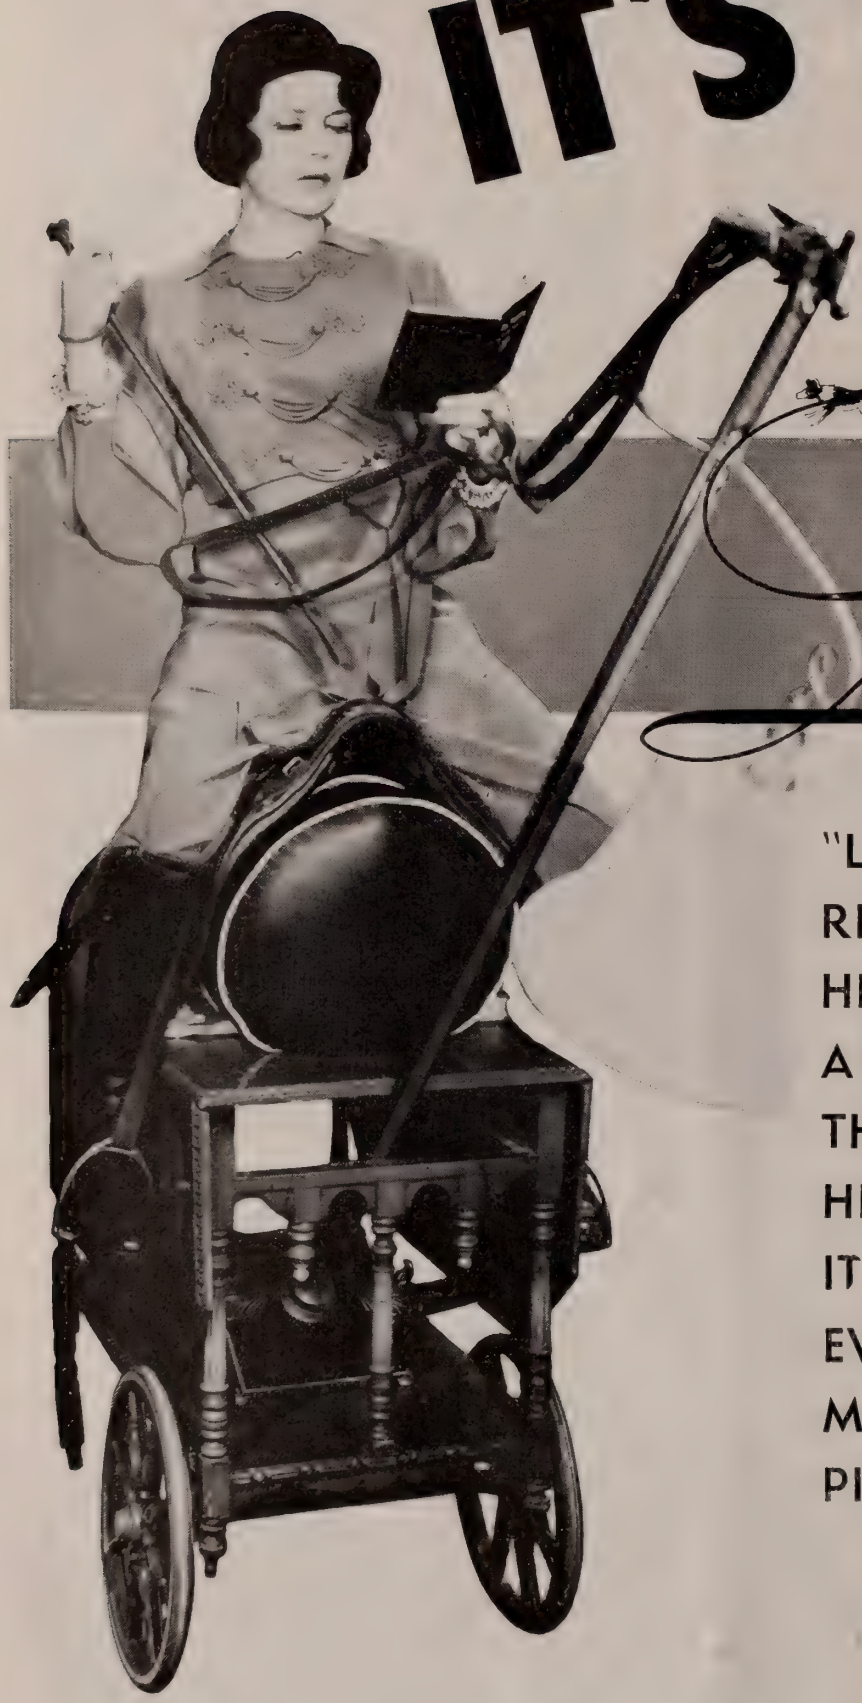
The party consisted of over a hundred, including actors, technicians, cowboys, Indians and wranglers. Noah Beery, Jr. heads the cast with Jean Rogers, J. Farrell MacDonald, Fred Kohler, Raymond Hatton, Rex, King of wild horses and the original Arizona Wranglers, experts in western songs over the radio, prominent in the cast..

The miracle which really made "Stormy" occurred Thursday. The company was working in heat ranging from 120 to 131 degrees and were looking forward to the fake but wet studio storms which the production department was already arranging in Universal City on a huge Universal City sound stage, when a sudden thunder storm accompanied by almost cloud burst gave them the scenes which would have taken days and days to shoot in the studio.

"THREE LAZY MICE"

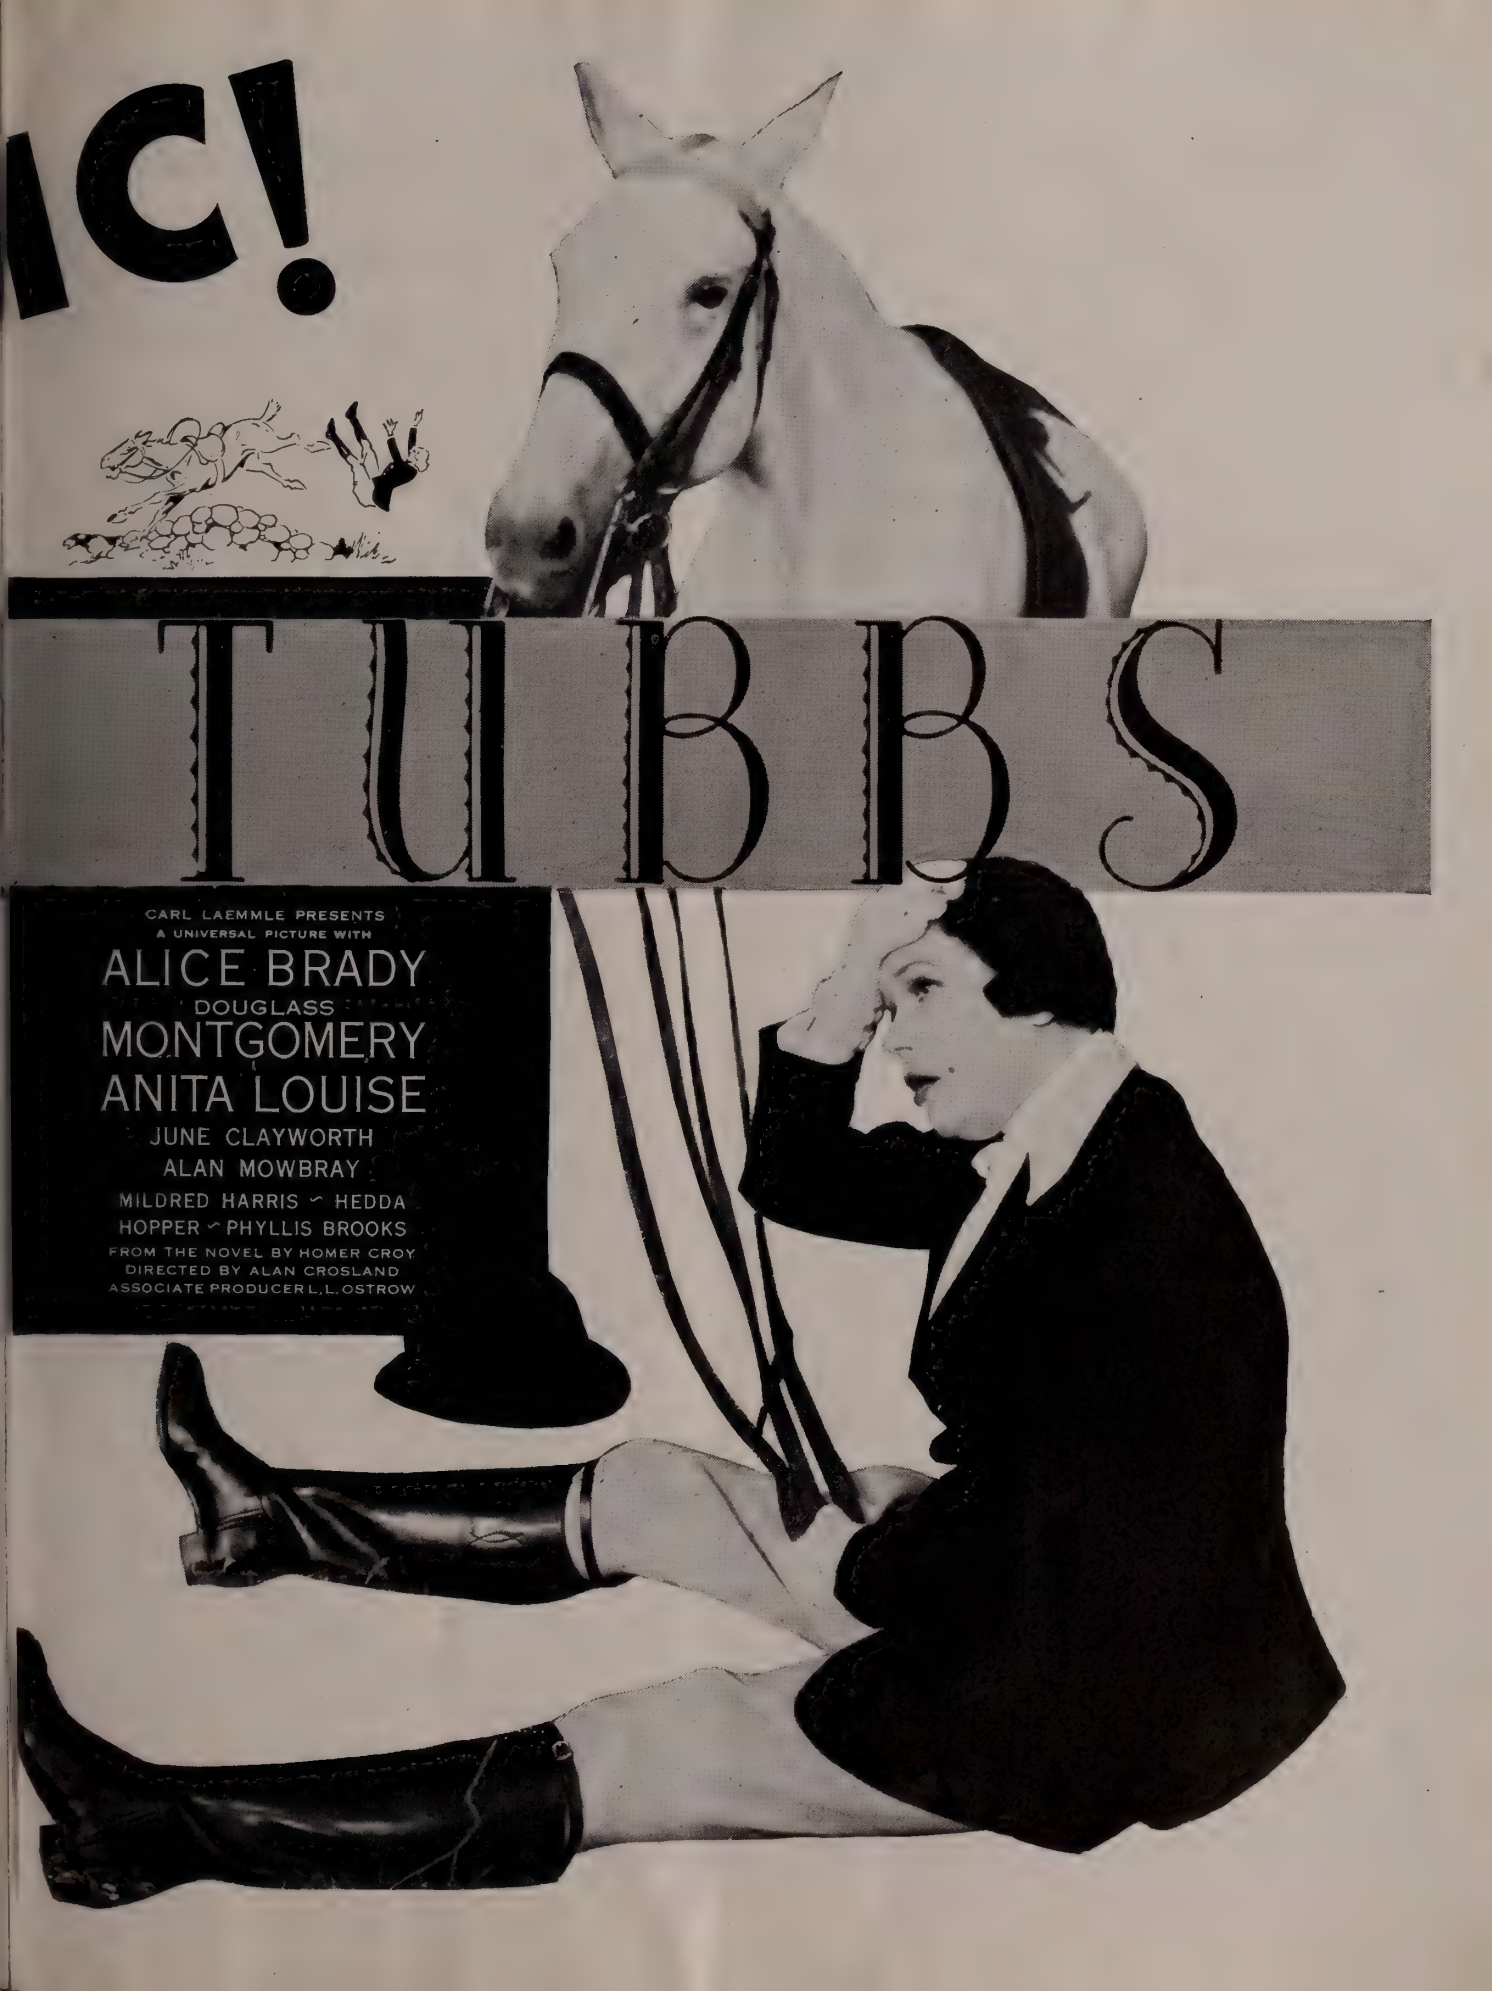
"Highly recommended and particularly appealing to children."
M. P. Daily

IT'S A PAN



Lady

"LADY TUBBS" OVER-RIDING THE HOUNDS IN HER FIRST FOX HUNT!... AND WHEN SHE WINS THE "BRUSH" SHE DUSTS HERSELF OFF WITH IT!... IT'S THE FUNNIEST SCENE EVER PUT INTO A TRE-MENDOUSLY FUNNY PICTURE!



IC!
TUBBS
CARL LAEMMLE PRESENTS
A UNIVERSAL PICTURE WITH ALICE BRADY
DOUGLASS
MONTGOMERY
ANITA LOUISE
JUNE CLAYWORTH
ALAN MOWBRAY
MILDRED HARRIS ~ HEDDA
HOPPER ~ PHYLLIS BROOKS
FROM THE NOVEL BY HOMER CROY
DIRECTED BY ALAN CROSLAND
ASSOCIATE PRODUCER L. L. OSTROW

4 SMASHING SERIALS FROM UNIVERSAL

(Continued from Page 13)

At the time Universal bought the rights from Gilbert L. Patton it had in mind the starring of Dixie Howell who had achieved fame in the Rose bowl in California, but Howell was already obligated to the Detroit Tigers and, unfortunately, was hurt in one of the first games he played. He may recover in time to play in Universal's serial. If he doesn't Universal will find another star who embodies the qualities which Patton painted so glamorously in his own day and will bring Frank Merriwell up to date without losing anything of his former glamour.

"Flash Gordon" Popular

No plans have as yet been announced for the cast of "Flash Gordon;" however this serial promises to be one of the most unusual and most interesting ever made at Universal City. It concerns the adventures of a young man of an inventive turn of mind and who discovers the adventure of going to another world in a rocket plane and sustaining life on planets where conditions, animals and plants are all different from those on the earth.

"Flash Gordon" is followed eagerly by an audience of twenty-five million boys and girls every week in its newspaper career and it is enjoying a big radio hookup over twenty-six stations. In a recent Universal Weekly we told of the formation of Flash Gordon clubs in a number of cities. Plenty of movie patrons will be waiting for the movie picture version of "Flash Gordon."

The New Tailspin Tommy

Just as soon as Henry MacRae completes his supervision of the production of "Stormy" in which he has cast Noah Beery, Jr., he will snap this actor out of features and put him into his old role of "Skeeter" in "Tailspin Tommy in the Great Air Mystery." This is the new title of the sequel to "Tailspin Tommy," which not only proved a crackerjack serial but developed a new screen character for Noah Beery, Jr. Every effort will be made to present the same cast that scored so resoundedly in the original "Tailspin Tommy." Maurice Murphy played Tailspin and Patricia Farr was Betty Lou. Others in the original cast were Walter Miller, Grant Withers, John Davidson, Monte Montague, Edmond Cobb, William Desmond and Charles A. Brown.

"Tailspin Tommy" as a newspaper strip has increased its circulation and added a number of newspapers as a mark of the success of its screen heroes. This strip now runs in 178 papers.

FRONT COVER INDEX

Short product stars on cover and pictures in which they play:

1—Sterling Halloway, mainstay of the Universal two-reel comedies.

2—Oswald and his creator, Walter Lantz.

3—Henry Armetta.

4—Graham McNamee, narrator of Universal Newsreel.

5—Lou Hearn, funny man of "Speedy Justice," famous musical comedy star and known throughout the world for his work in "Wine, Women and Song."

6—Jimmy Wallington, the famous voice behind the "Stranger Than Fiction" series.

7—Buck Jones, star of the leadoff serial for next season, "The Roaring West."

8, 9, 10, 11—The Eaton Boys, preeminent novelty singing quartette, featured on five coast-to-coast hookups every week.

12—Consuelo Gonzales, one of the high spots in "A Great Idea," Mentone Musical.

13—Noah Beery, Jr., who was featured last year in "Tailspin Tommy" and will be featured again in "Tailspin Tommy in the Great Air Mystery."

14—Muriel Evans, leading lady for Buck Jones in "The Roaring West."

15—Louise Leonard, one of the Mentone Musical proteges in "A Great Idea."

16—The Mentonettes.

17—Lowell Thomas, star of "Going Places with Lowell Thomas."

Here is a partial list of the papers using the "Tailspin Tommy" strip today, divided into states for convenient checking:

ALABAMA
News ..... Birmingham
Press ..... Mobile

ARIZONA
Herald ..... Nogales
Citizen ..... Tucson
Republic & Gazette ..... Phoenix

ARKANSAS
World ..... Helena
Democrat ..... Little Rock
Sun ..... Jonesboro

CALIFORNIA
Star News ..... Culver City
Citizen ..... Hollywood
Evening Journal ..... Santa Monica
Morning Press ..... Santa Barbara
*Tribune ..... Oakland
Outlook ..... Santa Monica
Bee ..... Fresno
Tribune ..... San Diego
Sun & Telegram ..... San Bernardino
*Press Telegram ..... Long Beach
*Union ..... San Diego

COLORADO
Star Journal ..... Pueblo
*News ..... Denver
Camera ..... Boulder

CONNECTICUT
Press ..... Middletown
Republican & American ..... Waterbury
Times ..... Hartford

FLORIDA
Daily News ..... Miami
Times ..... St. Petersburg

GEORGIA
Telegraph ..... Macon
News ..... Savannah

IDAHO
Tribune ..... Pocatello
Free Press ..... Nampa

(Continued on Page 28)

The Roll of Honor

LOS ANGELES EXCHANGE

A. J. O'KEEFE, Mgr.

Those exhibitors who have used Universal consistently and the number of years that they have used Universal Pictures consecutively.

TOWN	THEATRE	EXHIBITOR	No. YEARS	LOCATION
Los Angeles	McKinney's Regent	Mrs. N. C. Son	16	Los Angeles
"	Bard's Circuit	Lou Bard	18	Los Angeles Pasadena
"	American—Seville	K. C. Manny	14	Los Angeles
"	Vista	R. D. Whitson	15	Los Angeles San Diego
"	Sunset	C. W. Blake	23	Los Angeles
"	Los Angeles	Joe Leo	3	Los Angeles
"	Pantages	Alexander Pantages	7	Los Angeles
"	Victoria	George Bromley	17	Chicago Minneapolis Los Angeles
"	Marcal	A. Galston	14	Detroit Los Angeles
"	Parisian	Harry W. Chotiner	8	Los Angeles
"	Granada	L. R. Meyers	18	McKeesport, Pa. Los Angeles
"	Strand	Harry Vinnicof	8	Los Angeles
"	Wiltern	Ben Berinstein	19	Los Angeles
"	Tivoli	Ben Berinstein	19	Los Angeles
"	Sunbeam	Ben Berinstein	19	Los Angeles
Alhambra	Garfield	Harry Vinnicof	8	Alhambra
"	Granada	C. A. Ferry	16	Alhambra
Bakersfield	Virginia	John Carnakis	22	Bakersfield
Chino	Woods	Mrs. A. Woods	15	Elkhart, Kans. Chino
Downey	Downey	Frank Valuskis	11	Downey
Elsinore	Elsinore	Mrs. F. Jackson	7	Elsinore
Glendale, Ariz.	Glendale	John D. Howard	23	Various
Hawthorne, Cal.	Plaza	E. S. Calvi	5	Hawthorne
Jerome, Ariz.	Ritz	Phil Pecharich	21	Jerome
Long Beach, Cal.	Capitol—State	Milton Arthur	5	Long Beach
"	Lee	Jesse Jones	21	Canon City, Colo. Long Beach
La Mesa	La Mesa	H. M. Cahn	2	La Mesa
Pasadena	Fair Oaks	Ray Peterson	18	Salt Lake City
Pasadena	Tower	Ben Berinstein	19	Pasadena Pasadena
Phoenix, Ariz.	Phoenix Amuse. Co.	George Mauk	21	Florence, Ariz. Superior, Ariz. Rex, Ariz. Hayden, Ariz. Ajo, Ariz.
Phoenix, Ariz.	Strand	Harry L. Nace	18	Phoenix
San Bernardino, Cal.	Rialto	Don Knapp	21	San Bernardino
"	Temple	W. H. Braman	20	San Bernardino
SanDiego, Cal.	New Victory	G. F. Finck	4	San Diego
"	Broadway	J. F. Keogh	11	San Diego
San Pedro	Globe	Jacob Dorner	20	San Diego
Tucson, Ariz.	Lyric Amuse. Co.	Nick Diamos	21	Bisbee, Ariz. Douglas, Ariz. Nogales, Ariz.

The Papers Using "Tailspin Tommy"

(Continued from Page 26)

ILLINOIS

Journal Transcript ..... Peoria
Journal ..... East St. Louis
*Times ..... Chicago
Herald ..... Decatur
Courier ..... Urbana

IOWA

Register & Tribune ..... Des Mones

INDIANA

Pharos Tribune ..... Logansport
Tribune ..... South Bend
Chronicle ..... Marion
*Tribune ..... Terre Haute

KENTUCKY

Courier Journal ..... Louisville

KANSAS

Beacon ..... Wichita

LOUISIANA

World ..... Monroe
Item and Tribune ..... New Orleans

MARYLAND

Herald & Mail ..... Hagerstown
Evenng Sun ..... Baltimore

MICHIGAN

Daily News ..... Ann Arbor
Chronicle ..... Muskegon
Daily Journal ..... Flint
News ..... Saginaw
Times ..... Bay City
News ..... Detroit
Gazette ..... Kalamazoo

MINNESOTA

Pioneer Press ..... tS. Paul

MISSOURI

Star ..... Kansas City
*Tribune ..... Jefferson City
Gazette ..... St. Joseph
News Press ..... St. Joseph

MONTANA

Standard ..... Butte
Tribune ..... Great Falls
Missoulian ..... Missoula

NEBRASKA

State Journal ..... Lincoln
World Herald ..... Omaha

NEW JERSEY

Bergen Record ..... Hackensack
Star Eagle ..... Newark
Evening News ..... Paterson
Ledger ..... Newark

NEW MEXICO

*Morning Dispatch ..... Roswell

NEW YORK

Times ..... Buffalo
Telegram ..... Herkimer
Daily Mirror ..... New York City Press ..... Binghamton
Standard Star ..... New Rochelle

A Swell Review on Buck Jones in "The Roaring West"

THE first three reels of this serial, while of a familiar brand of entertainment in its basic elements proves that punch-packed action in westerns can also carry a refreshing amount of logic. Consequently, it is the kind of show that can be made to appeal to a wider audience. It is well-acted, convincing and moves fast. The plot, so far, has Jones and his partner on their way to a land rush. They join with others, and the heavy of the crowd gets their map, which indicates valuable mineral deposits, and succeeds in staking the claim first. Considerable wrangling ensues before Jones is accused of murder, the town is flooded, a hideout is blown to pieces and much dirty work is antcipated. First rate in every department.

Running time of each chapter averages 20 minutes.

BOX OFFICE

Daily News ..... Tarrytown
Herald ..... Syracuse
No. Shore Daily Journal ..... Flushing, L. I.
Nassau Daily News ..... Freeport, L. I.
Journal News ..... Ithaca
Evening Recorder ..... Amsterdam
Argus ..... Mount Vernon
Citizen Sentinel ..... Ossining
Herald Statesman ..... Yonkers
Evening News ..... Jamaica, L. I.
Democrat & Chronicle ..... Rochester

NORTH CAROLINA

Daily Record ..... Grensboro
News ..... Charlotte
Journal & Sentinel ..... Winston Salem
Citizen Times ..... Asheville
Herald Sun ..... Durham

OHIO

Beacon Journal ..... Akron
News Bee ..... Toledo
News ..... Dayton
News & Repository ..... Canton
Telegram ..... Youngstown
News & Sun ..... Springfield

(MORE NEXT WEEK)

✚ ✚ ✚

Betty Furness Named in "Magnificent Obsession"

A CHANGE was this week made in the cast of John M. Stahl's production of "Magnificent Obsession," which went into production at Universal City last Friday, Jule Haydon was unable to accept the role which Mr. Stahl had offered her and resigned from the cast. Her place was taken by Betty Furness, who made her first hit in "Aggie Appleby" and was prominent in the cast of "The Life of Virgie Winters."

Mr. Stahl is still shooting around the gigantic set representing the steamer Normandie which took a triple crew of artisans two weeks to build and dress on Universal's City's largest sound stage. The cast is headed by Irene Dunne and Robert Taylor. Important roles are assigned Charles Butterworth, Sara Haden, Beryl Mercer, Gilbert Emery, Arthur Hoyt and Henry Armetta.

✚ ✚ ✚

SILVER JUBILEE FOR CLAIR HAGUE

(Continued from Page 9)

of the exhibitors of the Dominion of Canada.

This is a year of 4 Silver Jubilees. None is more fitting and deserved than the Clair Hague Silver Jubilee.

The offices combined in the Silver Jubilee are Toronto, Winnipeg, Montreal, Calgary, St. John and Vancouver. August thirty-first is the closing date and by that time every exhibitor in Canada will have had an opportunity to show Clair Hague just where he stands with the exhibitors of Canada.

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
SHOWMANSHIP
SECTION
A DIGEST OF THE BEST
EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

SHORTS—BUT OH MY!

Shorts—but oh my! You've read so much about ballyhooing them—and most of you do so little about it! After all, with a feature picture to worry about, who can spend time boosting a two reeler or a single-spool picture? Who can? The answer is: the man who has tried it! Many a smart showman is picking his shorts as carefully as he picks his features. He picks his features first, of course; but he checks his full list of shorts availabilities to select the proper roundout for his program.

Many a smart showman is concentrating a nice proportion of his effort each week in building up EXTRA interest in his theatre through sensible advertising of his comedy, novelty, serial and news reels in newspaper ads, publicity, and lobby display.

Sometimes it will be a striking item in the newsreel that he can "blast" a broadside on. Or it may be a swell headline act in a Mentone; or an especially zippy Oswald; or a super-oddity in "Strange As It Seems." Maybe it will be a grotesque, far off city in "Going Places" that even wealthy vacationists can never travel to. Certainly plenty of people are intrigued by this special notice and plenty of tickets are sold because of the practice.

Just as kids storm your house whenever a new Universal Serial is ballyhooed, so too, many extra hard-to-get patrons are attracted by the extra attention you give to especially outstanding items on your "surrounding" program.

Shorts—but oh my! How important they can be in sending your audiences out fully satisfied with a grand show! Wise showmen watch them carefully—and capitalize on the good ones—wisely!

JOE WEIL

FOUR SERIAL SHOWMANSHIP SPECIALS!

BUY 5,000 OF THESE AND GET ONE BUCK JONES DAISY AIR RIFLE FREE!

BUCK JONES-DAISY AIR RIFLE FREE FOR CONTEST PRIZE.

BUY 5,000 or more of the "Roaring West" jumbo circus heralds and receive FREE one BUCK JONES-DAISY AIR RIFLE! Imprint the heralds, using the special mat available at Universal Exchanges; set up the display shown at the right, and you'll have a swell start on your "ROARING WEST" campaign. If you prefer, offer the air-rifle as a prize in some other competition, but you must imprint the heralds with copy as provided on mat. Contact your local Daisy dealer for co-operation and for the special buck shot.

Two Big-Little Books for "Roaring West"

EACH book is a complete story in itself, but one carries over into the other, plot, characters, etc., They are profusely illustrated with production stills and both covers carry the title and feature Buck Jones. Will be sold through leading five and ten cent chain stores. Arrange displays tied in with the picture. Give away several copies as prizes. For prices and other information address: The Whitman Publishing Co., Racine, Wisc.

"Tailspin Tommy in The Great Air Mystery"

MORE action, more adventure and greater air thrills in the picture and more newspapers to tie-up with! That's what you get with "Tailspin Tommy in the Great Air Mystery." Check your local papers now and contact the one running this popular strip or Sunday page, for co-operation. Offer a slide or trailer and a lobby card in return for a line under the strip, "house" ads, bannered trucks and newsstand cards, all tied in to your engagement of the picture. If the paper has a "Tailspin Tommy" club arrange for group attendance at the opening. If not get it to sponsor one well in advance of opening.

A Few Suggestions

CONTACT air-port or flying school for co-operation on a mystery plane with markings on wings and tail. Announce that you will give free passes to the first ten youngsters best describing the type of plane, markings, color, make and the day and time of its flight. Arrange for airplane trips as prizes for other contests. In return for publicity on screen and in lobby borrow a plane for ballyhoo purposes.

Stage an airplane model construction contest with Junior memberships in the (American) Aeronautical Association or subscriptions to the association publication, as prizes. Real pilot's goggles or helmets will also make attractive prizes.

"FLASH GORDON"— ANOTHER BIG NEWSPAPER TIE-UP SERIAL

ALEX RAYMOND'S sensational newspaper strip and Sunday page, "Flash Gordon" will be another great Universal chapter-play backed by a nation-wide newspaper tie-up. You can't start working on it too soon, telling the local paper running the strip, that you will play the picture. Ask for a credit line with the strip and page, suggest a few "house" ads plugging the strip and announcing the coming of the picture. Suggest banners on the delivery trucks. Then plug the strip and paper in lobby and on screen with your advance announcements of the picture.

The pistol illustrated at the left, is one of the many great novelties for your "FLASH GORDON" campaign. Tie-up with dealers for window displays and cooperative ads. Use pistols for contest prizes. It's a harmless toy—flashes sparks and makes a siren-like noise. For information as to prices, dealers, etc., address Louis Marx and Co., 200 Fifth Ave., New York City.

The Big Little Book Library features Flash Gordon with Alex Raymond drawings, not stills from the production. The book makes a great tie-up as it is sold through chain stores which will give you displays. Books are also good for contest prizes. Address: Whitman Publishing Company, Racine, Wisc.

"ADVENTURES OF FRANK MERRIWELL"— STANDISH'S FAMOUS STORIES IN 12 THRILL-PACKED CHAPTERS

THOUSANDS of boys, and girls, count Frank Merriwell as one of their best pals! He is, perhaps, the greatest fiction hero in history. His exploits and adventures have thrilled the youth of America for generations and are still among the best selling books for young boys and girls. His adventures in school, in athletics and in travel give you unlimited exploitation possibilities. Schools, Boy Scouts and other youth organizations, and the boys and girls themselves, will work with you in making this one of the biggest showmanship chapter-plays you have ever run. Let them know it's coming.

"OSWALD" THE LUCKY RABBIT IS STEPPING OUT

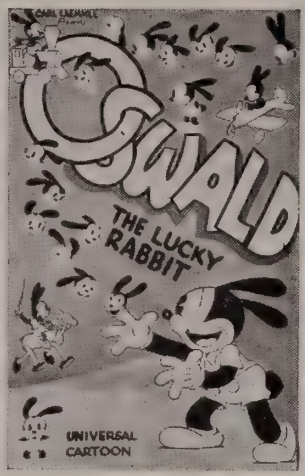
"Oswald" A Marquee Attraction

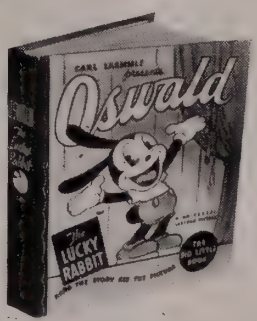
OSWALD has built up an army of fans that extend from coast to coast and from Canada to the Gulf! When you play him put his name on your marquee. Give him a spot in your ads. Use the stock one sheet. Plug him every way you can. Here are a few suggestions:

Organize "OSWALD CLUBS" on the same basis as your Buck Jones or serial clubs. Tie-up with the newspapers for an OSWALD GAG AND DRAWING CONTEST. Offer prizes for the best gags for the Lucky Rabbit to pull in his pictures and for the best drawings. Hold a special OSWALD MATINEE with souvenirs, ice cream and a general whoopie party for the kids with the treat on Oswald.

WATCH the leading toy stores and toy departments for the appearance of the latest OSWALD novelties including the dolls and rattles shown at the left. Work with the dealers for displays and co-operative newspaper ads. Promote dolls from the dealer and offer them as contest prizes. For further information address: Irwin & Co., 27 W. 20th St., New York City.

The stock 1 sheet for OSWALD. Use it every time you play one of these feature cartoons. Space provided for imprinting title of current picture.





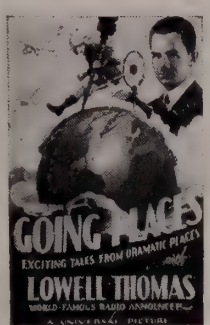
OSWALD'S BOOK

OSWALD in cartoon is also a member of the Big-Little Books Library on sale at 5 and 10c stores. These books are profusely illustrated with Oswald's antics and carry a running story of his adventures. Covers are in full color and feature the star in title and drawing. Leading chain stores sell them and will give you displays. Offer a few copies as contest prizes. Address: Whitman Publishing Co., Racine, Wisc. for nformation as to prices, dealer, etc.

BOOST THE FINEST NEWSREEL ON THE MARKET

"MENTONE" MUSICALS

TAKE a look at the NAMES on that poster to the left! The biggest in radio, vaudeville and night-club circles! That's what you get with UNIVERSAL-MENTONE featurettes! Real box-office draws—names that rate a spot on your marquee—and a line in your ads—give it to them! For your front, lobby and for around-town posting there is a special one sheet for every one of the series. Each one is produced with the same seat-selling showmanship that characterizes other Universal posters. Sell the big names—the music—the girls the laughter—they're all there when you play a UNIVERSAL-MENTONE.



Going Places With Lowell Thomas

ANOTHER box-office name! A real booster for any program. Lowell Thomas is one of radio's top personalities excellent for school tie-ups. Here's a stock one sheet to help you do it. Ask for this poster at your Universal Exchange.

"Stranger Than Fiction"

POST the individual items on a lobby board for extra ticket sales! The four corners of the globe are scoured to provide the material for this intriguing, educational entertainment. Weird, unbelievable oddities narrated by a prominent radio personality. That's the stock one sheet at the right. Use it in your lobby and on your front. Post a few around town in strategic spots.

UNIVERSAL WITH GRAHAM McNAMEE, TOPS THEM ALL

MORE newspaper promotion to give impetus to your selling job! Another BIG NAME to flash on your marquee and in your lobby. Sell the UNIVERSAL NEWSPAPER NEWS REEL as a feature of your program. Sell the inimitable Graham McNamee, — who tops all radio and screen announcers. Sell the front page news shots that Universal cameramen risk life and liberty to get. Put McNamee and the Universal Newsreel on your marquee. They rate it — every week.

Each issue has its own one sheet plugging the high spots of the reel. There's one of them at the right. Reserve a spot on your front display for it. Give it a special sidewalk easel. Spot a few around town. Your Universal Exchange will supply you with a stock poster featuring Graham McNamee. Use this, too. When there is a UNIVERSAL NEWSPAPER NEWSREEL shot of some important local event, go after it with special selling. Work with the newspaper tie-up. Give the paper credit in your lobby in return for mention of theatre in ads and publicity.

UNIVERSAL "L
FOR 19

Victor Hugo's HUNCHBACK OF NOTRE DAME ○ EDWARD
Directed by Edward Sutherland. An Edmund Grainger Production
DAUGHTER. By John Balderston. Directed by James Whale. A DINNER. Faith Baldwin's Cosmopolitan Magazine Sensation. Dire Wyatt. ○ From the best-seller by Beatrice Lubitz. ○ Binnie B famous story. Directed by Stuart Walker. ○ Edmund Lowe in T
Directed by Lloyd Corrigan. ○ Karloff and Lugosi in THE INVIS STORMY by Cherry Wilson. With Noah Beery, Jr. Directed by Martel. Directed by Hamilton Macfadden. ○ Edmund Lowe in Jack Oakie in FAST AND FURIOUS. ○ THE GIANT PLANE by Horton in HIS NIGHT OUT. By Henry Irving Dodge. ○ AGEN
OF THE OPERA. ○ Marta Eggerth in SONG OF JOY. ○ ED
With Constance Cummings and Ricardo Cortez. Directed by Ja
BLUEBEARD. Screenplay by Bayard Veiller. ○ May Robson i TIMBER with Jack Holt. ○ STORM OVER THE ANDES with J
Edward Grant. ○ DESTROYER with Jack Holt. ○ Gouverneur
Melford ○ YELLOWSTONE by Houston Branch. ○ ALONE T
THE FLYING SQUADRON ○

WATCH UNIVERSAL . . . beca

NES THEM UP"
35-36!

RNOLD in DIAMOND JIM. With Jean Arthur and Binnie Barnes. O 2 MARGARET SULLAVAN PRODUCTIONS. O DRACULA'S l Laemmle, Jr. Production. O CAROLE LOMBARD in SPINSTER d by Walter Lang. O STRANGERS AT THE FEAST. With Jane es in HER EXCELLENCY, THE GOVERNOR. Nina Wilcox Putnam's GREAT IMPERSONATION. E. Phillips Oppenheim's best-seller. E RAY. Howard Higgin's and Douglas Hodges' weird story. O is Friedlander. O WHILE THE CROWD CHEERS. With June IG SOLOMON OF BROADWAY. Directed by Alan Crosland. O es Warner Bellah. Directed by Ernst L. Frank. O Edward Everett 44 O UNDER THE SURFACE O Gaston Leroux's PHANTOM RD ARNOLD in THE HANGOVER MURDERS by Adam Hobhouse. s Whale. A Carl Laemmle, Jr. Production. O The Great KARLOFF in HREE KIDS AND A QUEEN. Directed by Edward Ludwig. O TALL Holt and Antonio Moreno. O TROUBLE IN B FLAT by James ris' EAST OF JAVA. With Charles Bickford. Directed by George ETHER. Zasu Pitts - Hugh O'Connell. Directed by Kurt Neumann. BUCK JONES PRODUCTIONS.

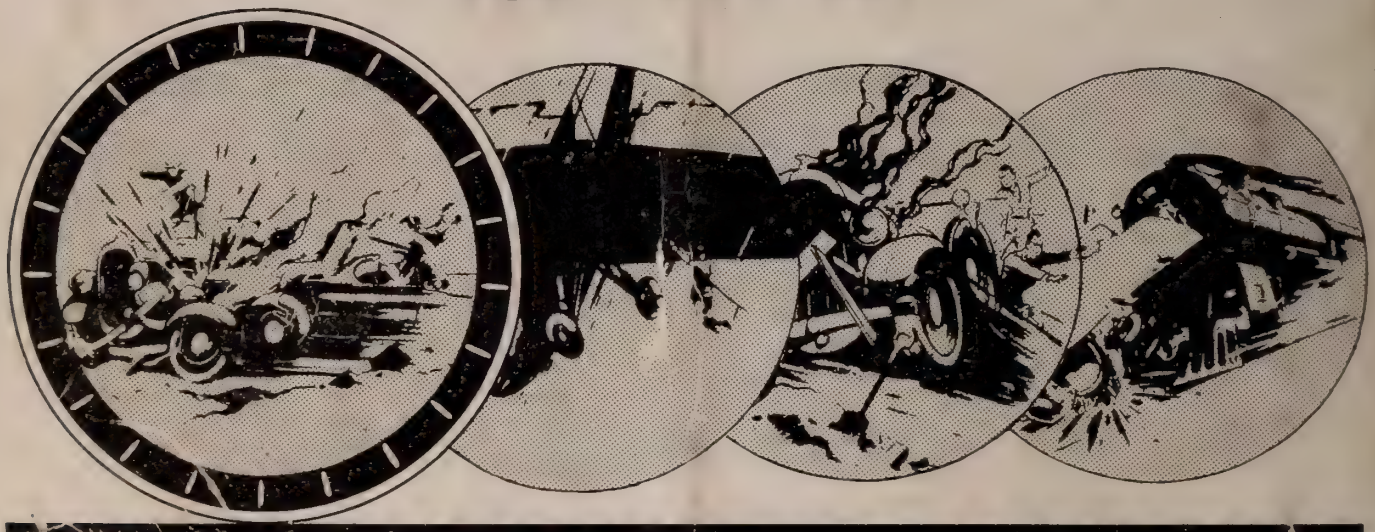
e Universal watches your box-office!

From
UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.
ROCKEFELLER CENTER
NEW YORK CITY

ROBERT B WENNER
22 CROSS ST
MALDEN MASS

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
Paid
Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

UNIVERSAL'S SENSATIONAL TWO-REEL SPECIAL FOR 1935-36!



CAMERA THRILLS!

Greater than "The World's Greates

Larry Edmunds Bookshop
6658 Hollywood Blvd.
Hollywood Calif. 90028
HO 3-327
World's Largest Collection
Of Books on Motion Pictures

Printed in U. S. A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

VOL. 37 AUG. 10, 1935 NO. 2

THE LADIES of DIAMOND JIM

DIAMO

is

ND JIM

coming!

HE COULD BUY
Eve
in DIAMO

rything
BUT LOVE!
THE HEART OF THE WORLD WILL GO OUT TO THIS GLORIOUS CHARACTER!
Carl Laemmle presents
EDWARD ARNOLD
ND JIM
A Universal Picture With JEAN ARTHUR
BINNIE BARNES
Cesar Romero Eric Blore Hugh O'Connell
George Sidney Otis Harlan Henry Kolker
Robert McWade Fred Kelsey
An EDMUND GRAINGER Production
Directed by EDWARD SUTHERLAND

HANG DIAMOND

No. 824 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

The most scintillating picture of many a season is about to be dumped into your lap.

It will smash your box office records if you treat it even half-way right — because it is so different from the yearly run of movies that it sets a new pace.

I mean, of course, "Diamond Jim."

It is a picture without a villian.

There is not a gangster in a carload of "Diamond Jims." It is not a "society drama." It is not a slapstick comedy.

It does not fit any description you have ever given to any previous motion picture.

It is in a class by itself — new, different, refreshing, full of laughs, and yet a tear-jerker! It will be copied!

It is the straight-forwardly told story of the life of one of America's most unusual characters. It deals with his life and with his love.

Both his life and his love are treated frankly, daringly, honestly — and entertainingly.

Edward Arnold plays the title role — "Diamond Jim" to you.

S ON YOUR WIFE!

With him are Jean Arthur, Binnie Barnes, Cesar Romero, Eric Blore, Hugh O'Connell, George Sidney, Otis Harlan, Henry Kolker, Robert McWade, Fred Kelsey and many others — but with all of the finest respect in the world to these real artists — I offer you a brilliant story which will make all of the actors and actresses a niche in the hall of screen fame. And I congratulate Edmund Grainger, the producer, and Edward Sutherland, the director, for doing an amazingly fine job.

Never were more money-making possibilities packed within the limits of any one single motion picture.

Never did any picture lend itself so naturally and so delightfully to fine and practical exploitation and advertising.

Here you have your glorious chance to get away from routine and offer something gorgeously new and honest and good and entertaining.

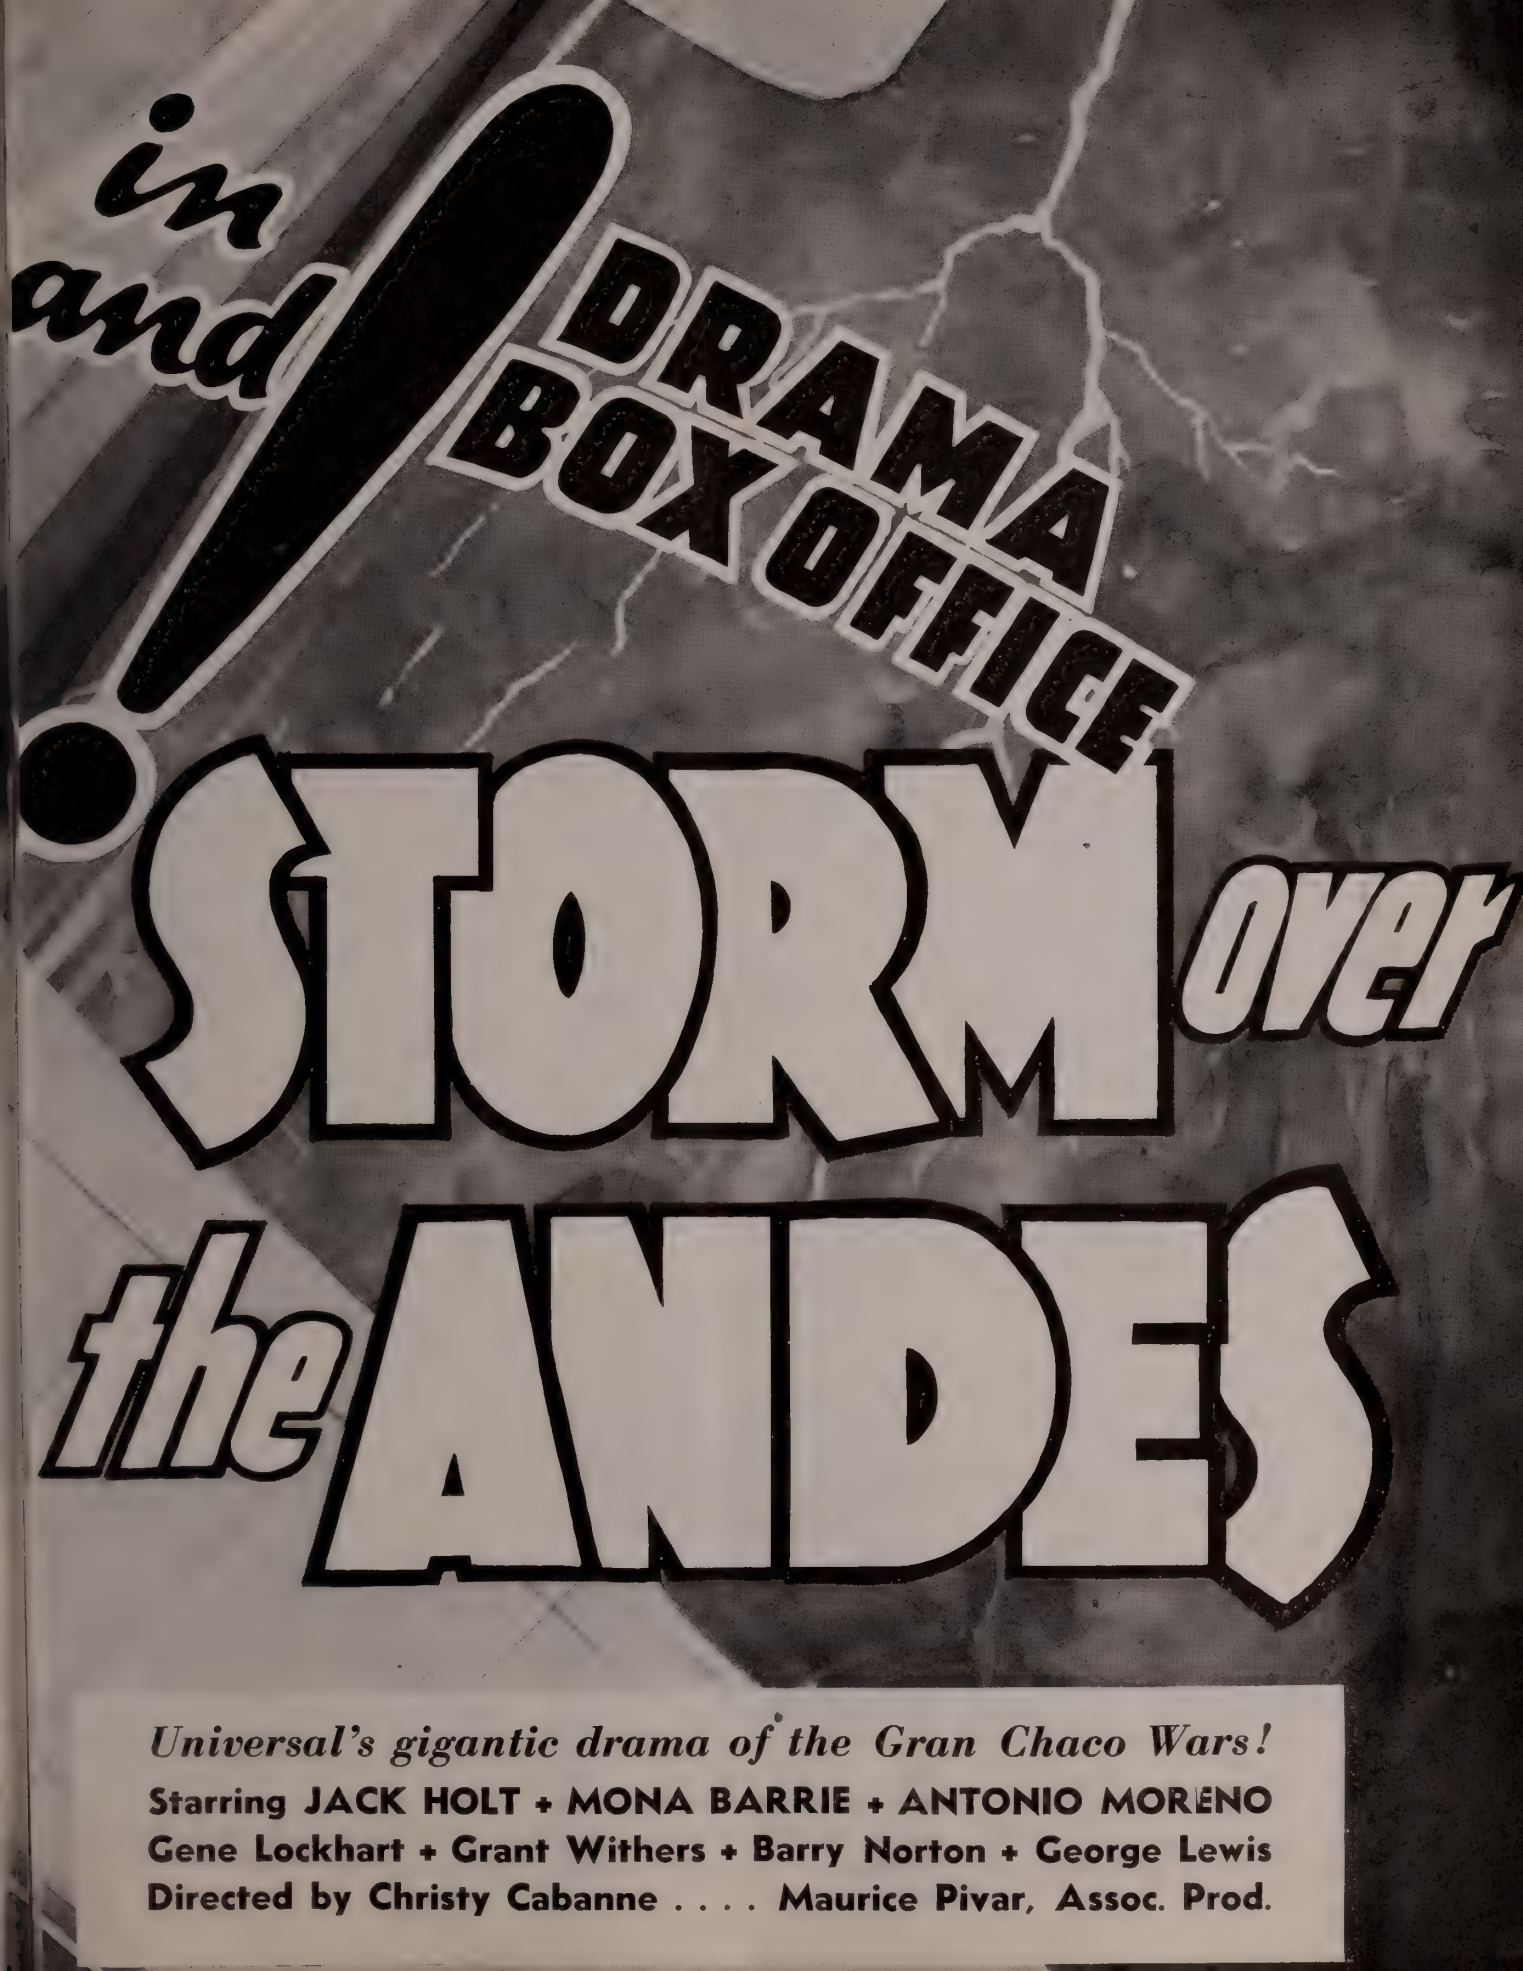
"Diamond Jim" plastered his person with diamonds.

You can make diamonds of profits if you handle this sensational picture just about half-way right!

Now, read this again!

Carl Laemmle

Sky High
HULZ



Universal's gigantic drama of the Gran Chaco Wars!

Starring JACK HOLT + MONA BARRIE + ANTONIO MORENO

Gene Lockhart + Grant Withers + Barry Norton + George Lewis

Directed by Christy Cabanne . . . . Maurice Pivar, Assoc. Prod.

Carl Laemmle Emphatically Denies Sale of Universal

RUMORS which Carl Laemmle allayed in the most emphatic terms during the convention of sales managers in Chicago, about the sale of Universal, cropped up again last week through the peculiar notoriety-seeking methods of Hollywood. In a statement issued last week, Carl Laemmle just as emphatically denied the rumor of the sale of Universal again.

Carl Laemmle, President of Universal Pictures

For the past six months first one rumor and then another has been abroad that eager to retire from active business, the man who defeated the patents companies which monopolized the industry in its early days and then built up the largest distributing and studio organization in the world, was about to sell his controlling interests. Consistently, Mr. Laemmle denied such reports but Hollywood gossips still nodded their heads.

As July, a month of film mergers, closed Laemmle was approached with an offer of tempting millions but rejected them with a definite and emphatic, "No!"

"After giving 30 years of struggle and vitality to the building of a world wide organization that has given happiness and enlightenment to millions of people, I have greater pride in continuing to direct this organization than in the mere possession of a big bank-roll," stated the film pioneer.

(Continued on Page 27)

✚ ✚ ✚

Dickinson Circuit Of Kansas Buys Universal Pictures

J. R. GRAINGER, general manager of distribution for Universal, announces that the Dickinson Circuit has closed a deal that puts the Universal product into thirty of the most important towns in Kansas. This important Midwest circuit fell in line with all the other contractees so far in signing an earlier deal than last year, which is significant of confidence in the future of the film business. The Dickinson deal was closed by E. T. Gomersall and William Benjamin, manager of the Kansas City branch of Universal.

✚ ✚ ✚

Deal With Tri-State

MR. GRAINGER at the same time announced another mid-western booking deal which shows the en-

(Continued on Page 27)

✚ ✚ ✚

"DIAMOND JIM" WORLD PREMIERE

"DIAMOND JIM," Universal's lead-off production for the new 1935-36 season will have it's World

(Continued on Page 27)

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, N. Y. City
Universal Pictures Corp.
Copyrighted 1935
(All Rights Reserved)
AUGUST 10, 1935
Vol. 37 No. 2

The Preview Parade of UNIVERSAL PICTURES

EDWARD ARNOLD
as
"Diamond Jim"
. . . Brady is back on Broadway! . . .

Yes, "Diamond Jim" Brady is back on Broadway, the bright-lit boulevard he loved.

His old haunts hail him again . . . the gas-jets flare higher . . . the chefs at Delmonico's scramble and scurry.

The famous Transportation set of sparkers gleam again on the same generous expanse of shirt-front and girl's eyes grow big as blue-plates.

He's back! The band strikes up a ballad and Lillian Russell sings only to him. He's back. With broad-shouldered young John L. Sullivan to guard his gems!

"DIAMOND JIM" on the screen might have stepped from his own tintype. It's the same high-stepping, pleasure-loving, money-making man-about-town that New York knew—or thought it knew.

Behind the front, back of the glittering gems, a man's heart hungered and this love drama is revealed by the film.

Edward Arnold who takes the title role, Binnie Barnes as the most famous star of a generation, Cesar Romero, Jean Arthur, George Sidney and the others live their parts as players will when their souls are stirred by a story.

"DIAMOND JIM" is just one—the first one—of the new season's picture product from Universal. JACTHALL

IT HAPPENED AT UNIVERSAL CITY

Jane Wyatt, who has just returned to Universal City to appear in "Strangers at the Feast" by Beatrice Lubitz.

Gloria Stuart with her vivacious little daughter, Sylvia Vaughn, who with husband Arthur Sheekman, are in Hawaii for a vacation before the glamorous Gloria resumes her picture career with Universal.

The title of ZaSu Pitts' next picture for Universal, after the screamingly funny, "She Gets Her Man," is "Alone Together." There is something symbolical of that title in the above picture.

Yes, it was as hot in Universal City as it was in New York while they were making "King Solomon of Broadway." Here are the principals: Edmund Lowe, Dorothy Page, Louise Henry and Pinky Tomlin on the set, while this night club picture was being shot by director Alan Crosland. Julius Bernheim is the associate producer.

TO START THEM LAUGHING

! . . . TO GET THEM COMING!

X marks the spot...

where the biggest laughs of the year take place!

Carl Laemmle Presents

ZASU PITTS

HUGH O'CONNELL

in Universal's Laugh Riot

SHE GETS HER MAN

with Helen Twelvetrees, Lucien Littlefield

Directed by William Nigh

X THEATRE imprint

2A

AMERICA'S NEWEST SCREAM-MATES!

A panic of laughter in a riotous feature comedy!

Carl Laemmle Presents

ZASU PITTS

HUGH O'CONNELL

in Universal's Laughing Sensation

SHE GETS HER MAN

with Helen Twelvetrees, Lucien Littlefield, Eddie Brophy, Ward Bond, Virginia Grey

Directed by William Nigh

3A

IS ZASU PITTS A "TIGER WOMAN"?

You'll laugh yourself hoarse when you see her as a comedy G-Woman!

Carl Laemmle presents

ZASU PITTS

Hugh O'CONNELL

in Universal's Comedy Hit

SHE GETS HER MAN

with

HELEN TWELVETREES

LUCIEN LITTLEFIELD

Directed by William Nigh

1A

Oh-h-h-h dear!...

IMAGINE ZASU PITTS AS A G-WOMAN!

...Your sides will be sore from laughter for days and days!

Carl Laemmle presents

ZASU PITTS

Hugh O'CONNELL

in Universal's Comedy Hit

SHE GETS HER MAN

with Helen Twelvetrees

Lucien Littlefield

Directed by William Nigh

1B

Carl Laemmle presents

ZASU PITTS

Hugh O'CONNELL

in Universal's Comedy Hit

SHE GETS HER MAN

1Y

A Mad, Merry Measure of Nonsense!

Carl Laemmle presents

ZASU PITTS

HUGH O'CONNELL

in Universal's Laugh Riot

SHE GETS HER MAN

with

HELEN TWELVETREES

LUCIEN LITTLEFIELD

2X

EDMUND LOWE in "KING SOLOM

Edmund Lowe, the star.

Louise Henry, who plays the role of Kiki, and the masked dancer, who is none other than that singin' fool, Pinky Tomlin

PINKEY

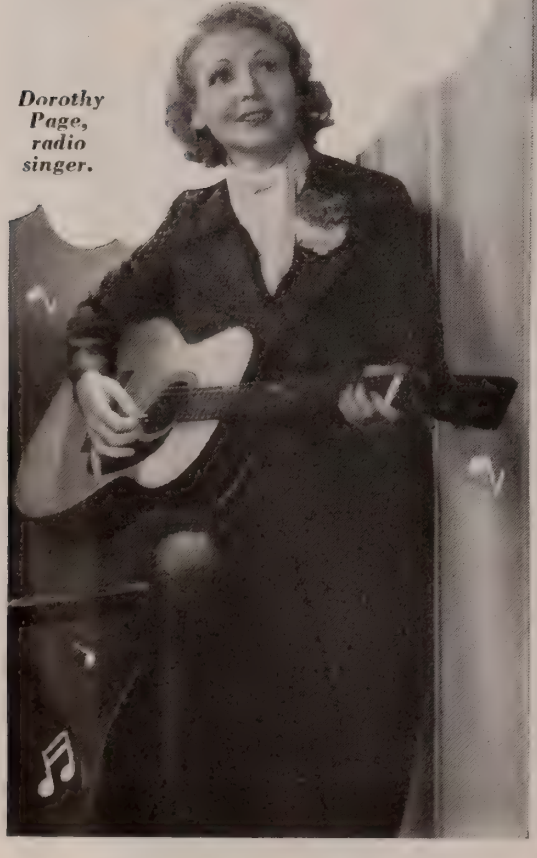
THIS is all that Pinky Tomlin does in "King Solomon of Broadway."

He plays Pinky Tomlin, which is swell.

He dances a rhumba so well with Louise Henry that he wins a prize for his work.

He is credited with the music and lyrics of "That's What You Think."

He organized and trained the twenty-piece orchestra which appears in the production.



Dorothy Page, radio singer.

GORGEOUS SETTINGS

ONE of the largest dance hall "sets" ever constructed was used in the making of Universal's thrilling and tuneful production, "King Solomon of Broadway." The set designed to represent "King Solomon's Palace" a New York night club, was more than 300 ft. long, 150 feet wide and had the novel distinction of being two stories high. Much of the action of the picture took place on the set, which was located on the "Phantom of the Opera" stage, best known of all motion picture stages. It was the first all steel set built for the movies.

Another feature of the set was that it not only contained an entrance for the public, ticket booths, dance floor, more than fifty tables, special bar and an orchestra pit where twenty musicians played, but living quarters on the second floor, ostensibly occupied by Lowe, playing the role of the daring "King Solomon," Broadway's head man, and Edward Pawley, cast as the owner of the dance emporium and a notorious gunman. More than 200 extras were required to "man" the set.

In addition to the cafe, a Long Island mansion, a roadhouse, and Broadway itself form the backgrounds for the fast-moving tale of love and danger along the "Great White Way."

Directed by Alan Crosland, Produced by Julius Bernheim.

as Only ONE SHEBA ON OF BROADWAY"

● In addition to the popular and versatile Edmund Lowe, who is the star of "King Solomon of Broadway," this semi-musical offering has a splendid list of attractions to recommend it for entertainment. It has music of the most colorful and popular quality, numbers by Pinky Tomlin, Con Conrad and Herb Magidson, and a rhumba by David Klotzkin. "Moanin' in the Moonlight," which is published by Witmark, is certain to be a hit number on the radio, and in the sheet music field. Then it has two singers of national reputation to interpret the songs, Pinky Tomlin, who is likely within the year to be the most eagerly sought after player in Hollywood, and Dorothy Page, former NBC star. It has a beauty of setting and photography to make it outstanding.

Edmund Lowe, who plays the role of King Solomon, proprietor of Solomon's Palace.

EDMUND LOWE

THE record of having been starred or co-starred in more than fifty productions during the past ten years is the unusual record held by Edmund Lowe, star of Universal's colorful and lilting tunefilm, "King Solomon of Broadway," with Dorothy Page, Pinky Tomlin and Louise Henry in supporting roles.

Born in San Jose, California, Lowe started his career as a professor at Santa Clara University, from which he graduated after starring in football and baseball.

Solomon's Palace with Pinky Tomlin's orchestra. all dressed up for the evening.

Louise Henry and Edmund Lowe

Pinky Tomlin and Phyllis Brooks

HEARST PAPERS PRAISE M

New York American on July 21st carried th read below, while Louella D. Pa circulation in the movie wo

Another

Lovely Marta Eggerth, popular actress, famous beauty, talented singer, wonderful dancer, entrancing personality.

ANOTHER new and glamorous foreign personality is coming to the American screen. Her name is Marta Eggerth, and though she has but recently quitted her 'teens, she has enjoyed success on the Continent both as a film star of unusual emotional powers and as a concert and opera artiste with a superb mezzo-contralto voice.

Miss Eggerth will reach New York early in August en route for her first visit to Hollywood, where she will make at least two pictures for Universal's 1935-36 program. Though Hungarian by birth, she speaks and sings in five languages and has been making pictures in German, French, Italian and English.

She has already been seen in America in "Unfinished Symphony," a Gaumont-British production, with lovely Franz Schubert melodies, directed by Willy Forst, and in "My Heart Is Calling," opposite her fiance, Jan Kiepura. Forst has also been signed by Universal and will, in all probability, direct one of the later Eggerth starring vehicles, but her first California production, "Song of Joy," by E. P. McEwen,

ARTA EGGERTH TO SKIES

lisplay article on new star which you will ns syndicated, through the biggest !, the article at the right.

ıropean Star o Invade Our Studios will have an American director, an American background and 100 per cent American supporting cast.

To Sing Two Arias in New Picture

The story will furnish an opportunity for the mercurial native of Budapest to sing two operatic arias as well as three or four lighter numbers now being written for her by Ferde Grofe and others.

In celebration of the 100th anniversary of the death of Vincenze Bellini, the great Italian composer of "Norma" and "La Sonnameula," Marta Eggerth's latest film, "Casta Diva," founded on Bellini's life, is now being shown simultaneously in the principal cities of Italy, Great Britain and France. The English version is expected to be released in this country by Gaumont-British, through Fox, at just about the time she arrives in the States.

Added to her other accomplishments, the gifted Marta Eggerth dances with the grace of a trained ballerina. Her early training was for the ballet. At the age of 9 she played the Doll in Offenbach's "Tales of Hoffman" at the Budapest Opera House and subsequently remained there as a student-artist for six years. It was during this period of hard work and study she discovered that her voice was as nimble as her feet and she was given a wide range of roles that proved excellent training in light comedy as well as emotional drama for her later screen career.

Went to England to Act in 1932

At the pigtail age of 15, she was graduated from the opera school and became a full-fledged comedienne on the light opera stage, earning for herself the sobriquet of "the little prima donna" throughout the Continent.

In 1932, she went to England to appear opposite Owen Nares in her first talkie, "Where is This Lady?" At that time, she spoke German and French but not a word of English. She learned her lines parrot-wise and the shrewdest observers did not guess that the actress was playing a part in more than one sense. When she next visited London to make "My Heart is Calling," her English had become so fluent, several managers plied her with offers for the British legitimate stage.

In appearance, Marta Eggerth is petite, blonde and blue-eyed with a sprightliness and gaiety of manner that have made her one of the outstanding personalities in the social life of Europe quite apart from her popularity in the professional world.

This particular set up was reprinted from the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, but it was carried in all the other Hearst papers and the huge syndicate that takes Miss Parsons column

EUROPEAN STAR GETS AS FIRST "SONG OF JOY"

Universal Picks Yarn With American Locale.

By Louella O. Parsons

Motion Picture Editor, Universal Service.
Copyright, 1935, by Universal Service, Inc.

LOS ANGELES, July 31.—Surprising that Marta Eggerth, Hungarian songbird and actress who had such a vogue abroad, should prefer to make her debut here in an American story. She speaks English fluently and without much trace of an accent, so Universal agrees with her that the quickest way to win a place with the American movie-going public is to appear in a story with an American locale.

Her arrival here and her romance with Jan Kiepura have been so much talked about that it seems months ago that we first announced that she was coming to Universal. She will get here late in August to be starred in a typically American play, "Song of Joy," by Frank Dougherty and Helen Thompson. Hans Kraly is doing the screen play.

* * *

Charles Rogers denies in eight languages, each one with a gesture, that he has any intention of buying Universal. He says he is well set at Paramount and gives as hes reason for staying on the fact that he has many productions lined up. "Honors Are Even," by Roi Cooper McGrue, was today handed to Sylvia

Carole Lombard.

June Martel Gets Her Chance

Beautiful June Martel. She has all it takes to make a screen star but the breaks. Now she has those too. She is in Universal's football picture opposite Charles Farrell.

Latest Ingenue Discovery of Universal will make her first appearance at Universal City as Lead Opposite Chas. Farrell in "Off-Side"

•

HERE is a picture of a pretty girl who is stepping into Janet Gaynor's shoes. Her name is June Martel. She is leading lady for Charles Farrell, who with Janet Gaynor formed one of the great box-office teams of screen history. Farrell and Miss Martel carry the romance in "Off-Side," Universal's picture about what happens when college football and college radicalism meet in a head-on collision.

"Off-Side" is now being filmed at Universal City, and the famous Los Angeles Coliseum, scene of many big football contests and the Olympic Games of 1932. Farrell is enthusiastic about the work of his new screen sweetheart. So is Hamilton MacFadden who is directing "Off-Side," and who often watched Farrell and Janet Gaynor work together when he was a director for Fox.

Although she plays a college co-ed in 'Off-Side," Miss Martel never went to college. She knew she wanted to be an actress when she was still in Lakeview High School, Chicago, and wasted no time about achieving her ambition. She won an audition at the Chez Pierre night club in the Windy City, sang and danced there, went into vaudeville and then reached Broadway with the Paramount Publix theatre roadshows. She sang and gave impressions of celebrities one entire summer at the Ritz Carlton Hotels in Atlantic City and Philadelphia.

Her work in the Broadway stage play "The Perfumed Lady" won her screen tests but she refused to sign for pictures, until persuaded by Warner's following her role in "Hide and Seek" at the Westport, N. Y. summer theatre. She also acted in the Broadway drama, "Kill That Story."

Four studios bid for her services after her movie debut in "Going Highbrow," Universal winning out and putting her into the lead in "Off-Side." Her most recent appearance is in "Front Page Woman." She was born in Chicago on November 19th, 1909 and went to school in that city. She is five feet one and a half inches tall, weighs 104 pounds, has brown eyes and auburn hair, loves to ride, play the piano, and fish, plays golf and reads books, preferably plays.

In "Off-Side" she has the part of a girl who works in a restaurant to earn her way through college. She keeps Farrell, the football hero true to the team and helps him fight off the radicals. Andy Devine, J. Farrell McDonald, Ann Sheridan and Eddie Nugent have strong roles in this film which boasts a squad of All-American gridiron stars headed by Jim Thorpe, Nick Lukats, Jim Purvis and Moon Mullins.

THE WHISPERING CAMPAIGN

HAS BECOME A SHOUT!

"UNIVERSAL HAS THE LINE-UP!"

. . . . AND HERE ARE THEY'RE ALL

FIRST OF THE BIG ONES

EDWARD ARNOLD
in
"DIAMOND JIM"
With JEAN ARTHUR · BINNIE BARNES
Directed by Edward Sutherland
An Edmund Grainger Production

RELEASED SEPTEMBER 2nd

●

TWO MARGARET SULLAVAN PRODUCTIONS
Universal's great star at her greatest!

●

CAROLE LOMBARD
in
"SPINSTER DINNER"
Faith Baldwin's Cosmopolitan Magazine Sensation . . . Directed by Walter Lang

●

BINNIE BARNES
in
"HER EXCELLENCY, THE GOVERNOR"
From the famous Liberty Magazine success...Directed by Stuart Walker

●

EDMUND LOWE
in
"KING SOLOMON OF BROADWAY"
With Dorothy Page and Pinky Tomlin
Directed by Alan Crosland . . . A Julius Bernheim Production

●

KARLOFF and LUGOSI
in
"THE INVISIBLE RAY"
Howard Higgin's and Douglas Hodges' weird story

JACK OAKIE
in
"FAST AND FURIOUS"
From the auto-racing romance by Paul Sidney...Directed by Edward Laemmle

●

"WILD NIGHT" ("Hangover Murders")
With
EDW. ARNOLD ● CONSTANCE CUMMINGS ● SALLY EILER
Robert Armstrong — Robert Young — Reginald Denny
From the novel by Adam Hobhouse . . . Directed by James Whale . . . A Carl Laemmle, Jr. Production

●

CHARLES FARRELL
in "OFF-SIDE"
Stanley Meyer's sensational football story
With JUNE MARTEL...Directed by Hamilton Macfadden

●

MAY ROBSON
in "THREE KIDS AND A QUEEN"
With Frankie Darro, Charlotte Henry, Henry Armetta Directed by Edward Ludwig

●

JACK HOLT
in
"STORM OVER THE ANDES"
With MONA BARRIE and ANTONIO MORENO
Directed by Christy Cabanne

●

EDMUND LOWE
in
"THE GREAT IMPERSONATION"
E. Phillips Oppenheim's best-seller
Directed by Lloyd Corrigan

●

MARTA EGGERTH
Universal's New Singing Venus in a merry American musical romance
"SONG OF JOY"

THE PICTURES SHOUTING ABOUT:

CHARLES BICKFORD
in
"EAST OF JAVA"
Gouverneur Morris' famous story
Directed by George Melford

●

ZASU PITTS-HUGH O'CONNELL
The Nation's Newest Scream-Mates
in
"ALONE TOGETHER"
Directed by Kurt Neumann

●

The Great KARLOFF
in
"BLUEBEARD"
Screenplay by Bayard Veiller, author of
"Within the Law" and "The Trial of Mary Dugan"

●

EDWARD EVERETT HORTON
in
"HIS NIGHT OUT"
Henry Irving Dodge's famous comedy

●

JANE WYATT
in
"STRANGERS AT THE FEAST"
From the best-seller by Beatrice Lubitz
Screenplay by Gladys Unger

●

VICTOR HUGO'S immortal masterpiece
"HUNCHBACK OF NOTRE DAME"

●

NOAH BEERY, Jr. and JEAN ROGERS in "STORMY"
Cherry Wilson's story of wild horses and wilder men!
Directed by Louis Friedlander

"DRACULA'S DAUGHTER"
By John L. Balderston...A Carl Laemmle, Jr. Production

●

"GIANT PLANE"
By James Warner Bellah...Directed by Ernst L. Frank

"AGENT 44"
The first story of the Government's woman-hunters!

●

Gaston Leroux's classic drama of all time
"PHANTOM OF THE OPERA"

●

JACK HOLT in
"RIVERBOAT GAMBLER"
Based on the famous stories by Bret Harte
Screenplay by Gouverneur Morris and Gerald Geraghty

●

"TROUBLE IN B FLAT"
A brand new kind of comedy with music by James Edward Grant, author of "Whipsaw"

●

JACK HOLT in
"TALL TIMBER"
The drama of the last wilderness!

●

"YELLOWSTONE"
Arthur Phillips' stirring story of America's natural wonder

●

"THE FLYING SQUADRON"
A romance of aerial daring!

●

SIX BUCK JONES FEATURES
The greatest Western star of all in his biggest money-makers!

●

JACK HOLT in
"DESTROYER"
Samuel Johnson's gripping story of a submarine pirate

AND DON'T FORGET WHAT WE PROMISED ABOUT WINDING UP THE CURRENT SEASON IN A BLAZE OF GLORY WITH

IRENE DUNNE
in John M. Stahl's production of
"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION"
With ROBERT TAYLOR, Charles Butterworth, Betty Furness
[Now in Production]

•

MARGARET SULLAVAN
FRANCIS LEDERER
in "NEXT TIME WE LOVE"
From Ursula Parrott's newest novel!

•

WILLIAM POWELL
in "MY MAN GODFREY"
From the Liberty Magazine serial by Eric Hatch

•

"SUTTER'S GOLD"
...From the epic novel by Blaise Cendrars

•

IRENE DUNNE
in "SHOW BOAT"
Edna Ferber's Immortal Classic! . . . Music by Jerome Kern
A Carl Laemmle, Jr. Production . . . Directed by James Whale

Straight From the Studio

Daily Reports on the Rushes by the Man Who Sees Them First

Picture Number 743
File No. 6456

Date: August1.

Title
"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION"

Producer - - - - E. M. Asher
Director - - - John M. Stahl
Star - - - - - - Irene Dunne
Star - - - - - Robert Taylor
Featured- Chas. Butterworth, Betty Furness and Sara Haden.
Story(novel) Lloyd C.Douglas Screen-play and Dialogue by- Geo. O'Neil, Sarah Y. Mason and - - - - Victor Heerman.
Sets Designed by -- Dan Hall
Unit Publicity- Edw'd Thomas
First Camera -- John Mescall
Second Camera- Allyn C.Jones
Film Editor - Milton Carruth

Research- Cecil Reynolds MD.
Technical Advisor- the Same.
Ass't Dir. - Jos. McDonough
Ass't Dir. - - Charles Gould
Script Clerk - - - Mary Frey
Starting Date, July 12, 1935
Schedule -- 9 weeks (approx)

CAST

Helen - - - - - Irene Dunne
Bobbie - - - - Robert Taylor
Nancy - - - - - - Sara Haden
Tommy -- Charles Butterworth
Joyce - - - - Betty Furness
Perry - - - - - Arthur Hoyt
Dr. Ramsey - - Gilbert Emery

DAILY ITEMS

Scenes made July 29
Location - Studio
Days spent - 15
Scenes finished - 19.
Day's footage - 5430
Total footage -61345
Photo results - perfect.

The scenes in this lot are mostly in the hospital. Irene Dunne comes out of a private room with the nurse and is about to leave when another nurse runs up with the alarming news that Mr. Taylor has disappeared from his bed and room. All three women go in Taylor's room. He is caught hiding by the nurse. Whatever was on his mind is all forgotten the moment Taylor sees Miss Dunne. She is the lady of the stalled automobile who gave him the slip and got away in an old flivver of a passing stranger.

Miss Dunne is a superb creature. She is feminine perfection in all her scenes. She photographs perfectly and her charming personality is a most wonderful thing to behold. What a swell world it would be if every woman could be as beautiful and lovable as Irene Dunne, and if every man could be as handsome and wholesome as Robert Taylor.

Accidental Heroine, in Smash Comedy, "

Teaming of ZaSu Pitts and Which Will Afford Millions of Take-Off on the Government A Is the High Come ZaSu Pitts and Her Million dollar hands.

Ed Brophy, No. 1 Public Enemy, practices archery on ZaSu's Joan of Arc poster.

Lucien Littlefield, small-time sweetheart.

MAKING ZaSu Pitts a female crime buster, a tiger woman, a Carrie Nation, was a lovely idea. It germinated in the brains of Aben Kandel and Dave Diamond as a take-off on the Government agent pictures. Then they added Hugh O'Conell in the role of a demon press agent who saw in the accidental foiling of a bank robbery by a waitress in Arkansas, a chance to make himself a bank roll and acquire a meal ticket.

William Nigh collected all of the tough looking mugs that Hollywood affords to fill the ranks of the Public Enemies for ZaSu to work on and there you have the formula for the season's most outstanding comedy hit. ZaSu and her hands were never funnier than they are in this portrayal of a terrified woman telling the mothers of America how to bust up the crime wave, motivated as she was by the desire to pay off the $98. mortgage on the beanery of her country sweetheart. Helen Twelvetrees and Lucien Littlefield provide the sentimental interest for ZaSu Pitts and Hugh ecomes Tiger Woman

HE GETS HER MAN"

gh O'Connell An Ispiration ughs in This Screamingly Funny
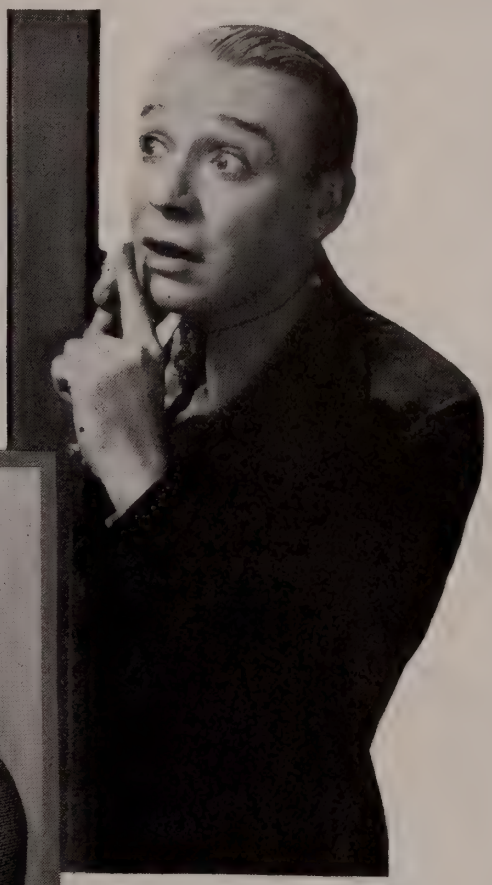
t Pictures. "She Gets Her Man"
Spot of the Season.



Hugh O'Connell as the demon press agent.

The Public Enemy's wooing is more than ZaSu can bear.

Helen Twelvetrees plays herself.

O'Connell, while the thug roles are beautifully exemplified by those lovely specimens, Ed Brophy, Warren Hymer, Ward Bond and Richard Alexander and a baker's dozen of thuggy extras picked up from local ringsides and boxing gymnasiums.

The high spot in "She Gets Her Man" is the attempt of the ace bad man to have ZaSu Pitts inspire his gangsters to bigger and better crime as she has inspired the mothers of America against it. Held up by two pug-uglies, ZaSu can only repeat in trembling tones the speech which Hugh O'Connell has taught her for the lecture platform. It has the reverse English on these hardened criminals, and strange as it may seem, they all throw their guns on the table in front of the terrified heroine and demand that she lead them away to jail.

It sounds goofy, but the whole picture is beautifully goofy from start to finish.

"She Gets Her Man" is a lovely comedy.

With "Lady Tubbs" and "She Gets Her Man" to make them laugh, the exhibitors should be happy.

Hail! Hail!
THE GANG'S ALL CHEER!

"Perfect light-comedy . . . If nominations are still open for a successor to Marie Dressler, this one goes to Alice Brady, considerably younger, but with the same punch . . . She's grand . . . an abundance of riotously funny lines and fine support."

—San Francisco Call-Bulletin

•

"A thoroughly entertaining picture . . . gives Alice Brady a real opportunity to disclose her ability as a comedienne . . capital supporting cast."

—San Francisco Examiner

"Alice Brady cavorts delightfully . . . proves conclusively that she can handle a character part and make it convincing, while studding it with ingratiating light comedy . . . expert supporting cast."

—San Francisco News

•

"Alice Brady grand comedienne . . . enjoys a veritable field day in "LADY TUBBS" . . . romps through the role, turning every line into a laugh . . . as funny a foray of high society as the screen has ever caught.'

—San Francisco Chronicle

Lady TUBBS

WITH

ALICE BRADY – DOUGLASS MONTGOMERY – ANITA LOUISE – JUNE CLAYWORTH – ALAN MOWBRAY

MILDRED HARRIS – HEDDA HOPPER – PHYLLIS BROOKS

From the novel by Homer Croy — Directed by Alan Crosland — L. L. Ostrow Associate Producer

CASTS OF UNIVERSAL PICTURES W

"WILD NIGHT"
"Hangover Murders"

by

Adam Hobhouse

EDWARD ARNOLD
CONSTANCE CUMMINGS
SALLY EILERS
Robert Armstrong
Robert Young
Reginald Denny
Ed Brophy
Jack LaRue
Gregory Ratoff
Louise Henry
George Meeker
Arthur Treacher
Monroe Owsley
Gustav Von Seyffertitz
Rafaela Ottiano

Director, James Whale

"SHE GETS HER MAN"

ZASU PITTS
HUGH O'CONNELL
Helen Twelvetrees
Lucien Littlefield
Ed Brophy
Warren Hymer
Bert Gordon
Ward Bond
Richmond Alexander

Director, William Nigh

"DIAMOND JIM"

by

Parker Morell

EDWARD ARNOLD
JEAN ARTHUR
BINNIE BARNES
Cesar Romero
Eric Blore
Hugh O'Connell
George Sydney
Robert McWade
Tully Marshall

Director, Edward Sutherland

"STORM OVER THE ANDES"

JACK HOLT
Antonio Moreno
Mona Barrie
Gene Lockhart
Grant Withers
Juanita Garfias
Barry Norton
George Lewis
Anita Camargo

Director, Christy Cabanne

"STORMY"

NOAH BEERY, Jr.
JEAN ROGERS
J. Farrell MacDonald
Fred Kohler
Raymond Hatton
Walter Miller
James Burtis
Arizona Wranglers
Rex, King of Wild Horses

Director, Louis Friedlander

CH MEAN MONEY AT BOX-OFFICE!

"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION"

by

Lloyd C. Douglass

IRENE DUNNE
ROBERT TAYLOR
CHAS. BUTTERWORTH
Betty Furness
Sara Haden
Gilbert Emery
Inez Courtney
Henry Armetta
Arthur Hoyt

Director, John M. Stahl

"THREE KIDS AND A QUEEN"

MAY ROBSON
Frankie Darro
Henry Armetta
Charlotte Henry
William Benedict
Billy Burrud

Director, Edward Ludwig

"OFF-SIDE"

CHARLES FARRELL
June Martel
Eddie Nugent
Ann Sheridan
Andy Devine
J. Farrell MacDonald
Glenn Boles
Phyllis Fraser
Herman Bing
Jim Thorpe
Nick Lukats

Director, Hamilton Macfadden

"KING SOLOMON OF BROADWAY"

by

Albert J. Cohen and Robert T. Shannon

EDMUND LOWE
Pinky Tomlin
Dorothy Page
Louise Henry
Edward Pawley
Charles Grapewin
Bradley Page
Arthur Vinton
Clyde Dilson
Phyllis Brooks

Director, Alan Crosland

"ALONE TOGETHER"

by

Mann Page

ZASU PITTS
HUGH O'CONNELL
Walter Catlett
Inez Courtney
William Pawley
Tom Duggan
Mae Busch
Irene Franklin
Phil Tead
James Burke
Buster Phelps

Director, Kurt Neumann

The Winner,
A New Serial Champion!
BUCK
JONES
in Universal's Biggest Western Chapter Drama!
"THE ROARING WEST"
15 Episodes

The Roll of Honor

The Following Exhibitors in the Calgary, Alberta, territory have used Universal Pictures Consecutively:

Since they have been in business

EXHIBITOR	THEATRE	TOWN
C. S. Bailey	Bailey Theatre	Camrose, Alta.
W. Cole	Cole's Theatre	Bellevue, Alta.
	Michel Theatre	Michel, B. C.
L. Brewerton	Capitol Theatre	Raymond, Alta.
L. Johnston	Orpheum Theatre	Kimberley, B. C.
	Orpheum Theatre	Fernie, B. C.
M. C. Healy	Lyric Theatre	Swift Current, Sask.
	Eagle Theatre,	Swift Current, Sask.
Beatty & Johnston	Crescent Theatre	Red Deer, Alta.
	Opera House	Stettler, Alta.
K. M. Leach	Strand Theatre	Calgary, Alta.
	Variety Theatre	Calgary, Alta.
A. Entwisle	Strand Theatre	Edmonton, Alta.
	Empress Theatre	Edmonton, Alta.
	Princess Theatre	Edmonton, Alta.
	Dreamland Theatre	Edmonton, Alta.
A. W. Shackleford	Capitol Theatre	Lethbridge, Alta.
	Roxy Theatre	Lethbridge, Alta.

For Ten Years

F. Christou	Lux Theatre	Banff, Alberta
R. Robson	Opera House	Vulcan, Alberta
J. Dezeeuw	Napier Theatre	Drumheller, Alta.

For Five Years

W. H. B. Sharp	Sharp's Itinerant Circuit	Film Exchange Bldg., Calgary, A
L. A. Goodridge	Gem Theatre	Edmonton, Alta.
F. Donald	Capitol Theatre	Grand Prairie, Alta.
Chas. Coombes	Empress Theatre	Lloydminster, Sask.
L. A. Maher	Monarch Theatre	Medicine Hat, Alta.
W. J. Redmond	Grand Theatre	Maple Creek, Sask.
B. R. Headley	Empress Theatre	Ponoka, Alta.
R. J. Grant	Audien Theatre	Wetaskiwin, Alta.
T. C. Milnes	Rex Theatre	Claresholm, Alta.

For Three Years

G. W. Peacock	Isis Theatre	Calgary, Alta.
F. W. Falkner	Cadomin Theatre	Cadomin, Alta.
Wm. Ramsay	Opera House	Canmore, Alta.
D. Miller	Rex Theatre	Taber, Alta.
F. Shepherd	Majestic Theatre	Biggar, Sask.
M. Milo	Star Theatre	East Coulee, Alta.
C. M. Hoar	Rex Theatre	Kindersley, Sask.
	Auditorium Theatre	Unity, Sask.
	Crescent Theatre	Calgary, Alta.
	Hdqrs. Crescent Theatre	Calgary, Alta.
J. Heinz	Alexandra Theatre	Sylvan Lake, Alta.
Dr. J. H. W. Moore	Avalon Theatre	Lacombe, Alta.
C. H. Martin	Marnel Theatre	Wilkie, Sask.

J. A. WILSON, Mgr.

"DIAMOND JIM" OPENS NEW SEASON IN WORLD PREMIERE AT ROXY

(Continued from Page 8)

Premiere at the Roxy Theatre on Friday, August 23rd.

A block of one hundred seats in the mezzanine will be reserved for a specially invited list of those men and women who knew James Buchanan Brady personally, including a number of well known railroad men, theatrical people, restarateurs, jewelers, his tailor, now deep in the 80's; his florists, his physicians, and even his errand boys. Another block of 500 seats will be occupied by an invited list of distinguished personalities in the worlds of society, literature and art.

In addition to Edward Arnold who first attains stardom in this film, the cast includes Jean Arthur, Binnie Barnes, Cesar Romero, Eric Blore, Hugh O'Connell, George Sidney, Bill Demarest, Robert McWade, Bill Hoolahahn, Henry Kolker, Tully Marshall, Albert Conti, Armand Kaliz and others.

The story adapted by Preston Sturges, Harry Clork and Doris Malloy from Parker Morell's "Life and Times of James Buchanan Brady," is an Edmund Grainger Production, directed by Edward Sutherland.

But all of the world premiere glory is not destined for the Roxy. Every city in the United States, to open its fall season, is anxious to have a world premiere of "Diamond Jim." It is the only big picture for fall which has made a definite and lasting impression on the box-office consciousness of exhibitors. Lou Metzger, of the Spreckles Theatre of San Diego, is making tremendous preparations of his own world premier on the same date. San Francisco, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia and other cities are all in keen competition for August 23, or August 24 dates on "Diamond Jim." It's a rage.

✚ ✚ ✚

Carl Laemmle Denies Sale of Universal

(Continued from Page 8)

"In these days of money consciousness a cash offer of millions is an undeniable temptation but Universal has been my heart as well as my hand all these years and is not for sale. I have been active in this business longer than any of my competitors and I admit being sentimental about it. I am confident that our 30th year will climax a memorable advancement and I see no possible reason for surrendering to time or money when the future looks brightest."

At the present time Universal City studios are busier than at any time in five years, 10 companies being at work with scenarios for eight more productions ready for early filming and with four of the biggest attractions in the organization's history set for release to the public between August and November.

Early Exhibitor Deals Demonstrate Confidence

(Continued from Page 8)

couraging way in which exhibitors are signing for product this year. The deal was signed by Louis Patz, manager of Universal's Des Moines Exchange, with the Tri-State Circuit. The deal covers the thirteen major towns in Nebraska and Iowa and includes Des Moines, Cedar Rapids, Rock Island, Omaha, Davenport, Moline and Sioux City.

✚ ✚ ✚

3 Deals Close 88 Texas Towns

TEXAS is voting the Universal ticket straight this year. And voting early too. It's a vote of confidence in Universal product and Universal progress. On top of the 31 Henry Hall theatres in this state that signed for Universal product last week 57 more towns stepped into the box-office parade this week. These towns were included in the deals closed with R. J. O'Donnell for the Interstate-Texas Consolidated Theatres and with Harold Robb and Edward Rowley for the Robb-Rowley Circuit.

The Interstate deal was for 32 situations in Texas and the Robb-Rowley Circuit for 25 situation in Texas and 3 in Oklahoma. These deals were closed by Edward Olsmith.

Who Is Pinky Tomlin?

IF there is anyone in the moving picture business or music publishing who does not know Pinky Tomlin by now, it is just too bad. He is, every day, becoming, more and more, a celebrated figure. When "King Solomon of Broadway" reaches the screen, he is bound to register the unique personality which has made him such a hot favorite in Hollywood. Below is a reproduction of a syndicated article by O. O. McIntyre, which came to the attention of some twelve million people who read his column.

NEW YORK Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

Many lyricists believe the gangling hill-billy, Pinky Tomlin, is destined to surpass even the acknowledged master, Irving Berlin, in the art of attaining the lilting lyric. Berlin's fitting of the phrase, "Full of originality" to a bar of music is often classed as top by those who know. A line that sings itself! Tomlin's keen ear for rhythm and fitting words to music is strikingly revealed in "The object of my affection can change my complexion . . ." Not so grand just to read but oddly lilting in a song.

* * *

UNSOLICITED!

This telegram came out of a clear sky, and believe me the skies are clear for Universal!

1223

BY DIRECT WIRE FROM

WESTERN UNION

NEWCOMB CARLTON, PRESIDENT — J. C. WILLEVER, FIRST VICE-PRESIDENT

CLASS OF SERVICE

This is a full-rate Telegram or Cablegram unless its deferred character is indicated by a suitable sign above or preceding the address.

SIGNS

DL = Day Letter
NM = Night Message
NL = Night Letter
LCO = Deferred Cable
NLT = Cable Night Letter
WLT = Week-End Letter

The filing time as shown in the date line on full-rate telegrams and day letters, and the time of receipt at destination as shown on all messages, is STANDARD TIME.

NF24 78 NL=XU LOSANGELES CALIF JULY 18 1935

J R GRAINGER,UNIVERSAL FILM CO=

ROCKEFELLER CENTER NY=

SAW DIAMOND JIM AT STUDIO NEW SUPERLATIVES WILL HAVE TO BE COINED TO DO JUSTICE TO DIAMOND JIM STOP UNQUESTIONABLY ONE OF THE FINEST PICTURES I HAVE HAD THE PLEASURE TO LOOK AT IN A LONG TIME STOP IF THIS IS A SAMPLE OF WHAT TO EXPECT FROM UNIVERSAL THEN BOTH UNIVERSAL AND THE EXHIBITORS ARE GOING PLACES THIS SEASON STOP SHOULD BE A PLEASURE TO SELL PRODUCT LIKE THIS WITH A START LIKE DIAMOND JIM KINDEST REGARDS=

BEN BERINSTEIN...

Ben Berinstein, one of America's best-known independent exhibitors, operating independent theatres in the Los Angeles territory.

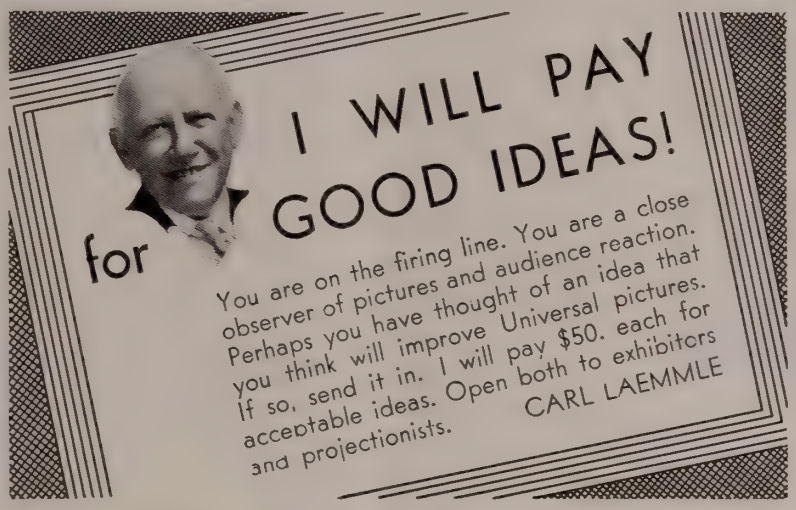
Chicago Is Overwhelmed by Repeat Booking Flood on "Imitation of Life"

IN all its thirty years of money making history, Universal has never had a picture which has had so many repeat bookings as "Imitation of Life." When "Back Street' kept re-playing theatres time after time and year after year, Universal felt that in "Back Street," it had the champion repeat booker of all time. "Imitation of Life" has already exceeded the remarkable record established by "Back Street' and "Imitation of Life" has still plenty of repeats in its system to establish new records of re-booking sales.

Right now, it is Chicago which is being overwhelmed by a veritable flood of re-bookings. The Chicago office is hard put to it to supply prints. It has twenty repeat bookings listed for this week alone, and these twenty are merely the latest surge of a steady re-booking movement which may put Chicago in a position to challenge the Big U's great repeat booking record on "Imitation of Life." It's a honey.

Here are the twenty theatres, most of which are in Chicago itself, playing "Imitation of Life" during the first weeks of August:—Drexel, Independence, Gaelic, Rose, Rosette, Avenue, Dearborn, Convent, Lakeside, Acadia, Famous, LaSalle (Madison St.), LaSalle (Division St.), Revue, Alba, Banner, Haymarket, Apollo, all of Chicago, and Plum, Streator, Illinois; and Academy, Waukegan, Illinois.

As we go to press, Detroit also reports three splendid repeat bookings for "Imitation of Life" for immediate showing, including the Gem Theatre of Saginaw.



Consolidated of Hawaii Books U Pictures

J. R. GRAINGER, general manager of distribution, has concluded a contract for Universal product with The Consolidated Amusement Company of Hawaii. The deal was signed personally by Mr. Grainger with Fred Williams and E. Z. Parker of the Consolidated in the Universal Home Office. The Consolidated chain covers the entire territory of Hawaii and the entire list of pictures is sold for the whole chain.

"FINEST NEWSREEL WE HAVE EVER SHOWN"

HOME THEATRE

Mr. J. J. Spandau, Mgr.
Universal Film Exchanges, Inc.
1524 Davenport Street
Omaha, Nebraska

Blair, Nebraska
July 30, 1935

Dear Mr. Spandau:

We have used every newsreel made by the different companies. We finally bought Universal Newsreel and I am very glad to tell you that this is the finest newsreel we have had the pleasure of showing our people in the Home Theatre at Blair.

If you keep up the quality of this reel in the future as it has been since we started to play it, you will have a Universal Newsreel customer for life.

Kindest regards.

Sincerely,

CNR: SU

(Signed) C. N. ROBINSON

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY SHOWMANSHIP SECTION

A DIGEST OF THE BEST EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

RANDOM IDEAS THAT HIT THE RIGHT SPOT

What, No Plumber?

OH m'gosh! What's this? "Lady Tubbs ballyhooed in a bath tub! And a movie camera trained right on her, too! Howard Ralston, manager of the Ritz Theatre, San Bernardino, Calif., used this roving truck stunt in his campaign for "LADY TUBBS." Had town all agog!

He Rolled the Eyes!

WHEN the flashing, fiery eyes of Karloff and Lugosi glare down on passing pedestrians, they've just got to stop, look and—head for the box-office! H. J. Arnold, manager of the Indiana Theatre, Terre Haute, Ind., proved it with this marquee top-piece—a cut-out of the twenty-four sheet. The eyes were made to roll back and forth and were equipped with flasher lights behind green transparencies to add terror to their titillation!

"ZIP" FOR YOUR CAMPAIGNS!

Advance Exploitation Tips for Managers Who Like to Plan Ahead

"KING SOLOMON OF BROADWAY" Advance reports predict songs in this picture will set the whole country singing and whistling! All Hollywood already humming "Moanin' in the Moonlight." Tie in your radio plugs. Edmund Lowe gets swell role. Supported by Dorothy Page, radio star, Louise Henry and the song-writing-singing sensation Pinky Tomlin. Very unusual story of White Way. Smart, crispy dialogue. Studio outdoing itself in its settings for glamorous night club scenes. Spending wad of coin to give you an eyeful as well as an earful! Reports on Rushes say: "excellent all the way."

* * *

"STORM OVER THE ANDES" First big flying yarn to come roaring out of South America—thrilling melodrama laid in locale of Chaco green hell where Paraguay and Bolivia have been scrapping it out for last few years. Jack Holt, in great "action" role, as dare-devil soldier of fortune aviator bumping into plenty love scraps when not diving his plane into dog fights high over the Andes. Supported by Mona Barrie and Antonio Moreno. Exploitable: (1) as an air thriller (2) as South American adventure (3) as romantic drama!

* * *

"OFF-SIDE" Universal's reputation for making outstanding football pictures (ALL AMERICAN, SPIRIT OF NOTRE DAME), your insurance that this will be another gridiron classic. Story more dominant. Charles Farrell tops cast. Picture being readied for opening of football season—so set it down now for student tie-ups, high school nights, team invitations, rallies, etc. Great way to cement your school friendships and good will early in the new movie season.

* * *

"STORMY" Powerful outdoor thriller filmed against breath-taking Arizona settings. Terrific scenes when over one thousand wild horses break loose in mad stampede. Heart-punch drama, too, great in its simplicity and humanness. Story of a young fellow who risks everything for a young colt he babied and raised to a magnificent horse ("Rex" himself). Opposite Noah Beery, Jr., plays ex-society deb, Jean Parker, and fine outdoor cast, plus the famous original Arizona Wranglers singing their popular ditties. This is big news for the radio fans. Spread it to them! Also tip off all the local "better pictures" committees. Here's a "big-brother" yarn for them to rave about!

JOE WEIL

Wuxtree! Showmen! It's a field day for you!!

"SHE GETS HER MAN"—and you get an outstanding opportunity to strut your stuff and pull gags to your heart's content! This picture kids the pants off all the gangster movies. It's just one grand burlesque on mobster catching with timorous ZaSu as the chief crime crusher. These pages give you an idea of the many stunts outlined in the pressbook. Get your copy!

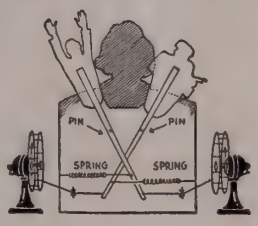
KID THE MOBSTERS

Left: Special teaser "shocker" card — Use plenty in advance of regular window card to start whole town talking. Universal exchanges have them at 7c. a piece, $5.00 per thousand.

Use for ballyhoo, as shown, with "gangsters" and pretty "gun molls." In lobby corner with spotlight, arrange a display of checked "gats."

These stunts can be worked into "small budget" campaigns!

Animated Display



Easily made. Study illustration. ZaSu Pitts' head, in foreground, and sign in background are stationary. Head of gangster and man with hands up swing on pivots, actuated by two rotating fans, and springs to snap them back in place. Copy burlesques gangster movies and accentuates comedy appeal of ZaSu Pitts as crime buster. Use blinker-lights behind Pitts' eyes.

Organize "Tiger Women"

ONE of picture's gags suggests the familiar club stunt, with comedy twist. ZaSu organizes "Tiger Women" clubs to crush crime. Do likewise. Secure services of young society debutante not averse to publicity. Have her organize group of "Tiger Women" girls to protect city from crime marauders. Have the girls apply for weapon permits and offer their services to timid persons. Issue membership cards.

ANIMATED EYES

ZaSu Pitts' head on the posters can be tricked up to get extra attention through the use of dimmer lights behind the eyes or even flasher lights. Spot several heads using different colored lights in each.

CATCH LINES

Gee Men attention! Public enemies numbers 6, 7 and 8 beware! Men without names scatter! The tiger woman is loose and—SHE GETS HER MAN!

* * *

Mutiny among the mobsters — a dame kidnapped from the kidnappers! $30,000 reward offered—and the amazing Amazon flying the coop! The biggest story of the year! And the most rioutous comedy!

* * *

A ring on her finger—a price on her head—but only romance in her heart!

* * *

A great, grand, goofy comedy team is born! Meet the new scream-mates!

* * *

One flutter of her hands—and the mobsters turned pale!

* * *

She's terrific! Women rallying 'round her—politicians toeing the mark—mobsters scattering as she blazes her way across the land! Make way for the "tiger woman!"

TEASER STAMPS

AN anti-crime stamp, 2 x 2½" made up to burlesque other propaganda stamps now in use. Use as teaser gag to plant title. Ask merchants to paste on packages, outgoing mail, etc. Stick them up all over town. An inexpensive way to spread title like wildfire. $1.60 per thousand at Universal Exchanges.

Give Them Plenty To Look At and Peppy Lines To Sell Them!

HERE are suggestions for flash front. Make it sing with sales lines. You will find plenty on page 31.

Put blinker lights behind eyes of Pitts and O'Connell to make them wink at each other. Paint bomb-bursts, above the doors, on scrim so flasher lights will make them look like real explosions. Usual display of guns captured from criminals, as used on other gangster pictures (borrow from Police) will pep up the interior display and bring laughs when surrounded by pictures of ZaSu Pitts and catchlines about the "tiger woman."

TEASE THE PUBLIC NOTICE COLUMNS

Burlesque gangster picture ads in newspaper "public notice" columns with these teasers.

WARNING! Mobsters clear out! Pineapple guys, safe-crackers, snatch men, gat carriers, gun molls—the tiger woman is on your trail—SHE GETS HER MAN! Watch this space!

* * *

G-MEN ATTENTION! Public heroes 6, 7 and 9 beware! Men without names scatter! ZaSu Pitts is coming to town and SHE GETS HER MAN!

* * *

$30,000 REWARD offered to the mobster who can find the Tiger Woman! For information see ZaSu Pitts in SHE GETS HER MAN at the Strand!

* * *

HELP STAMP OUT CRIME! You and YOU can do your part! For information see ZaSu Pitts as SHE GETS HER MAN at the Strand Theatre! Tape you ribs for safety!

HANDS IN LOBBY BOX Glorify Pitts Trademark

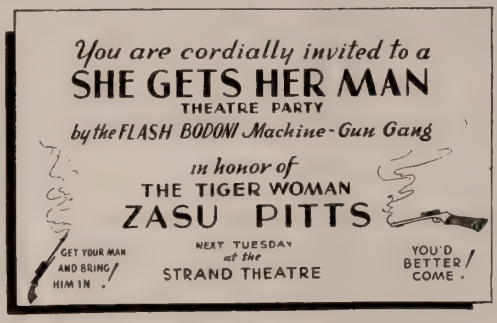
GLORIFY ZaSu Pitts' famous hands and play up their box-office asset, with shadow box stunt illustrated. The sketch gives an excellent idea of how it is worked. Star's head can be cut-out of poster. Set it against dark background and illuminate it from the front so that light will also fall on hands. A live girl is concealed in lower part of box with hands through holes in shelf. She waves them about in Pitts style and every once in a while grabs a small pearl-handled unloaded blank cartridge pistol and flourishes it.

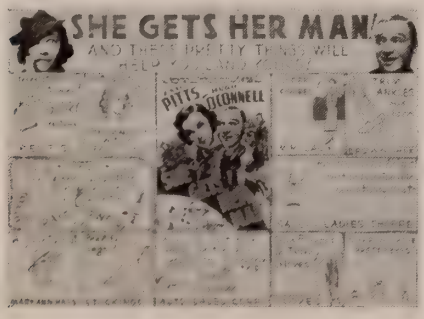
The hand animation will catch all eyes. Copy will sell them.

GANG'S BID

IN picture, gangsters stage big get-together and invite the "tiger woman" to talk. As gag, use invitation throw-aways shown at the right. Use also on 3 sheet lobby card for advance teaser.

This stunt will promote plenty of talk around town—the more cards distributed—the more talk! You can make a cut from the sketch.





CO-OP AD PAGE

A GOOD title for co-op page. Sketch suggests type of tie-up lines to put it over. You get page rate and smaller ads pay for your space.

Or you can suggest the idea to the ad manager and he will put it over for you. Go after this one—it has great possibilities and small cost!

ADMIT NEWLYWEDS

DURING your showing, watch the vital statistics column of local paper and send invitations to all the new brides, to see "SHE GETS HER MAN" as your guest. On a special easel out front, bill the fact that these people will attend. Give the newspapers a story on the stunt.

ELECTED!

BINNIE BARNES

Voted for by millions of fans for the starring role in the famous Liberty Magazine success, "HER EXCELLENCY, THE GOVERNOR."

From
UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.
ROCKEFELLER CENTER
NEW YORK CITY

ROBERT B WENNER
22 CROSS ST
MALDEN MASS

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
Paid
Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

WITH AN EYE ON THE WORLD AND A "KNOWS" FOR NEWS!

Universal Newsreel knows where, when and how it will happen!

Printed in U. S. A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
VOL. 37, NO. 4
AUG. 24, 1935

CHARLES FARRELL in FIGHTING YOUTH

OFF WITH A BANG! . . . Carl Laemmle, Jr's. Newest Box-Office Sensation! Directed by James Whale. — The makers of "The Bride of Frankenstein" will soon bring you . . .

HANGOVER MURDERS

A UNIVERSAL PICTURE with Edward Arnold + Constance Cummings + Sally Eilers + Robert Young + Robert Armstrong • Gregory Ratoff • Reginald Denny • Louise Henry • Jack La Rue • Monroe Owsley • Ed Brophy • Gustav von Seyffertitz • Rafaela Ottiano . . . From the novel by Adam Hobhouse.

The Roll of Honor

The Following Exhibitors in the Detroit territory have used Universal Pictures Consecutively:

NAME	THEATRE	TOWN	NO. OF YEARS USED UNIVERSAL
R. P. Leahy	Washington	Bay City	FOUR
D. Bernstein	Lafayette	Bay City	TEN
	Tivoli	Bay City	TEN
	Woodside	Bay City	TEN
D. Kocz	Columbia	Flint	SEVEN
A. Eiseman	Richards	Flint	TEN
H. Hobolth	DeLuxe	Imlay City	TEN
Wm. A. Cassidy	Frolic	Midland	TEN
H. Callier	Empress	Belding	FOUR
C. Beechler	Rialto	Charlotte	FIVE
P. C. Schram	Orpheum & New	Kalamazoo	FIFTEEN
Geo. Murphy	Iris	Muskegon	FIFTEEN
P. Schlossman	Michigan	Muskegon	FIFTEEN
	State	Muskegon	FIFTEEN
	Regent	Muskegon	FIFTEEN
E. C. Jarvis	Garden & Orpheum	Lansing	FIFTEEN
H. C. Cochrane	Plaza	Lansing	FIFTEEN
Henry Sadlowski	Crane	Detroit	SEVEN
Henry S. Koppin	Garden	Detroit	TEN
	Highland Park		TEN
Ben & Lou Cohen	Grand Victory	Detroit	SEVEN
	Norwood	Detroit	SEVEN
	Hollywood	Detroit	SEVEN
J. B. Mitchell	Rex	Detroit	TEN
Mrs. Ida Klatt	Regent & Rosedale	Detroit	FOUR
E. Kirchner	Family	Detroit	TEN
Tom Lancaster	Grande & Lancaster	Detroit	EIGHTEEN
George Sampson	Dawn	Detroit	TEN
A. Bzovi	Ecorse	Detroit	TEN
D. Robbins	Echo	Detroit	TEN
M. Karo	Monroe	Detroit	SIX
Wm. Schuttenhelm	Globe	Detroit	THREE
E. Beck	Hippodrome	Detroit	FOUR
J. Stocker	Myrtle	Detroit	TEN
E. Blasdell	Lyric	Detroit	NINE
Mrs. E. Hilke	Perrien	Detroit	FIVE
Romulus Albu	Priscilla	Detroit	EIGHT
W. Kimmel	West End	Detroit	SEVEN
Michael Victor	Astor	Detroit	THIRTEEN
Wade E. Allen	Arcade	Detroit	SIX
J. M. Leasia	Castle	Detroit	SEVENTEEN
Paul Krauss	Pastime	Detroit	SEVENTEEN
Samuel Ackerman	East Side	Detroit	SEVENTEEN

(Continued on Page 22)

YOU

No. 826 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

The pictures you bought from us last season — the pictures which probably influenced you to sign up for the whole Universal line-up — the pictures which you knew darned well would make money for you — are going to be delivered to you.

I've told you that before. I'm going to tell you something more on the same subject:

They will cost far more than we thought they would —

They will be far better than we dreamed they would —

But the extra cost will come out of Universal's pocket, while the extra quality will be poured into your pocket.

That's as it should be. Ordinarily it is nothing to brag about — but it occurs so infrequently in the picture industry that I think you will enjoy realizing that you made a swell buy when you bought the whole Universal line-up for the season of 1934-1935.

I have told you before that these pictures are late on delivery. We could not help it. Rather than make them poorly and quickly, we decided to deliver them late — and make better pictures than you thought you would get.

WIN!

John Stahl is making a far better production of "Magnificent Obsession" than he thought he could. In this you will get Irene Dunne with Robert Taylor, Charles Butterworth and Betty Furness. You win!

Ursula Parrott's best novel (Next Time We Live) on which we have changed the title to "Next Time We Love," has turned out to be far better screen fare than we hoped for. In this you will get Margaret Sullavan and Francis Lederer and E. H. Griffith as director. You win!

The same is true of the William Powell picture "My Man Godfrey" which we promised to deliver earlier to you but which will come late. Carl Laemmle, Jr. will produce it. You win!

In making "Sutter's Gold" we found we had tackled a much bigger subject than we realized. So we are going to make it bigger than we promised—and you get it on your contract at contract rates. You win!

You will also get Edna Ferber's immortal "Show Boat" with Irene Dunne, directed by James Whale and music by Jerome Kern — a Carl Laemmle, Jr. production. You win!

Somehow, you win every time you hook up 100 percent with Universal. Some of you have been winning that way ever since you were mere pups!

Carl Laemmle

YOU'LL NEED A B

It's Melodrama
It's Melody
It's Box Office
It's Everything
Murder to Mus
Beautiful Girls

Edmund in KING Solomon

A UNIVERSAL PICTURE WITH

DOROTHY PAGE · PINKY TOMLIN

Edward Pawley · Louise Henry

Directed by ALAN CROSLAND

GGER CASH BOX FOR THIS!

Plus!
Plus!
Plus!
from Plus
. . . .

CARL LAEMMLE
PRESENTS

LOWE of BROADWAY

Produced by Julius Bernheim

Uncle Carl Comes Through

IF "DIAMOND JIM" is a sample of what Universal will offer for the new season, then "Uncle Carl" and his Universal outfit will not be taking a back seat for anyone.

It's a different kind of picture, with Edward Arnold as the suave "Diamond Jim Brady," who rode to fortune in sale of railroad equipment. His is a remarkable performance throughout, and the finish, which finds the food-loving Jim courting death by ordering food denied him by his doctor, is a novel and effective climax, the outcome of which the audience may decide for itself.

His Brady is a colorful and dashing man-about-town, lucky in business, but just as unlucky at love. The success Universal has made with this picture probably opens up new vistas for the screen in dramatizing careers of the nation's business leaders. A fine cast supports Arnold to make this a really swell show.

The box reproduced above is from the front page of "Greater Amusements," the regional trade paper published in Minneapolis. The editorial reproduced below is also from "Greater Amusements," and mirrors the opinion of most of the trade papers and most of the exhibitors in this moving picture business.

✚ ✚ ✚

Editorially Speaking

IT'S about time some one called a halt on the efforts of scandal mongers to dispose of Carl Laemmle, lock, stock and barrel. There have been so many rumors concerning the company's future which have gotten into print to make the story almost a journalistic scandal by our trade press. We were guilty, too, in falling for the report, once, and have since apoligized to Mr. Laemmle for an error, sincere, though it was.

Carl Laemmle, busy turning out pictures which merit the envy of any producer in the business, should not be harrassed by an avalanche of rumors, concerning the company he spent 30 years in building. "Uncle Carl" has a patience or he certainly should track these rumors to their source.

SKOLSKY —AND— SULLAVAN

Sidney Skolsky, in his famous column, "Hollywood," in the New York Daily News, made this declaration in last Wednesday morning's paper:

"Edward Arnold gives another truly fine performance in "Diamond Jim."

Ed Sullivan in his justly famous "BROADWAY" column in the New York Daily News has this pertinent remark:

"EDWARD ARNOLD may win the Academy reward for his performance in the title role of "Diamond Jim" Brady . . . he must top Victor McLaglen's make-believing in "The Informer," and Frederic March's grand performance in "Les Miserables." . . .

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, N. Y. City
Universal Pictures Corp.
Copyrighted 1935
(All Rights Reserved)
AUGUST 24, 1935
Val. 37 No. 4

DIRECT FROM THE STUDIO

Unexpurgated reports on the rushes at the studio from the man who sees them* FIRST.

"HANGOVER MURDERS"

If this picture looks as good on its finishing day as it does at the start, we might as well get ready for the grand ballyhoo. Everything seems so well under control. The photography is a delight. It is full of fine big luminous shadows and has a spooky air about it that matches perfectly with the mysterious woman, so powerfully played by Rafaela Ottiano.

"STORMY"

The more spectacular scenes in this picture have already been described. These closing interior shots are merely links in the story chain that is mostly out of doors. The picture is about all shot. What few scenes that remain to come will be pick-up shots here and there. When it's all put together it ought to be a magnificent thing. There are not so many de luxe westerns these days. Therefore this one stands a fine chance of mopping up.

"KING SOLOMON OF BROADWAY"

The same high grade production value is over it all, as it has been from the beginning. Everything looking fine. Picture can be touted strong in advance without hesitation.

"THE THROWBACK"

Some of the best night photography ever made is in this picture. It is dark and really looks like night, and yet the action loses nothing by it.

The girl is a marvelous rider. She used to be a jockey at the Tia Juana track in the women's races.

Sweet Surrender!

Universal Captures Pinky Tomlin

Five character sketch of Pinky Tomlin as he appears in "KING SOLOMON OF BROADWAY," Pinky Tomlin is the actor in whom Hollywood is interested right now, more than in any other screen player. He is the "tops." Universal has just signed him under a long term contract.

The Sensation of the Current Motion Picture Year and the Envy of the Music World Casts Lot with Universal As He Finishes "King Solomon of Broadway."

PINKY TOMLIN rattled into Hollywood last September in an old Ford, a battered hat, and an amazing belief in himself. That belief and the ability to back it up has earned Pinky a long term contract with Universal.

In spite of the fact that he had studied in college to be a lawyer, he was sure that he was an entertainer instead. His family was dead set against this, and there was nothing in his appearance to indicate the God-given rhythm of movement and of melody that lay behind the horn-rimmed glasses and the prematurely bald forehead. So he came to Hollywood on his own, a la Coxey's Army.

But Pinky Tomlin got his chance as all geniuses do, sooner or later, and Pinky knew exactly what to do with his chance. In one night, in the swanky Biltmore Hotel Bowl, the largest night club in Hollywood, he panicked a cold and skeptical audience into riotous enthusiasm.

The next day, the unfamiliar name of Pinky Tomlin was on every tongue, his songs in everybody's ears. He became a Hollywood sensation overnight, and now he is pointed for an even greater national sensation, both as a writer of songs and as an actor. The man who could musically motivate such a phrase as, "The Object of My Affections Can Change My Complexion," is a boon to the music business. The awkward grace of the Pinky Tomlin hands, gestures and figure have boosted him to the top in the movies. His homely down-to-earth way of interpreting songs gets him $5000 per on the stage. He is a triple threat man.

Universal signed him to support Edmund Lowe in "King Solomon of Broadway." Before the last scenes of the picture were made, he had been signed to a long term contract. He will be one of the biggest stars of the screen this winter.

In "King Solomon of Broadway," Edmund Lowe is supported not only by Pinky Tomlin, but by Dorothy Page, Ed Pawley, and Lewis Henry. Dorothy Page just arrived in New York on the completion of the picture. She is tremendously enthused about Tomlin and his remarkable ability to write songs at a moment's notice. Miss Page will sing his song, "That's What You Think," and her own song, "Moaning in the Moonlight, on Whiteman's hour Thursday night, Aug. 29th.

PINKY TOMLIN

Hollywood's Wonder Boy from Radio Stars Magazine for July

IN a remarkable article about Pinky Tomlin, Hollywood's "Wonder Boy," just signed to a long term contract by Universal, Erma Taylor describes the triumph of Pinky Tomlin in his first appearance in Hollywood. Read this excerpt. You will enjoy it.

"The Biltmore Bowl is the largest night club in Los Angeles, in fact, it is the largest west of Chicago. It is the swanky place to go and dance to Jimmy Grier's music," says Miss Taylor.

"Until last October, nothing tremendous ever happened there. In October, Pinky Tomlin hit town and started things humming.

'We were lucky enough to be at the ringside when it happened—at the Bowl, I mean. Jimmy

(Continued on Page 28)

"Stormy" Completed, Exceptional Feature

AS our studio expert on "rushes" observes, an exceptional Western is a rarity. "Stormy," the western about a runaway boy, a wild horse and a girl who is just as untamed is that rare animal, the exceptional western.

"Stormy" was just completed this week at Universal. It was made entirely on location. Even its interiors were made in cabins and ranch houses on the rim of the Blue Canyon, fifty miles from Flagstaff. Everything about it is unusual, everything about it is exciting, everything about it is dramatic. Weeks of preparation preceded the selection of the location and the collecting of the enormous herd of horses which have formed the daring background against which the whole drama of this Cherry Wilson novel was filmed.

There was a scene in which a real rattlesnake is permitted to approach the supposedly injured J. Farrel MacDonald within two feet of his defenseless head. It took quite a lot of searching to find rattlesnakes who could withstand the weather, as the thermometer frequently reached 130 before they got a real, acclimated snake.

This story appeared in the New York Evening Journal, and in more than a hundred other newspapers.

Sun Kills Movie Snakes Brought to Location for "Stormy"

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 17.—Here's something for the Arizona Chamber of Commerce to cheer about; On location there, the director of the Universal production, "Stormy," sent a load of Indians out into the desert to collect rattle snakes for a snake dance. After hours of wandering and probing, the Indians returned empty handed. Either the snakes had just gone back to Ireland or there weren't any.

So-o-o-, they sent a scout quickly to the Museum at Flagstaff, where they loaned him two rattlers for the occasion, but the moment they were placed in the sunshine they swooned and died.

Interesting composite picture of some of the cast of "Stormy," made on the Painted Desert.

Looking over the log, J. Farrell McDonald, Jean Rogers, Raymond Hatton, and James Burtis. Below, the Arizona Wranglers.

GET THIS UP — AND YOU'LL GET

THEM IN — FROM EVERYWHERE!

"STORM OVER THE ANDES" THRILLS!

Jack Holt shown as the American Aviator in this Chaco war picture.

JACK HOLT VIRILE STAR

AWARTIME airport, complete with hangars and administration offices, was constructed by Universal Pictures Corporation at Triunfo, California, for outdoor scenes of the screenplay "Storm Over the Andes," starring Jack Holt. The production deals with the activities of air forces in the Paraguay-Bolivian War. Rumor says it is a great hit.

The airport and buildings, costing $50,000 to construct, were headquarters for 14 modern fighting planes, including six observation bombers, the latter having a speed of more than 200 miles an hour. The ships were flown by former World War and commercial fliers who have from 3,000 to 7,000 hours of flying to their credit.

The activity of the picture centered at Triunfo for more than ten days, with the cast and 40 technicians at work. Several 'dog" fights were staged, in addition to the strafing of the airport by machine gunners, the bombing of two specially constructed ammunition depots and the loading and unloading of the giant bombers. It makes a great show.

Behind the filming of "Storm Over the Andes," is the story of the actual experiences of one of the authors. Eliot Gibbons, world traveller and newspaper writer credited with penning the tale in collaboration with Laclede Christy, actually was at the front in the South American war which forms a background of the production as a guest of a general. He also flew over the desolate country where the fighting occurred, and from these experiences came the tale.

He sought out Christy and asked him to collaborate. Later the story was given a final touching up by Al De Mond, veteran screen writer, Lieutenant Commander Frank Wead, once a famous Navy flier and since an injury one of the best known of Hollywood writers, and an author-

The war in the air over the Andes

A tense scene with Holt and Mona Barrie waiting for George Lewis, the operator, to receive the answer to their message of peril.

s comrades, ne Lockhart, Flores, Grant hers, Mona rie and Tony eno await the crisis.

Antonio Moreno and Mona Barrie in "Storm Over the Andes" ity on Naval productions, as well as Eve Green, who heightened the love interest.

Gibbons, formerly associated with leading magazines and newspapers was educated in public and private schools there. He came to Hollywood during the silent days and was at one time an assistant director. He is a brother of Cedric Gibbons, art director at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, who is the husband of Dolores Del Rio. Gibbons' chief interest is the study of the Latin American people.

Lieutenant Commander Wead has been credited with work on practically every Naval picture and many aviation pictures during the past seven years.

Among those who worked on location were Jack Holt, Antonio Moreno, Mona Barrie, Gene Lockhart, Grant Withers, and many others.

Betty Furness and Charles Butterworth coming down the gangplank of the world's gratest steamship, the Normandie, which, strangely enough is docking at Universal City.

One of the most elaborate settings ever made for a picture—the whole facade of the huge steamer Normandie. And it is only one of the huge sets made for "Magnificent Obsession."

"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" WILL BE JOHN STAHL'S GREATEST PRODUCTION

THE showing of a motion picture directed by John M. Stahl is always an eagerly awaited event in the screen world. In the past this master director has filmed a long succession of such outstanding film plays as "Imitation of Life," "Back Street," and "Only Yesterday," all of which have been placed by critics and public alike in the front rank among screen successes.

Stahl's latest picture for Universal is "Magnificent Obsession," now in production at Universal City with Irene Dunne, Robert Taylor and Charles Butterworth in the featured roles. This absorbingly dramatic screenplay represents the finest work of Stahl's brilliant career, and gives to the charming Miss Dunne a role such as seldom comes to an actress. It will make star history and will make stars of several actors.

The story deals with a romance which develops between Miss Dunne and Robert Taylor, the man she has always considered responsible for the death of her husband, after blindness overtakes her and she is unable to see the features of the attentive friend who comes into her life. The climax of the story furnishes situations of the most powerful drama.

"Magnificent Obsession" seems at this writing destined to be the strongest contender for the annual award, as the best picture of the year. It represents the talking screen at its very best. Mr. Stahl feels that the story itself has the best picture material that ever came to his hand. He will personally see to it that it holds the audience enthralled in its grip. The book went through 36 editions and is now to be brought out as a movie edition concurrently with the release of the picture.

"EAST OF JAVA" STARTS PRODUCTION

CHARLES BICKFORD started production of Gouverneur Morris' story, "East of Java," at Universal City this week. The production is under the direction of George Melford, and the screen play has been written by James Ashmore Creelman, author of several plays and brother of Eileen Creelman, critic of the N. Y. Sun. In the first scenes, the cast summoned includes Elizabeth Young, Leslie Fenton, Siegfried Rienemann, Ivan Simpson and Clarence Muse.

It was the intention to use Clark Williams in an important role, but his work in "Tailspin Tommy in the Great Air Mystery," will prevent his appearing in "East of Java." The balance of the cast will be announced next week.

The Gouverneur Morris novel starts off with the wreck of a Chinese steamer on the reefs guarding Tiger Island. The main cargo of the steamer is a consignment of wild beasts, and an assortment of passengers almost as wild. It is with their several passions, dangers and love affairs that "East of Java," deals.

GRIFFITH to Direct SULLAVAN and Francis Lederer in Ursula Parrot's Novel "Next Time We Love."

CARL LAEMMLE has signed E. H. Griffith to direct Margaret Sullavan and Francis Lederer in "Next Time We Love." Production on this Ursula Parrott story will start on Aug. 26th, giving Margaret Sullavan only four days' vacation between the completion of her picture, "So Red The Rose," and the start of "Next Time We Love." Paul Kohner, associate producer will have the production in charge. Griffith becomes Margaret Sullavan's fifth director, the others being John M. Stahl, Frank Borzage, William Wyler and King Vidor—a quintette few stars can boast. Mr. Griffith directed Ann Harding in "Holiday" which picture made her famous, and in "Animal Kingdom" with Leslie Howard. He also directed Joan Crawford in "No More Ladies."

The title of Ursula Parrott's story has gone through quite a series of changes. It appeared first in McCall's Magazine under the title of "Say Goodbye Again." Longmans-Green brought the novel out under the title of "Next We Time We Live," which Universal has just changed to "Next Time We Love." The book was published on March 15th.

E. H. Griffith the ace director who will produce "Next Time We Love"

Edward H. Griffith was born at Lynchburg, Virginia, on August 23, 1894. His education, after the elementary years, was received principally in England and in Munich. In the latter city he studied art.

On his return to America Griffith allied himself with newspaper work, and for seven years devoted himself to reporting, editorial work, magazine and feature writing. He was associated with the Chicago Journal, Cleveland Leader and New York Times during his newspaper career. Two plays written during this time, "Three in One," and "Daughters of Joy" were also produced.

In 1915 he made his first connection with pictures in the dual capacity of actor and writer for the Edison Company. Then he was promoted to scenario editor. Soon he progressed to the direction of two-reelers and then to features. Later he directed at various times for Associated Exhibitors, First National, Pathe, Paramount, Vitagraph, Columbia and De Mille productions.

For three years Griffith was associated with Pathe where he directed a number of notable pictures during that time. Several Rod La Rocque starring pictures were made under his direction just prior to the advent of talking pictures.

(Continued on Page 23)

NEW YORK'S SOCIAL SEASON OPENS

With the swankiest box office event in years!

World Premiere

"DIAMOND JIM"

Starring EDWARD ARNOLD

with JEAN ARTHUR and BINNIE BARNES

A UNIVERSAL PICTURE

ROXY THEATRE

7th Avenue at 50th Street, New York City

Friday Evening, August 23rd

at Nine O'clock

Admit Two

Produced by EDMUND GRAINGER

CARL LAEMMLE

AND THE

ROXY THEATRE

REQUEST THE PLEASURE OF YOUR PRESENCE

AT THE

World Premiere

OF

"DIAMOND JIM"

Starring EDWARD ARNOLD

with JEAN ARTHUR and BINNIE BARNES

A UNIVERSAL PICTURE

at the

ROXY THEATRE

7th AVENUE at 50th STREET, NEW YORK CITY

Friday Evening, August Twenty-third

AT NINE O'CLOCK

R.S.V.P.

Directed by EDWARD SUTHERLAND

ANOTHER

TOUCH

FIGHTING

BOX OFFICE

DOWN!

Carl Laemmle presents CHARLES FARRELL in Universal's newest football sensation!....With JUNE MARTEL + Andy Devine + J. Farrell MacDonald + Phyllis Fraser + Eddie Nugent + Glen Boles + Ann Sheridan + Alden Chase + Murray Kinnell + Jeff Cravath + Jim Thorpe ... Story by Stanley Meyer ... Directed by Hamilton Macfadden ... Produced by Ansel Friedberger.

YOUTH

THE BEST
are yet to come!

IRENE DUNNE

in John M. Stahl's production of

"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION"

With ROBERT TAYLOR, Charles Butterworth, Betty Furness
From the best-seller by Lloyd C. Douglas
(Now in Production)

✚

MARGARET SULLAVAN
FRANCIS LEDERER
in "NEXT TIME WE LOVE"

From Ursula Parrott's newest novel!
Directed by E. H. Griffith

✚

WILLIAM POWELL
in "MY MAN GODFREY"

A Carl Laemmle, Jr. Production
From the Liberty Magazine serial by Eric Hatch

✚

"SUTTER'S GOLD"

From the epic novel by Blaise Cendrars

✚

IRENE DUNNE
in "SHOW BOAT"

Edna Ferber's Immortal Classic! . . . Music by Jerome Kern
A Carl Laemmle, Jr. Production . . . Directed by James Whale

Complete Satisfaction for 17 Years

MASON THEATRE

"Clean Entertainment — Popular Prices"

123 W. MAPLE STREET. MASON, MICH.

July 25, 1935

Universal Film Exchanges,
Detroit, Mich.

Dear Mr. Gottlieb:-

Back in 1919 when I was embarking in the motion picture game, the first salesman who called on me was a Universal man. He sold me a 100 per cent contract; all the old Bluebird features, Harry Carey Westerns, Helen Holmes railroad stories, Lyons and Moran comedies, Eddie Polo in "The Lure of the Circus," etc., and as time went on this proved a very satisfactory deal.

I have used Universal every year since then, and today, in signing my seventeenth consecutive contract with Uncle Carl Laemmle, I feel assured of the same satisfaction for myself and my patrons which we have enjoyed in the many seasons past.

Very truly yours,

ROY W. ADAMS

ROLL OF HONOR

(Continued from Page 1)

NAME	THEATRE	TOWN	NO. OF YEARS USED UNIVERSAL
Moe Teitel	Warfield	Detroit	FIFTEEN
Fred DeLodder	Delthe	Detroit	TWENTY-THREE
	Flamingo	Detroit	TWENTY-THREE
	Aloma	Detroit	TWENTY-THREE
	Your	Detroit	TWENTY-THREE
	East End	Detroit	TWENTY-THREE
J. C. Ritter	Rialto	Detroit	NINETEEN
	Rivola	Detroit	NINETEEN
	Boulevard	Detroit	NINETEEN
Frank Wetsman	Avalon	Detroit	FIFTEEN
	Linwood	Detroit	FIFTEEN
	LaSalle	Detroit	FIFTEEN
John Tatu	Casino	Detroit	FOUR
John Coveleski	Catherine	Detroit	FOURTEEN
	Willis	Detroit	FOURTEEN
W. Schram	Bijou	Detroit	TEN
Roy W. Adams	Mason	Mason, Mich.	SEVENTEEN
Oscar Varneau	Wealthy	Grand Rapids	SEVEN
H. T. Reynolds	Family	Grand Rapids	SEVEN
Steve Springett	Family	Jackson	TWELVE
Allen Johnson	Our	Grand Rapids	SEVEN
R. C. Taylor	Rialto & Southlawn	Grand Rapids	FIVE
Wm. Schulte	Clay	Detroit	TWELVE
Bert C. Silver	Family	Greenville	TEN
Col. W. S. Butterfield	BUTTERFIELD CIRCUIT	Detroit (Office)	TWENTY

Signed M. M. GOTTLIEB, Mgr.

SEATTLE SHOWMEN CHEER "DIAMOND JIM"

ON July 30th, the entire trade in the Seattle territory was invited to view "Diamond Jim" at the Egyptian Theatre in Seattle. Nothing could have proven a more convincing promise of a new season of successes than the picture chosen. "Diamond Jim" was received with unanimous enthusiasm and the anticipation of tremendous profit at the box office.

There were several theatre owners from other territories there as well. Kurt Laemmle, who operates a theatre in Lowell, Indiana was in Seattle on his vacation and attended the premiere. "Diamond Jim" is in a class by itself," said Mr. Laemmle. "I am anxious to run it as soon as I can in the Ritz Theatre."

Following the picture, a photograph was taken by the Advertiser's Photo Service of Seattle, which is reproduced on this page. Insofar as possible the following will identify prominent persons in this photograph.

Extreme left holding sign—Mr. L.A. Samuelson, Ass't manager and booker, Universal, Seattle branch.

To left of center Diamond Jim banner—Mr. Frank Newman, president of Fox-Evergreen State Theatres.

Centre holding Diamond Jim sign —Mr. Ray Ackles, Salesman for Universal, Seattle branch.

Directly behind Mr. Ackles—Mr. W. J. Heineman, Universal Western District manager.

Behind Mr. Heinemen—Mr. G. C. Craddock, Manager for Universal's Portland branch.

To right of Mr. Heineman—Mr. Kurt Laemmle; Mr. Al Rosenberg; Mr. Joe Koehler, owner of the Roxy Theatre, Twin Falls, Idaha; the writer; Fred Mercy Junior of the Mercy Circuit with theatres in Yakima, Walla Walla, Toppenish, Kennewick, Pasco and Sunnyside (Wash.); Mr. Logan Wahl, Grand Theatre, Bellingham; Mr. Al Bloom, Salesman for Universal's Seattle branch.

Exhibitors further back in the picture: Mr. Eddie Rivers, publicity director for the John Hamrick Theatres, Seattle; Mr. Ted Kemper, representative of the U. S. Army Motion Picture Service, Pacific Coast District, headquarters in Seattle, Wash.

"Imitation of Life" Re-Booked 180 Times

"IMITATION OF LIFE" is out to establish a record. It can't help it.

Exhibitors realize that once seen, "Imitation of Life" can be shown again and again. Audiences demand it. They write letters to exhibitors and speak to them as they pass out, and say, "I can see that picture again. Won't you bring it back? Be sure to tell me when it is coming. I want all my friends to see it."

In one Exchange alone, Big U, of New York, "Imitation of Life" had 180 bookings, which are repeat bookings, and in addition to that, seven of the theatres which have re-booked it, have re-booked it for the third time. In last week's Weekly on Page 22, there was a letter from William Rosenblum of the Cameo Theatre of New Rochelle which every exhibitor in the United States should read. In this letter, Mr. Rosenblum states that he will undoubtedly bring the picture back to the Cameo for the fourth time.

E. H. GRIFFITH to Direct "NEXT TIME WE LOVE"

(Continued from Page 15)

Then came the advent of audible drama. With no advance fanfare Griffith directed "Paris Bound," for Pathe, regarded all over as one of the first really fine talking pictures and one of the best yet made. Immediately afterwards he scored another success in "Rich People," starring Constance Bennett, and "Holiday," starring Ann Harding.

In additon to his success as a director, Griffith is regarded as an expert in color photography. He has been experimenting in this art for several years and made the first all-color feature filmed on an interior stage. This was at the Metro studio in New York, and done under the auspices of Technicolor.

An enthusiastic yachter and swimmer, Griffith and his wife, the former America Chedister of stage fame, live most of the year around at Laguna Beach.

Griffith was elected to the membership in the Academy of Motion Pictures Arts and Sciences. He also belongs to the Masquers in Hollywood and the Lambs Club in New York.

America IS LAUGHI

"Certainly the most genuinely funny picture Zasu Pitts has appeared in. It reaches gorgeously high spots of burlesque . . . Give it a break because there's something in it for practically every type of audience."

— HOLLYWOOD REPORTER

"Cued to the crowd . . . Gets laughs by the sheer impact of its nonsense . . . It has a virility which appeals to the mob . . . Miss Pitts gives her excellent standard performance."

— DAILY VARIETY

"A topical, pleasing, laugh show"!

— MOTION PICTURE DAILY

A UNIVERSAL PICTURE . . . Presented by CARL LAEMMLE

NG AGAIN!

thanks to

ZASU PITTS
HUGH O'CONNELL

and her marvelously funny supporting cast in

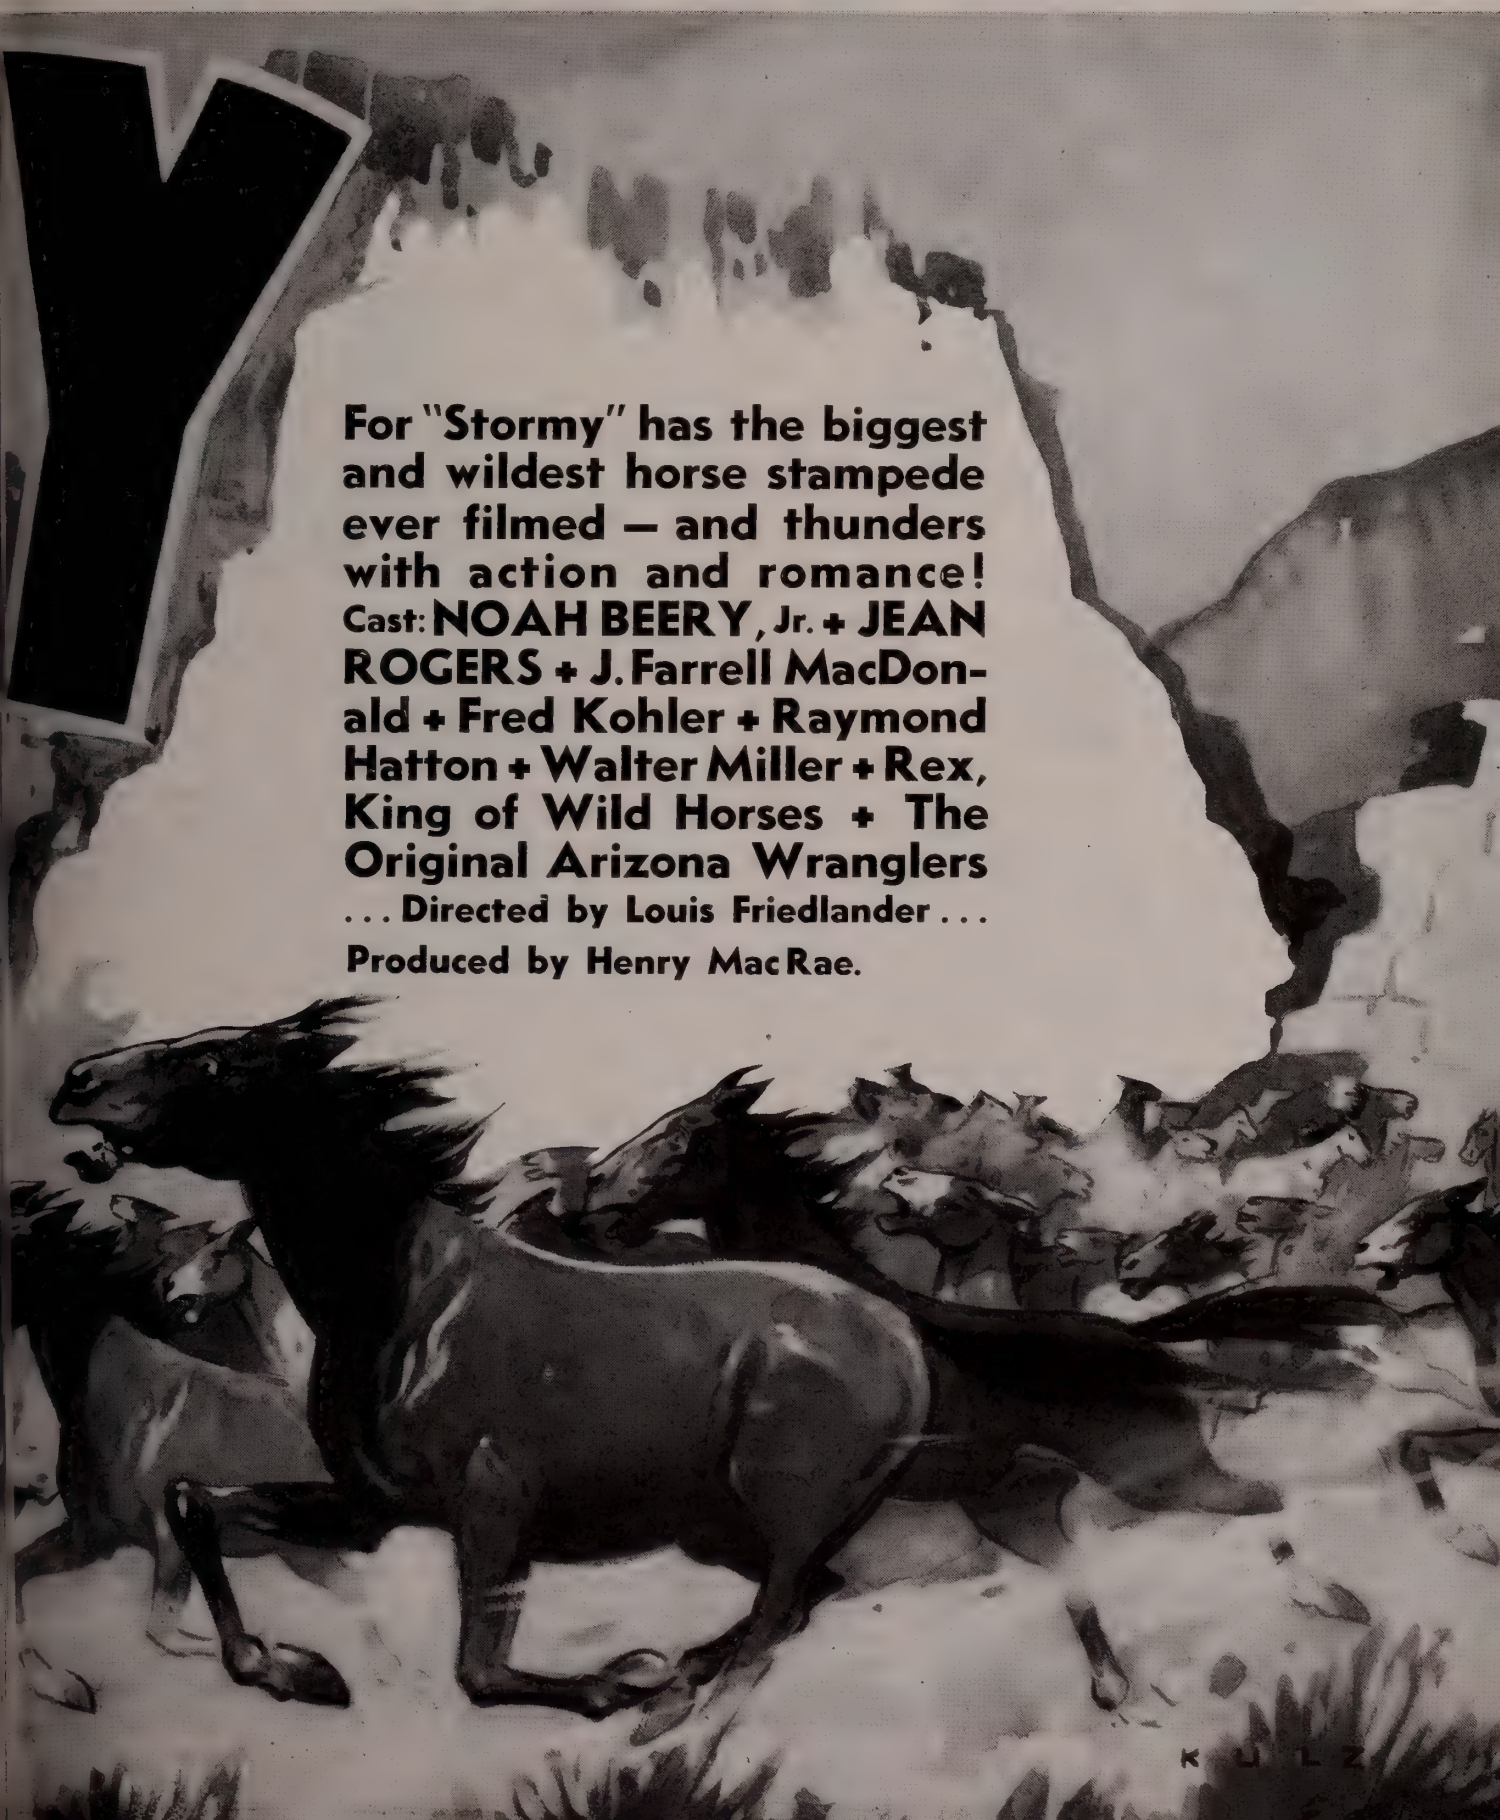
UNIVERSAL'S

"SHE GETS HER MAN"

With HELEN TWELVETREES + LUCIEN LITTLEFIELD EDDIE BROPHY + Ward Bond + Bert Gordon . . . Produced by DAVID DIAMOND . . Directed by WILLIAM NIGH.

THEY'LL STAMPEDE Y

OUR BOX OFFICE FOR



Pinky Tomlin—Wonder Boy!

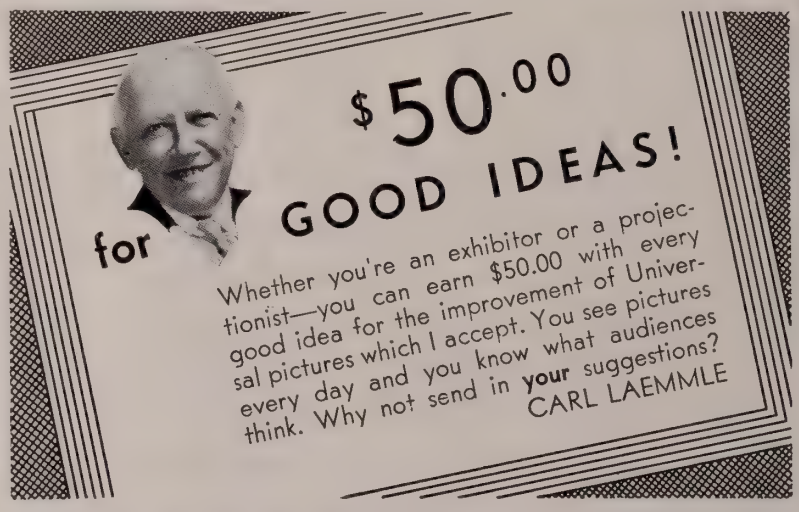
(Continued from Page 8)

maintains a staff of about a dozen entertainers, and he put them all through their paces before he had nerve enough to push his new recruit on the floor. The newcomer shambled to the microphone. His cheeks were a ruddy pink. His then, reddish blond hair looked pink, and wisps of it fell limply over his high forehead to dangle before his specs. His one and only grey sack suit was baggy, and Jimmy, in his immaculate dinner jacket, looked a trifle embarrassed, as though he hadn't quite expected this. The orchestra boys openly grinned. The The spotlight focussed on him, and his blue eyes peered out through those rimless glasses at the tier after tier of tittering sophisticates; he shifted his balance from one foot to another, looking for all he world like an absent-minded psychology professor who had wandered into the wrong laboratory, and, in looking for an escape, was feeling like a mouse in a maze. The orchestra tooted off on the introduction of a new song, and the professor slapped his long, slender fingers rhythmically, making a courageaus stagger at nonchalance. As the orchestra modulated into the vamp, he lifted his arms farther and farther from his sides, until finally they were swinging with the rhythm like the animated limbs of a scarecrow flapping in the breeze.

"Wh-what the—is it?" yipped the Mrs. of Baron Long, owner of the Biltmore, the U. S. Grant and Augua Caliente hostelries. Her stage whisper constituted neither elegant nor eloquent language, but it expressed the sentiments of the amused multitude. "Never saw it before in my life, but leave it to Jimmy. It's either a gag or a sensation," the baron barked back.

"It" opened his mouth and started: "Oh, the object of my affection has changed my whole complexion from white to rosy red . . . " and I'm telling you, the combined force of Biltmore waiters could have dropped the combined conglomeration of the china, cutlery and trays of the Biltmore service on to the floor, and not a soul would have noticed the crash . . . their attention was completely absorbed by Pinky Tomlin.

"And ever since that night, two echoes have reverberated around and around the world, until now they're a din in our ears and a frenzy in our hearts . . . "The object of my affection" and "What the is it, about that guy?"



ARE YOU RUNNING REPEAT CASTS?

A YEAR or so ago, in response to suggestions made by Saturday Evening Post column readers, Carl Laemmle instituted the practice of projecting the cast of characters at the end of the each feature picture as well as the beginning. This practice met with instaneaneous approval.

People became interested in the characters in this picture, and were justly curious to know who played these characters. This innovation gave them the opportunity to satisfy this curiosity. It also served to create a new interest in new players, and in players, who, in these pictures, played relatively unimportant parts, but played them well.

Casts are run at the end of every Universal feature, immediately after "The End" sign.

RALPH MYERSON DROPS DEAD

Universal's salesman in New Orleans, Ralph Myerson, dropped dead Tuesday from an acute heart attack. Mr. Myerson's home was in Jacksonville, Fla. He had been with Universal for four years. He was forty-five years old, and leaves a widow.

The sympathy of the entire Universal organization goes out to his widow.

It has now come to the attention of Mr. Laemmle that in some instances, operators are cutting off this interesting audience feature of the picture. After all, the innovation was started to satisfy the people who attend the theatre. It means nothing whatever to Universal. Neverthless, Mr. Laemmle would be very glad to get the reactions of any exhibitors who have thoughts on this subject. The columns of the Universal Weekly are open to such a discussion, which was started solely at the request of thousands of fans. They want it as evidenced by the thousands of letters Carl Laemmle has received. What about it?

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
SHOWMANSHIP
SECTION
A DIGEST OF THE BEST
EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

Love Lines for DIAMOND JIM

Special Copy to Emphasize Woman Appeal in Your Campaign. Use in Ads, Lobby Display and Publicity Copy and for Imprinting on Heralds.

HE LOVED THE LADIES! He tossed fortunes to the ravishing beauties who fought for his favor! The amazing picture of the fascinating man whose riotous, reckless, spectacular life became the talk of the world!

* * *

He's here, girls! The prince of lovers . . . with the ladies he loved! New York's most fabulous, most fascinating man! King of spenders! He lives riotously and woos recklessly!

* * *

They called him the Man of Affairs—but were they mostly love affairs?

* * *

He made millions—and shared them with New York's most beautiful girls!

* * *

New York's gayest blade—surrounded by the White Way's most beautiful women . . . spectacular spender, fabulous figure, Prince of Lovers!

* * *

The spectacular personality whose love flamed with an intensity even more brilliant than his diamonds!

* * *

No price too high for a woman's love—and he spent millions!

* * *

What strange power was his that drew ravishing beauties to him?

* * *

He knew how to live! He knew how to love!

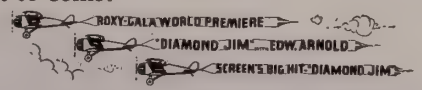
* * *

Blazing with riotous life and reckless love!

"You can talk out loud—and step out proud —with dazzling "Diamond Jim!"

THE paint is flying, floors being scrubbed, panels polished, carpets replaced, marquee sparkled up . . . the new movie season is about to open! There's excitement in the air . . . the boys in the booth are jubilant, ushers pepping up, doormen beaming . . . a big picture is coming to start the season off with a BANG!

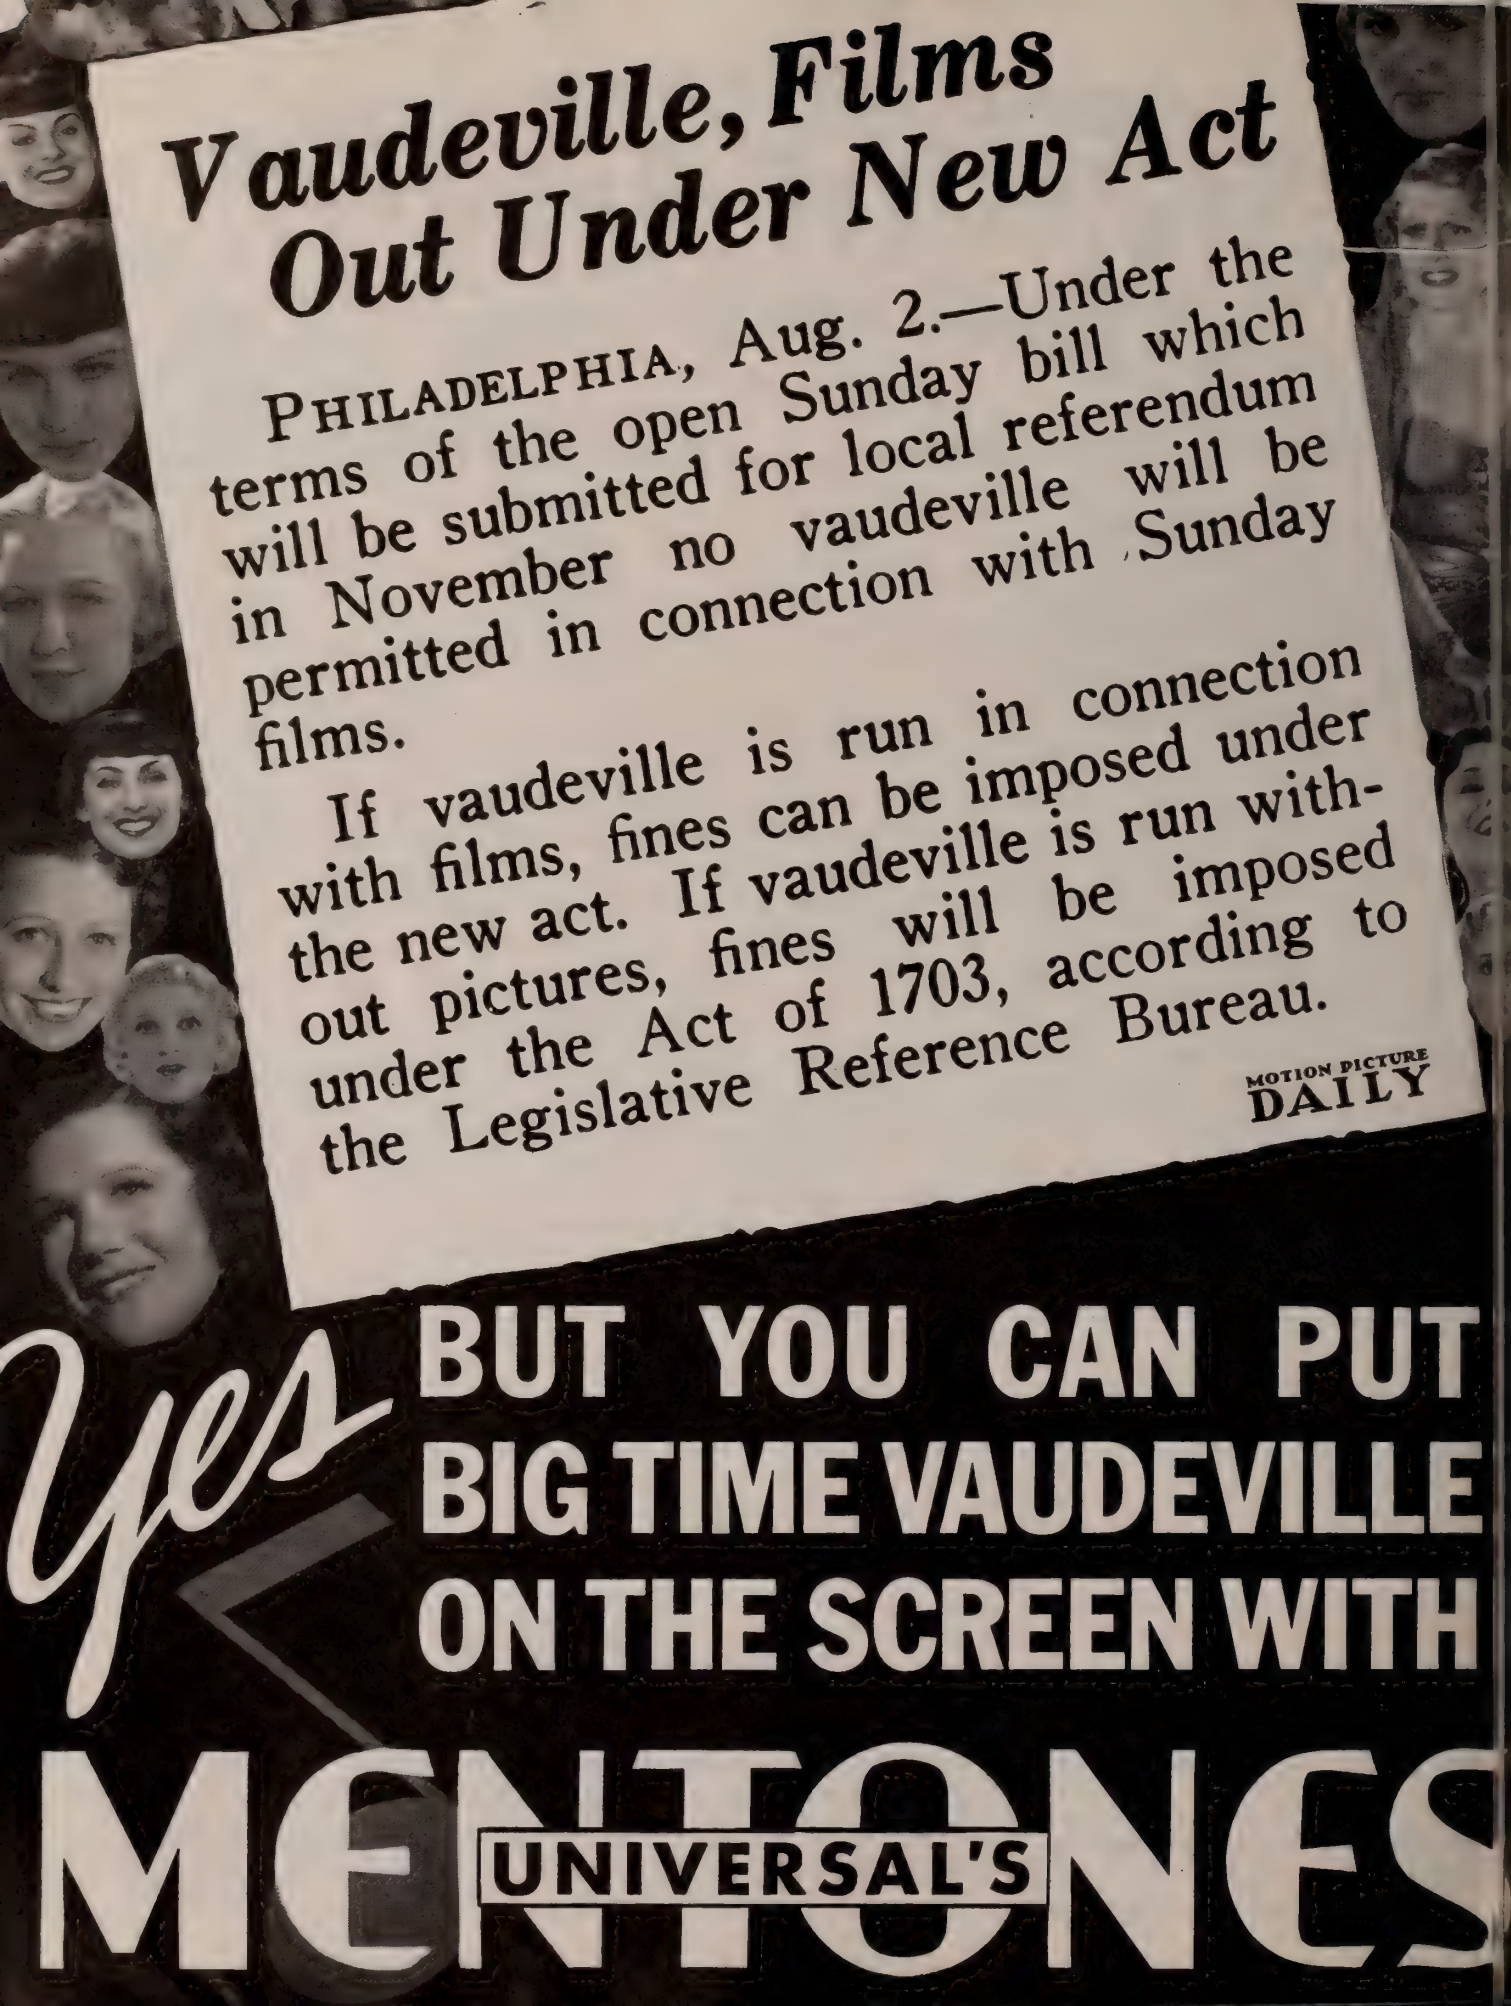
The bosses are in conference with the ad men, the newspaper gals and lads are making the typewriters hum, the house artists are working with that "inspired" zeal . . . because the picture's a REAL special! . . . Invitations are in the mail . . . the city's elite, social leaders, civic toppers, people who are news, celebrities . . . are set to come!



The electricians are placing the giant arcs in the street . . . the searchlights will play back and forth across the front as the crowds arrive . . . newspaper cameras will click on famous faces . . . the radio will catch the hustle and bustle and excitement of the thing. . . that something that only show business can offer . . . that priceless sensation, unmatched, unparalleled . . . OPENING NIGHT . . . of a New and Greater Movie Season . . . with the prize picture of the year . . . "DIAMOND JIM" . . . "DIAMOND JIM" . . . heralded from coast to coast by the mightiest barrage of national publicity and tie-ups the business has known.

Get aboard the band wagon! Start your new season right . . . in a blaze of glory with a glittering film . . "DIAMOND JIM." Join the parade of "A" theatres that are making its openings GALA events with all the showmanship trappings and trimmings to excite their cities into new frenzies of ticket buying. You can talk out loud and step out proud with dazzling "DIAMOND JIM!"

JOE WEIL



Vaudeville, Films Out Under New Act
PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 2.—Under the terms of the open Sunday bill which will be submitted for local referendum in November no vaudeville will be permitted in connection with Sunday films.
If vaudeville is run in connection with films, fines can be imposed under the new act. If vaudeville is run without pictures, fines will be imposed under the Act of 1703, according to the Legislative Reference Bureau.
MOTION PICTURE DAILY
Yes BUT YOU CAN PUT BIG TIME VAUDEVILLE ON THE SCREEN WITH UNIVERSAL'S
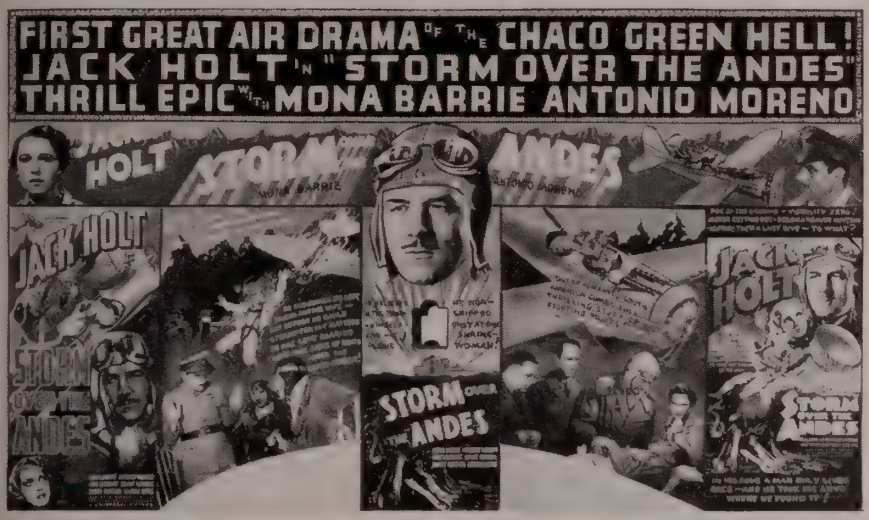
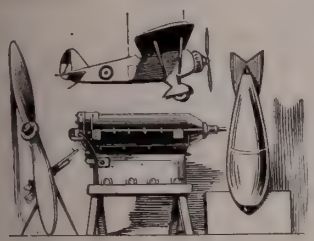
MENTONES

HERE ARE ADVANCE EXPLOITATION TIPS FOR "STORM OVER THE ANDES" WITH JACK HOLT!



Airplane Smash On Marquee

PLAY up Jack Holt this time as an aviator facing dangers in the Chaco Jungle and high in the sky over the Andes. Arrange with local airport to loan you parts of a broken plane and set it up rigidly over your marquee to look as if it had nose-dived onto it. At night spot-light the broken plane with red and yellow revolving lights. Put hidden fan behind tissue paper streamers in the cock-pit so that when the light hits it while the streamers are blowing, it will look as if it is in flames. Under your marquee hang model airplanes. Set Chaco war relics about your front and around the poster displays. Don't overlook the Chaco "green hell' jungle atmosphere. Spot live catchlines everywhere!



Army Flying Display

WAR in the sky over the Andes is no different from sky war-fare any other place. Anti-aircraft guns, air machine guns, telescopic sights, aerial bombs, propellers, parts of wings, etc. set around in your lobby will lend fine selling force to your displays.

Chaco Museum Display

MAKE arrangements with your local museum to loan and assist you in setting up a Chaco display in your lobby. Take precaution to have articles loaned well guarded from theft. Museum can loan you costumes, war implements, photos of the Chaco and many other interesting items. Credit should be given to the museum on all cards and on the screen in advance of the showing of the picture.

Further attention can be drawn to a fuller display of Chaco relics at the museum.

Schools in particular should be advised of the coming of the display.

Model Airplane Contest

SINCE the major part of the picture is shot at an airport or in the sky, it gives you a chance to play for all the boys interested in aviation as well as grown-ups who are air-minded. Stage a model building contest, make one of the requisites that the boys use the insignia of the Paraguayan and Bolivian air services on their models. Offer tickets and small prizes for the best submitted. Exhibit them in your lobby with cards tying the idea to the picture.

See Pressbook for Other Stunts on "Storm Over the Andes"

DISPLAY LINES

INTO the Chaco green hell to save the husband of the women he loved—into a hail of enemy bullets to wips out memories of the past!

* * *

Soldiers of fortune winging their way to new adventures, new wars and new loves!

He believed in two things—himself—and his plane! He worshipped only at one shrine —Woman!

* * *

Gran Chaco—land of the green death, of impenetrable jungles filled with swamps, terrifying, creeping things and beasts of prey . . . where aviators, forced down never came back! Gran Chaco—where eight thousand died of thirst alone. Into this hell, he alone, dared dive his plane to save his commander!

* * *

Out of the rolling clouds—out of the impenetrable gloom—out from the jungle — roared an enemy plane—manned by heroes who faced bullets from their own side—withering machine gun fire of their own buddies ignorant of their daring escapade!

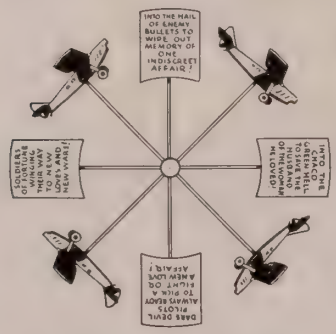
Newspaper Clubs

MANY newspapers are now running Junior Aviation Clubs. It is possible to create tremendous interest in this circle by honoring membership cards of these Clubs with special admission rates. Such special matinee can be arranged in honor of the Club itself, with a parade, provided the paper boosts the picture.

SELL "STORM OVER THE ANDES" AS TERRIFIC DRAMA OF LOVE AND WAR IN THE CHACO GREEN HELL!

SHADOW-BOX

THIS animated shadow box suggestion is easy and inexpensive to construct and operate. Your sign painter can prepare the four cut-out planes and small signs with appropriate catch lines. Mount these on a slowly revolving wheel geared to a slowly rotating motor. The planes move in the shadow box fixed up to represent the Andes mountains in background and the Chaco jungles in foreground. Flasher lights in the back will add lightning effect to the sky.



This Wheel Revolves Bringing Into View Planes and Cards

Aviation Nights

Invite members of all flying clubs in your vicinity and arrange for locally prominent flyers to make short addresses before the picture goes on.

Invite Fighting Pilots

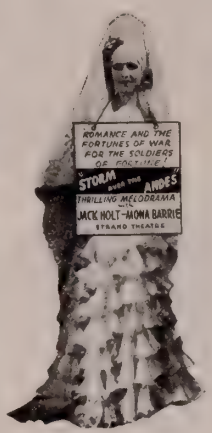
Announce that all ex-war pilots will be guests during your showing of "STORM OVER THE ANDES" at the special request of Jack Holt.

Model Planes

Numerous airplane model parts are available locally at a small price. Local dealers can be promoted to make a display in the lobby in return for having young master craftsmen building planes at the display in front of a background of "STORM OVER THE ANDES" posters. Good to attract interest in your lobby and empty store windows.

Senorita Ballyhoo

THOSE theatres wishing to emphasize the romance angle can use a young, pretty girl dressed in Spanish Mantilla as a street ballyhoo. Let her walk the street, with a sign reading: Romance and the Fortunes of War for the Soldiers of Fortune! See "STORM OVER THE ANDES" Thrilling Flying Melodrama with Jack Holt and Mona Barrie.



For Your Tie-Ins With the Schools!

SINCE Jack Holt is a particular favorite of the action fans and younger generation, an effort should be made to tie-up schools. This can be done through the picture's geographical interest (Chaco) and historical interest (Paraguay-Bolivian war).

Teachers of geography can be asked to run essay compositions on the Chaco and its geographical interest—vegetation—habit of the natives—customs, etc.

Teachers of current history can base their essay contest on the recent Bolivian-Paraguayan war. Here are some typical questions combining both angles.

(a) Where is the Chaco?

(b) Why did Bolivia and Paraguay dispute ownership of the Chaco?

(c) How far is the Chaco from New York (or your city)?

(d) How would you travel there?

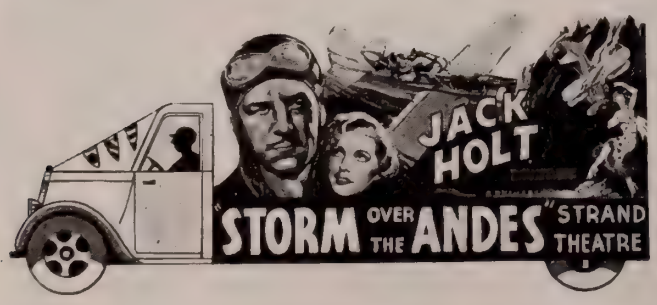
(e) What kind of war-fare was being carried on there?

COLORING CONTEST

HERE is a newspaper drawing and coloring contest of a Jack Holt head that is bound to have its value reflected in business on "Storm Over the Andes" and succeeding Jack Holt pictures. If you do not succeed in planting it in the newspaper, ask local merchants to use it on back of their dodgers in return for which you can give space on your heralds. Ask for 2 col. Exploitation Mat SA 1.

Airplane Crack-Up For Truck Ballyhoo

YOU can get a very realistic and attention-getting truck ballyhoo out on the street by borrowing a smashed airplane from your local airport. Arrange it on the truck as if it just completed a nose-dive. Throw spot lights on the crack-up at night. If you can't borrow the plane, get your house artist to cut-out the 24-sheet poster and arrange on truck as shown above.



COMING!...With a cast for all ages...To melt every human heart!

3 KIDS and a QUEEN

From
UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.
ROCKEFELLER CENTER
NEW YORK CITY

SUE LEWIS
WELLER THEATRE
ALEXANDRIA BAY N Y

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
Paid
Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

Wanted *

Hollywood, Aug. 7. — Thieves broke into the Hollywood and gave the boys at one exchange, anyway, a loud laugh.

They passed up the two features; they passed up all of the short subjects and stole the Universal newsreel!

* UNIVERSAL NEWSREEL

With GRAHAM McNAMEE

is wanted by everybody!

Printed in U.S.A.

UNIVE[illegible]EEKLY
VOL. 37, NO. 6
SEPT. 7, 1935

"Remember Last Night"

WITH ENOUGH STARS TO MAKE THREE PICTURES!

REMEMBER LAST NIGHT?

A Universal Picture presented by Carl Laemmle

With Edward Arnold • Constance Cummings • Sally Eilers

ROBERT YOUNG • Robert Armstrong • Gregory Ratoff • Reginald Denny • Louise Henry • Jack LaRue • Monroe Owsley • Ed Brophy • Gustav von Seyffertitz • Rafaela Ottiano • From the novel by Adam Hobhouse • A CARL LAEMMLE, JR. Production. Directed by JAMES WHALE.

The Roll of Honor

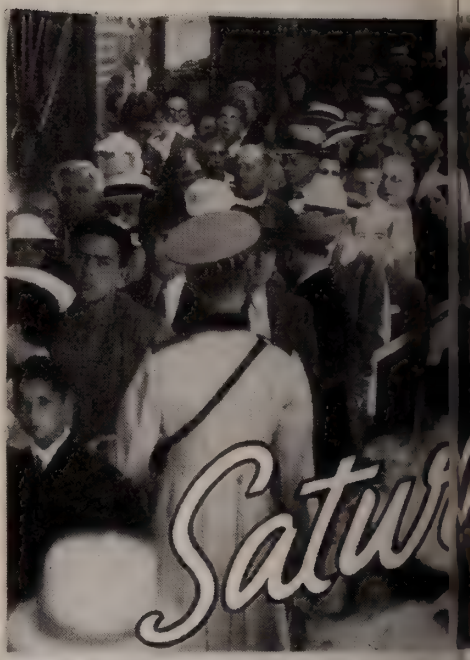
The Following Exhibitors in the Chicago Territory have used Universal Pictures Consecutively:

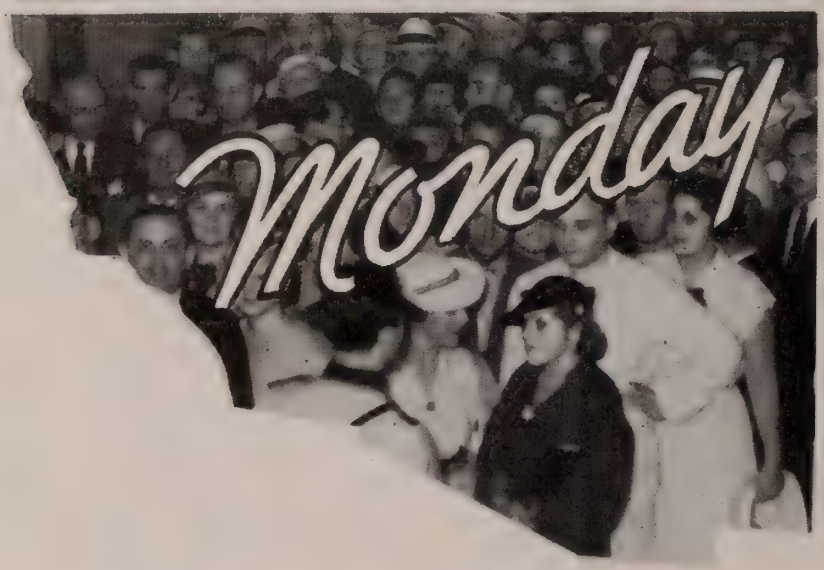
CITY OF CHICAGO

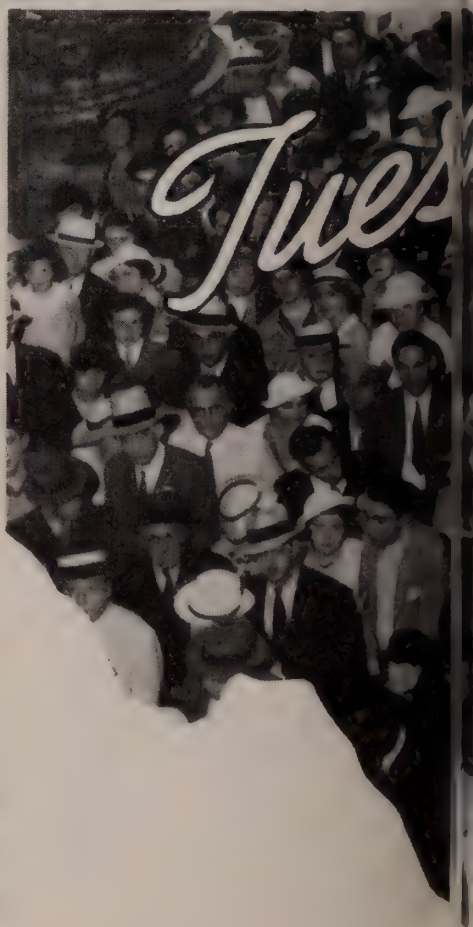
EXHIBITOR	THEATRE
Balaban & Katz Corp.	Circuit
R.K.O. Corporation	Circuit
Warner Bros.	Circuit
H. Schoenstadt & Sons	Circuit	20 Years
Essaness Theatres Corp.	Circuit
Goodman & Harrison	Circuit	15 Years
Jones, Linick & Schaefer	Circuit	28 Years
Bland Brothers	Circuit
Van Nomikos	Circuit
L. Reinheimer	Circuit
Simansky & Miller	Circuit
V. R. Langdon	Oakley
J. Lasker & Sons	Circuit
Louis Laemmle	Casino	20 Years
C. E. Beck	Castle & Pastime
C. Scribano	New Paris
Chas. Fedeles	Fashion	28 Years
F. Weiner	National	15 Years
J. B. Koppel	Astor
Jack Kirsch	20th Century & Gold	10 Years
G. Economy	Grand
Mrs. B. Clevcland	Circle	15 Years
C. Rude	Home
C. H. Christy	Elmo	15 Years
Elmer Benesch	Liberty
H. Nepo	Lindy
Sam Halper	Halsted & Irving
J. J. Plodna	Palace
N. Joseph	States	15 Years
L. H. Miller	Grand
J. V. Giocomi	Edwards
D. Martin	Butler
F. R. McCarthy	Loomis
H. Abbott	Apollo
Mrs. Mary Rudolph	Emmett
	Gaelic	15 Years
Mary Krafcisin	Cornell Sq.
Mrs. F. J. Simec	Crystal
E. Stepanek	Lynn	10 Years
J. Kempton		15 Years
P. B. Salkin	Jackson Park
C. G. Sigler	East Side
L. G. Pierce	Burnside
Lester Retchin	Howard
C. F. Wagner	Bugg
I. Ettelson	Lakeshore
Nat Wolf	Lane Court
H. Goldson	Gold Coast & Plaza	20 Years
E. W. Haferkamp & H. Hill	Hollywood
H. R. Foster	Rivoli
Abe Feder	Metro
N. Gumbiner	Commodore	10 Years
L. Brecka	Standard
A. W. Roth	Kedzie Annex	15 Years
V. T. Lynch	Tiffin
I. Biba & Wm. Zelibor	Clifford	15 Years
A. Cuser	Queen	15 Years
Chas. P. Lauten	Grand	20 Years
M. Reingold	Vision	10 Years
J. C. Gordon	Chopin	10 Years
Frank Gordon	Wicker Park	10 Years
B. Bartelstein	Annette
R. Rathje	Morton Park
S. F. Scott	Iris
D. E. Rice	Ambassador
Jack Rose	Rose Booking Circuit
Allied Theatres of Ill.	Circuit
Harry Balaban	Harry Balaban Theatres
Publix Great States Theatres	Circuit
Joseph Stern	Joseph Stern Office

(Continued on Page 26)

EVERY DAY A







123,320

PAID ADMISSIONS IN 6 DAYS!

Each day the biggest in the history of the Roxy's management! And that's the story you'll be hearing from the rest of the theatres in the United States who play "DIAMOND JIM"!

NEW RECORD!

AND STILL GOING STRONG AT THE N. Y. ROXY!

"DIAMOND JIM"

UNIVERSAL'S TORNADO!

NEW YORK AMERICAN

82,589 Attend 'Diamond Jim' In 3 Days

Attracting larger crowds and bigger box office returns than any other picture that has played at the Roxy Theatre during the past five years, "Diamond Jim," the new Universal photoplay starring Edward Arnold, created four new box office and attendance records in the first three days of its run.

A total number of 82,589 people paid to see "Diamond Jim" on last Friday, Saturday and Sunday (August 23, 24 and 25), with the respective crowds being 26,739, 29,850 and 26,000. On each of the three days only those persons who were in line when the theatre opened were able to secure seats without waiting.

On both Saturday and Sunday patrons waited from one-half to three-quarters of an hour for seats. At no time during these days was the theatre clear of standing room, excepting for the few moments that it required to fill the house in the morning. The box office receipts on all of the three days were greater than any taken in during a like period in the past five yeras. Police reserves were called twice on Saturday and once on Sunday evening, at seven o'clock, when there were 9,300 persons crowded inside the theatre and half that number waiting in line outside. This extraordinarily large number of patrons required the addition of 23 ushers to the Roxy's regular large staff.

IN NEW

With "Diamond Jim" shattering five-year records at the Roxy, the theatre and the Universal offices are full of smiles. [illegible] that of [illegible] ors.

According to the Roxy, 82,589 patrons paid to see the Universal picture during the first three days of its run.

NEW YORK EVENING JOURNAL

and the box-office receipts for that period were greater than at any time in five years. Police reserves have been necessary to handle the crowds, and at one time there were close to 10,000 persons in the theatre and half that number waiting outside. "Diamond Jim's" gustatory feats upon the screen must have their effects upon the audience, for during one day the Roxy management served 5,850 cups of coffee and 3,900 bottles of ginger ale in the lobby.

* * *

It's the TALK of NEW YORK!

133,507 PAID ADMISSIONS 1st WEEK AT N.Y. ROXY! EVERY DAY NEW RECORD!

"'Universal's are the money-making pictures,' an executive of the theatre stated."
—Motion Picture Daily

"IT'S A TORNADO"

—Howard S. Cullman, N.Y. Roxy Theatre

"BEAT 'IMITATION OF LIFE' OPENING BY A THOUSAND DOLLARS"

—Orpheum Theatre, San Francisco

" 'DIAMOND JIM' A SENSATION. CROWDS STANDING IN LINE THREE HOURS. THOUSANDS UNABLE TO GAIN ADMITTANCE"

—Spreckels Theatre, San Diego

CARL LAEMMLE
presents

EDWARD ARNOLD
in

DIAMOND JIM

A UNIVERSAL PICTURE WITH

JEAN ARTHUR • BINNIE BARNES

Cesar Romero • Eric Blore • Hugh O'Connell • George Sidney
Otis Harlan • Henry Kolker • Robert McWade • Fred Kelsey

An EDMUND GRAINGER Production

Directed by EDWARD SUTHERLAND

DIAMOND JIM

No. 828 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim.

Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim.

Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim.

Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim +

DIAMOND JIM

Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim.

Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim.

Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim Diamond Jim.

Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim + Diamond Jim.

Earl Carroll

AGAIN SPEAK

UNIVERSAL

CAMERA

2

FU

THE BIGGEST TWO

ANOTHER SMASHING SPECIAL!
AND MORE SENSATIONAL THAN "THE WORLD'S GREATEST THRILLS"

NG OF CANS . . .

ANNOUNCES

THRILLS"

ANS OF

REELER ON EARTH!

lose-ups of Death, through Fires, Storms, Riots, Revolutions, Floods, urricanes, Tornadoes, Crashing Planes, Catapulting Vehicles, Des- uction, World Catastrophes! . . . A Panorama of Thrills never before een! . . . Filmed by hundreds of cameramen at the risk of their lives!

"Diamond Jim" an Earthquake

MOTION PICTURE DAILY

NEW YORK, SATURDAY, AUGUST 31, 1935

'Jim' Sets 5-Yr. Attendance, 3-Yr. Gross High at Roxy

Chalking up the best attendance record in five years and the highest gross in almost three years, exactly 133,507 patrons paid $47,000 to see "Diamond Jim" for the week ending Thursday night at the Roxy.

Topping this intake was "Call Her Savage," which played to the tune of $58,000 for the week ending Dec. 1, 1932. Clara Bow made a personal appearance that week and admissions were scaled at 35 cents to $1.10 in comparison with the current 25-55 cents.

Under the present scale, "Diamond Jim" tops all past attractions. "Imitation of Life," which garnered $44,000 for the week ending Nov. 29, 1934, is second to it.

Next in line is "Invisible Man," which did $42,500 for the seven-day period ending Nov. 23, 1933. This gives Universal the first three ratings for high grosses under current box-office conditions. "The Bride of Frankenstein" also was in the big money class at the Roxy. It got $38,000 for the stanza ending May 16, last.

"Universals are the money making pictures for the Roxy," an executive of the theatre stated yesterday.

Here is the way Red Kann, in the Motion Picture Daily ran the story of "Diamond Jim's" triumph at the Roxy. And below is Mr. Howard S. Cullman's second wire to J. R. Grainger telling about a swell Sunday record.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, N. Y. City
Universal Pictures Corp.
Copyrighted 1935
(All Rights Reserved)
SEPT. 7. 1935
Vol. 37. No. 6

JAMES R GRAINGER
UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP

N Y SEPT 2 1935

A QUARTER OF A MILLION NEWYORKERS THAT DIAMOND JIM HAS THRILLED TO DATE MUST BE RIGHT IT IS NOT A TORNADO ITS AN EARTHQUAKE STOP RECEIPTS SECOND SUNDAY TEN THOUSAND FOUR HUNDRED SIXTY FIVE DOLLARS WITH TOTAL ADMISSION TWENTY-NINE THOUSAND FIVE HUNDRED FIFTY SEVEN

(Continued on Page 19)

A UNIVERSAL CAST IS WORTH REPEATING!

THOUSANDS of patrons all over the country have written in to say they would like the names of the players repeated at the end of the feature. Thousands of your patrons are no doubt among them, and so we pass this request on to every exhibitor and projectionist. Universal can only comply with it if YOU will!

A UNIVERSAL CAST IS WORTH REPEATING

"Diamond Jim"	EDWARD ARNOLD
Jane Mathews	JEAN ARTHUR
Lillian Russell	BINNIE BARNES
Jerry Richardson	CESAR ROMERO
Mr. Fox	ERIC BLORE
Charles B. Horsley	HUGH O'CONNELL
The Pawnbroker	GEORGE SIDNEY
Mr. Moore	ROBERT McWADE
Touchey	CHARLES SELLON
Bank President	HENRY KOLKER
Harry Hill	WILLIAM DEMAREST
Jeweler	ALBERT CONTI
Jewelry Salesman	ARMAND KALIZ
Minister	TULLY MARSHALL

Starting with "DIAMOND JIM" there will be a REPEAT CAST at the end of every feature. Please do not change over after the words "The End," but KEEP ON RUNNING until you have shown the Repeat Cast!

A UNIVERSAL CAST IS WORTH REPEATING!

Sweet
Surrender
!

A FORTUNE IN FACES

Carl Laemmle presents

May

ROBSON in

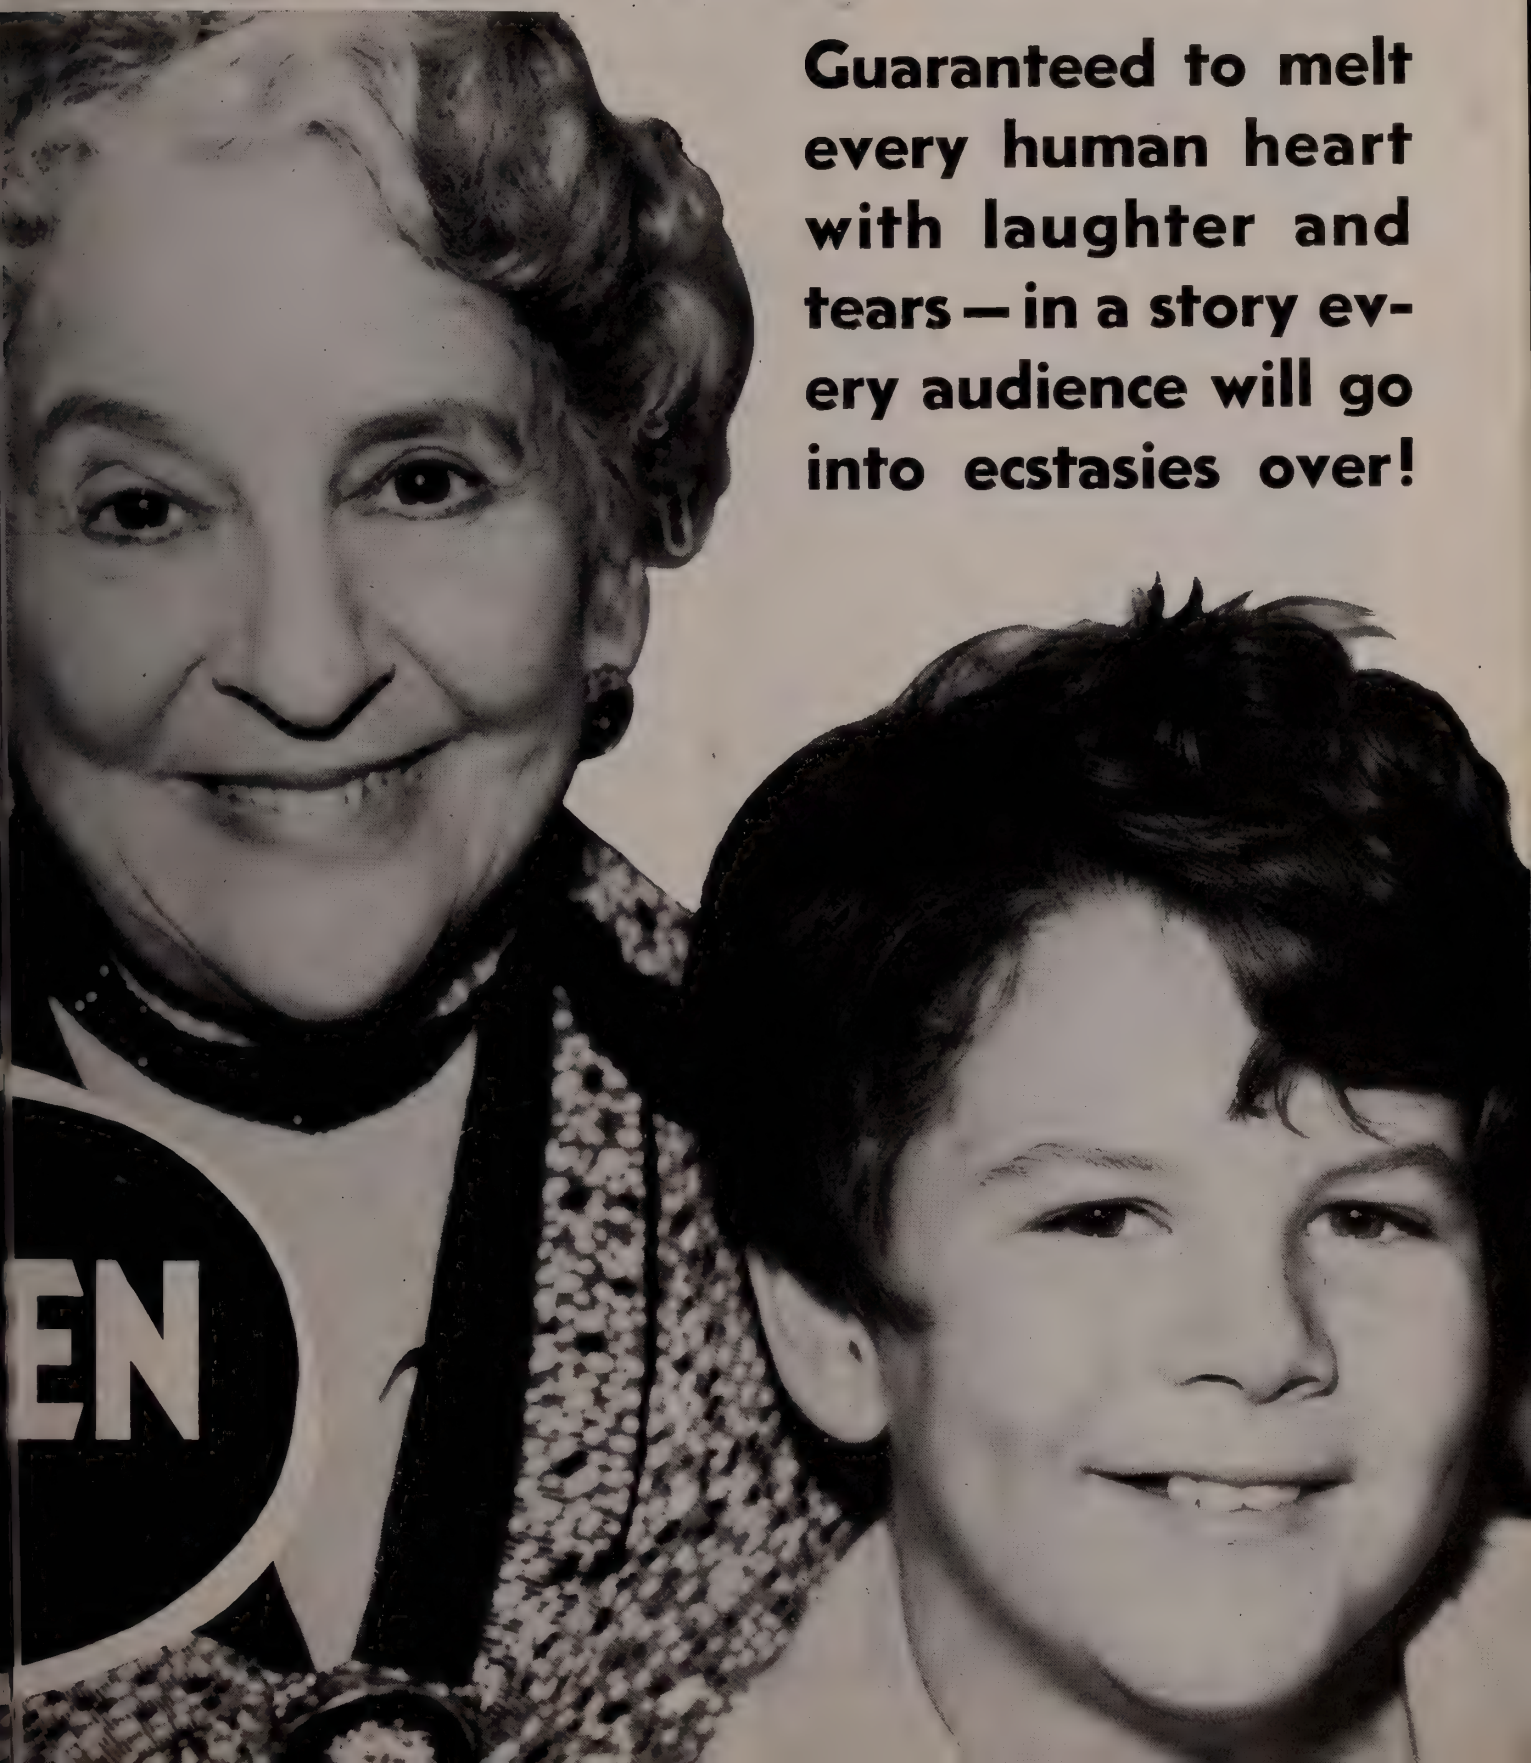
3 KIDS AND A QUE

With Frankie Darro, Henry Armetta, William Benedict, Billy Burrud, Charlotte Henry. Story by Chester Beecroft and Harry Poppe
Directed by Edward Ludwig. Produced by Ben Verschleiser

A Universal Picture

—AND ALL YOURS!

Guaranteed to melt every human heart with laughter and tears—in a story every audience will go into ecstasies over!



"FIGHTING YOUTH"

Unusual College Story with National Game as Background will be released September 30.

"Touchdown Nick Luka brings Char Farrell dow from behin with a perf tackle.

Charles Farrell, in real life Hollywood's star athlete, who stars as the All-American football hero in Universal's "Fighting Youth."

Love in a lunchroom! Charles Farrell and his new screen sweetheart June Martel, hold hands in the college lunchroom where she works her way through school as cashier.

Sample of the bone crushing action in "Fighting Youth:" Paul Schwegler tackling Jim Purvis.

FOOTBALL is now marching forward with giant strides to occupy the athletic throne of these United States and Universal, long the leader in producing spectacles answers the expectant roar from the bleachers with "Fighting Youth," a thrilling football story which approaches the game from an entirely new angle.

Charles Farrel, tennis champ, boxer, long distance swimmer and polor star, who is in reel life Hollywood's champion athlete, plays the leading role of an All-American pigskin gladiator. The role of his sweetheart is taken by June Martel, a newcomer to the screen who seems bound for stardom in the opinion of those observers who have seen the rushes of this film.

The third featured role is played by Andy Devine, former college and professional moleskin star without whom no movie football classic is complete. Ann Sheridan is the beautiful feminine villain. J. Farrell MacDonald, the Knute Rockne of "The Spirit of Notre Dame" is also featured. Herman Bing, Eddie Nugent, Phyllis Fraser and Alden Chase have important supporting parts.

In addition the entire football squad of the University of Southern California played in the two complete football games that feature "Fighting Youth." With them in these gridiron sequences, will be seen All-American stars of the recent past and present including Jim Thorpe, the Indian, greatest football player and all round athlete of all time, Paul Schwegler of Washington, Nick Lukats and Moon Mullins of Notre Dame, Jim Purvis of Purdue, Dale Van Sickle of Florida, Dutch Fehring, "Red" Christie and Frank Baker and many others of equal note.

OPENS Football SEASON

Ann Sheridan thinks she has Charles Farrell clutched tight in her pretty right fist. But June Martel has other plans for him.

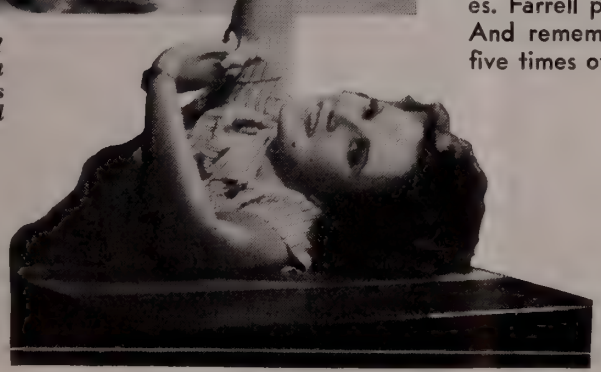
Say it isn't ue, Charley!"

Ann Sheridan cannot conceal her delight when Charles Farrell tells his coach, J. Farrell McDonald and his Captain, David Worth exactly what he thinks of them for objecting to his friendship with the girl.

For two weeks in the giant Los Angeles Coliseum, arena of the 1932 Olympic Games, under a blazing August sky with the thermometer over ninety, director Hamilton MacFadden sweated the athletes and actors through these football field sequences. Farrell played through all eight periods of the two games. And remember, every play was photographed from three to five times over, so as to get the perfect take for each.

e hero's reward! is plain that arles Farrell has n the game and the girl.

Happiness ahead! With her hero on er hands and s engagement ring on her finger.



WE ARE PROUD TOO

GLENDIVE MONT AUG 31

CARL LAEMMLE SR—
DELIVER UNIVERSAL PICTURES INC NYK KNOW YOU WILL BE PROUD TO KNOW AM OPENING THE ROSE THEATRE WITH YOUR DIAMOND JIM STOP KINDEST REGARDS JOE B MOORE

PAINT THE

Paint the town re —and watch thos
Let them know i melody and me gayety, romanc everything the TOWN GAY!

with these posters
greenbacks flow!
BIG – that it's got drama, girls and and thrills, and want and love!

My Lapel' ♪ Moanin' In The Moonlight' ♪ "La Cabanna" (Rumba)

A Thousand Showmen Choose Title: "REMEMBER LAST NIGHT?"

"Remember Last Night?" is a great box-office title worthy of this Carl Laemmle, Jr. production with stars enough for three pictures. "Remember Last Night" is a James Whale production and that means a lot.

Two scenes from "Remember Last Night?" in which the events surrounding a mysterious murder confuses half a dozen befuddled society idlers, almost to the point of madness. This production is full of thrills and surprises for the cast and the audience.

WITH the help of a thousand moving picture exhibitors, moving picture executives and salesmen, Carl Laemmle, Jr. has obtained a great showman's title for a great showman's picture. For three weeks James Whale has been hard at work on Adam Hobhouse's extraordinary mystery novel, "Hangover Murders." The title of this popular book is not adapted to moving pictures.

At the time the picture went into work, Carl Laemmle, Jr. sent out a questionnaire to a great many smart showmen asking their suggestions for a title. Out of these suggestions has come "Remember Last Night?" It was a great suggestion. This title is worthy of the great picture which it will carry through to real box-office triumphs.

The story is unique and fascinating, with human interest, humor, surprise and suspense to an extraordinary degree. It has a cast which sets it apart from any picture made this season. It is headed by Edward Arnold, Constance Cummings, and Sally Eilers, all stars in their own right, and featured equally in this production, with Robert Young next in line: The cast also includes Robert Armstrong, Gregory Ratoff, Reginald Denny, Louise Henry, Jack La Rue, Monroe Owsley, Arthur Treacher, Gustav von Seyffertitz, Raefaela Ottiano, Ed. Brophy, George Meeker and Allison Ardell.

+ + +

"EAST OF JAVA" PRODUCTION STARTS

CHARLES BICKFORD started production of Gouvernor Morris' story, "East of Java," at Universal City yesterday. The production is under the direction of George Melford, and the screen play has been written by Mr. James Ashmore Creelman. In the first scenes, the cast summoned includes Elizabeth Young, Leslie Fenton, Siegfried Rienemann, Ivan Simpson, and Clarence Muse.

It was the intention to use Clark Williams in an important role, but his work in "Tailspin Tommy in the Great Air Mystery," will prevent his appearing in "East of Java."

The Gouvernor Morris novel starts off with the wreck of a Chinese steamer on the reefs guarding Tiger Island. The main cargo of the steamer is a consignment of wild beasts, and an assortment of passengers almost as wild. It is with their several passions, dangers and love affairs that "East of Java," deals.

May Robson's feature, "Three Kids And A Queen," has been completed at Universal City. Here is a celebration of the principal actors with the director. Top Row: Frankie Darro, Charlotte Henry, William Hamilton. Bottom Row: Henry Armetta, May Robson, Edward Ludwig the director of "Three Kids" and Billie Burrud.

James Cruze will Direct "SUTTER'S GOLD"

JAMES CRUZE has been chosen by Carl Laemmle to direct Universal's next epic film—"Sutter's Gold" based on the novel by Blaise Cendrars and adapted to the screen by Gene Fowler. "Sutter's Gold" has been more than one year in preparation and with the assignment of Mr. Cruze as its director it will go before the cameras within a fortnight. Meanwhile Mr. Cruze has joined Mr. Laemmle in a search for the actor to play the role of Sutter, a part so outstanding that it is expected to make whoever is awarded the opportunity a full fledged star as "Diamond Jim" has done for Edward Arnold.

Laemmle has enlisted drama critics, Little theatre producers, agents and even movie fans in his search for the artist to play General Sutter and has even offered this exceptional opportunity to a novice who can qualify. The Universal casting department has reviewed more than 150 screen tests and made more than 50 studio tests of persons suggested for the dominant role.

"Sutter's Gold" offers Director Cruze even greater opportunities than any of the memorable epic films which won him a ranking position among screen creators—"The Covered Wagon," "North of 36," "Pony Express" and "Old Ironsides" and the new Universal production is expected to be the most pretentious film Universal has undertaken since "All Quiet on the Western Front." Edmund Grainger, who produced "Diamond Jim" will be in charge of the production of "Sutter's Gold."

✚ ✚ ✚

"DIAMOND JIM" AN EARTHQUAKE

(Continued from Page 10)

STOP THIS IS TWELVE PERCENT GREATER THAN THE FIRST SUNDAY AND AT THIS RATE ANTICIPATE A LARGE CHRISTMAS WEEK AS WELL STOP OF COURSE WE ARE HAPPY TO BE HOLDING DIAMOND JIM FOR A THIRD WEEK STARTING FRIDAY REGARDS pounding away — hammering home to millions of fans the great news about Universal's Current Hits — building up ready-made audiences for these Big Five, Big Money Hits!

HOWARD S CULLMAN

The PRESSES of THE NATION!

IRENE DUNNE

in John M. Stahl's production of

"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION"

With ROBERT TAYLOR, CHARLES BUTTERWORTH and BETTY FURNESS
From the best seller by Lloyd C. Douglas . . . (Now in production)

MARGARET SULLAVAN and FRANCIS LEDERER in "NEXT TIME WE LOVE"

From Ursula Parrott's newest novel! . . . Directed by E. H. Griffith

WILLIAM POWELL in "MY MAN GODFREY"

A CARL LAEMMLE, Jr. Production
From the Liberty Magazine serial by Eric Hatch

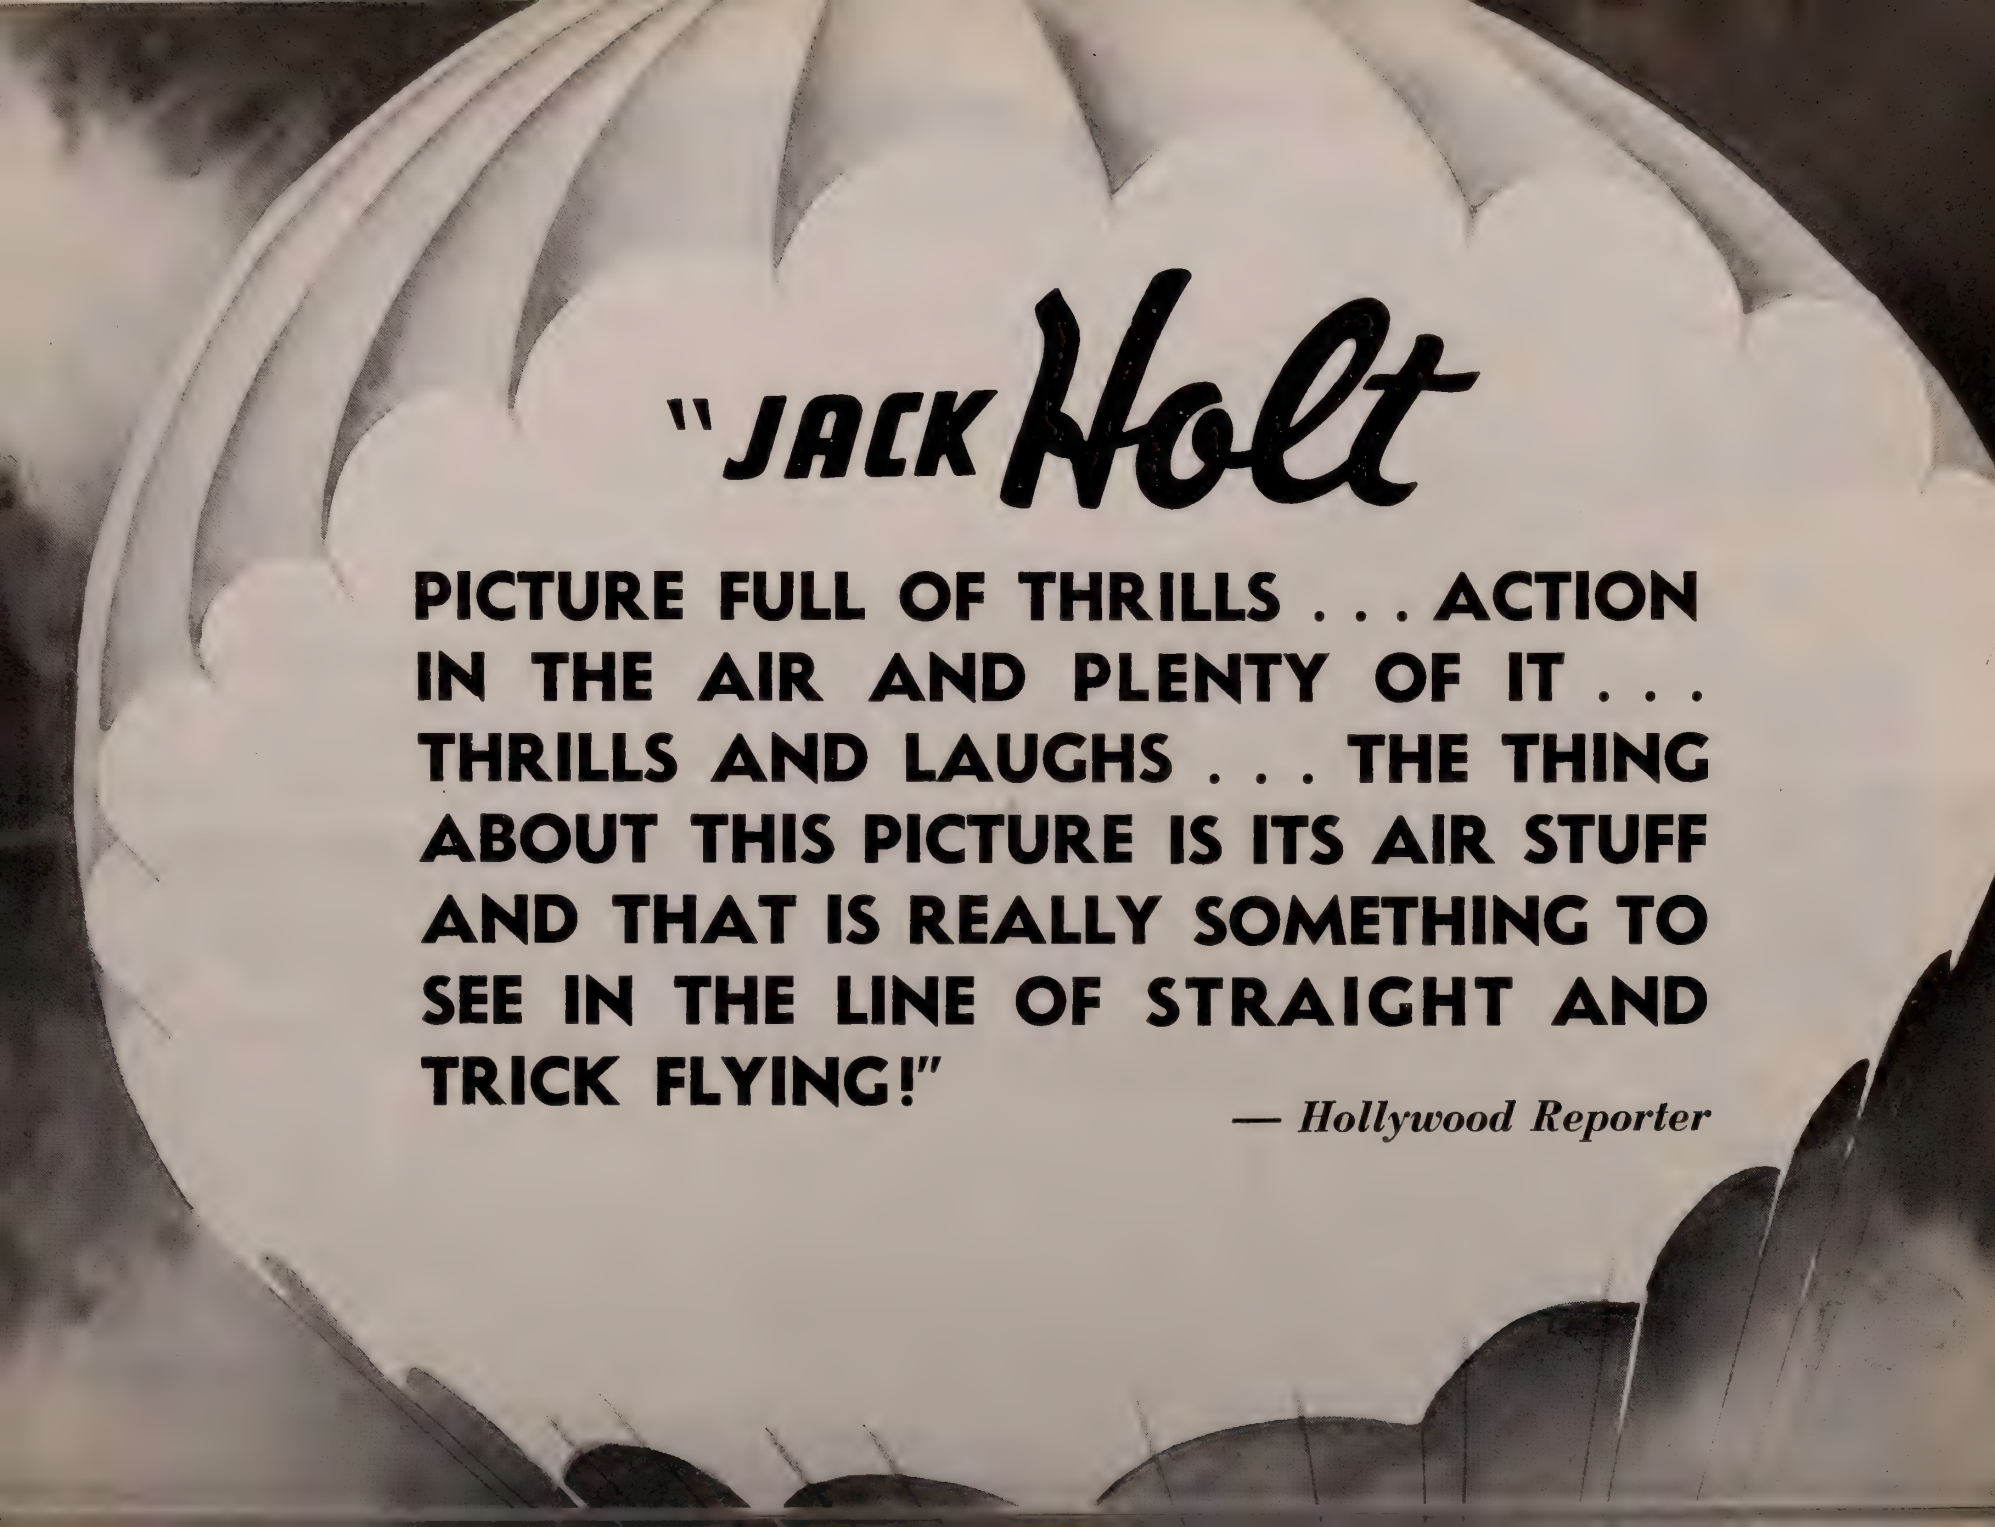
"SUTTER'S GOLD"

From the epic novel by Blaise Cendrars . . . An Edmund Grainger Production

IRENE DUNNE in "SHOW BOAT"

Edna Ferber's Immortal Classic! . . . Music by Jerome Kern
A Carl Laemmle, Jr. Production . . Directed by James Whale

by LLOYD C. DOUGLAS
IRENE DUNNE ROBERT TAYLOR in "Magnificent Obsession"
When you see the queenly IRENE DUNNE in Lloyd C. Douglas' amazing story, "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION," you will understand why her exceptional talent is eagerly sought by all the big producers. And equally nice things may be said of ROBERT TAYLOR who co-stars with MISS DUNNE. Of the story, now in its 39th issue, it is often said that those who read it are never the same again. However that may be, the picture will be an even greater sensation, for you see all the fine characters in living and speaking form. JOHN M. STAHL, that master in interpreting human emotions, is the director.
No picture you have ever seen on the screen is anything like "DIAMOND JIM." True, historic personalities have been portrayed, but no modern individual has ever attained the world-wide prominence of "JIM," the human diamond mine. He was purely an American product, and every theatre which has shown "DIAMOND JIM" has been packed to the doors, and many are having extra runs. EDWARD ARNOLD burst into the starring ranks with this title role. In their own respective parts BINNIE BARNES and JEAN ARTHUR added new laurels to their crowns, and Edward Sutherland added much to his fame as director.
Now in production—the remarkable story by Adam Hobhouse entitled "HANGOVER MURDERS," played by an all-star cast including EDWARD ARNOLD, CONSTANCE CUMMINGS, SALLY EILERS, ROBERT YOUNG, Robert Armstrong, Reginald Denny, Ed Brophy, Jack LaRue, Gregory Ratoff, Louise Henry, George Meeker, Arthur Treacher, Monroe Owsley, Gustav Von Seyffertitz, Rafaela Ottiano. Director, James Whale. A CARL LAEMMLE, Jr. PRODUCTION. The title of this picture is likely to be changed. Watch for the new title.
Coming—"SUTTER'S GOLD" an American Epic
UNIVERSAL is intensely interested in new ideas, in new good stories, in old dramatic stories which have never been pictured. Can't you think of one? Put on your thinking cap and jog your memory. Then write to me. A check for $50 will be sent to you if you can write us an acceptable idea telling us how to improve UNIVERSAL PICTURES. I, personally, will be the judge.
Carl Laemmle
(Pronounced LEM-LY)
UNIVERSAL PICTURES
CARL LAEMMLE, President
Rockefeller Center New York City
Watch This Column
Irene DUNNE Robert TAYLOR in "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION"
After six months in preparation, director John M. Stahl has begun filming Lloyd C. Douglas' five year best seller, "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION," at UNIVERSAL studios.
IRENE DUNNE, charming, popular dramatic star of Mr. Stahl's memorable "Back Street" has the first starring role in this new human interest drama and ROBERT TAYLOR, believed by Hollywood critics to be the most promising leading man in American films today, is seen opposite the star.
Initial scenes for "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" were made against the background of an immense studio set duplicating the huge French liner, Normandie. Director Stahl plans to employ more than 1500 "extras" in atmospheric "shots" for the early scenes of the production.
"DIAMOND JIM," which has made an important star of EDWARD ARNOLD, is crowding theatres in America and elsewhere. There never has been another character like "DIAMOND JIM." He was an American product who made a tremendous fortune and gave it away. The picture must be near you now.
"HANGOVER MURDERS," Adam Hobhouse's great story, produced by CARL LAEMMLE, Jr., directed by JAMES WHALE, an intensely dramatic play, again features EDWARD ARNOLD and an all star cast including—Constance Cummings, Sally Eilers, Robert Armstrong, Robert Young, Reginald Denny and others of their distinction, is on the way. Watch for it! See it! And enjoy an evening of unalloyed entertainment.
"SUTTER'S GOLD"—A VAST SPECTACLE IS JUST ABOUT GOING INTO PRODUCTION
A check for $50 will be sent to you if you can write us an acceptable idea telling us how to improve Universal Pictures. I, personally, will be the judge as to the best letter.
Thomas M. Johnston, Columbus, Ohio, and Larry Woodin, Wellsboro, Pa., have received $50 for their ideas.
Carl Laemmle
(Pronounced LEM-LY)
UNIVERSAL PICTURES
CARL LAEMMLE, President
Rockefeller Center New York City
Watch This Column
Irene DUNNE Robert TAYLOR in "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION"
"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" is in production. The great novel by Lloyd Douglas, which has created such a sensation the world over, will be presented to you in picture by UNIVERSAL. Doubtless, it will be one of the year's outstanding productions—not alone because of the story but also because of its splendid cast headed by the glorious IRENE DUNNE and ROBERT TAYLOR with Charles Butterworth, Betty Furness, and directed by the successful JOHN M. STAHL. Put this on your memorandum pad. Watch this column for date of release.
Have you seen "DIAMOND JIM" with EDWARD ARNOLD in the title role? His artistic characterization of America's sparkling hero is winning more fame for him than any of his previous roles. With him are the fascinating and glamorous BINNIE BARNES and JEAN ARTHUR. There will never be another "DIAMOND JIM." The direction is by Edward Sutherland who is at the head of his class.
"HANGOVER MURDERS," now in production, which critics predict will be one of the season's shining successes, has a cast that is remarkable for talent, consisting of, EDWARD ARNOLD, CONSTANCE CUMMINGS, ROBERT ARMSTRONG, SALLY EILERS, ROBERT YOUNG, REGINALD DENNY, BEULAH BONDI, GREGORY RATOFF, JACK LARUE, EDWARD BROPHY, ARTHUR TREACHER, MONROE OWSLEY, LOUISE HENRY, and GUSTAVE VON SEYFFERTITZ. The director is JAMES WHALE. The producer is CARL LAEMMLE, Jr. The title of this picture may be changed later. Watch this column for further announcements.
"SUTTER'S GOLD," A VAST SPECTACLE IS GOING INTO PRODUCTION SOON
Do you like new faces on the screen? Are you tiring of the old ones. What is YOUR opinion?
A check for $50 will be sent to you if you can write us an acceptable idea telling us how to improve Universal Pictures. I, personally, will be the judge as to the best letter.
Carl Laemmle
(Pronounced LEM-LY)
UNIVERSAL PICTURES
CARL LAEMMLE, President
Rockefeller Center New York City



"JACK Holt
PICTURE FULL OF THRILLS . . . ACTION IN THE AIR AND PLENTY OF IT . . . THRILLS AND LAUGHS . . . THE THING ABOUT THIS PICTURE IS ITS AIR STUFF AND THAT IS REALLY SOMETHING TO SEE IN THE LINE OF STRAIGHT AND TRICK FLYING!"
— Hollywood Reporter

STORM OVER THE ANDES

Universal's gigantic drama of the Gran Chaco Wars!

With MONA BARRIE • ANTONIO MORENO

Gene Lockhart • Grant Withers • Barry Norton • George Lewis

Directed by Christy Cabanne . . . . Maurice Pivar, Assoc. Prod.

FIGHTIN'

Starring CHARLES FARRELL

in Universal's Biggest Football Romance . . . With JUNE MARTEL • Andy Devine • J. Farrell MacDonald • Eddie Nugent • Ann Sheridan . . . Story by Stanley Meyer . . . . Directed by Hamilton MacFadden . . . . A Fred S. Meyer Production . . . . Ansel Friedberger, Associate Producer.

CROWDS WILL ROAR AROUND YOUR BOX-OFFICE WHEN YOU PLAY THIS DRAMA OF THE ROARING CROWDS!

YOUTH

And these Great All-American Stars: Larry "Moon" Mullins • Jim Purvis • Paul Schwegler • Dale Van Sickel • Jim Thorpe • Leslie Cooper • Howard "Red" Christie • Nick Lukats • Frank Sully

ROLL OF HONOR

(Continued from Page 1)

EXHIBITOR	THEATRE	TOWN & STATE
Mrs. J. W. Edwards (10 yrs.)	Opera House	Aledo, Ill.
J. Marchesi (10 yrs.)	Amboy	Amboy, Ill.
Joe Brokaw (15 yrs.)	Brokaw	Angola, Ind.
L. A. Turner	Strand	Angola, Ind.
Phil Billiet (10 yrs.)	Coliseum	Anaawan, Ill.
F. B. Swanson (10 yrs.)	Antioch	Antioch, Ill.
J. Lerner (15 yrs.)	Grand	Argo, Ill.
C. Heslip (15 yrs.)	Heslip	Augusta, Ill.
W. R. Catlow	Catlow	Barrington, Ill.
J. Burke	Vanity	Batavia, Ill.
Edward Zorn	Apollo	Belvidere, Ill.
J. G. Gesell (15 yrs.)	Front St.	Bloomington, Ill.
O. F. Vonesh	Strand	Brookfield, Ill.
Chas. Kuchan (15 yrs.)	Capitol	Canton, Ill.
William A. Clark	Garden	Canton, Ill.
C. J. Gerard (10 yrs.)	Woodbine	Carthage, Ill.
Mrs. F. R. Mellinger	Varsity	Champaign, Ill.
F. W. Kaiser	Virginia	Chatsworth, Ill
H. L. Cooper	Palace	Chesterton, Ind.
Koshut & Sabota (10 yrs.)	Liberty	Chicago Hts., Ill.
Frank J. Rolan (10 yrs.)	Sunset	Chillicothe, Ill.
H. E. Reid	Vialto	Clifton, Ill.
A. B. McCollum (15 yrs.)	Lorraine	Hoopeston, Ill.
Fred Anderson (10 yrs.)	Morris	Morris, Ill.
A. J. Johnson	Palace	Crown Point, Ind.
H. L. Henning (15 yrs.)	Culver Mil. Acad	Culver, Ind.
Frye & Muench (10 yrs.)	Tivoli-Colonial	Danville, Ill.
J. Smith	Opera House	Dallas City, Ill.
G. Constan (15 yrs.)	Avon	Decatur, Ill.
J. M. Duncan (10 yrs.)	Alhambra	Decatur, Ill.
C. E. Morrow (15 yrs.)	Morrow	Decatur, Ill.
G. Lekander	Fargo	Geneva, Ill.
V. Machek	Liberty	De Pue, Ill.
L. G. Rorer (15 yrs.)	Dixon	Dixon, Ill.
J. J. Hruby (15 yrs.)	Dolton	Dolton, Ill.
C. W. Leist	Tivoli	Downers, Gr., Ill.
R. H. Shoellhorn (10 yrs.)	Dundee	Dundee, Ill.
Sam Schlaes (15 yrs.)	Forsythe	E. Chicago, Ind.
J. Kendall (15 yrs.)	Kendall	Farmer City, Ill.
J. A. Weece (10 yrs.)	Princess	Farmington, Ill.
J. W. Heller	Star	Freemont, Ind.
Stanley Leay	Stanley	Galena, Ill.
V. U. Young (10 yrs.)	Palace	Gary, Ind.
Pete Kalleris (15 yrs.)	Grand	Gary, Ind.
N. Bikos (10 yrs.)	Roosevelt	Gary, Ind.
J. Bikos	Roxy	Gary, Ind.
J. Greene (10 yrs.)	Genesee	Genesee, Ill.
M. Gerrib	Georgetown	Georgetown, Ill.
T. L. Orr	Edna	Gibson City, Ill.
E. O Schmidt (10 yrs.)	Palace	Gilman, Ill.
J. Czgany, Jr.	Circle	Goshen, Ind.
P. E. Saunders (15 yrs.)	Saunders	Harvard, Ill.
D. W. Wright (10 yrs.)	Lawford	Havana, Ill.
F. W. Shaver	Henry	Henry, Ill.
V. Quarta (10 yrs.)	Bartlett	Highwood, Ill.
G. W. Kruger	Hinsdale	Hinsdale, Ill.
Sam Routes	Strand	Hobart, Ind.
C. B. Burkhardt	Pastime	Homer, Ill.
F. G. Shad	B'way-American	Indiana Har., Ind.
E. Friedman	Garden	Indiana Har., Ind.
Paul Bernier (20 yrs.)	Lyric	Kankakee, Ill.
D. E. Cannon	Kentland	Kentland, Ind.
A. Metzger (15 yrs.)	Fairy	Knox, Ind.
J. Goldberg (15 yrs.)	La Porte	La Porte, Ind.
J. J. Gregory	Roxy	La Porte, Ind.
J. Foder	Cozy	La Porte, Ind.
J. R. Wood	Princess	Leroy, Ill.
A. Werbner	Princess	Lewistown, Ill.
A. J. Inks (15 yrs.)	Crystal	Ligonier, Ind.
Steve Bennis (15 yrs.)	Lincoln	Lincoln, Ill.
A. L. Hainline (15 yrs.)	Illinois-Royal	Macomb, Ill.
C. E. Hartford (15 yrs.)	Coliseum	Marseilles, Ill.
L. Cochevety	Temple-Tivoli No. Side	Mishawaka, Ind.
H. E. Hoag (15 yrs.)	Momence	Momence, Ill.
A. W. Howard	Strand	Monon, Ind.
Mrs. E. E. Gibson (10 yrs.)	Lyric	Monticello, Ill.
J. G. Oelwen	Royal	New Boston, Ill.
Woytinek & Murphy	Gaybles	North Judson, In
R. Lamb	Oregon	Oregon, Ill.
W. J. Fleugel (15 yrs.)	Pekin-Empire	Pekin, Ill.
L. J. Bennett	Rialto	Pekin, Ill.
Adolph Szold (15 yrs.)	Garden	Peoria, Ill.
E. L. Harris (15 yrs.)	Columbia	Peoria, Ill.
George Settos	Rialto	Plymouth, Ind.
C. Reese	Gem	Plymouth, Ind.
H. Uptown	Polo	Polo, Ill.
J. A. Dauntler	Prophet	Prophetstown, Ill.
A. L. Revert	New Home	Rantoul Ill.
W. L. Pracht (10 yrs.)	Arcadia	St. Charles, Ill.
A. B. Wooley (10 yrs.)	Princess	Saybrook, Ill.
Jones & Biker	Family	Sheldon, Ill.
J. Fusheanes	Oliver	So. Bend, Ind.
Ezra Rhodes (15 yrs.)	Castle	So. Bend, Ind.
R. Babcott	Indiana	So. Bend, Ind.
N. Plonski	Linden	So. Bend, Ind.
A. Golubski	Lyric	So. Bend, Ind.
J. Vogel	River Park	So. Bend, Ind.
H. Szmecki (10 yrs.)	White Eagle	So. Bend, Ind.
S. Stein	Armo	So. Bend, Ind.
H. R. Barricklow	Isis	Toluca, Ill.
G. G. Shauer & Sons (15 yrs.)	Premier	Valparaiso, Ind.
A. G. Schultz (10 yrs.)	Rialto	Walkerton, Ind.
E. E. Rietz	Watseka	Watseka, Ill.
Sam Meyers	Teatro Del Lago	Wilmette, Ill.
M. F. Bodwell (10 yrs.)	Paramount	Wyoming, Ill.
L. Monkamier	Yorkville	Yorkville, Ill.
E. E. Alger	Alger's Circuit	Peru, Ill.

'Frankenstein' Pays Off In Mexico City, Osaka

Osaka.—"Bride of Frankenstein" is doing good business at the Osake Skachiku theater, despite the typhoon.

Mexico City.—A sellout business is being done by "Bride of Frankenstein" at all the houses on the Regis circuit.

Just an enlargement of an item in the Hollywood Reporter of August 31st. It shows how the "Bride of Frankenstein," is cleaning up outside of the United States, as well as in. Even a typhoon could not stop the business is Mexico. "Frankenstein" is doing this kind of business everywhere it plays in the United States and outside.

Edgar A. Guest, Poet-Philosopher and Newspaperman Signed by Universal Pictures to Write and Act

FEELING that the screen needs more pictures dealing with the typical American home life and ideals, Carl Laemmle, president of Universal Pictures gave a long term contract last week to Edgar A. Guest, newspaperman, poet and philosopher and will make him a star in film plays along these lines. His Universal pictures will be Guest's initial cinema venture.

After weeks of negotiation Laemmle sent studio men to Chicago last week to make a talking screen test of Guest. When the noted writer and radio commentator proved to have exceptional natural acting talent, as well as screen personality, the Universal president sent a representative to Detroit by plane with a contract for Mr. Guest's services not only as an actor but as a dialog writer.

According to present plans Mr. Guest's cinema debut will be as the principal character of a domestic drama suggested by one of his own verses, "Home." Two other pictures are to be filmed before next summer.

Guest's books of verse number more than a score. His writings appear daily in 200 leading newspapers. His weekly radio broadcasts have proved so popular that within the period of two years he has risen from 48th to ninth among the nation's air favorites.

Guest has been a newspaper writer nearly 40 years. He has never quit a job or been discharged in his life. He has been connected with the Detroit Free Press ever since he began writing. His verse has been syndicated by only one man and for 16 years his books have been published by only one firm. He has lectured in nearly 3,000 towns and cities of America. His unique Universal contract provides that he will never be cast in anything but a 'straight' role and that his dialog in pictures will be of his own writing.

"I look upon Mr. Guest as one of the great screen stars of tomorrow," Mr. Laemmle states, "He is a leader in the field of modern American wit, vision and understanding. He knows American minds, hearts and homes and I know of no man better qualified to present the philosophy of the father and home builder of today, on the screen."

SHE GETS

AND HE'S GLAD TO BE HAD!

Especially after what the trade paper boys said about her!

"It sets the pace for all talkie comedies of its type from now on. Keeps the house in stiches. But you must see it to realize how funny it all is. Not only are the gags superlatively amusing, but the story comes very close to top-notch satire!" —Los Angeles Times

•

"Certainly the most genuinely funny picture Zasu Pitts has appeared in. It reaches gorgeously high spots of burlesque . . . Give it a break because there's something in it for practically every type of audience."

—Hollywood Reporter

•

"Cued to the crowd . . . Gets laughs by the sheer impact of its nonsense . . . It has a virility which appeals to the mob . . . Miss Pitts gives her excellent standard performance."

—Daily Variety

HER MAN

Carl Laemmle presents

ZASU PITTS

HUGH O'CONNELL

in Universal's Laughing Sensation

with

HELEN TWELVETREES

LUCIEN LITTLEFIELD

Eddie Brophy, Ward Bond, Bert Gordon

Directed by William Nigh

Produced by David Diamond

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY SHOWMANSHIP SECTION

A DIGEST OF THE BEST EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

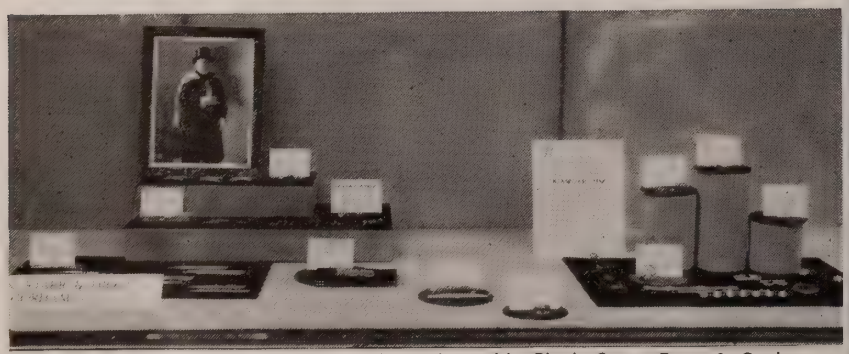
It's Going BOOM! BOOM! at the Box-Office!

A SALUTE to real Showmen! They're "going to town" with DIAMOND JIM. And HOW that fellow is stepping! Biff, bing, bang—socking records right and left! Five year marks blown to the winds! Roxy Theatre officials now digging up six and seven year old files to find attendance figures to equal the continuing DIAMOND JIM riot there. Looping the loop in Chicago! Showering the box-office with a golden stream at the Golden Gate city! Held over in Philadelphia! Boom days in San Diego! DIAMOND JIM made millions for himself—now he is making more for the clever showmen who are sending his picture on its merry record-smashing way backed by bang-up showmanship campaigns! Pack your exploitation big guns with DIAMOND JIM powder and go BOOM! BOOM! again at the box-office!

JOE WEIL

ABOVE—Lobby in the Keith Theatre, Baltimore, Md., where tie-up with Royal Typewriter kept two girls busy day and night tapping out facts on DIAMOND JIM for distribution to patrons. BELOW—How the florists are tying up. The better New York shops featured the DIAMOND JIM corsage in tribute to the premiere at the Roxy Theatre. Both of these ideas are easily planted in any city

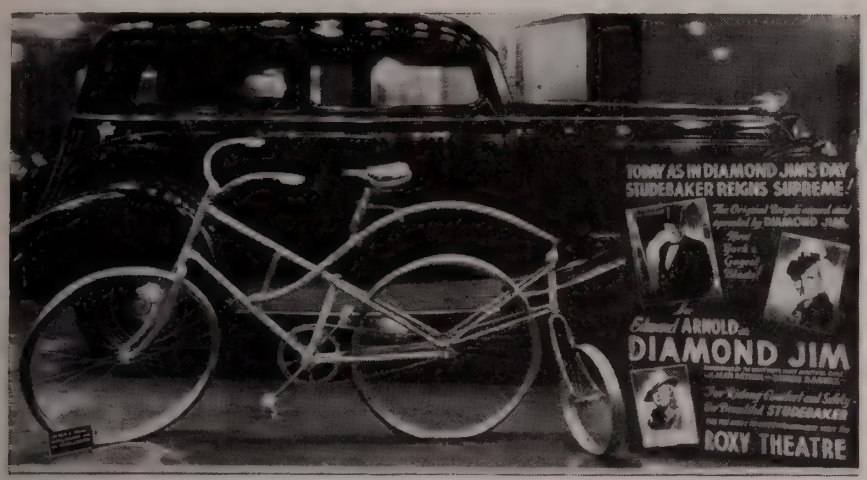
THE ULTRA ULTRA IN TIE-UPS



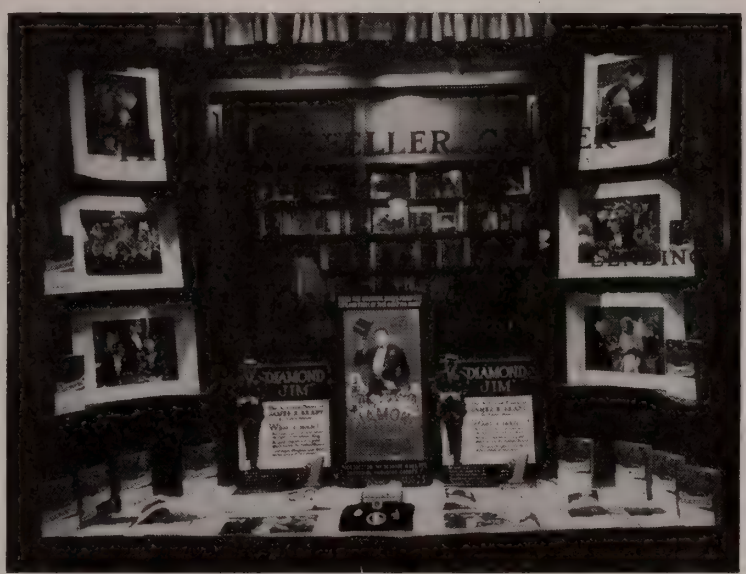
The most exclusive window in the whole, wide-world—Black, Starr, Frost & Gorham, the aristocrats of super-jewelers—for the first time in their distinguished history, devote a window to a motion picture tie-up. They featured the original settings of the DIAMOND JIM gems. The display attracted thousands and brought much newspaper publicity as well.

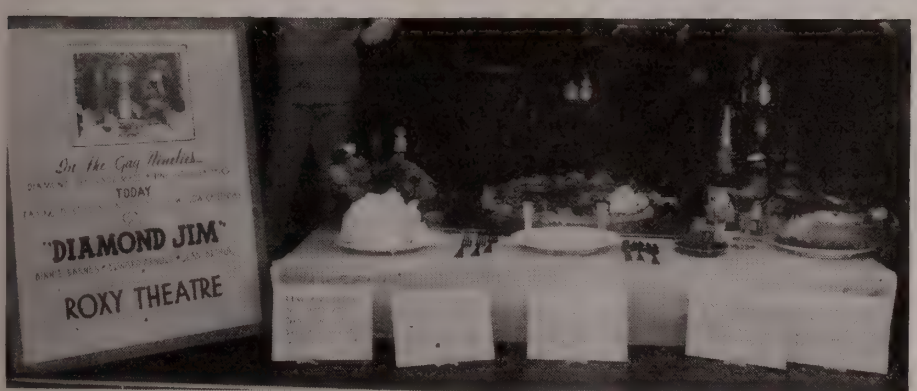
Here are more "Diamond Jim" Jam Gems!

Catching the eyes of passers-by at busiest spots in Gotham!



Look them over! Only samples of deluge of New York windows which helped welcome DIAMOND JIM'S premiere at the Roxy Theatre. ABOVE LEFT—Corner window of the Studebaker Salon comparing transportation in the day of DIAMOND JIM with that of today. This display may be duplicated in any city where an old style bicycle can be secured. Blow it over with gold paint and flitter, and doll up for effect . . . RIGHT—Liggett's Drug store window devoted to DIAMOND JIM books. This is one of a string of leading drug store windows which devoted space to the picture . . . RIGHT—Book window in Rockefeller Center showing enlarged photographs from the picture and also some of the DIAMOND JIM gem replicas. So strong has the demand for the dollar edition of the DIAMOND JIM book become, that even though it has just been issued, the first two editions have been exhausted and the third edition is now on the press.





LEFT—One of a string of eighteen Willow Cafeteria windows which created a tremendous amount of word-of-mouth advertising on DIAMOND JIM. The large table was set with one of the famous huge meals DIAMOND JIM is said to have consumed regularly. The individual cards in front of the window gave details of the monumental meals. Simply swell as an attention-getter for the restaurant—good for a newspaper story—and fine for the picture too! Try it in your city!

Watch this space for more "DIAMOND JIM" Campaigns!

The West Starts Rolling — N. Y. Holds Over!

(1) Three columns x 8" from Denver Theatre, Denver. (2) Two column x 7½" from Orpheum, San Francisco. (3) Three column x 5½" from Palace, Chicago. (4) Two column x 9" hold-over from New York Roxy. (5) Two column x 8½" from Spreckels, San Diego, Cal. (6) Three column x 11" from Orpheum, San Francisco.

PUT PEP

into your programs with the peppiest all-star shorts in the business. Each a Big-Time Vaudeville Show in Itself!

Released Sept. 18th
"SPEEDY JUSTICE"

With

Lew Hearn, Eddie Foy, Jr., Glenn and Jenkins, Arthur Boran, The Danny Dare Dancers, Southland Rhythm Girls and Bobby Lane.

MENTONE

MUSICALS

From
UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.
ROCKEFELLER CENTER
NEW YORK CITY

ROBERT B WENNER
22 CROSS ST
MALDEN MASS

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
Paid
Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

Printed in U. S. A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
VOL. 37, NO. 7
SEP. 14, 1935

Irene Dunne in "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION"

Sweet Surrender!

The Roll of Honor

TOWN	THEATRE	EXHIBITOR	YEARS
Albany, Ore.	Granada	Hal Vaughn	3 years
Ashland, Ore.	Lithia	Walter Leverette	2 years
Astoria, Ore.	Liberty	J. J. Parker Circuit	5 years
Baker, Ore.	Clarick	Mrs. Myrtle Buckmiller	5 years
Bend, Ore	Capitol	B. A. Stover	10 years
Clatskanie, Ore.	Avalon	K. A. Spears	2 years
Corvallis, Ore.	Oregon State	Hal Vaughn	3 years
Cottage Grove, Ore.	Arcade	W. M. Morelock	15 years
Eugene, Oregon	Heilig	F. M. Crabill	5 years
Independence, Ore.	Isis	Ross Nelson	10 years
Lebanon, Ore.	Kuhn	R. Kuhn	10 years
Marshfield, Ore.	Egyptian	Robt. Marsden, Jr.	15 years
Medford, Ore.	Craterian	Geo. Hunt-Tri-State Circuit	3 years
Mt. Angel, Ore.	Auditorium	Father Endres	10 years
North Bend, Ore.	Liberty	Dennis M. Hull	15 years
Ontario, Ore.	Dreamland	C. R. Potter	15 years
Oregon City, Ore.	Liberty	W. A. Long	10 years
Portland, Ore.	Ames	Charles Ames	5 years
Portland, Ore.	Bob White	Bob White
Portland, Ore.	Circle	G. T. Woodlaw	15 years
Portland, Ore.	Egyptian	W. A. Graeper
Portland, Ore.	Granada	Stephen Parker
Portland, Ore.	Irvington	Lillian Lockwood	5 years
Portland, Ore.	Kenton	Wm. Cutts
Portland, Ore.	Lincoln	Phil Carlin	5 years
Portland, Ore.	Moreland	K. W. Cockerline
Portland, Ore.	Novelty	Howard Fleishman	15 years
Portland, Ore.	Portsmouth	C. R. Slater	15 years
Portland, Ore.	Rex	Frank O'Rourke	10 years
Portland, Ore.	State	Kent C. Hartung	5 years
Portland, Ore.	Roseway	H. J. Updegraff
Portland, Ore.	Venetian	Hugh McCredie, Jr.
Powers, Ore.	Pioneer	G. P. Stewart	18 years
Roseburg, Oregon	Indian	Geo. Hunt-Tri-State Circuit	3 years
St. Helens, Ore.	Columbia	G. O. Garrison	8 years
Salem, Oregon	Elsinore	Warner Bros.	5 years
Salem, Oregon	State	Ed Lewis
Seneca, Oregon	Olive	Geo. F. Kennedy
The Dalles, Ore.	Granada	G. E. Mathews
Tillamook, Ore.	Coliseum	Claude Smith	5 years
Portland, Ore.	Blue Mouse	John Hamrick	5 years
Camas, Wash.	Granada	Mrs. Edith Seavert	15 years
Kelso, Wash.	Kelso	W. G. Ripley	5 years
Longview, Wash.	Columbia	W. G. Ripley	5 years
Winlock, Wash.	Roxy	K. A. Spears
Weed, Calif.	Weed	Walter Leverette	5 years
Yreka, Calif.	Broadway	Walter Leverette	5 years
Emmett, Idaho	Ideal	C. D. Bucknum	5 years

Signed G. C. CRADDOCK, Mgr.

HIT!

"Diamond" Is Chicago Hit; Gets $24,600

CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—"Diamond Jim" was the big money-maker of the week in spite of the fact that all downtown first runs had a marked pickup over the rainy holiday. The take at the Palace was $24,600, which exceeded normal by $5,600.

SMASH!

"Diamond" Is Frisco Smash With $15,000

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4.—"Diamond Jim" bowled 'em over with a sensational $15,000 gross at the Orpheum, just double normal for the house. "Curly Top"

RIOT!

"Diamond Jim" Denver Riot

DENVER, Sept. 8.—

"Diamond Jim" was in the standout division and piled $8,500 in seven days at the Denver. This was over the line by $3,500.

RECORD!

'Jim' at $45,850 In 2d Week; B'

"Diamond Jim," with a five-year attendance record and a new three-year high to its credit in its first week at the Roxy, kicked in with a handsome $45,850 in its second week, which terminated Thursday night, a final count demonstrated yesterday.

In the face of adverse weather and such competition as "Top Hat" at the Music Hall, "Anna Karenina" at the Capitol and "Page Miss Glory" at the Strand, but with the extended Labor Day weekend in its favor, the second stanza of the Universal picture gave an impressive account of itself.

Clippings from MOTION PICTURE DAILY thanks from UNIVERSAL

THE NATIONAL LAUGH

No. 829 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

The world is yearning for something to laugh at.

Particularly, the United States.

The millions are half scared to death. They don't know what is coming next in the form of income taxes, inheritance taxes and other taxes.

Millions are wondering whether they were completely nuts when they voted our present administration into office. They are wondering how in the devil we ever expect to pay back the billions (not the millions) which our government plans to spend to keep the idle from being idle.

They never needed relief from tension more than they do today.

They never needed a laugh so badly as they do this minute.

They need it so badly that they will be glad to pay for it, even if it is only in the form of a movie.

So up steps Zasu Pitts to deliver the much-needed laugh.

Miss Pitts is a laugh before she even starts. Universal knew that before it even cast her to play the principal nut role in a picture called "She Gets Her Man."

COMES JUST IN TIME!

Universal had bought a superb burlesque on the G-Man type of screen stuff. All it needed to make it perfect was Miss Zasu Pitts.

So Universal and Miss Pitts got together and made "She Gets Her Man."

Together they made the newest national laugh.

Miss Pitts does get her man. She gets him with her amazing hands, her perfectly dead pan and her remarkable cleverness.

Strangely enough, she has a story which fits her to perfection. She has a story which the millions will love — a perfectly ridiculous Zasu Pitts story.

Millions think Zasu Pitts is funny before she even starts. More millions will agree she is a national tonic after they see her in "She Gets Her Man."

It is a Zasu Pitts story. It is impossible. So is Miss Pitts. Universal has put two impossibilities together and has made a knockout entertainment.

It is ready-made for money. It is tailor-made for you. Hop to it!

Carl Laemmle

THE SMASHING SUCCESSOR
SMASHING SERIAL IS H

FAR GREATER THAN "TAILSPIN TOMMY"! WITH MORE ADVENTURES, THRILLS, EXCITEMENT — AND MYSTERY

Tailspin Tommy IN THE GREAT

TO THE HERE! . . .

CLARK WILLIAMS + JEAN ROGERS + NOAH BEERY, Jr.
DELPHINE DREW + GRANT WITHERS + BRYANT WASHBURN and HELEN BROWN as Hal Forrest's famous cartoon strip characters!

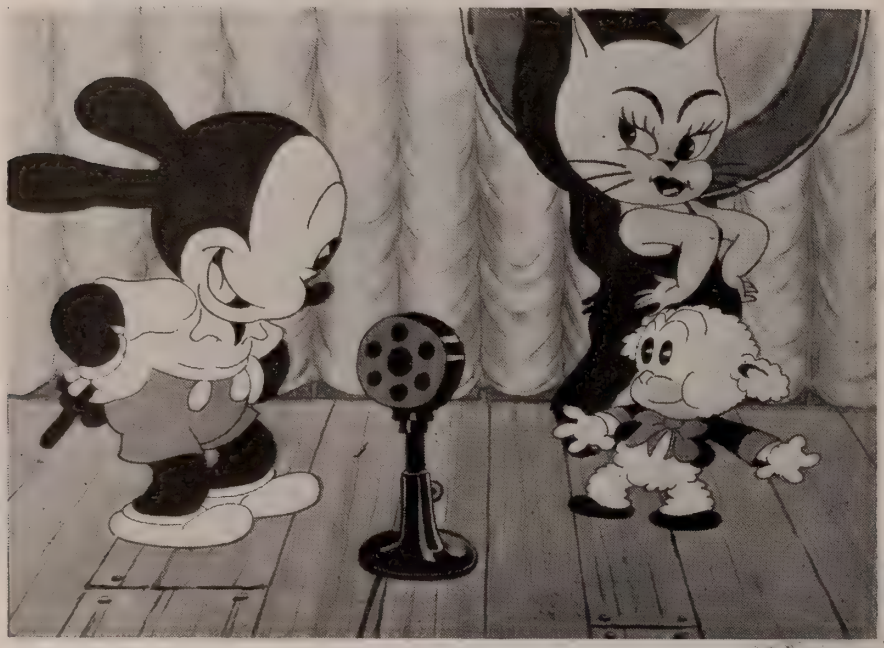
AIR MYSTERY

Directed by RAY TAYLOR
A UNIVERSAL PICTURE

"AMATEUR NIGHT"



Oswald, the Lucky Rabbit in his latest release, "Amateur Night," which is now being played in theatres with such features as "Diamond Jim."

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, N. Y. City
Universal Pictures Corp.
Copyrighted 1935
(All Rights Reserved)
SEPT. 14, 1935
Vol. 37 No. 7

Reciprocity

"REMEMBER LAST NIGHT?" was delayed five days last week, all because Carl Laemmle, Jr., wanted to reciprocate to a dear friend and the man who had saved his father's life. Louise Henry, who is featured in the cast with Edward Arnold, Constance Cummings, Sally Eilers and Robert Young, is the daughter of Dr. Jesse Heiman, who operated on Carl Laemmle so spectacularly in London ten years ago. He lay desperately ill in New York. Miss Henry asked the privilege of going to his bedside. Without hesitation, Carl Laemmle, Jr. delayed the production so that she could visit her father.

Miss Heiman arrived by plane on Tuesday for the necessary scenes in "Remember Last Night?" The next day Dr. Heiman died and Miss Heiman flew back for the funeral with the sorrow of the entire Laemmle family.

Deals Continue To Pour In

JAMES R. GRAINGER, General Manager of Distribution for Universal Pictures Corporation, announced this week the closing of a deal with the Butterfield Circuit in Michigan for 1935-36 product. This deal covers 77 theatres located in the important major situations in the state of Michigan and was completed by James R. Grainger and M. M. Gottlieb representing Universal and W. S. Butterfield and E. C. Beatty representing the Butterfield circuit.

Mr. Grainger also announced the closing of a deal for the 1935-36 Universal product, with the Jefferson Amusement Company of Beaumont, Texas, which sets Universal product in 59 important theatres in Eastern

(Continued on Page 22)

Grainger Selects Cast of "Great Impersonation"

EDMUND GRAINGER announced yesterday the cast of "The Great Impersonation" in support of Edmund Lowe. Valerie Hobson is installed as leading lady, and Wera Engels in the role of the beautiful countess who is the constant menace in this story, which is regarded as the greatest novel by E. Phillips Oppenheim. Others in the cast are Lumsden Hare, Marjorie Gateson, Henry Mollison, Henry Kolker, Brandon Hurst, Leonard Mudie, Claude King and Frank Reicher.

Alan Crosland will place "The Great Impersonation" in production next Monday, using a script written by Major H. O. Yardley, Lt.-Com. Frank Wead and Eve Green.

Louise Henry, beautiful featured player in "King Solomon of Broadway," and "Remember Last Night?", listens to Pinky Tomlin interpreting his song, "That's What You Think," which is sung in "King Solomon of Broadway." Pinky makes 'em up while you wait.

Desperate Story of the Filming of the Dixie Disaster - - - -

BEHIND every newspaper story, there is a tale of news gathering as graphic as the story itself. Back of the photographing for the newsreel of a great disaster, there invariably billows and storms a great story of human achievement. Back of the Dixie and Florida Keys story, lies a tale of news gathering that combines heroic fortitude, ingenuity, foresight, utter folly, and dogged perseverance.

On Monday night, the United Press sent out a warning that a storm was threatening Florida. Charles Ford, Editor of the Universal Newsreel, keeps his eye glued to the UP news ticker in his office, and at home listens to a powerful radio which brings in Florida, California and Honolulu as easily as most radios bring in local stations. He was convinced that a newsreel story of national importance would take place within the next twenty-four hours.

Immediately, he got busy with the telephone and telegraph, making arrangements in the Florida points which seemed to be strategic, Miami, Jacksonville, Key West and Tampa. The best man for the assignment was photographing the garment strike in New York. Ford gave him his orders to proceed to Newark airport, where a plane would be awaiting him. His instructions were in the plane. In spite of the most terrific flying weather, the plane staggered into Jacksonville at 3:00 P. M. Tuesday. It could go no further. Ford had realized this in New York, and had made arrangements by offer of a big bonus, for a daredevil to drive the cameraman in a car from Jacksonville to Miami.

The car left at 4:30 Tuesday afternoon. It arrived in Miami at 5:00 A.M. Wednesday, the driver almost helpless, the car practically ruined. In the meantime, Ford had made arrangements with the Coast Guard for a seaplane. Pathe and MGM newsreels then combined with Ford. All agreed that Lyons was the best man for the assignment and it was arranged that Lyons' shots should be shared equally with the other two companies. Only one cameraman could go in the treacherous air journey, but Lyons is an intrepid daredevil, who will go anywhere where any flying man will take him. He flew over and photographed from every angle the stranded Dixie before any rescue vessel could come within a mile of where the Morgan liner lay pounding heavily to the impact of forty foot waves and an eighty mile gale. It was dangerous work, testing every resource of pilot and photographer, with death facing them every moment they were in the tossing plane.

Charles Ford,
Editor of Universal Newsreel

On the way back to Miami, Lyons discovered from the air the catastrophe that had overtaken the veterans on the Keys, and induced the Coast Guard pilot to fly over the destroyed camp so he could photograph that. Back in Miami, Lyons called up Ford. The newsreel editor had already bought by phone, a Cadillac, and it lay with engine running, ready for Lyons to make the trip to Jacksonville. In Jacksonville, he would have just time to catch a train, and all provisions had been made for the insurance and packing of the precious film. It was late Wednesday night.

All this time, Ford had not had a wink of sleep for two nights, but he felt that he was just on the brink of scoring one of the biggest newsreel triumphs of his career. That evening, Wednesday, Lyons was to call him from Jacksonville. But if Ford hadn't slept, neither had Lyons, and he had had the physical experience of pitting his strength against the elements when they were on a wild rampage. At times the hurricane had registered 120 miles an hour. He was at the end of his strength. If he could only make the four hundred miles to Jacksonville with the only shots made of the Dixie. But he couldn't.

(Continued on Page 27)

REMEMBER LAST NIGHT?

You'll never forget it!

Robert Young, who plays Tony.

Sally Eilers, who plays Betty Hurling

Edward Arnold, who plays Harrison the astute detective who solves the crime

Constance Cummings, who plays Carlotta

"Remember Last Night?"

EVERYTHING probably would have been all right if Tony Milburn hadn't explored the Huling estate, on Long Island, and had found Vic Huling dead in bed, with a bullet in his heart.

Everybody could have gone on quite happily.

But he did. And, after that, Professor Jones was drilled in the back —Faronea got a knife in his spleen— and Baptiste, the second chauffeur of the Hulings, was found dead in bed under mysterious circumstances.

It was all very puzzling to everyone including the people who were on the party the night before, when everyone got tight.

But Danny Harrison, the ace detective, managed to figure out the answers with the aid of Tony and Carlotta Milburn.

The work of Harrison is amply set forth in the Universal production, at times mysterious, at times, gruesome and at times very funny, "Remember Last Night?" produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr.

Universal has "gone to town" on the picture.

All of the gay Long Island backgrounds are shown in their original and colorful beauty. Camera work lends an eerie beauty to the production. James Whale directs with true artistry and fidelity to every detail.

The cast includes Edward Arnold star of Universal's outstanding film, "Diamond Jim."

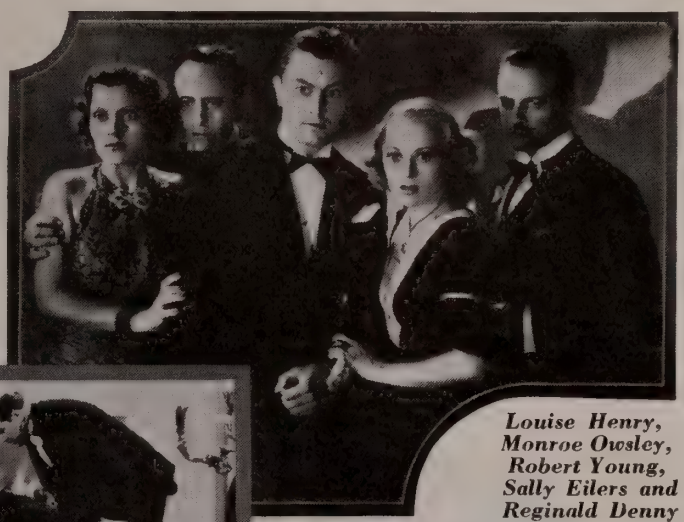
Gustav von Seyffertitz and Robert Young

Robert Young and Constance Cummings, the romantic leads.

BECAUSE he is a master of the mysterious and the eerie in motion pictures and, at the same time, possesses a fine sense of humor, James Whale, so-called "horror expert" at Universal City, was chosen by Carl Laemmle, Jr., to direct the gripping and yet at times humorous "Remember Last Night?", co-featuring Edward Arnold, Constance Cummings, Sally Eilers and Robert Young.

Whale, during the five years that he has been at Universal, has been credited with such outstanding box-office attractions as "Frankenstein," the sensational "Invisible Man," which broke box office records the world over, and, more recently, "The Bride of Frankenstein."

Wale was born at Dudley, Staffs, Great Britain, July 22, 1896.



Louise Henry, Monroe Owsley, Robert Young, Sally Eilers and Reginald Denny

The first of the murders in "Remember Last Night?"

MERRIMENT for supper. Murder for breakfast.

A fast-moving, fast-thinking detective.

A hypnotist who knows all the answers.

Guns popping—knives flashing through the air—persons found dead in the most unexpected places.

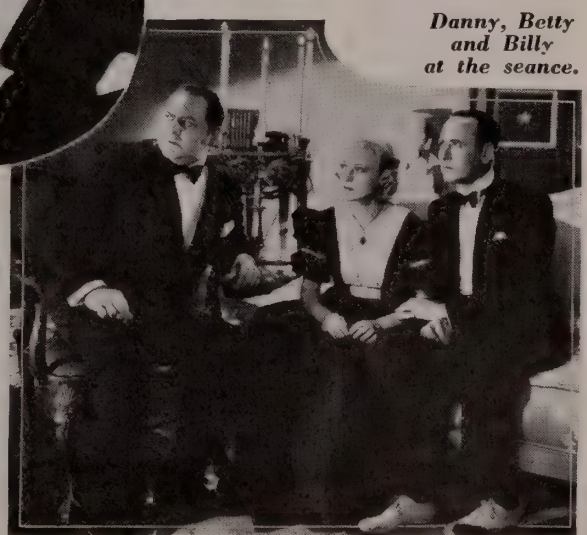
All these thrills—plus a large assortment of laughs—are in store for you when you see Universal's "Remember Last Night?" produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr., and directed by James Whale.

And what a cast! Edward Arnold, star of "Diamond Jim." Constance Cummings, star of "Glamour." Sally Eilers, star of "Alias Mary Dow." "Robert Young featured in "The Red Salute." Robert Armstrong, hero of "G-Men." and many others.

Robert Young and Edward Arnold

Reginald Denny and Edward Arnold

Ed. Brophy, who plays Maxie, discovers a clue.



Danny, Betty and Billy at the seance.

IT'S GOT A HEART, AND SOUL, AND BOX OFFICE!

It's so human that every patron will shower it with laughter, tears and love!

May ROBSON in

3 KIDS AND A QUEEN

With Frankie Darro, Henry Armetta, William Benedict, Billy Burrud, Charlotte Henry. Story by Chester Beecroft and Harry Poppe. Directed by Edward Ludwig. Produced by Ben Verschleiser. A UNIVERSAL PICTURE Presented by Carl Laemmle.

MARTA EGGE

Marta Eggerth on the Normandie

Dorothy Page wises her up.

ARRIVING on the giant 'Normandie's' latest trip West, Marta Eggerth, vivacious, blonde and versatile Hungarian grand opera, concert and cinema star. Miss Eggerth is under long term contract to Universal for American films. Her initial screen venture in this country will be "Song of Joy" which Paul Kohner (who produced her outstanding European picture) will make. Miss Eggerth is arriving at Universal City this Saturday with her mother.

Edward Sutherland, the director who made such a success with Edward Arnold in his first starring venture, "Diamond Jim," was selected to direct Marta Eggerth's first picture. Mr. Sutherland came to New York to meet his star, who spent nearly a week in New York, looking at the sights, being photographed by Hal Phyfe and Irving Chidnoff, being interviewed by Eileen Creelman of the Sun, Irene Thirer of the Post, Frank Nugent of the Times, Regina Crewe of the American, and almost all of the fan magazines. A very swanky party was thrown by the Publicity Department for her at the Hotel Pierre. Contrary to all precedent, Miss Eggerth sang two songs, one of which she had composed herself, to the accompaniment of a Hungarian orchestra.

Miss Eggerth, latest of the operatic Hall of Fame to join the American movies has advantages over her rivals now in Hollywood not only in being younger in years but older in Charlie Leonard and Morris Kinzler surround her at the party.

REMEMBER LAST NIGHT?

What an experience!

RTH ARRIVES

screen experience. She has already made 20 pictures in five different languages. Being 'camerawise' and opera trained, Miss Eggerth just twenty-one, plans to make the most of her opportunities and Carl Laemmle, Universal president, has issued instructions to the studio to give her every advantage in story, cast and direction in her American screen debut.

Born in Budapesth, Miss Eggerth began her professional singing career at the tender age of ten. At thirteen she toured the Scandinavian countries in concert singing in eight languages and at fourteen was the prima donna of a Budapesth light opera company with leading composers writing vehicles for her. Before she had reached the age of sixteen she had made 260 operatic appearances. Among her outstanding screenplays have been "Ufinished Symphony" and "My Heart is Calling," shown in America recently, "Blonde Carmen," "Casta Diva" (just awarded Mussolini international medal prize for the best picture of the year) and "Her Greatest Success." The latter two have been showing in Paris and Berlin for more than a year and "Unfinished Symphony" has run over two years in the same metropoli.

The newest Universal star weighs 105 pounds, is five feet three inches tall, has brown eyes and blonde hair. A coloratura soprano, Miss Eggerth's vocal range is regarded as the broadest in Europe, for she sings an 'A' above high 'C.'

The ship news photographers demanded these two poses as Marta Eggerth came up the Bay on the Normandie.

Marta Eggerth entertains Mrs. McLean, Irene Thirer, Alice Shupper, C.J. Videla, Dorothy Page, Radie Harris and May Ninomiya

REMEMBER LAST NIGHT?

What a night! What a night!

WHAT UNIVER
it
!

SAL PROMISES Delivers

Carl Laemmle speaking, and MAKING GOOD the Current Hits Universal promised you!

1. IRENE DUNNE in John M. Stahl's production of "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" with Robert Taylor, Charles Butterworth and Betty Furness . . . From the best seller by Lloyd C. Douglas . . . (Now in production).

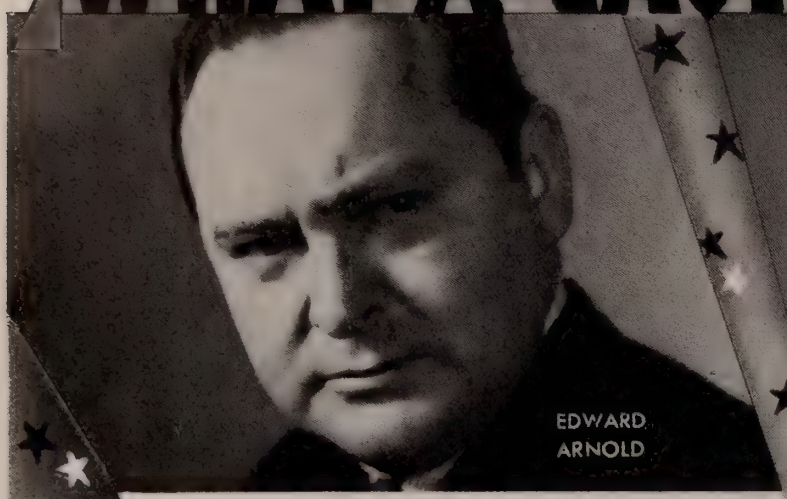
2. MARGARET SULLAVAN and FRANCIS LEDERER in "NEXT TIME WE LOVE" . . . From Ursula Parrott's newest novel! . . . Directed by E. H. Griffith.

3. WILLIAM POWELL in "MY MAN GODFREY" A Carl Laemmle, Jr. Production . . . From the Liberty Magazine serial by Eric Hatch.

4. "SUTTER'S GOLD" . . . From the epic novel by Blaise Cendrars . . . An Edmund Grainger Production . . . Directed by James Cruze.

5. IRENE DUNNE in "SHOW BOAT" . . . Edna Ferber's Immortal Classic! . . . Music by Jerome Kern A Carl Laemmle, Jr. Production . . . Directed by James Whale.

WHAT A CAST! ENOUGH



EDWARD ARNOLD

CONSTANCE CUMMINGS

CARL LAEMMLE PRESENTS A

EDWARD ARNOLD • CONSTAN

and ROBERT

REME

GREGORY RATOFF

LOUISE HENR

LAST N

with ROBERT ARMSTRONG • LOUISE HEN

STORY BY ADAM HOBHOUSE • SCREENPLAY BY D

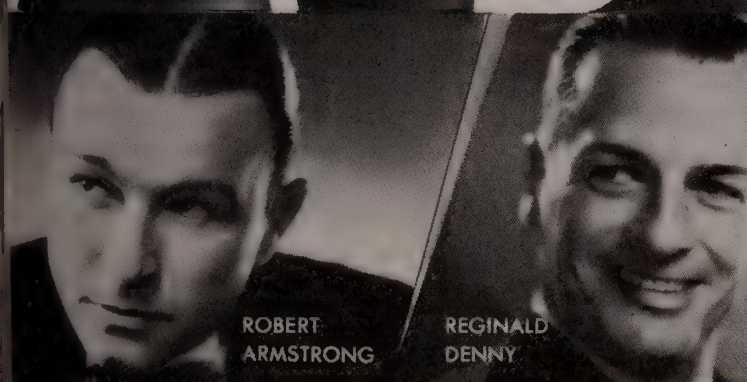
DIRECTED BY JAMES WHALE

*(CORRECTED BILLING)

STARS FOR 3 PICTURES!

NIVERSAL PICTURE STARRING
E CUMMINGS* • SALLY EILERS*
YOUNG in

MBER



IGHT?

• GREGORY RATOFF • REGINALD DENNY
RIS MALLOY, HARRY CLORK and DAN TOTHEROH
A CARL LAEMMLE, JR. PRODUCTION

LATEST NEWS FROM UNIVE

Dr. Hugh Young of the Johns Hopkins Hospital, who operated on Diamond Jim Brady, visits the studio where "Diamond Jim" was made into a record-breaking movie. Left to right, Libby Young and Vi Watt, popular Baltimore debutantes, Robert Young and Constance Cummings, featured in "Remember Last Night?", Dr. Hugh Young, and Robert Hershon, Universal staff writer.

Will Hays Welcomes Edgar A. Guest

WILL H. HAYS, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America has sent Edgar A. Guest, Detroit poet-philosopher an enthusiastic welcome to the motion picture industry. And, the film czar has also added a word of congratulation to Carl Laemmle, Universal president who saw in Guest a prospective screen star although the famous newspaperman had never appeared on the stage or before a camera.

In writing Mr. Guest, Mr. Hays said in part . . . "I was very much pleased to learn that you are entering picture production . . . You are famous for those homely qualities which appeal to every human heart. The screen, going as it does to every crossroads of the world is a natural field for the expression of that ability that has endeared you to the hearts of so many thousands."

Julian Josephson, who wrote the continuity for "State Fair" and whose George Arliss vehicle "The Millionaire" will be long remembered is now writing Mr. Guests's first Universal picture with directorial assignments to be announced shortly.

FRANCIS LEDERER At Universal City

FRANCIS LEDERER, who will be co-starred with Margaret Sullavan in Ursula Parrott's novel, "Next Time We Love," arrived by plane at Universal City today. He flew back from New York, where he had attended the press review of his latest picture, 'The Gay Deception," held at the Waldorf Astoria. In a curtain speech, he referred to his coming picture with Margaret Sullavan with the utmost enthusiasm. Rose Franken, author of "Another Language," has completed the screenplay which will be directed by Edward H. Griffith.

It's memory will thrill you!

Laemmle Buys Optimistic Drama "Tomorrow Will Be A Better Day"

TRUE to his promise to make Universal studio 'the opportunity studio of the industry' Carl Laemmle has purchased an original drama "Tomorrow Will be a Better Day" from William Thiele and Edmund L. Hartmann and will give one of the authors, Mr. Thiele an opportunity to direct it. "Tomorrow Will be a Better Day" deals with the many business and social problems which confront one man during the course of a single day and evening and reveals how, by an ingenious method he overcomes every obstacle before the next rising sun and finds in the new day surprising happiness. Houston Branch is now at work on the adaptation of the story and Paul Kohner will act as associate producer.

SAL CITY STUDIOS

Chas. Bickford Saves Trainer Murphy's Life Filming "East of Java"

CHARLES B. MURPHY, veteran animal trainer and keeper of the Universal City Zoo, was saved from serious injury and possible death today by Charles Bickford, red-headed heman of the films, when he was attacked by a leopard. The accident occurred during the filming of the motion picture, "East of Java" starring Bickford, on the back ranch at Universal City.

Murphy was putting the animals through their paces on an improvised ship when one of the beasts leaped from the ship into a temporary arena. While Elizabeth Young, Leslie Fenton, Clarence Muse and other members of the cast looked on with horror, Murphy advanced on him and sought to drive him into what is called a "shifting crate" for return to the deck of the vessel.

The animal, instead of backing into the cage, sprang at Murphy and grabbed his arm. The fact that Murphy had wrapped both his arms with heavy cloth saved him. He fought free of the animal, which was about to spring again when Bickford leaped from the boat, armed with a pitchfork, and held the desperate animal at bay while Murphy equipped himself with another fork. Both men, using forks, drove the animal into the crate.

Bickford, Murphy, and George Melford, the director, worked together in the filming of "East of Borneo," some years ago. It was experience on this film which led Bickford to know what to do and to act quickly. Murphy's only injury was a long gash on his arm, caused by the leopard on the first leap.

"EAST OF JAVA" CLEVER MAKE-UP

Who is this blood-thirsty looking individual who is one of the featured players in "East of Java?" He is a splendid actor, a master of make-up, matinee idol, and a mystery man. Who is he?

Cast of "His Night Out"

THE cast for "His Night Out," which went into production at Universal City this week, starring Edward Everett Horton, is rapidly rounding into shape. Irene Hervey is the leading lady. The cast already includes Robert McWade, Oscar Apfel, Greta Meyer, Willard Robertson, Dewey Robinson, Lola Lane, Charles Reagan, Ward Bond, Theodore Von Eltz, Priscilla Lawson, a Universal junior, who will make her debut in this picture, Arch Robbins, Jack Kennedy, George Chandler, Billy Burrud, Rollo Lloyd, Virginia Howell, Jack Norton and Charles Carnevale. "His Night Out" is adapted by Harry Clork and Doris Malloy from the story by Charles Christensen. It is being directed by William Nigh

REMEMBER LAST NIGHT?

It's an eternity of entertainment!

Butterfield, Schine, and Jefferson Deals

(Continued from Page 8)

Mr. Grainger also announced the closing of a deal with the Schine Theatrical Enterprises, Inc., with 47 important situations in New York State and in Ohio. The deal was closed in Mr. Grainger's office and includes all of the 1935-1936 product. Myer Schine and George Lynch represented the circuit, and J. R. Grainger and Frank McCarthy the Universal Exchanges.

M. A. Lightman Instructs His Managers

Here is a letter to theatre managers which Mr. Lightman permits the Weekly to print.

AM writing especially concerning DIAMOND JIM BRADY. Here is a 100% showman's picture. It will rise or fall according to you. I think it has everything that a showman wants to really step on the picture and sell it to the public. It is colorful, it is real, it is human, it abounds in romance and adventure, it depicts the life of one of America's most colorful citizens, it shows the one thing that gives every red-blooded American a thrill, namely, the rise of a poor working lad to the very heights of financial success. The character is one of the most unique in history. Imagine a man who actually lived right here only recently who was eccentric enough to wear diamonds carved into railroad trains and various other objects of commerce. This is a true fact. Brady wore such diamonds on his fingers, his shirt, his tie and in the lapel of his coat. He always had several hundred thousands invested in personal diamonds.

Arnold has never done anything to approach his characterization of "DIAMOND JIM" The picture is so well done that one never realizes that it isn't real.

I want you to study the press book that is being sent you today and get as thoroughly familiar with this character as you can and use a vigorous advance campaign, refreshing the minds of the people with the highlights of his career. Bear in mind that Brady was no doubt one of the greatest salesmen of all times. I know that if you will give the matter your most serious thought, you will devise some means of setting a pace that we can use in our various towns, as yours is the first engagement. I am going to watch the results very closely. Therefore you might accept this letter more or less as a challenge, so don't let me down.

Regards,
M. O. LIGHTMAN

50 DOLLARS FOR GOOD IDEAS

Whether you're an exhibitor or a projectionist—you can earn $50.00 with every good idea for the improvement of Universal pictures which I accept. You see pictures every day and you know what audiences think. Why not send in your suggestion?

CARL LAEMMLE

Young America Says:

Iona R. Lawrence, motion picture editor of Young America, says " 'She Gets Her Man' is good entertainment. And for ZaSu Pitts' violent fans it will be a field day!" (Universal)

"DIAMOND JIM"

"A fine film starring Edward Arnold and telling the life story of a colorful figure in American history." (Universal)

✚ ✚ ✚

DEALS -

(Continued from Page 8)

Texas. Messrs. Joe and Tom Clemmons of the Jefferson Amusement Company, of which Sol Gordon is President, were in New York for several days this week with Mr. Grainger, during which time the contract was signed. Universal was represented by Mr. Grainger, Mr. Harry Graham, and Mr. Edward Olsmith.

A UNIVERSAL CAST IS WORTH REPEATING

A UNIVERSAL CAST IS WORTH REPEATING

"Diamond Jim"	EDWARD ARNOLD
Jane Mathews	JEAN ARTHUR
Lillian Russell	BINNIE BARNES
Jerry Richardson	CESAR ROMERO
Mr. Fox	ERIC BLORE
Charles B. Hordley	HUGH O'CONNELL
The Pawnbroker	GEORGE SIDNEY
Mr. Moore	ROBERT McWADE
Touchey	CHARLES SELLON
Bank President	HENRY KOLKER
Harry Hill	WILLIAM DEMAREST
Jeweler	ALBERT CONTI
Jewelry Salesman	ARMAND KALIZ
Minister	TULLY MARSHALL

Here is the cast of "Diamond Jim." Starting with this feature, Universal Pictures will all carry casts at the end. Don't stop at "the end" but keep on running the repeat cast.* Thanks.

3
MORE RECORD BREAKERS
coming!
AND ALL FROM THE SAME COMPANY . . .

AS BIG AS THE HEAVENS!

STORM over the ANDES

RELEASED SEPT. 16

Starring

JACK HOLT

With Mona Barrie, Antonio Moreno, Gene Lockhart, Grant Withers, Barry Norton, George Lewis

Directed by W. Christy Cabanne • Produced by Maurice Pivar • Presented by Carl Laemmle

UNIVERSAL

MELODY — MELODRAMA — MONEY!

"KING SOLOMON of Broadway"

RELEASED SEPT. 30

Starring

EDMUND LOWE

With DOROTHY PAGE, PINKY TOMLIN
ED PAWLEY, LOUISE HENRY
Charles Grapewin, Arthur Vinton, Bradley Page, Clyde Dilson Directed by Alan Crosland • Produced by Julius Bernheim • Presented by Carl Laemmle

UNIVERSAL

THE BOX OFFICE TOUCHDOWN!

"FIGHTING YOUTH"

RELEASED SEPT. 30

Starring

CHARLES FARRELL

With JUNE MARTEL, Andy Devine, J. Farrell MacDonald, Eddie Nugent, Ann Sheridan and All-American Football Stars

Original story by Stanley Meyer • Directed by Hamilton Macfadden

A Fred S. Meyer Production • Ansel Friedberger, Associate Producer • Presented by Carl Laemmle

UNIVERSAL

WHICH ONE IS THE MOVIE STAR?

Look at the two players on the left, and decide which is the football player and which is the movie star. If you can't decide, read the story. The other two in the picture are Nick Lukats, in the blue jersey, and Jim Thorpe, the greatest football player that ever lived.

WHO says that movie actors do not look like football players?

Strange to relate, there are some people who say that very thing after every football film is screened. These self-appointed experts claim that they can always tell the movie hero from the burly pigskin gladiators.

Here is a picture which proves they are wrong. It shows Charles Farrell, star of Universal's gridiron feature, "Fighting Youth" with Paul Schwegler, All-American moleskin star of the University of Washington and they look enough alike to be twin brothers.

The picture was snapped in the huge Los Angeles Coliseum, scene of the 1932 Olympic Games, where director Hamilton Macfadden has just completed shooting the football field sequences of "Fighting Youth." Two full games were played in these sequences. The opposing teams were made up from the whole University of California squad and such past and present marvels as Schwegler, Jim Thorpe the great Indian, Nick Lukats, Jim Purvis, "Moon" Mullins, "Dutch" Fehring, Dale Van Sickle, "Red" Christie, and Frank Baker. Farrell and Andy Devine played through both games.

As the players gathered around Macfadden and technical adviser Jeff Cravath of U.S.C., after a scrimmage, Schwegler and Farrell happened to stand side by side in the group. The resemblance in face and physique between the two men struck the official Universal staff photographer so forcibly that he took their picture unknown to them as they listened intently to the coach.

Incidentally, Charley Farrell not only looks like a great athlete but is one. He is the tennis champ of the film colony, ropes and rides like a cowboy, is a crack polo player, sails his own yacht and is a long distance swimmer of note. He was on his college boxing team and puts on the gloves with all comers, amateur or professional in daily workouts at the Hollywood A. C.

His leading lady in "Fighting Youth" is June Martel.

HOW THEY SHOT THE DIXIE DISASTER

(Continued from Page 9)

He had had no sleep and no food for two days.

As he stepped out of the booth, he collapsed. The police picked him up, but naturally they didn't know how precious was his equipment and his cans of pictures.

In the morning Ford again took up his long distance direction of the desperate adventure. After two hours of failure to contact Lyons, in despair, he called up his own younger brother John who lives in Miami, but who knows nothing about photography. He gave him the facts and put it up to him to locate Lyons and rescue as much as possible of the wrecked newsreel story. Young Ford discovered that Lyons had walked across the street after telephoning Ford, and had dropped senseless to the street. Young Ford also located the film and the camera.

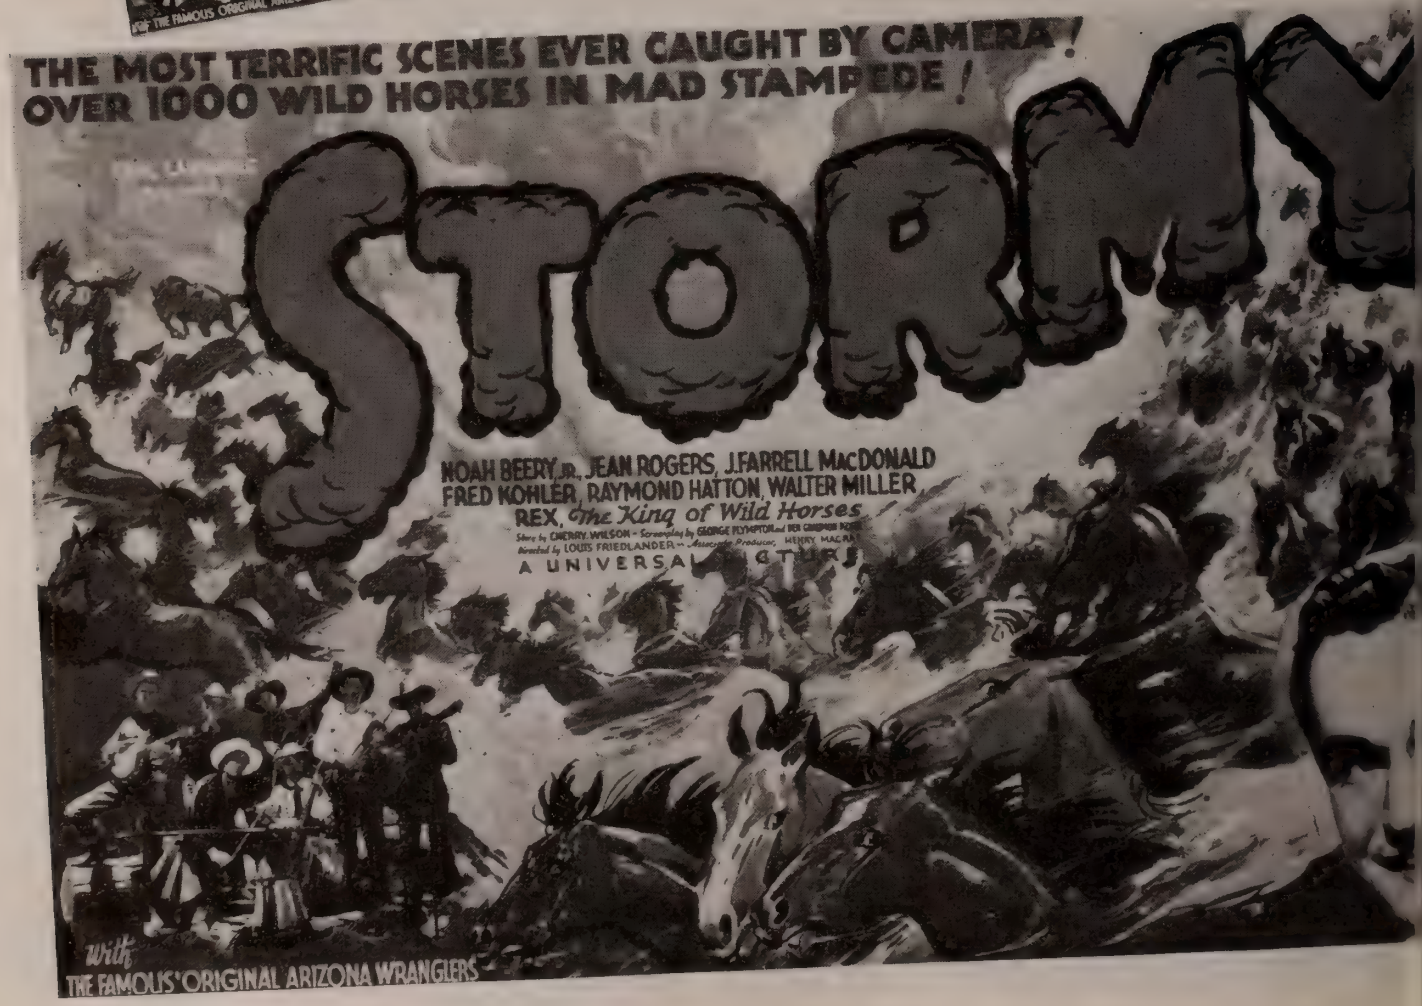
Young Ford gathered up everything that he could find, not knowing exposed film from unexposed. The Ford's spent $50.00 in long distance conversation while the Newsreel Editor tried to explain how to unlock and unload an Ackeley camera, a job that is purposely made as intricate as possible. By this time, trains were running from Miami to Jacksonville. Young Ford insured the shipment for $5000, which the Telegraph Company reduced to $50.00, thinking the larger sum was extravagant. This well intentioned act caused further delay. A $5000 package would have been guarded with utmost care and not dumped unceremoniously on the platform.

Ford, in New York, kept in contact with the shipment by phone and telegraph in the hope that he would be able to take the shipment off the train in Jacksonville, and send it by plane to New York. Flyers, however, were still grounded in Florida. However, the orders to take the shipment off at Jacksonville could not be countermanded in time, and the precious film was heaved out on the platform at Jacksonville. It was 4 hours before another train.

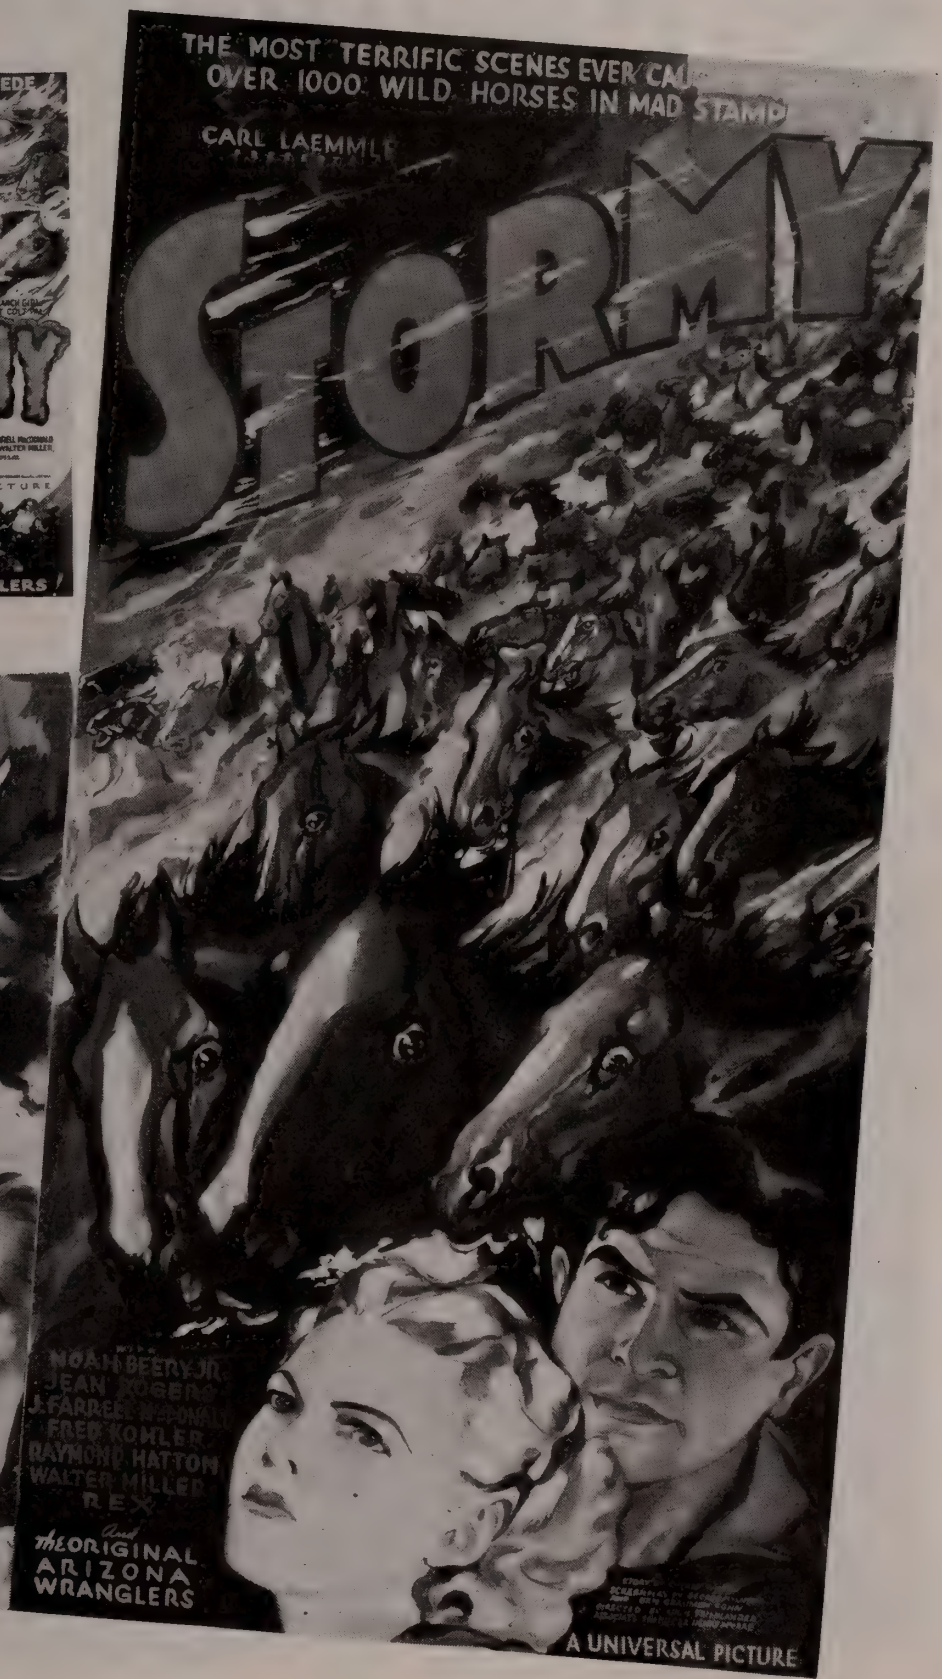
A whole day had been lost and still no flying weather. It was not until noon on Friday that a plane sent out from New York intercepted the shipment at Roanoke, Va., and brought it to New York for showing Saturday morning.

You'll wish it never ended!

BRING YOUR PATRONS



STAMPEDING TO SEE IT!



THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY SHOWMANSHIP SECTION

A DIGEST OF THE BEST EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

Dazzles Detroit!

ONE of the sparkling DIAMOND JIM jewelry windows appearing in all key cities of the country. This particular flasher, one of many planted by Dave Idzal and Fred Schader for the Fox, Detroit run of Universal's blazing box-office beauty.

She Got 'Em — In K. C.

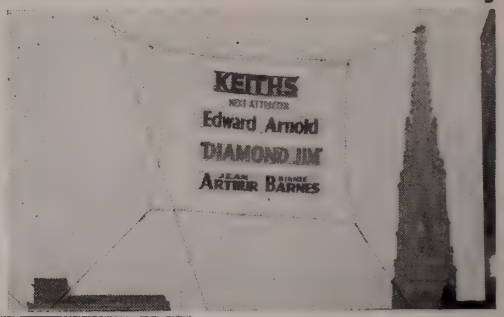
LEAVE it to Bernard Joffee, fast-stepping M. D. at the Tower, K. C., to grab a good idea and put it to work! Those are "live" hands you see working in this display. They created so much hubub in the Tower lobby that the Kansas City Star reviewer devoted two full paragraphs to describing this exploitation gag. While the hands talked ala "ZaSu" — the patrons talked, too, ala box-office!

"JIM" OUGHTA BE PROUD!

Showmen Prove His By-Word—
"To Make Money You Gotta Look Like Money!"

IT'S grand—the way the country's crackerjack theatremen are pushing "DIAMOND JIM" to stratosphere grosses! The record crackers are making money by making the picture look like money to the public—stamping it as a "special" by campaigning it all over town. They're spending money to make more money—and it is paying swell dividends! In later issues we will detail some of their great campaigns. Right now we simply have to shout "Thank you!" to Lou Metzger at San Diego—Hal Neides at Frisco— J. L. Schanberger at Baltimore—Harry Goldberg and Bill Huffman at Philadelphia — Harry Huffman of Denver — Ted Gamble of Portland — Irving Lesser and Morris Kinzler of New York—Fred Schader and Dave Idzal of Detroit, Frank Smith and Johnny Joseph at Chicago! There are many more on this list we will tell you about next week. They are doing a sweet job. "DIAMOND JIM" himself ought to be proud of their swelegant backing!

JOE WEIL



ABOVE — Schanberger's huge banner topping Baltimore's busiest traffic thoroughfare.

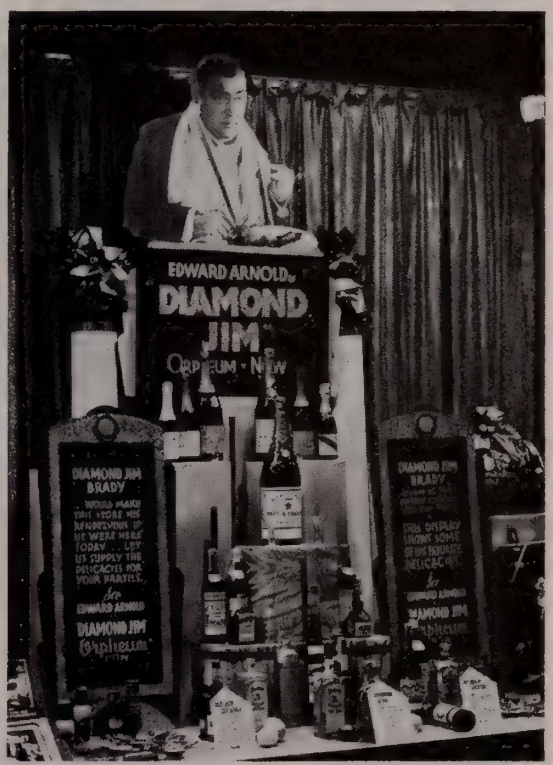
LEFT—Hal Neides orange juice tie-up at the Orpheum, Frisco. This concession in lobby cinched hundreds of other locations about town.

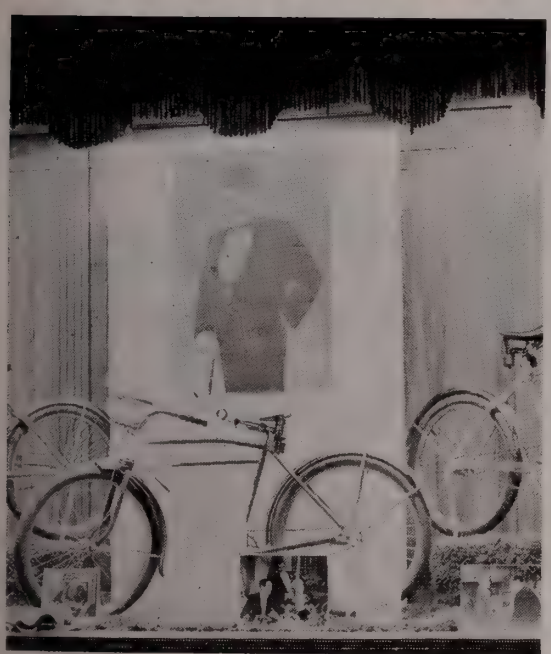
RIGHT—When Lou Metzger heard the stars were coming down to catch his DIAMOND JIM preview, he saw to it that the whole town turned out for the event. Here's just part of a bally that greeted them on their arrival—turning plenty of "noise" into box-office music!

"DIAMOND JIM-MYING" FINE WINDOWS—AND HOW!

ABOVE—The Emporium, San Francisco's great store featured this style comparison window for "DIAMOND JIM" using Binnie Barnes 3-sheet for contrast. Another palm for Hal Neides' Orpheum campaign.

BELOW—Hal Neides, Orpheum Theatre, Frisco, promoted this darb display in Goldberg-Bowen's famous food shop on the Main Street where at least a hundred thousand people saw it.





ABOVE—F. F. Vincent engineered Montgomery Ward San Diego store window as part of his "Diamond Jim" campaign for Lou Metzger's Spreckles Theatre.

BELOW—Philadelphia's "Diamond Jim" and the bannered tandem bicycle he piloted around the streets and to the theatre when he had a large crowd following. Just one of the stunts in a bang up campaign put over by Manager W. B. Huffman and Publicity Manager Harry Goldberg at the Stanton Theatre.

HOLD-OVERS TELL THE STORY!

(1) Two column x 5½" third week New York Roxy ad (2) Three column x 9" from both Fox and Ambassador, St. Louis (3) Two column x 3¼" from Stanton, Philadelphia (4) Two column x 6½" from Fox, Detroit (5) Single column x 6½" from Fox, Detroit (6) Two column x 7" hold-over from Orpheum, San Francisco.

FIRST!

● FIRST ON THE FIRING LINE!

● FIRST TO SHOOT!

● FIRST TO SHOW!

UNIVERSAL NEWSREEL

GRAHAM McNAMEE Announcing

From
UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.
ROCKEFELLER CENTER
NEW YORK CITY

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
Paid
Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

SUE LEWIS
WELLER THEATRE
ALEXANDRIA BAY N Y

STATION F-U-N!

Announcing Oswald, star of comedy cartoon stars, in his very latest honey of a short, "AMATEUR BROADCAST."

Printed in U. S. A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
VOL. 37, NO. 9 SEPT. 28, 1935

IT WILL BE ENG MOUNTAINS OF TI
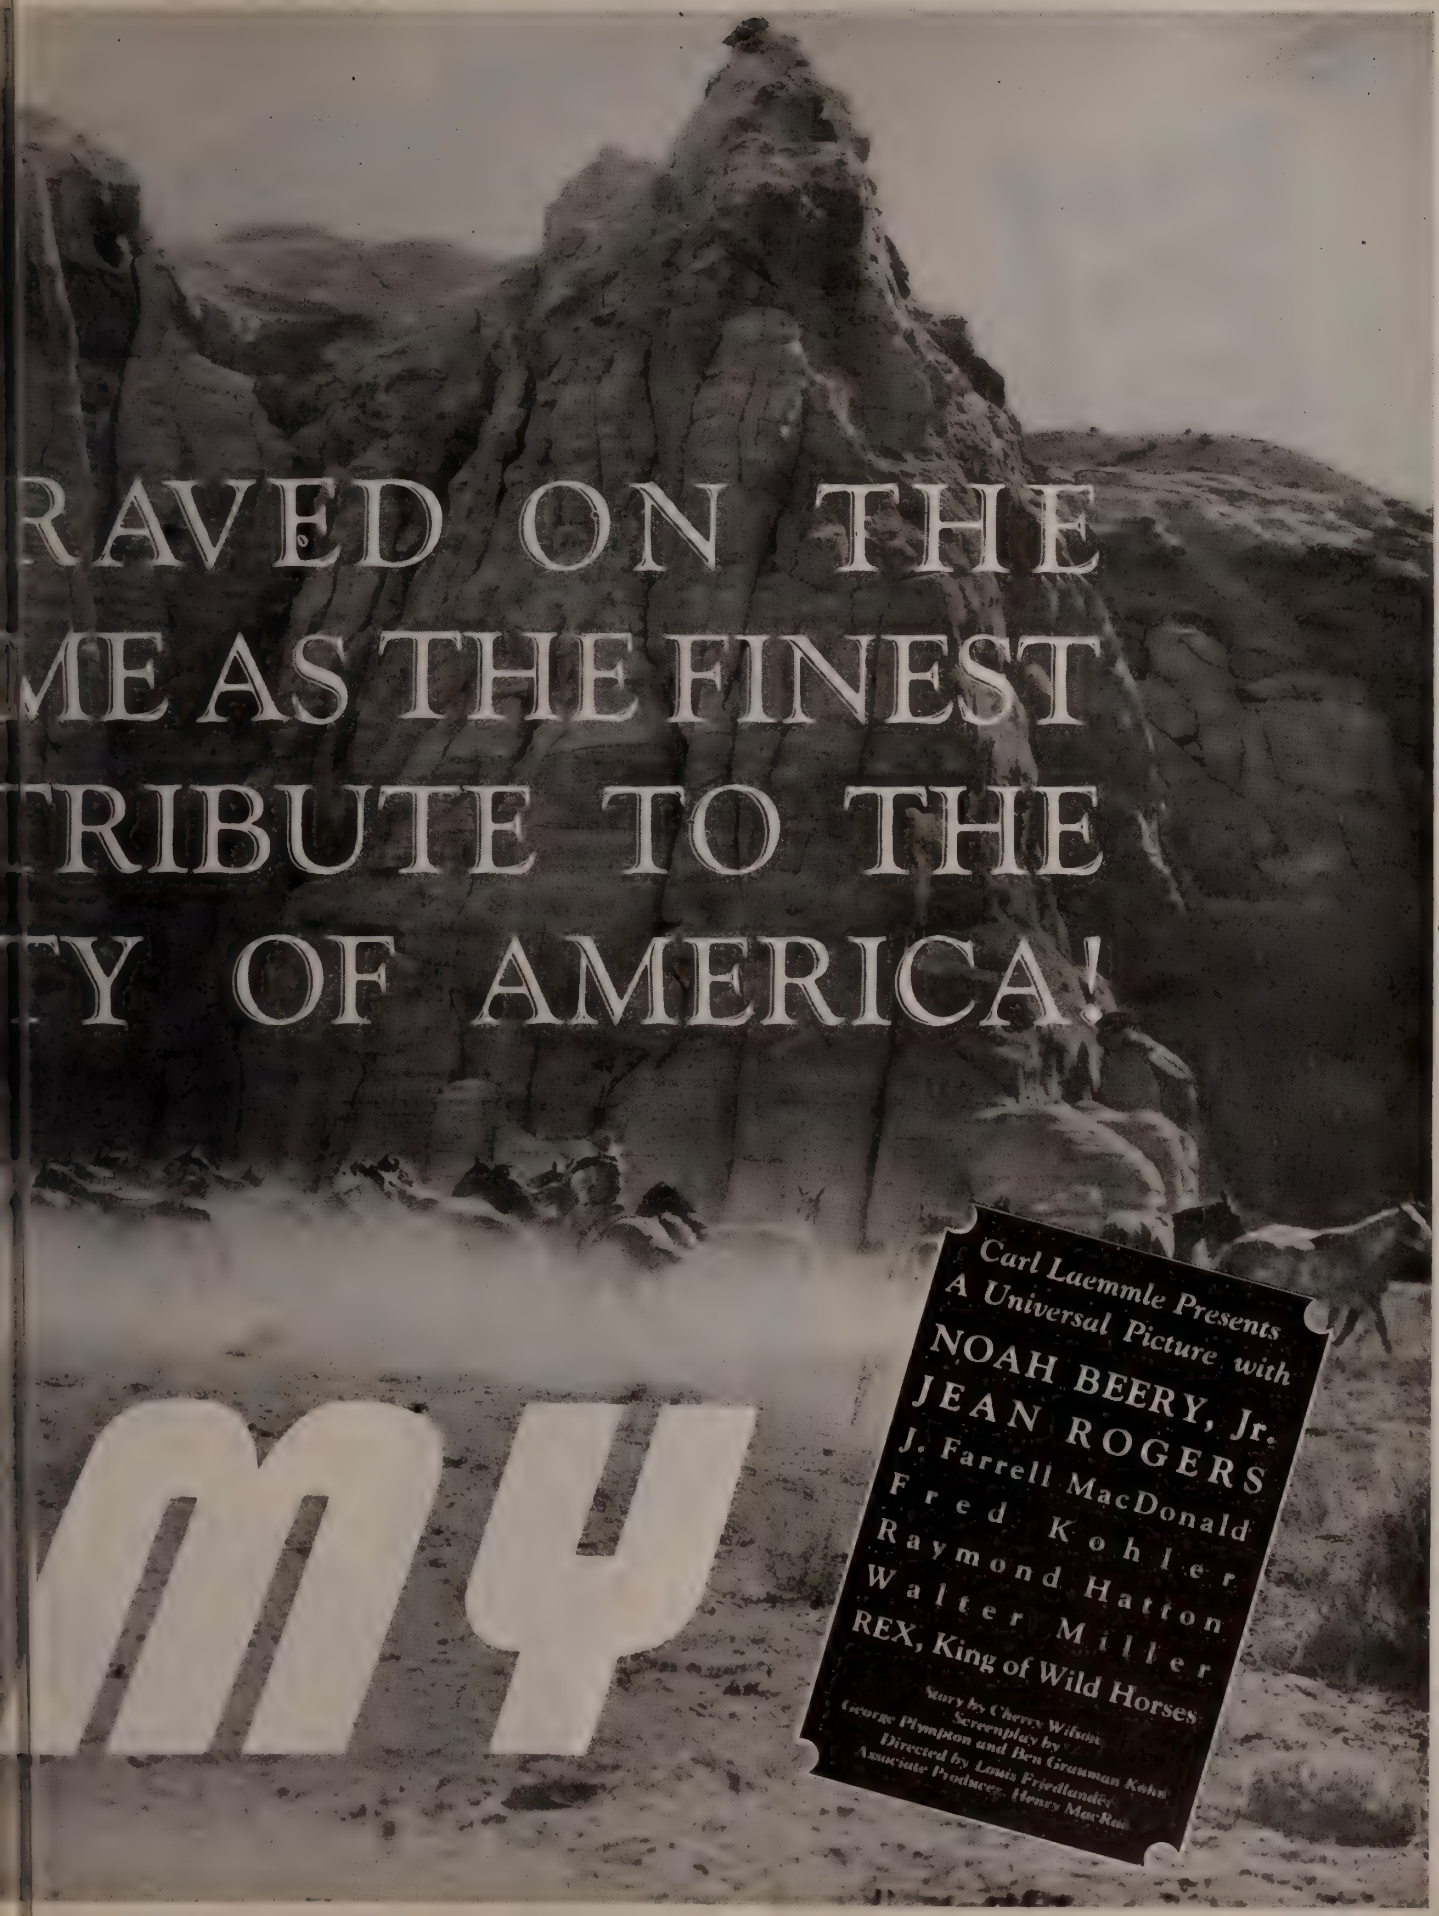
MOTION PICTURE
MIGHT AND MAJES
STOR



RAVED ON THE
ME AS THE FINEST
TRIBUTE TO THE TY OF AMERICA!
my
Carl Laemmle Presents
A Universal Picture with
NOAH BEERY, Jr.
JEAN ROGERS
J. Farrell MacDonald
Fred Kohler
Raymond Hatton
Walter Miller
REX, King of Wild Horses
Story by Cherry Wilson
Screenplay by George Plympton and Ben Grauman Kohn
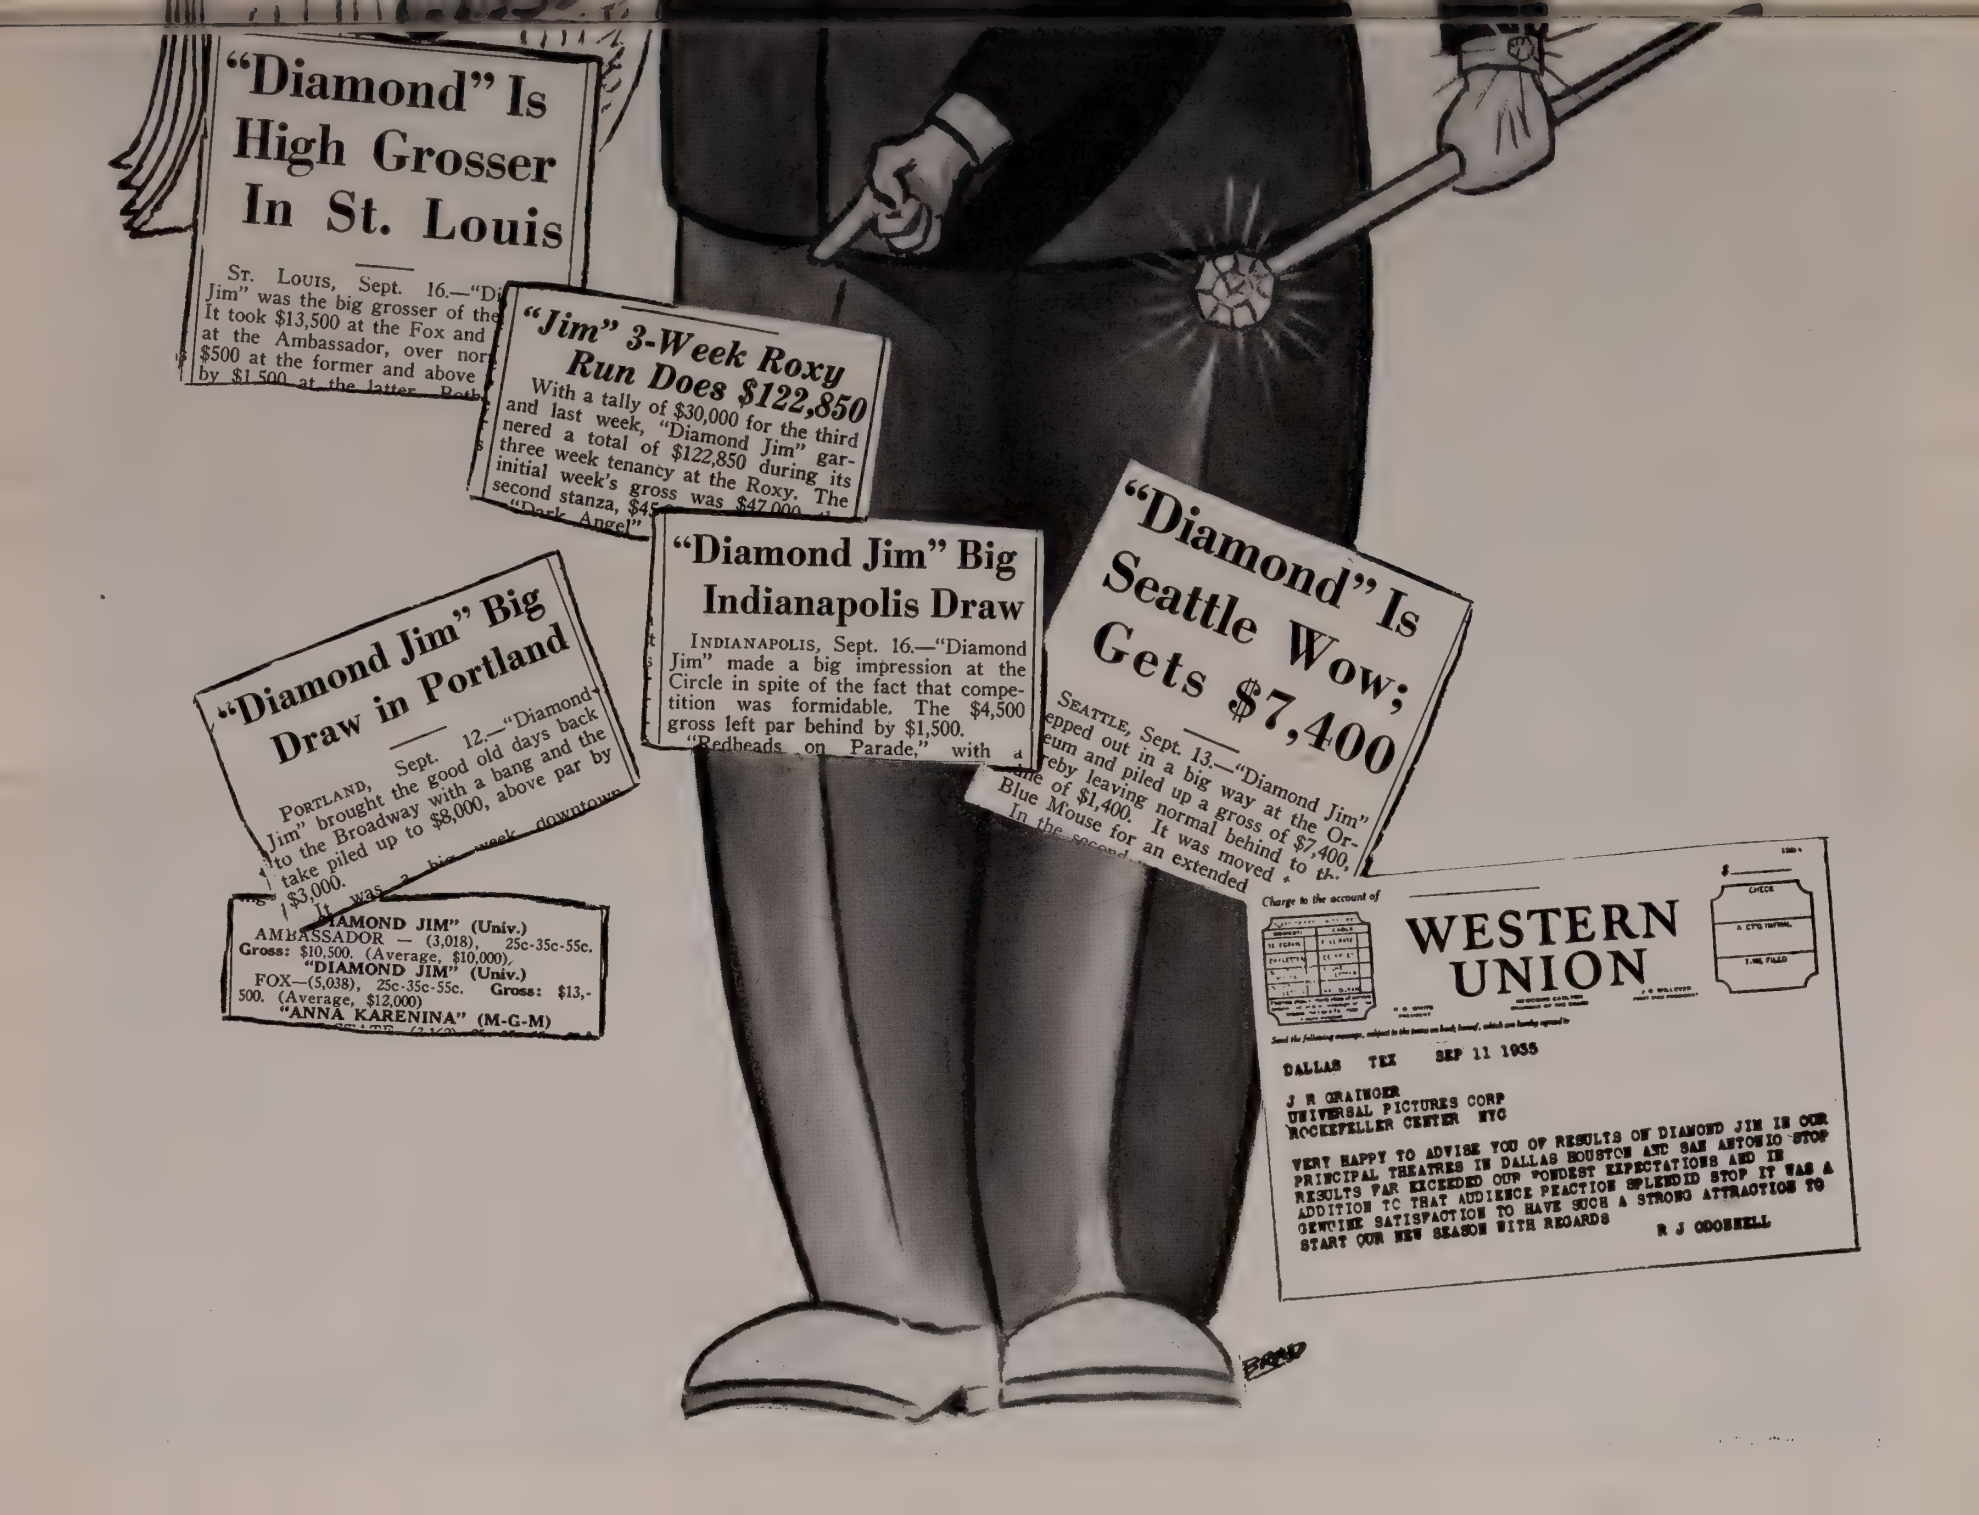
Directed by Louis Friedlander
Associate Producer Henry MacRae

"HE'S MY BABY!"



"Diamond" Is High Grosser In St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 16.—"Di
Jim" was the big grosser of the
It took $13,500 at the Fox and at the Ambassador, over nor $500 at the former and above by $1,500 at the latter. Both

"Jim" 3-Week Roxy Run Does $122,850

With a tally of $30,000 for the third and last week, "Diamond Jim" garnered a total of $122,850 during its three week tenancy at the Roxy. The initial week's gross was $47,000, second stanza, $45
"Dark Angel"

"Diamond Jim" Big Indianapolis Draw

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 16.—"Diamond Jim" made a big impression at the Circle in spite of the fact that competition was formidable. The $4,500 gross left par behind by $1,500.

"Redheads on Parade," with a "Diamond" Is Seattle Wow; Gets $7,400

SEATTLE, Sept. 13.—"Diamond Jim" epped out in a big way at the Or-eum and piled up a gross of $7,400, eby leaving normal behind to the ne of $1,400. It was moved Blue Mouse for an extended
In the second

"Diamond Jim" Big Draw in Portland

PORTLAND, Sept. 12.—"Diamond Jim" brought the good old days back to the Broadway with a bang and the take piled up to $8,000, above par by $3,000.

It was a big week downtown

"DIAMOND JIM" (Univ.)
AMBASSADOR — (3,018), 25c-35c-55c. Gross: $10,500. (Average, $10,000)
"DIAMOND JIM" (Univ.)
FOX—(5,038), 25c-35c-55c. Gross: $13,500. (Average, $12,000)
"ANNA KARENINA" (M-G-M)

Charge to the account of

WESTERN UNION

CHECK

DALLAS TEX SEP 11 1935

J R GRAINGER
UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP
ROCKEFELLER CENTER NYC

VERY HAPPY TO ADVISE YOU OF RESULTS ON DIAMOND JIM IN OUR PRINCIPAL THEATRES IN DALLAS HOUSTON AND SAN ANTONIO STOP RESULTS FAR EXCEEDED OUR BOLDEST EXPECTATIONS AND IN ADDITION TO THAT AUDIENCE REACTION SPLENDID STOP IT WAS A GENUINE SATISFACTION TO HAVE SUCH A STRONG ATTRACTION TO START OUR NEW SEASON WITH REGARDS

R J ODONNELL

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, N. Y. City
Universal Pictures Corp.
Copyrighted 1935
(All Rights Reserved)
SEPT. 28, 1935
Vol. 37 No. 9

Goodman Wins $50

FOR several weeks Carl Laemmle has been advertising in the Universal Weekly that he would pay $50. for good ideas suggested by exhibitors or projectionists. This offer is still open and will remain open.

Furthermore, it not only pays to advertise, but it pays to reply to advertising.

David Goodman of the Strand Theatre of Altoona is the latest to receive a $50. check from Carl Laemmle. Mr. Goodman made a suggestion which is being put into operation immediately. Concurrently with Carl Laemmle's order to put this suggestion into effect, a letter went to Mr. Goodman, thanking him for the suggestion and enclosing a check for $50.

Have you a suggestion which will be worth $50. to Carl Laemmle? If you have, send it in.

✚ ✚ ✚

Frank Lawton to Star

FRANK LAWTON has been given the star role in "The Sun Never Sets," a story of British Empire diplomacy by Arthur FitzRichards and Jerry Horwin. Universal purchased the story several weeks ago and it was almost a natural to visualize Lawton in the principal role. This week John Colton was assigned to assist FitzRichards on the screenplay for the story. FitzRichards was formerly a reader in the Universal City Story Department.

Frank Lawton is now appearing in a feature role in "The Invisible Ray" with Karloff and Bela Lugosi, also from a John Colton adaptation.

"Camera Thrills" Will Open Center Theatre, Radio City

Out of All the Short Product Available, the Beautiful Companion Theatre to the Music Hall, Which Starts New Extended-Run Policy October 2nd, Booked "Camera Thrills"

THAT "Camera Thrills" is destined for great things in the theatre is evidenced by its very first booking. It has been chosen to play with the long-run feature, "The Last Days of Pompeii" by the beautiful Center Theatre in Rockefeller Center. With all the product available at the beginning of the season to this companion theatre of the Music Hall, the management chose "Camera Thrills." The eyes of first-run moving picturedom will be on the Center Theatre for the next month. Its policy, its patronage, its program, everything about this theatre will be under keenest observation by the most progressive showmen. None of them can doubt that the selection of "Camera Thrills" places this two-reel Universal feature head and shoulders above any release on the market today.

The Center Theatre had the pick of the entire industry. The Center Theatre paid Universal as high a compliment as it is possible to pay by booking its amazing feature short, "Camera Thrills," into its opening program.

October 2nd will be a gala occasion in New York City. The re-opening of the moving picture theatre which Sam Rothafel designed as the prize exhibit of his long line of theatre creations will create nation-wide publicity. The presence on its opening bill of "Camera Thrills" will give this remarkable feature the auspicious send-off that the tensely packed feature richly deserves.

Only
"Camera Thrills"
IS GREAT ENOUGH FOR THE CENTER THEATRE REOPENING!

Universal's two-reel hurricane of wild sensation . . . selected as the "most outstanding, most individual" and skin raising . . . from all available short product . . . for the grand reopening of the beautiful Center Theatre in Radio City . . . on a new, extended-run policy, October 2.

"Camera Thrills"
Presented by Carl Laemmle
Produced by Charles E. Ford
Dramatized by Graham McNamee
Music Accompaniment by Milton Schwartzwald

IT'S MARVELOUS!

SEE NEXT WEEKLY FOR DETAILS

SWEET SURRENDER

REMEMBER "MOONLIGHT AND PRETZELS"? "AH-H-H-H!" YOU'LL SAY, "THERE WAS A MUSICAL PRODUCTION!"... WELL, THAT GOES TRIPLE—AND MORE—FOR ITS SWEET SUCCESSOR, "SWEET SURRENDER"! SO WATCH AND PREPARE FOR IT!

THEY RAISE THE NATION'S LAUGH P
"THE AFFAIR

RESSURE!
Carl Laemmle presents
ZASU PITTS
HUGH O'CONNELL
in their newest Universal laugh-fest . . . With Walter Catlett + Inez Courtney + Thomas Dugan + Mae Busch + James Burke Buster Phelps
Directed by Kurt Neumann.
Produced by David Diamond.
OF SUSAN"

Right, Walter Catlett, who keeps two hearts asunder in "The Affair of Susan."

ZaSu Pitts, most amusing sufferer in the world in "The Affair of Susan."

Hugh O'Connell figuring how to get rid of Catlett.

This is the theme song of "The Affair of Susan."

"The AFFAIR of SUSAN"

ZaSu Pitts gets a swell idea in "Twenty Lessons in the Art of Love."

A HUGE amusement park duplicating exactly many of the entertainment devices at Coney Island, N. Y., was constructed at Universal City, California, for the gay scenes which are shown on the screen in the new feature "The Affair of Susan," co-starring ZaSu Pitts and High O'Connell. A coal mine, roulette wheel on which human beings ride, Ferris wheel, and a roller coaster were among the many concessions erected temporarily for the filming of the rollicking production at a cost of more than $100,000.

For other devices, the entire company, including Walter Catlett, Inez Courtney, Thomas Dugan, William Pawley and Irene Franklin, was transported to Venice, Ocean Park and Santa Monica, famous Southern California seaside resorts, to attain realism.

On sound stages, the interiors of both a candy factory and an automobile assembly plant were reconstructed according to scale on the huge sound stages.

What It's All About

CAST as a young woman who installs tails on candy dogs and a young man who puts tail-lights on automobiles who are very, very lonesome, ZaSu Pitts and Hugh O'Connell furnish the hilarious comedy and the tender pathos for Universal's tale of a Coney Island romance, "The Affair of Susan." This production all Hollywood is watching to see how Universal has handled dialogue, pantomime and music.

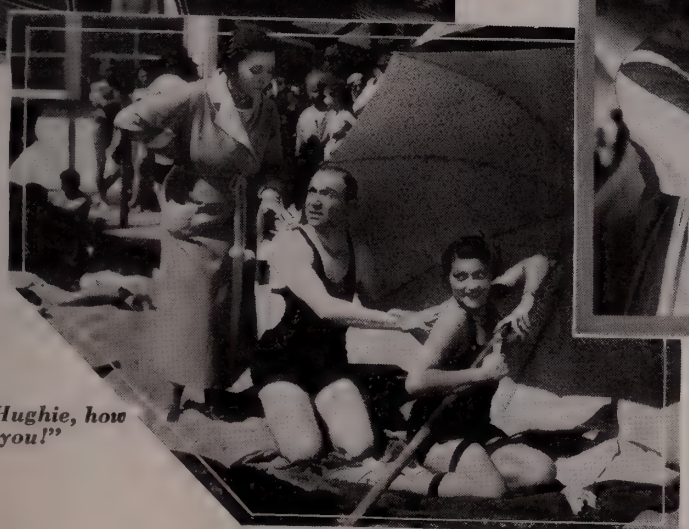
The story finds ZaSu grieving because all the other tail installers in the candy factory have young men, but putting on a brave front. At the same time the shy O'Connell, former New York stage star, who hasn't had a date for years, pretends to his dating companions that he is in the throes of a romance with an heiress.

Hugh, chronically guilty of gross but harmless exaggerations, goes to Coney Island to forget his lonesome feeling, and ZaSu does the same thing. They finally meet, in spite of the highly intoxicated interference of comic Walter Catlett. Love burgeons on a roller coaster, goes into full bloom on the shoot-the-chutes and then, without knowing each others' names, they are separated by an accident. Hilarious and yet touching incidents occur as they try to locate each other once more . . . and finally do so under amazing circumstances.

Interference catches up with the "Love Birds" again.

Here's where Catlett loses an eye, but Hugh should worry.

Even the scenic railway isn't sacred to Catlett.



Oh, Hughie, how could you!"

Alone together at last. Hugh persuades the fluttering ZaSu that the best thing for them to do is to fly together — back to New York. A scene from "The Affair of Susan."

THE CAST ALONE IS W
CARL LAEMM
EDWARD ARNOLD
REMEM
JAMES WHA with ROBERT ARMS

RTH $1,000,000

RESENTS A UNIVERSAL TRIUMPH STARRING
CONSTANCE CUMMINGS • SALLY EILERS AND ROBERT YOUNG IN

BER LAST NIGHT?

'S GREATEST ACHIEVEMENT!

NG • LOUISE HENRY • GREGORY RATOFF • REGINALD DENNY

OBHOUSE SCREENPLAY BY DORIS MALLOY, HARRY CLORK and DAN TOTHEROH

CARL LAEMMLE, JR. PRODUCTION

Danny Harrison, the brainy detective who unravels the complicated and often fearsome details of the murders which cause all of the complications in "Remember Last Night?" It furnishes Edward Arnold with a great follow-up to his starring picture, "Diamond Jim." He will be in many more Universal pictures.

Remember

Thrills and Chills

SELECTION of the best-selling mystery novel, "Hangover Murders," written by Adam Hobhouse, for motion picture production by Carl Laemmle, Jr., resulted from the fact that it contained thrills and chills, a smart and exclusive background and plenty of humor. Young Mr. Laemmle, noted producer, read more than thirty mystery novels before finding exactly what he wanted.

Under his personal direction, three noted scenarists, Harry Clork, Doris Malloy and Dan Totheroh spent months working on the script. On top of this, Laemmle selected James Whale as director, mainly because he has turned out the finest mystery stories the industry ever has known, including "Frankenstein," "The Invisible Man," and "Bride of Frankenstein."

The title was changed to "Remember Last Night?"

Laemmle personally selected his own cast, with enough star names to make three ordinary pictures.

MAGNIFICENT SETTINGS

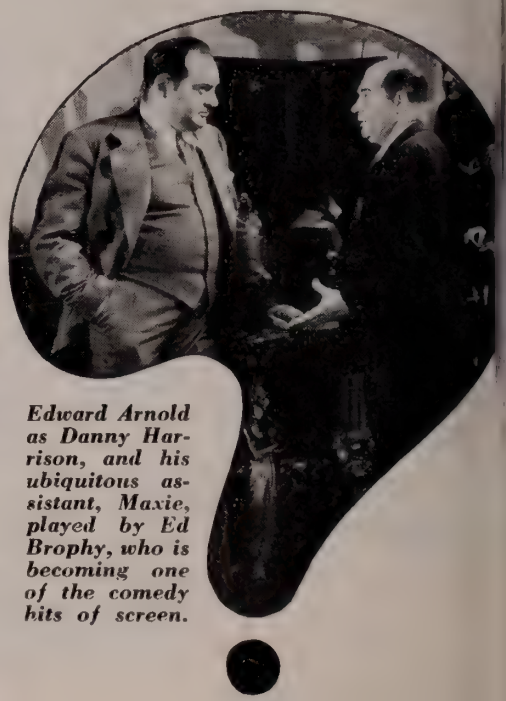
THOUSANDS of visitors to Universal City, California, during the summer months asked above all else that they might be permitted to view the magnificent sets constructed on Universal sound stages for the weird, mysterious and at times humorous "Remember Last Night?" depicting life in the fast Long Island crowd.

Two hundred thousand dollars were invested in materials and labor for the home and garages which were erected on the Universal City sound stages. More than two hundred men labored for more than two months before they reached perfection, and before Southern California was searched for special pieces of furniture to fit the various rooms of the mansion. In fact, even designers of the clothing worn by the actresses were called in, and told to design dresses which harmonized with the various rooms in the modern mode.

A single entrance hallway to the mansion was one hundred feet long and fifty feet wide, with stairs leading to the second floor twenty-five feet wide. A huge crystal chandelier was specially designed to ornament this hall, and expensive paintings lined its sides. The stairs were of marble.

The living room in which much of the action took place was lined with burnt orange satin, giving a special sheen for photographic effect. Huge French windows, twenty-five feet high, reached from floor to ceiling. On the walls of this room and the library were specially painted Greek murals, which caused the costume designers to give evening dresses with Greek motifs to the various actresses.

In addition a six-car garage, a country roadhouse, a bachelor abode and gardens were built for this picture.



Edward Arnold as Danny Harrison, and his ubiquitous assistant, Maxie, played by Ed Brophy, who is becoming one of the comedy hits of screen.

Last Night?

Harrison, the ace detective, asks the momentous question of Carlotta Milburn, played by Constance Cummings, — "Remember Last Night?"

Harrison asks Betty Huling, played by Sally Eilers, where she was last night.

Harrison showing a bit of important evidence to Tony Milburn, played by Robert Young, the romantic lead of the season's most important picture, "Remember Last Night?"

Jack Whitridge (Reginald Denny) comes under the merciless scrutiny of Danny Harrison (Edward Arnold) in the latter's clever reconstruction of one of the oddest, most exciting and most fantastic moving picture of the year, "Remember Last Night?"

Billy Arnold, played by Monroe Owsley, surreptitiously meets Penny Whitridge. One of them certainly will "Remember Last Night?" Is it Louise Henry?

"Remember Last Night?" asks Harrison, the demon detective, of Fred Flannagan, first chauffeur of the Hulings, and the first suspect in the case. Robert Armstrong.

A New Charles FARRELL

As a smashing, crashing All-American football star — a twisting, fighting, unstoppable back — hitting the line hard and bringing the crowds to their feet with mad cheers as he plunges through for a touchdown! A great Charles Farrell in a great new role!

FIGHTIN

Universal's Greatest of All Football Pictures! With JUNE MARTEL + Andy Devi J. Farrell MacDonald + Eddie Nugent + Ann Sheridan and many All-Americ Football Stars! A Fred S. Meyer Production presented by Carl Laemmle. Directe by Hamilton Macfadden. Original story by Stanley Meyer. Ansel Friedberger, Assoc. Pro

YOUTH

The Roll of Honor

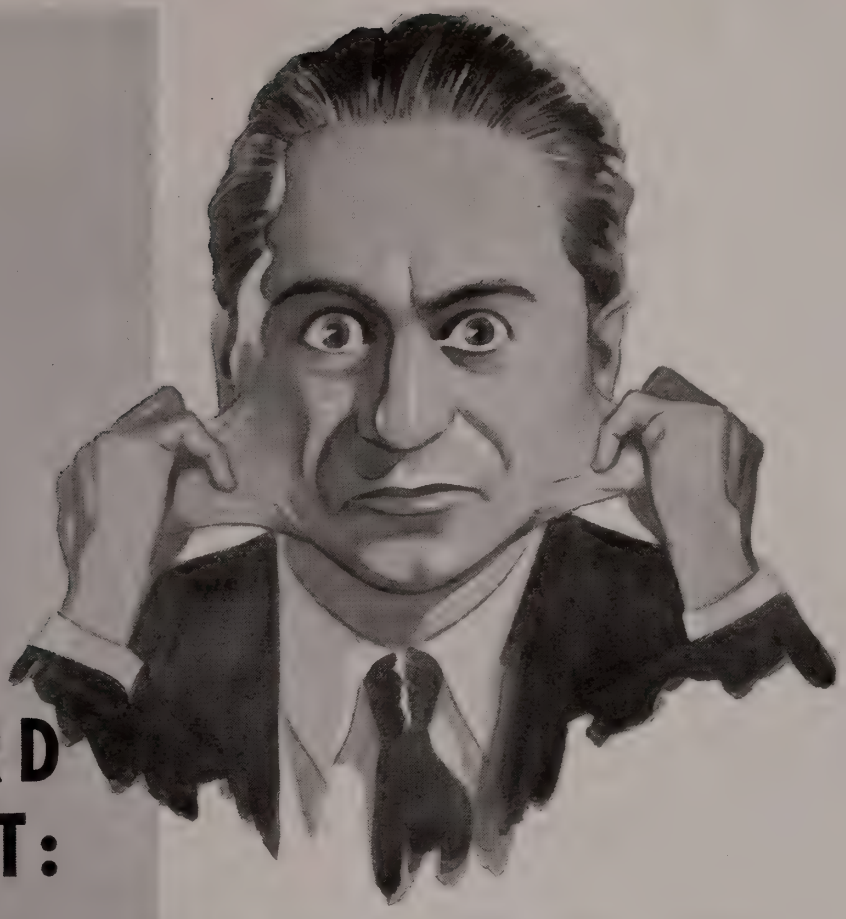
The Following Exhibitors in the Indianapolis Territory have used Universal Pictures Consecutively:

EXHIBITOR	THEATRE	TOWN
	THREE YEARS
E. L. Rakes	Princess	Sturgis, Ky.
	FOUR YEARS
Mrs. A. Elice	Masonic	New Washington, Ind.
	FIVE YEARS
Oscar Fine	Columbia	Evansville, Ind.
Ralph T. Fisher	Maumee	Ft. Wayne, Ind.
	SIX YEARS
Gail E. Lancaster	Jefferson and Huntington	Huntington, Ind.
Fred Dolle	4th Ave. Amusement Co.	Louisville, Ky.
J. B. Green	Princeton	Princeton, Ind.
	SEVEN YEARS
Mrs. Boyd Bell	Lyceum	Terre Haute, Ind.
	EIGHT YEARS
L. L. Jenner	Rialto	Marengo, Ind.
Mrs. L. M. Prewitt	Prewitt	Plainfield, Ind.
	ELEVEN YEARS
Miss F. Jacobson	Dixie	Louisville, Ky.
	TWELVE YEARS
Charles Tamler	Tacoma	Indianapolis, Ind.
	SEVENTEEN YEARS
S. H. Grove	Capitol	Louisville, Ky.
	NINETEEN YEARS
Tony H. Nellesen	Capitol & Creighton	Ft. Wayne, Ind.
	TWENTY YEARS
A. C. Zaring	Zaring	Indianapolis, Ind.
	TWENTY-FIVE YEARS
C. M. Walker	Irving	Indianapolis, Ind.
	TWENTY-SIX YEARS
M. Marcus	Emboyd	Ft. Wayne, Ind.
	EVER SINCE CARL LAEMMLE HAS BEEN IN BUSINESS
Bruce Aspley	Aspley	Glasgow, Ky.
J. M. Wentzell	Norman	Louisville, Ky.

FLOYD BROWN, Mgr.

NEXT WEEK

NEXT WEEK



RED KANN HAS A WORD FOR IT:

You have heard of pictures which gave you goose pimples — pictures which made you gasp — pictures which thrilled you to the very marrow of your bones. But never before in your life have you ever heard any picture described as Red Kann describes Universal's outrageously sensational two-reeler called "CAMERA THRILLS".

HE SAYS IT IS A "SKIN-RAISER"

A "skin-raiser" is a thing you can cash in on. Any time you can show your hard-boiled patrons something to raise their skins, you've got something! If Universal has made a picture which can raise Red Kann's skin one-millionth of an inch, Universal has done the impossible.

UNIVERSAL'S mammoth TWO-REELER

"CAMERA THRILLS"

IS SO GOOD THAT IT IS IMPOSSIBLE

BUT EVERY INCH OF IT IS TRUE!

IT'S IN THE AIR! IT'S IN

"THRILLS AND LAUGHS IN REALLY SOMETHING TO SI
"THE AIRPLANE FIGHTING SI
ING AS THOSE OF 'HELL'S
SHOWMEN'S TRADE REVI
CEPTIONALLY THRILLING A PHOTOGRAPHED!"

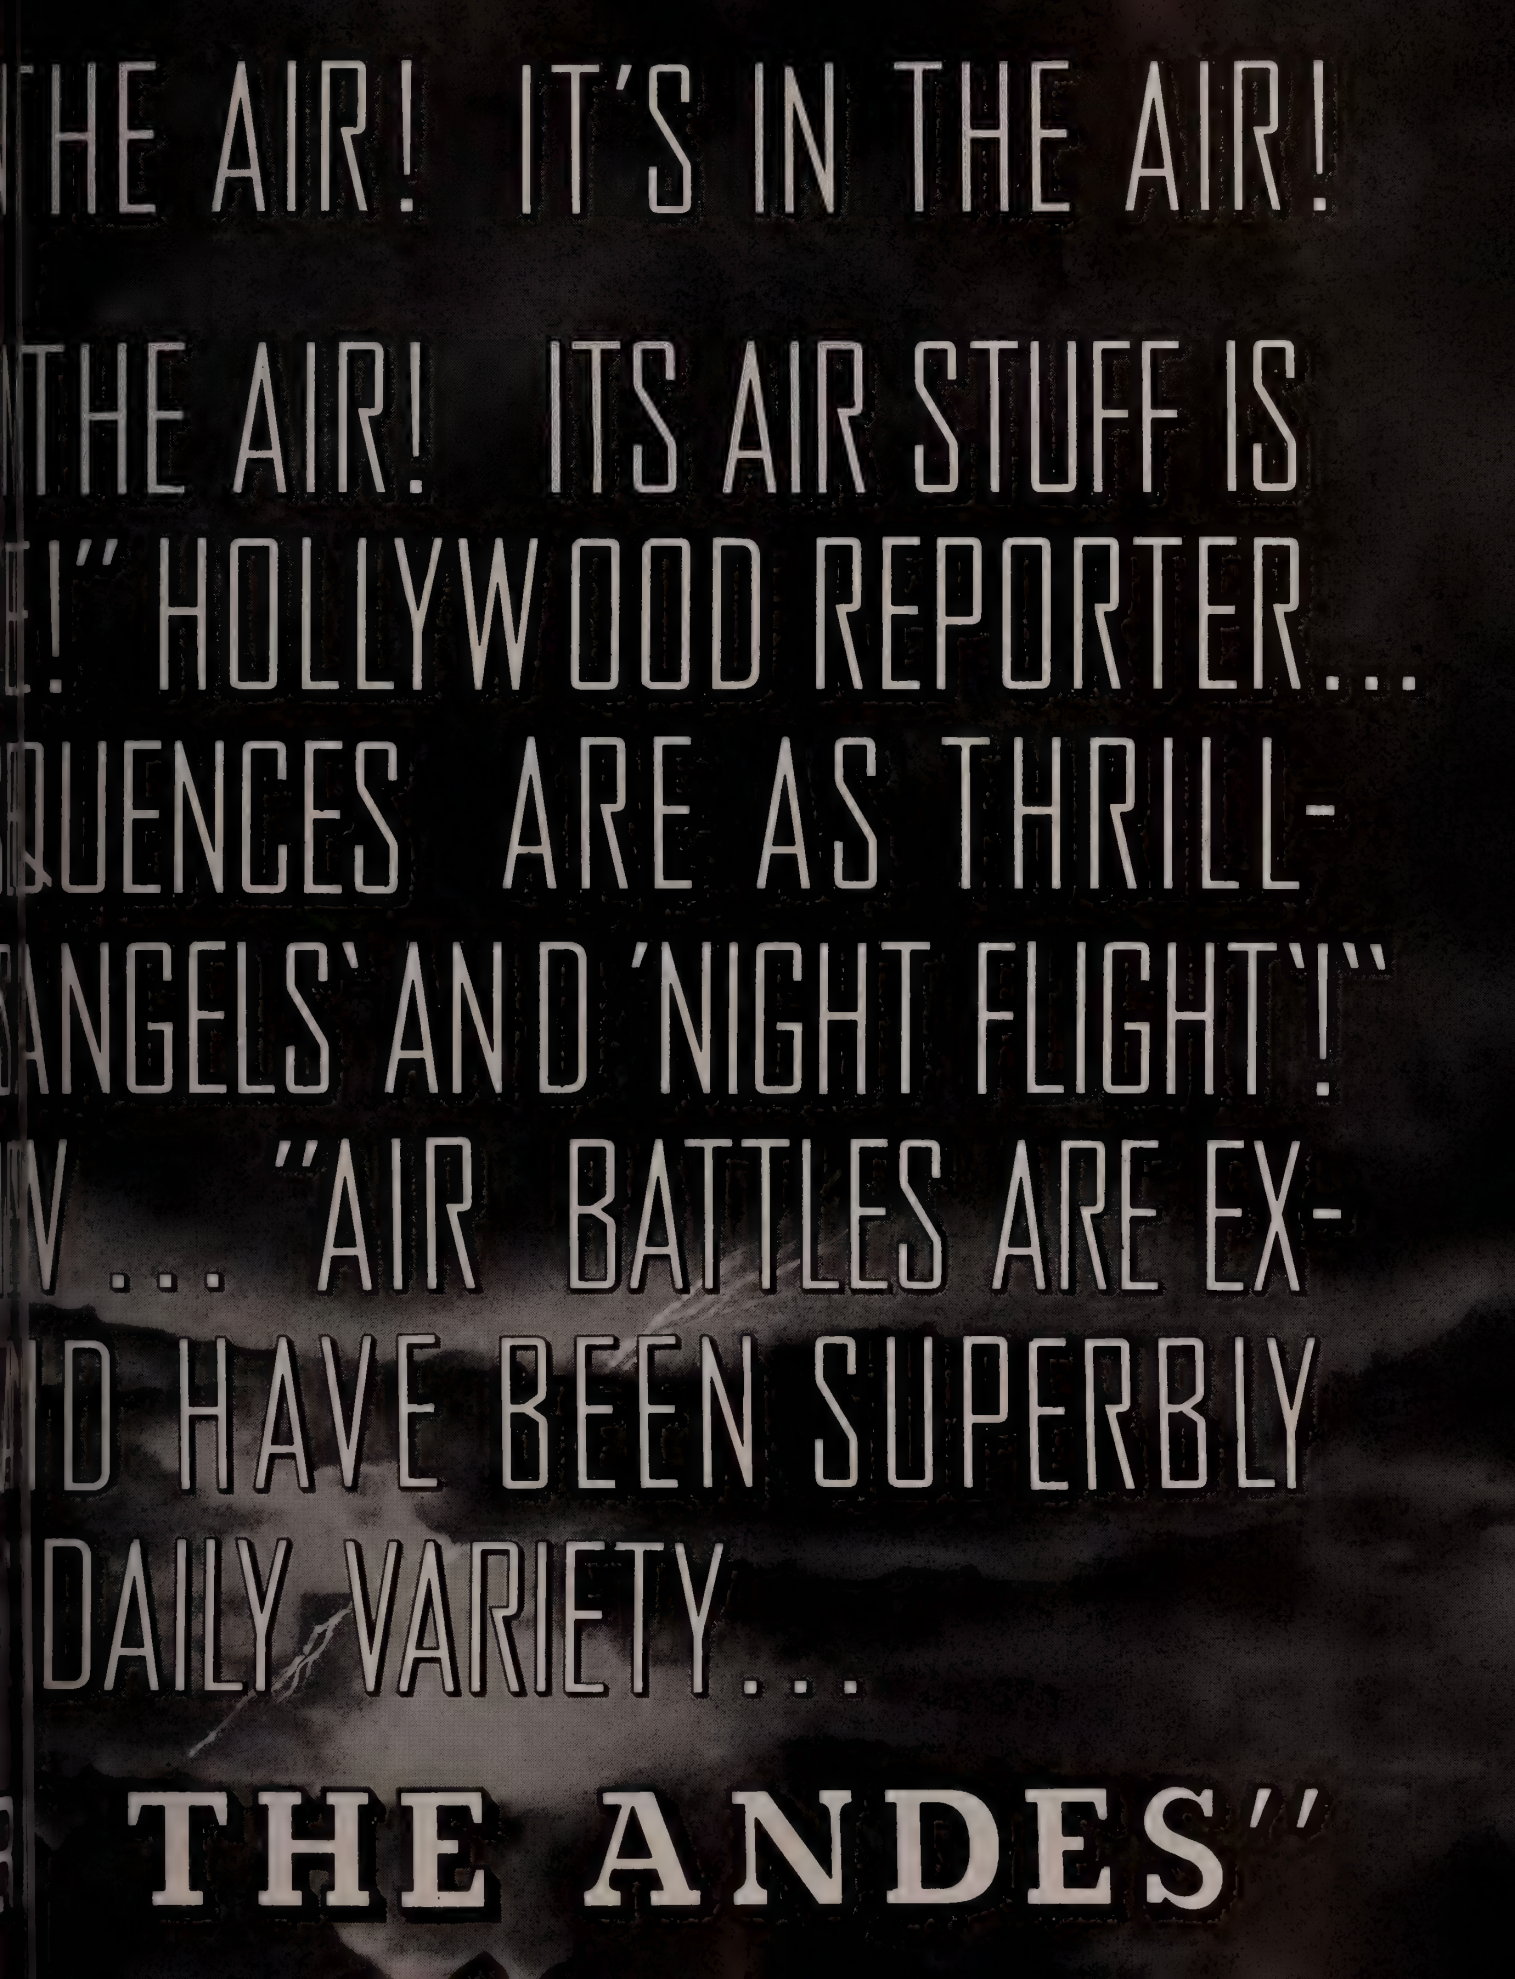
"STORM OVER



THE AIR! IT'S IN THE AIR!
THE AIR! ITS AIR STUFF IS E!" HOLLYWOOD REPORTER...
QUENCES ARE AS THRILL-ANGELS' AND 'NIGHT FLIGHT'!"
V... "AIR BATTLES ARE EX-
ID HAVE BEEN SUPERBLY
DAILY VARIETY...
THE ANDES"

"DIAMOND JIM" CALLED EPIC PICTURE

Henry Lawrence in News Telegram of Portland, Oregon Appraises Universal's Lead-off Production at Full Value.

ABOVE a cheap saloon on New York's east side one night in 1856 began the life of one of America's most colorful men, James Buchanan Brady, who rose from his humble birthplace to become the greatest spendthrift of his time.

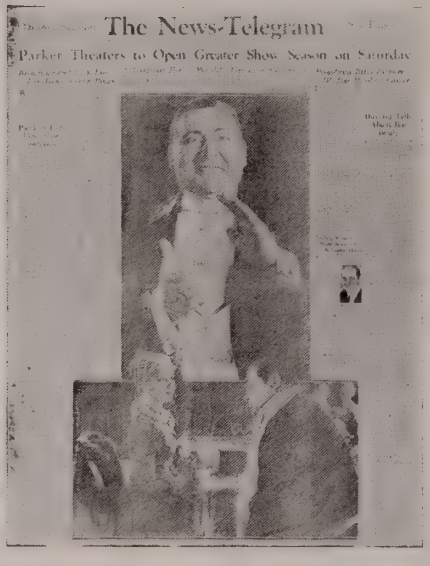
"Diamond Jim," new attraction at the Broadway theatre, shows how this unusual personality achieved this great success, how he made millions and squandered them, how he tried desparately to find marital happiness, and died a heart-broken bachelor.

Because of the film's historical value, besides its topnotch entertainment value, "Diamond Jim" must be considered as an epic picture. It is apparent that Universal was determined to make its 1936 lead-off attraction a masterpiece, and this aspiration was accomplished.

The Broadway theatre could not have chosen a more suitable film with which to open its Greater Show season and the near-record crowds which jammed the showhouse last week-end were a worthy reward for the management's selection. It is likely that attendance will increase to even greater proportions when mouth-to-mouth advertising really gets under way.

There are many elements which contribute to the success of the attraction. Foremost is Edward Arnold's superb portrayal of "Diamond Jim." This talented actor brings out every iota of the paradoxical personality of Brady—a strange combination of shrewdness and recklessness.

Although Brady was one of the smartest capitalists in the 1890s and



The News-Telegram

Parker Theaters to Open Greater Show Season on Saturday

Full page in the News Telegram of Portland, Oregon, illustrated with stills from "Diamond Jim" for the showing at the Broadway Theatre.

1900s, he had absolutely no ability to conserve his wealth. If he made a million dollars on a railroad deal, he would squander it on his friends.

Brady was a "sucker" as far as his friends and acquaintances were concerned. He knew that, and liked it! "The point is," he told some one who scolded him for giving money to strangers, "it's fun to be a 'sucker' if you can afford it—and if you know you are one."

Heavy selling full page story by Clark Rodenbach in the Chicago Daily News during the run of "Diamond Jim" at the Palace.

"Diamond Jim" was as well known in his day for his enormous appetite as for his financial wizardry. He would begin a meal with three dozen giant oysters, followed by two full-size lobsters and a dozen hard-shelled crabs. Then came meat or poultry, vegetables, salad and desserts, topped off by a box of bon bons.

The film gives an authentic insight on Brady's unhappy love affair with Jane Matthews, a girl he worshipped because of her striking resemblance to a former sweetheart. Jane played by Jean Arthur, was in love with another man, and when Brady learned the truth his life was ruined.

"Diamond Jim" also proposed marriage to Lillian Russell, played by Binnie Barnes, but the woman, realizing that they were only fine friends and not lovers, refused the offer.

The colorful events of Brady's life make an intriguing story, and Universal deserves much credit for depicting these incidents in flawless fashion.

REMEMBER LAST NIGHT?

YOU'LL NEVER FORGET IT!

See Next Weeks Universal Weekly

UNIVERSAL ANNOUNCES A STUPENDOUS PRODUCTION OF THE GREAT AMERICAN CLASSIC

"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN"

From the novel by Harriet Beecher Stowe

NOW IN PREPARATION!

3 KIDS A

Starring

May ROBSON

With Frankie Darro, Charlotte Henry, William Benedict and Henry Armetta . . . Story by Chester Beecroft and Ha Produced by Ben Verschleiser . . . Directed by Edwar
Presented by Carl Laemmle.

ING ITS PRAISES TO THE KIES — BECAUSE IT WILL ET SKY-HIGH GROSSES!

A QUEEN

AMERICA'S WN BELOVED

ly Burrud Poppe . . .
udwig . . .

Howard Winner, at the head of Universal's newsreel expedition into Ethiopa. Winner arrived at Addis Ababa on Monday of this week.

Universal Newsreel Cameraman Arrives In Ethiopia

A CABLE from Addis Ababa informs Charles E. Ford, editor of Universal Newspaper Newsreel, that his camera expedition headed by Howard Winner has arrived by plane from Aden and has already sent the first shots by way of London to the newsreel. These shots will be ready for inclusion in the Weekly which goes out on October 9th. Cameraman Winner has settled himself for a siege and has ordered gas masks, steel helmets and bullet-proof vests for his work. Universal also has cameramen with the Italian forces both in Somaliland and Eritria. Films from this expedition will come to Universal by way of Rome.

Those Amazing "Camera Thrills"

ONE of the most amazing things about one of the most amazing pictures of the year, "Camera Thrills," is the sound effects. And the most amazing part of it is that there isn't one single sound effect in it. Paradoxical as this may seem, it will only be apparent to those who see the picture for the second or third time. And most everybody will want to do that, and most everybody will do it.

"Camera Thrills" starts off in a four weeks' premiere at the Center Theatre, Rockefeller Center, New York, which is re-opening on October 2nd on a long-run policy. "Camera Thrills" was selected from all the short features available for the opening of the season by the management of this theatre. When the selections committee emerged from the projection room, one of the most frequent comments on the picture was, "The sound effects are wonderful!"

And still there is not one single sound effect in it.

To explain this strange phenomenon it is necessary to tear away the veil of mystery that surrounds moving picture production. It is no disloyalty to the producers of this picture to state that "Camera Thrills" goes back to first principles in moving picture production. These principles were created and established before sound came into the picture. It was early discovered that the most effective adjunct to a picture was music. Music is that art which affects the passions by sound. In its way it is even more arousing than vision.

"Camera Thrills" once actually did have sound effects, some taken while the picture itself was being shot, and some manufactured in the regulation manner in the studio, but when Charles Ford heard the completed musical accompaniment which Milton Schwarzwald had made for the first reel, he definitely abandoned any idea of sound effects in favor of the gorgeously interpretative score which Mr. Schwarzwald had writen. So true to the art and so unobtrusive and so arousing is this musical accompaniment that scarcely a person in any audience will realize that he hasn't heard one single sound effect in the entire two reels. "Camera Thrills" is so gripping and full of action climaxes.

Rather! See Next Week's Weekly!

Tilden Signed by Universal For "The Amateur Racquet"

UNIVERSAL has purchased from the authors of "King Solomon of Broadway," which will come to the Roxy soon, a new story dealing with tennis. Albert J. Cohn and Robert T. Shannon, who have writen several other successful movies, call their latest moving picture story, "The Amateur Racquet."

Charles Bickford Bitten By Lion In "EAST OF JAVA"

A QUICK turn of his head while working in a closeup scene with a 400 pound Nubian lion nearly cost Charles Bickford, screen star, his life Monday at Universal City studios.

Appearing in a scene for "East of Java," a jungle feature, Bickford was working with "Tarzan," a lion employed in the films for the past four weeks, when the actor suddenly twisted his head. With a growl the lion bit Bickford in the neck with teeth entering about an inch below the base of the brain. As Bickford fell forward, stunned, the lion clawed the wound adding lacerations to tooth marks.

Director George Melford and Animal Trainer Charles W. Murphy quickly pulled the lion away while assistants helped Bickford to his feet and rushed him to the Universal studio hospital where his wounds were cauterized. Dr. Paul R. Magill attending Bickford, ordered his immediate removal to Hollywood Hospital for further examination fearing that in spite of the quick cauterization of the lion bites that the jungle cat's poisonous teeth might have had worse effect than at first believed.

Bickford, rugged, athletic six footer laughed at the danger of further complications but accepted his physician's orders to remain at the hospital until pain from the wounds completely stopped. Work on "East of Java" will not be completed until after Bickford's wounds are healed.

The actor was clawed by a black leopard three weeks ago in earlier scenes from the picture which has provided constant thrills and dangers to all members of the cast and technical staff because of the dramatic nature of the story and the fact that wild animals have been employed in rain storms, shipwrecks and unusual jungle situations.

Universal Product To Warner Theatres

Last Unit of Far Flung Deal Completes Big Booking Deal.

THE closing of the big Warner Bros. circuit in Philadelphia for the 1935-36 Universal products, as announced today by J. R. Grainger, general manager of distribution for Universal, which covers all the Warner theatres in the Philadelphia district, as well as in the city, was the final link in the Warner deal which sets U product in Warner theatres from coast to coast. This contract provides major releases throughout Boston, New Haven, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Albany, Buffalo, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Fresno, Aberdeen, Portland and Chicago districts and the whole state of New Jersey.

This completes one of the most far reaching and important deals yet closed by Mr. Grainger.

\+ \+ \+

Columnist Praises Newsreel Cameraman

Bill Wright in San Diego Union Has the Following to Say of One of Universal's Crack Cameramen, Mervin Freeman.

SPEAKING OF PHOTOGRAPHERS . . .

The navy, actually if not officially, set up a new rank yesterday for Mervin ("The Bandit") Freeman, Universal Newsreel cameraman. Freeman was designated to speak for all the newsreel men aboard the Zane.

So in yesterday's navy he was Plus-Admiral Freeman. The battle line came down the coast doing 12 knots, and the Zane whooped along at 23, leaving a wake like a colicky snake at the behest of Plus-Admiral Freeman and overhauling ship after ship.

SHE NEVER ZIGGED WHEN SHE SHOULDA ZAGGED

"A little closer, please," Super-Admiral Freeman would murmur. "Mr. Freeman would like to be a little closer," would be the word over the telephone to the bridge, and the Zane would heel over and close up another 50 yards.

As close as you can across the bow of the Pennsy," Super-Admiral Freeman murmured twice, and each time the Zane slashed across in front of the monstrous parade. An admiral probably couldn't get away with that.

But when you have a super-admiral aboard, you're lucky. The rest of us just sat back and enjoyed the fruits of Super-Admiral Freeman's strategy as the Zane did everything but loop the loop.

Next Week's Universal Weekly Will Feature

YOU'LL NEVER FORGET IT!

CASH in the CHIPS
with
Edmund Lowe in

KING SOLOMON of BROADWAY
WITH DOROTHY PAGE
PINKY TOMLIN
Edward Pawley · Louise Henry
Directed by Alan Crosland
Produced by Julius Bernheim

YOU'LL KNOW WH

UNIVERSAL'S

AT CROWDS ARE ENOMENAL FIVE!

1. IRENE DUNNE and ROBERT TAYLOR in John M. Stahl's production "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" with CHARLES BUTTERWORTH and BETTY FURNESS. From the best seller by Lloyd C. Douglas. . . . (Now in production.)

2. MARGARET SULLAVAN and FRANCIS LEDERER in "NEXT TIME WE LIVE" from Ursula Parrott's newest novel! . . . Directed by Edward H. Griffith.

3. WILLIAM POWELL in "MY MAN GODFREY." A Carl Laemmle, Jr. production. From the Liberty Magazine serial by Eric Hatch.

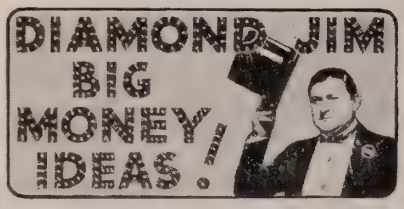
4. "SUTTER'S GOLD." From the epic novel by Blaise Cendrars. An Edmund Grainger production. Directed by James Cruze.

5. IRENE DUNNE in "SHOW BOAT." Edna Ferber's Immortal Classic! . . . Music by Jerome Kern. . . . A Carl Laemmle, Jr. production. . . . Directed by James Whale.

Current Season's HITS!

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY SHOWMANSHIP SECTION

A DIGEST OF THE BEST EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK



George W. Pittsley, Washington Theatre, Bay City, Mich. used his house curtain for a swell "DIAMOND JIM" trailer introduction. Flittered cut-out title and art work, lowered on drop was picked in darkened house by flickering colored spots immediately preceding trailer showing. Fine effect!

* * *

Harvey Cocks, Strand Theatre, Akron, dug up car of ancient vintage, which made striking "DIAMOND JIM" ballyhoo. Driver gave his spiel over radio loud speaker hook-up with mike at wheel.

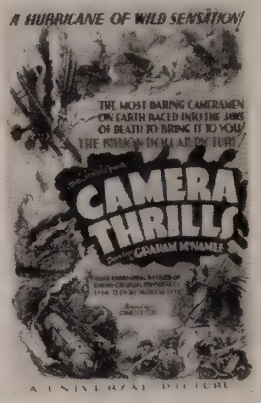
* * *

Kenneth Childs, Granada Theatre, Streator, Ill., had the whole town buzzing over strange post cards received from supposed friends stopping at a New York hotel. Urgent message warned them not to miss "DIAMOND JIM" when it came to the Granada Theatre. Only one of fine stunts in Child's bang-up campaign.

Get set to hold your breath!

WERE you ever in an accident? Did you see it coming before it happened? Did you hold your breath — set your feet — stiffen your body for the crash? Have you ever seen death zinging right at you—making your blood run cold—and your heart almost stop?

That is how you are going to feel when you see CAMERA THRILLS—a really sensational picture that tears right into the jaws of death and keeps your blood pressure jumping for hours afterward! The poster doesn't lie when it says "it is a hurricane of wild sensation," and "the most daring cameramen on earth faced death to bring it to you." We call it "the billion dollar picture" because there is a billion represented in the ravages of fire, famine, flood and destruction and death that sweeps so ferociously before your eyes.

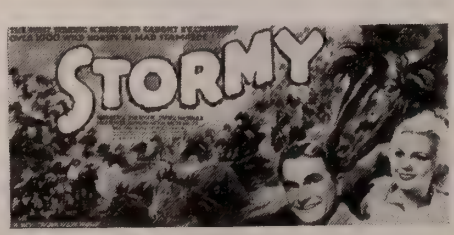


CAMERA THRILLS is one of the biggest thrill shows the screen ever has offered. You cannot overstate no matter HOW you Barnum it; and it deserves Barnuming! It deserves being played up as a feature on your marquee, in your ads and on lobby easels. It will be the talk of the town!

. . . and now breathe deeply 'cause this one's grand!

WERE you ever in the Painted Desert? Have you ever awed to the grandeur of its majestic, rock-ribbed canyons? Have you ever filled your lungs with that glorious clean Arizona air which just shoots life bubbling through your veins? I have! And you'll get that same grand and glorious feeling of the great open spaces when you see STORMY, a simply swell outdoors picture which is going to make millions of people thrill to a new movie sensation.

STORMY is great because its story is so all-powerfully human—a lad of the open country just "nuts" about a young colt that he mothers and protects at the risk of his own life. There's dandy young love interest in the story with a right pretty gal. There are those famous Arizona Wranglers singing swelegant tunes in their own inimitable way. There's a wild horse stampede with a thousand head on the rampage which out-tops anything of its kind you've ever seen. There's action all the way—and a remarkable performance by Noah Beery, Jr., that has, in a junior way, the human touch of one of those unforgettable Will Rogers characterizations. Yes, sir! STORMY is a picture you MUST SEE—one you ought to be proud to run!



JOE WEIL

McKENNA AND WALSH MAKE "DIAMOND JIM" BOAST OF BUFFALO

CHALK up another for George McKenna, Manager and Dick Walsh, Publicity Manager at Charles Hayman's New Lafayette Theatre, Buffalo on their great "Diamond Jim" showmanship. Variety, in campaign write-up, awarded it "best exploitation of the week."

And no wonder, with such a string of swell stunts! Topping them was a tie-up with local Liberty Magazine distributors. When the six hundred Liberty carriers started on their rounds the week before the picture opened, they wore badges and chest bands, and the thirty thousand magazines they were to deliver contained "Diamond Jim" heralds. The company's sixteen delivery trucks were also bannered. This swell boost continued throughout week and was climaxed Saturday morning, when the boys were gathered together, given hats and large banners, and led by band and police escort through main streets to theatre for special "Diamond Jim" showing. Photo shows them on their way, creating beaucoup excitement.

McKenna and Walsh went after all the tie-up angles and between Garcia Grande cigars, Sunkist oranges, and Lux soap, got up over a thousand cards and window pasters. Max Factor made up special counter cards and devoted two column ad space to Binnie Barnes cosmetic tie-up.

Around town they used a tandem bicycle and "Diamond Jim" rider ballyhoo. Another roving boost came in the form of front and back bumper banners, on two hundred taxicabs.

House built up special front with huge mirror diamond on figure of "Jim." Community and foreign newspapers were used extensively. Het Manheim, Universal exploiteer, assisted.

TED GAMBLES' FULL PAGE SOCKO!

Preceded by a three weeks publicity campaign, Ted Gamble topped his DIAMOND JIM premiere at the Broadway Theatre, Portland, with full page ads, one of which is pictured above. All national tie-ups were used, resulting in scores of windows. Big radio plugging over three stations rounded out the showmanship which resulted in swell hold-over business. Congrats Gamble! Fine!!

TWO BIG SHOWMANSHIP IDEAS FROM CINCY!

INSPIRED by Diamond Jim's salesmanship powers, E.V. Dinerman and Joseph Alexander, alert and fast-stepping, free-space grabbing pair of showmen at the Palace Theatre, Cincinnati conceived this Super-Salesman Contest as a great seat-seller.

The contest was co-sponsored by the Times-Star, who handled it a la Diamond Jim—big space and plenty flash. Illustrated at left are six daily inserts. The giant ads, each four columns by fourteen inches, placed on the amusement pages, gives a rough idea of the cooperation.

The idea of the contest—"To list the ten requisites, in order of importance, which the master salesman must possess and write a fifty word letter on 'What I Would Do With My First $12,000,000'" was just ripe for public attention. Thousands of answers flooded the mails.

Another fine campaign feature of the comprehensive Palace campaign, was tie-up with Post. Newspaper selected editorial commentator Alfred Segal as local "Diamond Jim" and had him designate city's three most needy families to receive $15 each. Stunt was spread out over run of picture and resulted in fine newspaper stories daily. Duke Hickey, Universal exploiteer assisted in campaign.

ANOTHER UNIVERSAL CLASSIC IN COLOR!

present

"THE FOX AND THE RABBIT"

From
UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.
ROCKEFELLER CENTER
NEW YORK CITY

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
Paid
Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

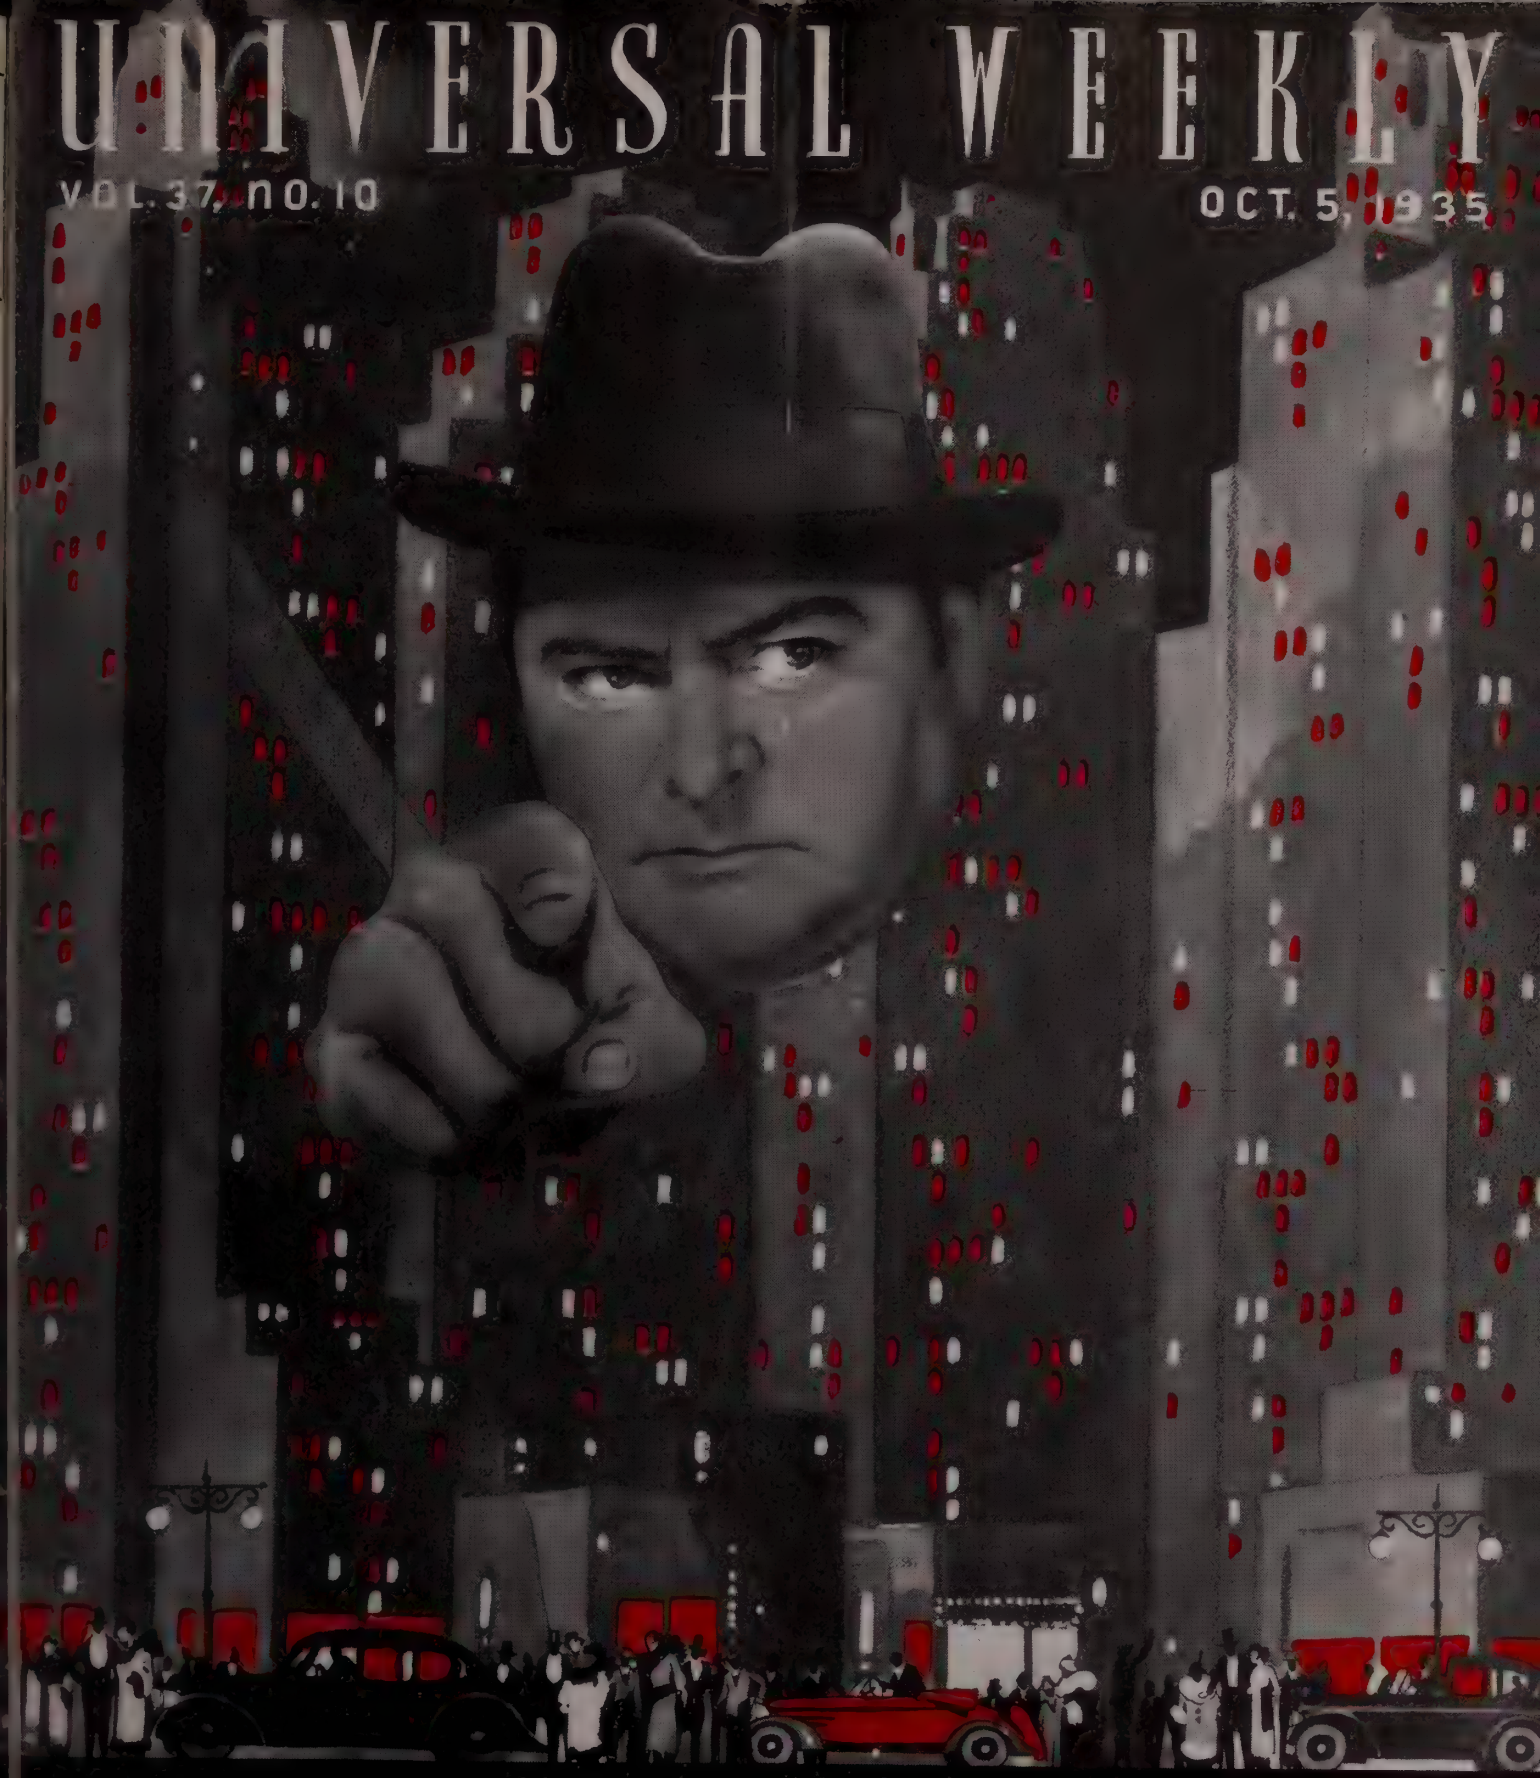
ROBERT B WENNER
22 CROSS ST
MALDEN MASS

LET IT HAPPEN!

UNIVERSAL NEWSREEL CAMERAMEN ARE READY FOR ANYTHING—ANYWHERE!

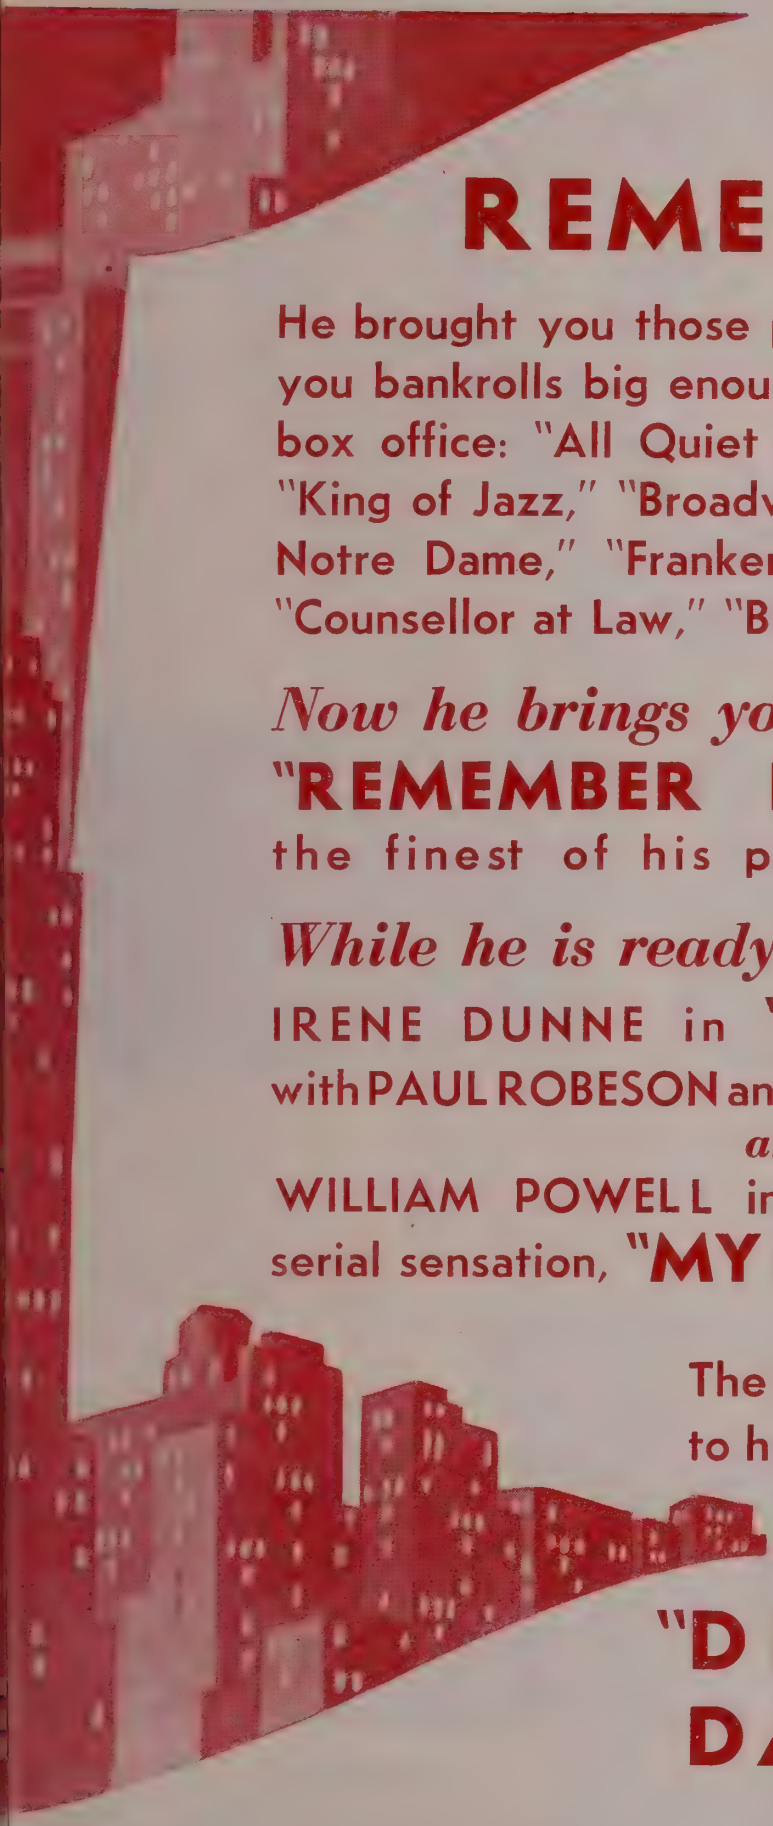
Printed in U. S. A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
VOL. 37, NO. 10 OCT. 5, 1935



"Remember Last Night?"

CARL LAEMMLE, Jr.



REMEMBER?

He brought you those productions that brought you bankrolls big enough to choke the biggest box office: "All Quiet on the Western Front," "King of Jazz," "Broadway," "Dracula," "Spirit of Notre Dame," "Frankenstein," "Invisible Man," "Counsellor at Law," "Bride of Frankenstein."

Now he brings you . . .

"REMEMBER LAST NIGHT?"

the finest of his productions to date!

While he is readying . . .

IRENE DUNNE in "SHOW BOAT"

with PAUL ROBESON and CHARLES WINNINGER

and

WILLIAM POWELL in the Liberty magazine serial sensation, "MY MAN GODFREY"

and

The phenomenal successor to his phenomenal "Dracula,"

"DRACULA'S DAUGHTER"!

A WHALE OF A STORY DEMANDS A WHALE OF A DIRECTOR!...

meet JAMES WHA

DIRECTOR OF

REMEMBER

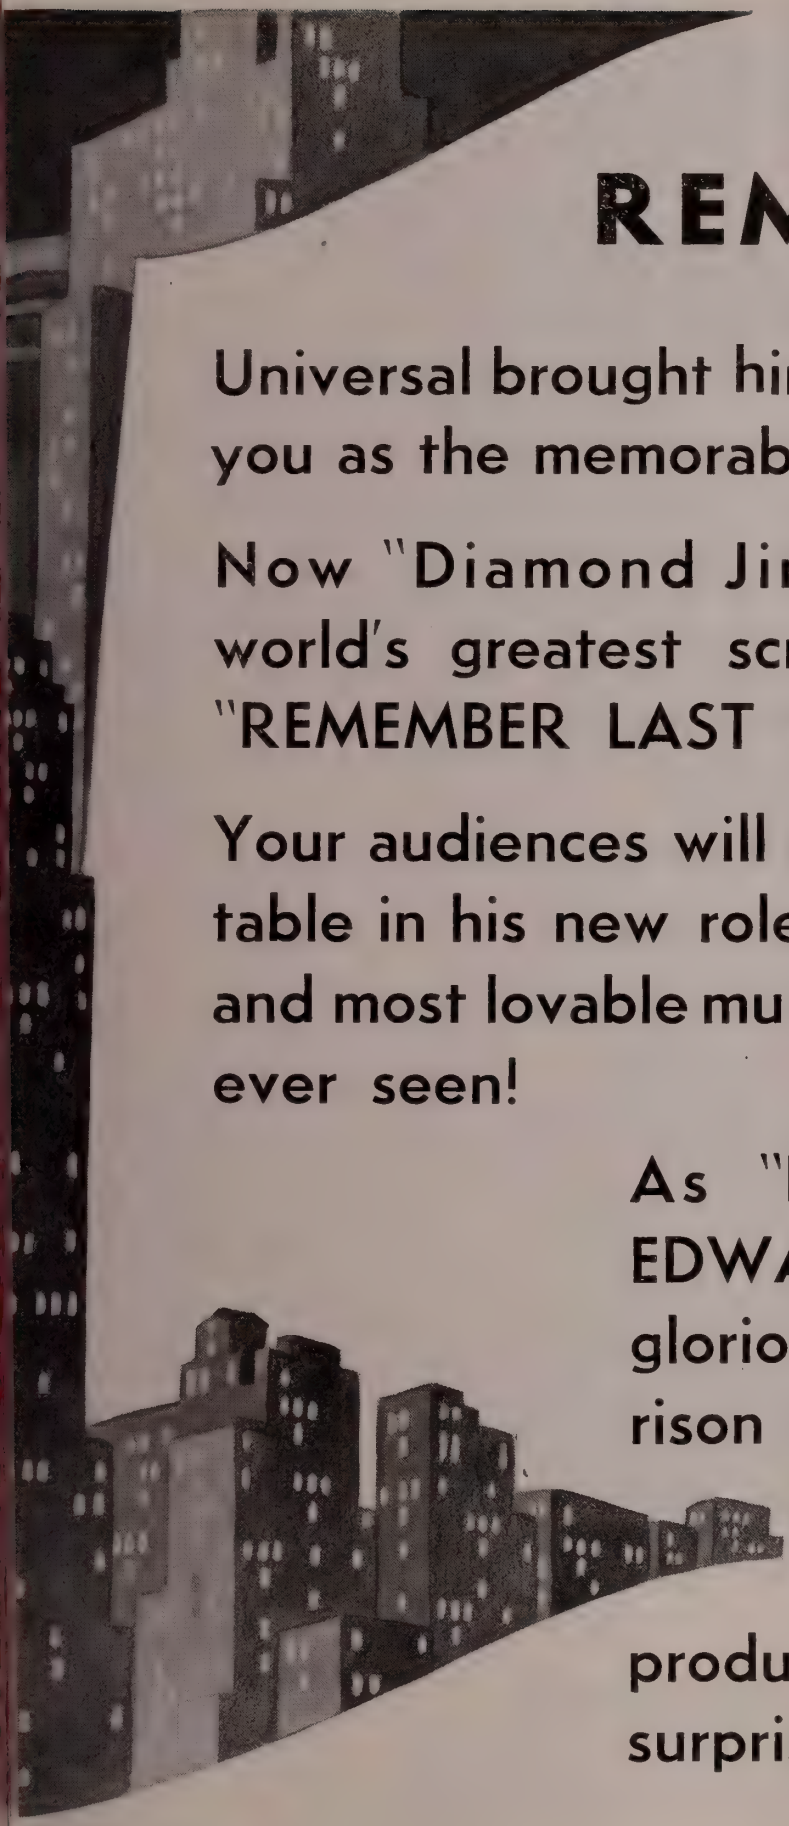
Remember James Whale's direction of "Journey's End?" "Water
"The Old Dark House?" "The Invisible Man?" "One More River?
You'll never, never forget "REMEMBER LAST NIGHT?" A CARL I

LE

LAST NIGHT?

Bridge?" "Frankenstein?"
he Bride of Frankenstein?"
AMLE, JR'S PRODUCTION

EDWARD ARNOLD



REMEMBER?

Universal brought him into stardom for you as the memorable "Diamond Jim"!

Now "Diamond Jim" becomes the world's greatest screen detective in "REMEMBER LAST NIGHT?"

Your audiences will find him unforgettable in his new role of the cleverest and most lovable murder sleuth they've ever seen!

As "Diamond Jim," EDWARD ARNOLD was glorious! As Danny Harrison in this magnificent production of a thousand surprises, he's AMAZING!

CONSTANCE CUMMINGS,
leading actress of the stage and screen, in the unusual role of Carlotta, wife of Tony Milburn!

SALLY EILERS,

talented and lovely, as Bette Huling, at whose home and "progressive" party amazing things happen!

ROBERT YOUNG

portrays Tony Milburn, ex-racing driver and handsome young husband of Carlotta.

Top Row: ROBERT ARMSTRONG as Flannagan, the chauffeur, and charming LOUISE HENRY as the flirtatious Penny Whitridge.

Bottom Row: GREGORY RATOFF as the nightclub proprietor, and REGINALD DENNY as Penny's husband!

Top Row: Ed Brophy as Maxie; Monroe Owsley as Billy Arnold; Gustav von Seyffertitz as Professor Jones.

At the Bottom: Jack LaRue as Baptiste; George Meeker a Vic Huling; Arthur Treacher as the inimitable butler, Phelps

J. R. Grainger Starts Sales & Studio Trip

J. R. GRAINGER, general manager of distribution for Universal Pictures, started on Monday on a trip which will take him to Universal City for a conference on production matters and will bring him back to New York in about a month's time. His route lies through Chicago and includes stops at San Francisco, and Los Angeles. He will return by way of the southern exchanges, hitting New Orleans about October 25th.

On leaving, Mr. Grainger declared that the advanced state of Universal sales as compared with last year, was indicative of two things,—first, the greater salability of Universal's product this season, and secondly, a readier response for early buying on the part of exhibitors in almost every exchange territory.

"Great Impersonation" Starts at Universal

THE GREAT IMPERSONATION" with Edmund Lowe in the starring role now in second week of production at Universal City under the direction of Alan Crosland, bids fair to be one of Universal's greatest productions for the year. In the first place, "The Great Impersonation" has always been regarded by E. Phillips Oppenheim, who has written over 100 novels, as the best novel he ever wrote. Secondly, Edmund Lowe feels that the dual role of Everard Dominey and Leopold von Ragenstein, offers him the greatest opportunity he has ever had.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, N. Y. City
Universal Pictures Corp.
Copyrighted 1935
(All Rights Reserved)
OCT. 5, 1935
Vol. 37 No. 10

James Whale, seated at his desk in the studio he occupies at Universal City. Whale has always been regarded as a remarkable director, from the time he made "Journey's End." Every picture that he has made since then, starting with "Waterloo Bridge," has been not only a success, but a further rung in the ladder by which he has climbed to the very top. No one mentioning the five best directors of Hollywood could leave out the name of James Whale. All Hollywood is talking about his direction of "Remember Last Night?" the Carl Laemmle, Jr. production which he has just completed.

"Sweet Surrender" Released By Universal, November 11th

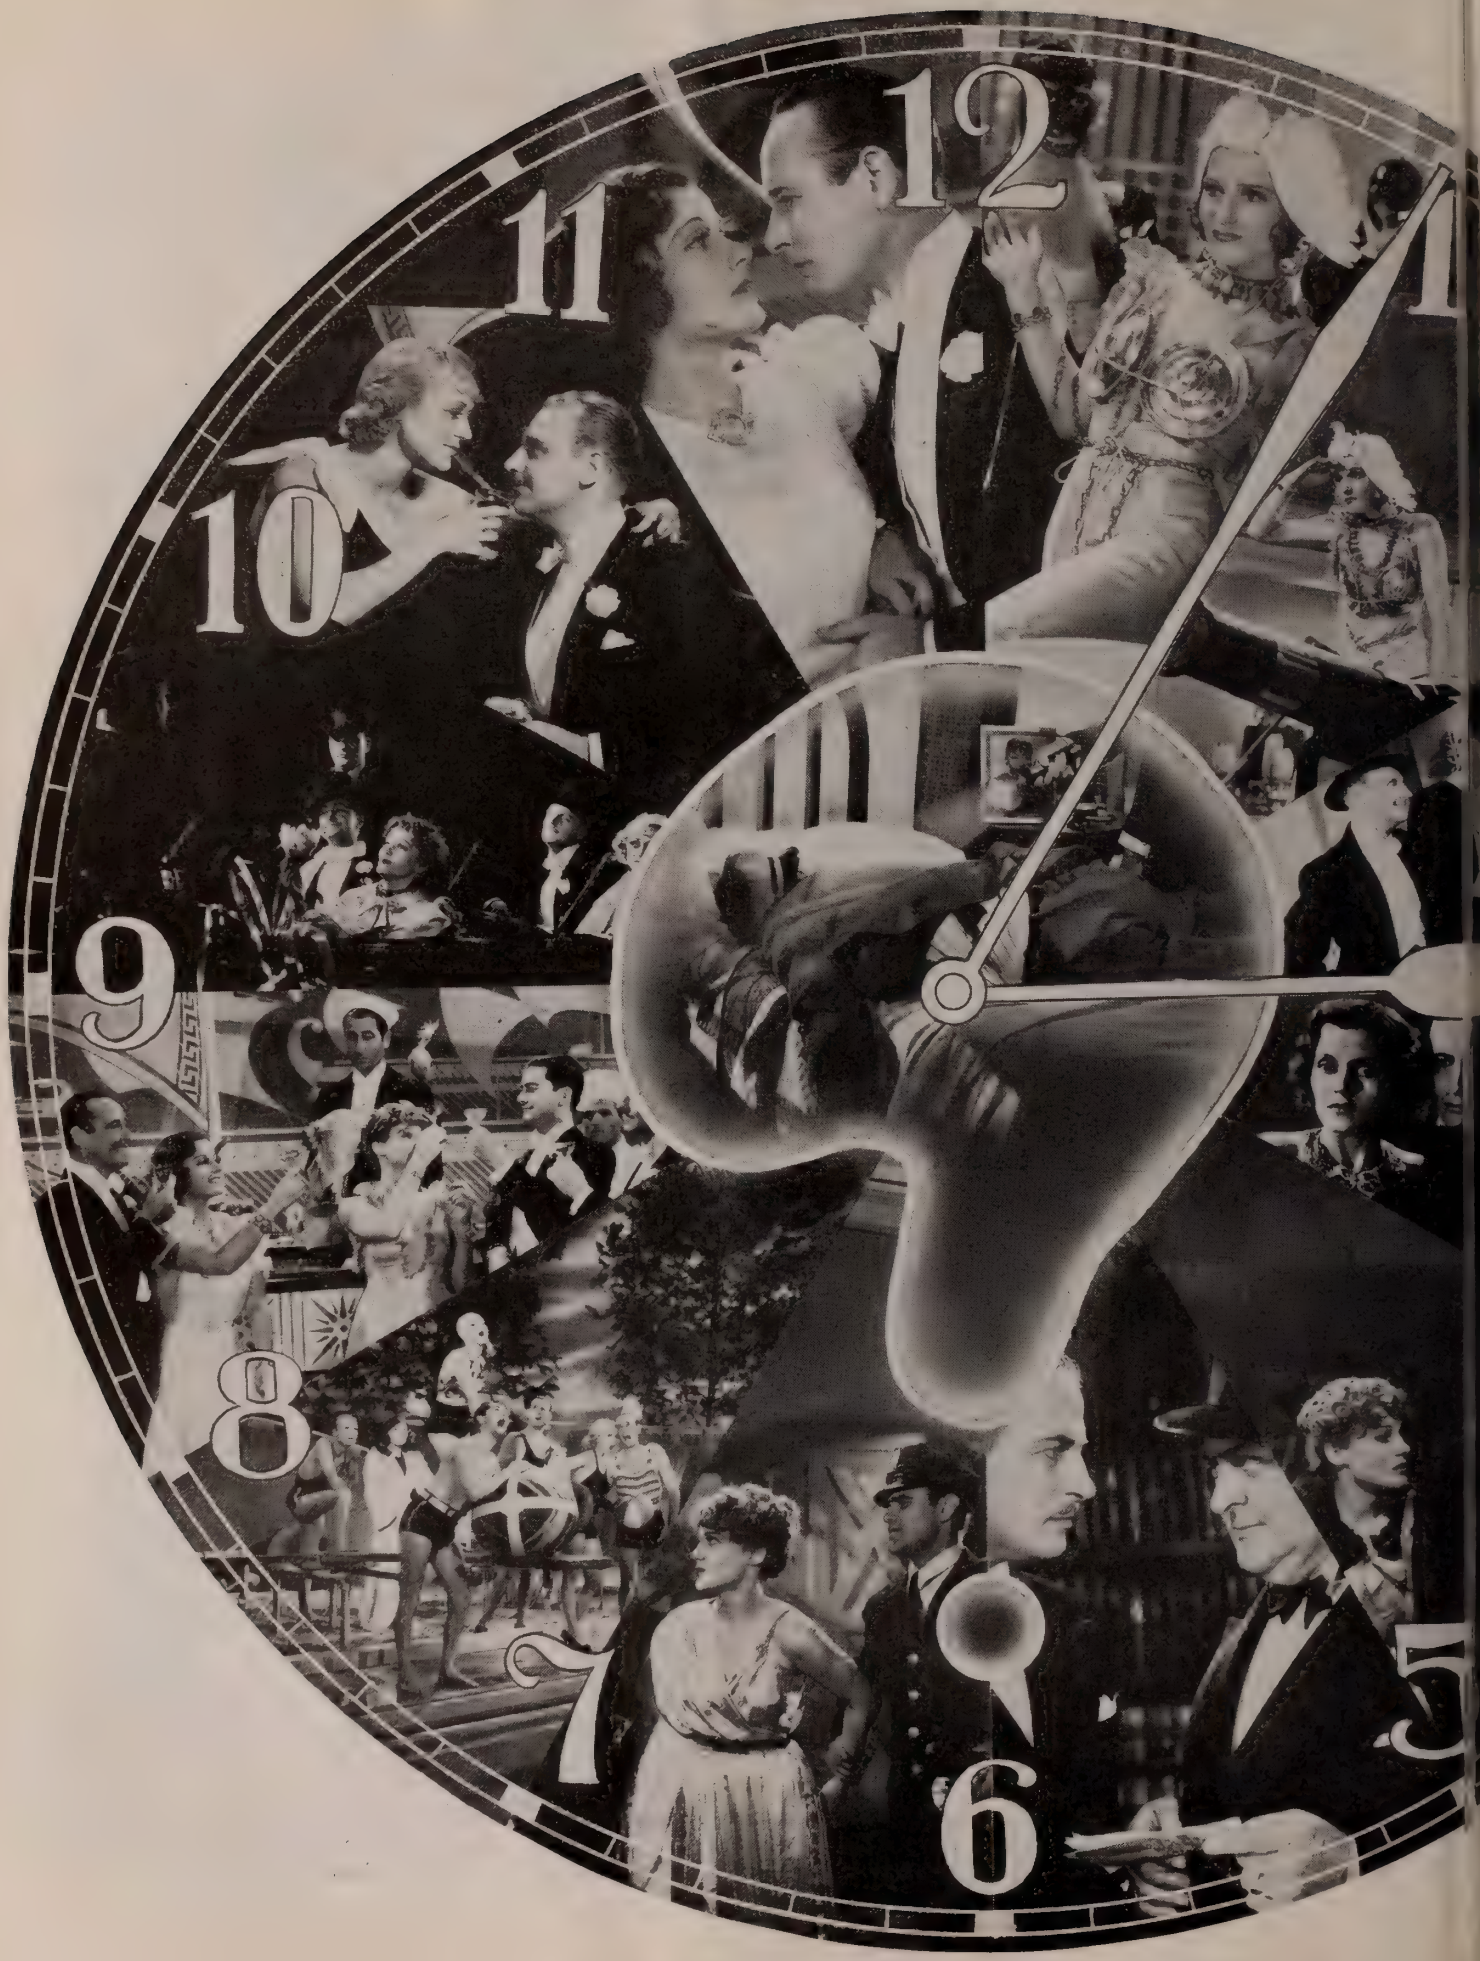
JUST before leaving New York for the coast, J. R. Grainger announced the release by Universal of the musical Broadway Production, "Sweet Surrender." The release date is November 11th.

"Sweet Surrender" marks the debut in pictures of Tamara, the Russian actress and singer who made world famous the song, "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes," when she made such a great hit in "Roberta." Tamara plays three roles in "Sweet Surrender," which is written by Herbert Fields, author of "Hit the Deck," "Connecticut Yankees," "The Girl Friend" and "Fifty Million Frenchmen." It was directed by Monte Brice, who directed "Moonlight and Pretzels." Featured in the leading role is Frank Parker, ace radio tenor and star for the last five years of the A & P Gypsies.

The cast also includes Helen Lynd, well known Broadway comedienne and dancer, Russ Brown, the former partner of Bert Wheeler| Arthur Pierson, Broadway actor, Jack Dempsey, Abe Lyman and his Californians. One of the features of the production is the appearance of the Sara Mildred Strauss Dancers. The choruses are sung by the Nadon Singers, the Tune Twisters are also in several of the numbers. The music is by Dana Suesse, Mabel Wayne and Arthur Swanstrom, the lyrics by Edward H. Heyman, Melville Fleeson and James Hanley. Larry Ceballos directed the dances, the music was directed by Rosario Bourdon.

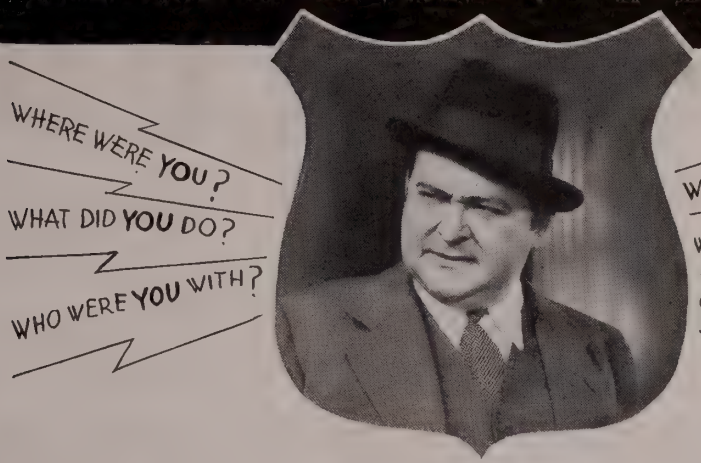
Irene Dunne On Hollywood Hour

IRENE DUNNE will be the featured guest artist on the Hollywood Campbell Soup Hour over the Columbia-coast-to-coast network on Friday, October 11th, at 9 P.M. Louella Parsons will interview Irene Dunne and Miss Dunne is preparing a short scene from "Magnificent Obsession" in which she is working at the present time at Universal City, under the direction of John M. Stahl.



12
11
1
10
9
8
7
6
5

REMEMBER LAST NIGHT?



"REMEMBER LAST NIGHT?" Where were you?

Wouldn't that be a tough proposition if you had been tight the night before and were suddenly hauled up and accused of murdering a member of the gay party which had continued around the clock?

Twelve hours, and what happened?

"Remember Last Night?"

Well, here's some of it.

Merriment for supper.

Murder for breakfast.

And in between, twelve hours of gaiety which masked a diabolical plot with guns popping, knives flashing through the air, with dancing and stolen kisses, masquerades and murder, kidnap threats written in Greek, false clues written in blood, bouncing checks and planted footprints, wine in tall glasses and blood on the moon, wise-cracking socialites and laughter turned to screams of horror, high finance and horrid hang-overs, a hazardous hypnotist, a gay progressive party that managed to progress from mirth to murder.

And three murders and thirteen alibis like this:—

"I DON'T REMEMBER LAST NIGHT?"

A group of socially prominent young people—the faster set on Long Island—wake up after staging a gay party to find that a murder has been committed. Chief among the players is Edward Arnold, who has scored so heavily in "Diamond Jim," while also in the star-studded cast are Constance Cummings, Sally Eilers, Robert Young, Robert Armstrong, Gregory Ratoff, Reginald Denny, Monroe Owsley and a number of other stage and screen favorites.

The story opens with Constance Cummings, as Carlotta Milburn, and Robert Young, as her husband, Tony, awaking in a vast Long Island mansion to find that during a party given the night before to celebrate the fact that they've been married six months— one of those progressive parties which goes from house to house—George Meeker, playing the role of the wealthy Vic Huling, has been shot in the heart.

They begin making their own investigation into the killing and discover that there are grounds for suspecting everyone, including themselves. First an ace detective, played by Edward Arnold, and his assistant, Edward Brophy, are called in. They are making some headway when a hypnotist is summoned. But then new murders are committed and clues are lost and facts distorted. It is only through the clear deductions and herculean efforts of Arnold that the killer is apprehended under unusual circumstances.

Universal has not only secured a splendid cast for the production, but Carl Laemmle, Jr., has spared nothing in making the sets pretentious. He also secured James Whale, the man who did "Frankenstein," "Waterloo Bridge," "Bride of Frankenstein" and "The Invisible Man," to direct so that the story would not only have its full quota of humor but would be eerie and chilling as well, at times. (Continued on Page 28)

A MILLION
A MILLION

No. 832 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Picture Corporation

Thank you, Carl Laemmle, Jr., for your conception of the picture "Remember Last Night?", made from a best-selling book formerly known as "Hangover Murders."

And thank you, James Whale, for one of the most brilliant jobs of directing you ever did — and what a wonderful list you have to your credit!

Thank you, Adam Hobhouse, for writing such a clever novel — even though you soaked us the extreme limit for the movie rights!

Thank you, too, Doris Malloy and Henry Clork and Dan Totheroh for adapting the original story to the screen and untying some of the knots we bought from the author.

Thank you, Charles Hall, for the original settings you gave this production.

Thank you, Joseph Valentine and Arthur Arling, for jockeying so smartly with your cameras and giving us such delightful effects.

Thank you, Roman Freulich, for giving us still photographs which will help the exhibitors portray the fine qualities of this production to the public.

And thank you, Ted Kent, for the brainy way in which you edited the miles of film which were "shot."

THANKS FOR DOLLAR HIT!

William Hedgecock, I thank you on behalf of the whole picture industry because of the expert manner in which you mixed the sound for "Remember Last Night?", and Gilbert Kurland for the sound supervision.

And, Scott Beal, I thank you for your tireless efforts as assistant director. In the same way I thank you, Harry Mancke, because you, too, did a great job as assistant director.

Greetings and thanks to you, Helen McCaffrey, for the exactitude with which you checked up as script clerk.

As for the cast — well, a million thanks to Edward Arnold, Constance Cummings, Sally Eilers, Robert Young, Robert Armstrong, Monroe Owsley, Arthur Treacher, Jack LaRue, Reginald Denny, Louise Henry, Ed Brophy, Rafaela Ottiano, Gregory Ratoff and Gustav Seyffertitz.

Whew! They say it takes nine tailors to make a man. It takes more than that to make a grand picture.

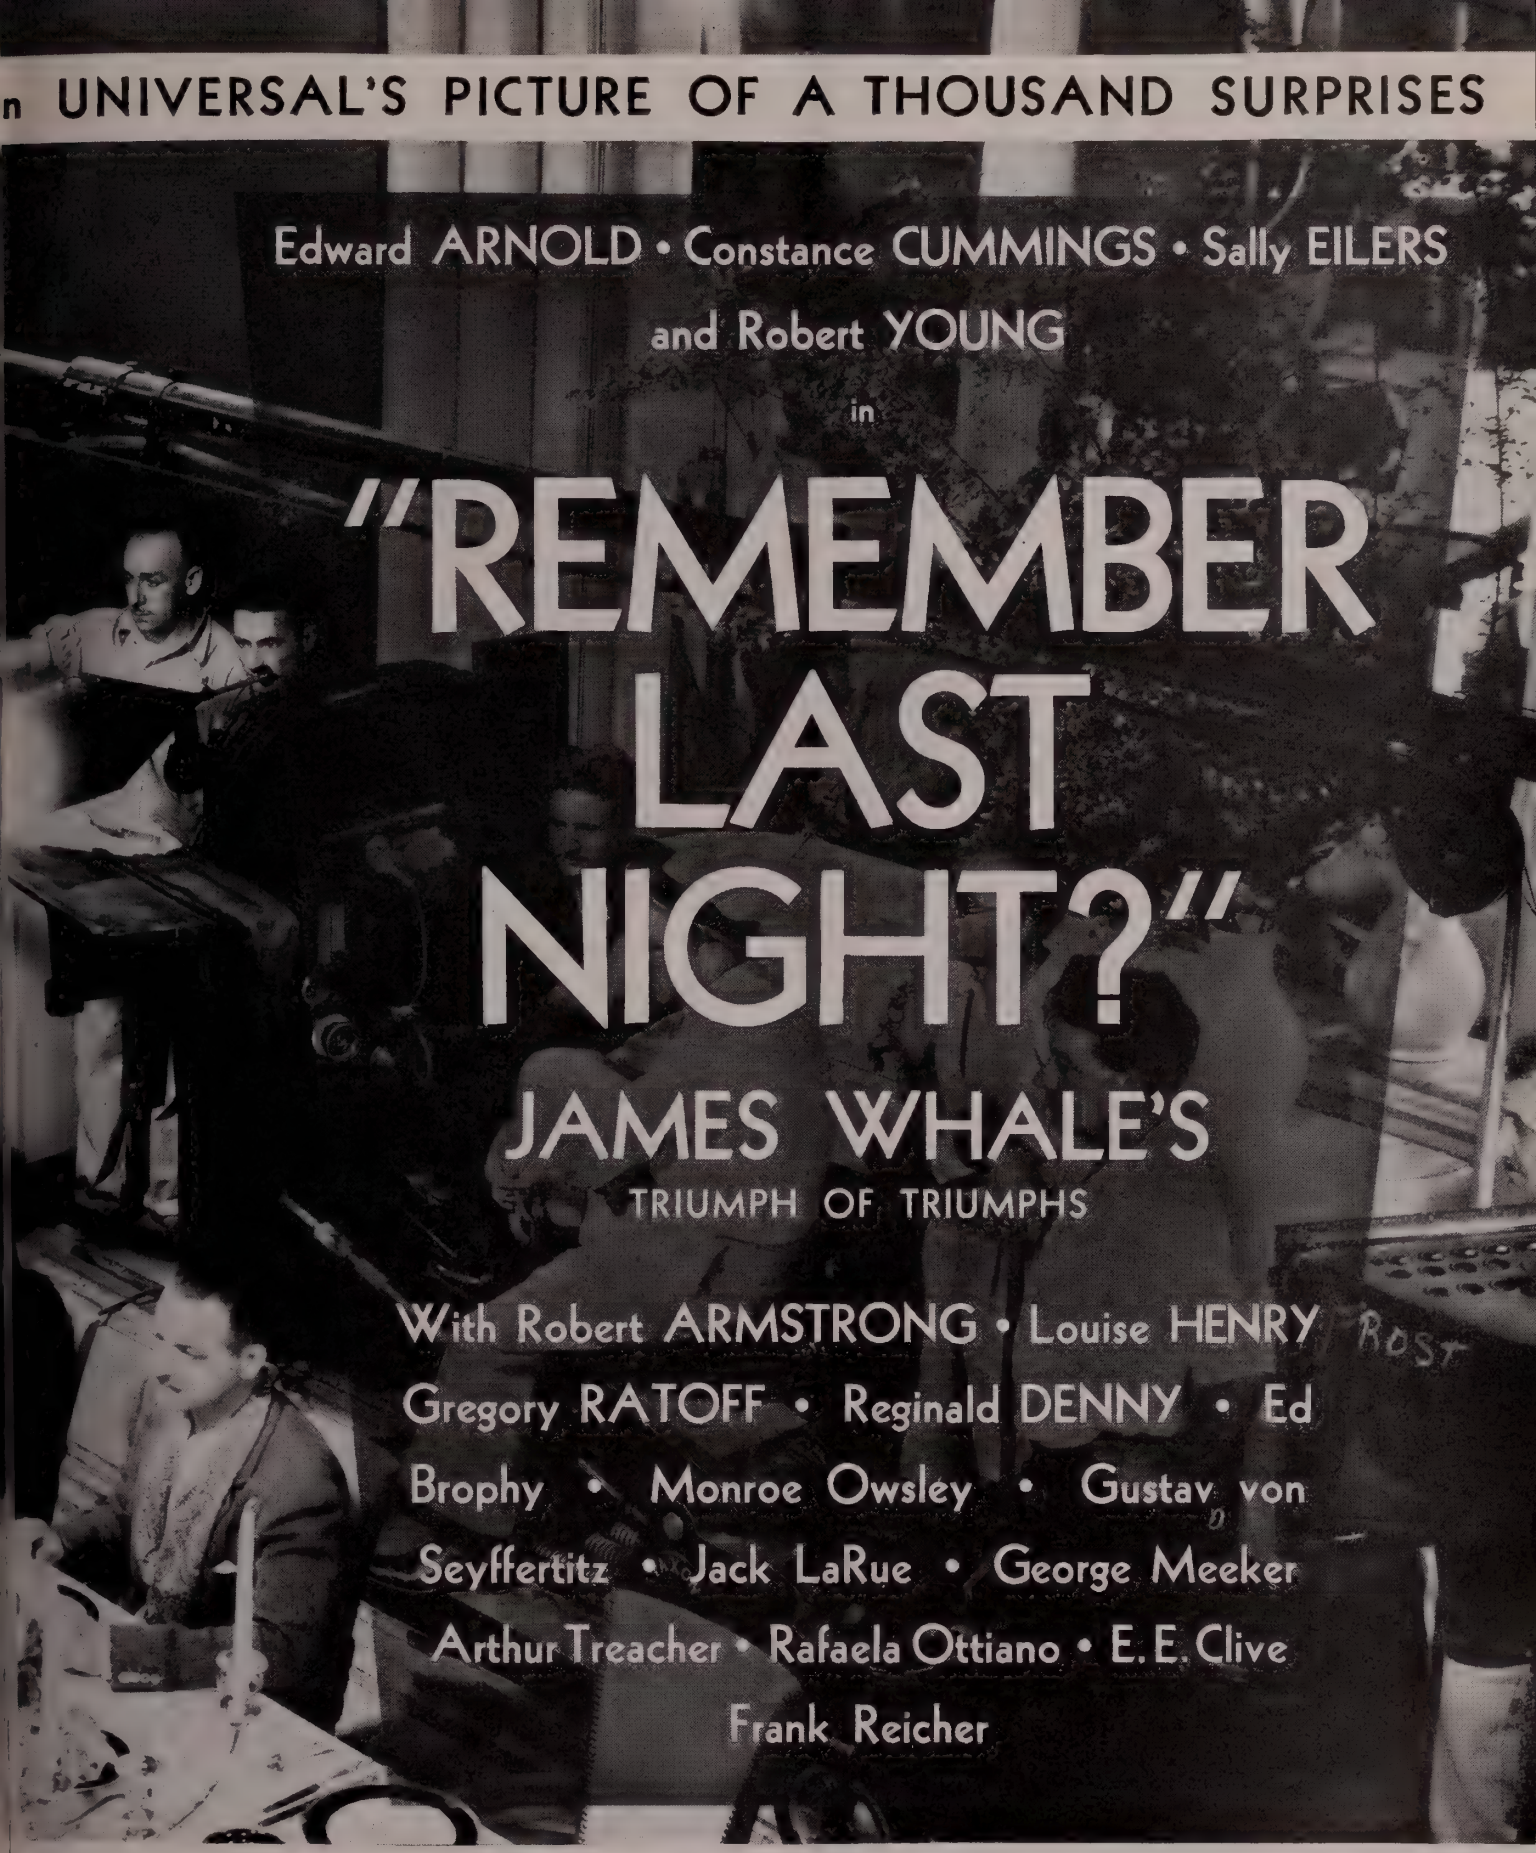
You have all contributed your expertness so thoroughly that you have done a glorious job. And, lest you misunderstand me, I say again — a million thanks.

Carl Laemmle

CARL LAEMMLE presents A MILLION-DOLLAR CAST

CARL LAEMMLE, JR.'S FINEST PRODUCTION. From the r

n UNIVERSAL'S PICTURE OF A THOUSAND SURPRISES



Edward ARNOLD • Constance CUMMINGS • Sally EILERS and Robert YOUNG

in

"REMEMBER LAST NIGHT?"

JAMES WHALE'S

TRIUMPH OF TRIUMPHS

With Robert ARMSTRONG • Louise HENRY

Gregory RATOFF • Reginald DENNY • Ed Brophy • Monroe Owsley • Gustav von Seyffertitz • Jack LaRue • George Meeker

Arthur Treacher • Rafaela Ottiano • E. E. Clive

Frank Reicher

el by Adam Hobhouse—the story that's making millions talk!

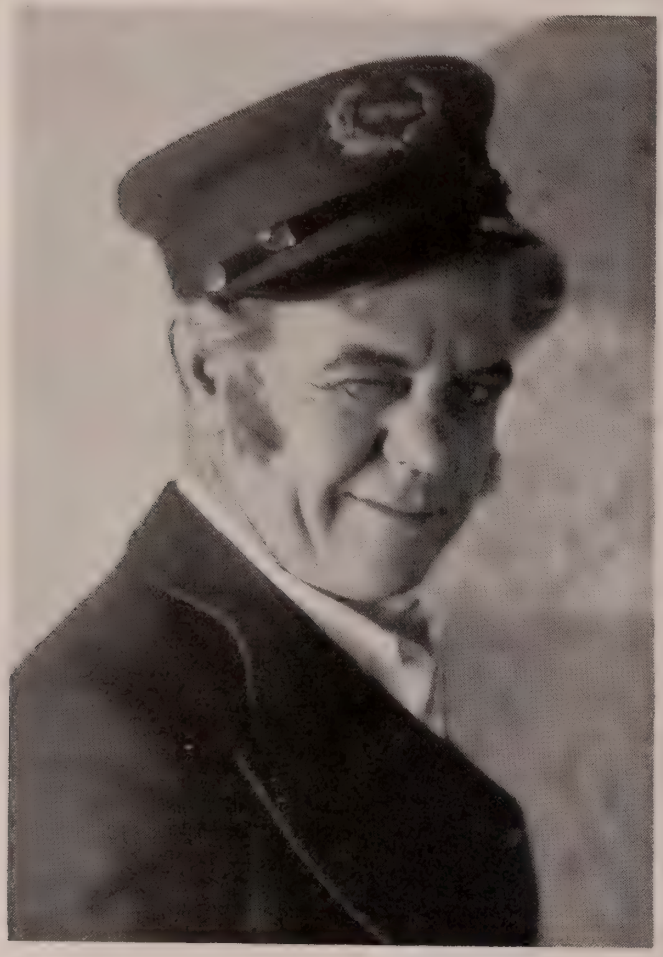
ROBERT YOUNG · ROBERT
GREGORY RATOFF · REGINALD
OWSLEY · GUSTAV
GEORGE MEEKER
EDWARD ARNOLD · CONSTAN
ARTHUR
A MILLION
TRIUMPH
"REMEMBER

DOLLARS

WORTH OF STARS IN UNIVERSAL'S OF A THOUSAND SURPRISES!

LAST NIGHT?"

CHARLES WINNINGER in "SHOW BOAT"



Charles Winninger selected by Carl Laemmle, Jr., as the one and only Captain Andy for the role in Universal's "Show Boat," which he created in the Ziegfeld stage show. This photograph is one showing him as Captain Andy. Governor Ruby Laffoon of Kentucky has just made Winninger a Kentucky Colonel. Today he is in Chicago seeing the world series.

ONE of the absolute naturals about the casting of "Show Boat" was Charles Winninger in the role of Captain Andy. Winninger is the son of an oldtime "Show Boat" captain, was brought up on a show boat and played the original role in the Ziegfeld show. On Monday Carl Laemmle, Jr. by long distance telephone to New York consummated an arrangement with Mr. Winninger for this important role. Winninger left New York Tuesday in his Packard and will drive leisurely to the coast. First he will take in the world series of baseball. Then he will visit some of his relatives and will fill several theatrical and radio engagements. He will arrive at the Coast on November 15.

The signing of Charles Winninger is the third important casting for "Show Boat." Carl Laemmle, Jr., already has Irene Dunne under contract to play Magnolia. Miss Dunne played the role in the original Ziegfeld musical comedy, succeeding Norma Terris and going on to Chicago, where she played the role for forty weeks.

The other selection is that of Paul Robeson, who arrived Tuesday from London and who has several radio engagements to fill. One of them was the Squibbs program Thursday night. He will report to Universal in November. Robeson was also engaged by long distance telephone by Carl Laemmle, Jr.

James Whale, who has just completed directing the Carl Laemmle, Jr. production of "Remember Last Night?" is working with Oscar Hammerstein 3rd and Jerome Kern on new music and lyrics to accent the famous numbers of the stage show. No matter what new music, however, is written, "Show Boat" will of necessity include "Ol' Man River," "Why Do I Love You?" "Can't Help Lovin' Dat Man," "Bill," and "Make Believe."

✚ ✚ ✚

Liszt and Strauss Songs Adapted for Marta Eggerth

ALTHOUGH Marta Eggerth's first picture, "Song of Joy," will have four songs especially composed for it, it became known yesterday that two of the world's most famous compositions will be embodied in it. Franz Waxman is writing the lyrics and a coloratura soprano arrangement of Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsody Number 2." He is also making an arrangement of Johann Strauss' "Blue Danube" for Miss Eggerth to use in "Song of Joy," in addition to the four new songs.

Although Edward Sutherland, who will direct Miss Eggerth's first picture, has arrived back in California, he has not as yet selected the cast. The story is now in the hands of Preston Sturges, author of "Strictly Dishonorable" and the screenplay of "Diamond Jim."

✚ ✚ ✚

Rushing "Ivory Handled Gun"

BUCK JONES is putting on an intensive drive to complete his current western picture for Universal release so that he can join his wife and daughter on a world girdling trip. Mrs. "Buck" and her daughter are already in Honolulu on the first leg of the journey. In consequence, Buck is working night and day to complete "The Ivory Handled Gun," from the novel by Charles E. Barnes. The photography on this production will be finished by Saturday night.

The cast of "The Ivory Handled Gun" includes Charlotte Wynters as leading lady and a corps of western performers, including Walter Miller, Carl Stockdale, Frank Rice, Joseph Girard, Robert Kortman, Stan Blystone, Lafe McKee, Lee Shumway, Charles King, Ben Corbett, Eddie Phillips and Niles Welch.

On Monday, Buck will start production of "Sunset of Power" by J. E. Grenstead, for which Earl Snell has written the screenplay. Ray Taylor, who directed "The Ivory Handled Gun," will also direct "Sunset of Power." Upon completion of it, Jones will fly to Honolulu on the Yankee Clipper.

Charles Bickford Has Narrow Escape in Film

Charles Bickford lying in the hospital in Los Angeles, from which he was taken this week to the studio in an ambulance and under mdical care, to complete his scenes in "East of Java." Fortunately, the presence of bandages could be written into the script. After the scenes Bickford went back to the hospital. He will be confined there two more weeks.

Unusual shot taken a second after the supposedly "friendly" lion, Tarzan, had attacked Bickford on the set. The motion picture camera had started when an unusual movement on Bickford's part resulted in the sudden attack which came within a inch of proving fatal. Lions instinctively know where to bite and Tarzan went straight for the nape of Bickford's neck. The bite kept him out of another picture.

Injured Bickford Completes "East of Java"

ALTHOUGH Charles Bickford is still under the closest observation and not out of danger by any means, he has completed his role in "East of Java." He did it in bandages and with a physician and a nurse constantly at his side. Bickford is proud of his he-man physique and courage and would under no circumstances permit "East of Java" to be delayed on his account, even though Universal was anxious to put the scenes over for two weeks.

Last week Bickford was severely injured by Tarzan, the lion born in captivity on the Universal lot, and loaned to a Los Angeles museum when Universal gave up its zoo. For the picture, "East of Java," which has more than one hundred assorted wild animals in it, Universal took back its lion, who was supposedly as much attached as a lion can be, to Bickford It even followed him about the set and about the lot on occasion. This time, however, some primal instinct in the animal's brain made him jump from behind on Bickford, when the actor made an unusual and quick motion which had not been rehearsed. Bickford went to the Universal City Hospital and after treatment there was transforred to the hospital in Los Angeles.

Jack Holt Loaned by Universal to 20th Century to Take the Place of the Injured Bickford

The next night Tarzan unaccountably disappeared from his cage. He must have been full of remorse, because he was found the next morning under a reproduction of a New England church in the permanent New England set on the Universal City back lot.

This week, however, Bickford insisted on completing his role in "East of Java." The picture was being rushed by George Melford in order to permit Bickford to take the role for which he was under contract to 20th Century in "The Littlest Rebel." This picture would inevitably have been seriously held up. Universal therefore made arrangements to loan Jack Holt to take Bickford's place. In the meantime, Holt's own picture, "Captain Commanding," will be held up at Universal until October 28th or possibly a week later.

$50 Reward For Good Ideas

Whether you're an exhibitor or a projectionist—you can earn $50.00 with every good idea for the improvement of Universal pictures which I accept. You see pictures every day and you know what audiences think. Why not send in your suggestion.

CARL LAEMMLE

IT STARTS with a SPREE
REMEMBER

LAST NIGHT?

and what happe after that WILL KNOCK
YOU FOR A • • • LOOP

REMEMBER

ns
LAST NIGHT?

The Roll of Honor

The Following Exhibitors in the St. Louis Territory have used Universal Pictures for 10 years or more

TOWN & STATE	THEATRE	EXHIBITOR	YEARS USED UNIVERSAL
Abingdon, Ills.	Bijou	S. E. Pirtle	20 Years
Beardstown, Ills.	Princess	S. E. Pirtle	20 Years
Bushnell, Ills.	Rialto	S. E. Pirtle	20 Years
Jerseyville, Ills.	Orpheum	S. E. Pirtle	20 Years
McLeansboro, Ills.	Capitol	S. E. Pirtle	20 Years
Albion, Ills.	Majestic	Mitchell & Bowman	10 Years
Alton, Ills.	Temple	Al Critchlow	11 Years
Bardwell, Ky.	Milwain	J. A. Milwain	15 Years
Belleville, Ills.	Rex	Noah Bloomer	15 Years
Casey, Ills.	Lyric	Paul Musser	10 Years
Columbia, Mo.	Missouri, Hall, Varsity	Barrett & Woods	24 Years
Dexter, Mo.	Weeks	C. H. Weeks	25 Years
E. Prairie, Mo.	Lyric	T. R. DeField	15 Years
E. St. Louis, Ills.	Columbia, State	Lou Menges	15 Years
E. St. Louis, Ills.	Home	W. B. Davis	21 Years
E. St. Louis, Ills.	Liberty	Oscar Dane	10 Years
E. St. Louis, Ills.	St. Clair	Fred Ditzenberg	20 Years
E. St. Louis, Ills.	L. Broadway	Geo. Daniels	14 Years
Hannibal, Mo.	Orpheum, Star	H. E. Schneidker	27 Years
Herman, Mo.	Huxall	R. L. Huxall	25 Years
Marion, Ky.	Kentucky	Gray & Runyon	10 Years
Mounds, Ills.	Roxy	Herschel Eichhorn	10 Years
Mt. Carmel, Ills.	Palace, American	Theo. Coleman	10 Years
New Haven, Mo.	New Haven	Ben Zeitzman	5 Years
O'Fallon, Ills.	Opera House	L. T. Hiles	10 Years
Richland, Mo.	Gem	R. L. Parsons	12 Years
Robinson, Ills.	Lincoln, Strand	J. C. Hewitt	27 Years
Roodhouse, Ills.	State	Clarence Denny	10 Years
St. Charles, Mo.	Strand	R. Stempel	20 Years
St. Johns Station, Mo.	Gem	H. Halloway	10 Years
St. Louis, Mo.	Hollywood, Rivoli, Senate	Chas. Goldman	16 Years
St. Louis, Mo.	Movie	Tom Williamson	10 Years
St. Louis, Mo.	Star	Chris. Efthian	18 Years
St. Louis, Mo.	Criterion	Geo. Plaikos	24 Years
St. Louis, Mo.	Marquette	Frank Spero	20 Years

(Continued on Page 28)

READY! AIM! FIRE!

Fire your booker or assistant manager if he doesn't get this newest OSWALD cartoon right away! It means a great, big chunk of extra business for you!

"THE QUAIL HUNT"

REMEMBER LAST NIGHT?

(Continued from Page 13)

Mr. Laemmle selected the novel, "The Hangover Murders," a best-seller by Adam Hobhouse, as a basis for the screenplay, which was written by Harry Clork, Doris Malloy and Dan Totheroh and later at the suggestion of almost a thousand showmen throughout he country, who were asked, it was called "Remember Last Night?" It is a great title. One of the reasons is that it is impossible for anyone seeing it to forget it.

WATCH!

For the Year's Greatest Surprise

"3 Kids and A Queen"

May Robson The Lady For A Day, Becomes A Queen in the Surprise Picture of the New Season

Roll of Honor—St. Louis

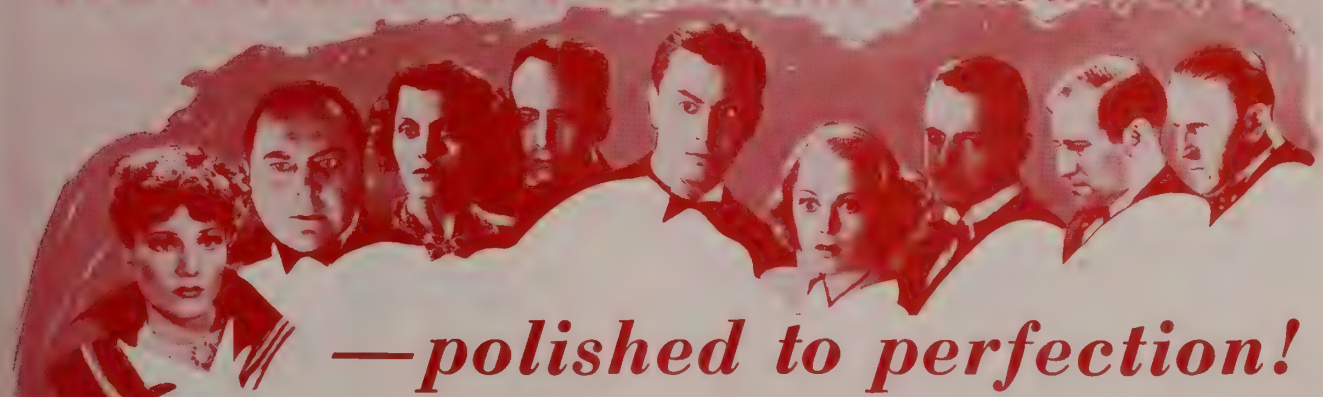
(Continued from Page 26)

TOWN & STATE	THEATRE	EXHIBITOR	YEARS USED UNIVERSAL
St. Louis, Mo.	Montgomery	Henry Koplar	25 Years
St. Louis, Mo.	Bremen, O'Fallon	Clarence Kaimann	26 Years
St. Louis, Mo.	Salisbury, Baden	Clarence Kaimann	26 Years
St. Louis, Mo.	Ashland, Queens	Tom Curley	12 Years
St. Louis, Mo.	Pauline	Chas. Kalbfeld	25 Years
St. Louis, Mo.	Wellston	Fred Robinson	18 Years
St. Louis, Mo.	Macklind	B. J. Lueken	21 Years
St. Louis, Mo.	Whiteway	Alex Papand	20 Years
St. Louis, Mo.	Merry Widow	J. Murphy	18 Years
St. Louis, Mo.	Cinderella, Melba	Fred Wehrenberg	26 Years
St. Louis, Mo.	Michigan, Virginia	Fred Wehrenberg	26 Years
St. Louis, Mo.	Melvin	Christ Zotos	12 Years
Sparta, Ills.	Grand	Chas. Wells	10 Years
Springfield, Ills.	Capitol, Empress	Leo Burnstine	15 Years
Springfield, Ills.	Pantheon	Tony Serra	10 Years
Springfield, Ills.	Savoy, Senate, Strand	Kerasotes Bros.	20 Years
Valley Park, Mo.	Park	John Mound	12 Years

J. E. GARRISON, Mgr.

SHOWMANSHIP!

THE PICTURE OF A THOUSAND SURPRISES!



—polished to perfection!

CARL LAEMMLE, Jr. is putting the finishing touches on what he has aimed to be the "perfect" motion picture. We have not seen it, as yet; but we are convinced that if brains, cleverness, perfect story, fine acting, masterful photography, absorbing plot, crispy dialogue and fast-stepping action—all beautifully merged through brilliant direction, can make the perfect picture—then REMEMBER LAST NIGHT? will be "it!"

Mr. Laemmle, Jr. wisely has thrown aside the duties of mass manufacture, to concentrate on class production of a group of hand-picked pictures. The young dynamo who gave you ALL QUIET ON THE WESTERN FRONT, BACK STREET, the FRANKENSTEINS and IMITATION OF LIFE, is being darn right particular over his first new season offering. To that end he searched far and wide for a story of universal interest, of high society glamour, of robust action and tingly suspense, pointed with peppy-plus type box-office hokum that shoots chuckles twixt its thrills. He found all these qualities in the Adam Hobhouse novel on which REMEMBER LAST NIGHT? is based. His ace scenarists caught the spirit for the script.

James Whale, whose every picture is a hit, set out to top all his previous achievements. The "rush" reports tell us he has done a whale of a job.

REMEMBER LAST NIGHT? should be a perfect showmanship picture as well as a photoplay pace-setter. It is polished to perfection from the box-office angle. Edward Arnold, fresh from his triumph as DIAMOND JIM, leads as brilliantly talented a cast as ever graced a picture. Its gay parties, polo-playing, auto-racing, fast-stepping men and charming women will lead you a screaming race on the screen!

These lines are written so that you will be moved to start the wheels rolling right away on another of your famous bigger and better campaigns—the kind that are drawing greater crowds to theatres today than have been seen around box-offices in the last five years.

It is good showmanship to point REMEMBER LAST NIGHT? for that kind of business!

Joe Weil

CARL LAEMMLE presents JAMES WHALE'S Greatest Achievement

EDWARD ARNOLD · CONSTANCE CUMMINGS · SALLY EILERS · ROBERT YOUNG

Remember Last Night?

BIG THREE WAY "REMEMBER" TIE-UP THAT NETS WIDESPREAD PLUGGING!

Contest Keeps Listeners Tuned In On Single Station—Gets Window Displays—Radio Mention—and Co-op Ad Space!

HERE'S a stunt that if plugged properly will be an important feature of your campaign. The idea, a "REMEMBER LAST NIGHT?" Radio Program Contest, offers prizes to radio listeners remembering details of last night's program and features a merchants' co-op ad page.

Contact the Program Director of your local radio station and sell him on the idea of lining up sponsors of programs on between 5:30 and 7:30 and 10:30 and 11:30 each night to cooperate. The radio station and the sponsors should go big for this idea because it is a good means of keeping the public tuned in on the station every night. Get the station to build up the stunt with advance radio announcements and the merchants with a co-op ad page.

On the first night of the stunt, have the radio announcer introduce the contest to the public, telling them to listen carefully to all the details of the programs broadcast during the hours mentioned. Some of the questions can be, "How many times was 'REMEMBER LAST NIGHT?' mentioned," "What song was sung at 7 o'clock and who sang it?" "What merchant advertised a sale of dresses?", etc. Announcement should explain the tie-up with the picture. He can also mention that on each night for the rest of the week the same procedure will be followed. Offer cash and ticket prizes for the best answers to each night's set of questions and a grand prize for the best of the week.

Your payoff is in frequent radio plugging of catchlines each night. displays in cooperating merchants' windows and extra space in newspaper co-op ad.

HERE'S A SWELL NEWSPAPER CONTEST

(Sample Set-Up)

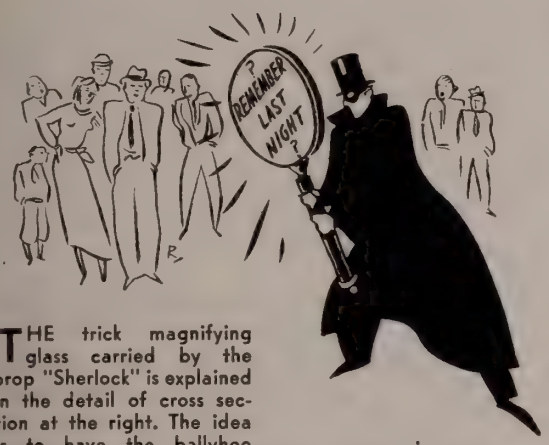
Courier-Star Offers Daily Cash and Movie Ticket Prizes For Wild Nightmares!

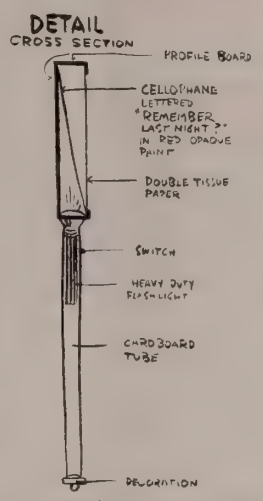
In "REMEMBER LAST NIGHT?", the exciting picture opening at the Capitol Theatre, next Friday, a party of pleasure bent society playboys and lassies spend the night in wild revelry. When they come out of their fog in the morning they find one of their number murdered. The other participants can't Remember Last Night. They have but a faint recollection of weird nightmares. They tell them. Can you top them? Have you ever had a ghastly dream? The Courier-Star is offering $50 in prizes for your weirdest nightmare. The contest will close next Tuesday at midnight. All entries must bear a postmark not later than that time. Tell them in 100 words. Address all entries to the "Remember Last Night?" Contest Man.

And Just To Prove It We Are Offering Five $5 Prizes to Exhibitors For Their Best Wild Nightmares

THEATRE MEN! Here's a practical newspaper contest that offers general and amusing competitive interest. To prove it to you we're offering $25 in prizes for the five best weird nightmares. Get into the contest and at the same time that you are thinking of smart answers to send us you can be making plans for planting the contest with a newspaper in your city when you run "Remember Last Night?" Send on your dreams to the EXPLOITATION DEPT., UNIVERSAL PICTURES, ROCKEFELLER CENTER, NEW YORK CITY. Watch the next five issues of the Universal Weekly for announcements of the winners. One will be published each week and $5 paid for each dream used. Contest closes October 15th. First winner will be published next week. Winners will be chosen by Universal Home Office Committee. For your local campaign, get your newspaper to sponsor the contest, offering tickets and cash prizes to the winners. Two column mat of the illustrated heading is available at Universal Branches. Request service mat R.L.N. No. 1.

DETECTIVE GLASS FOR CROWD STOPPER

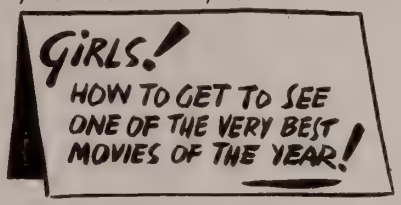




THE trick magnifying glass carried by the prop "Sherlock" is explained in the detail of cross section at the right. The idea is to have the ballyhoo man parade the streets apparently looking for clues. At frequent intervals he presses the flash light switch illuminating the blank "glass" and revealing the title of the picture.

Sell The Girls With Teaser Throwaways

PRINTED up on inexpensive colored paper this little gag will have all the girls in town talking about "Remember Last Night?" —And all the boy friends, too. Give them a wide distribution to the ladies only — they'll do the rest for you.



DETACH CARD BELOW AND HAND IT TO YOUR SWEETHEART. ASK HIM "DO YOU KNOW WHAT THIS MEANS?" HE'LL SAY, "NO, DO YOU?" THEN YOU SAY, "WILL YOU TAKE ME TO "REMEMBER LAST NIGHT" IF I TELL YOU?" HE'LL AGREE, YOU SAY "THAT'S WHAT IT SAYS!"

Street Sweeper Comedy Ballyhoo

THE figure in the sweeper's refuse cart is a dummy borrowed from a local department store and dressed in evening clothes. The face is made up so as to be unmistakably that of a gay young blade who has just had a big night. The man pushing the cart is a house attache or a local ballyhoo artist dressed in costume similar to that worn by the local sanitation department. Use sign as shown. Such a ballyhoo is bound to draw plenty of laughs and arouse a lot of curiosity about the picture. Keep the stunt on the main streets and have him pass the theatre at frequent intervals.

WYTMTRLNIITY

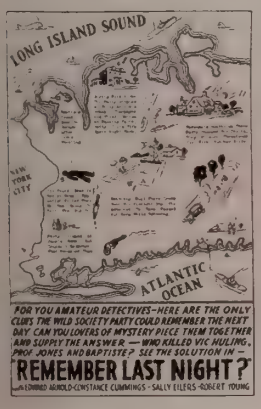
"REMEMBER LAST NIGHT?"
STRAND THEATRE — NOW

LAND STORE WINDOWS THROUGH BOOK TIE-UP

"REMEMBER LAST NIGHT?" is based on the fast-selling book "HANGOVER MURDERS." Contact all book stores, circulating and public libraries and arrange for them to display the book during your showing of the picture. Use a special card telling the public to read the book then see it on the screen as "REMEMBER LAST NIGHT?"

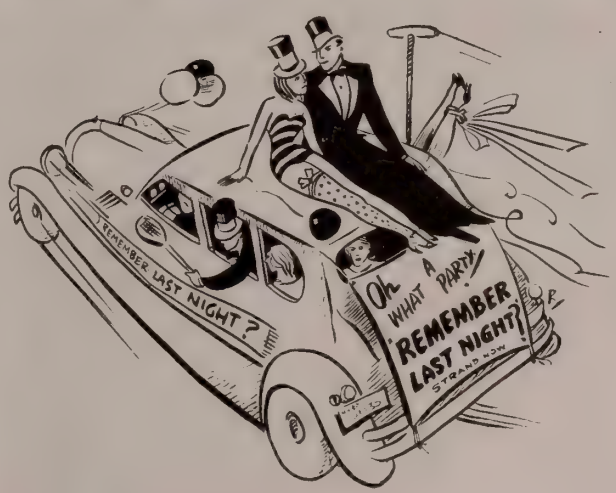
Test For Amateur Detectives

TO attract the mystery and detective story lovers use this test stunt. Use the illustrated sketch to imprint throw-aways or backs of rotogravure heralds, or by landing it as a newspaper stunt. The map carries important clues of this murder mystery story, and supplies details to intrigue interest in the solution of the picture. R.L.N. 3 at U Branches.



Auto-Dummy Figures To Sell Revelry

THE sketch herewith is self-explanatory. Borrow dummy figures from a department store and dress them as shown. Strap them securely to car. Use plenty of balloons, streamers, noisemakers, and other party atmosphere. Get the title on both sides and on front and rear.



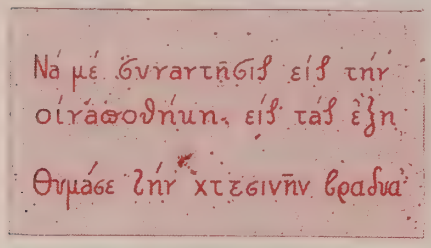
OPTICAL ILLUSION LOBBY DISPLAY STUNT

IN the picture a hypnotist is called in to work on the members of the party in an effort to make them recall the happenings of the night and thereby solve the mystery of who killed Vic Huling. One of the hypnotist's gags is the rotating mirrors shown in the sketch at the left. Plug this angle with a lobby display that features several different types of optical illusions. A local optician or physics class teacher can assist you in fixing them up. He may also be able to give you information on other interesting illusions. Give the display a weird, supernatural background atmosphere, with banners as shown in the sketch. Have an attendant to draw the crowds, ask questions and tell about "Remember Last Night?"

IT'S GREEK TO YOU BUT IT'LL GET 'EM GUESSING

ONE of the clues which helps to solve the murders in "REMEMBER LAST NIGHT?" is a Greek message which when translated reads: MEET ME IN THE WINE CELLAR AT SIX. Illustrated below is the message as it was found by the detective and the title for picture identification.

Contact the local newspaper and suggest to the editor that he run a contest offering ticket prizes to readers who can correctly translate the message which will help solve the mystery of "REMEMBER LAST NIGHT?" Also good for card throwaway. Two column mat R. L. N. No. 2 is available at all Universal Exchanges.

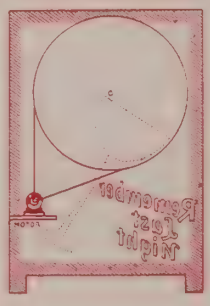


"REMEMBER" COCKTAIL FOR BAR TIE-UP

The sketch is a suggestion for a tie-up card that will land the title of this picture in every restaurant, hotel, cafe and night club in town. Have your artist make up a supply or let the local printer make them up for use on bars, counters and in windows.

Moving Heads In Shadow-Boxed Cocktail Glass

THE shadow box shown in the accompanying sketch plays up the wild party mystery angle with plenty of animation and flash. The bowl and stem of the cocktail glass are cut out and the space covered with a transparency. The large circles above it are similarly treated, as is the title below. A large disc is placed behind the frame in such a position as to bring the circumference level with the bottom of the bowl of the glass. Cut-out heads mounted on disc all around, so that when the disc is revolved by the small motor, the heads will appear to be rising from the glass like bubbles. By placing separate lights behind the large circles over the glass, and working them on flashers, so that they light up one after the other, you will get an extra smash to display.



FOUR MYSTERY GIRLS For STREET BALLYHOO

THIS ballyhoo of four girls in red or green cloaks and hoods should cause plenty of talk and excitement, to say nothing of curiosity, around town. The sketch is self-explanatory. Any costumer or dressmaker should be able to supply the cloaks and head pieces cheaply. The question marks can be pasted on. The last girl can hand out heralds whenever a large crowd collects.

Get This Shadow Box Working Now!

Only "CAMERA THRILLS"

IS GREAT ENOUGH FOR THE CENTER THEATRE REOPENING!

Universal's two-reel hurricane of wild sensation...selected by the Music Hall management from all available short product as the most outstanding, most unusual and skin-raising release...for the grand reopening of the beautiful Center Theatre in Radio City on October 2nd with a new, extended-run policy!

"CAMERA THRILLS"

Presented by Carl Laemmle
Produced by Charles E. Ford
Dramatized by
Graham McNamee
Musical accompaniment by Milton Schwartzwald

From

UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.

ROCKEFELLER CENTER
NEW YORK CITY

MANAGER
CLIFFORD THEATRE
5937 W ROOSEVELT RD
CHICAGO ILL

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
Paid
Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

THE CAST ALONE IS WORTH 1,000,000 DOLLARS

Printed in U. S. A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
VOL. 37, NO. 11
OCT. 12, 1935

Marta Eggerth

Imported to make
"THE SONG OF JOY"
a joy for "U"

The World's Beloved MAY at Her Greatest! . . . "Lady Becomes the Queen of He

3 KIDS and a

CARL LAEMMLE PRESENTS UNIVERSAL'S

ROBSON

for a Day" art-throbs!

QUEEN

with CHARLOTTE HENRY • BILLY BURRUD
FRANKIE DARRO • HENRY ARMETTA
John Miljan • Ferdinand Gottschalk
William Benedict • Henry Kolker • Tom Dugan
Directed by EDWARD LUDWIG
Produced by BEN VERSCHLEISER

IGGEST SOUL-WALLOP FOR ALL HUMANITY!

THE BEST FOOTBALL

No. 833 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

The best football picture ever made is "Fighting Youth."

Universal has made several splendid sport pictures, and so have other companies, but this one is the very best of all, because —

First, it does not rely on mere timeliness, even though it is timely.

Second, it does not rely on mere excitement, even though it is exciting.

Third, it does not rely on mere casting, even though it has a dandy cast.

Fourth, it does not rely solely on smart directing even though it is one of the most brilliantly directed pictures you ever saw.

It is good for Fall, Winter, Spring or Summer.

But we are releasing it in the very height of the football season. This makes it more attractive to those theatres which can show it at any time before next Summer.

It is nothing on earth but hokum and showmanship. But it is a better brand of hokum and showmanship than you have enjoyed for a long time.

PICTURE EVER MADE!

Charles Farrell is one of the leads.

He is a brand new Farrell. This picture has swept him into new power and glory.

It will make him a greater Farrell. He does such a superb job in this picture that you will forget several pictures in which he has been mis-cast.

He looks like a college kid and he puts more heart and soul into his work than he has put into any picture in the last few years.

This picture "Fighting Youth" will lift your folks right out of their seats — I almost said right out of their pants.

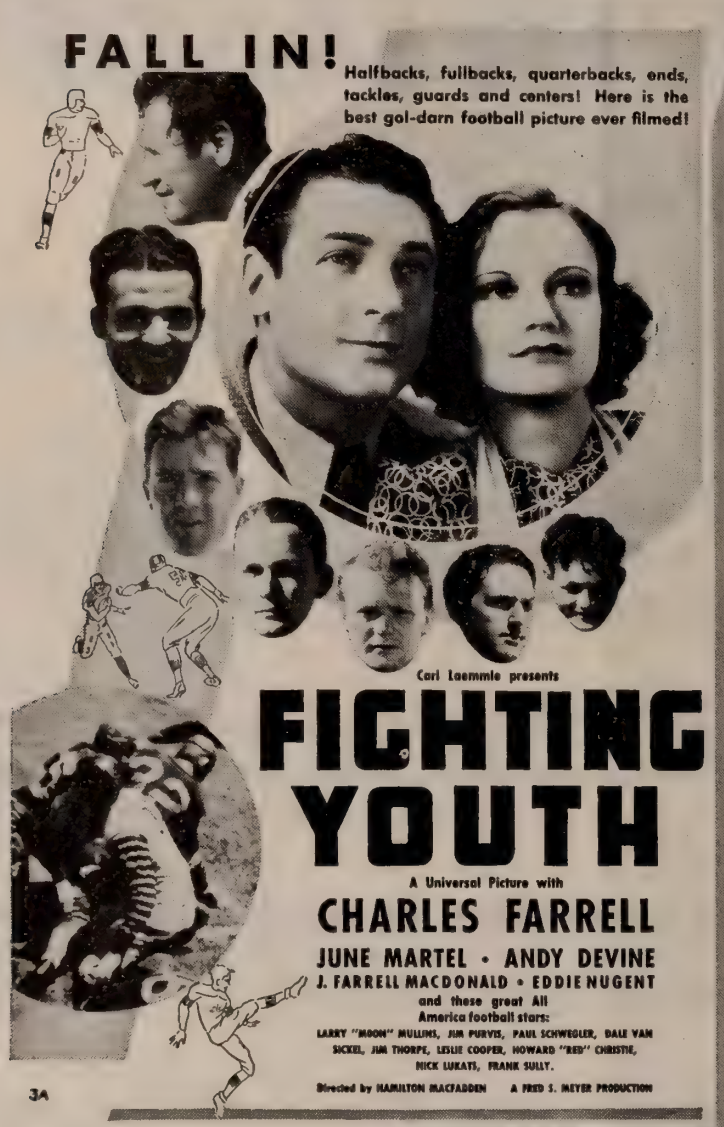
It is the best football picture ever made, whether you get it this Fall or this Winter or next Spring or next Summer.

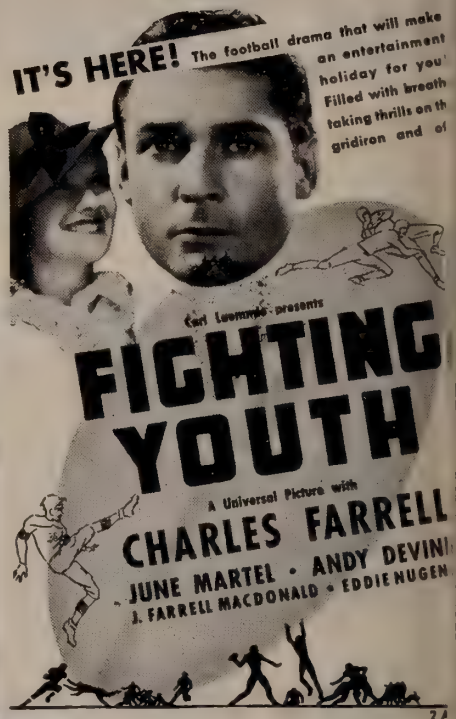
It doesn't depend on seasons. It is the real thing — better than the real thing has ever been done before.

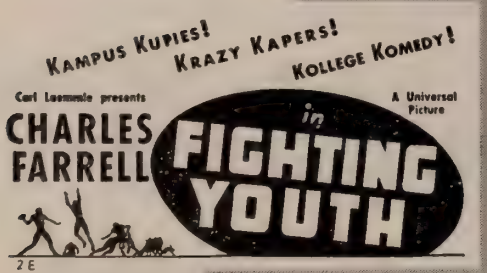
Book it and boost it!

Carl Laemmle

A NEW CHAS. FARRELL IN THE GREA







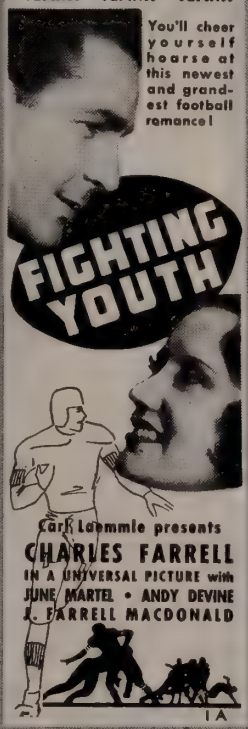
EST FOOTBALL PICTURE EVER MADE!

IS FOOTBALL A RACKET?
The battle is on! On the gridiron and off! And only one girl knows the answer!

Carl Laemmle presents
CHARLES FARRELL
IN A UNIVERSAL PICTURE
FIGHTING YOUTH
with
JUNE MARTEL • ANDY DEVINE
J. FARRELL MACDONALD

1B

CHEER! CHEER! CHEER!
TEAM! TEAM! TEAM!



You'll cheer yourself hoarse at this newest and grandest football romance!

FIGHTING YOUTH

Carl Laemmle presents
CHARLES FARRELL
IN A UNIVERSAL PICTURE with
JUNE MARTEL • ANDY DEVINE
J. FARRELL MACDONALD

1A

2D

Carl Laemmle presents
FIGHTING YOUTH
A Universal Picture with
CHARLES FARRELL

HE THREW HIM FOR A LOSS!

A whole team couldn't stop him on the field . . . but only one campus cutie scored a touchdown on him!

IGHTING
OUTH

Carl Laemmle presents
HARLES FARRELL
N A UNIVERSAL PICTURE with UNE MARTEL • ANDY DEVINE
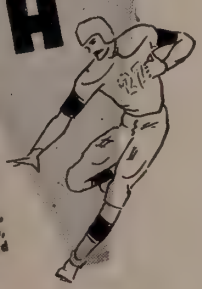
J. FARRELL MACDONALD
and these great All America football stars:
Larry "Moon" Mullins, Jim Purvis, Paul Schwegler, Dale Van Sickel, Jim Thorpe, Leslie Cooper, Howard "Red" Christie, Nick Lukats, Frank Sully.



IS FOOTBALL A RACKET?

Carl Laemmle presents
FIGHTING YOUTH
A UNIVERSAL PICTURE with
CHARLES FARRELL

1E

TOUCHDOWN!

He was the hero of the field, the rooster of the campus . . . until one girl threw him for a loss!

Carl Laemmle presents
CHARLES FARRELL
IN A UNIVERSAL PICTURE with
JUNE MARTEL • ANDY DEVINE
J. FARRELL MACDONALD
and these great All America football stars:
Larry "Moon" Mullins, Jim Purvis, Paul Schwegler, Dale Van Sickel, Jim Thorpe, Leslie Cooper, Howard "Red" Christie, Nick Lukats, Frank Sully.

FIGHTING YOUTH

2C

Edward Arnold to Play "Sutter"

CARL LAEMMLE definitely announced yesterday that out of all of the players tested and contemplated for the role of General Johann Augustus Sutter in "Sutter's Gold," he had chosen Edward Arnold. Arnold is now on a vacation in Honolulu with his family after completing Carl Laemmle, Jr.'s production, "Remember Last Night?" on top of his starring debut in "Diamond Jim."

Forty stars and character actors were under consideration at one time for General Sutter. Edmund Grainger and James Cruze and the location crew have been intensively searching all of California and even Mexico for locations. Much of the placer gold country is in virtually the same state of natural contour as it was in General Sutter's time, but for the location of the battle which took place between the forces of the Mexican governor and the Insurrectionists, James Cruze will have to take his unit to Mexico. The site of the battle is almost exactly on Universal City. General Sutter was captured there and taken to Los Angeles.

Assistance is being given to the script writers, Gene Fowler and Walter Woods by H. C. Peterson, Curator of the Sutter Fort at Sacramento. Scenes may be made in and around this Fort if modern background difficulties can be eliminated.

One of the features of the great press book on "Remember Last Night" that exhibitors can order direct by number in mat form.

"LUCKY BALDWIN" BOUGHT FOR ARNOLD

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, N. Y. City
Universal Pictures Corp.
Copyrighted 1935
(All Rights Reserved)
OCT. 12, 1935
Vol. 37 No. 11

INSPIRED by the great success of "Diamond Jim," Universal is providing Edward Arnold with another spectacular biographical role. Universal has purchased the novel, "Lucky Baldwin" by C. B. Glasscock. with the exception of "Sutter's Gold," which Arnold will also play, the Baldwin saga is California's greatest contribution to romantic history.

General Sutter was the real pioneer of California. The builders, however, were such men as Lucky Baldwin, Huntington, Spreckles, Phelan, Hearst and the picturesque characters of the early eighties. "Lucky Baldwin" was the most picturesque and widely known of these California builders. He was famous for the remarkable horses he bred on his ranch near Los Angeles, for the horse races he won and the huge bets he collected on them. Baldwin was one of the luckiest betters in the history of the world. He would bet a million without batting an eye-lash.

"Lucky Baldwin" will continue the spectacular California story where "Sutter's Gold" leaves off.

Buck Jones On Location

YESTERDAY Buck Jones took his Universal western unit to Victorville for location scenes in "Sunset of Power." In addition to Helen Splane, who made such a hit in "The Ivory Handled Gun," and Charles Middleton, the cast includes Douglas Kirke, Ben Corbett, Charles King, William Lawrence, Murdoch McQuarrie, Alan Sears.

Two Men Who Won Against Monopolies Meet at Universal City

TWO men who fought industrial monopolies and won bringing with them success to many others met and talked things over at Universal City studios this week when Carl Laemmle, veteran Universal president played host to I. Kobayashi, Japanese industrial magnate.

In the early days of the American film industry it was Laemmle who defeated the monoply of the Motion Picture Patents Company and made it possible for American film producers and distributors to broaden their activities and bring motion pictures to their present high standards. Next year Carl Laemmle will celebrate his 30th Anniversary.

In the past ten years Mr. Kobayashi has had pretty much the same experience in his native Nippon. Today he owns four of Japan's (and the world's, also) largest playhouses, in Tokyo, one in Osaka and 18 in other parts of the Empire and now he is pioneering the theatre field in Manchuria and Manchucko building modern picture theatres as fast as experienced builders can erect them. These theatres use Universal pictures.

Having amassed a fortune said to exceed 400,000,000 yen, Mr. Kobayashi has 40,000 employees under his direct control and heads the Tokyo electrical and power industries and interurban railways in addition to his broad theatrical ventures. Regarded as the second ranking Nipponese industrialist Mr. Kobayashi is in the United States for a two months study of American conditions, to purchase rights to film for his theatres and then will go to London, Paris, Berlin and Russia. From Russia the noted Japanese will retrace his steps and spend a few weeks, in California before sailing for Japan.

While in Los Angeles, Mr. Kobayashi is accompanied on his studio visits by two childhood friends, Mr. and Mrs. C. Okmura of Los Angeles and his secretary, T. Yasaki, graduate of the Japanese Institute of Physics and Chemistry.

✚ ✚ ✚

INTERNATIONAL GIRL

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

Wera Engels, who has an important role in "The Great Impersonation in support of Edmund Lowe, was Born in Germany;

Raised in China;

Started moving picture career in France;

Is now a promising American screen ingenue;

In "The Great Impersonation" has her first opportunity to play a German girl, and has the greatest difficulty in impersonating a German accent! Miss Engels plays the role of the Princess Stephanie, beautiful full blooded and guided by passion who nearly throws an Empire out of gear by suddenly discovering that the man she had kissed is not her lover at all but an amazing imposture.

Two Film Fighters

I. Kobayashi, wealthy Japanese theatre owner, visits Carl Laemmle at Universal City with his secretary, T. Yasaki.

UNIVERSAL SPREADS A MU

SWEET SI

SICAL FEAST BEFORE YOU!

RRENDER

The Roll of Honor

The following exhibitors in the Salt Lake territory have used Universal Pictures continuously for

TWENTY YEARS

EXHIBITOR	THEATRE	TOWN AND STATE
Paul DeMordaunt	Nuart	Blackfoot, Idaho
A. C. Gordon	Rialto	Boise, Idaho
I. H. Harris	Burley	Burley, Idaho
C. C. Voeller	Ramona	Buhl, Idaho
Powers White	Park	Butte, Mont.
Bert Martin	Martin	Castle Gate, Utah
Johnnie Griffin	Orpheum	Chinook, Mont.
Mrs. E. J. Crary	Royal	Choteau, Mont.
N. E. Huff	Liberty-Dream	Coeur d'Alene, Idaho
C. E. Huieh	Star	Eureka, Utah
George Lindsay	Star	Eureka, Utah
Bill Steege	Liberty-Rainbow	Great Falls, Mont.
Andy Murdock	Ideal	Heber City, Utah
C. W. Eckhardt	Marlow	Helena, Mont.
F. L. Lewis	Strand	Livingston, Mont.
G. B. Thatcher	Lyric	Logan, Utah
Mike Nielson	Grand	Logan, Utah
S. H. Rich	Rich	Montpelier, Idaho
W. A. Simons	Liberty	Kellogg, Idaho
(W. A. Simons Amusement Co.)	Grand	Wallace, Idaho
	Liberty	Mullen, Idaho
	Liberty	Plains, Mont.
Lou Peery	Egyptian-Ogden	Ogden, Utah
N. B. Grossman	Rialto	Pocatello, Idaho
W. E. Shipley	Gem-Empire	Salt Lake, Utah
J. J. Gillette	Strand	Tooele, Utah

FIFTEEN YEARS

Max Freggar	Lyric	Billings, Mont.
A. M. Russell	Ellen-Rialto	Bozeman, Mont.
C. B. Hartwig	Hartwig	Dillon, Mont.
F. E. Sabin	Majestic	Eureka, Mont.
Ed Lawlor	Harriet	Hardin, Mont.
Carl Veseth	Palace	Malta, Mont.
Mrs. H. W. Knutson	State	Miles City, Mont.
Mrs. W. G. Hyde	Liberty	Miles City, Mont.
Chris Jensen	Glacier	Poplar, Mont.
L. J. Sissel	Orpheum	Whitefish, Mont.
Clarence Severson	Liberty	Wolf Point, Mont.

TEN YEARS

Joe Moore	Orpheum-Lyric	Havre, Mont.
E. E. MacGilvra	Liberty	Polson, Mont.
John Survant	Orpheum	Glasgow, Mont.

THREE YEARS

J. A. English	Bluebird	Anaconda, Mont.

JACK RUE, Mgr.

Elaborate Plans Made For Producing "Adventures of FRANK MERRIWELL"

DONALD BRIGGS
Frank Merriwell was the old-time movie hero before the movies were invented. Donald Briggs, as the selection for the role of Frank Merriwell in the Universal serial, constituted a movie story and a Frank Merriwell novel all by themselves. You'll hear from Donald Briggs—he's a go-getter, and has what it takes to make good on the radio, on the screen and on the stage.

In addition to Don Briggs, Universal yesterday announced the selection of a number of Juniors, all sons of prominent actors, for the cast of "The Adventures of Frank Merriwell," which will go into production at Universal City late this month. The Juniors are Bryant Washburn, Jr., House Peters, Jr., Herschel Mayall, Jr., Wally Reid, Jr., Alan Hersholt and Peter Gowland, both sons of well known actors, Jean Rogers, the young Massachusetts beauty, will play the heroine, Frank's sweetheart, Inza Burrage. The only other player in the older cast already selected is Julian Eltinge, the former female impersonator who is starting on a new screen career.

The screenplay is by Ella H. O'Neill, George Plympton and Henry MacRae, who will make the production. McRae will have the use of the strip drawings and of many of the original drawings in the Tip Top Magazine and in the books. Many of them are by Ben Wells.

A generation ago the name of Burt L. Standish was world famous. It was under that name that Gilbert Patten wrote the Frank Merriwell stories. The photograph above shows Gilbert Patten as he is today, white haired, genial faced, and as independent as the State of Maine, where he was born.

UNIVERSAL is about to recreate the greatest boy hero of all time and all literature,—Frank Merriwell. Last year it bought from the author, Gilbert Patten, who wrote under the pen name of Burt L. Standish, the right to any or all of his eight hundred and eighty-two novels of sensational juvenile adventure which have thrilled the world for forty years.

Merriwell is a synonym of embattled, triumphant youth which will never die. More than seventeen million words were written by its author to chronicle his adventures. A magazine was founded for him and of late years he has been a prominent figure on the radio.

When the radio life of Frank Merriwell started, King Features began a strip illustration which ran daily in some 300 newspapers. A total of 900 strips of illustrations in 300 newspapers is some publicity for any hero. Altogether, "Frank Merriwell" undoubtedly was as well publicized as any hero, actual or fictional.

Universal recently made a test of a young radio phenom, Donald Briggs, in Chicago, and Henry MacRae signed him for the part immediately, all unknowing that it was young Briggs who had created Frank Merriwell on the radio. Gilbert Patten, on the other hand, without knowing that Don Briggs was being considered, wrote to Universal and suggested Briggs for the part. Merriwell was known for his amazing luck. This is a happy augury for the serial and for young Briggs.

NO COMPANY EVER FINISHED PRODUCTION SEASON WITH FIVE
IN A ROW! BUT IT CAN BE DO
HOW UNIVERSAL IS DO

1. IRENE DUNNE and ROBERT TAYLOR in John M. Stahl's production . . . "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" with CHARLES BUTTERWORTH and BETTY FURNESS. From the best seller by Lloyd C. Douglas . . . (Nearing Completion)

2. MARGARET SULLAVAN in "NEXT TIME WE LOVE" from Ursula Parrot's newest novel . . . Directed by Edward H. Griffith.

3. WILLIAM POWELL in "MY MAN GODFREY." A Carl Laemmle, Jr. Production. From the Liberty Magazine serial by Eric Hatch.

4. EDWARD ARNOLD in "SUTTER'S GOLD." From the epic novel by Blaise Cendrars . . . An Edmund Grainger production. Directed by James Cruze. (In Production)

5. IRENE DUNNE in "SHOW BOAT." Edna Ferber's Immortal Classic! . . . With PAUL ROBESON and CHARLES WINNINGER . . . New music and lyrics by Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein, III . . . A Carl Laemmle, Jr. production . . . Directed by James Whale.

ITS CURRENT MASHING HITS
E! AND HERE'S NG IT!

HIS ACTIONS SPEAK LOUDER THAN WORDS!

So full of rip-roaring, hell-for-leather speed and thrills that he'll leave your audience speechless!

BUCK JONES

in "The IVORY-HANDLED GUN"

Carl Laemmle presents A Universal Western Feature . . . With Charlotte Wynters, Walter Miller, Carl Stockdale, Frank Rice, Eddie Phillips, Charles King . . . Directed by Ray Taylor . . . Story by Charles E. Barnes

"STORMY" Will Take Your Breath Away By Its Power and Beauty

Noah Beery, Jr., the boy with the million dollar smile, and his favorite horse, Diavolo, looking down on the wild horse herd in Blue Canyon in the remarkable Universal production entitled "Stormy."

●

In recent times there has been no picture which for awe-inspiring, breath-taking beauty and thrill measures up with "Stormy," an outdoor epic.

NATURE ran riot in the mesas and canyons of Nevada. The Painted Desert is famous throughout the world for its beauty of color and for its wild grandeur of form. The Grand Canyon is more imposing and a much greater natural wonder, but it is too overpowering to be brought within the focus of a camera. The Blue Canyon in the Painted Desert, on the other hand, is admirably adapted to camera purposes. Henry MacRae had long planned to make an outdoor feature which would capture the graphic thrill and matchless beauty of this wonder of nature. The opportunity came when Universal bought Cherry Wilson's novel, "Stormy." Strangely enough, the author had written a story about this favorite setting of MacRae's. No studio could possibly have reconstructed such magnificent scenic effects. All that MacRae had to do was to fit his actors into this natural setting and match the human emotions, jealousies and conflicts against the huge cataclysms which Nature had formed millions of years ago.

"Stormy" as a story of human interest could have been played against a studio background, but the real thing heightened the drama tremendously. There isn't one single studio shot in "Stormy." The entire picture was made on location; the interiors were photographed in actual ranch houses. The company, consisting of Noah Beery, Jr., the boy with the million dollar smile, Jean Rogers, J. Farrell McDonald, Fred Kohler, Walter Miller, lived and worked on the location where temperatures frequently rise to 130° during the heat of the day, and where blankets are required at night. The thousands of horses were recruited from 100 miles around, driven by Indians and Nevada horse wranglers to this location. The railroad scenes were just outside of Flagstaff, Universal hiring a train and two train crews for the purpose.

We told you so
"RINGS BELL! WILL CATCH FAMILY AND CARRIAGE TRADE!"... Daily Variety
"DEFINITE HEART APPEAL! DEFINITE BOX OFFICE!"... Motion Picture Daily

ARMY

"Magnificent Obsession" Is Nearing Completion

ONE of the most ambitious screen productions of the season is now in course of filming at Universal studios, and is nearing completion.

The picture is the John M. Stahl production, "Magnificent Obsession," with Irene Dunne and Robert Taylor in the starring roles. Thirteen weeks of intensive filming have already gone into the making of this unusual screenplay, with only three days lost through illness of members of the cast, and it is now considered likely that a total of 20 weeks will be required for its completion. Previously, more than five months had been spent in preparation, with many writers contributing to the screen adaptation of the popular Lloyd C. Douglas novel, though the major portion of the work was done by George O'Neil, Sarah Y. Mason and Victor Heerman.

Thousands of extra players have been used in the scenes already filmed, in addition to many such well known screen artists as Charles Butterworth, Betty Furness, Ralph Morgan, Sara Haden, Henry Armetta, Cora Sue Collins, Gilbert Emery, Arthur Treacher and Sidney Bracy. Additional thousands of minor players still remain to be engaged for future scenes, and the picture has already become known in Hollywood as "the extras' paradise."

From a production standpoint "Magnificent Obsession" is most unusual, and many lavish settings have been constructed for its various scenes. Among these are an exact replica of a large section of the great transatlantic liner Normandie, and a perfect reproduction of the Montmartre district of Paris, with its high hills overlooking the city below.

Director Stahl's previous Universal productions include the well-remembered "Back Street," "Only Yesterday" and "Imitation of Life," and it is the prediction of studio officials that "Magnificent Obsession" will be the finest picture he has ever made. The story deals with a pattern of life which infalliably brings success to its devotees, and a tender romance between Miss Dunne and Taylor, with the former being stricken blind in the early stages of their acquaintance.

✚ ✚ ✚

Five of the Season's Hits

1. John M. Stahl's production of "Magnificent Obsession," showing Charles Butterworth, Betty Furness and Irene Dunne.

2. That precocious and interesting youngster, Billy Burrud, and Charlotte Henry in the season's surprise, "Three Kids and a Queen" with May Robson.

3. Charles Farrell and June Martel, the young lovers in the best football picture Universal or anyone else ever made, "Fighting Youth."

4. Walter Catlett, the buttinsky, and ZaSu Pitts and Hugh O'Connell, the lonesome lovers, in "The Affair of Susan."

5. Edward Arnold, Sally Eilers and Monroe Owsley in a scene from the magnificent Carl Laemmle, Jr. production, "Remember Last Night?" It has a cast of players that tops any picture released in a long time. It was superbly directed by James Whale.

A catune classic in color, which is a classic

The title of this current release is "The Fox and the Rabbit"

National Exhibitor Praises "FIGHTING YOUTH"

(Universal) Family Action Drama 76m.

IDEAL picture from all angles, especially since it broke during the football season, 'Fighting Youth" should be in the tops football money. Produced by a studio which has the knack of turning out an ace gridiron yarn each season, this beats other efforts, is long on comedy, football shots, romantic entertainment. New trend here has a female heavy addicted to communism seeking to have the football hero see things her way. Story keeps, otherwise, to the usual football pattern, can be sold to the hilt. In addition, well known collegiate football stars are included, a strong selling point. Writers have been careful to include elements with which to appeal to women, with whole show a saleable article for fall release.

Estimate: Topnotch football picture.

Another $50.00

LAST week Carl Laemmle, Jr. sent a check for $50.00 to Mr. Howard G. Sweet, Manager of the Franklin Theatre, Saginaw, Michigan.

Mr. Sweet made a splendid suggestion about Universal product in reply to Carl Laemmle's advertisement in the Universal Weekly. The suggestion was adopted immediately and forthwith Carl Laemmle sent him a check for $50.00.

Carl Laemmle is willing to send a check for $50.00 to every exhibitor who makes an acceptable suggestion about the improvement of our product or our practice.

What suggestion would you make?

Address all letters to Carl Laemmle personally.

Irvin Cobb With Edgar Guest

IRVIN S. COBB, has been signed by Carl Laemmle to play in and assist in the writing of the continuity and dialogue for Edgar A. Guest's first Universal picture tentatively titled "Home." Cobb and Guest are rival columnists in American newspapers but they will be devoted 'buddies' in the new film, it is planned, and they will collaborate on the dialogue for the story which has been written by Julian Josephson. Cobb joins the Universal writing staff immediately and Mr. Guest, will arrive Monday. Guest will continue his weekly radio broadcasting from Universal City as well as his daily verses now being syndicated to several hundred leading American newspapers.

CARL LAEMMLE Presents

JAMES WHALE'S Triumph of Triumphs!

REMIC

with EDWARD ARNOLD

CONSTANCE CUMMINGS

LAST

GREGORY RATOFF

REGINALD DENNY

ED BROPHY

MONROE OWSLEY

GUSTAVE VON SEYFFERTIT

REMEMBER?
Can you REMEMBER everything and every minute of last night?
Can you prove it?
PROOF!
Do you know when you've got a SENSATION on your hands?
Universal will PROVE that you have!
SALLY EILERS
and
ROBERT YOUNG
ROBERT ARMSTRONG
LOUISE HENRY
JACK LA RUE
GEORGE MEEKER
ARTHUR TREACHER
CARL LAEMMLE, JR'S. Finest Production
A thousand surprises you'll never forget

"EAST of JAVA"
Packed with Action

PACKED with action which goes from gunplay to shipwreck and from typhoons to battles between human beings and wild animals Universal's "East of Java" with Charles Bickford in the leading role will thrill audiences in any theatre. All the animals are back in their cages now, including Tarzan, the lion which almost put an end to Bickford's adventurous career, the star is recovering from his wounds, the film is being edited and will soon be ready for release. Then the fans will see Charles Bickford in a role topping his famous "East of Borneo" part for nerve destroying thrills when he steps on the screen as "Nails" McGovern alias Harvey Bowers the gangster chief who ran away from the law and ran into the jaws of a man eating lion for love of a girl.

Universal City's famous zoo opened originally in 1915 was reopened to house no fewer than 30 lions, 15 leopards, 6 Malayan bears, 6 jackals, 18 zebras, 6 crocodiles, 2 gorillas and 100 monkeys, as well as two giant pythons and 6 smaller snakes. These animals and reptiles were brought from Nairobi, East Africa in hardwood and rattan cages by John Swardie, famous wild beast trader and turned over to Charles B. Murphy curator of the Universal zoo. Murphy trained the lions to fight Bickford for several months before Director George Melford shot the first scene, entering their cages in a padded leather suit and working with them for several hours each day, until they would spring to kill at certain motions of the hand.

Every day of filming, Bickford, Elizabeth Young, Frank Albertson, Leslie Fenton, Siegfried Rumann and the others in the cast were in danger

Charles Bickford, star and hero of "East of Java."

The imperilled lovers, Elizabeth Young and Frank Albertson, in a shipwreck.

Charles Bickford and Elizabeth Young in "East of Java."

Charles Bickford's first view of Tiger Island.

from attacks by gorillas, lions and leopards. Murphy had guards stationed all about the sets ready for instant action if the beasts got bloodthirsty. This precaution was all that saved Bickford's life when Tarzan jumped him.

Typhoon and shipwreck scenes were shot aboard the three masted schooner, "Lottie Carson" which served as the "Sea Dragon" in the picture. The scenes were taken at sea and off Catalina Island and Santa Cruz Island. Several of the typhoon scenes were filmed during a real night squall which blew the "Lottie Carson" ten miles off her course.

Not all the action comes from the storms and animal fights. The plot is a rip-snorter. Bickford, holed up in a squalid East African seaport gets word from a pal that the authorities are on his trail. The treacherous dive keeper tries to betray him and he has to run for it. Then the Chinese ship captain tries to turn him in for the reward, he falls head over heels in love with a girl who doesn't love him, but almost does, and gives his life in the end to save her and her sweetheart.

"East of Java" has everything in it but an earthquake—and you'll never miss that!

Many of the animals in the picture brought from East Africa by John Swardie, noted animal trader, were later turned over to California Zoological gardens by Universal.

Loading the animals on the ill-fated steamer in "East of Java."

Charles Bickford and Leslie Fenton in a tense scene.

Charles Bickford thwarts a plot by Charles McNaughton.

Charles Bickford, Elizabeth Young, Frank Albertson, Leslie Fenton, Siegfried Rumann and Jay Gilbuena

BRING ON THOSE MOBS!

Bring them rushing, flocking, scrambling, and send them out happy, smiling, cheering!

Universal's Merry-maker of Melodious Melodrama! With Dorothy Page, Pinky Tomlin, Ed Pawley, Louise Henry, Charles Grapewin, Arthur Vinton, Bradley Page, Clyde Dilson . . . Story and screenplay by Albert J. Cohen and Robert T. Shannon . . . Music and lyrics by Con Conrad, Herb Magidson, Pinky Tomlin and David Klatzkin . . . Directed by Alan Crosland . . . Produced by Julius Bernheim.

RAKE IN YOUR

Because it's

EDWARD EVERETT HORTON

absolutely at his funniest in a picture everybody will rave about!

Carl Laemmle presents a Universal laugh-winner . . . . . With Irene Hervey, Jack LaRue, Robert McWade, Lola Lane, Billy Burrud, Jack Mulhall . . . From an original story by Charles Christensen . . . Screenplay by Doris Malloy and Harry Clork . . . Produced by Irving Starr . . . Directed by William Nigh.

HIS BIGGEST POT!

NIGHT OUT

TELL YOUR TOWN ABOUT T

TWO LONELY HEARTS!

...With but a single yearn...Two lonely souls without a single mate ...and they lived right next door!

Their New Universal Mirthquake

CARL LAEMMLE PRESENTS

ZASU PITTS and HUGH O'CONNELL

in

THE AFFAIR OF SUSAN

with

WALTER CATLETT • INEZ COURTNEY

Directed by Kurt Neumann • Produced by David Diamond

3A

YOU'LL NEED MIRTH CONTROL

CARL LAEMMLE PRESENTS

ZASU PITTS and HUGH O'CONNELL

in

THE AFFAIR OF SUSAN

A Universal Comedy Riot

2E

LOVESICK ZASU! HEART-HUNGRY HUGH!

You'll shed tears . . laughing at them as you never laughed before!

Their Newest Universal Comedy

CARL LAEMMLE PRESENTS

ZASU PITTS and HUGH O'CONNELL

in

THE AFFAIR OF SUSAN

with

WALTER CATLETT INEZ COURTNEY

1D

If you have tears

PREPARE TO SHED THEM LAUGHING

at lovesick Zasu and heart-hungry Hugh!

Their New Universal Laugh-fest

CARL LAEMMLE PRESENTS

ZASU PITTS and HUGH O'CONNELL

in

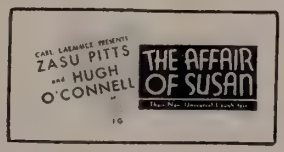
THE AFFAIR OF SUSAN

with

WALTER CATLETT INEZ COURTNEY

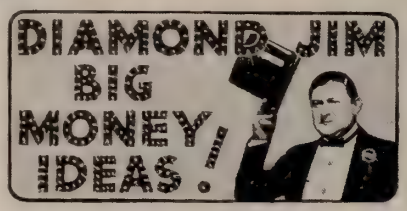
1C

SCREAM-MATES' NEWEST!



THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY SHOWMANSHIP SECTION

A DIGEST OF THE BEST EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK



HARVEY COCKS, Strand Theatre pilot, got all the old folks in Akron in a grand fluster over "Diamond Jim" by inviting officers and trustees of "50 Year Club" to special showing. Some of the men and women had been familiar with Jim Brady and at showing were interviewed by news reporters for big paper breaks the next day.

FIRST WINNER!

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY is offering $5 each week, this and the next four weeks, for the best REMEMBER LAST NIGHT nightmare sent in by an exhibitor. First prize this week goes to Morris Kinzler of the Roxy Theatre, New York. Read his dream below. Send your entry in. Contest closes Oct. 15.

KINZLER'S!

I dreamed it was premiere night of REMEMBER LAST NIGHT. I got a rush call to the door. "The President is here! He wants seats for his party." I looked down the street. There were one hundred automobiles in line loaded with the whole Washington diplomatic corps. I rushed inside. There were no vacant seats! Then I got another call. "The Mayor is here with the entire Board of Aldermen. They want seats!" I awoke in a cold sweat. My wife was dabbing cracked ice on my forehead. "Remember Last Night?" she asked.

Send in YOUR dream today!

— tumbling out of "Top Hat" success into a chuckling new comedy — "His Night Out!"

UNIVERSAL used red-hot showmanship in grabbing Edward Everett Horton, fresh from his hit role in "Top Hat," and rushing him into a glove-fit comedy feature "HIS NIGHT OUT."

Here is a down-to-earth, chuckling good picture with plenty of pleasant excitement and loads of laughable lines.

Horton, famous timorous type, passed his days as Purchasing Agent for a drug company. His secret "pash" was a pretty stenog who kinda liked him too. Horton was the doctor's delight because he constantly pilled away his imaginaches and pains. Then, one day, a quackster told him he had three months to live. "Then I will live!" decided Horton, and his nature changed. He became a roaring lion on a mad spree, wildly spending his money and hopping in glee. Just about then, some bonds disappeared out of his company's safe. "Ha - ha!" growled the villain company president, "He is spending money like a new era politician—he must have stolen the bonds!" So the chase begins with Horton on the wrong end of the guns. And then he runs smack bang into the gangsters who stole the bonds. He knows he only has a few more days to live (didn't the quack doc say so?) and he decides to become a martyr. And then, sufferin' cats!—just as he is forcing the mugs to surrender, he learns the doctor was a fake—and his life is at stake! From that moment on, your sides start to ache while Horton's backbone starts to shake. Comes steno to the rescue! It must be love!

You can be sure the millions of "Top Hat" fans will be glad to see Horton in HIS NIGHT OUT. Point your campaign at them. There are a score of lively stunts available to help you do the job. You can promise folks plenty of fun when the still water guy runs deep into trouble on his cut-up capers during HIS NIGHT OUT.

Joe Weil

HERALDING "DIAMOND JIM'S" ARRIVAL BY WIRE!

Handing Rockford hot news flashes on "Diamond Jim."

"Jim" Costume Premiere Startles Syracuse

ELABORATING on the costume premiere idea for "Diamond Jim," William J. Tuhbert and George O'Brien, manager and p. a. of the Keiths Theatre, Syracuse, arranged with the Post Standard to sponsor it, advertise it daily and offer cash prizes for the best gay '90 garb. Two column by nine inch space was devoted to the stunt daily for a week. Illustrated below is one of the ads. Front was brightened with arc lights and stunt was covered by news reporters.

Another smart, space-grabbing stunt was their "Diamond Jim" race sponsored by Syracuse Journal. Cash prizes were awarded to fastest, oldest and best decorated bicycles. Race was held opening day. Course was on main street, ending at theatre. Publicity and announcements of the stunt broke five days in advance of race. National tie-ups provided Tuhbert and O'Brien extensive cooperation in the form of numerous windows, and free ad space. Local jewelry store tie-up resulted in the purchase and distribution of ten thousand rotogravure heralds by jeweler.

GET OUT THOSE OLD COSTUMES FOR "DIAMOND JIM" PREMIERE!

CASH PRIZES for BEST GAY '90 GARB

GUEST TICKETS to all who come in COSTUME

Tomorrow Night at 11:30
RKO-Schine's Keith's

"DIAMOND JIM is throwing a party!"

And, what parties this man "who made the gay nineties gay" threw.

TOMORROW NIGHT, at 11:30 o'clock, RKO-Schine's Keith's theater, is throwing a party at the premiere showing of "Diamond Jim" with cash prizes and guest tickets for those who come in costume.

So, get out those old dresses, those Lillian Russell hats, or any costume you have stored away in the attic reminiscent of a bygone era and come to Keith's. The Post-Standard and the theater management are sponsoring this party for all Syracuse.

There will be three special cash prizes for the costumes that are judged the winners: $5, first—$3, second—$2, third prize.

And, in addition, a GUEST TICKET TO EVERYONE WHO COMES TO THE PREMIERE IN COSTUME.

Judging will be from the stage with the audience as the judges.

See Edward Arnold as "Diamond Jim," Binnie Barnes as "Lillian Russell" and a big cast in the screening of the fabulous exploits of this most spectacular personality of his time, along with the first fight pictures of the Baer-Louis bout.

Goodman's Trolley Hint To Altoona

AT minor cost, David Goodman got special trolley cars running on Altoona's (Pa.) main line ballyhooing "Diamond Jim" for I. and J. Silverman's Strand Theatre. Private showing for trolley officials helped pave the way. Dandy "Diamond Jim m;ing" David!

W. U. Wires Tick Out Midway Plugs

TO Manager Robert S. Strauss of the Midway Theatre, Rockford, Ill., the national Western Union "Diamond Jim" tie-up suggested big cooperative possibilities. And he capitalized them in nice style as photograph above shows. One week before opening, W. U. strung teletype wire to theatre lobby, set up machine with girl attending and ran messages about "Diamond Jim" over the wires. Girl picked up messages, stripped them on blanks and handed them out to lobby spectators. Neat stunt and a great comment-getter.

McCONNELL DOUBLES UP ON "JIM" BALLYS

THOMAS Y. McConnell, Manager, Ritz Theatre, Birmingham, Ala. knew he had a big one in "Diamond Jim" and proceeded to double his efforts to put it over. And that went for ballyhoo, too! Shown at right are the two he used four days before opening. Tandem bicycle and car were of "Diamond Jim" era and couples riding dressed appropriately. Pair in car were made up as "Jim" and Lillian Russell, bedecked with much imitation jewelry to add flash. Bicyclists were dressed in 1890 sport (?) clothes supplied by local costumer.

THIS WEEK'S "JIM" JAM GEMS!

(1) Three column x 12" from Imperial, Toronto, Ont. (2) Single column x 13" third week ad from Sierra, Sacramento, Cal. (3) Double column x 2" from Imperial, Toronto (4) Two column x 14½" from Palace, Cincinnati. (5) Two column x 6½" from Strand, Akron. (6) Double column x 5" from Orpheum, Seattle.

WHERE BATTLES ARE THICKEST!

Right on the Ethiopian firing line is Howard Winner, one of the world's most daring cameramen—getting the the best war shots possible and flying them back for your Universal Newsreel!

UNIVERSAL NEWSREEL

with

GRAHAM McNAMEE

From

UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.

ROCKEFELLER CENTER
NEW YORK CITY

MANAGER
CLIFFORD THEATRE
5937 W ROOSEVELT RD
CHICAGO ILL

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
Paid
Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

OSWALD
THE LUCKY RABBIT

THE LAUGHS ARE ON HIM! TAKE PLENTY!

The Quail Hunt

Printed in U. S. A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
VOL. 37, NO. 12
OCT. 19, 1935

3 KIDS AND A QUEEN

starring
The Beloved
MAY ROBSON

A RIOT OF RADIO STARS!

JAN PEERCE + BENAY VENUTA
DAVE SCHOOLER & ORCHESTRA
JUNE CARR + THE CHARIOTEERS
MILLS & MARTIN and OTHERS!

They're ALL in

"ON YOUR RADIO DIAL"

your big new

MENTONE

Released by Universal!

Preview Critics Are Unanimous In Praise of "3 KIDS AND A QUEEN"

WHEN Hollywood raves about a picture in preview, exhibitors sit up and take notice. Previews are supposed to be for the purpose of ironing out questionable sequences and determining at what points audiences laugh or become restless.

"3 Kids and a Queen" was what Hollywood terms "a sleeper." It had gone into production without any great fan-fare of trumpets. It had filmed its way through the shooting stage without anyone getting unduly excited. It had been taken out to an ordinary preview and shown without any suggestion that it was a marvelous piece of work, but the re-action the next morning was electric! All Hollywood was ringing with the praise of every last person that had anything to do with "3 Kids and a Queen." Opinions were unanimous. Not one word of criticism, not one suggestion of change, not one lofty condescending note.

Nothing but praise.

Exhibitors will find that audiences will re-act exactly the same way that this preview audience re-acted, and that the critics in their cities will react the same way that Hollywood critics re-acted.

Daily Variety says:

Inspired writing, direction and playing and careful production combine to make 'Three Kids and a Queen' an outstanding comedy of the homely, heart warming kind. It is grand entertainment throughout, should build for impressive box office.

For Henry Armetta, foremost, it is a distinct triumph. He does as fine a piece of sustained artistry in creating the character of the benevolent barber who adopts kids right and left and unwittingly becomes involved in a technical kidnaping, as the screen has seen in years. Picture puts him up among the peerage of comedians with a truly memorable performance bound to rate critical raves.

May Robson deftly uses all her practiced arts in vitalizing the role of the eccentric Park Avenue spinster millionaire who is picked up by Armetta's assorted kids after an accident to become the inspirational and, to the family, dangerous queen of the lowly household while her world hunts for her. Tears and chuckles she evokes masterfully, and her scenes with Armetta and with the youngsters, Charlotte Henry, Frankie Darro, William Burrud and an uncredited lad, have rare emotional beauty and heart appeal, as well as gusty humor.

The keynote still of "3 Kids and a Queen" with May Robson, the star of fifty years of theatrical and motion picture triumphs, and little Billy Burrud, making his motion picture debut in the season's greatest human interest comedy.

One other player especially, among the able cast stands out for high honors—the boy William Burrud, a cripple who wants to be a doctor. His engaging frankness and genial personality will charm its way into the heart of any audience.

Edward Ludwig does an ace job of direction, handling his people and subject matter with sympathy, grace, vigor, tenderness and proper suspense in story progress, all in their place and with deft balance. Picture adds definitely to his standing among the b. o. directors.

Hollywood Reporter says:

Audiences of all kinds will roar with delight over May Robson's first starring vehicle under the Universal banner and box-offices will echo the roars in happy mood. It is a pip of an audience picture.

Miss Robson, as a fabulously rich and savagely domineering old spinster whose heart is melted when an accident thrusts her into the home of a humble barber and his adopted brood, has a part that gives her a real chance and she troupes magnificently, with every ounce of emotional value captured and sustained.

A supporting cast whose excellence is amplified by the many character parts that are rich and real in human values; a production of outstanding excellence and a skillfully and sympathetically written script by Barry Trivers and Sam Ornitz will surely add up to make this a box-office natural.

Motion Picture Daily

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 14.—"Three Kids and a Queen" indicates a full house of patrons forgetting their poker faces after the first reel.

May Robson plays the richest woman with the meanest manner and the softest heart in the world. All of her love is lavished on her dog, to the despair of her heir, Hale Hamilton, who attempts to have her declared incompetent when she razes a half-built skyscraper to make a playground for the dog.

Armetta scores a huge individual success for comic despairs. Miss Robson gives her expected energetic crusty-shell-heart-of-gold rendition.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, N. Y. City
Universal Pictures Corp.
Copyrighted 1935
(All Rights Reserved)
OCT. 19, 1935
Vol. 37 No. 12

I GUARANTEE

No. 834 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

I have just seen "Three Kids and a Queen" with the lovable May Robson as the "queen."

I've got a lump in my throat as big as an ostrich egg.

Moreover, my throat is sore from laughter.

In all the years I have been in this business, I have never experienced more profound emotions than I enjoyed in seeing "Three Kids and a Queen."

I thought I was sophisticated. Maybe you think you, too, are hard to get — but I'll guarantee that you cannot sit through this picture of terribly human emotions without wanting to laugh one minute and cry the next.

This picture has already been pre-viewed by the most cynical moviegoers of Hollywood, including the toughest critics.

It has been okayed 100 percent.

No critic dares to monkey with it — because it deals with the most intensely human qualities in any human being — and deals with them tenderly, deftly, surely and entertainingly.

You ought to smash all of your routine in advertising this production.

A KNOCKOUT!

You ought to get right down to earth and guarantee your fans that you've got something they will love — just as I guarantee it to you.

I guarantee that if you give this picture half a chance, it will simply be a knockout. It will build by mouth to mouth advertising, and it will leave a soft spot in the heart of everyone who has paid his money at your box office.

I call your special attention not only to the amazing May Robson herself, but to Henry Armetta and Herman Bing — and also to a very young lad named William Burrud.

They will cleanse your soul. They will give you more fun and showmanship than you ever got from any off-color picture ever made.

They will make you laugh and they will make your throat swell with a magnificent showmanship ache, if you know what I mean.

Cut loose! Beg your people to come! Don't hold back! Tell them you guarantee one of the richest entertainments they have ever had — and take my guarantee that every such promise will be met by the picture just a little bit more than one hundred percent.

Carl Laemmle

The FIRST WIRE

JAMES R GRAINER
UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP
ROCKEFELLER CENTER NY

JUST SAW FIRST CUT OF THREE KIDS AND A QUEEN=THIS WITHOUT DOUBT A GREAT PICTURE FOR BEST THEATRES EVERYWHERE=TIMELY AND FULL OF COMEDY AND PATHOS=ROBSON HAS NEVER APPEARED TO BETTER ADVANTAGE= SUPPORTING CAST ALL OUTSTANDING=AM CONFIDENT THAT THIS WILL BE A SMASH HIT=YOU CAN GO LIMIT

CARL LAEMMLE..

3 KIDS and a

The SECOND

with MAY ROBSON

CHARLOTTE HENRY

Directed by EDWARD LUDWIG

CARL LAEMMLE PRESENTS UNIVERSAL'S

QUEEN

N15 62 DL=WUX UNIVERSALCITY CALIF OCT 3 1935
JAMES R GRAINGER=UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP
ROCKEFELLER CENTER NY

WIRE

PREVIEWED THREE KIDS AND A QUEEN TONIGHT=UNQUESTIONABLY BEST PICTURE CURRENT PROGRAM AND ONE OF FINEST RELEASES
IN YEARS=BEST AUDIENCE REACTION IN HISTORY OF THEATRE
EXCELLENT CAST PLENTY COMEDY PATHOS SUSPENSE AND WELL
DIRECTED=THREE KIDS AND A QUEEN DEFINITELY A QUALITY PRODUCT FAR SUPERIOR TO ALL EXPECTATIONS=YOU ARE ABSOLUTELY SAFE IN PROMISING EXHIBITORS SUREFIRE
ENTERTAINMENT AND BOX OFFICE SMASH

CARL LAEMMLE..

• BILLY BURRUD FRANKIE DARRO • HENRY ARMETTA
John Miljan • Ferdinand Gottschalk
William Benedict • Henry Kolker • Tom Dugan

Produced by BEN VERSCHLEISER

BIGGEST SOUL-WALLOP FOR ALL HUMANITY!

THE HEARTS OF THE WORLD WILL

May ROBSON

3 KIDS A QUE

CARL LAEMMLE Joyously Presents a Universal Picture
With Charlotte Henry, Billy Burrud, Frankie Darro, Henry Armetta, John Miljan, Ferdinand Gottschalk, William Benedict, Henry Kolker, Tom Dugan . . .
Screenplay by Barry Trivers and Sam Ornitz . . . Directed by Edward Ludwig . . . Produced by Ben Verschleiser.

POUND AGAIN

in

AND EN

"IN B.O. SMASH CLASS!... OUTSTANDING COMEDY! ...GRAND ENTERTAINMENT THROUGHOUT!... PERFECT AUDIENCE SATISFACTION!" –Daily Variety

"INDICATES A FULL HOUSE

E OF PATRONS"!—Motion Picture Daily

Here are the "Three Kids and a Queen," a draw which is going to be a great pleasure to millions of people. In this hand, William Benedict, a youth who came to Hollywood as a dancing phenom; Frankie Darro, who was a child prodigy; and Billy Burrud, the youngest boy sensation in Hollywood, are the three kids. Below, is May Robson, who is called Queen in this intensely human and delightful comedy, "Three Kids and a Queen."

May Robson and the dog, Aubrey, who under the name of Flush created nation-wide interest in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street." He is even better in "Three Kids and a Queen."

When the mad prank of Mary Jane Baxter became a real kidnap plot. Left to right: Tom Dugan, Noel Madison, May Robson, John Miljan, Dell Henderson and Eddie Phillips in the crooks den.

WINNER

"THREE KIDS AND A QUEEN"

"THREE KIDS AND A QUEEN" is a good hand to draw to. Universal bought this story by Chester Beecroft and Harry Poppe because it had splendid human interest possibilities. Barry Trivers and Samuel Ornitz increased these possibilities and Edward Ludwig has captured them all on celluloid to make the year's most engaging and unforgettable comedy. Ben Verschleiser is to be congratulated upon the harmonious combining of all of the difficult elements that go into making a successful moving picture.

Here's where they sing "Here Comes Cookie. Billy Benedict, Charlotte Henry, Frankie Darro, May Robson, Billy Burrud and Henry Armetta.

●

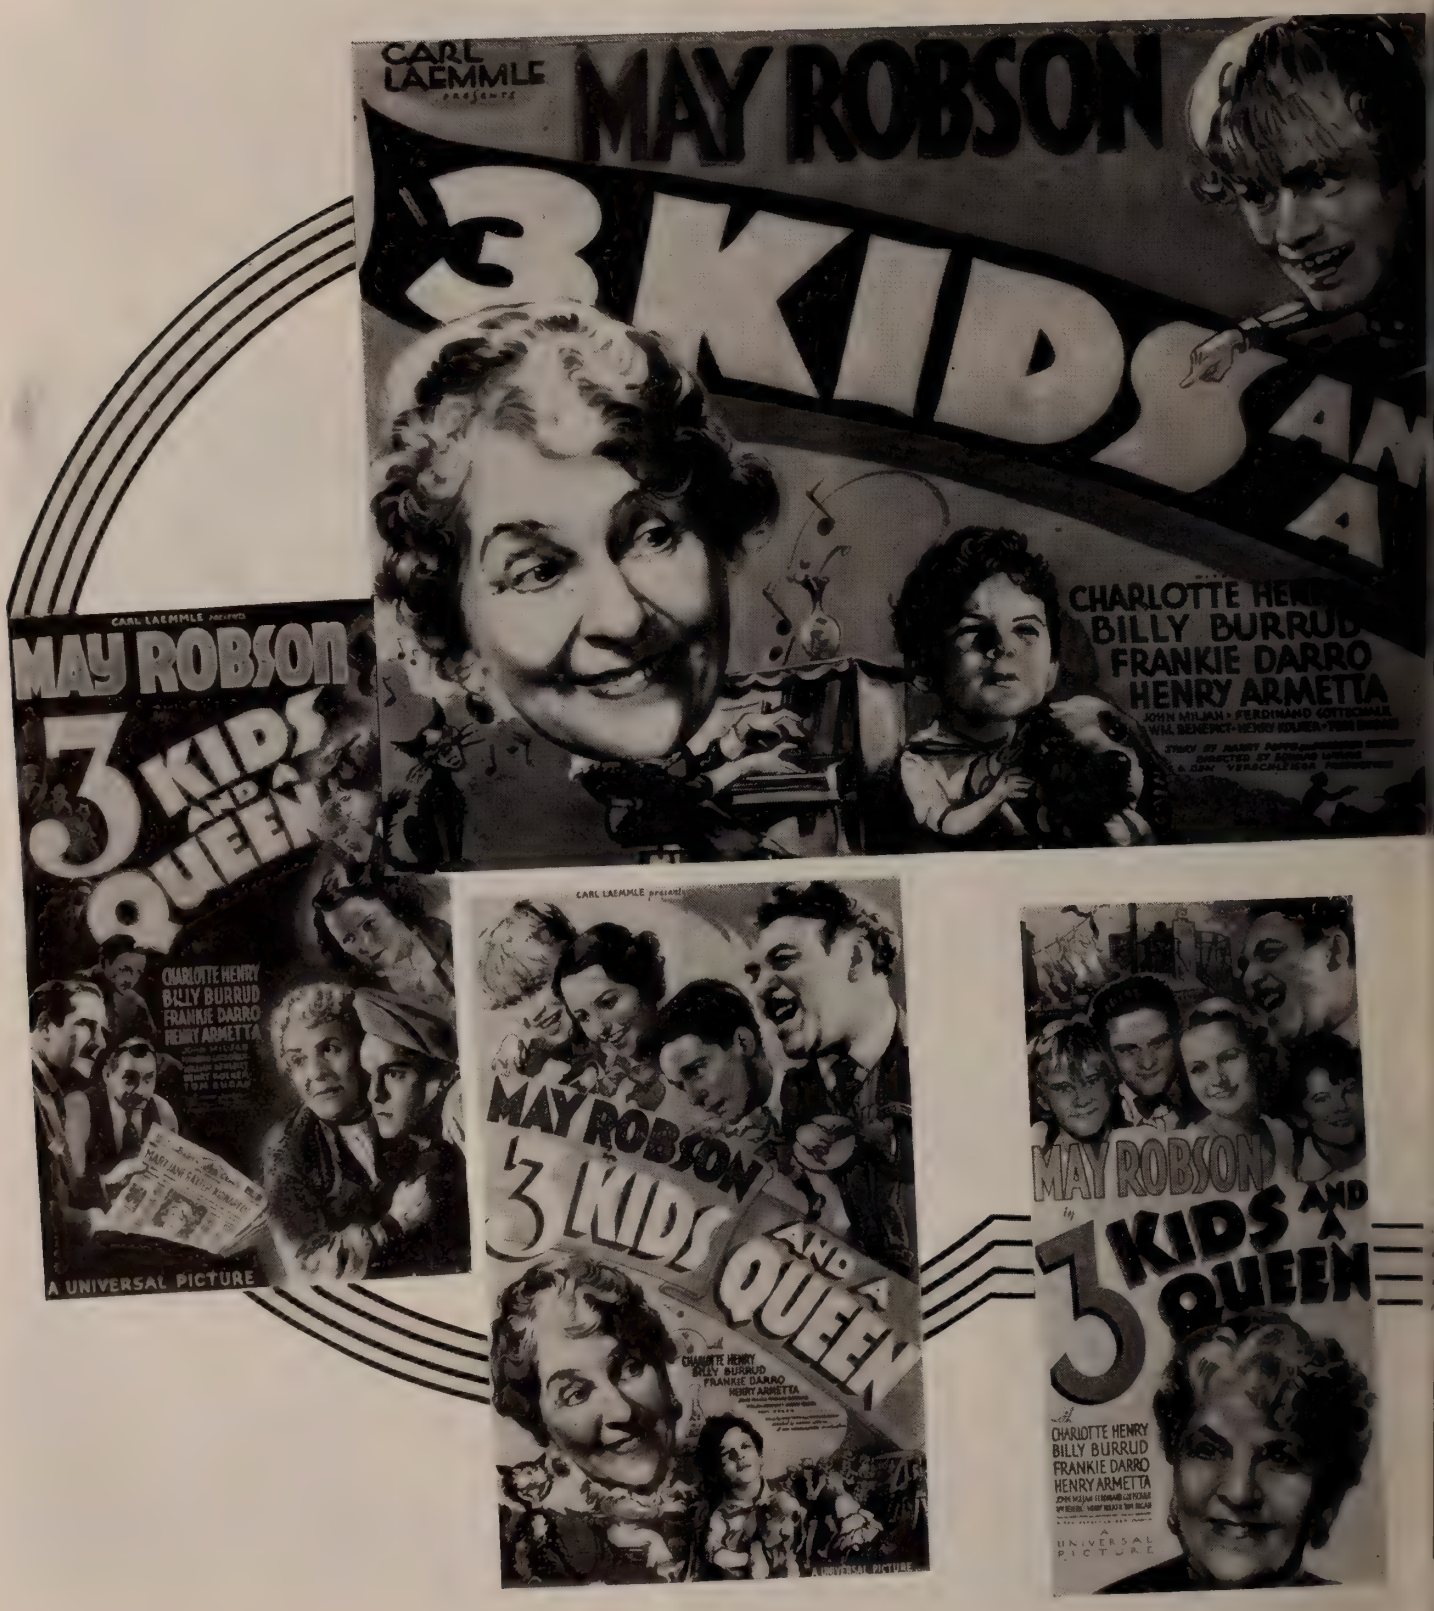
Mary Jane Baxter, (May Robson), who never had to lift her finger, makes coffee for the adopted children of the benevolent barber (Armetta) and insists that it is good. You see what THEY think.

He has turned out a marvel in "Three Kids and a Queen" with a cast which realizes its possibilities 100 per cent.

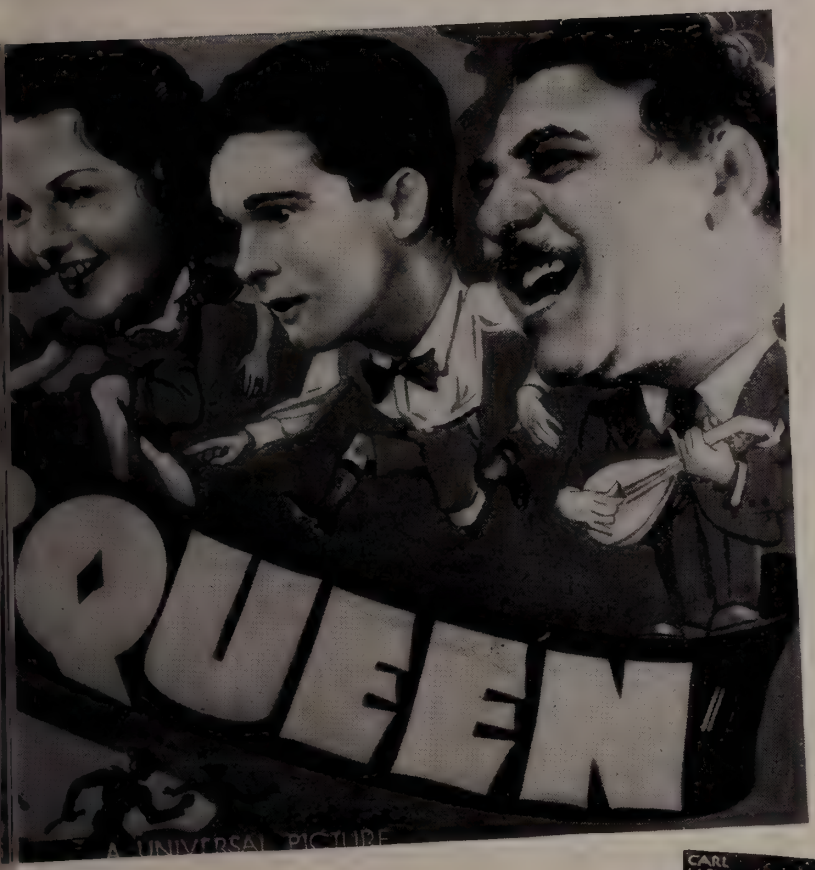
May Robson made a great hit in "Lady for a Day." But "Lady for a Day" didn't give her the hearty, full-blown characterization that she finds in Mary Jane Baxter. It is a robust character and played to the hilt by the greatest actress on the screen today. She is the world's richest woman, and her relatives put her in an insane asylum. She buys a lot for a million dollars to have a place for her dog to play in. She could have had the world at her feet but she preferred to thumb her nose at it. It took an amazing experience to show her how to be really happy.

But "Three Kids and a Queen" isn't alone May Robson's picture. Henry Armetta has been nibbling at great roles all his life, but he never had one before which went through an entire picture and required a sustained characterization, instead of a director's comedy touch. Henry Armetta will emerge from this picture with all kinds of star possibilities facing him.

"THREE KIDS AND

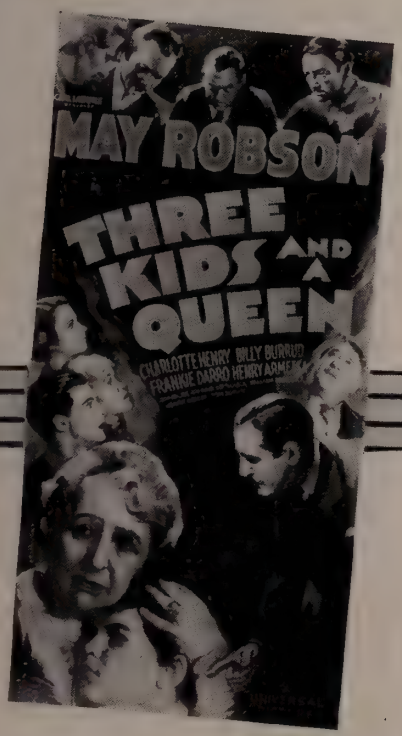


A QUEEN' A PIP! . . .



"Audiences of all kinds will roar with delight over May Robson's first starring vehicle under the Universal banner and box-offices will echo the roars in happy mood. It is a pip of an audience picture . . . A box-office natural."

—Hollywood Reporter



A Few of the Reasons Why "3 Kids and A

Henry Armetta and little Billy Burrud as they appear in "3 Kids and a Queen."

Herman Bing, who comes into his own as the babbling butcher in "3 Kids and a Queen."

"3 Kids And A Queen" Opens A New Chapter For Herman Bing

"THREE KIDS AND A QUEEN" is going to be the starting off place for a number of new careers. That of Herman Bing is one of them. No picture in his career has offered him a like opportunity and he has grasped it like the real artist he is.

Herman Bing has had a strange and checkered career. He comes of a musical family in Germany. His father was a grand opera singer and he was trained for grand opera. Later he went into vaudeville and became a circus clown before he finally reached Hollywood as an assistant to F. W. Murnau, who directed "The Last Laugh."

In 1927 Bing became an actor and has had small parts in a number of pictures, none of them, however, rising above the laugh horizon, as does the role of the babbling butcher of "3 Kids and a Queen." Bing keeps a meat shop next to the barber shop of Henry Armetta. When the detectives are searching for Mary Jane Baxter, they realize that both the butcher and the barber are centers of local gossip circles. The detectives suggest that Bing and Armetta become G Men. Bing is tremendously flattered and Armetta, terrified, because all unknown to Bing, Armetta has the disappearing Miss Baxter in the room back of the barber shop.

When Armetta Is Sad He Is Howlingly Funny

THERE are three people on the screen whose appearance instantly throw audiences into laughter. These people are Charlie Chaplin, ZaSu Pitts and Henry Armetta. Ninety-nine out of one hundred audiences will be convulsed with laughter without any of these stars saying a single word—their mere appearance is sufficient.

This audience reaction, however, is no drawback to Henry Armetta. He doesn't aspire to roles which should be taken seriously. Nevertheless, he is the most serious comedian of all the clowning fraternity. He understands that peculiar quality in humanity which makes people laugh at another human being in distress. Armetta never tries to be funny. He never tries to be smart. He is always a poor guy having trouble. But these troubles never fail to elicit howls of mirth from every audience.

In "3 Kids and a Queen," Armetta has more troubles than he ever had before. In the first place, he adopted three kids. And it is quite a job to bring up three adventurous kids in Hell's Kitchen and keep them clean mentally and physically. But the greatest trouble of all was when these three kids ran over Mary Jane Baxter, the richest woman in the world. Thinking she was a poor old battle-axe who would take the occasion to sue them, they took her home to fix her up themselves. And then they read in the paper who the old battle axe was, and that everyone believd she had been kidnapped. No chance for Henry Armetta to be funny, is there, and yet in "3 Kids and a Queen" he is funnier, more human and more artistic in his comedy touches than he ever was before.

"3 Kids and a Queen" is going to do a lot for Henry Armetta's already great reputation. A wise exhibitor will take advantage of this reputation now while playing "3 Kids and a Queen."

Queen" Is A Great Film

"The Best That Can Be Done" Says Critic of MAY ROBSON

MAY ROBSON'S career as an actress constitutes the most unusual record in the history of the stage. 49 years on the stage and 3 on the screen. Never in all that time has Miss Robson missed a performance, and for 32 years she was a star in her own right. Most of the time for either Daniel or Charles Frohman, but never in all that time has Miss Robson had a more human or appealing role than she has in "3 Kids and a Queen."

Here is just one scene from that remarkable picture, described by the reviewer of the daily rushes at the studio, the man who sees the daily shots before anyone else sees them.

"The youthful romance is at an end. Blackie is going away and Julie is in tears. They have quarreled. Before Blackie can get away, Mary Jane (May Robson) comes up for a breath of air and quickly realizes what is on foot. Then she gives the two kids a long lecture of advice. She tells them of her own blighted romance and how a little forbearance on both sides would have made Mary Jane and her beloved a happy pair.

"But pride had its way and wrecked their lives. Now Mary Jane sees the same thing happening to these two young people and she lays bare her own misery and talks them out of the false step they are taking. It comes hard for Mary Jane to do this. It is hard for her to melt her frozen sentiments, and several times she freezes up again in an instant and becomes hard boiled.

"It is a grand performance Miss Robson gives in this long scene. One moment she is the sighing, weary old victim of a blighted love, and the next moment she is a scolding old shrew, ashamed of having revealed her sentimental side and making herself more severe on that account.

A lady for a day becomes a queen for a month when May Robson stars in "Three Kids and a Queen," year's finest comedy.

Billy Burrud Almost Missed Role

ONCE in a blue moon the studios discover a child actor of remarkable ability. Universal has one now who bids fair to rival Shirley Temple, Jane Withers, Baby Peggy, Jackie Coogan, or any other child phenom you might mention. His name is Billy Burrud. He makes his debut in "3 Kids and a Queen" as the little lame boy whom his adopted brothers call "Doc." Billy Burrud is just another one of the amazing things about this extraordinary picture, which will make for wonderful audience appeal.

The director, Edward Ludwig, realized that much of the success of his picture depended on this kid role. Scores and scores of boys were tried out for it, even some girls. Then one night Dan Kelley, the casting director, dropped into the Hollywood Community Theatre and saw Billy Burrud playing in "Music in the Air." The next day a test was made and Billy was signed up. And then, strangely enough, he almost lost the role because neither he nor his mother knew moving picture terms.

His mother had been told by the casting office to "stand by." Mrs. Burrud didn't know what this meant. Billy went to a picture show. In the meantime, the casting office 'phoned their home. In great agitation, the assistant director telephoned to every theatre in Hollywood asking the manager to announce to the audience that if Billy Burrud was in the audience, he was wanted at the Universal studios at once. He just flew.

EXTRA AD MAT

RELATIVES WANTED HER FORTUNE!
ROUGHNECKS WANTED HER LOVE!

2A

On page 8 and 9 are shown the press book advertisements for "Three Kids and a Queen." Space would not permit showing all of them. We are therefore reproducing it in small size.

OFF STAGE WITH "3 KIDS AND A QUEEN"

● After "Three Kids and a Queen," Edward Ludwig, its director, will be recognized for the genuine artist that he is. All the critics are sounding the praise of "Three Kids and a Queen" and Ludwig is coming in for his full measure of praise.

Ludwig himself started on the stage in the New York Hippodrome, went into vaudeville for three years and then entered motion pictures as a prop boy with the old Vitagraph Company in Brooklyn. It has been a hard but a useful road to a directorship, but "Three Kids and a Queen" shows that he is a director par excellence.

● A moment of relaxation on the stage, while May Robson, who has been an actress for fifty-one years, tells little ten-year-old Billy Burrud and her director, Edward Ludwig, how splendid she thinks "Three Kids and a Queen" is.

● Charlotte Henry opened the eyes of Hollywood to her value in a splendid role in "The Human Side" with Adolph Menjou. That was a human picture. When Edward Ludwig was casting "Three Kids and a Queen," he thought of Charlotte Henry and the casting department said "okay." Charlotte was okay. In "Three Kids and a Queen," she has a very much grown-up role for one of her years. When she did "Alice in Wonderland," it was a wonder that she was cast for anything except that kind of roles, but she has demonstrated that she is a real ingenue, although in the picture she looks to be only twelve years old.

● Everybody who has ever seen him wonders why William Benedict doesn't cut his hair. Frankie Darro not only wonders about it; he thinks it is high time to do something about it between scenes on the stage while they were shooting "Three Kids and a Queen." Everyone who sees "Three Kids and a Queen"—and there will be millions of them,—will want to do the same thing to this English sheepdog boy.

● A fine, upstanding boy is Billy Burrud, the real heart appeal of "Three Kids and a Queen." He is a discovery of Dan Kelley.

"REMEMBER LAST NIGHT?"
You'll never forget it!

IT'S BIG ON THE V

Carl Laemmle presents a million-dollar cast in Universal's picture of a thousand surprise

Starring EDWARD ARNOLD • CONSTAN

and ROBERT YOUNG in JAMES WH

REME

LAST

with ROBERT ARMSTRONG • LOUISE HENRY

Ed Brophy • Monroe Owsley • Gustav von Seyffertitz • Jack LaRue • Georg

CARL LAEMMLE, JR.'

ERY FACES OF IT!

. . . . From the novel by Adam Hobhouse—the story that's making millions talk

CUMMINGS • SALLY EILERS

E'S TRIUMPH OF TRIUMPHS

MBER NIGHT?

• GREGORY RATOFF • REGINALD DENNY

eeker • Arthur Treacher • Rafaela Ottiano • E. E. Clive • Frank Reicher

Finest Production

It's got Beauty, Prestige and Punch! It's got Drama, Magnitude and Comedy! It's got What It Takes for Records and Holdovers!

"REMEMBER LAST NIGHT?"

You'll never forget it!

The Roll of Honor

The following exhibitors in the Pittsburgh Territory have used Universal Pictures continuously for

Ten Years or More

EXHIBITOR	THEATRE	TOWN & STATE
Wm. Finkle	Arcade	South Side, Pgh., Pa.
Morris Finkle	Hilltop Capitol	Pittsburgh, Pa.
B. Amdur, Wm. Davis	Garden, Liberty, Triangle	Pittsburgh, Pa.
John Harris	Harris Amuse. Co.	Clark Building, Pgh., Pa.
M. K. Miller	Novelty	Federal St., Pgh., Pa.
H. Goldberg	Regent	Beaver Falls, Pa.
Mike Winograd	Majestic, Oriental	Rochester, Pa.
Wm. Wheat	Sewickley	Sewickley, Pa.
Jake & Ike Silverman	Strand	Altoona, Pa.
Ray Allison	Allison Circuit	Tyrone, Pa.
V. F. Scott	V. F. Scott Circuit	Johnstown, Pa.
George Panagatocos	Park Theatre	Johnstown, Pa.
A. N. Natopolous	Capitol, Olympic, Mishler	Altoona, Pa.
Mike Manos	Band Box	Vandergrift, Pa.
	Manos	Ellwood City, Pa.
	Manos, Star	Monessen, Pa.
	Ritz, Indiana	Indiana, Pa.
Barth Dattola	Paramount, Dattola	New Kensington, Pa.
Ike, Harry, Ben Browarsky	Hippodrome	North Side, Pittsburgh, Pa.
	Belevue	Bellevue, Pittsburgh, Pa.
Harry Handel	Granada	Pittsburgh, Pa.
Mayer Silverman	Braddock	Braddock, Pa.
Joseph Gelman	Plaza	Duquesne, Pa.
	Washington	Swissvale, Pa.
John Stahl	Stahl	Homestead, Pa.
Al Weiss	Capitol, Liberty, Globe	McKeesport, Pa.
Al Weiland	Weiland, Rialto	Wilkinsburg, Pa.
		Mt. Oliver, Pittsburgh, Pa.
Wm. & John Lipsie	Wm. Lipsie	Blairsville, Latrobe, Vandergrift, Pa.
Ed, Fred Bedle	Alhambra Strand	Canonsburg, Pa.
Jack & Richard Marks	Marks Orpheum	Clarksbrug, W. Va.
George & Christ Wagner	Paramount	Connelsville, Pa.
George Nelson	Nelson	Fairmont, W. Va.
George Brinkman	Opera House	Grafton, W. Va.
Nick Anas	Manos	Weirton, Pa.
	Strand	Hollidayscove, W. Va.
Jack Maple	Barney's	Point Marion, Pa.
Ken Woodward	Capitol	Uniontown, Pa.
Frank Fairgraves	Regent	Erie, Pa.
Speer Marousis	Regent	New Castle, Pa.

Five Years

Wm. & Harry Walker	Crafton	Crafton, Pa.
Harry Rachiel	Paramount, Main	Sharpsburg, Pa.
	Gem	Derry, Pa.
J. A., C.R., & Wm. Blatt	Rex	Corry, Pa.
	Grand	Patton, Pa.
	Park	Somerset, Pa.
	Liberty	Mercer, Pa.
	State	East Brady, Pa.
Pete Pegadiotes	Capitol, Colonial	Farrell, Pa.
Charles Truran	Park	Meadville, Pa.
Herman Stahl	Drake, Lyric	Oil City, Pa.
	New Luna	Sharon, Pa.
Burt Redfoot	Arcadia	Windber, Pa.
Larry Puglia	Opera House, Eclipse	Waynesburg, Pa.

A. T. BARRETT, Mgr.

BROADWAY STARS! RAD

SU

Also Sara Mil play by John Suesse and E

O STARS! MUSICAL STARS!

ALL THE FAVORITES OF THE ENTERTAINMENT WORLD! ALL IN THIS ZIPPY MUSICAL ROMANCE!

SWEET ADELINE

Strauss Dancers, Tune Twisters and Nadon Singers . . Story by Herbert Fields . . Screen-Weaver . . Directed by Monte Brice. Adapted by Charles Beahan . . Musical score by Dana l H. Heyman. A Universal Picture producedby Broadway Productions and presented by Carl Laemmle.

SH
WO
HIS NIGHT

OOT THE RKS

IT'S A COMEDY BULL'S-EYE!

CARL LAEMMLE presents

EDWARD EVERETT HORTON

IN HIS FUNNIEST ROLE AND FUNNIEST STORY

OUT

With IRENE HERVEY, JACK LARUE, ROBERT McWADE, LOLA LANE, BILLY BURRUD, JACK MULHALL . . . From original story by Charles Christensen . . . Screenplay by Doris Malloy and Harry Clork . . . Directed by William Nigh . . . Produced by Irving Starr . . . A UNIVERSAL PICTURE.

LATEST NEWS FROM THE Combination still of "The Invisible Ray" showing Karloff and Bela Lugosi above and Frances Drake and Frank Lawton.

Universal Closely Guards "Invisible Ray" Sets

WITH "The Invisible Ray" being filmed by Lambert Hillyer in the most guarded secrecy at Universal City, a number of players were added to the cast and admitted to the closely guarded portals with utmost care. The new players are Georges Renavent, Paul Weigel, Winter Hall, Lloyd Whitlock, Edward Davis, Adele St. Maur, Inez Seabury, Clarence Gordon and Daisy Bufford.

The reason for the secrecy on this Karloff-Bela Lugosi picture is the creation of a screen miracle which has never been attempted before. In "The Invisible Man," Universal successfully produced a void where face and hands should be. In "The Invisible Ray," the problem is to make the hands and face of Karloff shine with a luminosity in the dark. John Fulton, one of Universal's crack photographers, has been experimenting for the last month and half with this problem and feels that in the next week or two, he will produce an effect never before revealed on the motion picture screen.

All Hollywood is curious about this mechanical screen miracle which makes "The Invisible Ray" as remarkable as was "The Invisible Man." The stars are Karloff and Bela Lugosi and the featured players are Frank Lawton and Frances Drake.

Universal Completes "Great Impersonation"

WITH the conviction that it is going to be one of the best pictures of the year, a great cast completed work this week on E. Phillips Oppenheim's famous novel "The Great Impersonation" at Universal City.

In order to give the appropriate and Abyssinian backgrounds to this tale of the great war, Daniel Hall constructed eight of Universal's most intriguing sets. Up until the time he devised the settings for "Remember Last Night?", Hall called himself Dan or Danny. They were the years best sets. Now he is Daniel. Hall has never been to Abyssinia and has never been to England; but you would never know that. The sets are perfect. So is the cast and so is the picture which has been turned out by Alan Crosland from a script by Lieut. Commander Frank Wead, Eve Greene and Major H. O. Yardley.

Edmund Lowe, who plays the dual star role, is supported by one of Universal's most ambitious casts. It includes Valerie Hobson, Wera Engels, Lumsden Hare, Henry Mollison, Henry Kolker, Brandon Hurst, Leonard Mudie, Claude King, Charles Waldron, Murray Kinnell, Spring Byington, Esther Dale, Dwight Frye, Douglas Wood and Virginia Hammond.

Variety Raves Over "Camera Thrills"

"CAMERA THRILLS"
17 Mins.
Center Theatre, New York

One of those rare gems in shorts which come along every so often. Supposed to be a tribute to newsreel cameramen, it's actually a compilation of the most startling newsreel shots taken during a year's time. Well put together, trimmed for maximum of punch and thrills, with Graham McNamee doing the narrative.

Though there is not a sound effect used in these two reels, orchestral accompaniment has been splendidly scored for dramatic effect. Score done by Milton Schwarzwald. Originally a few sound effects were incorporated but later eliminated because music was found more striking.

Fires, floods, hurricanes, wrecks, freak stunts, air and sea disasters, etc. For dramatic action, camera version of King Alexander's assassination is tops.

Footage cleverly edited under supervision of Charles E. Ford, head of Universal newsreel. Not a breathing spell in it. Wear

UNIVERSAL CITY STUDIOS

Bickford's Recovery Centers Big Interest on "East of Java"

WHEN Charles Bickford was bitten by the supposedly friendly lion "Tarzan" and nearly lost his life as a result, the accident created nation-wide publicity and interest in the production in which he was appearing. The production, which was made from Gouverneur Morris' exciting novel, "Tiger Island," was held up for three weeks. Just this week Bickford was able to make the last scenes required and has now left the hospital and reported to another studio for retakes.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch gave a full account with graphic pictures in its Sunday edition on October 13. All syndicates had news and feature stories. A number of Sunday magazine stories are yet to appear.

The result, in spite of the pain to Charles Bickford, will be a great interest in "East of Java" when it is released. The accident caused George Melford a three weeks' delay on the picture.

Peter Finley Dunne, Jr. On "Magnificent Obsession"

PETER FINLEY DUNNE, Jr. son of the famous creator of "Mr. Dooley," was this week engaged by John M. Stahl to work on the set with him, creating additional dialogue for "Magnificent Obsession." This screen adaptation of Lloyd C. Douglas' famous novel also boasts of new players almost every day. Yesterday the players added to the cast which supports Irene Dunne, Robert Taylor, Charles Butterworth and Betty Furness included Charles Fallon, Ara Haswell, Walter Miller, Juan de la Cruz, Joyce Compton, Clive Morgan, Otto Hoffman and Jane Barns.

N. B.—Peter Finley Dunne is no relation to Irene Dunne.

$50 REWARD FOR GOOD IDEAS!

Whether you're an exhibitor or a projectionist—you can earn $50.00 with every good idea for the improvement of Universal pictures which I accept. You see pictures every day and you know what audiences think. Why not send in your suggestion?

CARL LAEMMLE

Constance Cummings and Robert Young in a comic scene from the first part of "Remember Last Night."

Buck Jones Starts "Sunset of Power"

TAKING his unit to Victorville for location scenes, Buck Jones started his new Universal starring film, "Sunset of Power," today. Helen Splane, who showed such promise in a minor role in Jones' latest picture, "The Ivory-Handled Gun," became ill at the last moment and had to give up her chance to be the leading lady in this one, and Dorothy Dix was substituted.

Other members of the supporting cast include Charles Middleton, Donald Kirke, Ben Corbett, Charles King, William Lawrence, Murdock MacQuarrie and Alan Sears. Ray Taylor is directing, with Michael Eason as his assistant, and Allen Thompson is chief cameraman. The story is by J. E. Grinstead and Earl Snell wrote the continuity.

"Diamond" Is Coast's High With $7,400

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 13.—"Diamond Jim" was outstanding here last week. It ran up to $7,400, over normal by $4,200, at the Pantages.

HAIR-RAISING

BREA

REC

EAST of JAVA

STARRING

CHARLES BICKFORD

With Elizabeth Young, Frank Albertson and Leslie Fenton. Adapted from the GOUVERNEUR MORRIS novel, "Tiger Island." Produced by Paul Kohner . . . Directed by George Melford . . . A Universal Picture presented by Carl Laemmle.

H-TAKING ORD-BREAKING!

With June Martel, Andy Devine, J. Farrell MacDonald, Eddie Nugent, Ann Sheridan and these Great All-America Football Stars: Larry "Moon" Mullins, Jim Purvis, Paul Schwegler, Dale Van Sickel, Jim Thorpe, Leslie Cooper, Howard "Red" Christie, Nick Lukats, Frank Sully.

MANY PLEASE?

More than your theatre can hold—and at every show, too! Because this is the greatest football classic of all, built to draw football's biggest crowds!

rles FARRELL in

YOUTH

Original story by Stanley Meyer . . . Screenplay by Henry Johnson, Florabel Muir, Hamilton Macfadden . . . Directed by Hamilton Macfadden . . . Produced by Fred S. Meyer . . . Ansel Friedberger, Associate Producer . . . A Universal Picture Presented by Carl Laemmle.

RINGS BELL! EXCELLENT! MAGN
HEART APPEAL! NOVELTY! DEFINI
DELIGHT! WHOLESOME! THRILLING!
EXCELLENT! BEAUTIFUL! HAS DI

"Rings Bell. Swift and true. Will catch family and carriage trade." "Excellent family picture . . . Noah Beery, Jr. has no current competitors among the younger screen generation. Scenes of the milling animals and final stampede are magnificently pictured . . . should be an easy sale to the legions of animal lovers."

— Daily Variety

"This distinctive and dignified production has definite heart appeal. The scenery on the painted desert is used to the limit and the photography of Dick Fryer attains heights seldom reached, particularly in the stampede sequences in which hundreds of horses are pictured galloping in clouds of dust. As a strong novelty feature, this looks like definite box-office, particularly after word gets around."

— Motion Picture Daily

IFICENT! DISTINCTIVE! DIGNIFIED!
E BOX-OFFICE! STIRRING! LOVELY!
DRAMA! SURE FIRE! GORGEOUS!
AW! PICTURE IS OUTSTANDING!

"Here is a stirring and lovely idyll of the outdoor west of today...it will delight not only the youngsters but everyone with a love of animals, of wholesome sentiment and of thrilling drama. It is sure-fire for any average audience . . . generously photographed . . . there has never been any horse stuff to equal it.

Young Beery seems a youthful reincarnation of the late Will Rogers in looks, in speech and in manner. But the fans will take him to their hearts on his own merits."

— Hollywood Reporter

"Excellent wild horse picture; Beautiful photography and scenic shots; Has draw. The picture is outstanding scenically and photographically." — Showmen's Trade Review

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY SHOWMANSHIP SECTION

A DIGEST OF THE BEST EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

RANDOM IDEAS THAT HIT THE RIGHT SPOT

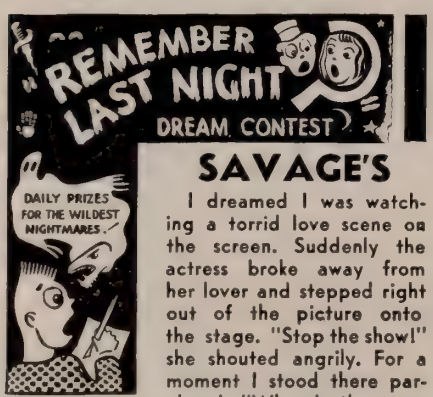
By arranging for thirty two spot radio broadcasts in one day, Dick Walsh hit on a sure-fire way of letting most of Buffalo's movie-goers know that they were holding over "Diamond Jim" at Charles Hayman's New Lafayette Theatre after a smash first week. Covered two stations—sixteen broadcasts per station. Fine, Dick!

* * *

Charles Carroll, Roxie Theatre, Oakland, Calif., sold 12,000 "Diamond Jim" heralds to local merchants. Stores ran their ads on back and distributed them to all customers. Nice work!

HERE'S WINNER No. 2

Frank Savage of the ,Warner Theatre Youngstown, Ohio wins the second of the five $5 prizes Universal offered in connection with the "REMEMBER LAST NIGHT" Nightmare Contest which closed October 15th. Watch succeeding issues of the Weekly for additional winners. Here's Savage's:



SAVAGE'S

I dreamed I was watching a torrid love scene on the screen. Suddenly the actress broke away from her lover and stepped right out of the picture onto the stage. "Stop the show!" she shouted angrily. For a moment I stood there paralyzed. "Where's the manager?" she demanded. I rushed down to the foot of the stage. "What's the matter?" I asked tremblingly, looking up at her. "What's the matter with the heat in this place?" she demanded, shaking her finger at me. "How do you expect me to do justice to my part? Either turn on the heat or I'll act this scene out in my fur coat!" Then she jumped down from the stage and started shaking me and kicking me. I awoke to find my wife shaking me by the shoulders. "Close the window!" she ordered. "IT'S COLD."

—when is a picture a P-I-C-T-U-R-E?

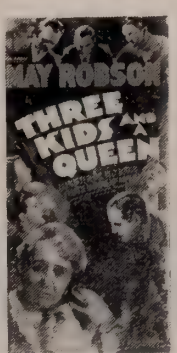
When is a picture a P-I-C-T-U-R-E? When the doctor, lawyer, merchant, chief, rich man, poor man, beggar man, thief—when Sarah Smith and Henry Jones, Tobotsky, O'Hara, Zingalinni, Sweeney, Goldberg, LaPresti, Vanastorockbilt, Hans Schmeercase, Mike Acropolis, and just plain, ordinary you, and You, and YOU — after having seen it, come out of the theatre raving, telling your friends to be sure to see it, boasting what a terrific kick it gave you in your emotion mid-section and how the whole darn world just seemed 100 percent all right and merry because of it . . . then THAT'S a P-I-C-T-U-R-E ! ! !

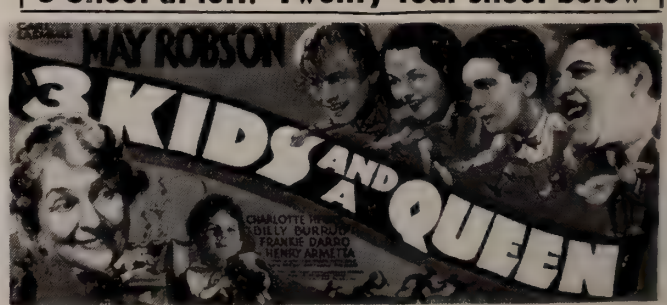
And that's why, after you see it, you'll agree that "THREE KIDS AND A QUEEN" is just about the finest, happiest, most ludicrous, and yet heart-thumpingest all around piece of 100 percent entertainment to hit the screen this season. It's simply "swellousy" with laughs! They come so fast you gasp to catch up. In other words—it's a P-I-C-T-U-R-E!

SEE IT! Invitation preview it to get the advance word-of-mouth working! Campaign 'em to come! There'll be a joy gleam in your eye as you watch your happily satisfied audiences go out chuckling, bubbling and babbling about "THREE KIDS AND A QUEEN."

Joe Weil



3 Sheet at left. Twenty-four sheet below



Sell It As A Sparkling Slice of Real Life — In A Roaring Fifth Avenue - Hell's Kitchen Romantic Drama — With The "Lady For A Day" In A Grand New Hit!

Let Newspaper Headlines Add Zip to Front!

GIVE them plenty to read on your front. Excellent cut-outs are available from the 6- and 24-sheets and the heads can be used to fine advantage. You can hook up May Robson's head over the box-office to a rocker arrangement operated by a motor so the head sways back and forth, its animation attracting attention. You can turn the eyes into transparencies with dimmer lights behind them for extra flash. You can animate the number "three" in the title so that it rocks in the opposite direction from the head. Spot replicas of enlarged newspaper headlines criss-cross around the lobby, playing up the sensational angles of the story as shown in the sketch above.

Display Lines

Gangsters kidnapped her and found she was too hot to hold—but three tough kids hi-jacked her and found she was too swell to let go!

* * *

The richest woman in the world—and the unhappiest—until she was kidnapped and three kids from the slums taught her how to really LIVE!

* * *

She's a terror—but she'll steal your heart! She's dynamite—but she's delightful!

* * *

A brand new triumph by the "Lady for a Day!"

* * *

A sparkling slice of real life in a roaring, Fifth Avenue-Hell's Kitchen romantic drama!

* * *

The lovable star of "LADY FOR A DAY" sweeps again into your heart with a magnificent, new characterization!

Sell The Kids With Newspaper Contest

WITH three youngsters playing important roles in "3 Kids and a Queen," the children will naturally be more than usually interested in it. Go after them with this puzzle contest planted in the local paper. Offer free passes as prizes for the first twenty or thirty youngsters who turn in correct outlines of the hidden face of Mary Jane Baxter (May Robson),—or name the star and give the drawing the best coloring job. Announcement should mention that part of story where Mary Jane is discovered missing from the kids' flat and the immediate search for her. Provide the paper with production stills to illustrate the story. Play the stunt up in your lobby. Ask for exploitation service mat TKQ-1 at Universal Branches.

Boy Scout & Girl Scout Cooperation

ONE of the youngsters in "3 Kids and a Queen" is planning to be a doctor when he grows up. When May Robson is hurt in the runaway accident he gives her first aid treatment. This suggests tie-up with the local troop of Boy Scouts and the Girl Scouts to give free lessons in first-aid from a booth in the lobby.

Armetta Spaghetti Eating Contest

HENRY ARMETTA, always good for a flock of laughs, has an important part in "3 Kids and a Queen." Play him up with this spaghetti eating contest staged in the window of a prominently located restaurant. You'll get a lot of laughs and have the whole town talking about the picture. Finals on your stage. The first prize should be the HENRY ARMETTA CUP suitably engraved with picture title, theatre name, etc. You can promote one from the local jeweler in return for the publicity he will receive or you can buy one for about ten or fifteen dollars. Other prizes can be passes to the show. Display the cup in the window with the announcement. Plug the stunt in your lobby and supply the newspapers with stories about it. Have photographs made of the contestants while they are eating and use for follow-up publicity stories.

Robson + 3 Kids + Kidnappers + G Men + Armetta=Riotous Comedy!

Old Auto Ballyhoo Sells Title

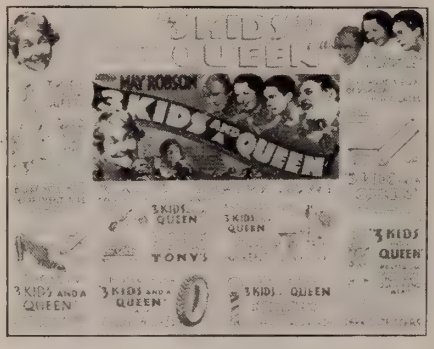
THE older the car you can dig up for this ballyhoo, the better. Get three youngsters to man the front seat and let one of your usherettes ride in the back with a white wig and cardboard crown on her head, imitation royal robe and a dog in her lap, etc. Banner the car as shown in the sketch, give the kids noise makers. Have the "queen" pass out heralds when a crowd collects or when the car is held up by traffic lights. Keep it on the streets during the busy hours and you'll have a flock of kids chasing it wherever it goes adding to its attention-pulling power.

Pet Stores

Contact local pet stores and arrange for a cocker spaniel give-away on the opening night of the picture. Set details far enough in advance to have the dog in lobby, two weeks before opening. Plug the give-away on your screen, in the house organ, and in newspaper stories.

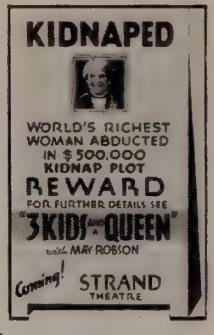
Armetta Impersonations

A "HENRY ARMETTA" impersonation contest run a couple of nights in advance of "3 Kids and a Queen" is a good interest builder, at little cost. If your local radio station happens to run an amateur night, you can arrange for the winner of your contest to appear on the air, with credit given the theatre and picture.



LOBBY TEASER BOARDS

PLAY up the dramatic angle and plug the part the dog plays in the picture with these teaser lobby boards. Copy also can be used for tack cards to snipe around town.



LAND FINE WINDOWS WITH TIE-UP STILLS

THE following tie-up stills are available for your campaign on "3 Kids and a Queen." No. 752—25 & 26—Music and musical instrument stores. P9—Knitting yarns and lessons. 72—Tea services, home furnishings, tea or chocolate. 70—Barber shops, lotions, hair tonics, etc. 60—Dinner service, home furnishings. 6, 7 or 8—Spaghetti or restaurants. Your Universal Branch can secure these stills on application to the Exploitation Department.

CO-OP AD PAGE

THIS co-op page for merchants is headed by the streamer:—"SPECIAL BARGAIN DAY! Everything To Outfit From Heads to Toes!—'3 Kids and a Queen' And All the Kids and Queens of Blankville!" "3 Kids and a Queen" offers many possibilities for tie-up advertising and window displays with stores selling children and youth's items as well as stores that specialize in women's necessities and luxuries. Furnish the merchants cooperating with tie-up stills for illustrating their ad and accessories for dressing up the displays.

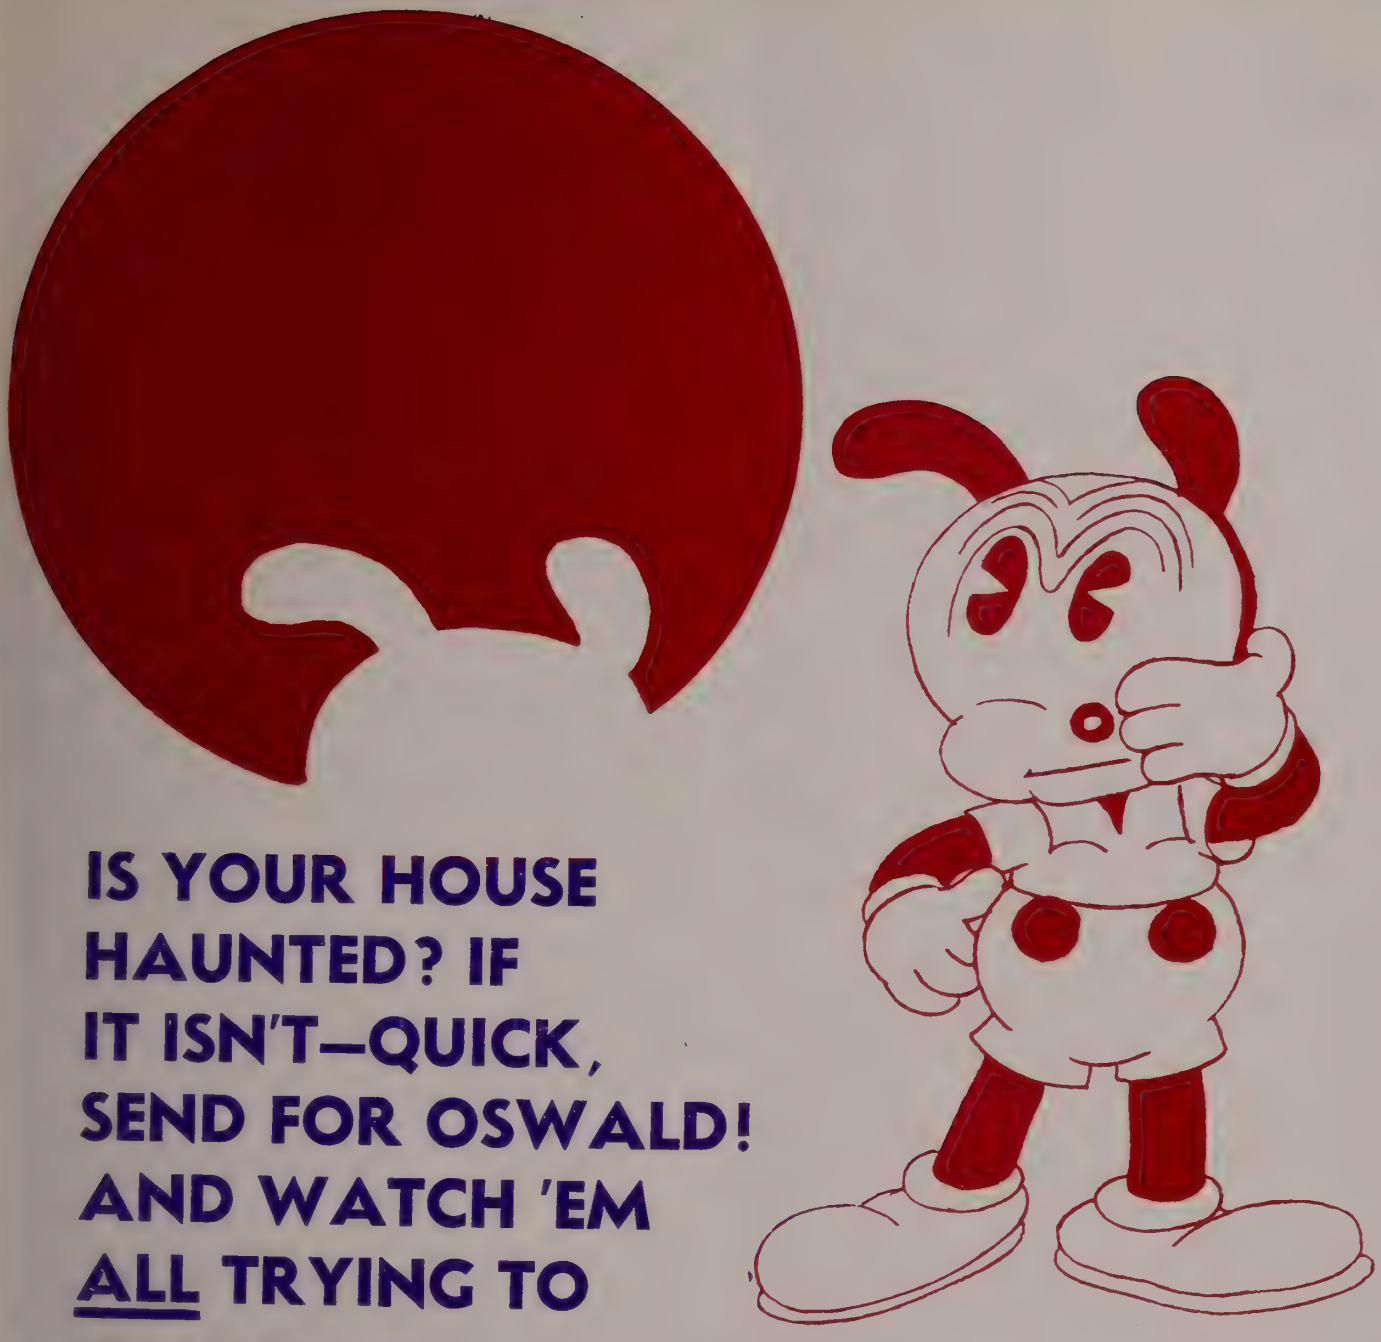
ADs in the personal columns of the newspaper are inexpensive yet big interest getters. Also spot teaser flashes on the radio, followed by a few explanatory words on the picture.

Stage A Pet Dog Parade

"AUBREY" a Cocker Spaniel, plays an important part in the story of "3 Kids and a Queen." He is May Robson's pet and as Mary Jane Baxter, wealthy recluse, she lavishes on him all manner of fantastic attention. Play up this angle with a parade of pet dogs to the theatre on opening night. Offer prizes for the best "dressed," the best groomed, the smallest and the largest dogs. A grand prize can be offered for the dog that most closely resembles "Aubrey!"

Dog Costume Party

OFFER prizes for the funniest costume arranged on a dog. In the story, if Mary Jane Baxter's (May Robson) dog had been disguised his mistress would not have fallen a victim to the kidnap gang. Ask contestants how they would costume their dogs to make them unrecognizable. On a certain night have the dogs parade across the stage and let the applause of the audience be the judge. Promote a blanket, leash or collar from one of the local pet shops for a first prize. Give the stunt a good plug in your lobby.



IS YOUR HOUSE HAUNTED? IF IT ISN'T—QUICK, SEND FOR OSWALD! AND WATCH 'EM ALL TRYING TO HAUNT IT!

OSWALD

THE LUCKY RABBIT

In a new Universal Cartoon

"MONKEY BUSINESS"

From

UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.

ROCKEFELLER CENTER
NEW YORK CITY

ROBERT B WENNER
22 CROSS ST
MALDEN MASS

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
Paid
Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

UNIVERSAL NEWSREEL

IS AT THE FRONT!

SHOOTING FASTEST WHERE SHOTS FLY THICKEST! BRAVING DEATH TO SCOOP 'EM ALL!

With GRAHAM McNA

Printed in U. S. A.

Larry Edmunds Bookshop
6658 Hollywood Blvd.
Hollywood, Calif. 90028
HO 3-3273
World's Largest Collection
Of Books on Motion Pictures

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

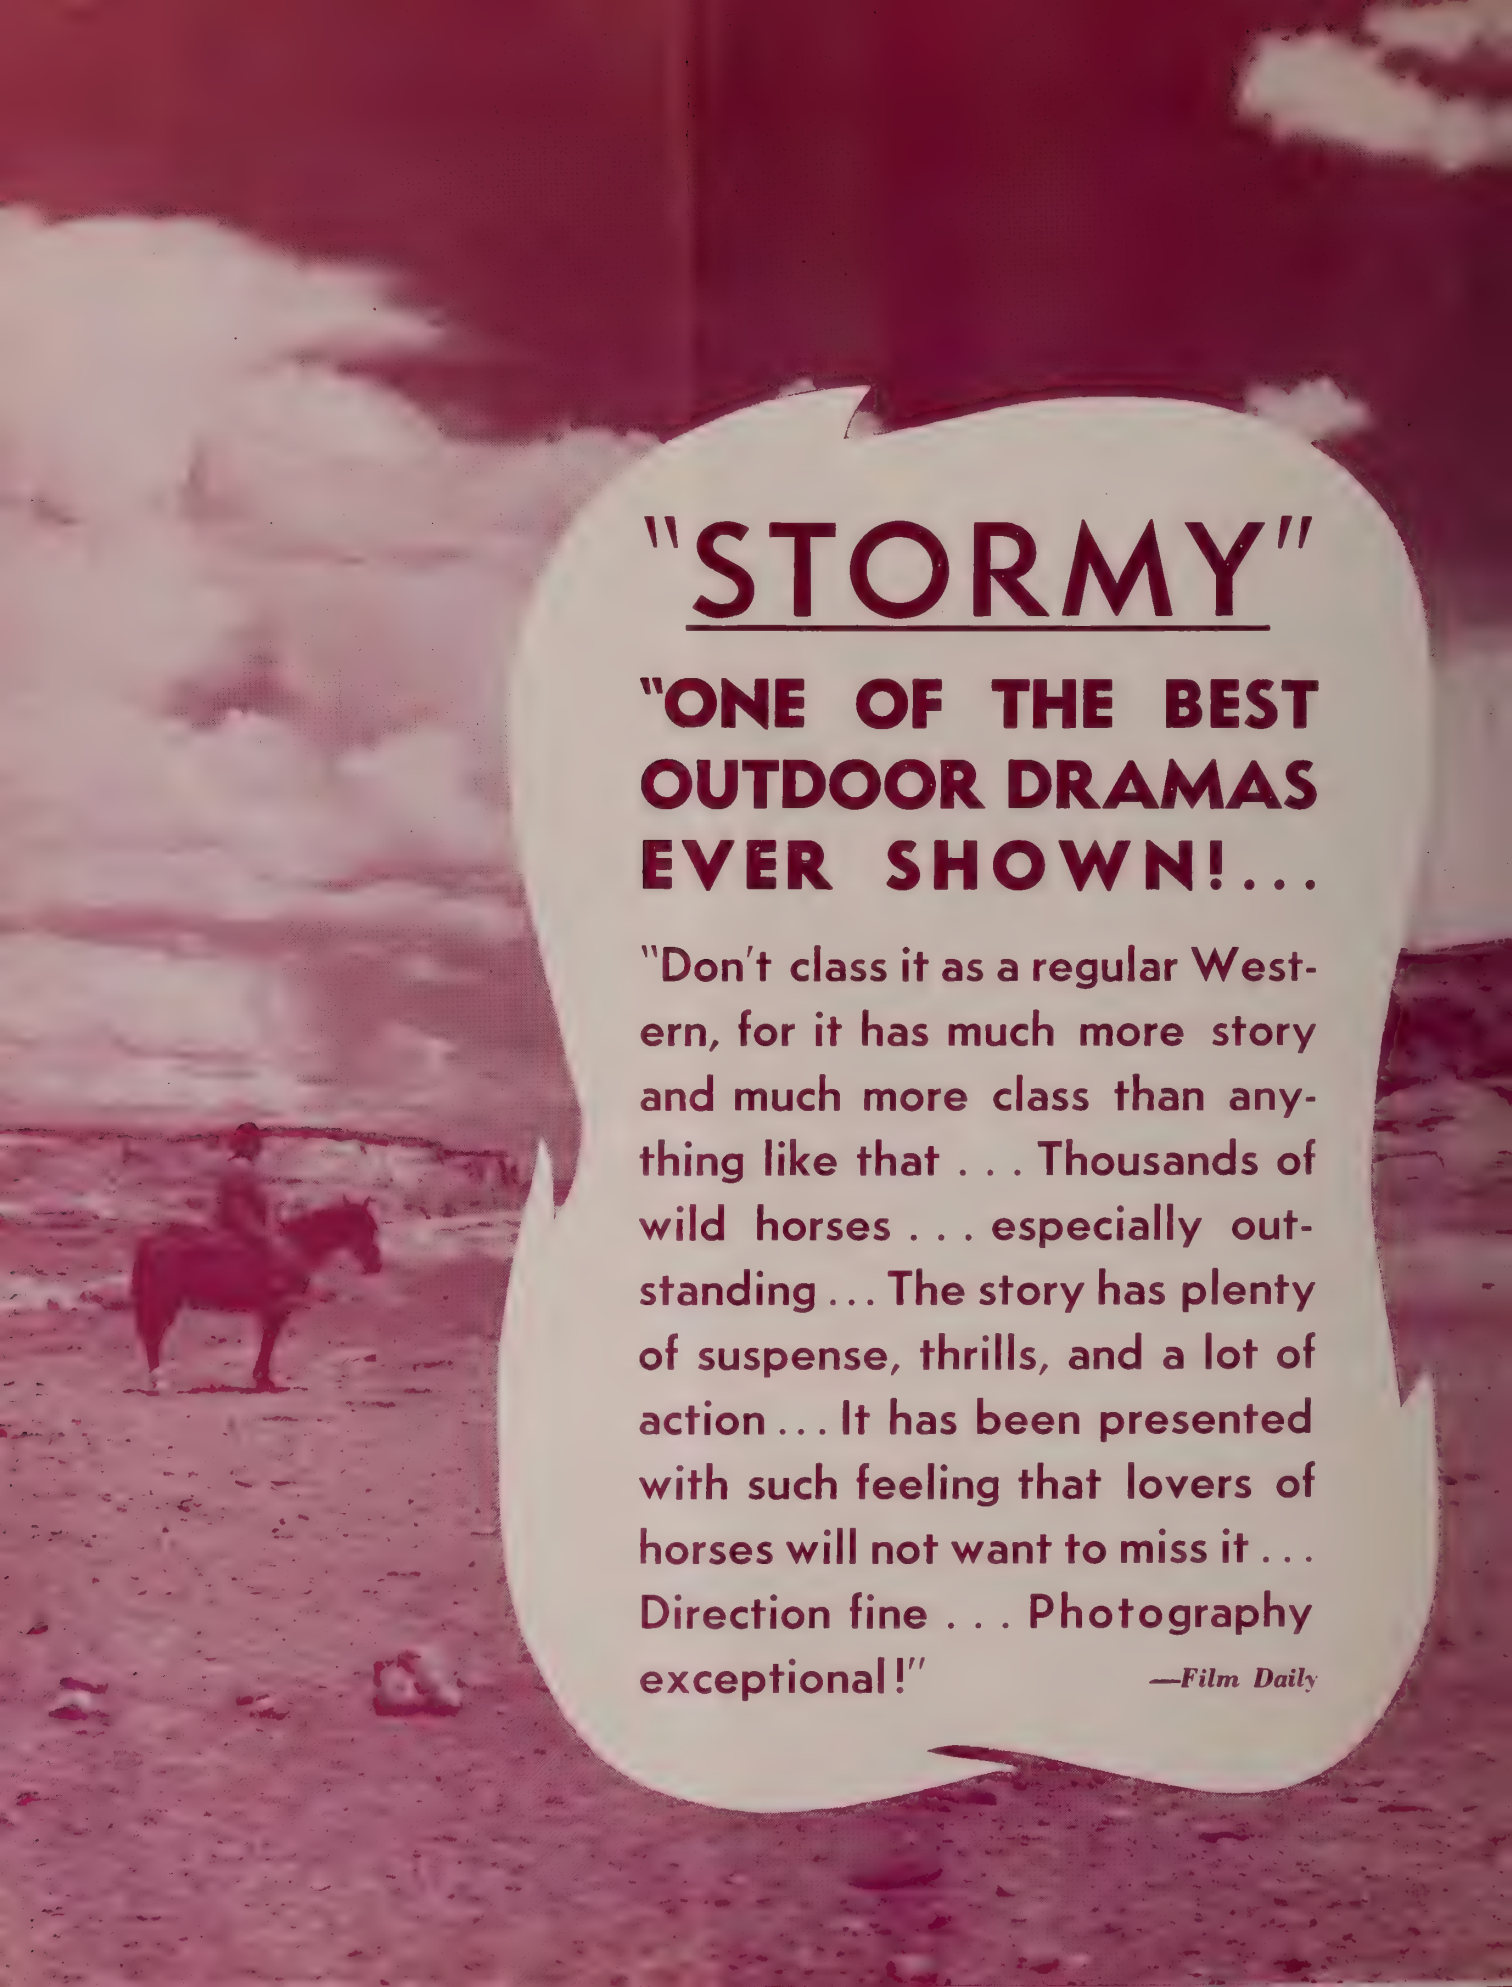
VOL. 37, NO. 13

OCT. 26, 1935

"I GUARANTEE A KNOCKOUT!"

CARL LAEMMLE

3 KIDS AND A QUEEN



"STORMY"

"ONE OF THE BEST OUTDOOR DRAMAS EVER SHOWN!...

"Don't class it as a regular Western, for it has much more story and much more class than anything like that . . . Thousands of wild horses . . . especially outstanding . . . The story has plenty of suspense, thrills, and a lot of action . . . It has been presented with such feeling that lovers of horses will not want to miss it . . . Direction fine . . . Photography exceptional!"

—Film Daily

NO MATTER HOW TOUGH OR HARDBOILED YOU ARE
WE dare YOU
NOT TO CRY LIKE A BABY
WHEN YOU SEE • • • •

THESE PERFECTLY
IN A STORY NO HUM

MAY ROBSON

Crowned the Queen of Hearts in her tender role of the world's richest and loneliest spinster, who kidnaps a whole family!

HENRY ARMETTA

You've laughed at him before, but never have you roared as you will when you see him as the panicky barber with a houseful of orphans!

HERMAN BING

As the gossipy grocer, teamed with Henry Armetta for the funniest comedy combination since "Cohen and Kelly"!

3 KIDS and with JOHN MILJAN, FERDINAND GOTTSCHALK, WILLIAM BENEDICT, HENRY KOLKER, TOM DUGAN

A UNIVERSAL PICTURE Presented by CARL LAEMMLE

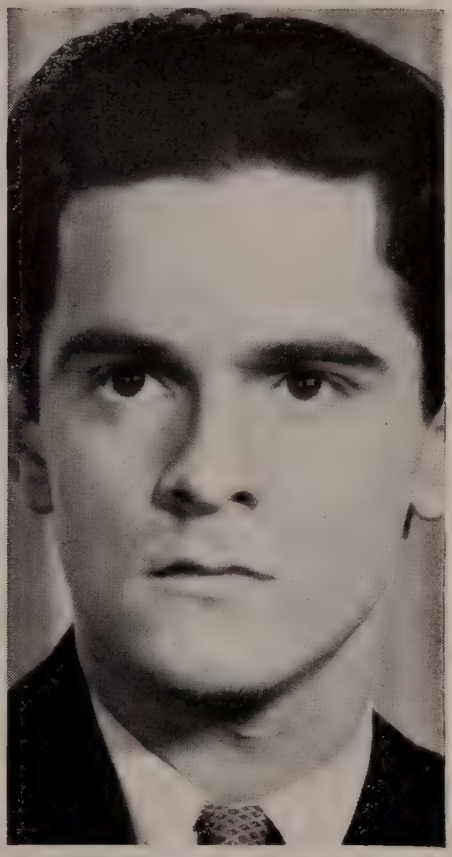
MARVELOUS PEOPLE AN BEING CAN RESIST!

BILLY BURRUD

He'll twine himself around every heart. When he smiles, life takes on a new meaning and the world is a better place to live in!

CHARLOTTE HENRY

As the wistful Hell's Kitchen waif, whose toughest job is to keep her little "brothers" straight in New York's toughest environment!



FRANKIE DARRO

As Tenth Avenue's toughest kid, who is ready to give up his life for the cranky millionairess—because "the old battle-ax is like a mother" to him!

a QUEEN

Screenplay by Barry Trivers and Sam Ornitz Story by Harry Poppe and Chester Beecroft.

Directed by EDWARD LUDWIG A Ben Verschleiser Production

HOW TO M OUT OF

No. 835 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

A burp is a hiccough. (Hiccup to you.)

Ordinarily, in polite society, it is suppressed, so I am told.

It is supposed to be slightly vulgar to burp within the hearing of sensitive and educated ears.

I have always felt this was not quite fair, because, after all, a burp is just Mother Nature's way of giving a certain indefinably beautiful relief to a human being in distress.

Universal discovered an author who, too, felt that the burp should be glorified and not condemned.

He found a way of putting it on a pedestal instead of banning it from its rightful place in the pleasure of human beings.

So we wove a plot around a burp.

We bought it and then we chose as the chief burper the only man in captivity who can burp convincingly, genteely and honestly. Of course I mean Edward Everett Horton.

AKE MONEY A BURP!

We thought so much of the idea that we surrounded Mr. Horton with as perfect a cast as you ever saw in your whole life. We even got William Nigh to direct it.

VARIETY says it is "delirious nonsense." It also says it is "hilarious comedy."

It is one of the two best performances Edward Everett Horton has ever given in his whole career — the other of his best two was in "Top Hat."

I suggest that you put cushions in your aisles to avoid damage suits when you run this picture, because the folks are going to roll in the aisles.

In these days I'd rather make the millions laugh than think, first because it is easier and second because it is better for them.

This picture will bowl them over.

The title is "His Night Out." Book it as soon as you can and stick an extra blast of dynamite into your advertising.

Carl Laemmle

YOUR MONEY BACK

If You Are Not Satisfied with MAY ROBSON in "3 Kids and A Queen"

"My Man Godfrey" is coming nearer and nearer to the screen. During the summer it appeared serially in Liberty Magazine. Last week it came out in the form of a book, the cover of which is reproduced here, published by Little, Brown and soon it will go into production at Universal City with William Powell as "My Man Godfrey."

THAT'S what Carl Laemmle advises every exhibitor to say to his patrons when he runs "3 Kids and a Queen." There are not many pictures made these days where you dare say that. "3 Kids and a Queen" is one picture in a million. It will please every type of audience. Rich people, poor people, young people, old people, crooks, and even the Department of Justice G-Men in Washington will get a great kick out of it.

"3 Kids and a Queen" is geared to the popular taste, but it is so human, so appealing, so amusing, that every patron will come out of your show feeling that he has had his money's worth and that he wants everyone of his friends to go and see that picture. That's the kind of a picture "3 Kids and a Queen" is. When you stand in your lobby and watch the crowds coming out, you will see half of them have handkerchiefs in their hands and the other half is gasping for breath. I will venture to say that half of them will go up to you and thank you for booking such a picture into your house.

If you don't make every effort to get everyone in your city to see this picture, you are missing one of the greatest opportunities of your life time. "3 Kids and a Queen" is not only a business builder, but it is a good will builder in your town. That's why I said in last week's Weekly, and repeat in this one, "I guarantee a knock-out."

CAR LAEMMLE

"King Solomon of Broadway" made an enviable reputation at the Roxy Theatre last week. It rolled up $6,000 more than the average take of the theatre. Chidnoff, the photographer, made no mistake when he advertised his own pictures of Dorothy Page in the advertising space in front of his Fifth Avenue studio during the week that "King Solomon of Broadway" was playing at the Roxy."

JAMES STEWART IS NEW LEAD FOR MARGARET SULLAVAN

JAMES STEWART is the white haired boy of Hollywood today because of the resounding hit he has made in "Rose Marie." In addition to that, he has just been signed by Universal to play opposite Margaret Sullavan in 'Next Time We Love." He replaces Francis Lederer, who becomes leading man for Marta Eggerth in 'Song of Joy."

James Stewart, while new to the films, has made a splendid reputation for his type of acting for the last two years on the Broadway stage. He played in "Another Language," "Spring In Autumn" and other hits. "Next Time We Love" is the Ursula Parrott story which ran serially in McCall's Magazine under the title of "Say Goodbye Again." It is still in the best seller class, having been brought out in novel form in the spring by Longmans Green.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, N. Y. City
Universal Pictures Corp.
Copyrighted 1935
(All Rights Reserved)
OCT. 26, 1935
Vol. 37 No. 13

✚ ✚ ✚

"Silver Spurs" Purchased for Next Buck Jones Story

AS soon as he finishes his current picture for Universal, Buck Jones will start on Charles Selzer's novel, "Silver Spurs." Universal has just purchased this property for him and will immediately turn it over to the western story department for adaptation and continuity. If Helen Splane recovers from the illness which kept her out of "Sunset of Power," she will be leading lady of "Silver Spurs." The western star expects to complete "Sunset of Power" on Wednesday of next week.

Charlotte Henry

One of the clever players, who make "Three Kids and a Queen" an unadulterated delight. And doesn't she look like Margaret Sullavan?

THE BIGGEST GR
POINT TO THEM CHARACTERS
$
3 KIDS
and

OSSES YOU EVER PLAYED TO WILL WITH PRIDE AS THE MOST LOVABLE EVER SEEN ON ANY SCREEN!

a QUEEN

Here is YOUR NEW DEAL

Here are the "3 Kids and a Queen" — Billy Burrud, Frankie Darro, May Robson and Billy Benedict.

"THREE KIDS AND A QUEEN"

May Robson and Billy Burrud in the climax scene of the picture.

Here's the dog, Flush, who plays an important part in this picture, as he did in "The Barret's of Wimpole Street."

IF you want a new deal between you and your customers, book "3 Kids and a Queen" and play it immediately. Then, if you want to follow this up in a week or two with another thoroughly satisfying comedy, book "His Night Out" with Edward Everett Horton. You have no idea how much higher you will stand in the estimate of the people in your community after you have shown these two pictures!

Most great pictures are the outcome of a novel or play by recognized authors and playwrights. However, some of the greatest screen productions have originated from the combined efforts of a number of moving picture makers and the result is called an "original." It should be a composite. "3 Kids and a Queen" started out as an original story by Chester Beecroft and Harry Poppe. It had the elements of a great popular appeal. By the time the script was written by Barry Trivers and Samuel Ornitz, it was even more to the liking of Ben Verschleiser, who made the production. A number of suggestions by the director, Edward Ludwig,

May Robson herself and some original ideas by Henry Armetta and Herman Bing, as the picture was being rehearsed, rounded out a story which combined comedy, heart interest, melodrama, in a vehicle which is so typical of the best in moving pictures that it deserves to live far beyond the camera life of a releasing picture.

After its very first release, it will be ranked by critics with such pictures as "It Happened One Night," "Ruggles of Red Gap" and May Robson's own "Lady For A Day."

"3 Kids and a Queen" also furnishes a remarkable example of perfect casting. May Robson herself never had a more satisfactory role than Mary Jane Baxter, the "richest woman in the world," whose sad experience of love had turned her into a cantankerous and crabbed old battle axe, whose relatives were trying to put her into an asylum so that they could enjoy her money. Henry Armetta plays the role of Tony Orsitti, the benevolent barber who had adopted three kids and who suddenly found himself in extreme danger of being accused of kidnapping the richest woman in the world. Herman Bing plays the babbling butcher in Hell's Kitchen who is flattered by the G Men into admissions that put his dearest friend in jeopardy of his life and then makes a speech to the court to save him which will throw you into a fit of laughter.

One of the amusing scenes in "3 Kids and a Queen" is where the hiding-out heiress and the benevolent barber get the whole troupe to sing "Here Comes Cookie."

Of course, in the end it comes out all right and here is the heiress with the adopted family which she took over from the barber.

Jane Baxter discovers for the first time that her relatives, who have been trying to put her in an insane asylum, think now that she has been kidnapped. She refuses to leave.

THEY'LL ROCK YOUR HOUSE WITI

LAUGHTER—SOAK IT WITH TEARS!

BILLY BURRUD

This intriguing youngster made his debut in "3 Kids and a Queen," played an interesting role in "His Night Out," and now has been set by Universal for "Sutter's Gold." Billy Burrud is under long term contract to Universal.

A GREAT DAY'S WORK on "3 Kids and a Queen"

The public hearing of the Lunacy Commission concerning the sanity of Mary Jane Baxter in "3 Kids and a Queen," as described by a reporter on the set at Universal City during filming of this May Robson starring vehicle. Left to right, Henry Armetta, Frankie Darro, Charlotte Henry, Billy Burrud, the dog Flush, William Benedict and Herman Bing. In the larger cut, May Robson and Billy Burrud.

A GREAT day's work was turned in by this outfit today. It was probably the biggest day in Herman Bing's life as an actor. May Robson rose to her peak scene in a wonderful piece of flawless elocution that could not be surpassed, even by Sara Bernhardt. The scene is a long shot of a large, long board-meeting room where the Lunacy Commission is having a public hearing concerning the sanity of Mary Jane Baxter (Miss Robson).

There was drama in the air all over the set. There was a feeling of drama all over Hollywood and in fact the whole world was sick at heart because the news of the death of Will Rogers had just come in. It affected Miss Robson more deeply than the others because to her Will Rogers was a dear old friend.

It was with difficulty that Miss Robson carried on, and when she got up to do her big scene she put something extra into it. She put into it that surging sorrow inside of her that would have burst its bounds in some other way had not she been required that morning to do her biggest emotional scene in this production.

This large board room is an echoing place and Herman Bing's resonant voice makes much reverberation as he pleads most eloquently for a verdict of acquittal for Mary Jane. Herman is not very legal or technical. He brushes all that aside in a masterful way. But he puts on a great show and makes up in amusing majesty what he lacks in knowledge of English and court procedure. There is a defense attorney, played by the able Lawrence Grant, but Herman makes him look like a mere fill-in while he prances around and conducts the trial to suit himself.

It is a "screwy" trial, with the witnesses giving the show and legal dignitaries (including Ferdinand Gottschalk) acting as mere spectators. In this respect it is remindful of an Italian trial, in expression and emotion without interruption or fear of consequences. Thus, Herman calls on Armetta for corroboration and Armetta in turn calls on the kids and they all get up and have their say, right out from the heart and shoulder.

It is a beautiful scene to behold. Mary Jane gets up and asks if she might not say a word in her own behalf. With permission, she then tells the Court of the loveless life she had despite the great wealth she has always had. She tells how the only real happiness she ever knew she found with these humble people who are here to defend her.

The little lame boy, Doc, runs in and throws his arms around her and she goes on with more force than ever to vindicate the giving of her money to help the poor, the lame and the sick, the thing that has brought her to trial, a trial instigated by mercenary relatives who are there to see her put away. It is a grand piece of acting. May Robson never did better. It could not be done better.

It is a great scene by a great cast, topped off by that marvelous mistress of elocution—May Robson.

"GREAT STUFF ALL OF THIS and it looks like a GREAT PICTURE!!" It Is!

✚ ✚ ✚

Melvyn Douglass for "Spinster Dinner"

UNIVERSAL has signed Melvyn Douglass, the lead opposite Claudette Colbert in "She Married Her Boss," to play opposite Carole Lombard in "Spinster Dinner." This Faith Baldwin story which originally appeared in Cosmopolitan, has been held up for a month for lack of a leading man who would team appropriately with Carole Lombard and of whom the star approved. Yesterday all hands agreed on Melvyn Douglass and he gets the coveted role.

WOW!

THE Hollywood REPORTER

Oct. 12, 1935

'THREE KIDS AND QUEEN' PIP;

May Robson Stars In Grand Part

"THREE KIDS AND A QUEEN"
(Universal)

Audiences of all kinds will roar with delight over May Robson's first starring vehicle under the Universal banner and box-offices will echo the good. It is a pip of

DAILY VARIETY DAILY

Sat., Oct. 12, 1935

. . . Film Previews!

For Henry Armetta, foremost, it is a distinct triumph. He does as and savagely dominated ... whose heart is melted when an accident thrusts her into the home of a humble barber and his adopted brood, has a part that gives her a real chance and she troupes magnificently, with every ounce of emotional value captured and sustained.

A supporting cast whose excellence is amplified by the many character parts that are rich and real in human values; a production of outstanding excellence and a skillfully and sympathetically written script by Barry Trivers and Sam Ornitz will surely add up to make this a box-office natural.

(Univ.)

Distinct triumph for Henry Armetta, who with May Robson put picture in b. o. smash class.

Inspired writing, direction and playing and careful production combine to make 'Three Kids and a Queen' an outstanding comedy of the homely, heart warming kind. It is grand entertainment throughout, should build for impressive box office and left and unwittingly ... involved in a technical kidnaping, as the screen has seen in years. Picture puts him up among the peerage of comedians with a truly memorable performance bound to rate critical raves.

May Robson deftly uses all her practiced arts in vitalizing the role of the eccentric Park avenue spinster millionaire who is picked up by Armetta's assorted kids after an accident to become the inspirational and, to the family, dangerous queen of the lowly household while her world hunts for her. Tears and chuckles she evokes masterfully, and her scenes with Armetta and with the youngsters, Charlotte Henry, Frankie Darro, William Burrud and an uncredited lad, have rare emotional beauty and heart appeal, as well as gusty humor.

One other player especially, among the able cast, stands out for high honors — the boys William Burrud, a cripple who wants to be a doctor. His engaging frankness and genial personality will charm its way into the heart of any audience.

Edward Ludwig does an ace job of direction, handling his people and subject matter with sympathy. Picture adds definitely to his standing among the b. o. directors.

Herman Bing stands out among supporting players for high comedy honors in ludicrous role of Armetta's interfering neighbor. The youngsters, Charlotte Henry, Frankie Darro, the black sheep, and the uncredited boy are splendidly natural and appealing. Lillian Harmer does an excellent bit as the eccentric spinster's maid. Lawrence Grant is okay as her attorney. John Miljan makes his part count as the chief of high jackets who really kidnaps the old lady from the Armetta refuge ... to remain to

MOTION PICTURE
DAILY

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Three Kids and a Queen"

(Universal)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 14.—"Three Kids and a Queen" indicates a full house of patrons forgetting their poker faces after the first reel.

Armetta scores a huge individual success for comic despairs. Miss Robson gives her expected energetic crusty-shell-heart-of-gold performance. Herman Bing gets a full measure of laughs as Armetta's pal. E. E. Clive makes a small part notable. The excellent cast is completed by Charlotte Henry, Lillian Harmer, Lawrence Grant, Hedda Hopper, Henry Kolker and Ferdinand Gottschalk.

D. BERSHON, President CHAS. W. KOERNER, Vice-President J. H. GOLDBERG, Secretary-Treasurer

WESTLAND THEATRES, Incorporated
~~1584 W. WASHINGTON BLVD. • REpublic 3161~~
LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA
3341 LEIMERT PLACE • VErmont 3121

Monday Oct.7th.1935.

Universal Studio
Universal City.

Dear Sir:

I am writing you at my first opportunity to tell you of the fine reaction I received from the Preview of "Three Kids And A Queen" here at the Leimert Theatre last Wednesday night.

I was not able to see all of the picture,being busy in the foyer part of the time,but from all the nice things I heard from my patrons on the way out,it must have been a "honey".

As a rule,the people who attend this Theatre are not prone to comment a great deal on anything they see but I had a great number of the folks tell me how fine Miss Robson was in the picture,how they laughed at Henry Armetta,and how they shed tears at the climax of the story,which leads me to believe that the picture has everything in the entertainment line. This Theatre has a tough audience for previews,so to rate these remarks,the picture's "Gotta be good".

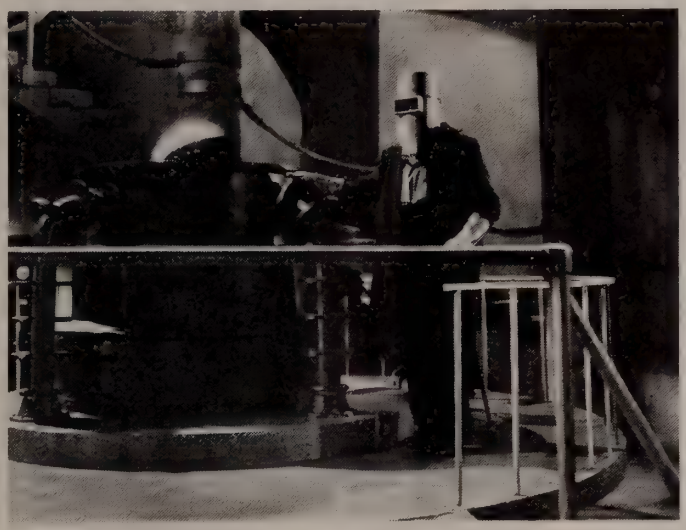
Any time you have a picture of this calibre to preview, don't forget me,I'll be tickled to get it.

Very best wishes for the success of "Three Kids And A Queen"

Sincerely,
Ray Lindsey
MGR.LEIMERT THEATRE.

CLAMP DOWN LID ON REPORTS FROM "THE INVISIBLE RAY" SETS

"This will probably be the last report on this picture, which will be produced in private from this point on, owing to secret processes concerning The Invisible Ray which must not be divulged."
Studio Critic



This is the last scene of "The Invisible Ray" that the Studio Critic was permitted to see. Karloff in protective helmet is starting a terrifying experiment. The players below, Frank Lawton, Frances Drake, Bela Lugosi, Walter Kingsford and Beulah Bondi, behind a special light repelling glass, watch with bated breath. It is a photographic experiment for the studios too. That's why no one will be admitted.

WITH this sentence, yesterday's daily report on rushes from "The Invisible Ray" set, closed, leaving Universal's entire organization in the dark as regards further filming of this Boris Karloff-Bela Lugosi picture. There will be no more reports sent out. To give some idea of the revolutionary nature of such a procedure, it is necessary to explain what daily reports on rushes mean to movie producers.

They correspond to bulletins from a battlefront to army headquarters. They are written by men called studio critics. They contain a complete description of each day's filming, with the picture's title, cast, production staff and footage shot. They are read by all studio executives from Carl Laemmle down. Additional copies are airmailed to Universal's offices in New York for the executives. Thus the whole organization is able to keep its finger constantly on the pulse of production. For the studio critic not to report a scene after being filmed is an absolutely unprecedented event. Even during the shooting of "The Invisible Man" he was on the job constantly. This is the first time in the studio's twenty-year history that the daily reports have stopped. It is revolutionary.

The reason for this secrecy lies in the new photographic process never before used on the screen, by which Karloff will be shot in all remaining scenes. It was invented by John Fulton, Universal's camera expert and special effects man. It is now perfected, after weeks of experiment. By means of it Karloff will be photographed so that his face and hands will have a ghostly phosphorescent glow in the dark. The instant he steps into light his flesh will appear normal.

How Fulton will accomplish this glow and instantaneous change by camera work alone without makeup, is part of the secret. Lugosi, Frank Lawton, Frances Drake and the other players can tell nothing. Only the barest details have been offered by producer Edmund Grainger and director Lambert Hillyer. They state that Fulton will get some of his effects by projecting light through several filters. The completed film will need no retouching. No further information is obtainable.

Cameramen George Robinson and Harold Smith have seen the first tests screened. They say that Fulton's "invisible ray" process makes Karloff seem to pulsate with a weird incandescence like a big lightning bug. Later scenes will show flames bursting from his head and hands as he plunges from a window in his role of the scientist whose body becomes a human bomb charged with deadly radium rays and who returns to avenge the theft of his invention and of his wife's love.

A sample of the extra big ad campaign prepared for this outstanding production. A wide variety of ad selling angles is included in the pressbook.

He Awakens, Is Accused Of Slaying 3

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH—"Do you know what you did last night?" Sheriff Joseph Holbrook asked George Leo Rutledge, 31, Monday morning.

"No," Rutledge replied.

"You're accused of murdering three people in Bountiful and shooting two others," the sheriff informed the former San Diego, Cal., butcher who now lives in Salt Lake City. "Did you do it?"

"I Might Have Done It."

Again Rutledge's reply was "No."

Later Rutledge said he had been drinking since leaving Rock Springs, Wyo., early Sunday and didn't remember a thing but admitted that, "I might have done it."

Police Chief W. L. Pane said ballistics tests showed a pistol found in the possession of Rutledge fired the bullets that killed John Loren East, 43, Bountiful, Utah, farmer; Alice A. East, 38, his wife, and Mrs. Blanche Nelson, 35, Woods Cross, Utah, widow.

Spurned.

Chief Payne announced also a car used by Rutledge Sunday contained bloodstains.

Deputy Sheriff Calvin Roberts said Rutledge had known Mrs. Nelson for several months and had attempted to make "dates" with her, but she spurned his advances.

Dragged Body From Car.

The slayer, according to police reconstruction of the story, started on his orgy at about 10 p. m. Sunday, when he beat and shot Mrs. Nelson on a lonely road at Bountiful, 10 miles north of Salt Lake City.

As he dragged her body from the car to a ditch, he found East irrigating his farm Without warning he shot Mrs. East. who was

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

They Laughed at Death in "Remember Last Night"

ONE definite sign of the advancement toward sophistication of the motion picture is that producers are now injecting humor, wit and "wisecracks" into murder mysteries, according to Carl Laemmle, Jr., producer of Universal's weird and eerie "Remember Last Night?"

"Producers once had the belief that audiences couldn't really mix their emotions, and that they had one-track minds," Laemmle asserts. "In recent years, they have learned that the audience can be entertained by a mixture of emotions, and the result is that humor is being injected into mystery stories and that mystery is being injected into humorous stories.

"Proof of the fact that audiences enjoy mixed reactions is shown by one notable example, 'The Thin Man.' Again, in 'Remember Last Night,' the humor is definitely entangled with the plot. In fact, I chose the best-selling novel by Adam Hobhouse because the characters, although they were in one 'jam' after another and all faced death at different times, didn't lose their capacity to joke. They laughed, and audiences laugh with them."

One of the ingredients for a successful "mixed emotions" picture, according to Laemmle, is a director with a knowledge of how to thrill but who, at the same time, possesses a sense of humor. That is the reason he picked James Whale to direct. He also realized that a fine cast was necessary to keep the production from being burlesque, so he chose such players as Edward Arnold, Constance Cummings, Sally Eilers, Robert Young, Robert Armstrong, and Gregory Ratoff.

✚ ✚ ✚

He Couldn't Remember Last Night and This Really Happened!

The reproduction on the left hand column of this page is a front page story in the Des Moines Tribune of October 14th. While the circumstances of this case are entirely different from those on which the moving picture, "Remember Last Night?" is based, the psychology back of them is the same.

Here is a man who went on a huge bender just as the characters in "Remember Last Night?" did. He is accused of three murders. He can't remember whether he committed them or not. He said he might have done it. The characters in "Remember Last Night?" said the same thing. So you see, there is nothing far-fetched or impossible in such a plot as Adam Hobhouse contrived for the story which Carl Laemmle, Jr., has made into such a walloping big success.

The reproduction in the right hand column is this Saturday's Saturday Evening Post of Adam Hobhouse's novel "Hangover Murders."

I'VE got to depart from my rule and use an adjective or two in describing "REMEMBER LAST NIGHT?" It is such an intense story and is so splendidly presented that simple words seem inadequate. It has all the elements of melodramatic thrills which the people of this country love—murder, mystery, detective cleverness and comedy. It begins with an unusual celebration, winds up in confusion and tragedy, and then the sun shines again. The cast has enough stars for three fine features: EDWARD ARNOLD, CONSTANCE CUMMINGS, SALLY EILERS and ROBERT YOUNG with ROBERT ARMSTRONG, LOUISE HENRY, GREGORY RATOFF, REGINALD DENNY, Jack LaRue, Monroe Owsley, Arthur Treacher, Gustav Von Seyffertitz, Rafael Ottiano, Ed Brophy, George Meeker, Allison Ardell and others. This is beyond all question a Class A picture. It is directed by the master craftsman, JAMES WHALE, who has never made anything but successes. It's a CARL LAEMMLE, Jr. Production.

ATTENTION!

And soon comes the queenly and talented IRENE DUNNE and her co-star, ROBERT TAYLOR, with Charles Butterworth, Betty Furness and other accomplished players, in Lloyd C. Douglas' absorbing story and best-seller, "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION," in which there is a flavor of the medical profession, the hospital, and the marvelous operations of a surgeon whose desire, aside from his profession, is to create happiness. It is a fascinating romance and you'll love it. It is unquestionably JOHN M. STAHL'S best Production.

* * * *

Don't fail to see UNIVERSAL'S newest and most thrilling football production entitled "FIGHTING YOUTH," starring CHARLES FARRELL with June Martel, Andy Devine, J. Farrell MacDonald, Eddie Nugent, Ann Sheridan and some Great All-America Football Stars. It also contains a delightful romance which will please you. Our staff pronounces it better than "THE SPIRIT OF NOTRE DAME." I regard it as one of the most entertaining pictures we ever made. Directed by Hamilton Macfadden.

* * * *

If you can write us an acceptable idea telling how Universal Pictures can be improved, we will send you a $50 check.

Carl Laemmle

[Pronounced LEM-LY]

UNIVERSAL PICTURES

CARL LAEMMLE, President

"FROM GOOD TO VERY GOOD"!

Says conservative Harrison's Reports of this roaring adventure drama that will pack 'em in to the roof!

A scene which presents almost every member of the cast of "The Great Impersonation," which has just been completed at Universal City. The scene is in Dominey Hall and includes Spring Byington, Lumsden Hare, Virginia Hammond, Edmund Lowe, Douglass Wood, Claude King, Charles Waldron, Henry Mollison, Murray Kinnell, Wera Engels, and on the couch in the center, Valerie Hobson and Ivan Simpson.

"The Great Impersonation"
A Strong Dramatic Mystery

WITH the completion of the final scenes of "The Great Impersonation" at Universal City, Alan Crosland engaged Dwight Frye for the startling and mysterious role of Roger Unthank. Frye owes his prominence to three Universal pictures, "Frankenstein," "The Mummy" and "The Bride of Frankenstein." The role of Roger Unthank offers him a unique opportunity.

The picture itself was completed as far as the photography is concerned, late Saturday night. "The Great Impersonation" is a story of the great War with its early scenes laid in Abyssinia, where the hero becomes mysteriously confused with a man who looks exactly like him, but is on the opposite side of the international conflict at the outbreak of the War. This dual role is played by Edmund Lowe.

A dramatic mystery with qualities of humor and terror is the proper description of this adaptation of the greatest work of that great novelist, E. Phillips Oppenheim.

Exposing the devlishly clever secret moves by which agents of an armament trust seek to foment war, this Universal production serves a useful purpose beyond its admittedly great entertainment value. Edmund Lowe gives two of the most effective performances of his four-star-studded career—for he plays both the English Everard Dominey and the German Leopold von Ragenstein. When one man impersonates the other for purposes of gathering information about war plans, complications follow swifty and amusingly. Not the least of the complications involves the heart of Mrs. Dominey.

The role of Mrs. Dominey is played with shadings that bring out fully the pathos of her predicament by Valerie Hobson, tall and lovely English-Irish girl. The forces which lead the girl deeper and deeper into a mental mire are dramatized with vividness which enables the audience to appreciate fully why her mind loses its stability. Contrasted with the grimness of such a characterization, and with the eerie howl whose source is a minor mystery, there's real humor.

The Star and His Leading Ladies

Valerie Hobson, on the left, plays the wife who tries to murder Edmund Lowe, and Wera Engels, on the right, plays Princess Stephanie, whose passionate kiss almost betrays his impersonation of her exiled lover.

UNIVERSAL'S MASSIVE MUSICAL! BRILLIANT WITH FAMOUS RADIO AND BROADWAY STARS!

SWEET SURRENDER

With FRANK PARKER • TAMARA • HELEN LYND • RUSS BROWN • ARTHUR PIERSON • JACK DEMPSEY • ABE LYMAN and His Californians . . . Sara Mildred Strauss Dancers . . Tune Twisters and Nadon Singers . . Story by Herbert Fields . . Screenplay by John V. A. Weaver . . Directed by Monte Brice . . Adapted by Charles Beahan . . Musical score by Dana Suesse and Edward H. Heyman . . A Universal Picture produced by Broadway Productions and presented by Carl Laemmle.

Universal Newsreel Cameraman In Hot Spot In Abyssinia

BEING a motion picture cameraman in Abyssinia isn't what it is cracked up to be. A lot of correspondents, photographers and observers utterly disillusioned by conditions in Addis Ababa are just finding that out. Universal Newspaper Newsreel held its cameraman, Howard Winner, in abeyance, so to speak, in Asia waiting until it was certain that Il Duce was going to strike. Winner, blond, twenty-four years old and baby faced, is one of Universal's ace cameramen. He was on a trip to Tibet when Charles Ford, editor of the Newsreel, intercepted him, flew him back to Aden and sent him into Abyssinia. The Newsreel has cameramen also with the Italian armies invading Abyssinia, but Howard Winner is the cameraman on the hot spot.

The first thing Winner ordered was a gas mask, a trench helmet, a bullet-proof vest and a quantity of quinine. These have all reached him and he has been photographed in the new equipment.

Taking pictures in Abyssinia is one of the world's most ticklish jobs. In the first place, the natives know next to nothing about the camera and are almost certain that it is a new fangled machine gun. Furthermore, they are inclined to be suspiciaus and revengeful against all white people. Winner takes his life in his hand every time he makes a movie shot.

More than that, the rainy season isn't entirely over. What little light there is, is bad and likely to disappear at any minute. The sun shines one minute and it rains the next. Calculating of exposures is a matter of hit and miss.

Hotel accommodations are primitive and what accommodations exist are filled to the bursting point. Young Mr. Winner is quartered in a re-built stable masquerading under the imposing name of "Imperial Hotel," which is run by one, S. Ballolokos. Not only on account of its former estate, but because such things seem to be general even in the palace, the place is alive with bugs and fleas. When the rainy season is over, these pests will be joined by mosquitoes and a variety of insects which are even more annoying. However, Winner has photographed his way around the world and put up with many strange things, and the insectivia of Abyssinia is no worse than he has found it in many other places.

In his first shipment there were 4,000 feet of negative which went to New York by a devious route through the Mediterranean with trans-shipment in London. There is only one train a week out of Addis Ababa. The "takes" include exclusive pictures of Emperor Haile Selassie and the Empress Menen. There are elaborate shorts of the Feast of Maskal, a celebration which is an annual event in Abyssinia celebrating the end of the rainy season. Winner felt like celebrating this festival, too.

Howard Winner testing out his new gas mask with his Abyssinian guards. He also has a tin helmet and a bullet proof vest.

It Happened During "His Night Out"

CLERK: "For the double banana special, Sir."
HORTON: "Most disgusting spectacle I ever looked at!" (Hiccoughs, loudly and unexpectedly).
CLERK: "She et it, and he burps!"

"COMEDY RIOT WITH

PLENTY OF DRAW!...

Swift piece merits congratulations all around...'His Night Out' is hilarious comedy!"

— Daily Variety

"'His Night Out' Fun Riot with Horton at his best... Universal Laugh Picture Good for Any Box Office!"

— Hollywood Reporter

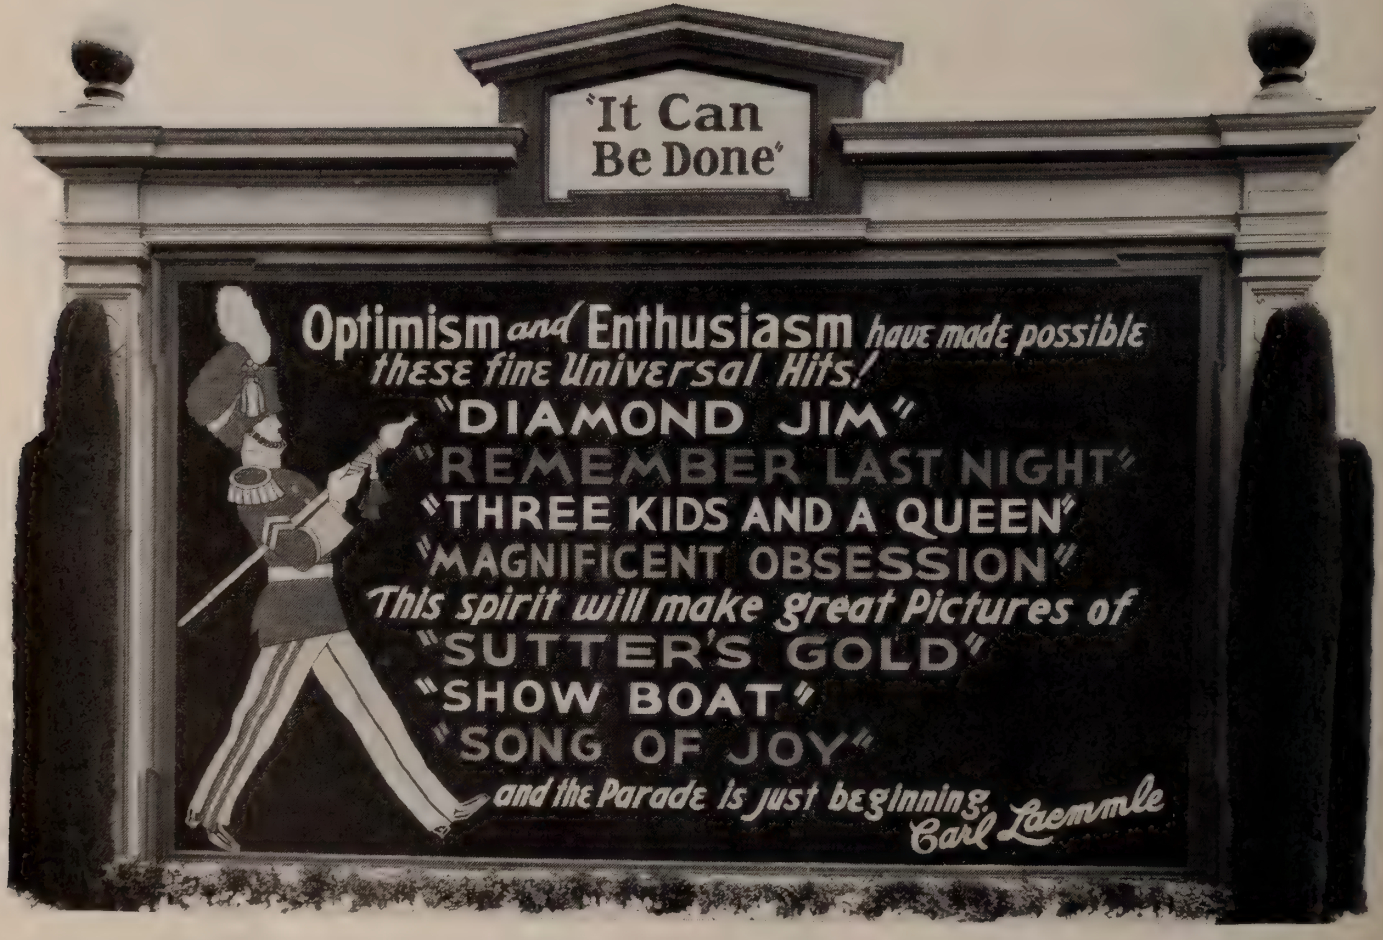
"In the money-making class!"

— Motion Picture Daily

"Horton Comedy will Please All Hands; Batch of Laughs and Cast Stand Out!"

— Showmen's Trade Review

THE REASON WHY "GOING TO UNIVERSAL PICTURES IS FAST BECOMING THE GREAT AMERICAN PASTIME"!



This billboard greets the gaze of all entering the Universal lot. It reflects the courageous spirit of the founder of the oldest company in the industry!

HERE'S A MEMORY TEST

THOSE of you who were looking at pictures or running them in your theatres twenty years ago, may remember a picture Universal made called "His Transformation." Well, it seems that E. L. Ellsworth of Iowa Falls was visiting Universal City studios in 1915. He had his camera with him and wanted to take some pictures of the players in the cast. When Carl Laemmle saw him thus occupied, he stopped production, called the cast together, and gave Mr. Ellsworth an opportunity to take the picture which is reproduced above on this page.

How many of you can identify the players shown here?

Don't attempt to guess who the man with black goggles is. We'll tell you. It is William Worthington, the director.

Mr. Ellsworth operates the Metropolitan Theatre of Iowa Falls. He runs Universal Pictures in it.

CHANGES NAME

IN the Los Angeles Court of Judge Marshall McComb, Universal concluded two very satisfactory legal matters last week. One was the approval of Universal's long term contract with little Billy Burrud, who has made such a terrific hit in "Three Kids and a Queen." Billy is ten years old. The other was the changing of the name of Universal's latest beauty winner, Rosemarie LaBie, to Diana Gibson. The new name will first appear in "Captain Commanding."

$50 REWARD FOR GOOD IDEAS!

Whether you're an exhibitor or a projectionist—you can earn $50.00 with every good idea for the improvement of Universal pictures which I accept. You see pictures every day and you know what audiences think. Why not send in your suggestion?

CARL LAEMMLE

Technical Advisor on "Invisible Ray"

FOR a number of African scenes which are to be shot this week in "The Invisible Ray," co-starring Karloff and Bela Lugosi, Lambert Hillyer has engaged a native of South Africa to act in a technical capacity. The new technical director is Ted Behr, who was born in Johannesburg and who is thoroughly familiar with African customs and a great many of its languages and dialects.

This is the Vernon Webster Band of Steeleville, Illinois. It was organized and is directed by Vernon Webster, whose father, A. G. Webster, owns and manages the Auditorium Theatre of Steeleville. All of the boys and girls in this band are students in the Steeleville schools. The Auditorium, in addition to utilizing this band on occasion uses Universal pictures and has done so for a long time. Vernon Webster can be seen in the picture, standing at the extreme right.

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY SHOWMANSHIP SECTION

A DIGEST OF THE BEST EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

RECOGNIZE the lips? That's the question, Ben Katz in exploiting "DIAMOND JIM" at the Warner Theatre, Milwaukee, asked readers of the Wisconsin News. Through tie-up with paper, lips of different players in the picture were printed daily together with explanatory story. Ticket prizes were offered winners. Telephone gag was worked at theatre with operators calling numbers day after day announcing coming of "DIAMOND JIM."

HEY! HEY!

WE print this picture with trepidation. The propriety of men walking around dressed in red flannel underwear is a matter of opinion. We do not deign to condemn or condone the practice. But since Howard Ralston of the Ritz Theatre, San Bernardino used two men in red flannel underwear and as a result, had the whole town talking about "Diamond Jim" we print it as showmanship news. Underwear was brilliant red made by dying stock woolens with Diamond dyes. And Ralston rates a star for his initiative!

...football...radio...and raves!

FOOTBALL is in the air! Shakespeare's 78 yard punt threw the last baseball ballyhoo from the sporting pages. Football is now King. Gay pennants are waving, college songs are in the air and crowds are cheering themselves hoarse. Right at the height of their football fever, Universal has ready for you FIGHTING YOUTH, one of the finest football pictures ever made, with an up-to-the-minute story and a menace that makes it different. A football picture always offers a showman's holiday with its un-numbered exploitation angles. All the more reason you mustn't forget Universal is offering $100 in cash prizes for the fast-stepping managers who put over the best, all-around campaigns on "FIGHTING YOUTH."

* * *

The radio waves will soon be throbbing with a new song favorite, REMEMBER LAST NIGHT. Odd to say, Sam Coslow, hit song-writer, penned the lyrics and the melodious tune on the inspiration he got from seeing the "rushes" of Universal's new screen special. The music publishers ran presses day and night so that orchestrations could be mailed to every major radio station in the country before the picture opens. Offering the exhibitor his chance to request local orchestras to play the song and so help popularize his forthcoming showing of "REMEMBER LAST NIGHT?"

* * *

THREE KIDS AND A QUEEN—we raved quite a lot, last week, about this "sleeper" which is waking everybody by storm. Los Angeles critics have just seen it and have gone overboard in their praise of it and its wonderful entertaining qualities. Hillstreet and Pantages Theatres are advertising it with a confession from their press agent telling the public he is stuck for adjectives to get over to them how really swell the picture is. Watch next week's issue for reproductions. But don't wait until then to see this picture. It's one of those pictures that lifts itself right into your heart just as did "OVER THE HILL," "MICKEY" and "LADY FOR A DAY." See it! SEE IT! and then PREVIEW IT!

Joe Weil

First "FIGHTING YOUTH" CONTEST Entries!

Nutting's "Youth" Co-Op Page Features Identification Contest

F. G. NUTTING arranged for one of the peppiest newspaper co-operative advertising pages Grand Forks, N. Dakota has seen in a long time, in connection with his run of "FIGHTING YOUTH" at the Paramount Theatre. Pictures of local football celebrities were scattered throughout the merchants' ads and the readers were asked to identify them. Free tickets for "FIGHTING YOUTH" were offered for the first forty correct answers.

The local merchants gladly subscribed to the ad space because of its perfect local tie-up. Some of them offered additional cash prizes. The newspaper itself gave much extra publicity to the picture because of the co-op page.

Nutting also used huge football cut-outs, advertising the picture, at cross-roads about town and on the curb in front of his theatre.

Shagrin's Winner No. 3

TO Joseph Shagrin, Paramount Theatre, Youngstown, Ohio goes the third of the five $5 prizes Universal offered in connection with the "Remember Last Night?" Nightmare Contest which closed October 15th. Watch next two issues of Weekly for additional winners.

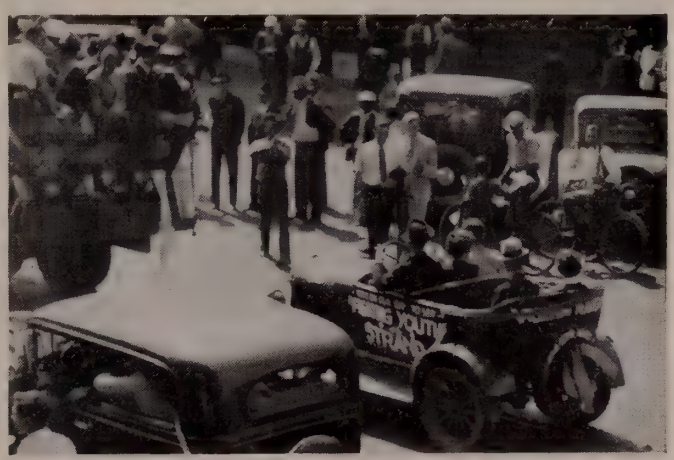
I dozed before my radio. Suddenly the radio loud speaker screen glowed weirdly revealing three tough birds. "With television" said the leader, "We can project ourselves into any home where there is plenty of money, help ourselves, and kill the owner in order to keep our secret. Let's get Shagrin first!" Before I could shut off the radio there was a rumble and the three of them stood threatingly over me, the leader with a long knife in his hand. I tried to get away but was paralyzed with fright. Slowly the knife descended until it touched my throat. The fiend gave it a quick side motion. I fell to the floor. The blow awakened me. Next morning the wife said, "Remember last night?—after this when you come home tired, go to bed and you won't be falling out of the chair!"

MAY BOOSTS BIRMINGHAM'S FOOTBALL SPIRIT WITH A SPECIAL MORNING SHOW

FRITZ MAY of the Strand Theatre, Birmingham Ala. used great head work on FIGHTING YOUTH. Knowing the local University was attending a big game on the picture's opening day, he tackled the school for a rally in the morning of the game and so he got the whole crowd in on the special showing of this picture. Aside from the actual box-office returns that morning he had the advantage of a city-wide ballyhoo as the boys and girls paraded in line down the main street to the theatre. Many of them rode in cars and trucks appropriately bannered to advertise the showing of FIGHTING YOUTH at the Strand.

The week before the game handbills and "fake" tickets were scattered all over town, plugging the picture to the football crowd.

May decorated his theatre front in school colors as a welcome to the local student body.



"Diamond Jim" Stunt Hits The Lansing News Columns!

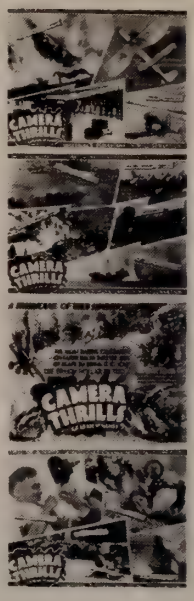
THERE have been many jewelry tie-ups on "DIAMOND JIM," but that engineered by D. Tohill, Manager of the Gladmer Theatre, Lansing, Mich., just about tops them all. He made such a hullabaloo about the arrival of the jewelry, calling out armed guards with all the trappings, that his stunt broke the news columns of the local papers which sent their own photographers to cover the event, only one of many features in Tohill's campaign.

Above you see Tohill himself signing for the precious shipment of replicas of "DIAMOND JIM" jewelry while two worthy members of the local police, with fire-arms drawn for action, stand by. What a sight—this truck rolling down the street!

Out of the truck—into the window—with two husky military men standing guard day and night to protect the gems—or was it, by chance, mayhap, or possibly, to attract the eyes of all Lansing to the display regardless of its intrinsic value?

Lansing dug old-time clothes out of the mothballs to attend the "DIAMOND JIM" costume dance in the city's most famous ballroom. Impersonators of Diamond Jim and Lillian Russell rounded the town in an early vintage car and then attended the "DIAMOND JIM" ballyhoo ball. Nice work Tohill!

Lobby Cards For "Thrills"!



BECAUSE of the raves Universal's featurette CAMERA THRILLS is getting, many exhibitors are asking for special exploitation material on the reel. In answer to their demands, a series of four 11x14 lobby cards have been prepared, reproducing actual enlargements of many of the exciting events in the film itself. Exhibitors are urged to use these in connection with the special 1 sheet on this subject, for posting in many spots about town. The picture gets great word-of-mouth advertising and therefore should be plugged heavily as an important and unusual feature of the program. It rates marquee lights and special display in ads. Critics should be requested to give it a separate review; newspaper cameramen should be invited to see it as should all the news staffs of the local papers. CAMERA THRILLS is an excellent box-office asset.

STATE U AIDS SOBLER

IMAGINE a football player kicking ten footballs into the packed stands before an important game—and each football carrying a pass for "FIGHTING YOUTH!" That was one of the many fine stunts A. W. Sobler used to give this picture a big sendoff at Lou Metzger's New Spreckels Theatre, San Diego, Calif. He called on the State College for co-operation and they came through for him in splendid fashion.

College newspapers sponsored and conducted game "description" contest for co-eds. This was held week in advance with theatre donating cash and ticket prizes for best 300 word letter review of game. Follow-up stories broke before opening. Leading daily paper reprinted winning letter.

The kicking stunt was done in the presence of 10,000 spectators at the big game. It was preceded by an explanatory announcement and a strong plug for the picture over the field's public address system.

$100 IN CASH PRIZES
For The Most Outstanding "FIGHTING YOUTH" Campaigns

IN conjunction with its release of "Fighting Youth," Universal is offering $100 in cash prizes for the best exploitation campaigns submitted by exhibitors. Send in Kodak pictures, tie-ups, mailing pieces, special stunts, details and all possible information on the all around exploitation campaign on "Fighting Youth" during its run at your theatre. The size of the theatre and town will be taken fully into consideration. Contest closes November 30th. Judges will be E. W. Sargent, Variety; A. Mike Vogel, Motion Picture Herald; Chic Lewis, Showmen's Trade Review. Address all material to Joe Weil, Universal Pictures Corp., Rockefeller Center, New York City.

OSWALD SATURDAY MORNING SHOWS FOR THE KIDDIES!

From

UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.

ROCKEFELLER CENTER
NEW YORK CITY

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
Paid
Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

MANAGER
CLIFFORD THEATRE
5937 W ROOSEVELT RD
CHICAGO ILL

On the ETHIOPIAN FRONT and on the ITALIAN FRONT

because UNIVERSAL IS

OUT IN FRONT!

UNIVERSAL NEWSREEL
with
GRAHAM McNAMEE
as the talking reporter

Printed in U. S. A.

UNIVE[illegible] WEEKLY
VOL. 37, NO. 15
NOV. 9, 1935

The strangest sight you ever saw!

"THE INVISIBLE RAY"

Coming!

KARLOFF AND LUGOSI in

"INVISIBLE RAY"

OBSESSION MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION

The Supreme Triumph of JOHN M. STAHL, who gave you such memorable productions as "Only Yesterday," "Back Street" and "Imitation of Life!" Watch this page every week!

by LLOYD C. DOUGLAS

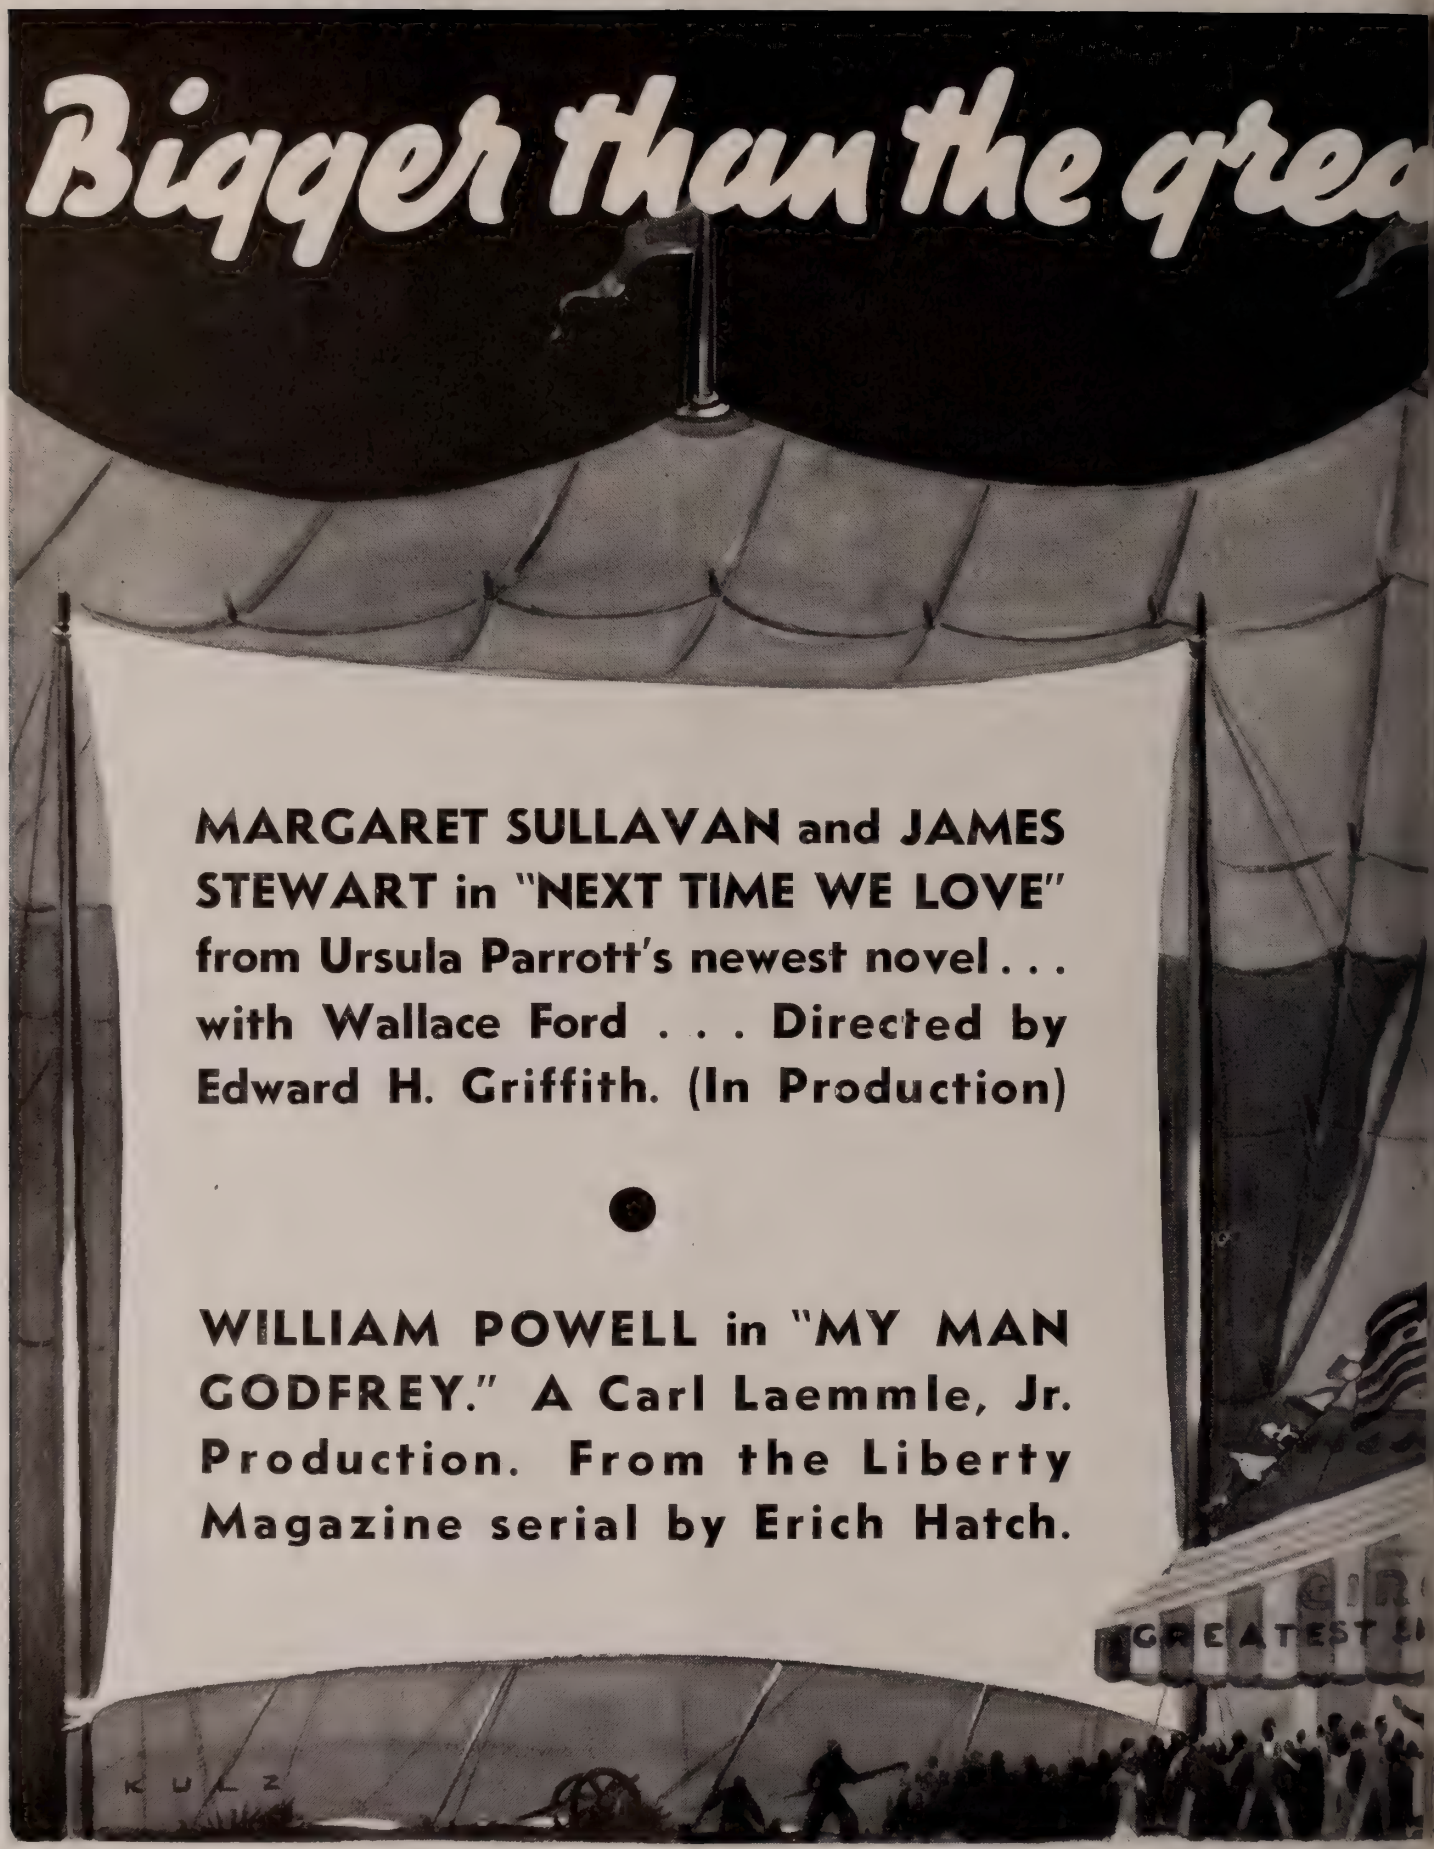
Magnificent Obsession

It has frequently been said of this strange story that the people who read it are never quite the same again!

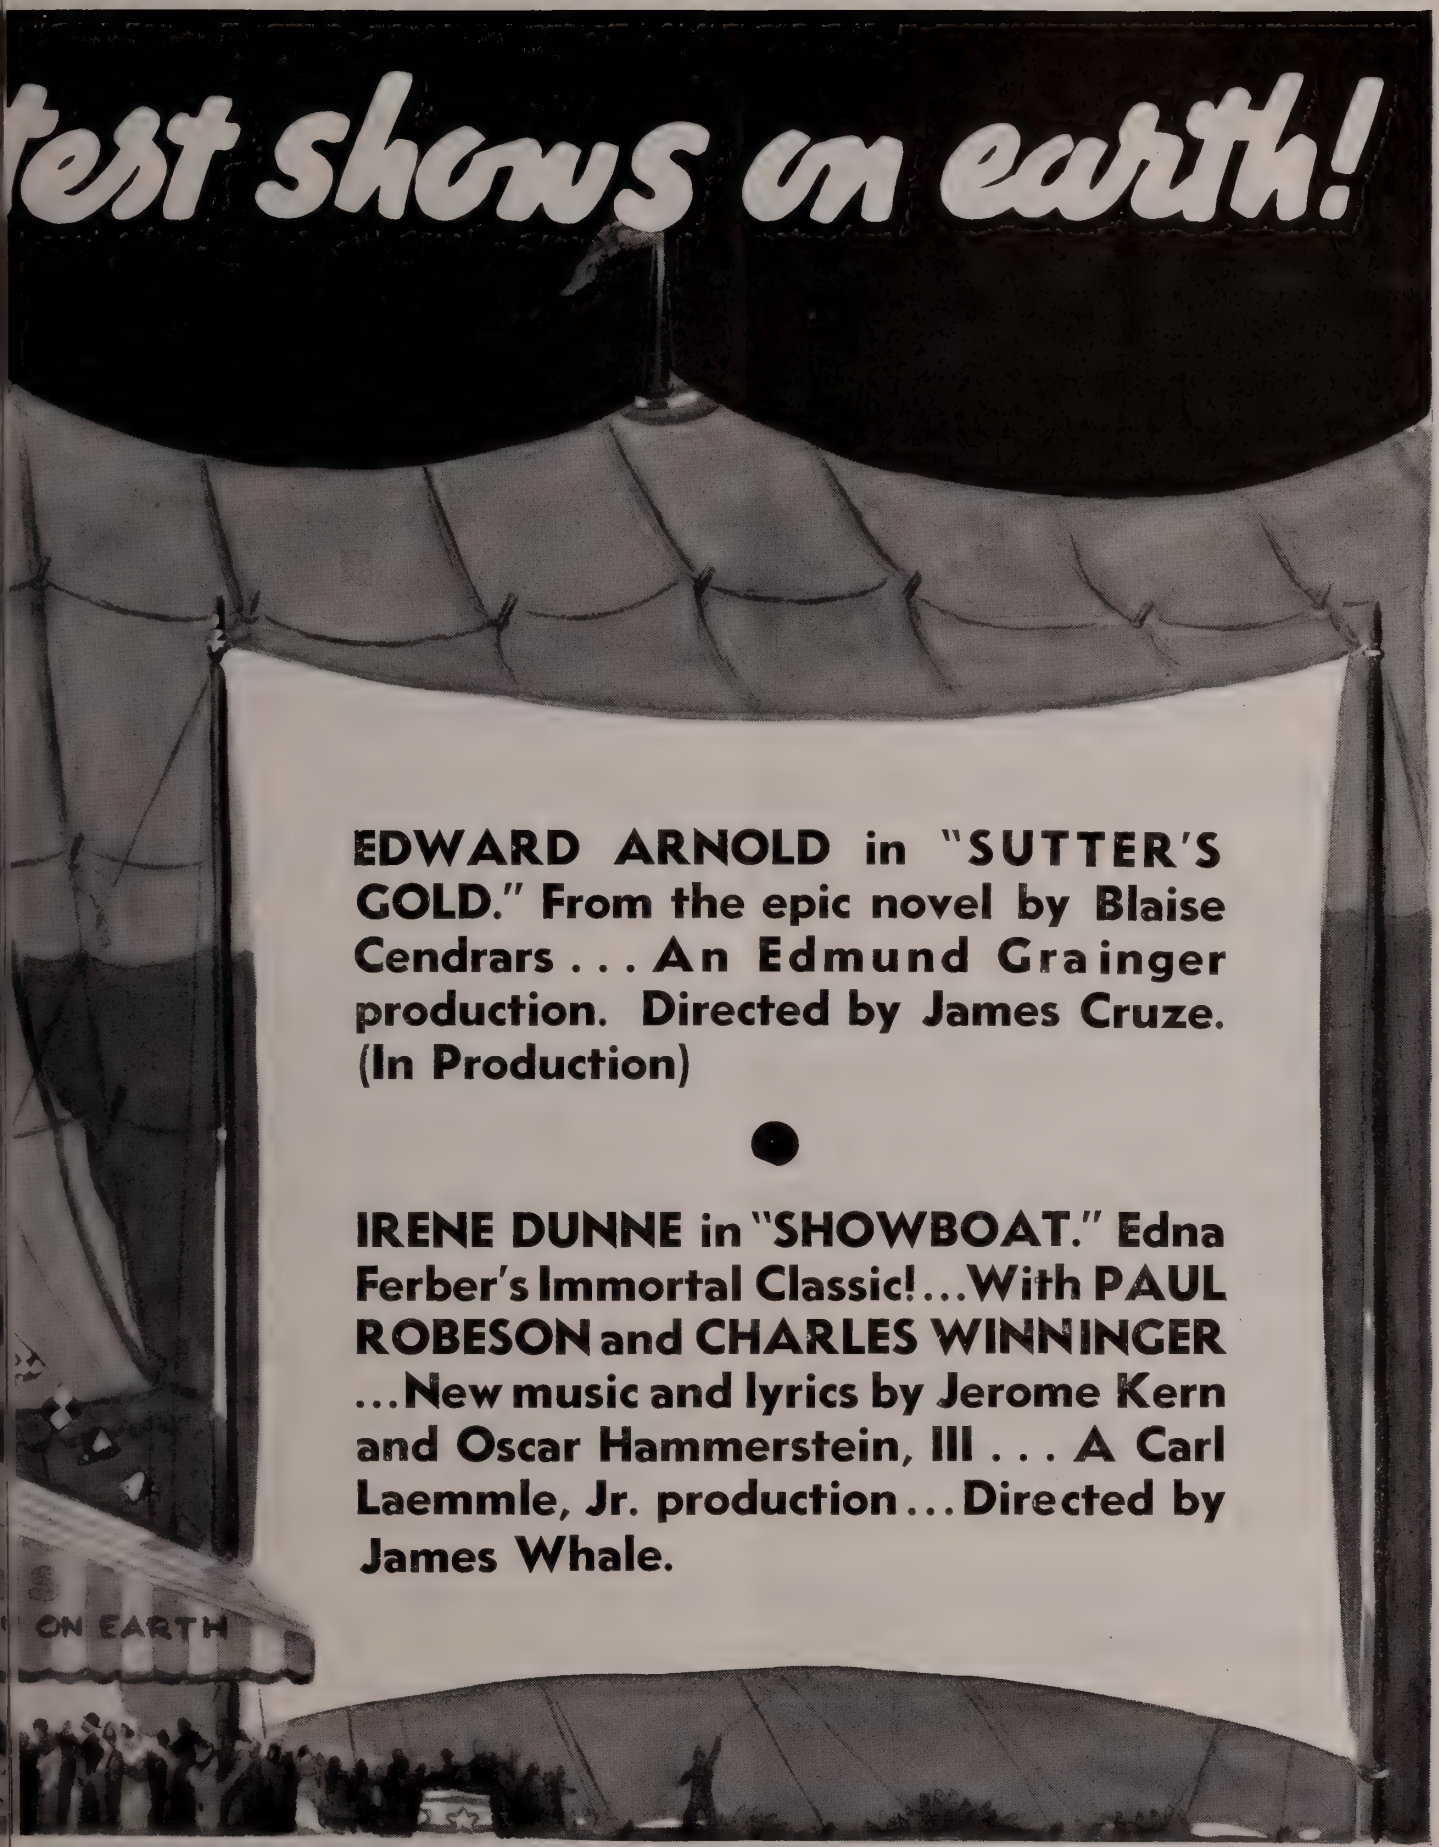
THIRTY-NINTH PRINTING

OBSESSION MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION MAGNIFICENT

MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION MAGNIFICENT



Bigger than the grea
MARGARET SULLAVAN and JAMES STEWART in "NEXT TIME WE LOVE" from Ursula Parrott's newest novel . . . with Wallace Ford . . . Directed by Edward H. Griffith. (In Production)
WILLIAM POWELL in "MY MAN GODFREY." A Carl Laemmle, Jr. Production. From the Liberty Magazine serial by Erich Hatch.
GREATEST
KUL Z



EDWARD ARNOLD in "SUTTER'S GOLD." From the epic novel by Blaise Cendrars . . . An Edmund Grainger production. Directed by James Cruze. (In Production)

●

IRENE DUNNE in "SHOWBOAT." Edna Ferber's Immortal Classic!...With PAUL ROBESON and CHARLES WINNINGER ...New music and lyrics by Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein, III . . . A Carl Laemmle, Jr. production...Directed by James Whale.

TREMENDOUS

No. 837 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

Universal's elaborate production called "Stormy" is one of hundreds of proofs of Universal's willingness to contribute something new to the screen.

"Stormy" is intended for exhibitors and for movie fans who want something different — for folks who like heart-throbs, rather than cold, cynical sophistication.

"Stormy" is not done in a ballroom, nor in a bedroom, nor in a boudoir.

"Stormy" (perhaps I should whisper this) is gorgeously clean. It is a direct appeal to all that is decent in a decent human being. It contains no dirty Broadway wise-cracks. It does not spue any mental filth out to the millions of young movie-goers.

"Stormy" is a challenge to all who sincerely think that clean-ness cannot be heart-warming and entertaining.

The title role in "Stormy" is played by Noah Beery, Jr.

He is a homely or homey sort of boy with a tremendous human appeal.

He is a polished actor in spite of his extreme youth.

I don't know, and I don't care, whether he got this peculiar art from his father or from his uncle, Wallace Beery.

SIMPLICITY!

But he is a comer! Much will be expected of him because he is a Beery — but if I know anything about this business, I say he will become a great world favorite in his own right. The Beery family will never have to apologize for him. They will brag about him.

I don't believe I will ever find a better story for Noah Beery, Jr. than "Stormy."

So far, you have a fine, clean, outdoor story and a fine, clean boy to play the leading part.

But in "Stormy" you will have even more. You will have a new type of movie — made under the most exquisitely beautiful natural surroundings — made, in fact, in the famous Painted Desert.

The scenic beauty of the picture is so breath-taking that I wont even try to describe it. I don't own enough words.

So let's add it up:—In "Stormy" you will get beauty, power, drama, the kind of cleanliness which is next to Godliness, fine acting and superb entertainment, — and tremendous simplicity!

I am so proud to present "Stormy" that I can hardly wait until you see it!

Carl Laemmle

TAKE THEIR W

"HERE'S SOMETHING BRAND NEW IN THE LINE OF MURDER MYSTERY ENTERTAINMENT...DISTINCTIVELY UNIQUE ...SPICY, THRILLING AND SOMETIME DARING . . . WILL SEND THEM OUT OF THE THEATRE TALKING IN SUCH A MANNER THAT WORD-OF-MOUTH ADVERTISING WILL BRING IN MUCH ADDITIONAL BUSINESS".

. . . Motion Picture Herald

"NO EXPENSE HAS BEEN SPARED IN PROVIDING THIS PICTURE WITH ONE OF THE GREATEST DRAW CASTS ASSEMBLED IN ONE PRODUCTION, NOR HAS THERE BEEN A LIMIT TO THE BUDGET FOR LAVISH SETS AND RICH MOUNTINGS. IT REPRESENTS THE LIMIT IN PRODUCTION VALUE SPLENDOR... CAST MATCHLESS".

...Showmen's Trade Review

"JUNIOR LAEMMLE AGAIN DEMONSTRATES HIS SHOWMANSHIP PRECISION IN PRODUCING THIS MURDER MYSTERY-MELODRAMA...GAY AND FULL OF FUN".

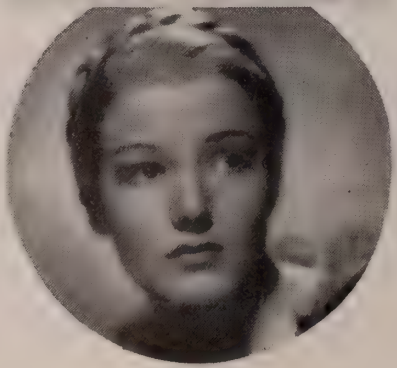
. . . Motion Picture Daily

"A RIOT OF COMEDY SPOTS SUPERIMPOSED ON A RIOT OF CRIME DETECTING . . . MURDER IS PROMPTLY CAPPED

"REMEMBER L

Carl Laemmle presents a Universal Picture. A James Whale Triump

with EDWARD ARNOLD • CONSTANCE CUMMINGS • SALLY EILERS • ROBERT YC



ORDS FOR IT!

BY A WISECRACK OR A COMEDY BIT ...FAST SUCCESSION OF EFFECTIVELY AMUSING COMEDY BITS. THE CAST IS HEADED BY FOUR GOOD NAMES, ALL OF WHOM SHOULD SELL AT THE BOX-OFFICE. EDWARD ARNOLD, FRESH FROM HIS SUCCESS AS DIAMOND JIM BRADY, IS A CRIME SPECIALIST WHO SUAVELY AND SKILLFULLY CAPTAINS THE DETECTING. CARL LAEMMLE JR.'S PRODUCTION STANDS UP AS SOMETHING TO BE TAKEN SERIOUSLY AT THE BOX-OFFICE".

... Hollywood Reporter

"GOOD NEWS FOR BOX OFFICES... GOOD ENTERTAINMENT AND BOX-OFFICE ... PICTURE HAS BEEN SMARTLY MOUNTED WITH PLENTY FLASH"

... Daily Variety

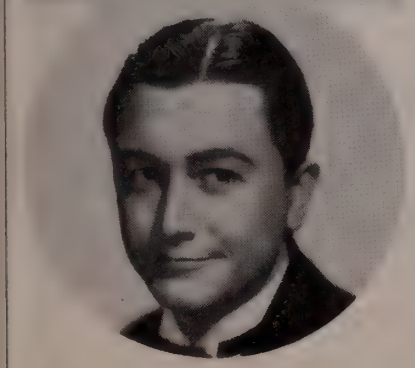
"BOTH COMEDY AND MURDER MYSTERY, AND MUCH ABOVE AVERAGE FOR BOTH ... RECOMMENDED ... AMONG THE MOST ENTERTAINING AND BEST DRESSED SERIES OF MURDERS TO BE FOUND IN MANY A PROWL THROUGH CELLULOID CRIME. IT HAS A KIND OF INSANE FASCINATION".

... Screen & Radio Weekly

AST NIGHT?"

produced by Carl Laemmle Jr. From the novel by Adam Hobhouse.

G • ROBERT ARMSTRONG • LOUISE HENRY • REGINALD DENNY • GREGORY RATOFF



Grainger Enthuses Over New Pictures

JAMES R. GRAINGER, general manager of distribution for Universal, on returning to his office on Monday, had an enthusiastic report to make on production at Universal City studios. In last week's Universal Weekly there was a resume of what he thinks about "Magnificent Obsession." Mr. Grainger also saw several other pictures in rough cut. He saw "East of Java," which cannot be entirely completed until Charles Bickford recovers from the wounds made by the supposedly tame lion while the picture was being filmed. However, it has a greater thrill and audience appeal than "Storm Over the Andes," which is making an enviable audience record wherever it is being played.

Mr. Grainger saw more than half of "The Invisible Ray" with Karloff and Bela Lugosi, while the entire studio is under compulsion not to divulge the secrets back of the photographic discoveries which will make

(Continued on Page 28)

✚ ✚ ✚

Robert Young Praises "Remember Last Night?"

ROBERT YOUNG, accompanied by his wife, arrived from the coast last Saturday to spend a week's vacation in New York prior to leaving for London to appear in a British film. Young has just completed the leading juvenile role in Carl Laemmle, Jr.'s latest Universal production, "Remember Last Night?", mystery comedy-drama from Adam Hobhouse's thriller, "Hangover Murders" and directed by James Whale with a cast including Edward Arnold, Sally Eilers, Constance Cummings and twenty well known principals and over a hundred extras.

Although he had only seen the rushes of "Remember Last Night?" everyone in the cast had the feeling that the production was pointed for important honors and great success in the theatre, Young said. The sets were the most magnificent ever built in Hollywood, in his opinion, and the tempo and unusual character of the story marked it out as a unique and unusual and highly exciting addition to the winter's film fare.

Robert Young, handsome actor who plays the romantic lead in "Remember Last Night?", arrived in New York Saturday for interviews, a radio appearance, and a relaxation before going to England, where he is making a picture and possibly appearing in connection with his Universal picture at the London trade show.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, N. Y. City
Universal Pictures Corp.
Copyrighted 1935
(All Rights Reserved)
NOV. 9, 1935
Vol. 37 No. 15

Liberty Gives "Stormy" Three Big Fat Stars

"The Films Present a Swift and Thrilling Comedy about a Horse" Says Two Million Circulation Weekly Magazine in Current Issue.

UNIVERSAL studio has made something quite appealing and quite touching out of Stormy. Fairly oozing with sentiment, Stormy contrives, with admirable consistency, to keep its people in the background. And this story of a wild horse, set against the stunning Painted Desert of Arizona, satisfies both as a scenic excursion and as an effective tear jerker.

Noah Beery, Jr., performing with pleasing naturalness, is the wayward young vagabond who falls in love with a colt. Young Beery acquires the horse after a train wreck, and, building a hidden corral, he cares for the motherless animal until it is old enough to be set free on the wild range.

From then on Stormy concerns Fred Kohler, a dastardly rancher who plans to kill all the wild horses on the range and convert the land to cattle grazing. Kohler's kindly brother, J. Farrell MacDonald, gives the story a righteous element. And the horses themselves work out a revenge for the mercenary Mr. Kohler.

The elusive qualities that make Stormy the distinctive little picture it is cannot be recreated on paper. Full of photographic gems and set in a country that lends itself beautifully to the camera, the picture is best remembered for those bits that have nothing to do with the plot. The wild stampede scene alone makes Stormy a worth-while risk.

VITAL STATISTICS: Horse operas are coming back, all plants scrambling to haul chaps, spurs, and pizen-critter phrases from moth balls . . . Rex, the wild horse who Elinor Glyn said had It some years back, is still his vicious old self. Has never been broken to the love and service of man. Belong to Mons. Doyle, Arizona rancher and movie-location spotter, and responds to the crack of trainer

(Continued on Page 28)

Here is the first still from Margaret Sullavan's current production, "Next Time We Love," by Ursula Parrott. It shows Miss Sullavan and her new leading man, James Stewart, who is regarded in Hollywood as the "find" of the season. The picture is being directed by Edward H. Griffith, one of Hollywood's ace directors.

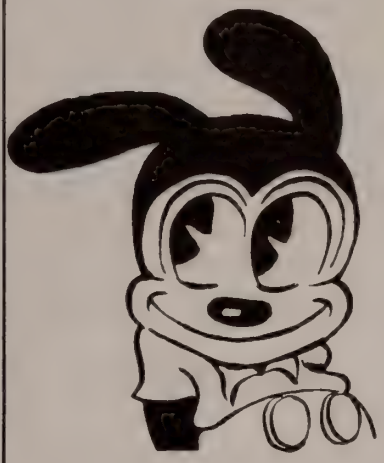
Margaret Sullavan Starts "NEXT TIME WE LOVE"

OVER a year ago Universal bought an Ursula Parrott story. It was then entitled "Say Goodbye Again" and ran serially in McCall's Magazine. Its next appearance was in book covers as "Next Time We Live" published by Longmanns Green, and it is already in its third edition. Universal planned to start Margaret Sullavan in it some time ago but the picture for which the company loaned her to Paramount, "So Red the Rose," met with unexpected delays, and Universal's Margaret Sullavan picture is over two months late, through no fault of its own.

The reviews of this Paramount production praise Margaret Sullavan's work to the skies and every effort will be made to complete "Next Time We Love" for release early in January to give Margaret Sullavan two ace box-office productions in rapid succession.

Melville Baker wrote the screenplay for "Next Time We Love" and Edward H. Griffith, one of Hollywood's most able directors, was engaged to direct it. The search for a striking leading man was over instantly when Universal saw the rushes of James Stewart's work in "Rose Marie." James Stewart is a Broadway actor who has established an enviable record on Broadway. One of his greatest hits was in "Another Language." The production has already been in work for a week and its cast includes Ray Milland, Robert McWade, Albert Conti, Anna Dimitrio and Jack Bailey in the early scenes. A number of supporting players will be added to the cast next week.

Ursula Parrott is noted both in the literary and the screen world for stories which have extraordinary moving picture values and these values appealed strongly to Miss Sullavan and to Melville Baker and to Edward H. Griffith, the director, who is confident that "Next Time We Love" will be the biggest success which he has ever directed.



FROM THE TOP OF YOUR HEAD TO THE TIP OF YOUR TOES, THEY'LL BE TICKLED WITH

OSWALD

The Lucky Rabbit . . . in his latest comedy cartoon caper —

"MONKEY WRETCHES"

THE "TOP HAT" COMEDIAN AT

NEVER SO UPROARIOUSLY FUNNY, NOR IN SUCH A HILARIOUS STORY AS THIS LAUGH-A-SECOND SMASH THAT WILL MAKE EVERY BOX OFFICE RING WITH RECORDS AND HAPPY LAUGHTER!

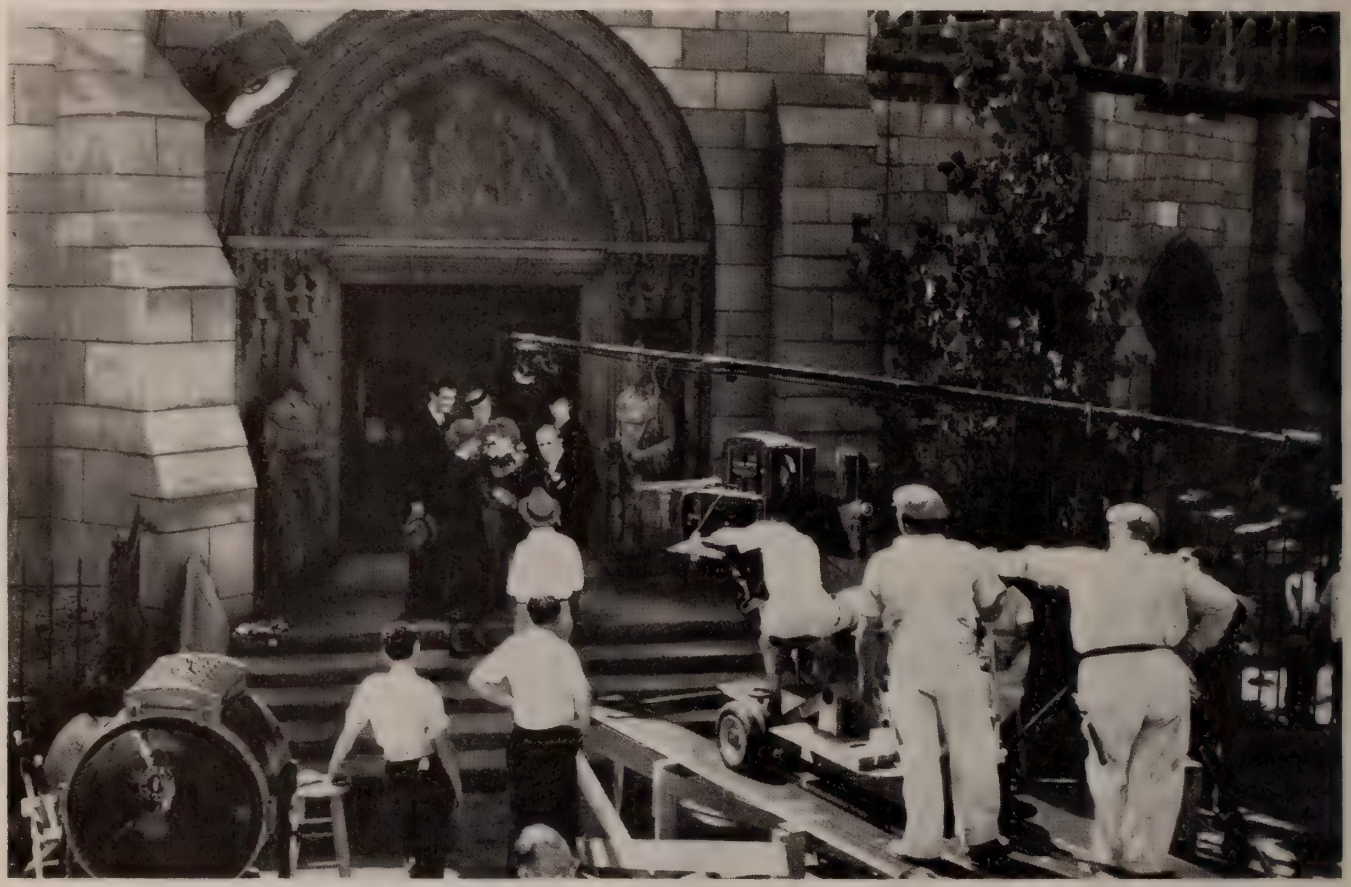
●

Carl Laemmle presents a Universal Comedy Sensation . . . Produced by Irving Starr and directed by William Nigh . . . Screenplay by Doris Malloy and Harry Clork . . . From an original story by Charles Christensen . . . With Irene Hervey, Jack LaRue, Robert McWade, Lola Lane, Billy Burrud and Jack Mulhall.

EDWARD EVERETT HORTON

in

HIS ROARINGEST!



Irene Dunne, Charles Butterworth and Betty Furness in a talk with Irene Thirer of the New York Evening Post, published on Wednesday, November 6th, call "Magnificent Obsession" grand picture.

John M. Stahl making a scene for "Magnificent Obsession," which includes Irene Dunne, Robert Taylor, Betty Furness, Charles Butterworth and Sara Haden.

"Magnificent Obsession" Players Call New York That

THE magnificent obsession of three leading players of "The Magnificent Obsession" — immediately on completion of that Universal film— was New York City.

And so they came: Irene Dunne, Charles Butterworth, Betty Furness— and there's a report that Robert Taylor is on his way.

Irene is enjoying a quiet visit with her dentist husband, who makes his headquarters in this town. Besides which, she's going over her repertoire for "Showboat," which will be her next picture.

Charles, having come, looked over the shows, filled a radio engagement and gloated over Notre Dame's victory via celebration with classmate Walter O'Keefe, is already planeward bound for Hollywood, to start work in M. G. M.'s remake of "Three Live Ghosts." Charlie remarked to us, with dead pan and in droll tones, over cocktails at the Madison: "I don't like to work. If I had my way I'd loaf. But what's a fellow going to do when he knows he daren't take a chance even on a little time out; There's always somebody just as good waiting for an opportunity. So I'll stick to it for a few more years and take in the dough. Then I'll travel round the world on a freighter with Mrs. Butterworth, and occasionally write a humorous article which I hope will be considered funny by some editor. Do I like pictures? Better than the stage, because they're easier. I'm a lazy guy!"

Little Miss Furness, trim and tailored in brown suit with perky hat to match, doesn't share Charlie's views, exactly. "Pictures aren't easy," she declared, solemnly, over luncheon plates in the East Fifties. "But I don't mind hard work. I'd rather appear in sixteen small pictures in one year than two big ones—because what I need is experience, and I'm getting it. M. G. M. doesn't mind loaning me out, and I love it. Some day I hope to be worthy of all important parts. Then I suppose Metro will capitalize on my services. They're a shrewd, smart outfit."

Betty plays Charlie's wife in "The Magnificent Obsession."

"It's a grand picture — or so it seemed in production," she said. "None of us has seen the finished

(Continued on Page 28)

Three New Faces
For Universal Pictures

Beautiful Shaindel Kalish, Chicago stage star.

MOVING pictures owe a debt of gratitude to youth. Universal is paying its part of the debt. Universal has just placed a number of young ambitious and promising actresses and actors under contract and will give them opportunities and important roles as fast as they show their aptitude. Among the new players signed are Shaindel Kalish, whose picture is just above. Miss Kalish is twenty, weighs less than a hundred pounds, has dark hair and dark brown eyes, and made a sensational success in the Chicago production of "Maedchen in Uniform" which was her debut while attending the Goodman Theatre School of Drama in Chicago. She was born in Chicago and is a recognized drawing power on the N. B. C. network.

Another newcomer is Diana Gibson, a Chicago girl who came to Los Angeles as a prize winner in a Balaban & Katz beauty contest. She has just been given her first role.

Another pictured on this page is Priscilla Lawson, an Indianapolis girl, who made a success in New York as a model. Her face was brought to Universal attention in a Universal Newsreel.

•

Priscilla Lawson, discovered by the Universal Newsreel while posing for fashions, had a part as one of the Milgrim fashion mannequins in the fashion parade of "Sweet Surrender." They give her a close-up, too.

TODAY starts a new chapter in the life of Diana Gibson, whose French-Irish parentage has already showered her with such names as Malloy, Agapette, and LaBie. Universal thought that Diana Gibson was a little more screenable than any of these. It was on a vacation trip, the result of a beauty contest, that Diana Gibson came to Los Angeles three months ago. Carl Laemmle, Jr. saw her dancing in a night club. A test followed and Diana turned in her return ticket. Today she is one of the leads in "Dangerous Waters," in support of Jack Holt, which went into production today under the direction of Lambert Hillyer.

Though she is delighted, Diana Gibson isn't much surprised at all this. It seems that Carl Laemmle himself once ordered a screen test of this twenty-year-old girl when she was only thirteen. She was big for her age at that time, and a friend of her family sent a photograph to Carl Laemmle as a response to his Saturday Evening Post appeal for new faces.

Diana Gibson, who was born Rosemary LaBie in Chicago, has just been given her first role in "Dangerous Waters." in support of Jack Holt and under the direction of Lambert Hillyer.

Boston Roll of Honor

The following exhibitors in the Boston Territory have used Universal Pictures continuously for

EXHIBITOR	CIRCUIT OF
E. M. Loew	20 houses in Mass., Maine and R. I.	10 years
Fred Sharby	5 houses in N. H. and Vt.	10 years
R. K. O.	Boston, Lowell, Providence	10 years
Me. & N. H.	15 houses in Me., N. H., Vt., Mass.	10 years
Phil Smith	4 houses in Mass.	5 years
J. M. Levenson	5 houses in Mass. and N. H.	5 years
G. A. Giles Co.		5 years
Warner Bros.	12 houses in Mass.	5 years
Samuel Kurson	11 houses in Me., N. H. and Vt.	10 years
Charles Morse	12 houses in Mass.	10 years
A. M. Graves	5 houses in Vt. and N. H.	5 years
Louis Cohn	5 houses in Springfield,Mass.	10 years
Frank Hawes	Puritan Theatre, Baston, Mass.	10 years
Frank Lydon	Hamilton Theatre, Dorchester, Mass.	10 years
K. H. Forkey	Magnet Theatre, Dorchester, Mass.	5 years
George Ramsdell	Granada Theatre, Malden, Mass.	10 years
George Hackett	Medford Theatre, Medford, Mass.	10 years
Arthur Viano	Broadway, Teele and Somerville Theatre, Somerville, Mass.	10 years
Charles Babb	Princess Theatre, Bridgewater, Mass.	10 years
Nat Hochberg	East Weymouth, Hingham & Scituate Mass.	5 years
Alfred Hall	Playhouse, Edgartown, Mass.	5 years
Nathan Yamins	Durfee, Capitol, Park and Strand Theatres, Fall River, Mass.	10 years
Oze Tessier	3 houses in New Bedford, Mass.	10 years
Simon Beserosky	Allen's Theatre, New Bedford, Mass.	10 years
Al Worrall	Onset & Wareham, Mass.	5 years
Samuel Bomes	Liberty, Providence, R. I.	10 years
Lon Vail	Bristol & Warren, R. I.	10 years
J. B. Findlay	2 houses in Westerly, R. I.	10 years

W. P. KELLY, Mgr.

"APPLAUDIENCE-APPEAL"

THANK YOU, WALTER WINCHELL, FOR THE SMARTEST WORD YOU EVER COINED TO DESCRIBE A GREAT BOX-OFFICE PICTURE.

I saw a preview of "3 Kids and a Queen" (due at the Roxy next week). It has lots of applaudience-appeal. Like that "applaudience"?

Walter Winchell, N. Y. Daily Mirror, Oct. 25

Universal's Knockout

"THREE KIDS AND A QUEEN"

The more Space

YOU BUY . . . THE LESS ROOM YOUR HOUSE WILL HAVE!

PANTAGES-HILLSTREET R-K-O
HOLLYWOOD BLVD. NEAR VINE • HO 2211 — EIGHTH AND HILL STREETS • TR 6941

Starts WED. "3 KIDS AND A QUEEN"

This is the toughest ad I ever wrote!

By the Press Agent

For fifteen years I've been selling motion pictures to the public, using every superlative from a mild "GREAT" to a stupendous "COLOSSAL" But now I'm stuck.

I have a picture that really merits all of these superlatives, but when I apply them they have a puny, insignificant ring: They can't tell half the story or get over the fact that HERE is one of those once-in-a-blue-moon, down-to-earth, human stories, flawlessly played by an inspired cast!

All I can say is . . .
"THREE KIDS AND A QUEEN"
is SWELL!!!!

And if you don't think so, then you wouldn't think the Boulder Dam or the Grand Canyon amounted to much either..!

last 2 days Hepburn in "ALICE ADAMS"

25c TILL 1
35c TILL
40c to Closin

Surprise HIT OF 1935 !
HERE IS A SHOW!
STARTS TOMORROW
"3 KIDS AND A QUEEN"
with
MAY ROBSON • HENRY ARMETTA
FRANKIE DARRO • CHARLOTTE HENRY
WILLIAM BENEDICT • BILLY BURRUD
A UNIVERSAL PICTURE
EVERY CRITIC AGREES !!!
Bill Oliver Herald-Express
"3 KIDS AND A QUEEN" HAS EVERYTHING, thrills, comedy and sentiment!
Jerry Hoffman Examiner
In '3 KIDS AND A QUEEN,' Universal finds themselves with a surprise BIG HIT!"
Edwin Schallert Times
"The screen NEEDS more pictures like '3 KIDS AND A QUEEN!"
Jimmie Starr Starr-Dust
"MAY has her finest screen opportunity and makes the best of it--- IT'S SWELL"
PANTAGES HOLLYWOOD
HOLLYWOOD BLVD NEAR VINE • HO 2211
R·K·O HILLSTREET
EIGHTH AND HILL STREETS • TR. 6941
Last Day! HEPBURN in "ALICE ADAMS" QUEEN is the surprise
SMASH HIT OF 1935!
with
MAY ROBSON
---topping her sensational "LADY FOR A DAY"
HENRY ARMETTA
FRANKIE DARROW
WILLIAM BENEDICT
BILLIE BURRUD
Charlotte HENRY
JOHN MILJAN
HERMAN BING
Hedda HOPPER
IRVING PICHEL
HALE HAMILTON
Carl Laemmle presents
A UNIVERSAL PICTURE
Produced by BEN VERSCHLEISER
Directed by EDWARD LUDWIG
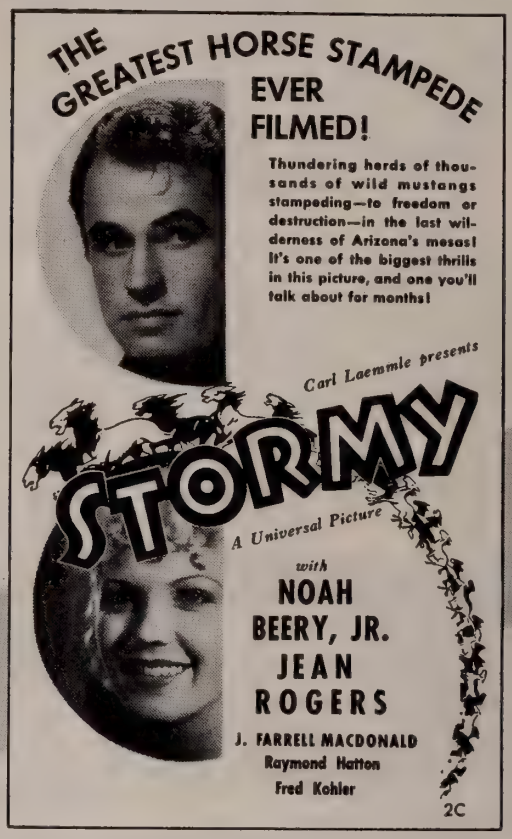
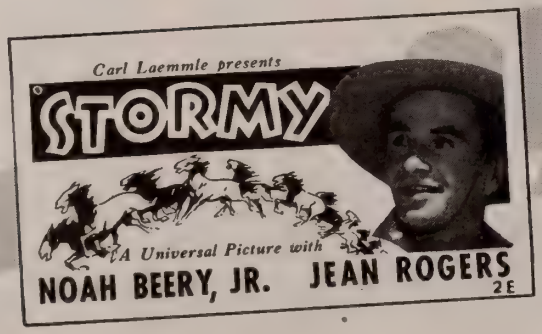
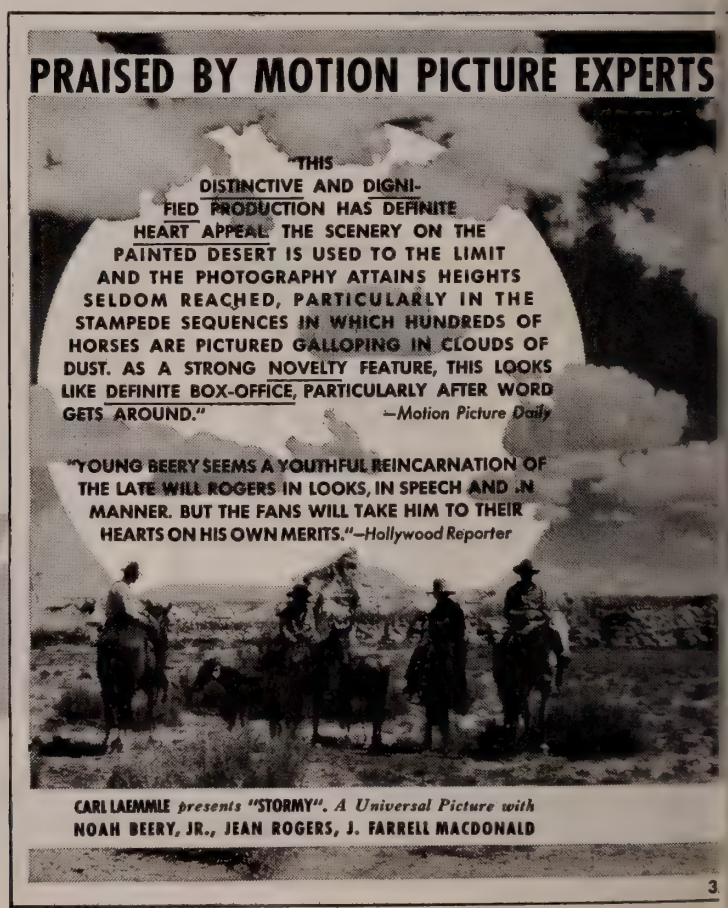
Special
ADDED ATTRACTION
THRILLS! THRILLS! THRILLS!
"FISH from HELL"
EXCITEMENT! SUSPENSE! REALISTIC!
25c to 1 • 35c to 6
40c to Closing
PANTAGES HOLLYWOOD
HOLLYWOOD BLVD. NEAR VINE • HO. 2211
R·K·O HILLSTREET
EIGHTH AND HILL STREETS • TR 6941

GREATER THAN A WESTER







N—BIGGER THAN AN EPIC!

YOU'LL LOVE!
YOU'LL HATE!
YOU'LL LAUGH!
YOU'LL WEEP!

When you see this magnificent story of youth searching for love and happiness in the last wilderness.

CARL LAEMMLE presents

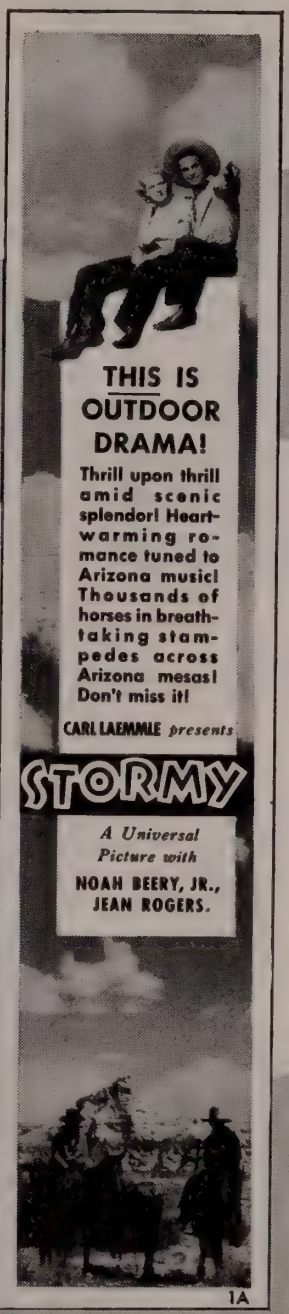
STORMY

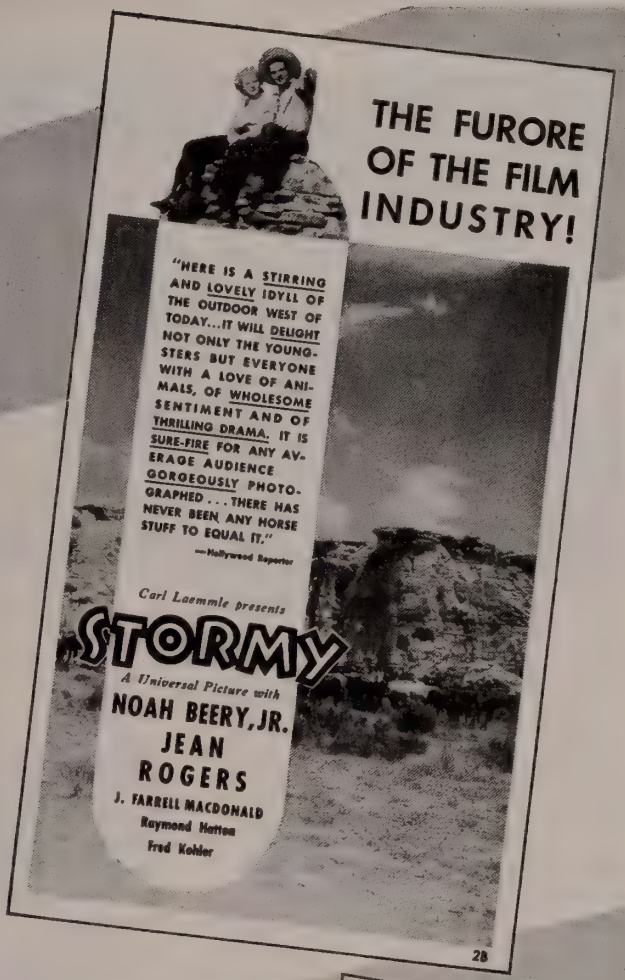
A Universal Picture with

NOAH BEERY, JR.
JEAN ROGERS,
J. FARRELL MACDONALD

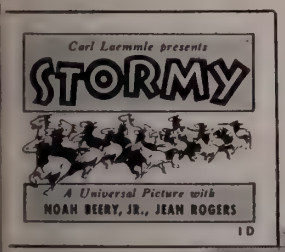
1B



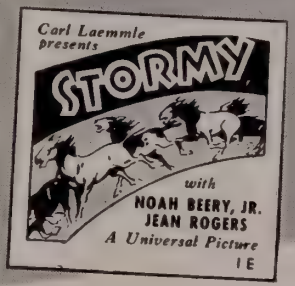
1A



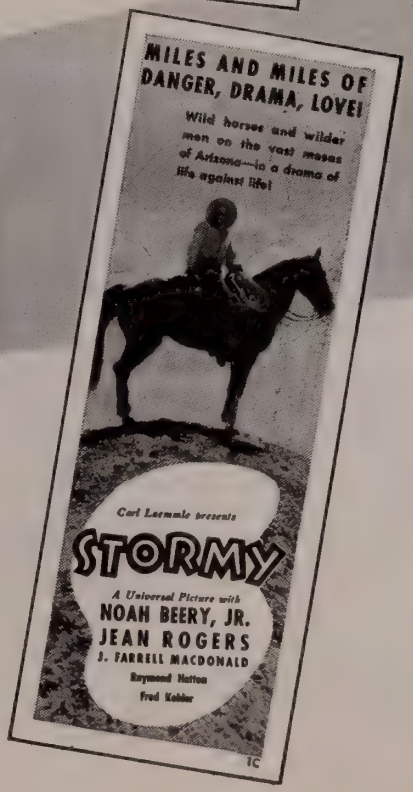
2B



1D



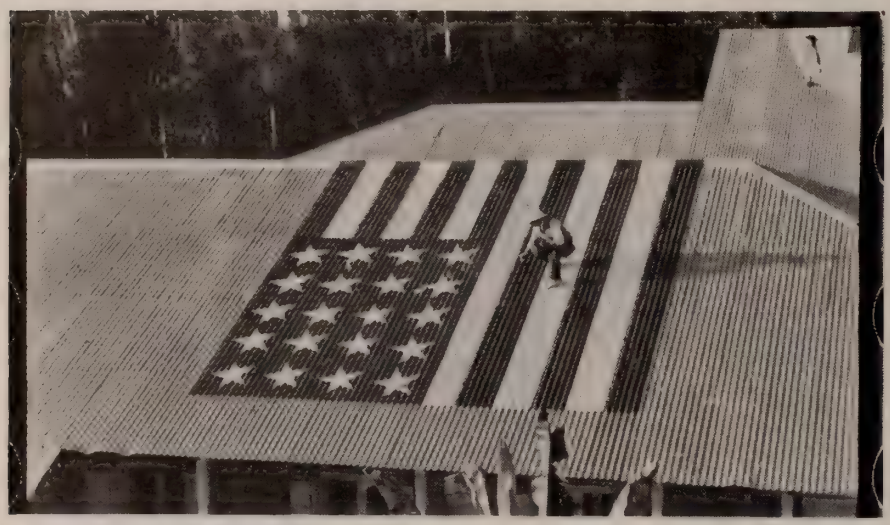
1E



1C

2D

Universal Newsreel Man on Spot



Painting the roof of the headquarters of the Red Cross in Addis Ababa to make it fool-proof for the Italian bombers. You will notice that the flag has only twenty stars, but even this number is a comfort to Howard Winner every time he looks at it. In the upper right-hand corner, a man is also painting the Red Cross sign on this same building, which is the largest hospital in the city.

HERE is a story sent out by the United Press and carried in a number of New York and metropolitan dailies throughout the country on November 3rd. It is the word-for-word cable sent to Charles Ford, editor of Universal Newsreel by Howard Winner, its long-suffering cameraman in Abyssinia.

"Howard Winner, newsreel cameraman in Addis Ababa, cabled his boss yesterday that the life of the white man in Ethiopia is not to be envied. He escaped being cut to bits by a detachment of black warriors who waved a variety of cutlery in his face, but pointed out that his 'hotel accommodations are lousy, the bugs and fleas have me covered with bites and sores and the food is enough to poison a goat.' Winner's cable was released by the office of Carl Laemmle, president of Universal Pictures Corporation. He said he had heard there was a camp of thousands of black warriors and, hiring mules and two natives, rode out.

"Well, I stepped into a hornet's nest," he said. "Naturally they were from the sticks and had nothing but hatred in their hearts for white people, and when I appeared on the scene with a camera, they let out a yell and immediately I was surrounded by hundreds of warriors waving spears and knives and with blood in their eyes.

"They began to jostle me around and punch me until finally the chief, Ras Masheta, appeared on a little mound of dirt and demanded of my interpreter what I was doing there. My interpreter tried to explain that I was a newspaperman and showed him my official Ethiopian press passport, but they knew of no such thing and insisted I was an Italian spy and insisted that I stay there for the night that they might take me to the emperor in the morning.

(Continued on Page 28)

TWO SHOTS FROM UNIVERSAL NEWSREELS—How are the mighty fallen! A shot from Newsreel No. 399 showing Tarzan, who nearly killed Charles Bickford, in "East of Java," teamed with another three year old lion at the California Zoological Gardens engaged in delivering food to the bears.

A shot from Saturday's Newsreel. Laura Roth of Thousand Oaks, California, an eighteen year old girl, has a Bengal tiger with which she wrestles. Mervyn Freeman, demon Universal cameraman, tries his hand with this tiger, who weighs 450 pounds, while Laura waits to rescue him if her pet goes native.

PAUL ROBESON is Concerting His Way to "Show Boat" Role

PAUL ROBESON, who was summoned by Carl Laemmle, Jr., from England to appear in an important role in "Show Boat," gave a concert last night in Milwaukee which had been promised to Milwaukee music lovers for over two years. The same thing is true of two more concerts. Fortunately, Robeson was able to work them in on his trip to Universal City. One of them is in Portland, where he will appear on November 11, and the other, in Seattle, where he will give an Armistice Day recital, before his train leaves for Los Angeles, where he will arrive on the 15th.

Although "Show Boat" will get under way at Universal City on November 18th, Irene Dunne will have an extra week in New York, where she is putting in intensive work with ther voice coach and learning the new songs which Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein II have written for the production of "Show Boat." Naturally, all of the famous songs of the Ziegfeld production will be retained.

Charles Winninger, who arrived at Universal City last week, has already chosen his costumes and is advising with James Whale on "Show Boat" practice and procedure.

DAILY MIRROR

Stookie Allen, the cartoonist of the Daily Mirror, published in that paper the above cartoon of Paul Robeson last Monday. Stookie Allen, who has a football build, is a great admirer of Robeson on a number of counts.

In the cut at the left of this page, this versatile artist is shown with his versatile wife, Gladys Parker, creator of "Flapper Girl" and originator of many of Fifth Avenue's fashions and fads. On occasion, the two of them team up in an act which should go well in vaudeville or in moving pictures. Someone is passing up a bet on Stookie Allen and Gladys Parker, if they could wean them away from their drawing boards and designing desks. Stookie is six feet tall and his wife is not quite five.

THE WILDEST ADVENTU

NOTE: CHARLES BICKFORD, WHO NARROWLY ESCAPED DEATH WHEN HE WAS SEVERELY BITTEN IN THE NECK BY A LION DURING THE FILMING OF THIS DARING THRILLER, IS NOW OUT OF THE HOSPITAL AND COMPLETELY RECOVERED! TELL YOUR PATRONS ABOUT IT!

Charles BICKFORD

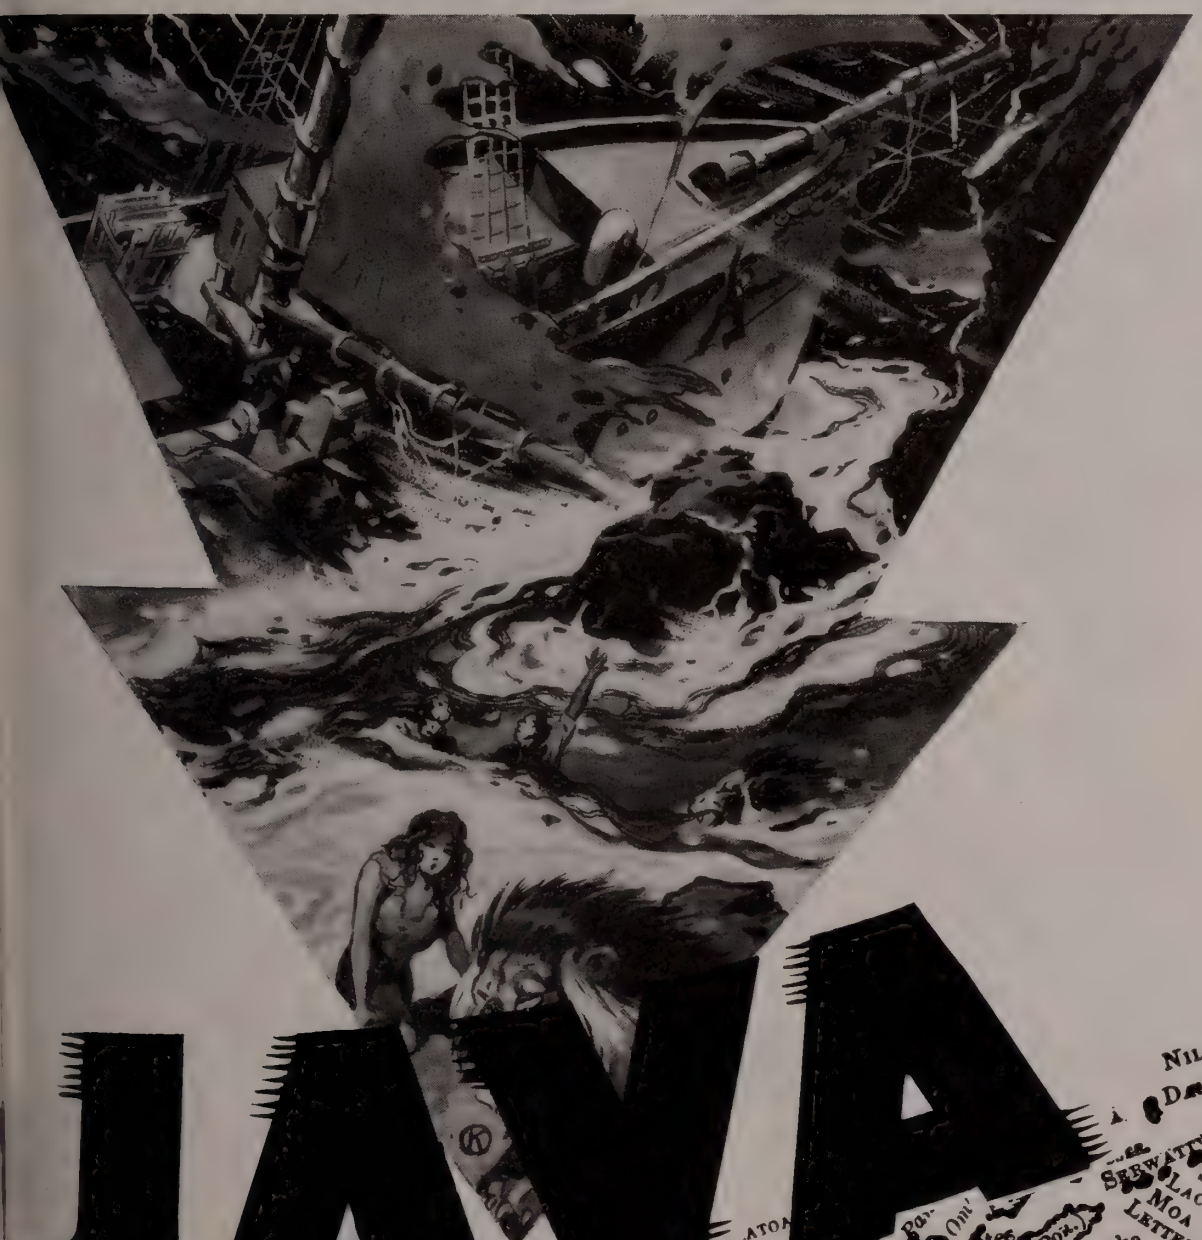
EAST OF

With ELIZABETH YOUNG • LESLIE FENTON, Frank Albertson, Clarence Muse, Siegfried Rumann, Jay Gilbuena

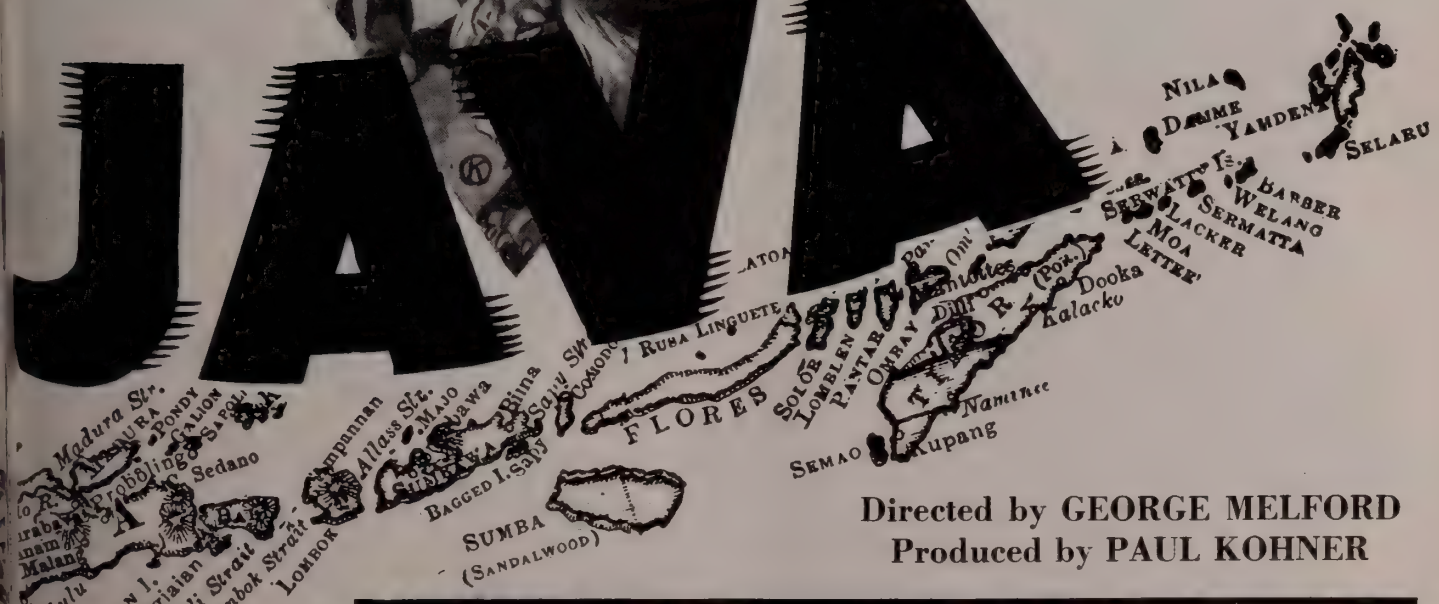
in

Carl Laemmle presents Universal's Amazing Adventure Drama

RE DRAMA EVER FILMED



JAVA



Directed by GEORGE MELFORD
Produced by PAUL KOHNER

Adapted from the GOUVERNEUR MORRIS NOVEL, "Tiger Island"

ITS SONG HITS ALONE A RE THE NATIONAL PAGE!

THE WORLD'S CHAMI

ON WESTERN STAR!

RINGS YOU HIS NEWEST ACTION AND DVENTURE THRILLER – AND HIS BEST!

BUCK JONES

in

The IVORY-HANDLED GUN

A UNIVERSAL WESTERN FEATURE presented by Carl Laemmle. With Charlotte Wynters, Walter Miller, Carl Stockdale, Frank Rice, Eddie Phillips, Charles King. Directed by Ray Taylor. Story by Charles E. Barnes.

Grainger Enthuses Over New Pictures

(Continued from Page 8)

this picture as sensational as "The Invisible Man" was. The rushes have all of the ear-marks of a great nerve-tingling thrill picture.

Mr. Grainger also calls attention to Lowe's production of "The Great Impersonation" almost completed and feels that this spy picture of the Great War by E. Phillips Oppenheim will be one of the most satisfactory audience pictures of the winter season.

Mr. Grainger also calls attention to the fact that the studio is starting this week on some of the biggest pictures of its forthcoming season. The Margaret Sullavan story, "Next Time We Love," by Ursula Parrott, went into production last Monday under the direction of Edward H. Griffith, and will be ready for release early in March. Carole Lombard goes into production with "Spinster Dinner" under the able direction of Walter Lang, next week, with Melvyn Douglass and Kent Taylor, and it will be ready for release in February.

Jack Holt, whose first picture, "Storm Over the Andes," was exceptionally well received, is starting this week on a second production which is finally entitled "Dangerous Waters." Its cast includes Robert Armstrong, Charlie Murray, Diana Gibson, one of Universal's newest and most promising ladies, Grace Bradley, Edward Maxwell, Guy Usher and Dewey Robinson. It is being directed by Lambert Hillyer.

Liberty Gives "Stormy" Three Big Fat Stars

(Continued from Page 8)

Jack Lindell's whip and voice. Lindell never strikes him. Commands are sharp spoken, because with Rex it isn't "Please step up for a left profile close-up, Rexie-wexie," and nobody but Lindell can get near him. The colt is Rex's own offspring, but seven weeks old, and tame as could be, except for a playful habit of leaving a big black-and-blue where it nipped petting players. Rex was terribly fatherlike to his babe, which, one night on location, broke from one canyon and found its way to its father's side to cuddle up with him the rest of the night. . . . Entire film made in Painted Desert country, 112 miles from Flagstaff. The company rose at 5.30 A. M., bumped thirty terrible miles over bad roads from Tuba City, Arizona to Blue Canyon, then worked in a 131° desert heat, water being scarce all day and make-up and desert grime impossible to remove till 9 P. M. It was after their first day's experience on this location the company found out the Navajo considers the Hopi's dog the lowest thing on earth and the white man second lowest. . . . It was so hot, a rattler, brought in for use by a Hopi, died of the heat. . . . Authoress Cherry Wilson, born at Mystic, Pennsylvania, settled in wildest section of old Oregon Trail cattle country at sixteen, married Bob Wilson, Westerner, and adventured, mined, ranched, trapped wild mustangs for four years. Then, homesteading on Colville Indian Reservation near British Columbia border in Washington, her husband's health gave out and, in a bad way she wrote and sold a story an Okanagan Indian had told her. Thus a Wild West writer was born. . . . Noah Beery, Jr., was born in New York City, August 10, 1913.

Exhibitor Gets $50.

M. L. Hart, manager of the Iris Theatre of Edgemont, South Dakota, wins one of the fifty dollar prizes promised by Carl Laemmle to anyone who gave him a practical idea which Universal was prepared to adopt.

Mr. Hart in his letter to Mr. Laemmle says:

"I am still in a daze. After mailing my letter of criticism, I felt a little afraid that I had been too harsh. I was afraid I might have hurt somebody's feelings, but your fine letter dispels all these fears, and I know now that you are too big a man to be hurt over a frank criticism of work which isn't entirely your fault. Much as I appreciate the fifty, I prize your letter even more."

This offer to exhibitors is still open. Fifty dollars doesn't grow on every bush. There is Fifty Dollars for any exhibitor who comes across with a swell idea.

"Magnificent Obsession" Players Call New York That

(Conitnued from Page 12)

picture. I think John Stahl is finally cutting it—and I'm hoping he doesn't cut too much of me out, because it's the finest chance I've yet had. Mr. Stahl intended to make the film in eight weeks, and we worked sixteen —which shows the care and pains which have gone into it."

It's an off-the-record secret that Director Stahl borrowed Baby Leroy from Paramount for the baby's part in the film. Leroy, however, proved so temperamental that at the last moment his understudy had to be "shot" instead.

While Butterworth hurried back to the Coast, Miss Furness will stay here with her dad until she gets a call from her home lot. "Just because I'm hoping for a real vacation they'll probably need me over the week end," she suspects. "But—well, honestly, I'll be glad to go, at that. I love my career, and nothing—no, not even romance and she has been reported engaged to every eligible screen bachelor—can stand in the way of my goal!"

✚ ✚ ✚

Cameramans Grief

(Continued from Page 20)

"While standing there, out of the corner of my eye I could see these dopes making motions with their knives and it didn't feel very comfortable.

"Just as they seized me, my interpreter finally convinced them that I was only a newsreel man and meant no harm. The chief warned us not to return without a special letter from the emperor. So we mounted our mules and left, but not without getting a few more smacks in the face and other places from the natives and also our pockets picked.

"No one knows as yet what is going to happen here. One day it looks like a good war and the next all is calm. I hope something takes place one way or the other."

Warning

YOU ARE ABOUT TO WITNESS THE MOST SENSATIONAL AND THRILLING PICTURE EVER BROUGHT TO THE SCREEN. IF YOU CAN'T TAKE IT WE SUGGEST THAT YOU CLOSE YOUR EYES NOW, OR ELSE TAKE A 20 MINUTE INTERMISSION IN THE FOYER.

We suggest that you run this "Warning" as an advance trailer on and to precede the picture with it when you're playing it; that you also include it in your ads, and display it in the lobby. It's SURE to get you big extra business! It did for Jack Gross at the Pantages and Hillstreet Theatres in Los Angeles.

"CAMERA THRILLS"

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY SHOWMANSHIP SECTION

A DIGEST OF THE BEST EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

EXPLOITATION NEWSREEL OF THE WEEK

King Solomon was a wise man, so, when Irving Stein and Tony Burmek decided to send a local King Solomon out as a bally for the Strand Theatre, they had to select an exceptionally clever man, fast on the repartee. Each time a person would ask him a question, besides imparting his "wisdom" he interpolated a sales talk on the picture. Nice idea—and inexpensive, too!

* * *

THE BALTIMORE NEWS AND THE POST

Something To Remember

Your Memory May Win Prize In 'Remember' Contest

To the left is a nice two column x 10 inch break in the Baltimore News and Post on a "Remember Last Night?" contest landed by J. Lawrence Schanberger as part of his advance campaign at the Keiths Theatre. Newspaper offered prizes to readers for most interesting and amusing remembrances of their life.

* * *

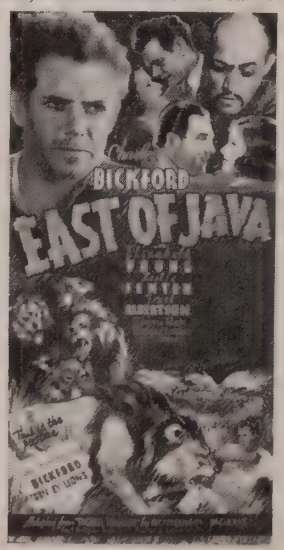
A cavalcade of new model Dodge cars accompanied by 1903 Pierce-Arrow for contrast, paraded through Scranton streets, selling the merits of "Diamond Jim" at the Strand Theatre. Sound truck in parade shot messages over its public address system boosting the picture to the crowds on the sidewalks. All a part of the tie-up arranged with local Dodge distributor by enterprising Manager Lloyd L. Hause.

. . . cash in on news!

THE SCENE:—Universal Studios. On the set. A thrill picture, EAST OF JAVA, is nearing completion. Dangerous fill-in shots, held for the last, are now being made. A giant lion slinks across the set. Guards watch his every move. Charles Bickford, scorning being doubled, moves into scene. (After all—it is a well trained lion, isn't it?) Soon the cameras are grinding. The lion, well trained, of course!) has one paw across Bickford's shoulder. This is going to look great on the screen. Cameramen breathlessly keep on grinding. Then the unexpected happens! Someone makes a false move. The lion is startled!—On the defensive! Terrified—he becomes jungle wild again—his fangs sink deep, deep into Bickford's neck! Bickford's face contorts in agony. It all happens in a flash. Before the horrified director can yell "Cut!", the cameras have ground out the amazing scene! Fadeout—hospital!

Within a few minutes the AP and UP wires are carrying the news to the world. Film fans everywhere are reading of Bickford's miraculous escape from death!

The millions who have read this will want to see the picture—which, incidentally is filmed with so many thrills anyway, it did not really need this extra unforeseen, once-in-a-lifetime camera event.



Here is a fine opportunity for theatremen everywhere to capitalize on the flash news right in their lobby and their advertising. To this end, Universal has prepared a special 1 sheet poster, shown above, as well as reproducing newspaper headlines on the balance of the exciting posters for this picture.

EAST OF JAVA is a furious drama of derelicts shipwrecked off Simba Sao! Bickford is escaping from the law on a ship with a wild animal cargo when it is smashed on the rocks in a typhoon. Seven derelicts and one lone woman are washed ashore. The wild animal cargo breaks loose. Pandemonium reigns. It is Fast, FAST and beaucoup exciting! Fine exploitation opportunities. Dandy, adventure sales lines! Read about them in the pressbook!

Joe Weil

FOOTBALL TOGS HERALD WENDELL'S "FIGHTING YOUTH"

USHERS AND TICKET TAKERS DON GRIDIRON UNIFORMS

WITH "Fighting Youth" playing the Empress Theatre, Decatur, Ill. early in the football season. W. John Wendell, manager pepped up his lobby and front with pennants, emblems, banners, etc. in order to cash in on the town's high football spirit and interest. Ushers and ticket takers were dressed in regulation uniforms. All easels and still panels were constructed in the shape of footballs. The pennants and colors used were of the neighboring colleges.

As a special attraction for the youngsters, Wendell announced the distribution of football badges to the first one hundred attending the opening morning showing. Imprinted scorecards were given away at local high school games.

Crack Chicago Pilot Addresses "Tailspin Tommy" Audiences

AS a special treat to the youngsters attending showing of first chapter of "Tailspin Tommy in the Great Air Mystery" at the Maryland Theatre, Chicago, Manager Louis Machat invited the famous airmail pilot, Speed Westphall to greet them and speak from the stage. Announcement heralding his appearance was made on screen, in lobby and through Chicago Herald Examiner. Westphall spoke about the value of a serial like Tailspin Tommy in teaching the youngsters the principals of aviation and the hardships the pilots have to undergo. Stunt was covered by reporter and photographer from Examiner and broke nice space in their columns.

Scot Mystery Man Sells "Edwin Drood"

THEY do it across the water too! W. Hinks of the Alex Theatre, Paisley N. B. Scotland, exploiting "Mystery of Edwin Drood" sent Mystery Men roaming about town. Local newspaper tied up and printed picture and description of men. People carrying copy of the newspaper and tapping men on shoulder received pass to see "Mystery of Edwin Drood." Three hundred and fifty store windows and thousands of heralds and posters around town also carried announcement and description of the mystery men.

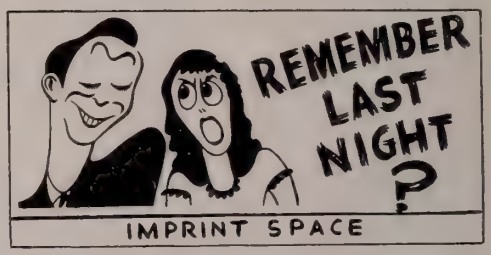
OKAY, DENVER!

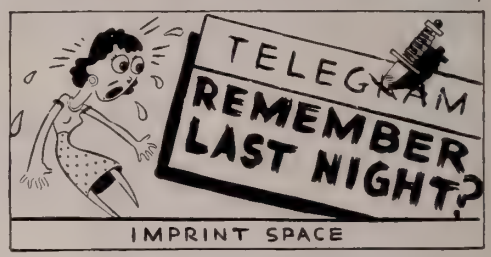
Our hats off to the ad man at Harry Huffman's Paramount Theatre, Denver for these fine flashes on "Fighting Youth," "Storm Over the Andes" and "King Solomon of Broadway." Note the stress on the showmanship angles of each feature—the nicely balanced copy, the strong titles. Sorry we haven't the name of the ad man. We'll get it and tell you later. Nice work—Ad Man!

USE THIS SNIPE SEXTET TO MAKE 'EM "REMEMBER!"

Great for Teasing Title

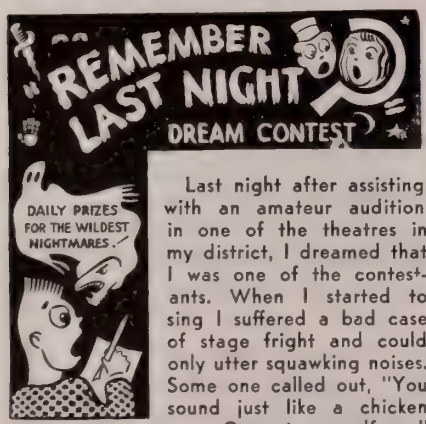
TO assist showmen in teasing the catchy title "Remember Last Night?" Universal has made available a set of six snipes, size 12½ x 25 inches. Great for posting in the many small spots around town where a one sheet poster can't be used. Printed in two colors. A grand flash, and reasonably priced at only 15c per set. Order in quantity from your Universal Branch and put them up well in advance of your "Remember Last Night?" playdate. Lots of "noise" for little cost!





Wright Cops Final!

TO Dick Wright, District Manager, Warner Bros. Circuit, Cleveland, goes the fifth and final $5 prize Universal offered in connection with the "Remember Last Night?" Nightmare Contest which closed October 15th. Exhibitors are urged to use this contest in local newspapers.

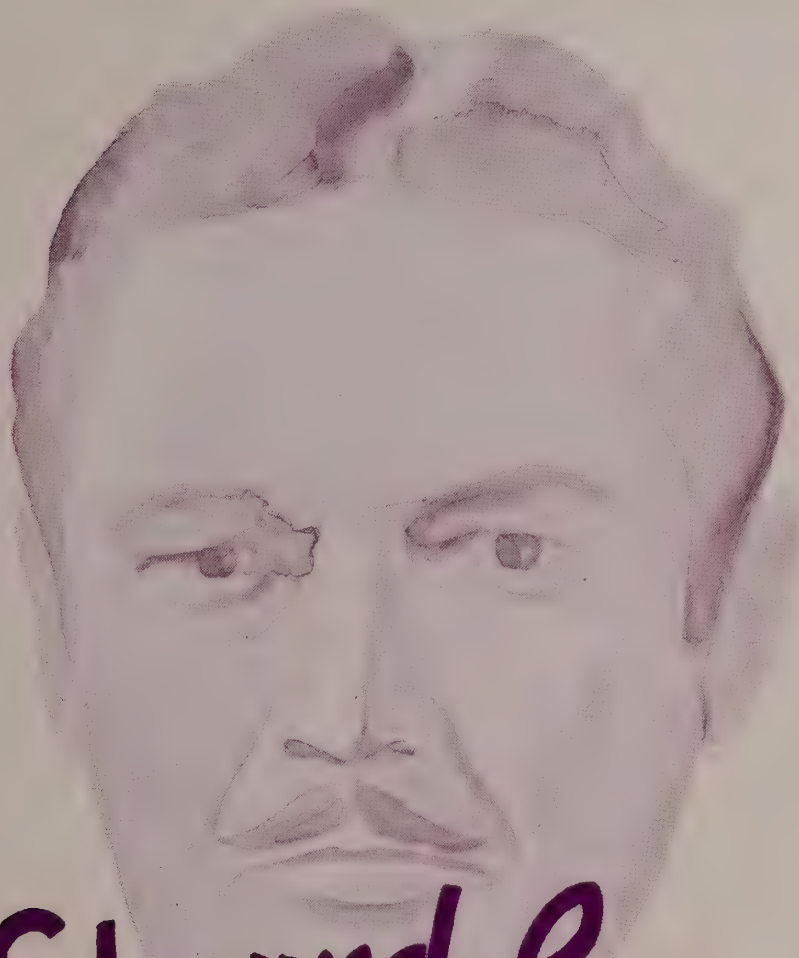


Last night after assisting with an amateur audition in one of the theatres in my district, I dreamed that I was one of the contestants. When I started to sing I suffered a bad case of stage fright and could only utter squawking noises. Some one called out, "You sound just like a chicken . . . Go cut yourself up." This sounded like a reasonable suggestion to me and I proceeded to carry it out. I had sharpened my carving knife and took a good hold on my neck to start the slicing when I awoke to find myself grabbing my throat. Remember Last Night? I'll not forget it for a long time!—DICK WRIGHT.

U STARS SET NEW HAIR STYLES

THIS dignified poster boosting six current and forthcoming Universal pictures is being featured by the country's leading department stores in their main windows. The pictures and the featured stars are Sally Eilers in "Remember Last Night," Margaret Sullavan in "Next Time We Love," Helen Lynd in "Sweet Surrender," Jean Rogers in "Stormy," Dorothy Page in "King Solomon of Broadway" and Binnie Barnes in "Diamond Jim." Cash in on this tie-up when you play these pictures by working together with the store in your city that features it, arranging for additional displays and local ads. If no store in your city is able to assist you, contact Pro-phy-lac-tic Brush Co., Florence, Massachusetts.

THE SPY MASTER IS COMING!



Edmund Lowe

in The

GREAT IMPERSONATION

A Universal Picture

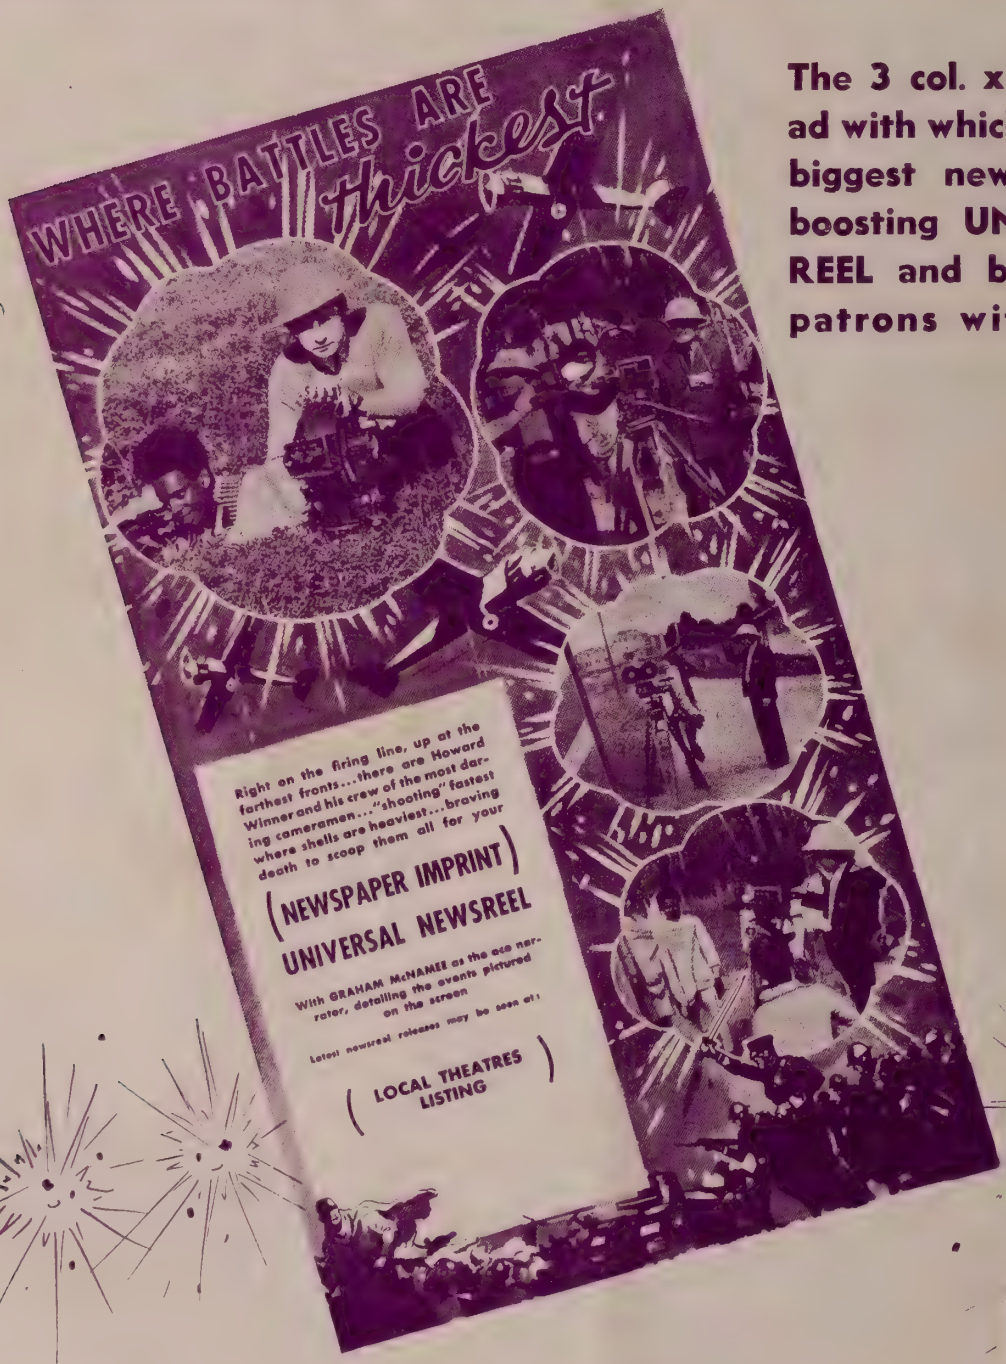
From

UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.

ROCKEFELLER CENTER
NEW YORK CITY

ROBERT B WENNER
22 CROSS ST
MALDEN MASS

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
Paid
Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.



The 3 col. x 10 inch follow-up ad with which 150 of America's biggest newspapers are now boosting UNIVERSAL NEWSREEL and bringing you extra patrons with each release!

Larry Edmunds Bookshop
6658 Hollywood Blvd.
Hollywood, Calif. 90028
HO 3-3273
World's Largest Collection
Of Books on Motion Pictures

Printed in U. S. A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
VOL. 37, NO. 16
NOV. 16, 1935

IT HAS FREQUENTLY BEEN SAID OF THIS STRANGE STORY THAT THE PEOPLE WHO READ IT ARE NEVER QUITE THE SAME AGAIN!

THIS IS DOUBLY TRUE OF THE SCREEN PRODUCTION WHICH JOHN M. STAHL HAS MADE FROM THE BOOK, STARRING IRENE DUNNE & ROBERT TAYLOR

THEY'LL SOON BE CALLING HIM

"THE LUMINOUS MAN!"

Carl Laemmle presents a New Universal Sensation . . . With

Frances Drake + Frank Lawton

An Edmund Grainger Production
Directed by Lambert Hillyer

UNIVERSAL ANNOUNCES

THE GREATEST SIMULTANEOUS NATION-WIDE TRADE SHOWING IN MOTION PICTURE HISTORY FOR THE MOST MAGNIFICENT PRODUCTION IN UNIVERSAL HISTORY

IRENE DUNNE AND ROBERT TAYLOR

IN

JOHN M. STAHL'S

MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION

FROM THE PHENOMENAL BEST-SELLING NOVEL BY LLOYD C DOUGLAS

WITH CHARLES BUTTERWORTH
BETTY FURNESS • SARA HADEN
RALPH MORGAN • HENRY ARMETTA

WHEN? WHERE? WATCH!

HE FINALLY BOUGHT

No. 838 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

Finally, you will have to use the Universal Newsreel.

No matter how much pressure may be brought to bear against you, you finally will have to have the best newsreel in the business.

Ever since you have been a showman, you have watched the reaction of your audiences to your whole program. If you have been using the Universal newsreel, you have seen how it made the folks sit forward on their chairs. If you have not been using the Universal Newsreel, you have noticed how your audiences have sat back.

When your audience sits back, it is bad for you. When they sit up and take notice, it means money for you.

Maybe you have seen the letter written by C. N. Robinson of the Home Theatre in Blair, Nebraska. If you have not, it is important that you should read it. Here it is:

"We have used every newsreel by the different companies. We FINALLY bought Universal Newsreel and I am very glad to tell you that this is the finest newsreel we have ever had the pleasure of showing our people in the Home Theatre. If you keep up the quality of this reel in the future as it has been since we started to play it, you will have a Universal Newsreel customer for life."

THE ONLY NEWSREEL

So, we have ANOTHER Universal Newsreel customer for life. We have thousands of them. Mr. Robinson has simply joined the immortals. He has joined for life.

The Universal Newsreel is easily the MOST HUMAN NEWSREEL IN THE BUSINESS. I frankly admit that we sometimes use shots in our newsreel which do not cost us one tenth of what shots in other newsreels cost.

But Universal Newsreel shots are made by trained newspaper men — men who know the showmanship value of human-ness.

Millions of very common, ordinary people thrill to the tune of the Universal Newsreel. They hate propaganda — and they never get a foot of it in the Universal Newsreel.

Finally, you will realize your absolute need of the Universal Newsreel, simply because it is far and away the best in the field.

P. S. — This is all intended for theatre managers who can buy what they need, not for circuit buyers who have to buy the newsreels made by their own affiliated producers. Those buyers — poor souls — have to book what is forced upon them! Pity them! They simply cannot buy the best newsreel because they are not authorized to do so.

Carl Laemmle

Carl Laemmle presents a Universal Picture.
Starring EDWARD ARNOLD + CONST

"REMEMBER

With Robert Armstrong, Louise Henry, Greg Harry Clork and Dan Totheroh. . . . From ımes Whale Triumph produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr.

CUMMINGS + SALLY EILERS + ROBERT YOUNG.

LAST NIGHT?"

EVERYTHING NEW UNDER THE SUN!

atoff, Reginald Denny. Screenplay by Doris Malloy, ovel, "Hangover Murders," by Adam Hobhouse.

A group of players in "The Adventures of Frank Merriwell." They are Don Briggs, Jean Rogers, Carla Laemmle, John King, Diana Gibson, and House Peters, Jr.

NEVER BEFORE A SERIAL CAST LIKE "The Adventures of Frank Merriwell"

How You Like?

Don Briggs
Jean Rogers
John King
House Peters, Jt.
Wallace Reid, Jr.
Edward Arnold, Jr.
Bryant Washburn, Jr.
Jean Hersholt, Jr.
Herschell Mayall, Jr.
Peter (Gibson) Gowland, Jr.
Carla Laemmle
Sumner Getchell
Joseph De Grasse
Edmund Cobb
Nick Lukats
Monty Montague
Jack Donovan
Walter Law
Fred Sumner
Sam McDaniel
Ella Ethridge
Dickie Jones
Allan Bridge
Dick Wessel
Diana Gibson
Viola Callaghan

"CAMERA THRILLS" GREATLY HONORED

UNIVERSAL has received word that, on the basis of the first monthly judging of short subjects for the current year by the Jay Emanuel Publications, that its short feature subject, "Camera Thrills," has been nominated as one of the contestants for the major prize. The annual awards are to be made in April.

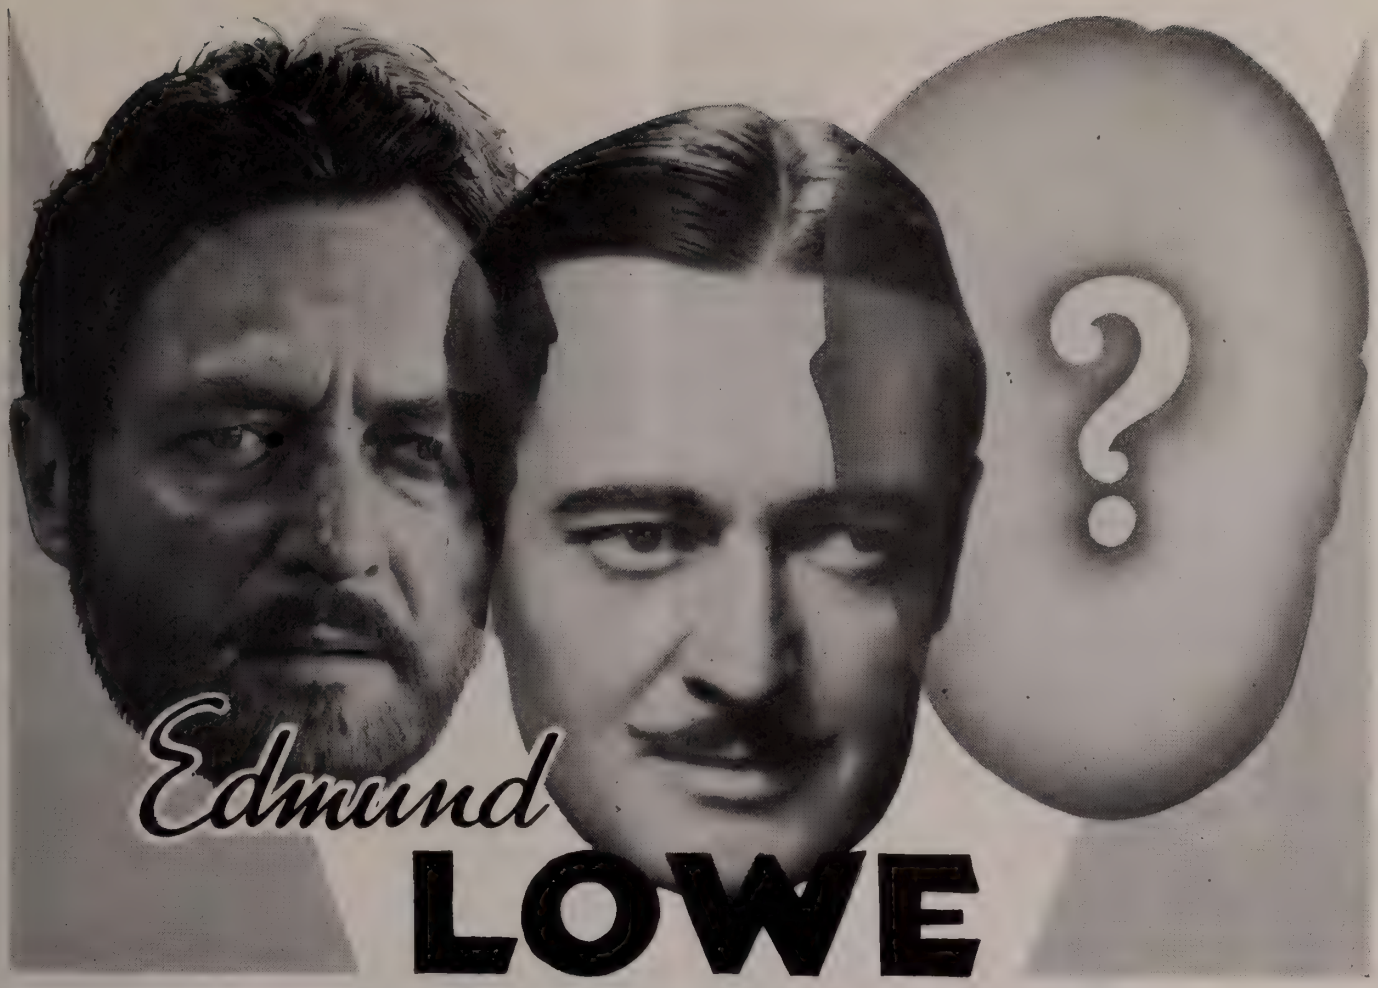
"Camera Thrills" is the subject which is being used in many localities as a second feature on double feature bills and is frequently scoring more hits with audiences than the feature picture itself.

In addition to the series of awards which it has established, the Jay Emanuel Publications is also sending news of its monthly and annual selections to 350 eastern newspapers. The motion picture editor or critics of each of these papers will vote on the annual award and their opinion will constitute 50% of the vote for the ultimate winner. The other 50%

(Continued on Page 28)

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, N. Y. City
Universal Pictures Corp.
Copyrighted 1935
(All Rights Reserved)
NOV. 16, 1935
Vol. 37 No. 16



IN THE MOST FASCINATING, MOST BAFFLING DUAL ROLE EVER PORTRAYED — AS THE ASTOUNDING SPY MASTER IN E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM'S GREATEST MYSTERY STORY!

THE GREAT IMPERSONATION

With VALERIE HOBSON + WERA ENGELS + Henry Mollison Murray Kinnell + Spring Byington Lumsden Hare + Leonard Mudie

An Edmund Grainger Production.
Directed by Alan Crosland.
A UNIVERSAL PICTURE.
Presented by Carl Laemmle.

Irene Dunne and Robert Taylor

Charles Butterworth an a comic scene.

Charles Butterworth and Robert Taylor

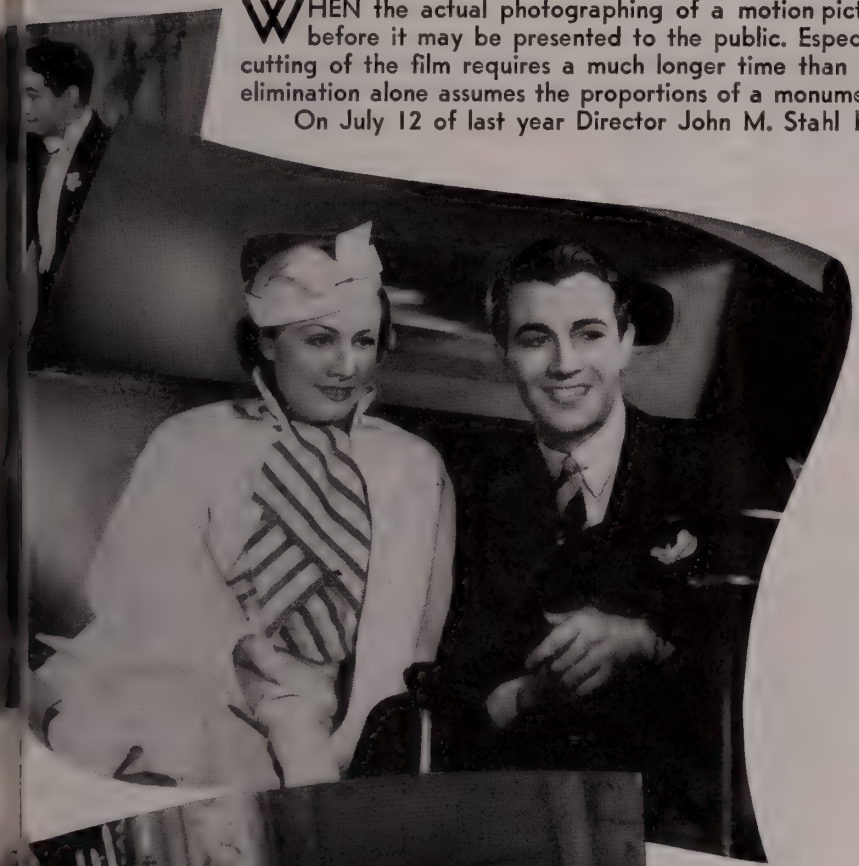
They built the Steamer Normandie at the studio for this picture.

Irene Dunne in the Hospital

Cutting "Magnificent Obsession" is a Monumental Task In Itself

WHEN the actual photographing of a motion picture is completed, there is still much to be done before it may be presented to the public. Especially in the case of a big picture, the editing and cutting of the film requires a much longer time than consumed in actual production, the process of elimination alone assumes the proportions of a monumental task.

On July 12 of last year Director John M. Stahl began the filming of "Magnificent Obsession," in which Irene Dunne and Robert Taylor play the starring roles. Known as the most meticulous of directors, Stahl proceeded slowly, determined that each scene, before final approval, should bring out the very best efforts of the players appearing in it. Each scene was photographed many times, gradually approaching perfection in action and dialogue as the result of repeated rehearsals and finally being adjudged "o.k." so that the director might proceed to the development of the next scene, after issuing instructions for the printing of the various "takes" which he considered best.



The Magnificent Obsession is realized.

At Monte Carlo the unhappy Irene tries to break away from her destiny.

But after viewing them on the screen of the studio projection theatres the next day, he might discard them all and find himself confronted with the necessity of re-photographing the entire day's work. Most directors devote particular attention to certain "key" scenes, but Stahl has the reputation of considering every scene the most important one in the picture. No scene, however short or inconsequential, is slighted.

Sixteen weeks were consumed in filming "Magnificent Obsession," involving the exposure of the prodigious total of 467,000 feet of negative, which had to be cut down eventually to a length of less than 10,000 feet. The film actually printed for Stahl's consideration amounted to over 340,000 feet, or more than 340 reels—and ten reels the limit for the picture! It should be understood, too, that twice the total footage given was actually use, since photographic action is recorded on one film and sound on another, with the later combined in a so-called movietone print, the "sound track" a narrow strip running along the side of the photographed scenes.

Editing of "Magnificent Obsession" began with the start of production, being tentatively assembled every day by Milton Carruth, chief cutter, and gradually increasing in length as newly completed sequences were added. With the completion of camera work, however, Stahl himself took over personal supervision of the editing, spending all of each day in a studio projection room as the many versions of each scene were run off on the screen, and dictated various changes.

HERE'S HOW

THE N. Y. ROXY THEATRE SOCKED ACROSS A SMASH AD CAMPAIGN FOR UNIVERSAL'S EMOTIONAL BOMBSHELL — AND NETTED SMASHING BUSINESS AGAINST BROADWAY'S TOUGHEST COMPETITION IN YEARS!

Hideout ... From 10th Ave...to Give ... Screen One of the Grandest Comedy-Dramas in Years!
Henry's A Comedy Riot in this New Hit! It's His Best Role to Date! You'll acclaim Him A Star!
TODAY AT 11 A. M.
"3 KIDS AND A QUEEN"
A Universal Picture
MAY ROBSON
HENRY ARMETTA
CHARLOTTE HENRY
FRANKIE DARRO • BILLY BURRUD
ROXY
25c to 2 ANY DAY 35c to 7 ANY SEAT
CHILDREN 15¢ ANY TIME
SHOW VALUE OF THE NATION • 7th AVE. & 50th THERE'S TENSE MELODRAMA!
— as New York's Toughest Snatch Gang Nabs Park Avenue's Wealthiest Woman!
10TH AVE. LOVE?
Does it differ from Park Ave. romance? You'll thrill to the Charlotte Henry - Frankie Darro Love Scenes!
HER GREATEST ROLE!
BETTER THAN SHE WAS IN "LADY for a DAY"! May has her grandest role — and you'll adore Little Billy Burrud, the Screen's newest child star!
PLUS BIG STAGE SHOW
RAY HEATHERTON
LAMBERTI
Joe & Jane McKENNA
GAE FOSTER GIRLS
FREDDY MACK • OTHERS
ROXY RHYTHM ORCHESTRA
STARTS FRIDAY
The Grand, Heart-Warming Comedy Drama of a Stony-Hearted Spinster who Learned to be Human in "Hell's Kitchen"!
Universal Pictures Presents
"3 KIDS and a QUEEN"
MAY ROBSON
HENRY ARMETTA
Charlotte Henry • Frankie Darro
★PLUS BIG STAGE SHOW★
RAY HEATHERTON
LAMBERTI
JOE & JANE McKENNA
GAE FOSTER GIRLS • OTHERS
FREDDY MACK
ROXY RHYTHM ORCH.
ROXY
25c to 2 ANY DAY 35c to 7 ANY SEAT
SHOW VALUE OF THE NATION 7th AVE. & 50th ST.

UNIVERSA
HAS GREAT DIRECTOR

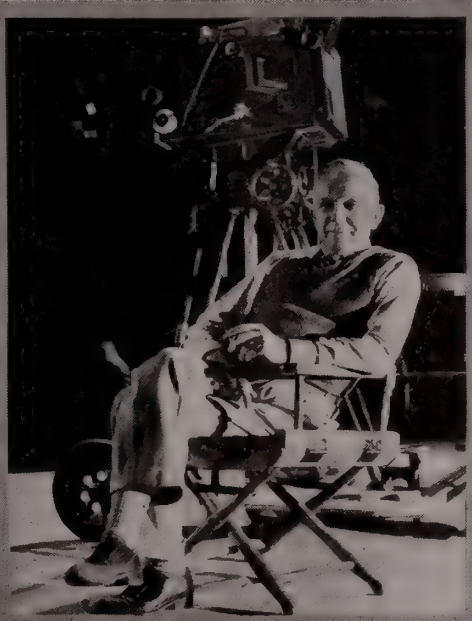
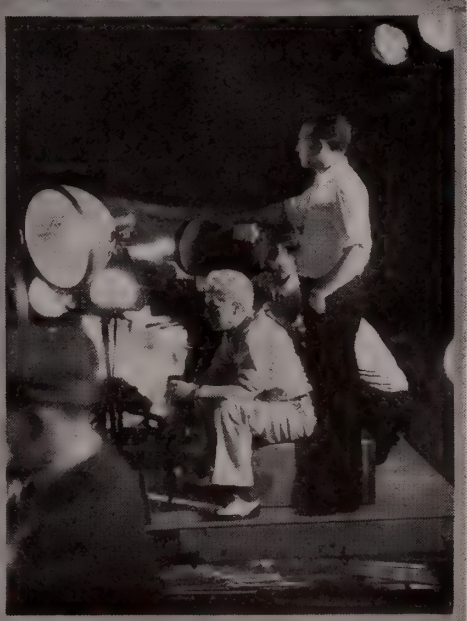
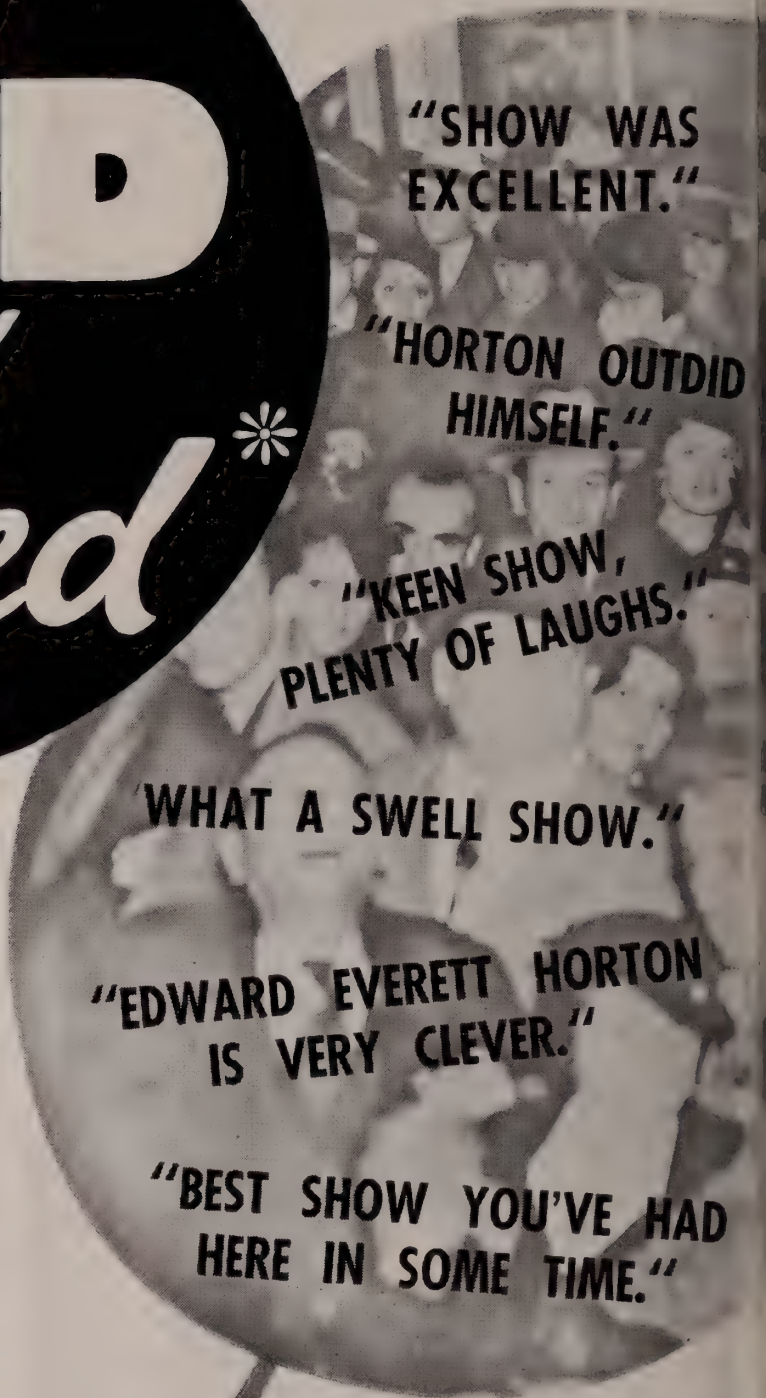
READ FROM LEFT TO RIGHT:

Top: EDWARD H. GRIFFITH directing "Next Time We Love."
ALAN CROSLAND directed "The Great Impersonation."
EDWARD LUDWIG directed "Three Kids and a Queen."
JAMES CRUZE will direct "Sutter's Gold."
RAY TAYLOR directing "Merriwell."
KURT NEUMANN directed "The Affair of Susan."
JAMES WHALE will direct "Show Boat."
WILLIAM THIELE will direct "Tomorrow Will Be a Better Day."
WILLIAM NIGH directed "His Night Out."
WALTER LANG will direct "Spinster Dinner."
LOUIS FRIEDLANDER directed "Stormy."
LAMBERT HILLYER is directing "Dangerous Waters."
EDWARD SUTHERLAND directed "Diamond Jim."
GEORGE MELFORD directed "East of Java."
JOHN M. STAHL directed "Magnificent Obsession."





They PAID and Praised*



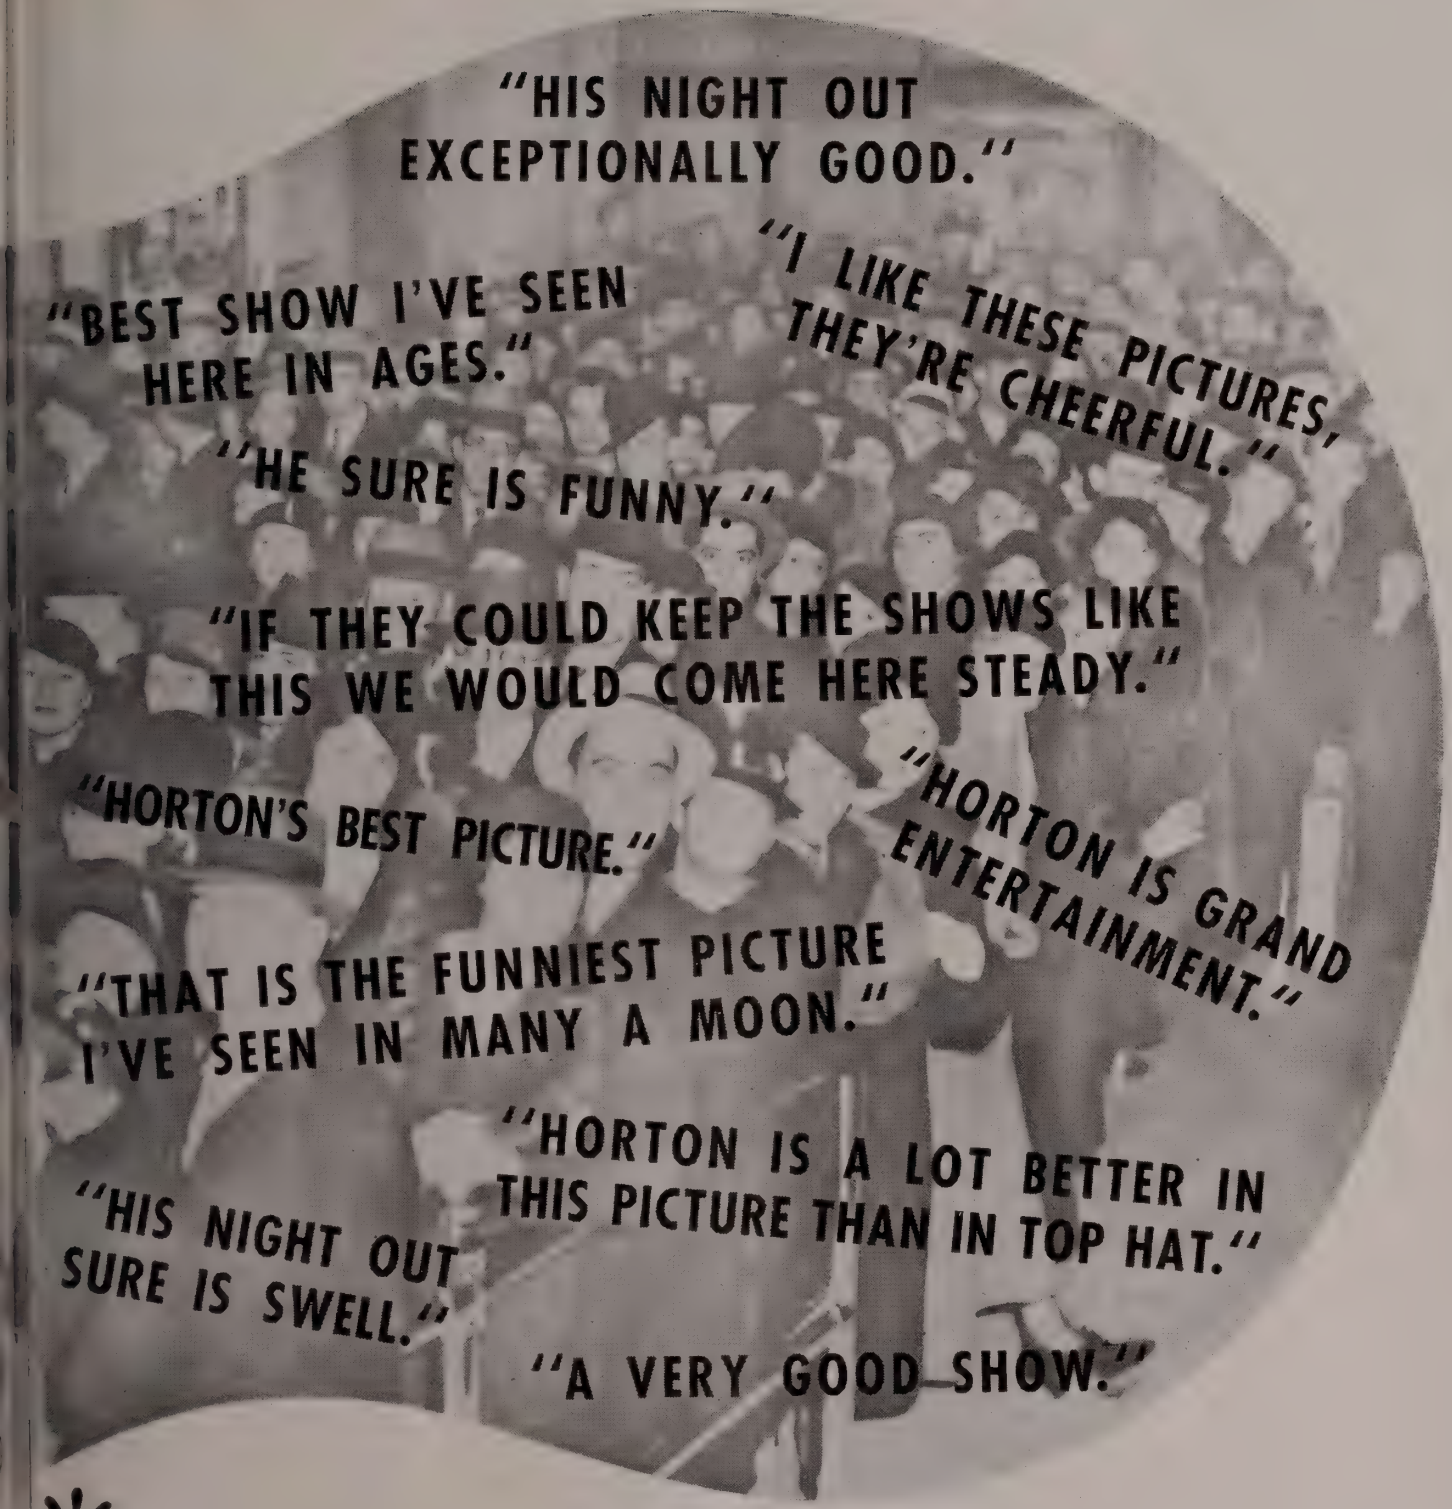
CARL LAEMMLE PRESENTS

EDWARD EVERETT HORTON

IN A UNIVERSAL COMEDY

"HIS NIGHT OUT"

With Irene Hervey + Jack LaRue + Robert McWade Lola Lane + Billy Burrud... Screenplay by Doris Malloy and Harry Clork . . . Directed by William Nigh . . . Produced by Irving Starr.



*

ABOVE ARE ACTUAL, VERBATIM COMMENTS FROM PATRONS AS THEY LEFT THE ORPHEUM THEATRE IN SAN FRANCISCO AFTER SEEING "HIS NIGHT OUT." NEVER WERE RAVES MORE UNANIMOUS!

Camera! Lights!

HERE THEY COME!

IRENE DUNNE and ROBERT TAYLOR in John M. Stahl's production . . . "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" with CHARLES BUTTERWORTH and BETTY FURNESS. From the best seller by Lloyd C. Douglas. (Completed)

MARGARET SULLAVAN and JAMES STEWART in "NEXT TIME WE LOVE" from Ursula Parrott's newest novel . . . with Wallace Ford . . . Directed by Edward H. Griffith. (In Production)

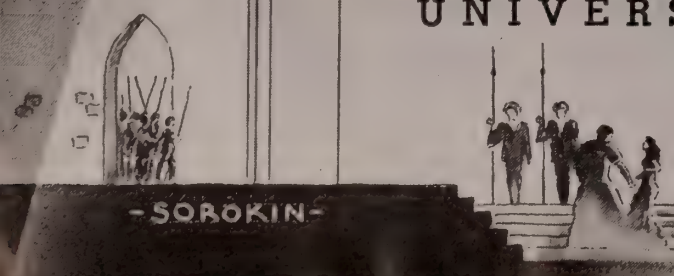
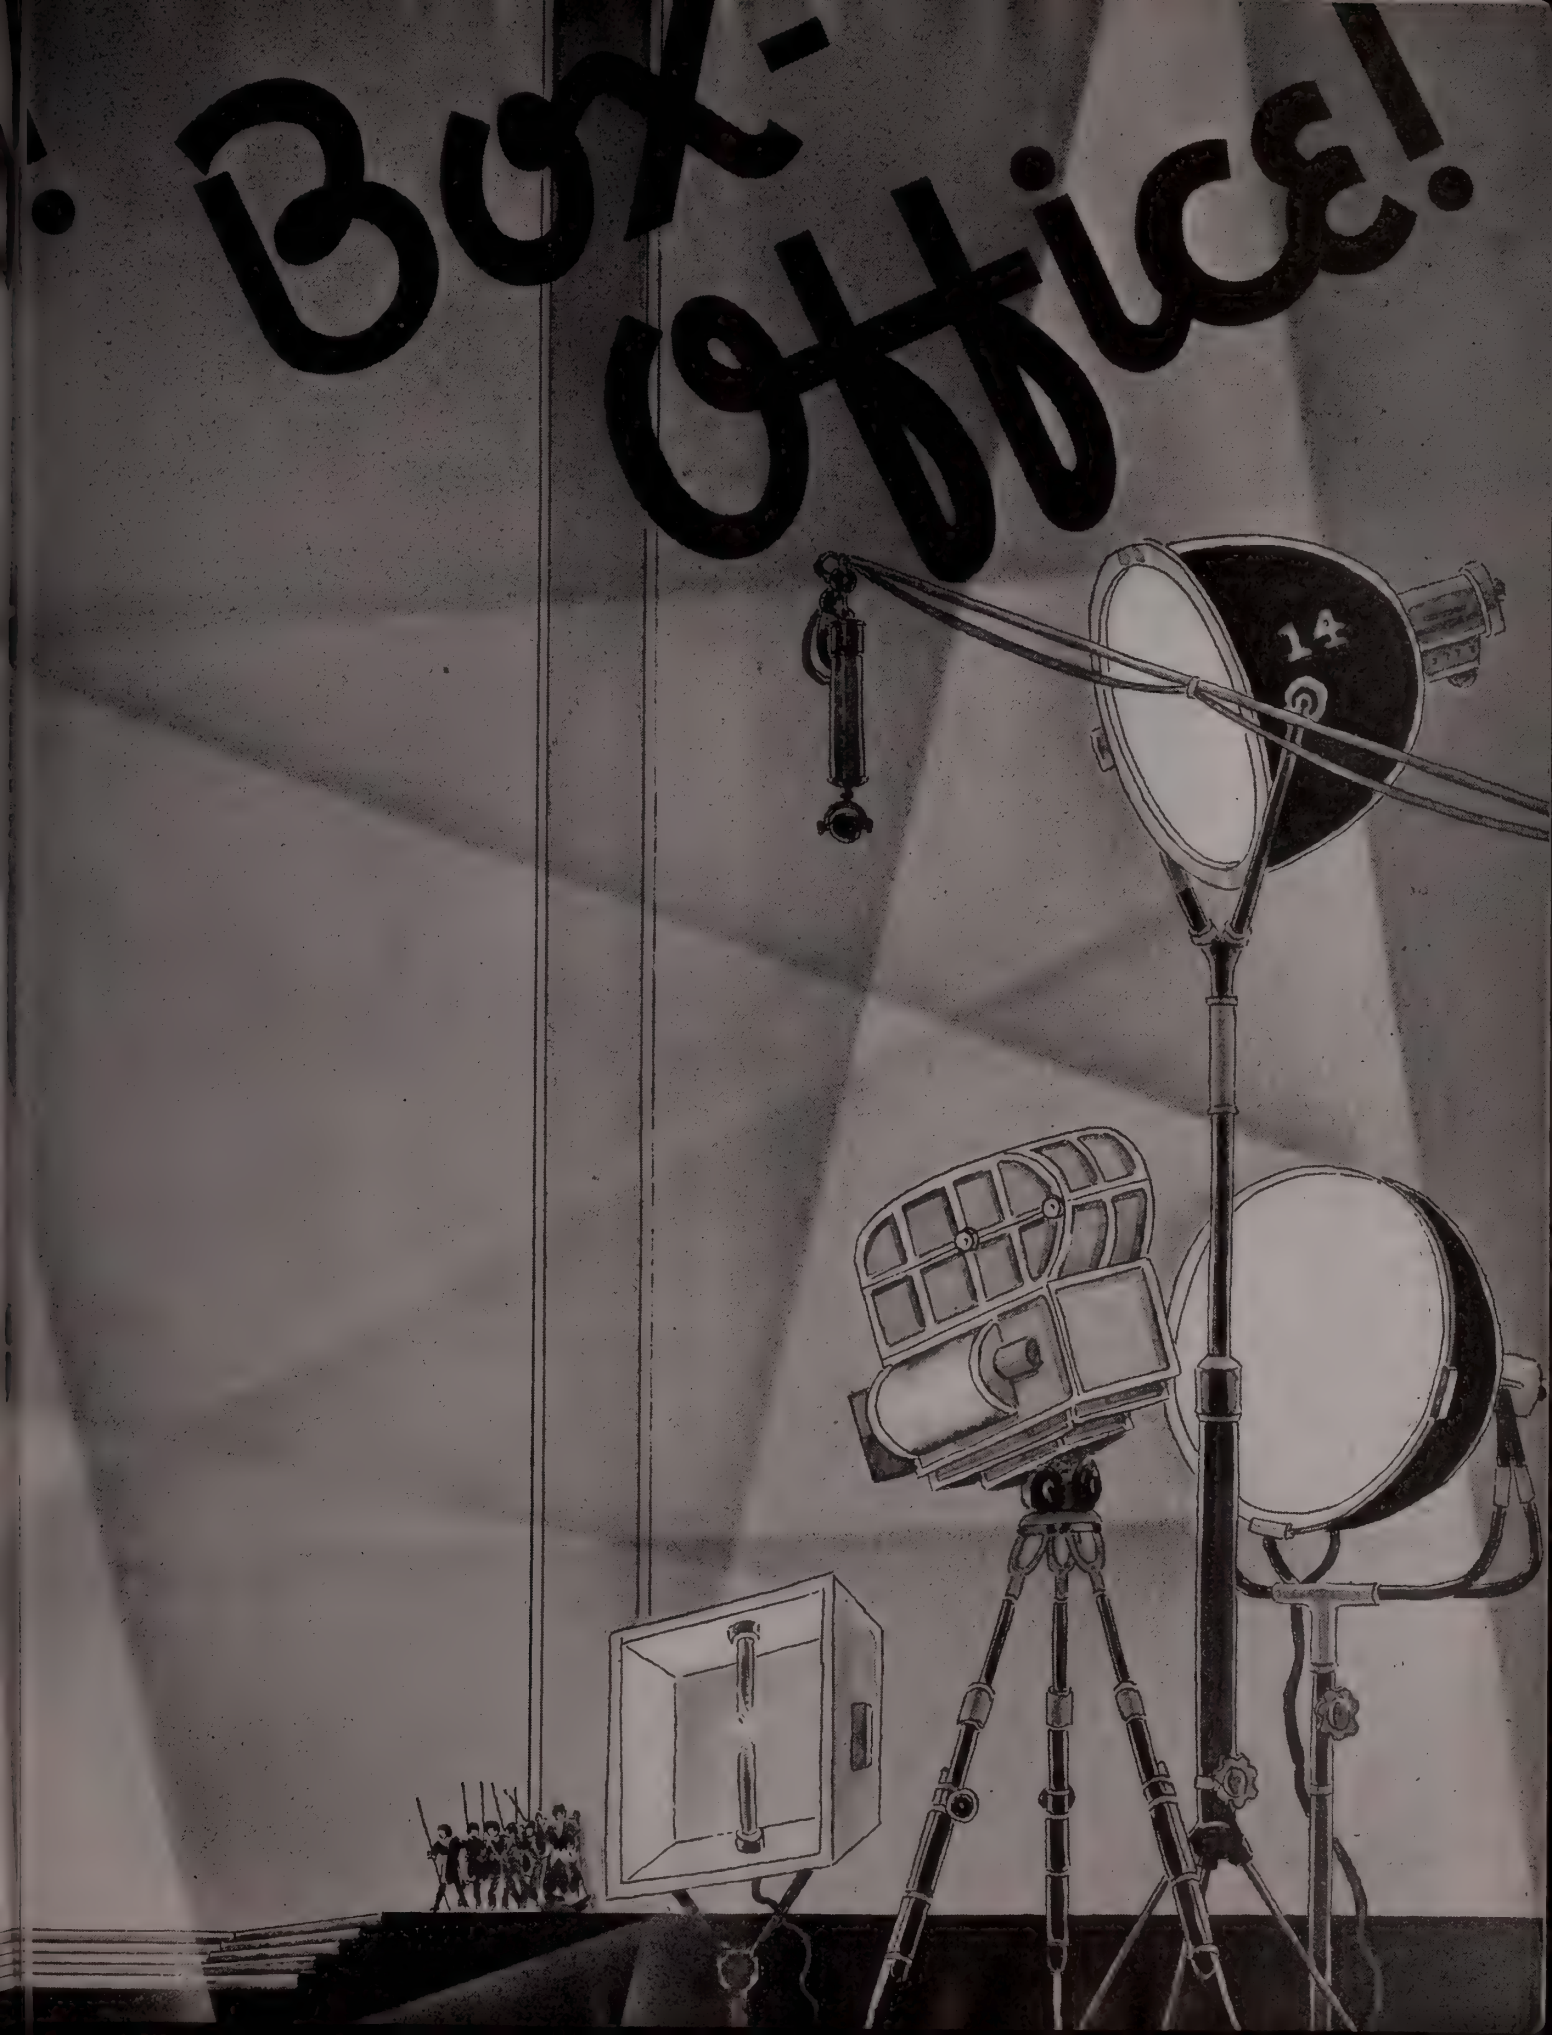
WILLIAM POWELL in "MY MAN GODFREY." A Carl Laemmle, Jr. Production. From the Liberty Magazine serial by Erich Hatch.

EDWARD ARNOLD in "SUTTER'S GOLD." From the epic novel by Blaise Cendrars . . . An Edmund Grainger production. Directed by James Cruze. (In Production)

IRENE DUNNE in "SHOWBOAT." Edna Ferber's Immortal Classic! . . . With PAUL ROBESON and CHARLES WINNINGER . . . New music and lyrics by Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein, III . . . A Carl Laemmle, Jr. production . . . Directed by James Whale.

UNIVERSAL'S CURRENT HITS





Box-office!

The New Margaret Sullavan

Margaret Sullavan and her new leading man James Stewart in "Next Time We Love."

Studio Reporter, the man who sees the Daily Rushes First Reveals a Studio Secret You Should Know.

TWO words are on everybody's lips these days at Universal City. One of these words is Margaret. The other is Sullavan. Although she has only begun to act her latest Universal role in the Ursula Parrott story, "Next Time We Love" with her new leading man, James Stewart, the dynamic star has the studio in a furor of excitement with the performance she is turning in every day. Veteran observers who have witnessed most everything in pictures during the past twenty years go into the projection room where the rushes of "Next Time We Love" are being screened and come out talking in raves. The greatest Sullavan so far! A new Sullavan! A character deeper, richer in surprises and with dramatic power that is surprising. These are some of the things they are saying.

The studio critic, the man who sees all the daily rushes with a critical eye and reports on them the next day, has no criticism of Miss Sullavan or of "Next Time We Love." This is what he says:

"Miss Sullavan is simply amazing the hardboiled projection room audiences with the versatility of her acting. It is all a picture of moods, the spontaneous changes in a woman's nature. One moment she is up in the clouds of ecstacy. Next minute she is down in the depths of depression, and the various points in between. Her performance is a masterpiece in portraying the feminine temperament which women fans all over the country will take to their hearts when the picture is released. It is great art and even greater box office."

The Ursula Parrot story was bought for Miss Sullavan because this magnificent heroine role seemed made to order for her talents. It was expected that she would do very well in it. But no one could imagine the dramatic heights to which she would carry the role as she is doing daily under Edward E. Sutherland's direction. She is putting more personality and skill into her work than ever before and with it there is a new kind of wisdom and beauty that everyone is talking about.

The modest Margaret as usual does not share in all the enthusiasm. She is always her own harshest critic. But she is full of praise for the director and technicians. She states that Joe Valentine, chief cameraman on "Next Time We Love" is photographing her as she has always dreamed of being photographed. It is perfect filming. In the closeups she screens even better than she does at a distance. This is a very rare quality. Closeups are the severest test of beauty and acting. It is in these closeup shots that she creates her most powerful emotional effects in this new picture of hers.

In one of these scenes she has to show how a young bride takes the shock of the announcement that her husband is not coming to their wedding breakfast. She must try to smile, but show the audience at the same time how deeply she is hurt underneath the forced gaiety. Another which she has just finished with James Stewart is a rehearsal scene, in which she quarrels, pouts, storms and finally kisses and makes up in a tornado of emotional acting. And this is only her fourth picture!

Roxy Theatre Holds Over "Three Kids and A Queen"

"THREE KIDS AND A QUEEN" got off to a splendid start at the Roxy Theatre on Friday and rolled up such a prodigious attendance record and such a glorious laugh record, that the picture was a hold-over almost from its first hour. Audiences fairly laughed themselves out of their seats. There was so much laughter, in fact, that many of the lines of Henry Armetta and Herman Bing were lost in the merriment and that's a good place to lose them.

All of the trade critics predicted a great success for "Three Kids and a Queen" and this has been amply borne out by its box office returns. It is a picture that every showman can be proud to show to his audience.

In addition to the reviews quoted in the box on this page, the Weekly feels that the review of the Weekly Variety critics, which is regarded as a barometer in this business and which could not be written until the picture played New York, should be quoted in full, and here it is.

"A comedy snatch story that should do plenty all right at the box office. Has all the ingredients for strong word-of-mouth which may build it into better holdover proportions than the initial stanza.

Hokum bucket with a capital H, but highly commercial hoke it is. It's coupled with up-to-the-second G-man stuff, moderate gang business, a load of comedy and pathos, and a touch of romance that should spread nice grosses of jam among the exhibs.

"The three kids of the title are Frankie Darro, Billy Burrud and William Benedict. Darro is more or less standard in these juve roles although he's starting to grow up so he's been slipped a little romance opposite Charlotte Henry. Billy Benedict has been around, and a corking Huck Fynn type he is. But the champ kid of the trio is Billy Burrud, newcomer, and a cinch for the celluloid heights. One of those once-in-a-while gifted personalities, this five or six year old youngster rings the bell every time without being forced to milk his opportunities.

"May Robson is the titular 'queen' of 'Three Kids and a Queen." An eccentric recluse, this spinster lady decides to stay 'kidnapped' (after the word has gone out; actually it's a harmless sheltering, following an accident) which leads into a cheatin' cheaters climax, a $50,000 reward, fair days ahead for the ghetto family (Armetta and his brood) all of which is highly commercial audience stuff and they ate it up at the Roxy opening night.

"Nor is the humor too artificial. The situations permit Armetta and his r-rolling pal, Herman Bing, (probably the best screen Dutch today) to throw fits at the prospect of being unwittingly involved with the authoriies.

From the tyrannical, crass old fuss-budget, the 'queen' (Robson) is gradually, but naturally enough, metamorphosed into a more humane soul.

If producer Ben Verschleiser has permitted himself to grow a bit mawkish on the sentiment, it's plausible enough as it takes up the sundry skeins, including the finale session before the sanity commission.

"Edward Ludwig's direction is canny and most effective in its sentimental comedy sessions. The sequence with the parlor gaiety, to the tune of 'Lookie, Here Comes Cookie' is one of the finest screen sequences in many a release.

Picture should go big for all types of audiences.

ABEL

After an amazing business on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, the Roxy announced that it would hold over "Three Kids and a Queen" for a second week.

Variety says:* "Three Kids and a Queen" getting a mighty play here, around 39,000. Holds."

In its miniature reviews Variety says: "Sentimental, comedy snatch story; cinch for box office satisfaction."

Daily News* gave the picture three stars and the same day gave "Bounty" 3½.

Bland Johaneson, in the Daily Mirror says: "Story gay and tender; amusing comedy, cleverly played by a powerful cast, briskly directed-well written and handsomely mounted. This little human-interest comedy drama offers thoroughly good fun.

Rose Pelswick, in the Journal says: "A warm, sympathetic and amusing human-interest yarn.

Irene Thirer, in the Post, says: "It is what we call a natural for the family trade. Here's to its box office success.

Eileen Creelman, in the Sun, said: "Yesterday noon's crowded house—liked the whole business."

Henry Armetta in Cleveland

Photo Gordon Connor

Henry Armetta as he arrived in Cleveland for his personal appearance at the Palace Theatre greeted by prominent Italians. The man at the left holding his hat in his hand is Prince Raoul Bonamo. Next to him is Eleanor Farina, Cavalier Lombardo, Armetta and Cavalier Lucciardi. And there were hundreds more. As a result the Palace Theatre ran way over average business. Motion Picture Daily says the overage was six thousand dollars. Sweet.

SMASHING! CRASHING! ROAR
EAST
OF JAVA

NG! RAGING ADVENTURE!
CARL LAEMMLE PRESENTS
Charles Bickford
IN A UNIVERSAL PICTURE WITH ELIZABETH YOUNG, LESLIE
FENTON, FRANK ALBERTSON,
CLARENCE MUSE, SIEGFRIED
RUMANN, JAY GILBUENA.
Screenplay by Paul Perez and James Ashmore Creelman from "Tiger Island" by Gouverneur Morris.
A Paul Kohner Production.
Directed by George Melford.
KULZ

The World is Singing 'Em!

HUNDREDS OF RADIO PROGRAMS ARE SURRENDERING THEIR TIME TO ITS HIT NUMBERS. THOUSANDS OF PATRONS WILL SURRENDER AT YOUR BOX OFFICE WHEN THEY HIT YOUR THEATRE!

CARL LAEMMLE presents Universal's Musical Treat. With FRANK PARKER + TAMARA HELEN LYND + RUSS BROWN ABE LYMAN & HIS CALIFORNIANS JACK DEMPSEY + Sara Mildred Strauss Dancers + The Nadon Singers + The Tune Twisters The Million Dollar Fashion Parade with the famous Milgrim Models.

DIRECTED BY MONTE BRICE.

Produced by Broadway Productions.

Carl Laemmle presents Universal's Epic of the Painted Desert . . . With NOAH BEERY, Jr., JEAN ROGERS, J. Farrell MacDonald, Fred Kohler, Raymond Hatton, Walter Miller, Rex, The King of Wild Horses and THE ORIGINAL ARIZONA WRANGLERS.

●

Story by Cherry Wilson . . . Directed by Louis Friedlander.
A Universal Picture Produced by Henry MacRae.

"SYMPATHETICALLY HANDLED, SPLENDIDLY PHOTOGRAPHED, 'STORMY' IS IDEAL ENTERTAINMENT FOR THE FAMILY TRADE"! —Philadelphia Exhibitor

●

"WILL WIN THE APPLAUSE OF ANY AUDIENCE"!

—Hollywood Filmograph

Toronto Roll of Honor

The following exhibitors in the Toronto Territory have used Universal Pictures continuously for

EXHIBITOR	THEATRE	TOWN	NO. YEARS UNIVERSAL ACCOUNT
P. J. Nolan	Avalon	Ottawa (Also operating Roxy, and Columbia in Ottawa)	15
H. O'Regan	Francais	Ottawa	15
Anthony Patzalek	Playhouse	Hamilton	15
Leo Coyle	King George	St. Catharines	15
R. Bull	Regent	Collingwood (Closed two years)	10
Guest & Billington	Majestic	Dundas	10
G. W. Hogarth	Regent	Windsor	10
P. J. Greenlees	Princess	Woodstock	10
A. Lester	King	Toronto	10
Moorehead & Filman	Patricia	London	10
J. A. Boyd	Model	Toronto	10
H. A. C. Osborne	Bijou	Penetang	10
Alexander & Mentel	Park	Toronto	10
J. Walker	Gem	Port Dover	10
Leo Mascioli	Empire and Goldfields	Timmins	10
Samuel Bloom & Samuel Fine	B and F Circuit	Toronto	9
Premier Theatres, Ltd.	Circuit	Toronto	6
Famous Players Canadian Corp.	Circuit	Toronto	5
R. F. Garrett	Capitol	Barrie	5
Max Allen	Temple	East Windsor	5
S. Delaney	Delaney	Gananoque	5
H. P. Braden	Kenilworth	Hamilton	5
N. A. Taylor	Main	Hamilton	5
W. L. Stewart	Rex	London	5
Levinson & Palowin	Rialto	Ottawa	5
Geo. Cook	Regent	Picton	5
F. P. Hannan	Royal	Sandwich	5
R. T. Stevens	Regent	Sudbury	5
J. O. Scott	Weston	Weston	5
L. Evans	Broadview	Toronto	5
S. Lent	Brock & Kenwood	Toronto	5
H. King	Grant & King's Playhouse	Toronto	5
A. Polakoff	Kingswood & Mayfair	Toronto	5
Max Starkman	Liberty	Toronto	5
G. B. Garbarino	Odeon	Toronto	5
N. Rittenberg	Orpheum	Toronto	5
H. Woods	Prince Edward	Toronto	5
S. Hamer	Variety	Toronto	5

S. BRINT, Mgr.

New Magic in "The Invisible Ray"

Karloff and Frances Drake in a tense scene from "The Invisible Ray."

Karloff the uncanny, in a role without makeup scores the greatest triumph of his career as a screen actor in "The Invisible Ray"

A PICTURE with greater magic than "The Invisible Man," with a central character more demoniac and dramatic than "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," with Karloff given a chance to look handsome and yet more terrifying than ever, sounds like the definition of a picture impossible to produce. And it was the definition until Universal made the impossible come true the other day with the shooting of the last scene of "The Invisible Ray," the thriller which stars Karloff and Bela Lugosi together for the first time since "The Raven."

Up until now "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" has been the classic example of a scientist turned into a murderous fiend by the use of a mysterious drug. "The Invisible Ray" begins where "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" left off. In this Universal thriller, Karloff plays the part of Dr. Janos Rukh, a scientist who discovers a ray which he calls Radium X, many times more powerful than radium. He accidentally becomes poisoned by this ray. Whereas Dr. Jekyll was merely the ordinary killer, Mr. Hyde when under the influence of his maddening drug, Rukh becomes a human bomb, a torch of death. If he does not use an antidote on time every eight hours he begins to glow like a coal of fire and his touch becomes deadly to those he loves or hates, equally. In time the drug affects his brain and he becomes actually the murderer of those he hates.

There is tremendous drama as Karloff plays this warped character, with his terrible struggle to keep from killing the woman he loves. He acts the part without a trace of the horrific makeup which has featured all his other screen triumphs of terror. In fact he is strikingly handsome all through the picture. He wears his dark hair curled and also a slender mustache which makes him look very much like Edgar Allen Poe. Those who have seen the film screened for its entire length in rough continuity, predict that the former master movie monster is going to find many perfumed notes in his fan mail from feminine admirers after "The "Invisible Ray" is released.

All the appalling changes that take place in Karloff's appearance when the radium takes effect and he begins to shine with an infernal phosphorescent glow were accomplished through the lens legerdemain invented by Universal's camera specialist Jack Fulton. Fulton worked in secret for six weeks before a foot of the picture was shot by director Lambert Hillyer until he had his process perfected. His problem was to make Karloff glow like a huge electric bulb in the dark, but become normal as soon as he steps into the light. Finally, actual flame had to be seen shooting from the actor's body. All these changes had to be made on the instant as Karloff would pass rapidly from darkness to light and back again while acting his scenes with Frances Drake, Lugosi, Frank Lawton, Walter Kingsford and Violet Kemble Cooper.

Fulton not only accomplished these magic tricks by a system of light filters but made solid granite cliffs appear to crumble to dust, statues vanish into thin air, steel swords disappear from the hands of their wielders by the same secret "Invisible Ray" process. All camera wizardry, that in "The Invisible Man" included, have been excelled in this film.

This new Karloff-Lugosi thriller is the most exciting thing yet to come out of Universal studio.

Attendance Record

ONE hour after the doors of the Roxy Theatre in New York opened for "Three Kids and a Queen" on Sunday, 6,700 persons were inside the theatre.

Freeman Actually Photographed An Earthquake

MERVYN FREEMAN, ace Universal Newsreel Cameraman, found out all about earthquakes during the last disastrous tembler at Helena, Mont. Freeman flew from Los Angeles as soon as the second series of quakes shook the city and immediately started filming the catastrophe.

Charles E. Ford, Editor of the Newsreel, wanted something more than just shots of fallen buildings so he telephoned Freeman to get out at daylight and set his camera up in the center of the street and wait for another quake. Freeman did and was lucky enough to be photographing wrecked buildings when another tremblor shook the city. It was as hard as any the city experienced and while walls fell, showering bricks and debris, Freeman cranked. One leg of his tripod was thrown out from under his camera but he continued grinding and made the first and only actual pictures of an earthquake in action.

"Greatest Of Its Kind" Says Chester B. Bahn

(Continued from Page 6)

will be the result of a polling of an equal number of eastern theatre owners. These owners will comprise big city first-runs, neighborhood shows and small-town show-houses. This is an excellent method of calling attention to short subjects which would frequently pass unnoticed by critics who center their major attention on the feature picture.

The Universal Weekly wishes to commend the Jay Emmanuel Publications for this enterprising institution of an award.

And up in Syracuse, critic Chester B. Bahn of the Syracuse Herald, one of the most widely followed film authorities of New York saw "Camera Thrills" and this is what he said about it:

Nominated as the greatest film of its kind ever compiled: Universal's "Camera Thrills," on the current Kieth program.

But be sure your shock absorbers are working before you watch it.

✚ ✚ ✚

Sam Coslow Writes "Remember Last Night" Song

ONE of the interesting and effective exploitation mediums which will be used when "Remember Last Night?" goes into the Roxy will be a song written especially for the production by Sam Coslow. It has the same name and Mr. Coslow wrote the words and the music as a favor to Carl Laemmle, Jr., producer of "Remember Last Night?" It has an attractive cover and is published by Popular Melodies, Inc. who are plugging it hard, and with extraordinary good results on the radio. Here is the first verse and chorus:

VERSE

Last Night Was Oh, So Thrilling,
You never seemed so close before.
Your lips were warm and willing
And yet we knew it meant "Adieu."

CHORUS

Tho I ought to bid you good bye
It's funny but the moment I try
I wonder why my heart keeps saying
"Remember Last Night?"
Tho I knew you were not meant for me,
And this affair was not meant to be
That little voice within keeps saying
"Remember Last Night?"
Why did my heart set out to capture
What I knew I couldn't have at any price
Why did you let me taste the rapture
That I found in our forbidden paradise,
I write you notes to tell you we're thru,
I seal them, then I tear them in two,
For something in my hearts keeps pleading
"Remember Last Night?"

THE SONG COVER

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY SHOWMANSHIP SECTION

A DIGEST OF THE BEST EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

"Fighting Youth" drinks milk for health! Around that cue, Edward J. Cosmo, Manager, Strand Theatre, Amsterdam, N. Y. worked up a great cooperative stunt with a local dairy which distributed bottle hangers with the milk and, in newspaper ads, offered tickets for "Fighting Youth" to youngsters who saved 10 milk caps. Milk company bannered their delivery wagons and advised employees to see the picture.

* * *

From Holden Swiger comes this photograph, showing how he put the space atop the marquee of the Palace Theatre, Akron to work on "Remember Last Night?"

* * *

When "Fighting Youth" played the Grand Opera House, Wilmington, Del., activity of local high school football teams was making hot news, so Manager Morton Levine cashed in on it. Using photographs of the teams in training, he made up display boards for use in athletic store windows flanked on either side with accessory cards and "Fighting Youth" stills. Boys distributed imitation tickets at games. Ushers and ticket takers were dressed in football togs in local school colors.

. . . the supreme spy adventure comes to the screen!

E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM is popularly known as the world's greatest spinner of yarns of international intrigue—of love stories set against a background of daring adventure in diplomatic circles. Gloriously beautiful women mingle with his statesmen matching their wits and weapons of love against the detective work of ace secret service men.

"THE GREAT IMPERSONATION" is perhaps the supreme spy adventure from the pen of this facile writer. It has caught the public fancy to the tune of 300,000 copies of the novel sold to date and probably has been read by several million people.

Universal asked Edmund Lowe: "Of all the books you have read, which would you most like to do in pictures?" Lowe answered, " 'THE GREAT IMPERSONATION.' I always thought it was a marvelous story of the type I would like best to play."

Universal is bringing "THE GREAT IMPERSONATION" to you; and Edmund Lowe plays the lead, as he had hoped to. It is as thrilling a spy story as ever was written, with adventure carrying him from exile in Africa back to England to save his country in its darkest hour and win back a love that treachery had stolen from him.

"THE GREAT IMPERSONATION" calls for one of the most exacting dual role the screen has known. Lowe meets the challenge. Valerie Hobson and Wera Engels are the women in the case, which sizzles with exciting espionage, secret codes, masked identities and the super-spy who defies detection.

It is a yarn that is "movie" all the way. Universal will be releasing it to you at a time when good pictures are at a premium. The pressbook will be chock full of good exploitation ideas. Watch for it!

Joe Weil

Hub Radio Fans Turn "Remember" Sleuths!

Granara and French Top Nice Campaign With Big Air Contest!

"Listen everybody! Mary Mason speaking from station W. M. E. X! Ten dollar cash prize for you if you can name the murderers in the following story! In addition 10 guest tickets to 10 other contestants each day! Now get your thinking cap on! This is the Universal picture everyone is talking about—"Remember Last Night?", opening at Keith's Memorial Theatre on Friday. Now for the plot! All you have to do is supply the murderer! Listen carefully! Here are the clues!"

THE intriguing radio announcement, (given below the picture at left), followed by a teasing broadcast detailing synopsis and clues to the four murders in "Remember Last Night?", was picked up by Boston radio fans when they tuned in on Mary Mason's four daily programs on station W. M. E. X. Broadcasts began a week before picture opened in Hub City. Stunt was landed by George French, manager of the Memorial Theatre, and Jack Granara, district publicity director for R. K. O. Theatres. Answers were accepted until midnight the day before the picture opened. Daily, throughout the run, radio announcements were made, boosting the picture and telling listeners-in to see it. Ticket winners were announced on the program daily. The photograph shows Miss Mason with the first day's entries which swamped the station.

At the right is reproduction of a card which was distributed in office buildings and many places where large crowds assembled. Inexpensive, but aroused interest because of the novelty and mystery of the illusion gag.

French and Granara went on to exploit other tie-ups from every possible angle. The book was plugged by the public and circulating libraries with book marks and by the stores with window and counter displays.

Tie-up was completed with local distributor of Real Detective Magazine for display of magazine together with accessory cards in numerous stores around town.

Other tie-ups that brought good results in the windows with displays and the newspapers with ads were Garcia Grande Cigars and Sunkist Oranges. Het Manheim, Universal exploiteer, assisted.

Hi-dee-hey! Hi-dee-ho! Welcome "Sol"! — San Diego!

Marion Gronow, Publicity Manager, Spreckels Theatre, San Diego, sends along this newsy picture of Manager Al Sobler's handsome "King Solomon of Broadway" ballyhoo which had everything—King Solomon himself and women, women, women (3 of them!). The stunt was inexpensive, too! Truck from Chevrolet dealer in return for credit signs! Music via phonograph with picture tunes!

Liberty Mag Tie-Up Nets Indianapolis Bannered Trucks and Newsboy Parade!

PARADE, teaser campaign, special screening and other bright ideas made up fine showmanship campaign Henry Sommers and Frank Monyhan conducted for "Remember Last Night?" at the Indiana Theatre, Indianapolis.

Topping off the excellent exploitation was the cracker jack tie-up with the local Liberty Magazine distributor. Mag people went overboard on the stunt, bannering their trucks and enlisting their carriers in the campaign. Every one of the ten thousand magazines they delivered carried a "Remember Last Night?" herald. In return for this, theatre held a private screening for the boys and drivers and continued to cash in for additional publicity by inviting press to cover showing. Boys and trucks, led by police escort, paraded through main streets to theatre door. Photograph above shows trucks parked outside theatre during showing.

Another stunt that attracted loads of attention was the teaser campaign of the catchy title. Six one column newspaper teaser ads (illustrated at right) and two hundred snipes on boards around town were used.

Concentration on both the book and song tie-ups resulted in big local cooperation. The book was given library boosts and book store window displays and the music was plugged on the air and displayed in shops. F. F. Vincent, Universal exploiteer, assisted.

Answering The Call at Hamrick's Temple, Tacoma!

Ned Edris and William Connor put on a nice campaign for "Call of the Savage" at John Hamrick's Temple Theatre, Tacoma. Look at the sight that greeted their eyes on opening morning shows!

KNICKERBOCKER PRESS
and
ALBANY EVENING NEWS

See Them a

Your

SERVICE PLUS

Universal Newsreel doesn't st with scoop after scoop! It giv you big-space publicity and a vertising as well, to bring those extra crowds! Linked w this service are 132 of Americ biggest newspapers . . . and her a sample of how they're bui ing business for you. Ads a stories from dozens of othe are pouring in daily!

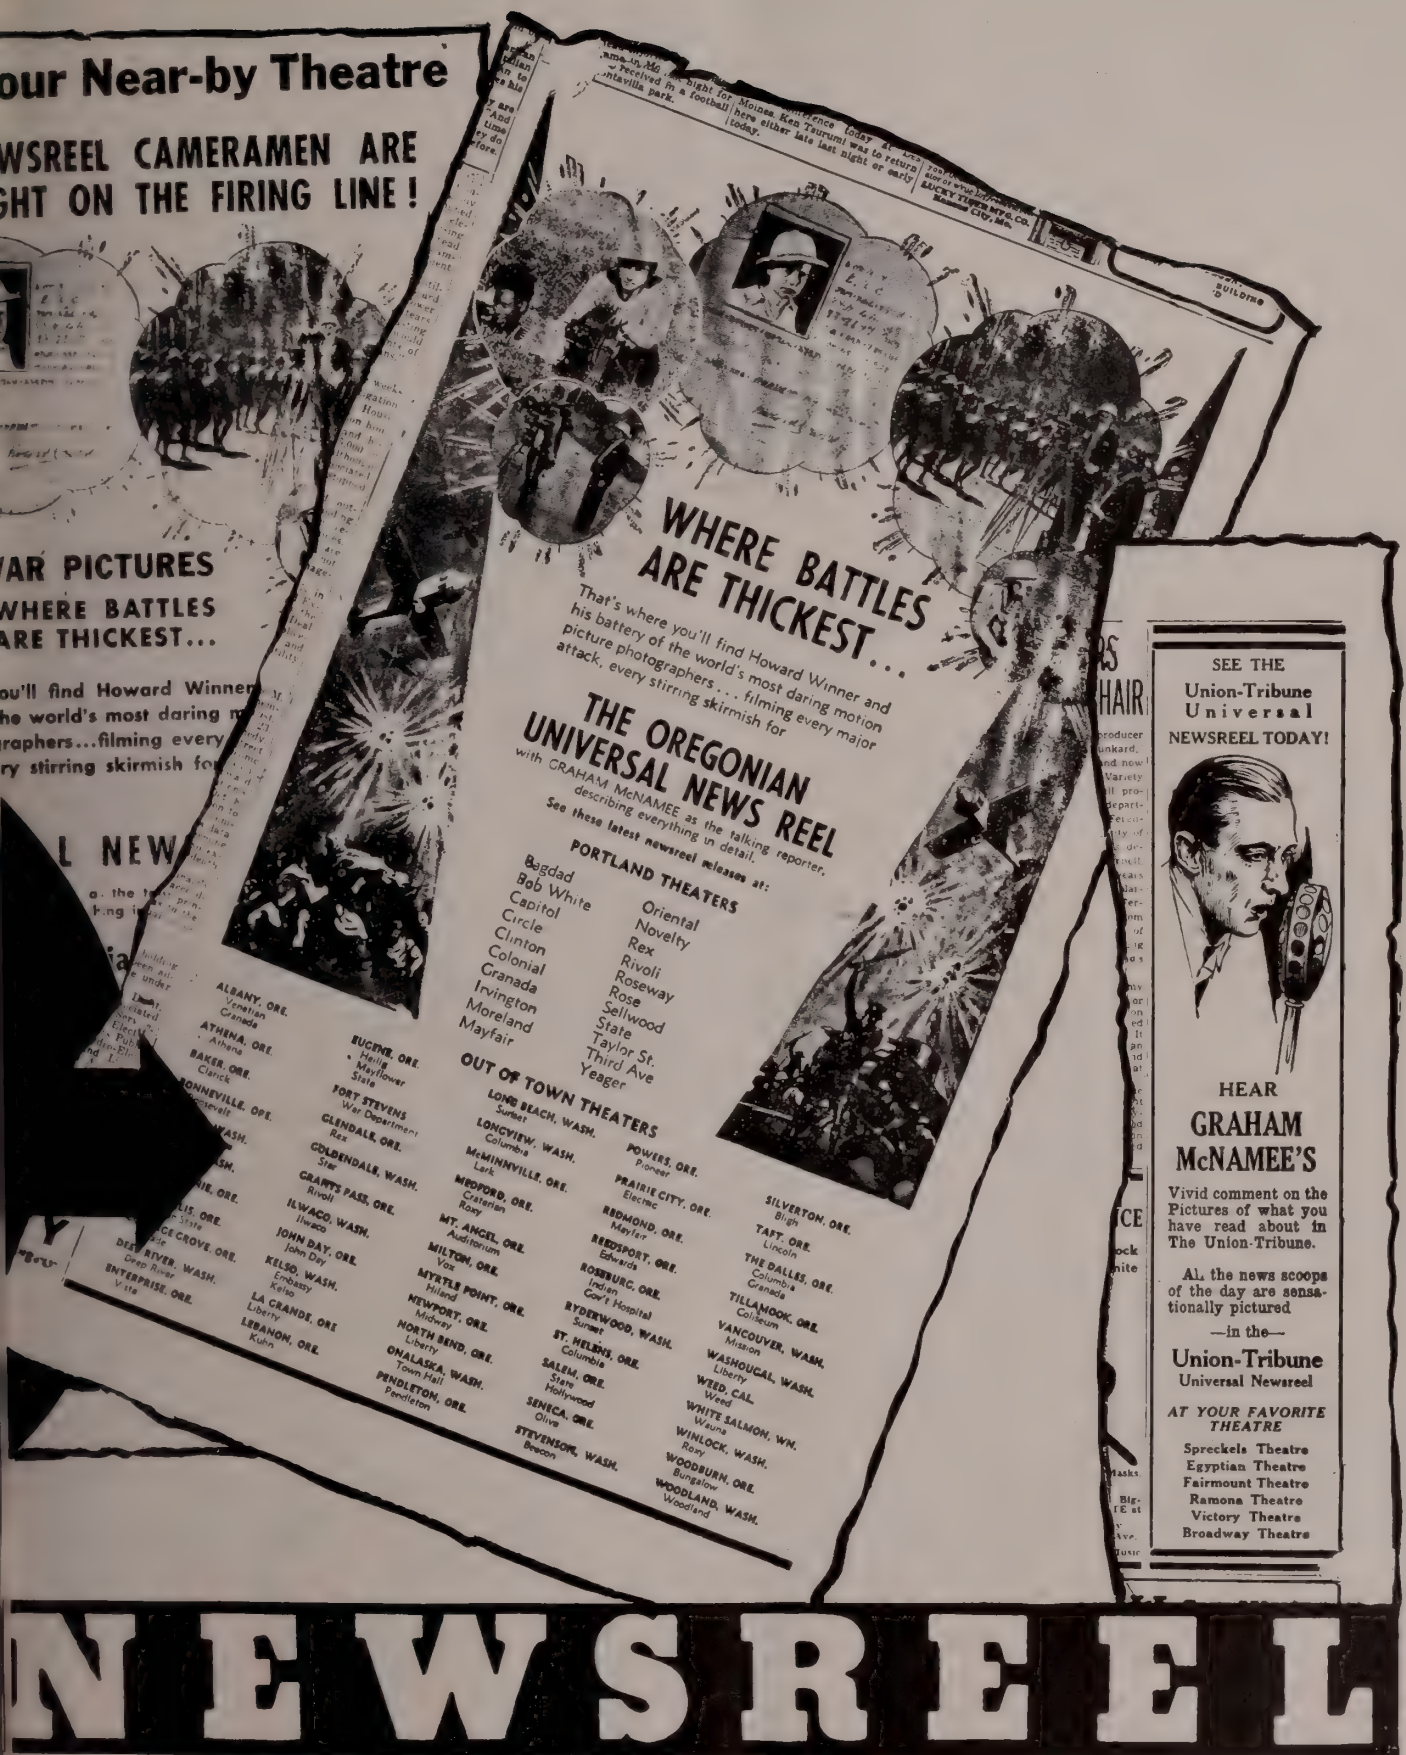
UNIVERSAL

WITH GRAHAM



our Near-by Theatre
WSREEL CAMERAMEN ARE GHT ON THE FIRING LINE!
AR PICTURES
WHERE BATTLES ARE THICKEST...
WHERE BATTLES ARE THICKEST...
That's where you'll find Howard Winner and his battery of the world's most daring motion picture photographers... filming every major attack, every stirring skirmish for THE OREGONIAN UNIVERSAL NEWS REEL with GRAHAM McNAMEE as the talking reporter, describing everything in detail.
See these latest newsreel releases at:
PORTLAND THEATERS
Bagdad
Bob White
Capitol
Circle
Clinton
Colonial
Granada
Irvington
Moreland
Mayfair
Oriental Novelty
Rex
Rivoli
Roseway
Rose
Sellwood
State
Taylor St.
Third Ave
Yeager
OUT OF TOWN THEATERS
ALBANY, ORE. Venetian, Granada
ATHENA, ORE. Athena
BAKER, ORE. Clarick
EUGENE, ORE. Heilig, Mayflower, State
FORT STEVENS War Department
GLENDALE, ORE. Rex
GOLDENDALE, WASH. Star
GRANTS PASS, ORE. Rivoli
ILWACO, WASH. Ilwaco
JOHN DAY, ORE. John Day
KELSO, WASH. Embassy, Kelso
LA GRANDE, ORE. Liberty
LEBANON, ORE. Kuhn
LONG BEACH, WASH. Sunset
LONGVIEW, WASH. Columbia
McMINNVILLE, ORE. Lark
MEDFORD, ORE. Craterian, Roxy
MT. ANGEL, ORE. Auditorium
MILTON, ORE.
MYRTLE POINT, ORE. Hiland
NEWPORT, ORE. Midway
NORTH BEND, ORE. Liberty
ONALASKA, WASH. Town Hall
PENDLETON, ORE. Pendleton
POWERS, ORE. Pioneer
PRAIRIE CITY, ORE. Electric
REDMOND, ORE. Mayfair
REEDSPORT, ORE. Edwards
ROSEBURG, ORE. Indian, Gen'l Hospital
RYDERWOOD, WASH. Sunset
ST. HELENS, ORE. Columbia
SALEM, ORE. State, Hollywood
SENECA, ORE. Olive
STEVENSON, WASH. Beacon
SILVERTON, ORE. Bligh
TAFT, ORE. Lincoln
THE DALLES, ORE. Columbia, Granada
TILLAMOOK, ORE. Coliseum
VANCOUVER, WASH. Mission
WASHOUGAL, WASH. Liberty
WEED, CAL. Weed
WHITE SALMON, WN. Wauna
WINLOCK, WASH. Roxy
WOODBURN, ORE. Bungalow
WOODLAND, WASH. Woodland
SEE THE Union-Tribune
Universal
NEWSREEL TODAY!
HEAR
GRAHAM McNAMEE'S
Vivid comment on the Pictures of what you have read about in The Union-Tribune.
All the news scoops of the day are sensationally pictured —in the—
Union-Tribune
Universal Newsreel
AT YOUR FAVORITE THEATRE
Spreckels Theatre
Egyptian Theatre
Fairmount Theatre
Ramona Theatre
Victory Theatre
Broadway Theatre
NEWSREEL
McNAMEE

From

UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.

ROCKEFELLER CENTER
NEW YORK CITY

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
Paid
Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

ROBERT B WENNER
22 CROSS ST
MALDEN MASS

"'LO, FELLERS . . .

HAVE YOU SEEN ME IN 'MONKEY WRETCHES' YET?" . .

OSWALD

The Lucky Rabbit

Printed in U. S. A.

Larry Edmunds Bookshop
6658 Hollywood Blvd.
Hollywood, Calif. 90028
HO 3-3273
World's Largest Collection
Of Books on Motion Pictures

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
VOL. 37, NO. 20 DEC 14, 1935

IRENE DUNNE...The world will clamor at your feet; you will be enshrined in the heart of every motion picture lover. Your performance in John M. Stahl's Universal production, "Magnificent Obsession," will rank as one of the greatest of all time! » » » » » » » »

ROBERT TAYLOR... In bestowing the highest honors of stardom upon you, Universal predicts the deserving acclaim of millions of motion picture-goers. Your role in John M. Stahl's production of "Magnificent Obsession," is one of the outstanding portrayals of the generation! » » » » »

Carl Laemmle
has the honor to present
IRENE DUNNE and
ROBERT TAYLOR in
JOHN M. STAHL'S
PRODUCTION
with
CHARLES BUTTERWORTH
BETTY FURNESS
Arthur Treacher, Ralph Morgan
Henry Armetta, Sara Haden
Beryl Mercer, Cora Sue Collins
Lucien Littlefield, Theodore von Eltz
A UNIVERSAL PICTURE
from the famous best-selling novel by Lloyd C. Douglas...
[Now in its 40th edition!]
MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION

How "Magnificent Obsession" Great Novel, Became Greater Picture!

Irene Dunne as the beautiful Helen Hudson, heroine of "Magnificent Obsession."

The History of a Moving Picture Which Began in the Mind of Lloyd C. Douglas in 1920 and Emerged Gloriously from the Directorial Genius of John M. Stahl in 1936.

THE saga of "Magnificent Obsession," Lloyd C. Douglas' novel which is now a Universal motion picture, is the story of the little pebble that set out for a quiet roll and became an avalanche. It began on a sheet of white foolscap paper in a minister's quiet study and finished on a million feet of celluloid sound-film, occupying four cutting rooms at the Universal studio. Between these two stages of development lies a modern-age history, covering enough time to build a block of skyscrapers, enough money to construct a Zeppelin and enough people working on two continents to populate a good sized town. Seven years, one million dollars, six thousand actors, actresses, writers, technicians, doctors, lawyers, research experts, extras and other workers under John M. Stahl's direction, went to transpose this book from print into a picture featuring Irene Dunne, Robert Taylor, Betty Furness and Charles Butterworth.

In 1920, Lloyd C. Douglas, a minister of the Gospel, living in Wellsley Hills, Mass., conceived the idea of a life-for-a-life story, in which a well-to-do young wastrel was saved from drowning by the use of a pulmotor belonging to an eminent surgeon, who at that same hour drowned for lack of this life-saving device. Dr. Douglas was unacquainted with the technique of novel writing so he merely toyed with his plot. Finally for that reason and pressure of business he abandoned any thought of doing the piece.

He thought no more about it until 1928 when he delivered a series of three addresses in his church in Los Angeles, on "The Secrets of Exultant Living." One topic, "The Development of Personality Through Private Philanthropy" seemed so attractive to him that he decided to write a book of essays on that subject. He had only gotten a little way into his book when the thought that he should dramatize his thesis gave him no rest. The old 1920 plot suggested itself. He used it for the plot that became "Magnificent Obsession."

Robert Taylor as the carefree Bobby Merrick, hero of "Magnificent Obsession."

The novel was eighteen months under construction. Two publishers rejected it. A third finally accepted it with great misgivings. Only 2500 copies were printed for the first edition. It took three months to sell them. A second printing was ventured and nobody expected to hear any more of the matter after that.

For more than a year nobody did. "Magnificent Obsession" remained in magnificent oblivion. Then the public began to discover it. Eighteen months after publication it crept slowly onto the bottom rung of the best seller list. Gradually it rose to the upper brackets and has remained there for the past three years, a present-day

(Continued on Page 26)

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, N. Y. City
Universal Pictures Corp.
Copyrighted 1935
(All Rights Reserved)
DEC. 14, 1935
Vol. 37 No. 24

AGAIN UNIVERSAL

No. 842 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

You'll never be quite the same in your outlook on life after you have once seen John Stahl's production of "Magnificent Obsession."

Neither will your customers.

A moving picture will move your whole picture of life. And that moving picture will be "Magnificent Obsession."

It will obsess you.

You will never forget it as long as you live.

Just as you never have forgotten, and never will forget, "All Quiet on the Westesn Front" — just so can you never drive "Magnificent Obsession" out of your mind.

Just as you have never forgotten, and never can forget, Universal's presentation of Victor Hugo's "Hunchback of Notre Dame," — just so can you never live the rest of your life thinking of "Magnificent Obsession."

Just as you have never forgotten, and never can forget, the soulful impression made on you by Universal's picture of Galsworthy's "One More River" — just so will you never forget the story by Douglas called "Magnificent Obsession."

BEATS THE WORLD!

Once in a while a perfectly grand and glorious story turns up. Universal has bought more of these everlasting stories than has any other picture company.

I could name hundreds of them—all produced by Universal.

Universal has a record of achievement second to none when it comes to swaying the billion minds of the world.

Universal's greatest pictures have moved the world — and always in a decent way.

You have something fine in your soul. So have I. So has every other living being, whether he is a minister, a gunman, a priest, a gangster, a rabbi, a murderer, a white man, a black man, or a yellow man. A fine moving picture can appeal to the good that is in all of us.

Now and then such a story comes along, and generally Universal gets it.

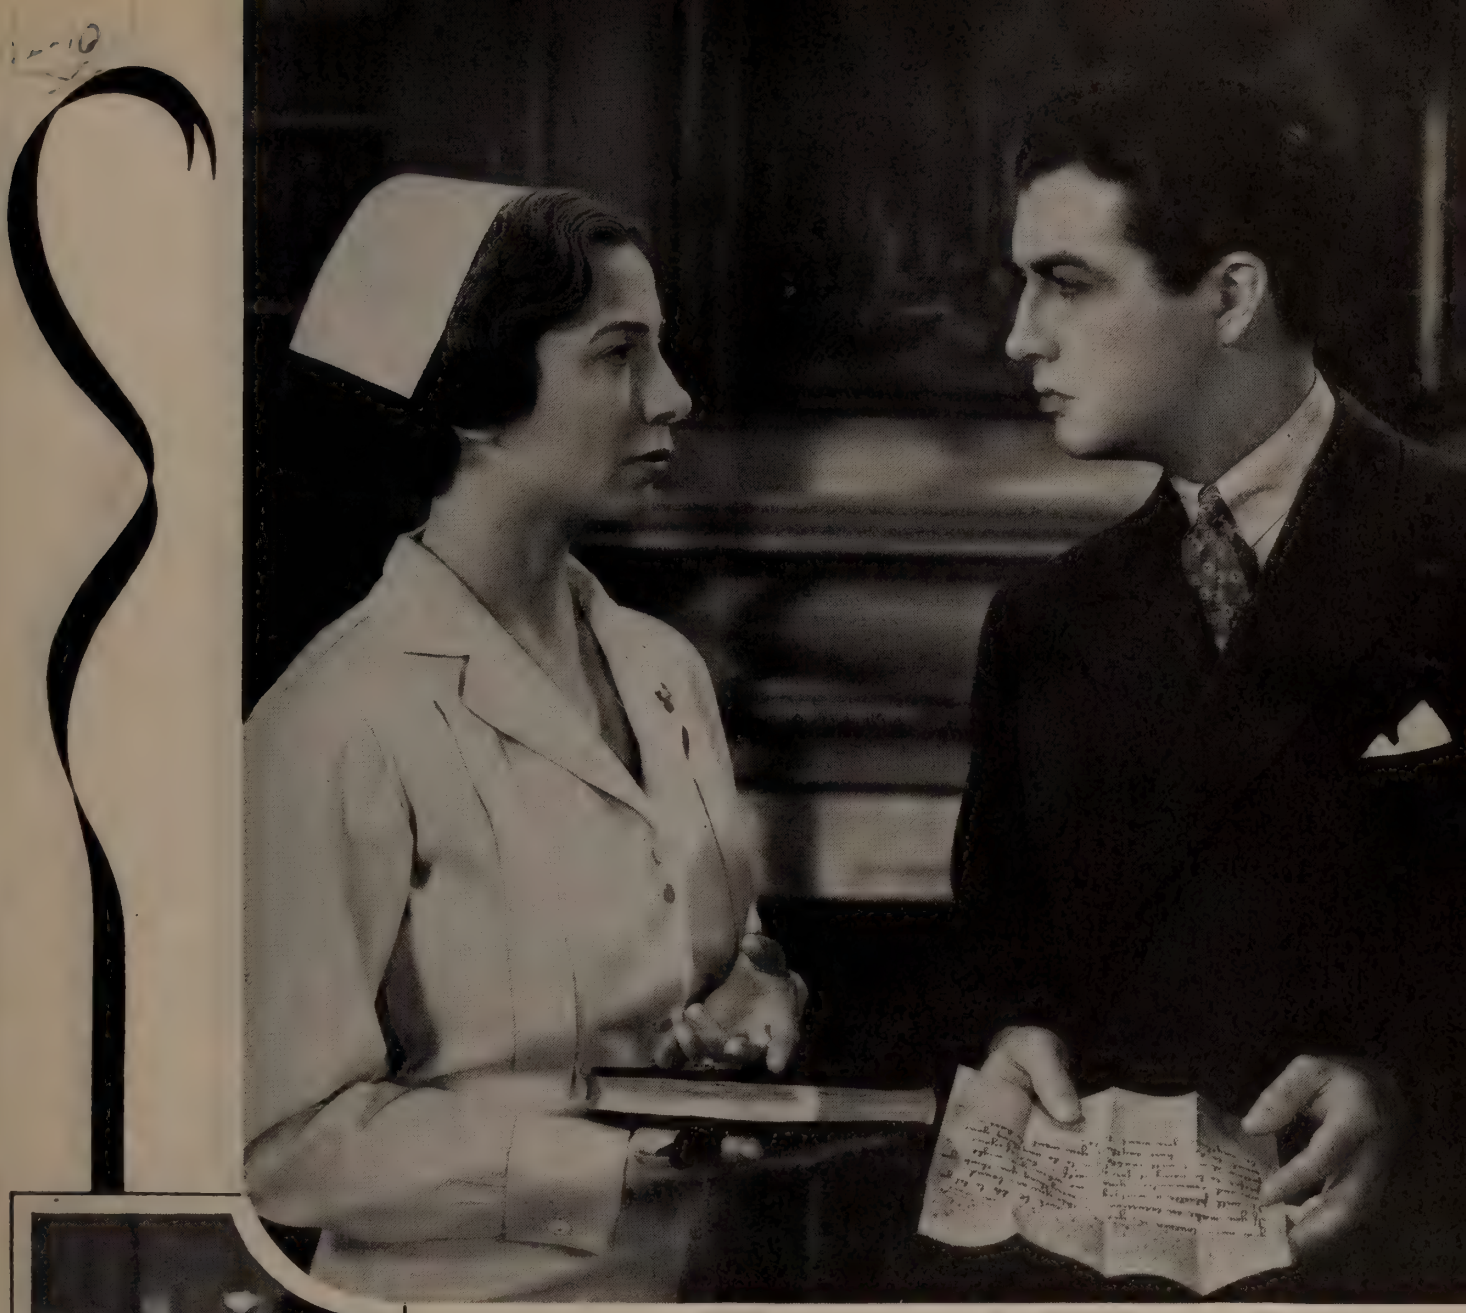
One of these rare stories is "Magnificent Obsession." Of course it became a Universal property — and of course you will get it.

It will make you feel so much nicer than you think you are, that you will be proud to sponsor it!

Carl Laemmle

"Do you know what killed Doctor Hudson? . . . Part of that was your fault!"

MAGNIFICENT



"'I'll lend you twenty thousand,'" he said, '"and you are not to tell anyone, while I live.'"

OBSESSION

"He declined to accept the money: 'I can t take it, you see; for I've used it all up myself!'"

MAGNIFICENT

"Yeah; he's the fellow that thought he'd be another Doctor Hudson."

OBSESSION

"I spent a whole hour with her last night, on a country road . . . But she doesn't know it."

MAGNIFICENT

But he had pleaded so wistfully! . . . She had lifted her eyes, and her lips were parted to speak a single word of friendly assurance, when—it happened. . . And she had offered no resistance!

OBSESSION

"I have discovered that everything I have in the world is—is yours . . . The very clothes I have on me . . ."

MAGNIFICENT

"Good-by, dear . . . Please don't think too badly of me. I have blundered, terribly, but—my dear —I do love you so!"

OBSESSION

"Oh—Blessed God—I can see!"

MAGNIFICENT

"He held out both arms; and, to his inexpressible delight, she walked confidently into them, shyly laid her slim fingers on his coat lapels, looked up into his face, and smiled."

OBSESSION

YOU'LL NEVER BE YOU'VE SEEN THIS M

HE SAME AGAIN AFTER ASSIVE, MAGNIFICENT CAST!

HELEN HUDSON	IRENE DUNNE
BOBBY MERRICK	ROBERT TAYLOR
TOMMY MASTERSON	CHARLES BUTTERWORTH
JOYCE HUDSON	BETTY FURNESS
Nancy Ashford	Sara Haden
Randolph	Ralph Morgan
Tony	Henry Armetta
Dr. Ramsay	Gilbert Emery
Perry	Arthur Hoyt
Junior Masterson	Lowell Durham
Dr. Justin	Alan Davis
Dr. Thomas	Crauford Kent
Mr. Miller	Edward Earle
May	Inez Courtney
Amy	Marian Clayton
Receptionist	Norma Drew
Mrs. Eden	Beryl Mercer
Ruth	Cora Sue Collins
Horace	Arthur Treacher
Mrs. Martin	Maidel Turner
Keller	Sidney Bracy
Dr. Rochard	Frank Reicher
Dr. Barendreght	Leonard Mudie
Nicholas Merrick	Walter Walker
Hastings	Purnell Pratt
Breezy	Lucien Littlefield
Antoine	Gino Corrado
Billy	Mickey Daniels
Dr. Preston	Theodore von Eltz
Jimmy	Sidney Getchell
Panhandle Pete	Rollo Lloyd
Reverend Du Bois	Juan de la Cruz
Hugh	Eddy Chandler
Lizette	Alice Ardell
John Stone	Frank Mayo
Seabury	John St. Polis
Everett	George Hackathorne
Dr. Slade	Arnold Korff
Nina	Antoinette Lees
Sword Swallower	Sid Marion

ALSO Joyce Compton, Otto Hoffman, William Worthington, Walter Miller and others.

Robert Taylor and Irene Dunne

The hero and the heroine looking down on Paris from the Savoy Hotel.

Two great comedians, Henry Armetta and Charles Butterworth.

The Power That Lies In the

MORE precious than rubies is a good box office title, whether it is figured n the gold standard or on any other basis.

Three hundred odd years ago Shakespeare said, and proved, "the play's th thing," but since that time producers and theatre managers have discovered tha the title is also important from a box office viewpoint. If plays and pictures ar to continue, this question does not have to be considered, "What makes a goo box office title?"

The title must be unusual, must stir the imagination, make people wonde and talk about it. Such a title should be familiar to thousands of people; on which can be made familiar to many more thousands. For an example take "Mag nificent Obsession," the Universal picture which will be shown all over the countr within a few weeks.

The phrase "magnificent obsession" is unusual. It does stir the imagination It makes people wonder. It is already familiar to thousands, because the novel b Lloyd C. Douglas is now in its 40th edition. The demand for this best seller kep the publishers busy getting the printings off the press for four years. Since th title is already impressed favorably in the public mind by reason of the story' popularity, the first showings of the motion picture will increase the number n people who will become familiar with the title "Magnificent Obsession."

Like a snowball rolling downhill, the name will take on added value ever time somebody mentions it to another person.

Another great comedian, Arthur Treacher, and Irene Dunne and Robert Taylor.

The hero and the heroine just before the accident.

The studio reproduction of a night in Paris.

Our hero gets gay with his nurse.

itle "Magnificent Obsession"

Now just what does "Magnificent Obsession" mean? The dictionary says of magnificent . . . "grand." The picture was planned and directed on a big scale by John M. Stahl, who made such successes as "Back Street," "Only Yesterday" and "Imitation of Life." Some more of the definition . . . "majestic in appearance, quality, character or action." The film was photographed by John Mescall, who obtained such striking pictorial effects in "Bride of Frankenstein."

A little more from the dictionary . . . it says, "possessing splendor, exhibiting magnificence." The leading feminine star of the photoplay is Irene Dunne, whose splendor will be again revealed in a role which fits her like a glove.

That brings us to "obsession," which is defined as "an idea that persists, that dominates the mind." The theme of "Magnificent Obsession" has dominated the mind of everybody who read the book. That keynote was carefully preserved when the script writers adapted it for the screen.

The public will be obsessed not only by the central idea of the story, but by Irene Dunne's golden beauty, which has been likened to sunrise gleaming on a flowing river, when she was seen in "Back Street" and "Roberta." The actor who plays opposite Miss Dunne is Robert Taylor, who scored in "Broadway Melody of 1936." Charles Butterworth, remembered for his work in "Love Me Tonight," "Forsaking All Others" and "Baby Face Harrington," is featured. Other prominent roles are portrayed by Arthur Treacher, Henry Armetta, Betty Furness, Sara Haden and Frank Morgan.

And also with Charlie Butterworth.

The accident which caused Bobby Merrick to become a great surgeon.

And the successful operation for which he had worked so hard.

The Men Most Responsible for "M

THE DIRECTOR

Stahl Regards "Magnificent O

John M. Stahl, the man who has made so many women's pictures successfully that the whole world knew "Magnificent Obsession" would be a success the minute it was announced it would be a John M. Stahl production.

THE most fluid camera in Hollywood is that of Director John M. Stahl, whose latest Universal production, "Magnificent Obsession," is the best exemplification of his remarkable art. For many years Stahl has specialized in the filming of domestic drama, and has achieved a reputation as the outstanding leader in this field. But also, he points out, he has confined his attention almost exclusively to dialogue pictures, as opposed to those whose greatest interest lies in the action of its characters.

"In so-called dialogue pictures," says Stahl, "the story is carried forward by the speech of the characters, rather than by swift and sometimes exciting action, and the basic structure of the entire screenplay is entirely different. Thus the story must be treated differently by the camera. A constant flashing back and forth from one side of a room to another, for example, interrupts the smooth flow of dialogue from the various characters, and the story, devoid of startling incident, slows up and becomes jumpy.

"To maintain a smoothness of action, then, and to give the dialogue a chance to carry the story forward smoothly, I strive to keep the camera in almost constant motion, following various characters from one point to another without, in effect, interrupting their conversation. A man stops to speak with another at a certain point in a room, and then crosses the floor to speak to still a third man, beginning his conversation as he approaches. The camera follows all these movements, instead of chop-

THE AUTHOR

Lloyd C. Douglas, an author with high purpose and deep understanding. He felt that fiction as he intended to write it would be a more potent factor in moulding human happiness than the pulpit. He resigned in order to write "Magnificent Obsession" and has followed it up with other fiction and on the lecture platform. He has a story in this month's Cosmopolitan.

The Man Who Wrote the Book

ONE of the most successful of present-day authors is Lloyd C. Douglas, from one of whose outstanding novels was adapted the Universal John M. Stahl production, "Magnificent Obsession," which has its world premiere at the Music Hall, New York on December 30. Douglas was born in Columbia City, Indiana, on August 27, 1877, and later attended Wittenberg College at Springfield, Ohio. In 1903 he was ordained in the Lutheran ministry, and in succeeding years was pastor of churches in North Manchester, Indiana; Lancaster, Ohio; Washington, D. C.; Ann Arbor, Michigan; Akron, Ohio and Los Angeles, California. At other times he was director of religious work at the University of Illinois. Chaplain of the 1st Infantry of the District of Columbia, director of publicity in colleges and universities for the U. S. War Work Council in 1917, and later filled the same position in the Congregational World Movement. He received his D. D. degree at Fargo College in North Dakota in 1920.

Among Dr. Douglas' books have been "These Sayings of Mine," "Precious Jeopardy," "Those Disturbing Miracles" and his two most successful ones, "Magnificent Obsession" and "Green Light."

Dr. Douglas has taken the philosophical and psychological theme of his two most popular books dealing with the regeneration of the modern man in the modern world, through spiritual values as the subject of a lecture tour on which he now touring the United States. His talk is called "Personal Adequacy."

While lecturing in California, the novelist with his wife and daughter were visitors on the sets during the filming of "Magnificent Obsession." He has expressed himself as highly gratified with the screen version.

ıgnificent Obsession" ssion" as a Formula for Living ping the action into short, jerky bits.

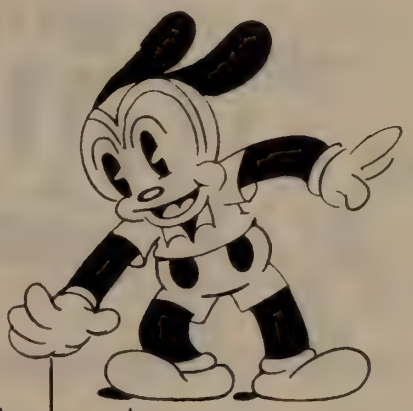
"In motion pictures of this type, of course, emotion takes the place of startling incident, and such a screenplay requires vastly more attention to the creation of the story and to the human-ness of its characters, both on the printed page and on the screen. It goes without saying that this is by far the most difficult type of picture to film, and takes the longest time in shooting and in acting. "The screenplay which depends on its dialogue must have many ingredients, while the so-called 'chase' picture need have only one — and that is action."

The story of "Magnificent Obsession" is the tender romance between a girl and an irresponsible young man whose thoughtlessness has brought about her blindness. The picture is reported in Hollywood to be the screen's outstanding example of poignant emotion, with the mysterious "obsession" exerting a powerful influence on both their lives. And still nobody out there has seen the picture and nobody will see it until it is shown in the Music Hall in New York on Decemeber 30. It is enough for them to know that it was directed by the man who made "Back Street," "Seed," "Only Yesterday" and "Imitation of Life."

But beyond and above the technique of "Magnificent Obsession," John Stahl feels that there is a far deeper and more compelling quality in this tremendous drama of real people, living, suffering, struggling and loving in this topsy-turvey, bewildering, modern world of ours. Because "Magnificent Obsession" is basically a formula for living—a philosophy of life which no one can afford not to learn and no one can afford not to follow.

"Ever since the publication of this remarkable book," says Stahl, "millions of men and women have found that this 'Magnificent Obsession' formula has given them new confidence, new stamina, new ability and a new happiness they never had dreamed of before. If you are a student, it will show you how to be a better doctor. If you are lonely, it will help you to solve your problem. It may increase your earning capacity. It will certainly increase your happiness.

Here is the man with the most fluid camera in Hollywood, envisioning a scene from "Magnificent Obsession," his latest and most powerful contribution to the art of the motion picture and to the bank account of exhibitors.



OSWALD

IF THERE IS ANY-THING WRONG WITH YOUR SHORTS, 'PHONE YOUR UNIVER-SAL EX-CHANGE FOR "DOCTOR OSWALD" !

the LUCKY RABBIT

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY SHOWMANSHIP SECTION

A DIGEST OF THE BEST EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

. . . you are going to be very, very proud!

A JOHN M. STAHL picture is always THE event of the year, thousands upon thousands of exhibitors will agree. Think back to "Seed," "Back Street," "Only Yesterday" and "Imitation of Life." What box-office history was written when those magic titles flashed before an eager public! Once a year, with uncanny regularity, Stahl has graven his name anew into the coveted, exclusive list of immortal box-office successes.

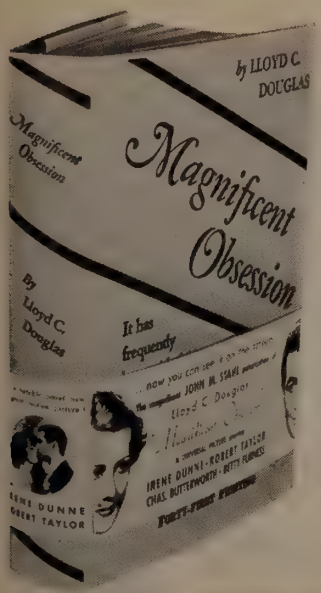
And now a NEW Stahl picture is about to be launched—a picture which Stahl himself prizes above everything he has hitherto accomplished,—a picture based on a book, in itself a phenomena of this day and age, having run into forty editions and sold close to 300,000 copies!

A superb, hand-picked cast, headed by the lovely Irene Dunne and the very popular Robert Taylor, have come thru with just that kind of inspired performances you would expect of them with Stahl in the directorial chair.

The great book, with its wonderful message, becomes a magnificent living, soul-throbbing, tear-tugging, joy bringing masterpiece of the screen!

As a picture, millions will see it again and again — just as a book thousands read and re-read its brilliant pages and passed it on to their friends, who passed it on to others.

The showing of "Magnificent Obsession," in your city, should be the SCREEN EVENT of the YEAR! Its success will be in keeping with the importance with which you emphasize its premiere. Lights, broadcasts, invitations to important personages, the reaching for special editorial comments, all handled on a dignified basis, will make up YOUR salute to this magnificent picture! YOU are going to be very, very, very proud of it!



TIE-UP BOOK! IT SOLD 300,000 COPIES!

LLOYD C. DOUGLAS' book from which the picture was made, enjoys the distinction of being a phenomenal best seller for the last three years. It is now in its 45th edition! Book stores will want to take advantage of your showing of the picture. Contact them and the lending libraries, and arrange for window displays, co-operative ads, herald distribution and book marks. The publishers have provided a special strip jacket for the book, playing up the stars and the John M. Stahl production. They will be happy to cooperate with you in making contacts with the book dealers. For the name of local stores supplied with the book, or for other information, communicate direct with the publishers.

The publishers are also inserting a special herald in each copy of the book. It is made up of production stills, illustrating the progress of the story. Photos of the chief players and brief biographical data appear on the back. An excellent build up for the picture to all who read the book.

Willett, Clark & Co.

440 So. Dearborn St. Chicago, Ill.

200 Fifth Ave. New York City

Your Own Broadcast Truck!

THIS ballyhoo will cause plenty of favorable talk and should effectively sell "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" in your town. Have your radio man install a public address loudspeaker in a truck and attach a regulation stand-up broadcasting microphone to it as shown in above drawing. Hire a man capable of doing spot interviews and send him with truck. Send truck around town and have it stop at traffic centers. Set up microphone on sidewalk and have men question passersby about "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION." Have several "plants" follow truck, prepared to answer questions so as to avoid any unconscious comedy which would not be in keeping with the seriousness of the picture. Man asks production questions about picture. When persons guessing answer wrong announcer gives real answer and plugs a catchline at the same time.

Advertise this stunt in your lobby, on screen and through publicity stories sent to newspapers. In this way people will be on the look out for the broadcast truck.

In some places an actual tie-up with local broadcast station can be made to put this inquiring reporter on the air.

Can then be used in lobby on opening night.

A Whispering Campaign

SUPPLEMENT your regular newspaper and billboard advertising with valuable word of mouth publicity by arranging an invitation preview for about two hundred representative citizens, who have daily contacts with large numbers of people. Include a few waitresses, waiters, barbers, service station attendants, librarians, cashiers, clerks, etc.

Before the screening, tell them that you invited them for the purpose of getting their comment on the picture to have them spread the news to their friends about the unusual appeal of the picture.

Album Lobby Stunt

THE album lobby stunt provides an attractive, eye-arresting display, as well as a good newspaper tie-up stunt. Take a large album or scrap book and mount it on a stand. Place an attendant near it to solicit "ten word reviews" from people who have seen the picture.

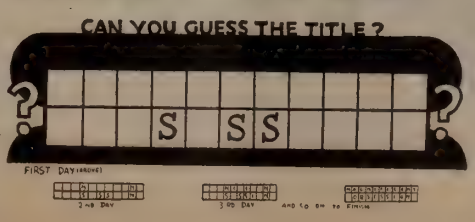
Arrange tie-up with newspaper to publish the ten best reviews each day and offer small cash prizes or free tickets for next attraction to those whose names are selected. Also offer prizes for best comments sent directly to newspapers. In this way you may get some excellent catch lines that you can use in your advertising.

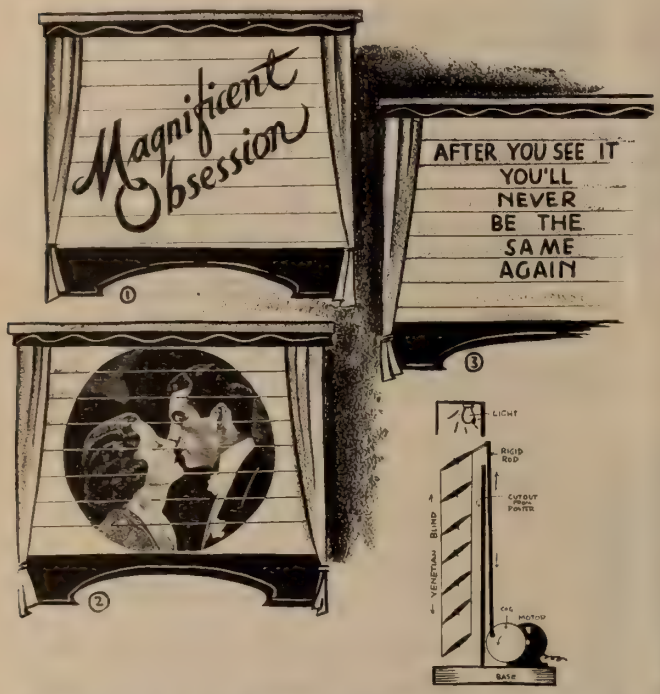
TURN-PAGE BOOK BALLY

THIS truck bally has dignity and effectively sells the best selling book as well as title and cast of picture. Construct a large book cover out of compo board painted and fasten it to cabin of truck as shown in drawing. Cut three sections in proportion to cover to represent pages. Attach latter to cover by means of hinges so that they can be turned. Paste poster cut-outs on both sides of these "pages" and have your artists pain descriptive titles and catchlines under them. Dress a boy like a page and have him turn pages whenever truck stops and a crowd collects.

TITLE TEASER LOBBY BOARD

TRY this stunt in your lobby to work up a lot of advance interest. Several days prior to showing, put up a large board and only paint in the "S" letters the first day as shown in drawing. The next day add the "I" letters and so on until title is spelled out. Over the board put a prominent teaser sign reading: What will be the greatest motion picture of 1936? Below that the line: Can you guess the title?



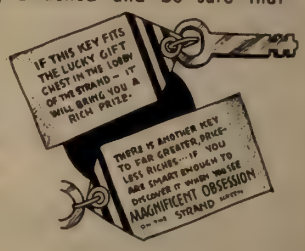


VENETIAN BLIND BOX

THIS shadow box is an effective lobby display and can be easily made. Construct an open front box with a depth of about nine inches. Cut Irene Dunne and Robert Taylor out of a poster and paste on the inner back side as shown in drawing 2. Have your artist paint title on one side of a venetian blind (Drawing No. 1) and catchline on the reverse side (Drawing No. 3). Place a light inside box and attach a motor to venetian blind by a simple gear arrangement. The effect obtained will be, No. 1 title and as blind changes to No. 2 the stars in background and finally No. 3 the catchline and so on. For complete mechanical details see cross section drawing.

LOBBY TREASURE CHEST

TRY this gift stunt in your lobby to attract crowds and arouse curiosity. Construct a large box with a glass front and light it from within. Place a lock as shown in drawing. Arrange tie-ups with merchants and obtain gifts and store orders in return for publicity and an ad in chest next to their articles. Prior to showing, distribute keys with tag attached and be sure that only one key unlocks chest. Announce that person having the right key will be entitled to contents displayed. You might have three or four keys that will fit the right locks thus enabling you to use the chest for several winners. Use copy for key tag and chest as shown.

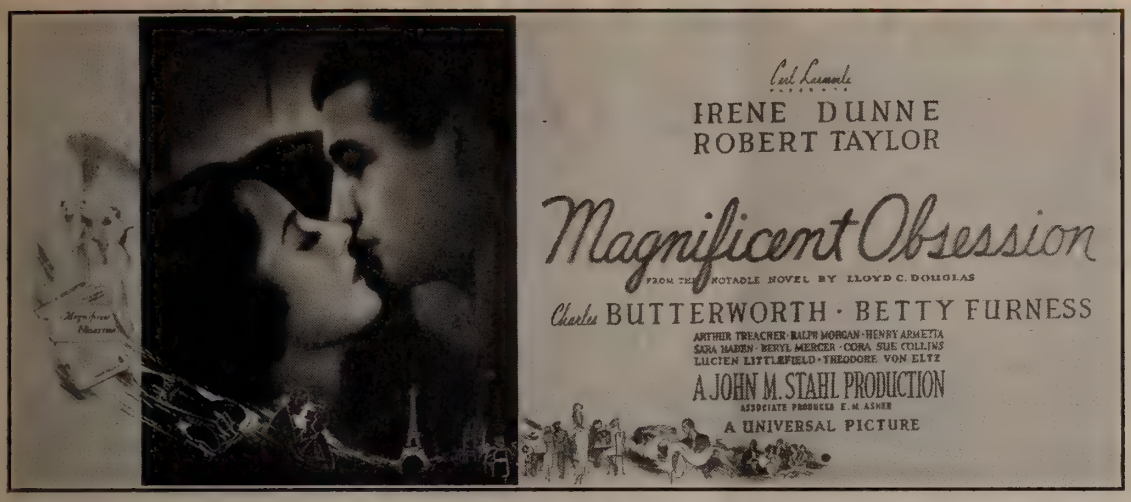


BRANCH BOX OFFICE

A MOBILE box-office adds prestige and is highly appropriate for an outstanding production like "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION." The one shown here plugs the book as well as the picture so that people who have read the novel will be interested in seeing the screen version. It also sells the idea that the regular box-office cannot handle the crowds. Get permission to set it in a different spot each day.

Have your artist make it out of compo board and first set it up in your lobby for advance ticket sale for the premiere. If properly handled, this stunt should help punch a sell-out. By using this idea you will not only build up interest in the gala opening, but also create valuable word-of-mouth advertising for the length of the run. In addition to selling tickets for this special showing, when you put the extra box-office on wheels, moving it about town selling tickets on busy corners, traffic centers and other popular spots it also creates extra "word-of-mouth" for you.

Dignifying a Great Picture with a Fine Campaign!



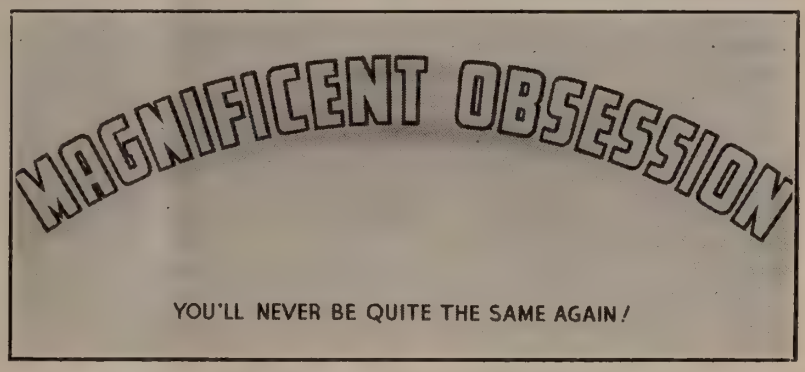
Herewith are presented a few of the ultra-smart showmanship posters prepared for "Magnificent Obsession." At left is a strikingly new style twenty-four sheet stand in soft, highlighted sepia tones against a buff tone background.

PICTORIAL 24 SHEET "A"

Every piece of this exceptional paper carries a distinctly fresh idea in posters. The rainbow effect advance twenty-four sheet (right) will stop every eye.

Sepias and burnished orange feature the coloring of the three sheet below.

The complete line includes, in addition to the posters shown on this page, two three sheets, two one sheets, regular size window card, jumbo and midget sizes, fifteen foot streamer and combination window card and hanger. There is also a special 40x60 for lobby frames and a set of silver mounted 14 x 17 photo easels.



BLOCK "RAINBOW" 24 SHEET "B"

← 3 SHEET

The advance rainbow one sheet in the lower right hand corner, is an adaptation of the twenty-four sheet above. The design is also available in an advance three sheet, making a complete advance poster campaign.

→ SIX SHEET

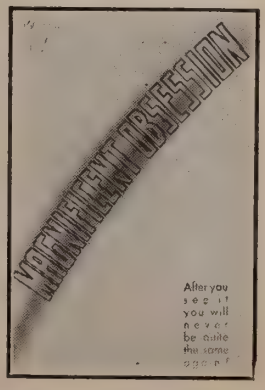
Six sheet follows through with these same tones, completing a line of posters executed in a style entirely off the beaten path.

ADVANCE ONE SHEET



It Took Sixteen Years To Make "Magnificent Obsession"

(Continued from Page 3)

record. It has gone through forty editions. French, English and Canadian bookshops sell it in large numbers and it has been reproduced on phonograph records for the blind.

This sensational rise to popularity had not been unnoticed by the movie companies. Several made bids for it as it rose up the ladder but none successfully until Universal secured an option in 1933. And with that, another impasse in the career of the story was encountered. The production schedule of the company was running under heavy pressure. "Magnificent Obsession" was laid away for the time being as a future possibility. For the moment it seemed forgotten, as the cameras ground overtime on the California sound stages.

But back East there were those who had not forgotten. The agent who had sold the book, Annie Laurie Williams, not understanding the delay phoned one of Universal's New York executives. She begged him to read the novel himself and see what could be done. The executive told her that he had already read it and enjoyed it tremendously. However if she must have action at once, the way to get it was to interest some director in the story personally. But what director? she wanted to know.

As it happened, John M. Stahl was in New York, stopping at the Waldorf just then and the executive mentioned him. The agent wrote Stahl was interested. He replied, promised to read the book, and did read it. Then the wheels began to spin for Stahl had found what he considered an ideal story for his very special technique. Carl Laemmle gave the word to go ahead.

Universal took final title to "Magnificent Obsession" in April, 1934. Immediately a corps of 60 research experts, including still and motion picture camera men, architects, interior decorators and historians, moved into action in Paris and America. Photographs and reels of film were shot of whole sections of the city by the Seine, so that billboards, shop fronts, vehicles and styles would be right up to date when the film reached the screen. Blue prints and scale drawings of shops, gambling halls, hospitals and churches were made. Plans of the giant Normandie were secured. These were shipped to New York on the fastest steamers. The ships were met at Quarantine by speedboats which scudded in with the data. It was packed on planes and flown to the Coast where half of the sixty fact-sleuths were busy on domestic locales.

The gist of these investigations was turned over to the prop and set departments. From the pictures and blueprints, Danny Hall, a sawed off little Scotchman who prides himself on being a crackerjack hockey player when he isn't building movie cities, began on the sets. His amphitheatre was Sound Stage Number 12, at Universal City, the biggest in Hollywood. It is called the Broadway Stage, because there the pioneer talkie "Broadway" was shot.

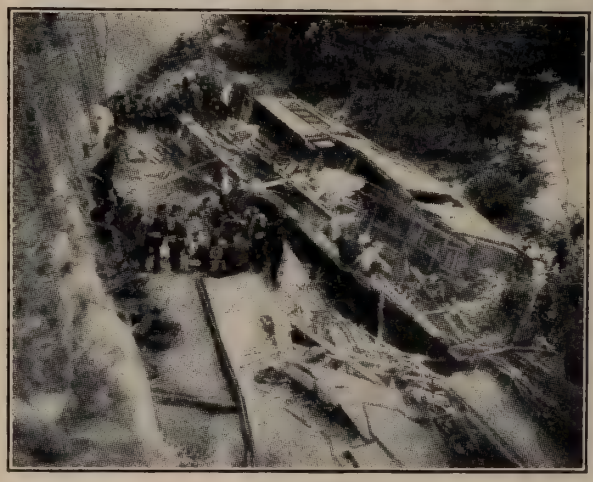
On the Broadway Stage, Hall built a square block of Montmartre, with cobbled gutters, stucco houses and sidewalk cafes. He built a big French church out of blocks of wood, charred and chipped to look like old stone and held together with long wooden pegs; not a nail in the structure from Chancel to baptistry. He built public parks with real grass and trees, brick Colonial houses, sculptor's studios and miles of wooden sidewalks. When the sidewalks sounded hollow underfoot, he tore them up and made them out of solid cement.

Outside the sound stage, he constructed the whole passenger section of the Normandie; five decks of her, from waterline (or rather ground line) to the huge red funnels on the top decks. On one funnel was a real steam whistle, operated from a soft coal-burning boiler down in the hold. When production got under way months later and this whistle began to hoot, it could be heard in the middle of Los Angeles and caused workmen to look at their watches under the impression it was noon. In all, the industrious Hall made 41 sets.

Stahl estimates that cutting the picture down to the right shape and length will be a nine week job. Then, "Magnificent Obsession" will emerge from the ether with the New Year.

LAST MINUTE PHOTO

WRECKED IN FLOOD



Floods following a typhoon sent this passenger train tumbling down a bank into the Natnui river near Koriyama, Japan, in Fukushima Prefecture. Twelve passengers were killed and fifty-eight injured in the pile-up. The train was proceeding around a curve when the undermined roadbed gave away in face of a landslide, sending the train hurtling down the bank.

PICTURE FROM THE NEWS
NEW YORK'S PICTURE NEWSPAPER

DAILY NEWS

NEW YORK'S PICTURE NEWSPAPER

Entered as 2nd class matter. Post office, New York, N. Y.

60 Pages | New York, Tuesday, December 3, 1935★ | 2 Cents

Copyright 1935 by News Syndicate Co., Inc. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

(Universal Newsreel from Soibelman Syndicate)

FIRST PICTURE OF JAPANESE OCCUPATION OF SHANGHAI!—Japanese marines, landed from warships after murder of one of their number, patrol streets of Shanghai.

FIRST IN WAR!

FIRST IN PEACE!

FIRST IN EVERYTHING THAT'S ANYTHING!

UNIVERSAL NEWSREEL

with GRAHAM McNAMEE

YOU'LL NEVER BE THE SAME AGAIN!

"Something" will happen to you when you see this enduring picture — just as it did to the countless millions of people who read the strange love story from which it was filmed . . . For it fathoms that precious thing called "a woman's soul", holds it up as a blazing emblem to all humanity — for the admiration of men, for the inspiration of women!

IRENE DUNNE · ROBERT TAYLOR

IN

MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION

A JOHN M. STAHL PRODUCTION

Far greater than his famous "Back Street", than his memorable "Only Yesterday", or his immortal "Imitation of Life!" . . . With

CHARLES BUTTERWORTH · BETTY FURNESS

Arthur Treacher • Ralph Morgan • Henry Armetta • Sara Haden

From the phenomenal best-selling novel by Lloyd C. Douglas

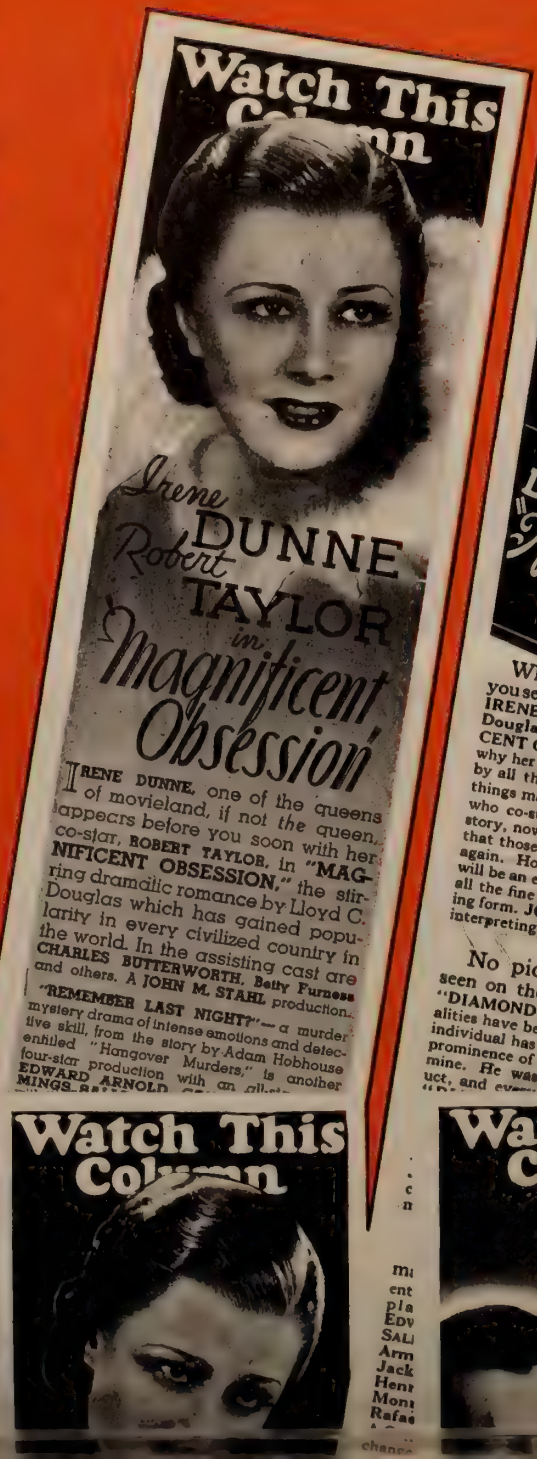
A Universal Picture presented by Carl Laemmle

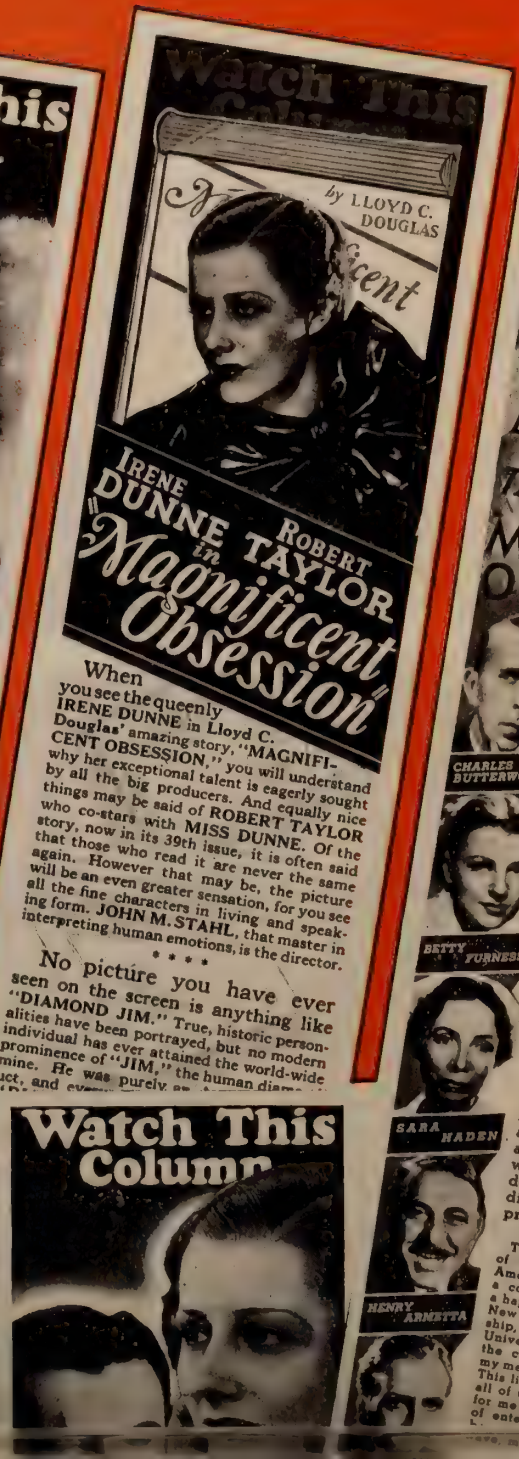
Ad No. 668

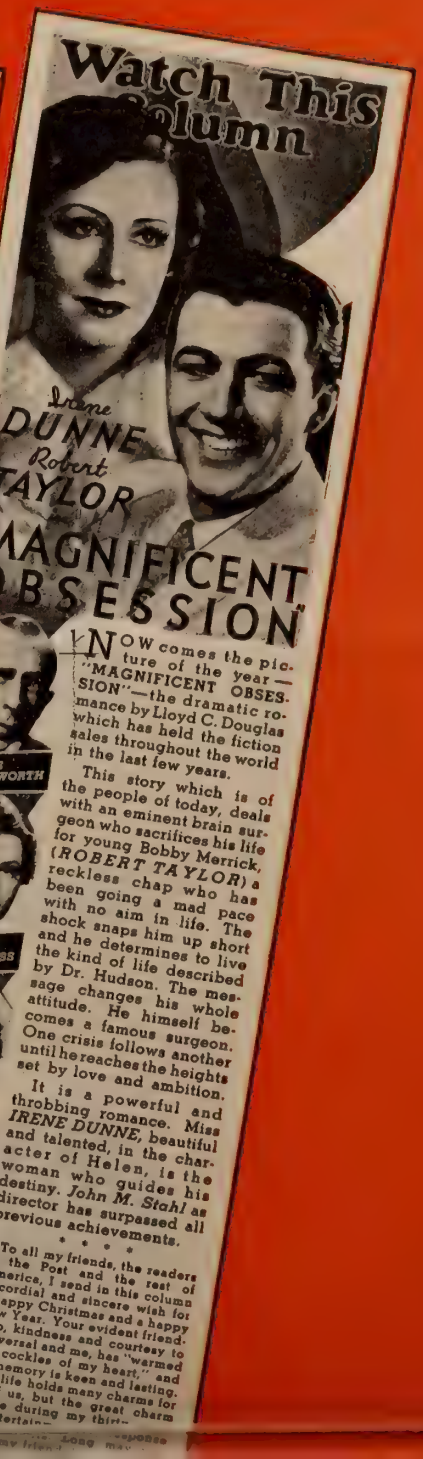
Modern Screen ● Silver Screen ● Screenland Magazine ● Photoplay Magazine ● Motion Picture ● Movie Classic ● Screen Book ● Screen Play ● Hollywood ● Film Fun ● Screen Romances ● True Confessions ● Romantic Stories ● Romantic Movie Stories ● issues of February 1936.

READ THE LIST OF FAN MAGAZINES FOR YOURSELF! . . . FOURTEEN OF THE MOST IMPORTANT AND WIDELY-CIRCULATED MONTHLIES PUBLISHED! . . . AN IMPOSING ARRAY WITH A COMBINED READING CIRCULATION AGGREGATING MORE THAN 12,500,000 UNFAILING PATRONS! . . . THEY READ UNIVERSAL'S FULL-PAGE AD ON "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION!" . . . THEY ARE READY TO SEE THE PICTURE! SO TIE IT UP WITH YOUR LOCAL LOBBY AND NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING.

2,500,000 READERS TO EACH ISSUE OF THE SATURDAY EVENING POST! AND PLENTY OF THEM IN YOUR CITY! EACH A SURE PATRON !







IRENE DUNNE ROBERT TAYLOR

in

"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION"

YOU'LL NEVER BE THE SAME AGAIN

"Something" will happen to you when you see this enduring picture—just as it did to the countless millions of people who read the strange love story from which it was filmed. I believe this will prove the great picture of the year which opinion, is shared by many nationally prominent critics. Forty-eight editions of the book have been published which proves its unusual strength over all stories in recent years.

IRENE DUNNE and ROBERT TAYLOR
in
"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION"

A John M. Stahl production—far greater than his famous "Back Street," than his memorable "Only Yesterday," or his immortal "Imitation of Life!" . . . with CHARLES BUTTERWORTH, BETTY FURNESS, Arthur Treacher, Ralph Morgan, Henry Armetta, Sara Haden, Beryl Mercer, Cora Sue Collins, Lucien Littlefield, Theodore Von Eltz and others. From the phenomenal best-selling novel by Lloyd C. Douglas.

NOW IN PRODUCTION

"SHOW BOAT"—a magnificent musical picturization of the famous Southern story by Edna Ferber, starring the fascinating IRENE DUNNE and with her such fine players as CHARLES WINNINGER, PAUL ROBESON of "Ole Man River" fame, HELEN MORGAN, and others. Directed by James Whale. A Carl Laemmle, Jr. production.

"SUTTER'S GOLD"—an imposing epic of the settlement of California and the discovery of gold, from the novel by Blaise Cendrars, starring EDWARD ARNOLD by arrangement with B. P. Schulberg. Directed by James Cruze. Now in production.

The Peerless

MARGARET SULLAVAN

has a splendid starring vehicle in "NEXT TIME WE LOVE," from Ursula Parrott's newest novel, appearing very soon. Watch for it.

Mr. Tracey A. Wilkinson of Bellville, Texas, has received a $50 check for suggesting an accepted idea to improve or add to UNIVERAL pictures. Can you write such an idea? I will pay for it, of course, if accepted.

Carl Laemmle
(Pronounced LEM-LY)

UNIVERSAL PICTURES
CARL LAEMMLE, President
Rockefeller Center New York City

Irene DUNNE
Robert TAYLOR
in
"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION"

After six months in preparation, director John M. Stahl has begun filming Lloyd C. Douglas' five year best seller, "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION," at UNIVERSAL studios.

IRENE DUNNE, charming, popular dramatic star of Mr. Stahl's memorable "Back Street" has the first starring role in this new human interest drama and ROBERT TAYLOR, believed by Hollywood critics to be the most promising leading man in American films today, is seen opposite the star.

Initial scenes for "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" were made against the background of an immense studio set duplicating the huge French liner, Normandie. Director Stahl plans to employ more than 1500 "extras" in ahnospheric "shots" for the early scenes of the production.

* * *

"DIAMOND JIM," which has made an important star of EDWARD ARNOLD, is crowding theatres in America and elsewhere. There never has been another character like "DIAMOND JIM." He was an American product who made a tremendous fortune and gave it away. The picture must be near you now.

* * *

"HANGOVER MURDERS," Adam Hobhouse's great story, produced by CARL LAEMMLE, Jr., directed by JAMES WHALE, an intensely dramatic play, again features EDWARD ARNOLD and an all star cast including—Constance Cummings, Sally Eilers, Robert Armstrong, Robert Young, Reginald Denny and others of their distinction, is on the way. Watch for it! See it! And enjoy an evening of unalloyed entertainment.

* * *

"SUTTER'S GOLD"—A VAST SPECTACLE IS JUST ABOUT GOING INTO PRODUCTION

* * *

A check for $50 will be sent to you if you can write us an acceptable idea telling us how to improve Universal Pictures. I, personally, will be the judge as to the best letter.

Thomas M. Johnston, Columbus, Ohio, and Larry Woodin, Wellsboro, Pa., have received $50 for their ideas.

Carl Laemmle
(Pronounced LEM-LY)

UNIVERSAL PICTURES
CARL LAEMMLE, President
Rockefeller Center New York City

"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" is in production. The great novel by Lloyd Douglas, which has created such a sensation the world over, will be presented to you in picture by UNIVERSAL. Doubtless, it will be one of the year's outstanding productions—not alone because of the story but also because of its splendid cast headed by the glorious IRENE DUNNE and ROBERT TAYLOR with Charles Butterworth, Betty Furness, and directed by the successful JOHN M. STAHL. Put this on your memorandum pad. Watch this column for date of release.

* * * *

Have you seen "DIAMOND JIM" with EDWARD ARNOLD in the title role? His artistic characterization of America's sparkling hero is winning more fame for him than any of his previous roles. With him are the fascinating and glamorous BINNIE BARNES and JEAN ARTHUR. There will never be another "DIAMOND JIM." The direction is by Edward Sutherland who is at the head of his class.

* * * *

"HANGOVER MURDERS," now in production, which critics predict will be one of the season's shining successes, has a cast that is remarkable for talent, consisting of, EDWARD ARNOLD, CONSTANCE CUMMINGS, ROBERT ARMSTRONG, SALLY EILERS, ROBERT YOUNG, REGINALD DENNY, BEULAH BONDI, GREGORY RATOFF, JACK LARUE, EDWARD BROPHY, ARTHUR TREACHER, MONROE OWSLEY, LOUISE HENRY, and GUSTAVE VON SEYFFERTITZ. The director is JAMES WHALE. The producer is CARL LAEMMLE, Jr. The title of this picture may be changed later. Watch this column for further announcements.

* * * *

"SUTTER'S GOLD,"
A VAST SPECTACLE IS GOING INTO PRODUCTION SOON

* * * *

Do you like new faces on the screen? Are you tiring of the old ones. What is YOUR opinion?

A check for $50 will be sent to you if you can write us an acceptable idea telling us how to improve Universal Pictures. I, personally, will be the judge as to the best letter.

Carl Laemmle
(Pronounced LEM-LY)

UNIVERSAL PICTURES
CARL LAEMMLE, President
Rockefeller Center New York City

FOR WEEKS, FOR MONTHS, THEY HAVE BEEN PRIMED FOR THE PICTURE THAT WILL WRITE NEW ENTERTAINMENT HISTORY!

Modern Screen
MOTION PICTURE
DECEMBER
NOW 10¢
SCREENLAND
SCREENBOOK MAGAZINE
10¢
PHOTOPLAY
Silver Screen
10¢
DEC. 10¢
A JAWCITT PUBLICATION
Screen Play
10¢
DOLORES DEL RIO—HOLLYWOOD'S WOMAN OF FATE
True Confessions
Now 10¢
Romantic Movies
Send YOUR PH for a SCREEN TI
Your Chance to g the Movies FRE
We Bega
with Co
GIANT PR
OF HOMI
PICTUR
THEATRI
"MAGNIF

ESSES FLOOD MILLIONS
S WITH NEWS OF THE
E THAT WILL JAM
S THE WORLD OVER!
UNIVERSAL'S
ICENT OBSESSION"

From

UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.

NEW YORK CITY
NEW YORK CITY

MANAGER
CLIFFORD THEATRE
5937 W ROOSEVELT RD
CHICAGO ILL

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
Paid
Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

Printed in U. S. A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

VOL. 37, NO. 22 DEC. 28, 1935

ROTO SPREADS for CAMERA THRILLS!

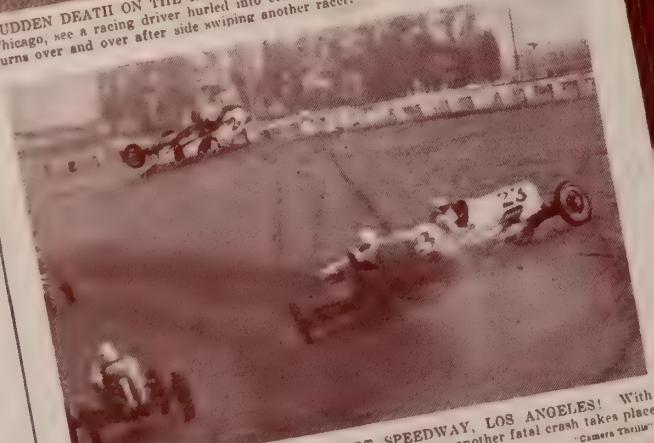
Because it's the most astounding, most "skin-raising" two-reel special ever devised for patrons and smart showmen!

SYRACUSE HERALD Rotogravure Section

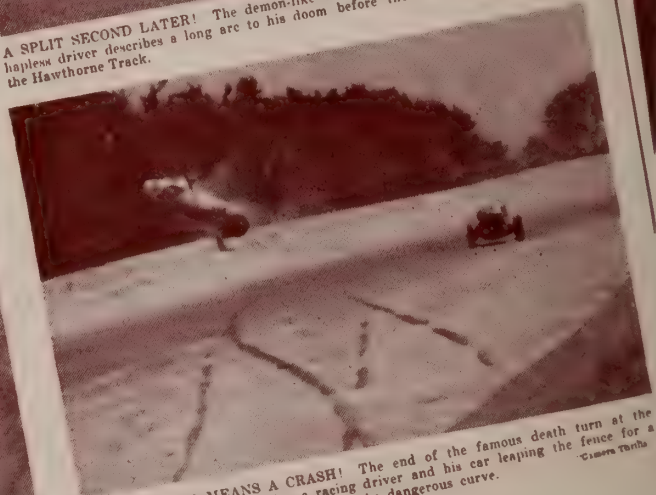
SYRACUSE, N. Y., SUNDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1935

SUDDEN DEATH ON THE RACE TRACK! Thousands at the Hawthorne Track, Chicago, see a racing driver hurled into eternity right before their eyes, as his car turns over and over after side swiping another racer. "Camera Thrills"

A SPLIT SECOND LATER! The demon-like car crashes to the ground while the hapless driver describes a long arc to his doom before the crowded grandstands at the Hawthorne Track. "Camera Thrills"



DEATH AT THE WHEEL ON THE ASCOT SPEEDWAY, LOS ANGELES! With one car already a wreck on the fence at the deadly turn, another fatal crash takes place as a speeding driver clips a third car out of control after skidding. "Camera Thrills"



WHERE A SKID MEANS A CRASH! The end of the famous death turn at the Indianapolis speedway, showing a racing driver and his car leaping the fence for a plunge to destruction, after skidding on the dangerous curve. "Camera Thrills"

Holiday Greetings to you, my friend
Sincerely
Carl Laemmle

YOU'VE HEARD ABOUT IT!
TALKED ABOUT IT!
THOUGHT ABOUT IT!
DREAMT ABOUT IT!
WRITTEN FOR IT!
WIRED FOR IT!
PHONED FOR IT!
YELLED FOR IT!
WAITED FOR IT!

and now

UNIVERSAL GIVES YOU THE ASTOUNDING NEWS AT LAST ABOUT

"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION"

• • • • • READ EVERY PRECIOUS WORD OF IT! • • • • •

115 CITIES SET DATES AND EXTENDED RUNS FOR UNIVERSAL'S BOX-OFFICE MILESTONE!

•

BIGGEST MASS OF MAJOR FIRST-RUN BOOKINGS EVER DEMANDED AND CROWDED INTO A SINGLE MONTH!

•

HERE'S WHERE ALL-TIME RECORDS WILL MARK JAN. 1936 "'MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION' MONTH"!

NEW YORK CITY, MUSIC HALL	December 30th
BUFFALO	December 31st
DETROIT	January 3rd
ST. LOUIS	January 3rd
OMAHA	January 7-10th
DENVER	January 7-14th
LOS ANGELES	January 8th
PITTSBURGH	January 8th
SAN DIEGO	January 8th
KNOXVILLE	January 8th
SAN ANTONIO	January 8th
WASHINGTON, D. C.	January 8th
JACKSONVILLE	January 8th
ALBANY, N. Y.	January 9th
BALTIMORE	January 9th
OKLAHOMA CITY	January 9th
RICHMOND, Va.	January 9th
SALT LAKE CITY	January 9th
SAN FRANCISCO	January 9th
CHATTANOOGA	January 9th
ROCHESTER	January 10th
AKRON	January 10th
ATLANTA	January 10th
ATLANTIC CITY	January 10th
BATTLE CREEK	January 10th
BOSTON	January 10th
BRIDGEPORT	January 10-17th
CHICAGO	January 10th
CINCINNATI	January 10th
COLUMBUS	January 10th
HARTFORD	January 10th
CLEVELAND	January 10th
DAYTON	January 10th
DES MOINES	January 10th
FT. WORTH	January 10th
HOUSTON	January 10th
INDIANAPOLIS	January 10-17th
KANSAS CITY	January 10th
LOUISVILLE	January 10th
MILWAUKEE	January 10th
MINNEAPOLIS	January 10th
NEW HAVEN	January 10-17th
PHILADELPHIA	January 10th
PORTLAND, Ore.	January 10th
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.	January 10-17th
TOLEDO	January 10th
UTICA	January 10th
WORCESTER	January 10-17th
YOUNGSTOWN, O.	January 10th
READING	January 10th
TROY, N. Y.	January 10th
ELMIRA, N. Y.	January 10th
PHOENIX	January 10th
TUCSON	January 10th
BAKERSFIELD	January 10th
SANTA BARBARA	January 10th
BINGHAMTON	January 10th
NEW LONDON	January 10th
TORONTO, Can.	January 10th
MONTREAL, Can.	January 10th
SYRACUSE	January 11th
DALLAS	January 11th
FLINT	January 11th
GRAND RAPIDS	January 11th
LANSING	January 11th
NEW ORLEANS	January 11th
TULSA	January 11th
SAGINAW	January 11th
KALAMAZOO	January 11th
SOUTH BEND	January 11th
ANN HARBOR	January 11th
SIOUX FALLS	January 11th
FT. WAYNE	January 12th
LEXINGTON	January 12th
LITTLE ROCK	January 12th
NORFOLK	January 12th
ROANOKE	January 12th
SPRINGFIELD, Ill.	January 12th
FRESNO	January 12th
EVANSVILLE	January 12th
SAVANNAH	January 13th
CHARLOTTE	January 13th
TUSCALOOSA	January 16th
SPOKANE	January 16th
TACOMA	January 16th
LINCOLN	January 17th
PROVIDENCE	January 17th
SCRANTON	January 17th
ST. PAUL	January 17th
TRENTON	January 17th
WILKES-BARRE	January 17th
JOHNSTOWN, Pa.	January 17th
GALVESTON	January 17th
CHARLESTON, W. Va.	January 18th
TOPEKA	January 18th
TERRE HAUTE	January 19th
MIAMI BEACH	January 19th
MONTGOMERY	January 23rd
MIAMI	January 23rd
WICHITA	January 25th
EL PASO	January 25th
NASHVILLE	January 31st
BIRMINGHAM	Date Soon
CHARLESTON, S. C.	" "
PORTLAND, Me.	" "
MEMPHIS	" "
MONTGOMERY	" "
NEW BEDFORD	" "
FT. SMITH	" "
HARRISBURG	" "
STAMFORD, Conn.	" "
CALGARY	" "
QUEBEC	" "
ST. JOHN	" "
VANCOUVER	" "

IT WILL MAKE

No. 844 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

Something will happen to your soul when you see "Magnificent Obsession."

It will make you happier — but it will do more than that. It will stir up all the best that is in you.

It doesn't preach at you. It is not "educational." It is not an "uplift" picture, but it will lift you up just the same.

Whether you are the old-fashioned, sentimental sort or the hard-enameled city slicker, "Magnificent Obsession" will get under your skin.

It will keep coming back to your thought long, long after most stories have gone into and out of your mind.

The theme is the very simple one of — unselfishness.

YOU HAPPIER

You will wonder just why the story of unselfishness has never been told in quite this entertaining way.

Ordinarily we think of unselfishness as a basis for a sermon from the pulpit rather than as the basis of superfine entertainment, but I sincerely believe "Magnificent Obsession" will bring more happiness to more people than all the sermons in the world.

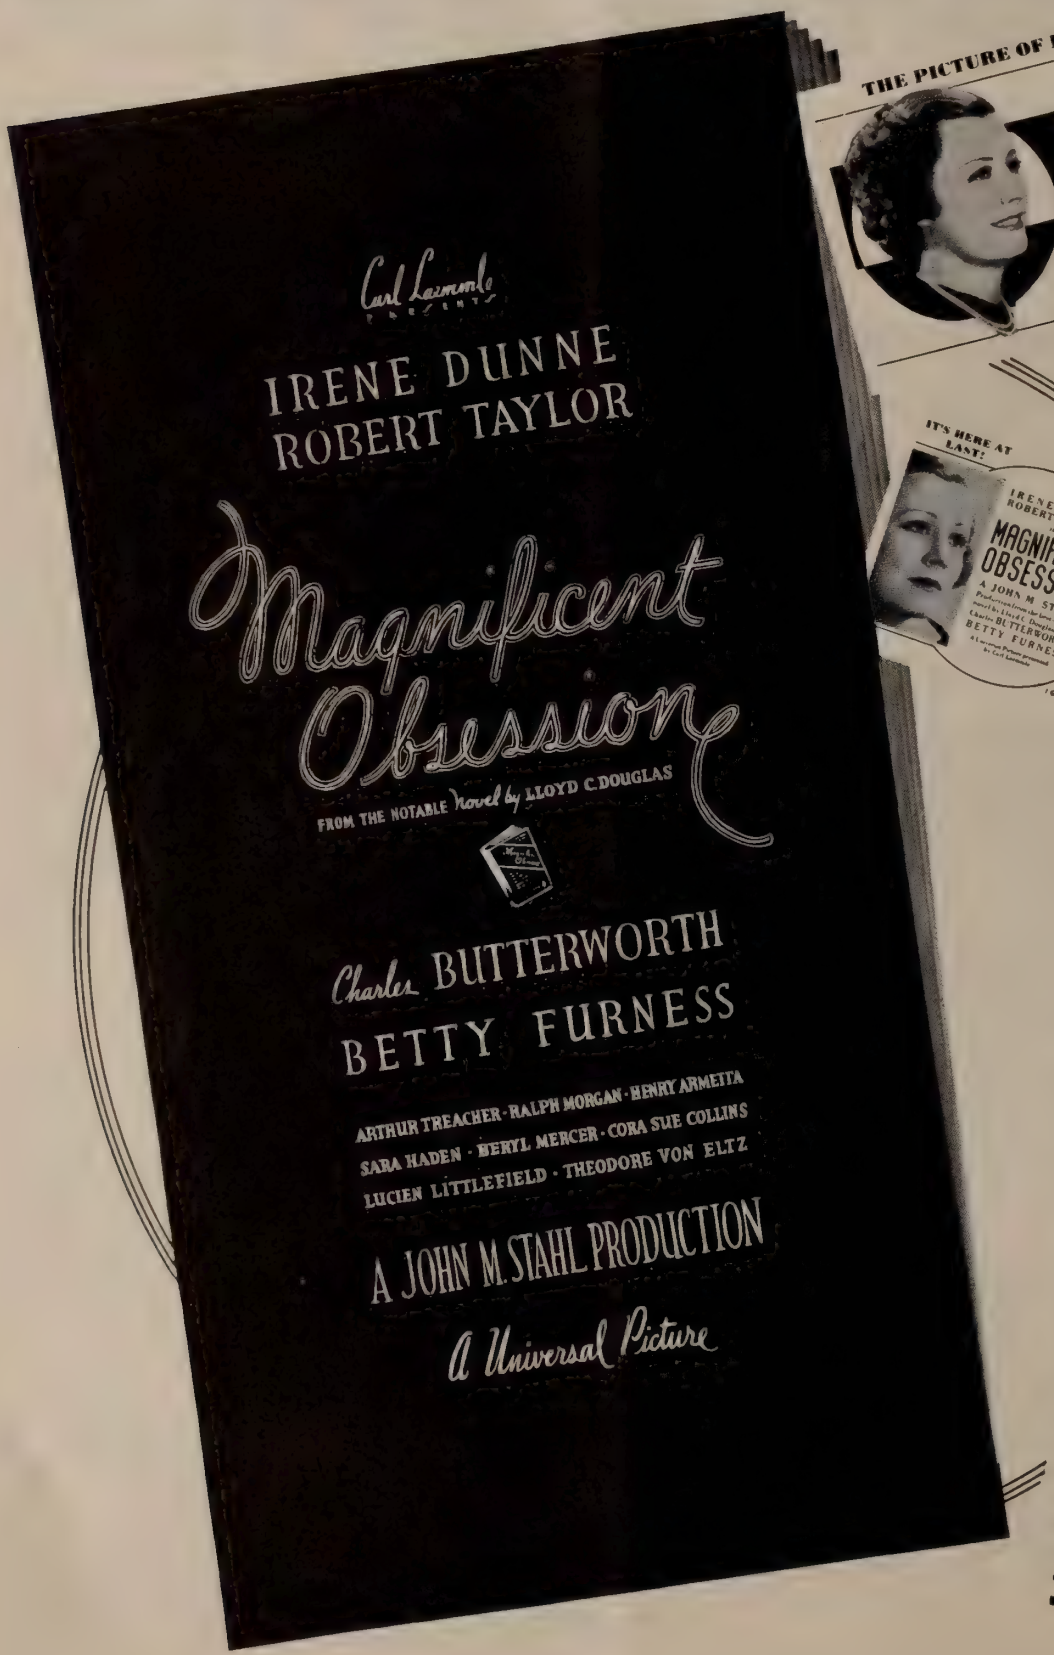
You will repeat this picture because it will create such favorable comment and discussion that return engagements will be the natural thing for you to arrange.

As I told you before, you'll never be the same after this story has sunk into your thought — nor will any of your patrons ever be quite the same.

They'll feel better and happier and so will you and I.

Carl Laemmle

FOR UNIVERSAL'S GREATES



T BOX OFFICE TRIUMPH....

GREATER than his famous "Back Street"!

•

GREATER than his memorable "Only Yesterday"!

•

GREATER
than his immortal "Imitation of Life"!

For the genius of JOHN M. STAHL now brings you the triumph of all his achievements!

IRENE DUNNE
ROBERT TAYLOR in

MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION

A JOHN M. STAHL
Production from the best-selling novel by Lloyd C. Douglas, with
Charles BUTTERWORTH
BETTY FURNESS
Henry Armetta, Sara Haden,
Ralph Morgan

A Universal Picture presented by Carl Laemmle

2H

An INSPIRATION to ENTERTAINMENT!

No story was ever more powerful, no romance ever more enchanting than this emotional masterpiece from a great author, by a genius director, and with an inspired cast of stars!

IRENE DUNNE and ROBERT TAYLOR in
MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION
A JOHN M. STAHL
Production... Far greater than his famous "Back Street", than his memorable "Only Yesterday" - or his immortal "Imitation of Life",
with Charles BUTTERWORTH
BETTY FURNESS
Henry Armetta, Sara Haden, Ralph Morgan
From the phenomenal best-selling novel by Lloyd C. Douglas

A UNIVERSAL PICTURE
PRESENTED BY
CARL LAEMMLE

IT WILL WRITE NEW MOTION PICTURE HISTORY!

2A

IRENE DUNNE
ROBERT TAYLOR in
MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION
A JOHN M. STAHL
Production from the best-selling novel by Lloyd C. Douglas, with
Charles BUTTERWORTH
BETTY FURNESS
Henry Armetta, Sara Haden, Ralph Morgan
A Universal Picture presented by Carl Laemmle

1B

MAGNIFICENT STARS!

MAGNIFICENT STORY!

MAGNIFICENT Direction!

MAGNIFICENT
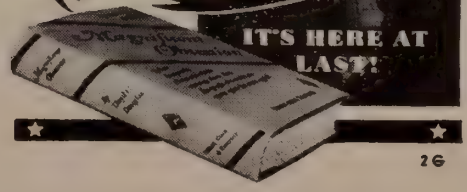
Entertainment!

IRENE DUNNE • ROBERT TAYLOR
in
MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION
A JOHN M. STAHL
Production from the novel by Lloyd C. Douglas, with Charles BUTTERWORTH
BETTY FURNESS
Henry Armetta, Sara Haden, Ralph Morgan
A Universal Picture presented by Carl Laemmle



2G

UNIVERSAL'S FINEST PRESS

YOU'LL NEVER BE THE SAME AGAIN!

"SOMETHING"

will happen to you when you see this enduring picture—just as it did to the countless millions of people who read the strange love story from which it was filmed... For it fathoms that precious thing called "a woman's soul", holds it up as a blazing emblem to all humanity—for the admiration of men, for the inspiration of women!

IRENE DUNNE and ROBERT TAYLOR in

MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION

A JOHN M. STAHL

Production... Far greater than his famous "Back Street", than his memorable "Only Yesterday", or his immortal "Imitation of Life"!

Charles BUTTERWORTH
BETTY FURNESS

Henry Armetta · Sara Haden · Ralph Morgan

From the phenomen... novel by Lloyd C...

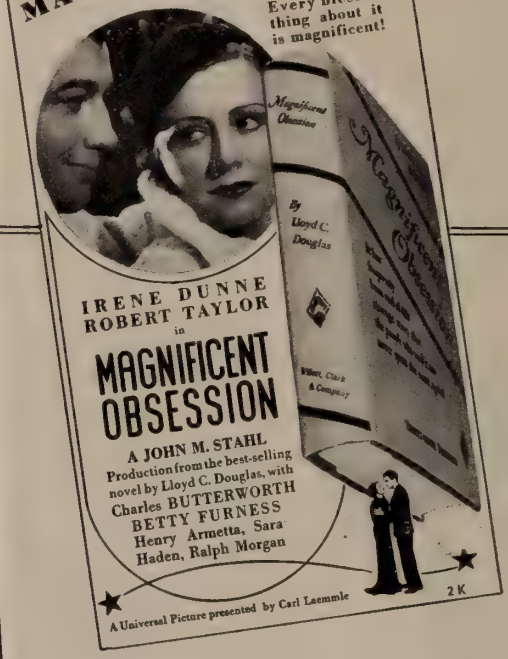
...NT
...NTS!

PICTURE PRESEN...

3A

MAGNIFICENT!

Every blessed thing about it is magnificent!



IRENE DUNNE
ROBERT TAYLOR
in
MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION

A JOHN M. STAHL
Production from the best-selling novel by Lloyd C. Douglas, with
Charles BUTTERWORTH
BETTY FURNESS
Henry Armetta, Sara Haden, Ralph Morgan

A Universal Picture presented by Carl Laemmle

2K

THE EVENT OF EVENTS!

IRENE DUNNE
ROBERT TAYLOR
MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION
A JOHN M. STAHL Production from the best-selling novel by Lloyd C. Douglas, with Charles BUTTERWORTH BETTY FURNESS
A Universal Picture presented by Carl Laemmle

1M

IT'S HERE AT LAST!

THE EVENT MILLIONS ARE WAITING FOR!

IRENE DUNNE
ROBERT TAYLOR
in
MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION

A JOHN M. STAHL
Production from the best-selling novel by Lloyd C. Douglas, with
Charles BUTTERWORTH
BETTY FURNESS
Henry Armetta, Sara Haden, Ralph Morgan
A Universal Picture presented by Carl Laemmle

1D

MAGNIFICENT ENTERTAINMENT!

IRENE DUNNE
ROBERT TAYLOR
in
MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION

A JOHN M. STAHL
Production from the best-selling novel by Lloyd C. Douglas, with
Charles BUTTERWORTH
BETTY FURNESS
Henry Armetta, Sara Haden, Ralph Morgan
A Universal Picture presented by Carl Laemmle

1C

IT WILL OBSESS YOU!

Written with mastery by the author of the generation, picturised with genius by filmdom's outstanding director, enacted with inspired performances by the screen's most beloved stars!

THE EVENT OF EVENTS!

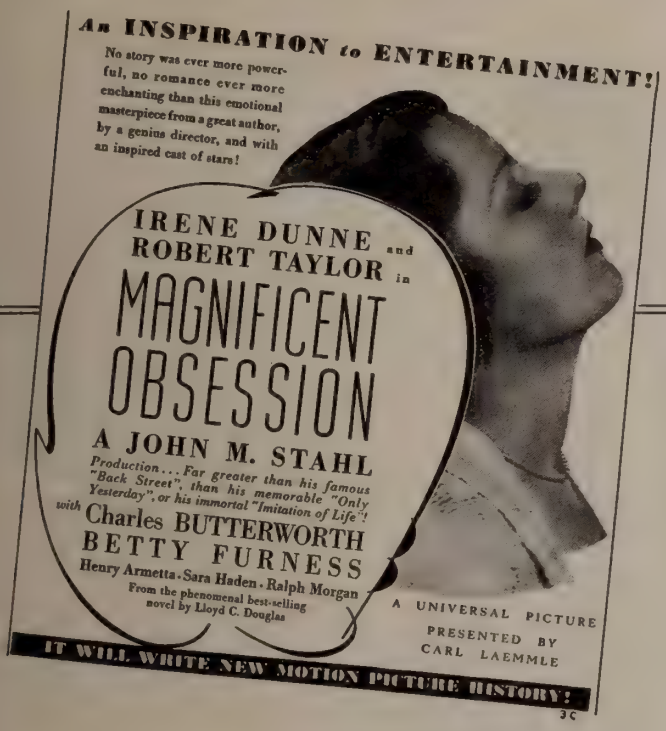
IRENE DUNNE
ROBERT TAYLOR
in
MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION

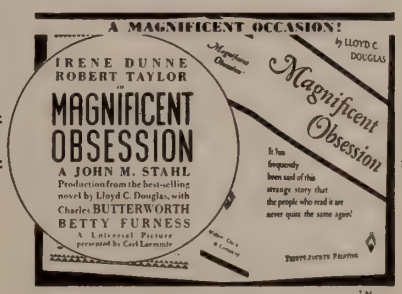
A JOHN M. STAHL
Production from the best-selling novel by Lloyd C. Douglas, with
Charles BUTTERWORTH
BETTY FURNESS
Henry Armetta, Sara Haden, Ralph Morgan

A Universal Picture presented by Carl Laemmle

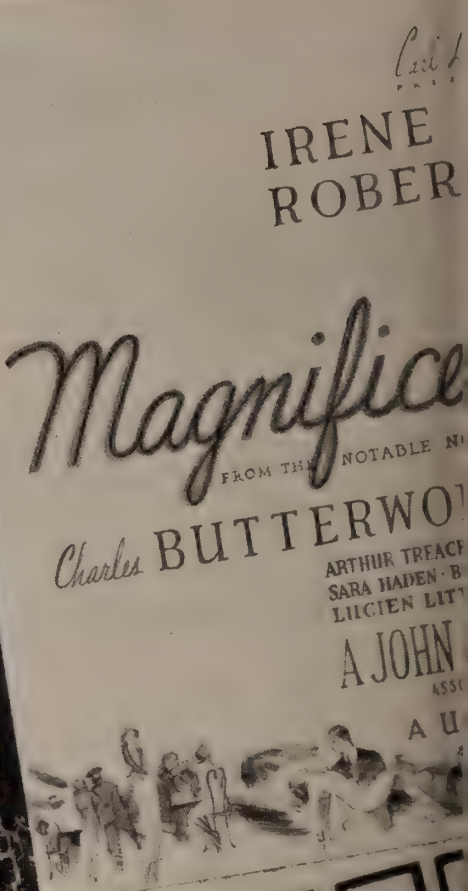
2E

OOK AND AD CAMPAIGN!...





UNIVERSAL'S MOST MA

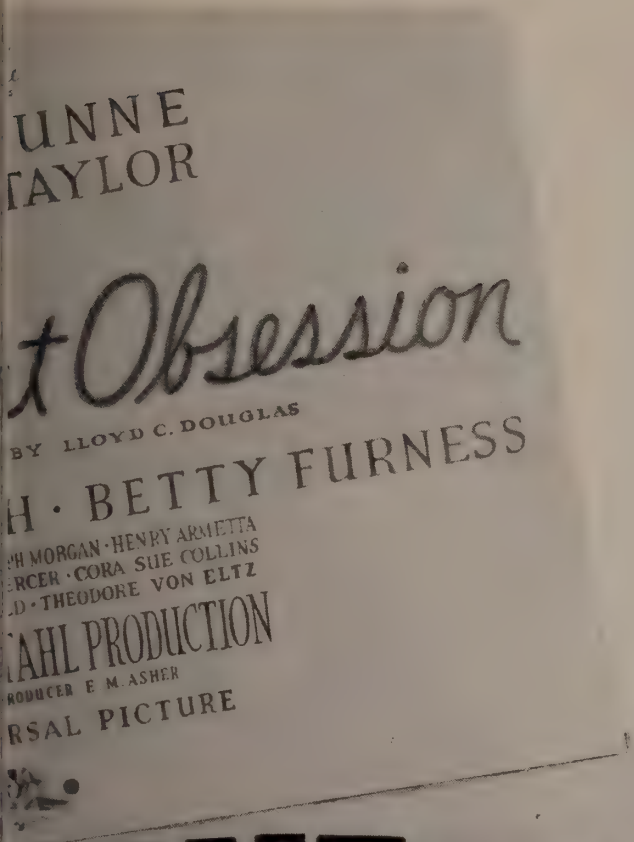


MAGNIF

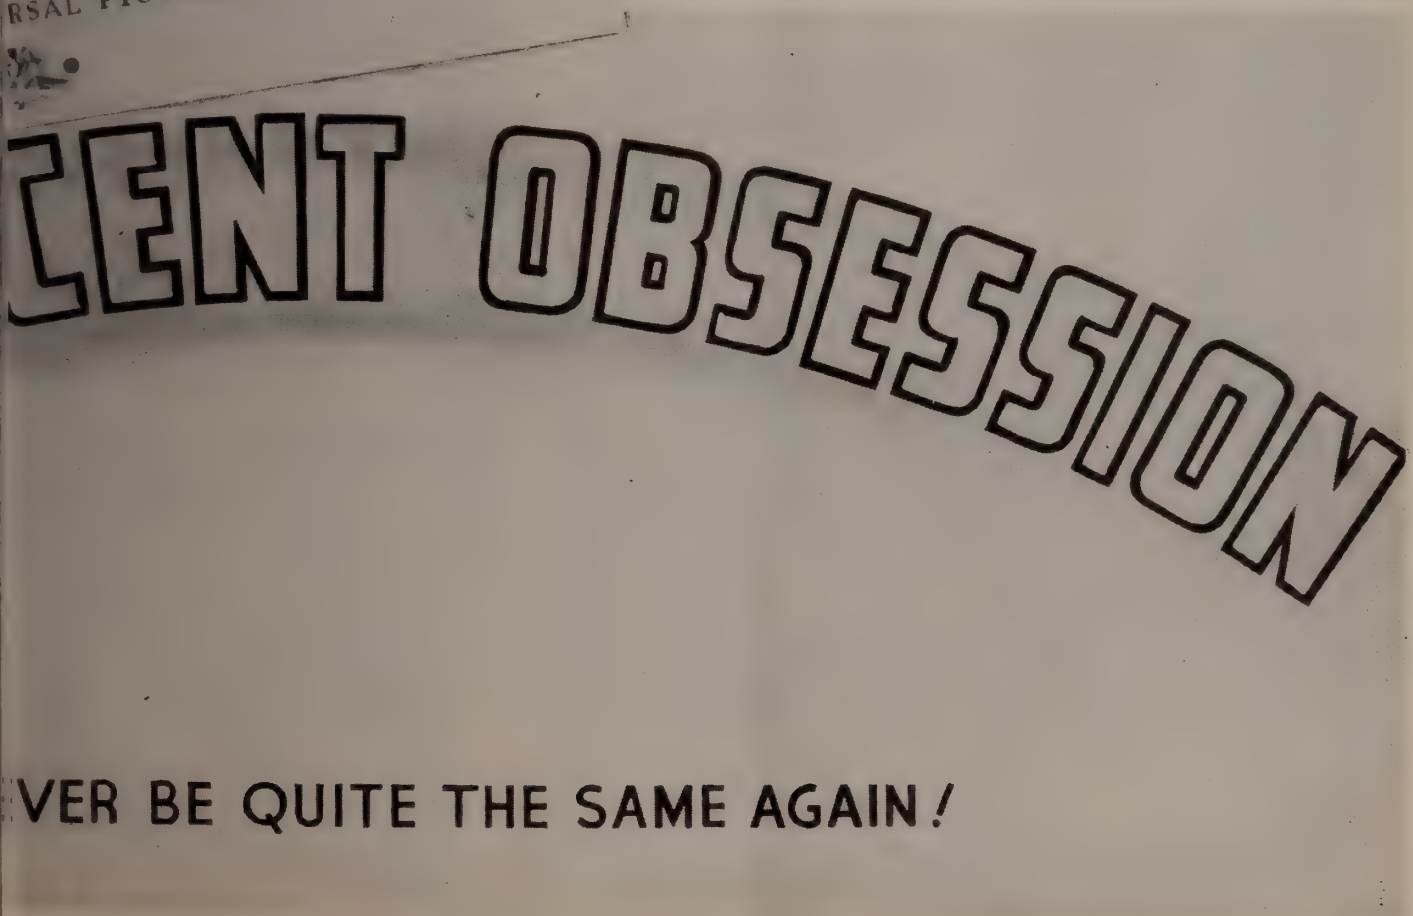
A 24-sheet teaser that will haunt 'em, obsess 'em and line 'em up at your theatre for blocks!

YOU'LL

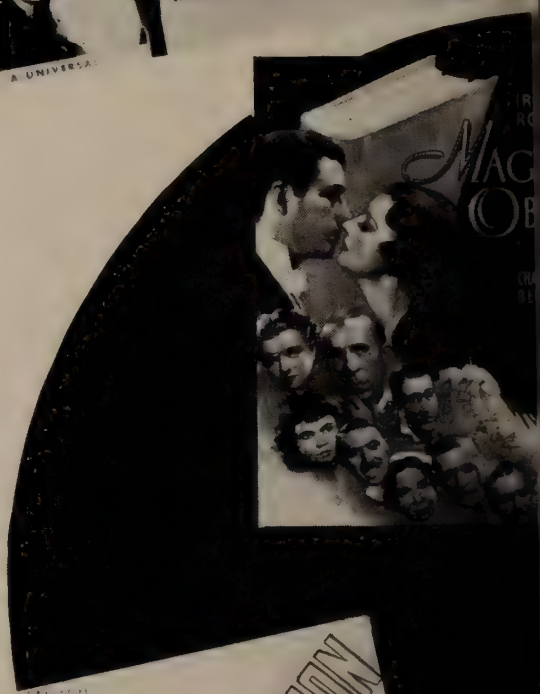
GNIFICENT POSTERS....

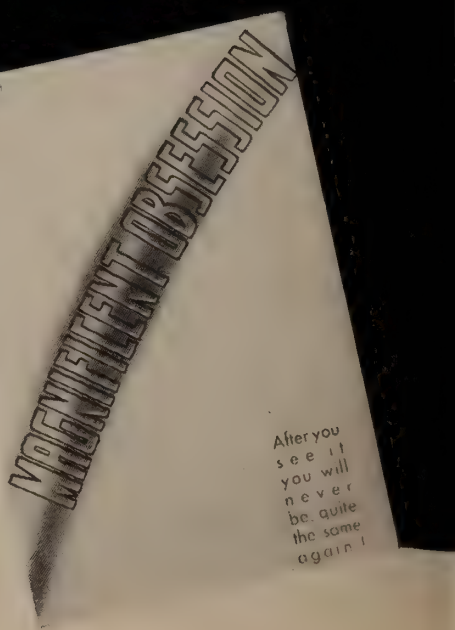


Masterpieces of swank, class, dignity and draw! It'll stop 'em and bring 'em in. Go the limit in newspaper and billboard advertising!



UNIVERSAL'S MOST CO





MPELLING ACCESSORIES!

You've never had such a magnificent campaign to back up so magnificent a production as this!

Preview Audience Cheers "Magnificent Obsession"

THE first opportunity that an audience has had, to react to "Magnificent Obsession" proved the most remarkable and enthusiastic preview ever held on the Pacific coast. In order to escape the perfunctory picture crowd in Los Angeles, the print was taken unannounced to San Francisco, where it was shown in the Alexandria Theatre after the regular show.

The applause after the picture was finished was astounding to the theatre employees who had never heard anything like it before in their own theatre. The post card comments were also one hundred percent greater than with ordinary pictures and all of them enthusiastic. Here are a few of these comments:

(Continued on Page 30)

Here It Is—

LAST week the Universal Weekly published a letter from J. L. Schanberger, manager of Keith's Theatre in Baltimore. This letter asked that a portrait of Carl Laemmle which could be framed, be published in the Universal Weekly.

The Editor of the Weekly is thoroughly in accord with the feeling expressed in Mr. Schanberger's letter and realizes fully that there are thousands of exhibitors who would appreciate a picture of Mr. Laemmle suitable for framing. In the inside cover of this Universal Weekly such a picture will be found. With the pictures goes the heartfelt wish of the veteran President of the Universal to every exhibitor for a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

EDITOR

WESTERN UNION

DEC 19 1935
SEATTLE WASH

J R GRAINGER
UNIVERSAL PICTURES

DEAR JIMMY LAST NIGHT WE PREVIEWED MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION AND I HASTEN TO TELL YOU IT IS ONE OF THE GRANDEST PICTURES I HAVE EVER SEEN STOP IT COVERS THE ENTIRE FIELD OF ENTERTAINMENT AND WE ANTICIPATE MARVELOUS BOX OFFICE STARTING SEATTLE FIFTH AVENUE JANUARY SIXTEENTH SEASONS GREETINGS AND BEST WISHES

JOHN HAMRICK

PINKY TOMLIN CAST

THE reunited team of Sally Eilers and Jimmy Dunn started its Universal feature on Monday of this week under the direction of William Nigh. Although the title will be changed, Universal production chiefs feel that this story by William Thiele and Edmund Hartmann is one of the most unusual and human to be purchased for the screen in a long time. Its cast will include Pinky Tomlin, with two of his own musical compositions and his inevitable guitar, Spencer Chartres, Frank Austin, Doris Lloyd, George Cleveland, Lillian Harmer and Charles Coleman.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, N. Y. City
Universal Pictures Corp.
Copyrighted 1935
(All Rights Reserved)
DEC. 28, 1935
Vol. 37 No. 22

$50. FOR IDEAS

How would you suggest Universal improve its pictures or any of it methods, Mr. Exhibitor and Mr. Projectionist? Almost every week I send some exhibitor or projectionist a fifty dollar check for an idea which is useable and practical. If you have such an idea, send it to me at my New York office, Rockefeller Center.

Carl Laemmle

They'll thrill at the very thought of it!
CAROLE
LOMBARD is coming in
"LOVE BEFORE BREAKFAST"

You'll see

MARGARET SULLAVAN EDWARD ARNOLD IRENE DUNNE WILLIAM POWELL CAROLE LOMBARD

ALLAN JONES JANE WYATT PRESTON FOSTER BELA LUGOSI HELEN MORGAN

STARS!

IN UNIVERSAL'S
NEW YEAR HITS
NOW IN PRODUCTION!

LEE TRACY BINNIE BARNES

HARLES WINNINGER PAUL ROBESON

Margaret Sullavan in "Next Time We Love." Edward Arnold in "Sutter's Gold." Irene Dunne in "Magnificent Obsession" and in "Show Boat." William Powell in "My Man Godfrey." Carole Lombard in "Love Before Breakfast." Lee Tracy and Binnie Barnes in "Sutter's Gold." Allan Jones in "Show Boat." Jane Wyatt in "Dracula's Daughter." Preston Foster in "Love Before Breakfast." Bela Lugosi in "Dracula's Daughter." Helen Morgan, Charles Winninger and Paul Robeson in "Show Boat."

Seven Acres of "Show Boat" Sets

Carl Laemmle, Jr. Production taxes capacity of California's greatest studios with gigantic sets built for use of James Whale.

WITH five of its already completed sets cramming three stages and its exteriors so far covering seven acres of ground on the "back lot," the Carl Laemmle, Jr. production of "Show Boat" at Universal is utilizing almost three-fifths of the studios vast resources.

Every department, from properties to the laboratory, is taxed to the utmost in an endeavor to keep abreast of Director James Whale's shooting schedule.

Historic old Stage Twelve is housing the interior of the Mississippi sidewheeler with its crudely-equipped pavillion, drafty combination dressing rooms and living quarters of the wandering troupe that is Cap'n Andy's "happy family." At one end is the old-fashioned galley. Along one entire side runs a reproduced river bank.

A great part of the action will take place on Stage Eight where the lobby of the famous old Palmer House of Chicago has been reconstructed with all of its plush and gold paint gaudiness of the '90s.

On still another stage, Le Roy Prinz, in charge of dance ensembles, is rehearsing 75 white and colored dancers for levee scenes, with 200 more subject to call when Director Whale enters the more modern phases of the story. Rehearsals are also in progress at another end of the lot where a Negro chorus of 200 voices practice under the supervision of Victor Baravalle, who acted as musical conductor for Florenz Ziegfeld when "Show Boat" was first presented as a hit on the New York stage in 1927.

Almost at dawn each morning for the past ten days, nearly 150 atmosphere players have been checked in by assistant director Joe McDonough to be turned over to a special crew of makeup artists and wardrobe workers who must have every player ready for the cameras at nine o'clock. Principals are not spared early calls, either. Irene Dunne, Allan Jones, Helen Morgan, Paul Robeson,

(Continued on Page 22)

"INVISIBLE RAY" in PUBLIC EYE ALREADY

The super-imposed silhouettes are shots from the "Invisible Ray," the moving picture which was supposed to be imaginative, but Science has already caught up with it.

The background of this cut is a reproduction of a two page story in the American Weekly, describing a ray, similar to "The Invisible Ray," which has already been invented and proven practical.

THE movies have got to move faster. Take the case of "The Invisible Ray," for example. When Universal bought this story from Howard Higgin and Douglas Hodges, it felt that it had a picture as far ahead of actuality as Jules Verne's "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea" was ahead of Simon Lake's submarine.

"The Invisible Ray" was supposed to be purely imaginary, a fascinating impossibility and a great dramatic brain twister. It has just been cut and viewed at the studio and everyone there is firmly convinced that it is a better picture even than "The Invisible Man" and a splendid box office property for exhibitors.

But what comes off now? Believe it or not, Science has caught up with the "Invisible Ray." What was supposed to be an impossibility has now turned into an actuality. Last week's American Weekly, the supplement which goes in all the Hearst papers and has a circulation of something like twelve millions, devoted the center two pages to an article entitled "The Death Ray and the Next War." Here is a ray described which has all the power which the authors of "The Invisible Ray" claim for their imaginative invention, with the one exception of the fact that it isn't invisible. If Universal doesn't hurry up and release this picture,—and it will be ready for release on the 15th of January—some scientist will come along and make the death ray invisible, too.

Yes, sir, the movies have got to move faster in order to keep ahead of Old Man Science, who just keeps rollin' along!

MARGARET SULLAVAN'S GREATEST ROLE
in Ursula Parrott's best story!
"NEXT TIME
WE LOVE"
th JAMES STEWART • RAY MILLAND
ant Mitchell • Robert McWade • Dickie Moore
Anna de Metrio
A PAUL KOHNER PRODUCTION
Directed by Edward H. Griffith from the best-selling novel, "Next Time We Live"

Irene Dunne, starring in "Magnificent Obsession," which opens at the Music Hall on the 30th and in 127 first-run theatres during the next week, is now playing her original role of Magnolia in James Whale's production of "Show Boat."

* * *

"Show Boat" Cast Is Now Complete

(Continued from Page 18)

Charles Winninger, Helen Westley, Queenie Smith, Sammy White, Hattie McDaniels, Donald Cook, Francis X. Mahoney, Charles Middleton, Arthur Hohl and others have instructions to be ready for the makeup men promptly at seven o'clock.

J. Farrell McDonald has just been cast for windy.

At the present rate of shooting, Carl Laemmle, Jr. estimates that it will take ten weeks, barring unforeseen difficulties, to complete the screen version of "Show Boat." With "Sutter's Gold," the Carole Lombard picture "Love Before Breakfast," Margaret Sullavan's "Next Time We Love" and the Eilers-Dunn picture, "Tomorrow is a Better Day" all in production at the same time, Universal City studios are crowded to the guards.

Sullavan Completes "Next Time We Love"

EDWARD H. GRIFFITH has completed Margaret Sullavan's next picture, "Next Time We Love," adapted from the Ursula Parrott story, "Say Goodbye Again." In spite of the fact that Mr. Griffith strove mightily all last week to finish the picture by Monday, he had to reshoot a number of important scenes. The re-shooting was required because little Ronnie Cosbey had to be substituted for Dickie Moore, and the scenes in which Dickie Moore appeared had to be made over. "Next Time We Love" is Margaret Sullavan's best picture to date, according to Hollywood, and has already been booked into the Music Hall starting January 30th.

The cast of "Next Time We Love" includes James Stewart, Ray Milland, Grant Mitchell, Robert McWade, Anna Dimetrio and Charles Niepple, Jr., as well as Ronnie Crosby.

It's Tough On the News Cameraman

LAST week's Universal Weekly had a graphic exclusive of the meningitis epidemic in Kiowa County, Oklahoma, and now comes the pay-off. This exclusive was made by Ennis C. Helm, one of Charles Ford's most intrepid news cameramen. He took these pictures in a quarantined and thoroughly policed town at the risk of contracting the dread disease or being quarantined himself.

Here are Mr. Helm's own words in describing the danger in which he now finds himself:

"As a result of my two trips over there, I am about as popular as a Baptist Preacher at a Bootlegger's Convention. Everyone is afraid of me and the City Health Inspector made a request a few minutes ago of a fumigation on my house and maybe a ten day Quarantine—now is'nt that something. You see a new epidemic has broke out just 18 miles west of Oklahoma City at the town of Yukon and two have already died, so everyone down here is scared and very cautious, as the sick ones only last from five to seven hours before they kick off.

"If I get under a quarantine, I will wire you and tell you how long.

"Yours very truly,

(Signed) Ennis C. Helm."

This is the first still of "Show Boat." It shows Irene Dunne asking Paul Robeson who was the handsome man who passed as he was singing "Ole Man River."

"Silver Spurs" Full of Action

MYSTERY, romance and thrilling action are skillfully combined to make "Silver Spurs" the most exciting and action-ful adventure film Buck Jones has ever made.

A clatter of hoofs—a volley of shots—terror reigns—"Silver Spurs" is raiding again!

A hidden, secret canyon—a perfect setting for the sinister crimes of a ruthless gang of outlaws operating under the guise of the law.

And a cowboy who risks all to uphold the ideals of honor and decency and is hunted as an outlaw for his trouble!

As is always the case with Buck Jones pictures, practically the entire picture was made on location, including those made in and around an authentic ranch now actually being worked. The only scenes ever made at the studio are those impractical to attempt elsewhere.

Extended location trips were made to Vasquez Rocks, an unusual and picturesque section of California, and to the famous Lasky Mesa, a colorful area fringed by lofty and awe-inspiring mountains in the San Fernando Valley. Both of these locations offer a never ending variety of scenes for the cameraman to capture as backgrounds for the stirring and breath-taking action of this outdoor film.

With "Silver," his famous white horse, Buck excells past achievements in daring feats of horsemanship, fighting and fast action. From the gifted pen of Charles Alden Seltzer, "Silver Spurs" is a breathtaking story of the real West and of Buck's single-handed fight against terrific odds to solve a baffling murder mystery and break up a deadly gang of outlaws.

Muriel Evans is featured as leading woman.

IT'LL LIGHT THE WAY

NOT A HORROR PICTURE!
AND FAR GREATER THAN THE RECORD-BREAKING
"THE INVISIBLE MAN"!

TO YOUR BOX-OFFICE!

The INVISIBLE RAY

Starring

The Great KARLOFF and BELA LUGOSI with FRANCES DRAKE and FRANK LAWTON

An Edmund Grainger Production. Directed by Lambert Hillyer.... Universal's Weird New Romance presented by Carl Laemmle.

Roll of Honor

The following exhibitors in the Atlanta Territory have used Universal Pictures continuously for 10 Years or Longer

EXHIBITOR	THEATRE	TOWN
Manning and Wink, Inc.	Crescent	Dalton, Ga.
Milton Starr	Bijou Amusement Co.	Nashville, Tenn.
Tony Sudekum	Crescent Amusement Co.	Nashville, Tenn.
Sam Borisky	Independent Theatres, Inc.	Chattanooga, Tenn.
Mose Lebowitz	Grand	Chattanooga, Tenn.
O. C. Lam	Lam Amusement Co.	Rome, Ga.
Violet Edwards	Cinderella	Commerce, Ga.
Earle Hendron	Princess	Greeneville, Tenn.
George L. Denton	Booth	Knoxville, Tenn.
R. J. Foster	Old Hickory	Old Hickory, Tenn.
J. A. Snider	Grand	Bessemer, Ala.
C. W. Wade	Wadesonian	Clanton, Ala.
T. D. McMinn	Lyric	Cullman, Ala.
Louis Rosenbaum Circuit	Four towns—Florence, Tuscumbia, Lyric	Sheffield, Athens, Ala. Huntsville, Ala.
C. A. Crute	Circuit of 20 Theatres in Ka. & Ala.	Columbus, Ga.
R. E. Martin	Majestic
E. F. Boyd	Albany and Liberty	Albany, Ga.
A. C. Gortatowsky	Circuit of 4 Theatres	Atlanta, Ga.
L. S. Bach	Ritz and Five Points	Thomaston, Ga.
Odom and Hardy	National	McRae, Ga.
Mrs. F. L. Liggett	Princess	Millen, Ga.
C. H. Simpson	Fairview	Atlanta, Ga.
J. A. Rebb	Circuit	Atlanta, Ga., Carrollton, Ga. Douglasville, Ga.
Alfa Fowler
E. J. Sparks	Sparks Theatres, covering about 65 theatres in Florida	Miami and Palm Beach, Fla.
Sidney Meyer, Mitchell Wolfson	Wometco Theatres (9 theatres)
L. D. Joel	Casino	Jacksonville, Fla.
Juan Carbonell	Monroe	Key West, Fla.
Earl Fain	Palace	Leesburg, Fla.
N. T. Ragland	Regent	Miami, Fla.
George Porter	Temple	Perry, Fla.

Five Years

V. S. Golden	Acworth	Acworth, Ga.
Mrs. L. C. Smith	Morton	Athens, Ga.
P. C. Tallent	Lyric	Dayton, Tenn.
J. S. Browning	Bonnie Kate	Elizabethton, Tenn.
Ausmus-Parrott Co.	Novelty	LaFollette, Tenn.
S. C. Ware	Roosevelt	Jefferson, Ga.
Brichetto Bros.	Ritz	Knoxville, Tenn.
Frank Dowler	Volunteer	Chattanooga, Tenn.

C. T. JORDAN, Mgr.

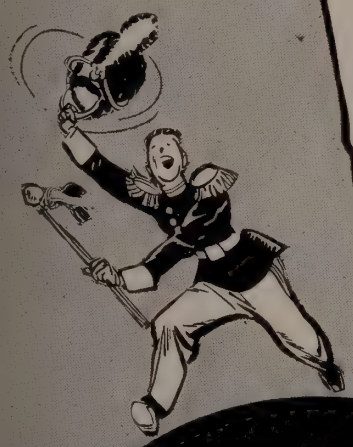
Even they HAD TO have it!

VARIETY December 18, 1935

Gov. Hoffman of N. J. Requisitions Bruno Trial Reels from U

At request of Governor Harold Hoffman, of New Jersey, Universal Newsreel has turned over approximately 20,000 feet of film covering virtually every phase of the Lindbergh kidnaping case and subsequent Bruno R. Hauptmann trial. Action in no way resembles that taken by defense counsel during progress of court trial when threat was made to withhold newsreel shots from public exhibition. Governor simply requested the reels so that be might study them.

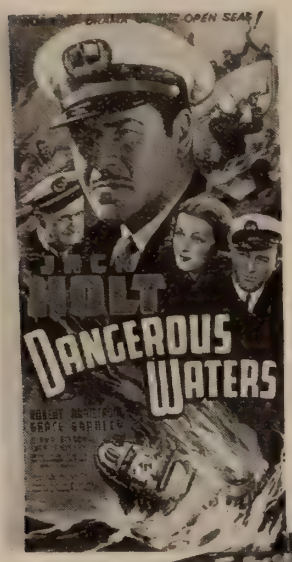
Whether or not the newsreel record will be unfolded before the Court of Pardons, in an effort to let members of that body pass on the probability of error in Hauptmann's trial was not revealed. Observers believe it unlikely that Governor Hoffman wants the newsreel shots for any personal use.

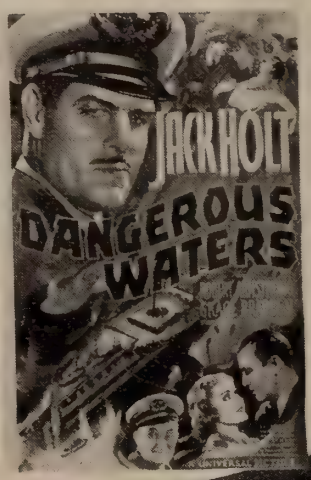


UNIVERSAL NEWSREEL

With GRAHAM McNAMEE

SCREAMING, TEEMING





PLASTER THE TOWN WITH ITS PAPER AND YOU'LL PLASTER YOUR HOUSE WITH PATRONS!

CARL LAEMMLE presents

JACK HOLT

Dangerous W

ROBERT ARMSTRONG · GRACE BRADLEY · CHARLIE MURRAY · DIANA GI

ED GARGAN - WALTER MILLER
WILLARD ROBERTSON-GUY USHER
DEWEY ROBINSON

FROM THE STORY "GLORY HOLE"
by THEODORE REEVES

WITH ACTION THRILLS!

Get up those 24's, 6's, 3's and 1's! It's strong, virile drama you're selling, with the star they love and the cast they know well!

Preview Audience Cheers and R

(Continued from Page 14)

"It's been a long time since my eyes have become misty. This picture did it. The direction was excellent. Performances of Miss Dunne and Mr. Morgan was superb—H.F."

* * *

"I enjoyed the book so much and the story was screened so well. Because of the excellent acting and sincerity of the players. The changes in the picture I felt added rather than detracted from the picture.—C.S."

* * *

"It is a fine story and was well acted by capable players. The cast was well chosen and felt fortunate in being able to see it.—Mrs. M. S."

* * *

"Nice Philosophy. Gave us something to think about. A grand change from the current gangland stories.—Mrs. R. O. S."

* * *

"Nothing vulgar—Edifying.—B."

"Laundry business increased hundredfold. 7486 handkerchiefs used in wiping tears away. My wife emerged 'worn-out" from crying—David L.I."

* * *

Irene Dunne had the best role of her career. Robert Taylor was grand. —E. B."

Carl Laemmle Thirtieth Anniversary Celebration Jan. 6 — April 4

"It holds you. Let's have more of this type.—G.T.B."

* * *

"Excellent cast and each one played part well, such a relief from many of the pictures we sit through—Mr. & Mrs. W. G. McM."

* * *

"Very inspiring. Audience applauded after picture ended. A picture well worth seeing and I await the final release to see it again. Congratulations to all.—C.W.B."

* * *

"A perfect story and an exceptional cast.—M. Q."

* * *

"You are to be congratulated on your courage in handling this type of picture. It is a serious topic and we need more such pictures. J. W. Lav.".

WATCH THE "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" PARADE OF BOOKINGS! WATCH IT START THE NEW YEAR BY BREAKING ALL ATTENDANCE RECORDS! GET IN LINE FOR A FORTUNE! FOLLOW The LEADERS!

ves Over "Magnificent Obsession"

"It was real, sheer drama from the first scene to the last. It could have happened.—E. DeG."

* * *

"Fine cast, fine acting, very good story. Should be one of the most outstanding pictures of the year.—Mrs. W. F. R."

* * *

"I am convinced that this picture will appreciably change the lives of millions of people.—W.L.L."

* * *

"The plot of the story was marvelous.—H.H."

* * *

"My Impression that the director has done the greatest job of all—R.P.C."

* * *

"Magnificent cast-marvelous acting.—J.M.T."

"It was human interest, fine acting and superb direction. Enough comedy to lighten its very serious theme makes it fine adult fare.—Miss M.F."

* * *

"'The Magnificent Obsession' was my idea of a fine picture. — Miss G. H."

Carl Laemmle Thirtieth Anniversary Celebration Jan. 6 — April 4

"Superb acting, wonderful story and plenty of action. This is the type of picture that the studios should make more of.—Mr. H. K."

* * *

"It had that heart appeal, and was acted so marvelously by every member of the cast.—H.N."

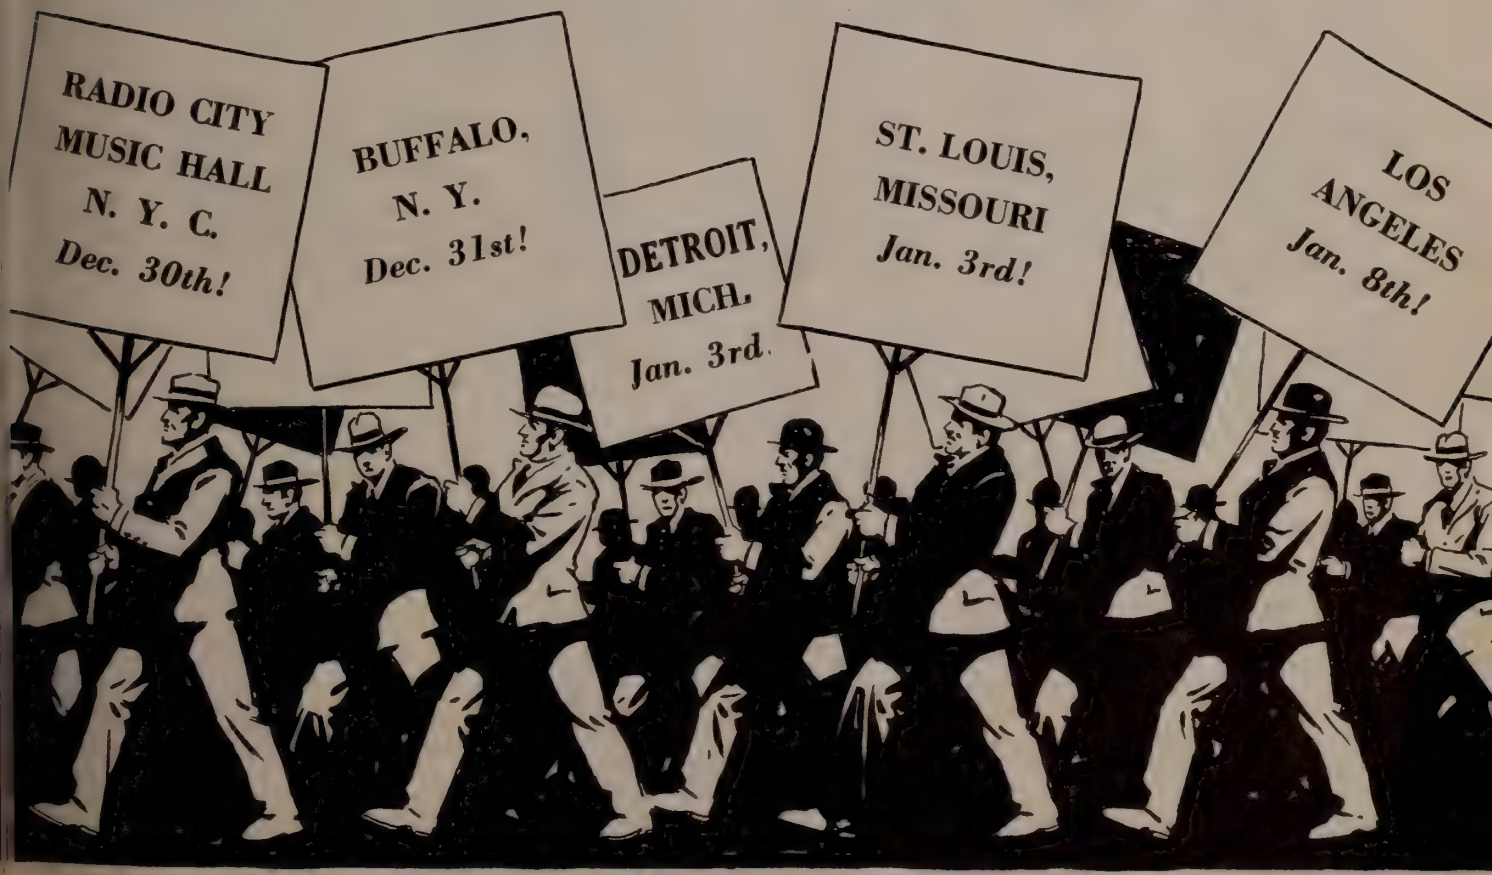
* * *

"Clean picture—well acted—unusual theme.—A. P."

* * *

"It was splendid—with enough amusing situations for relief."

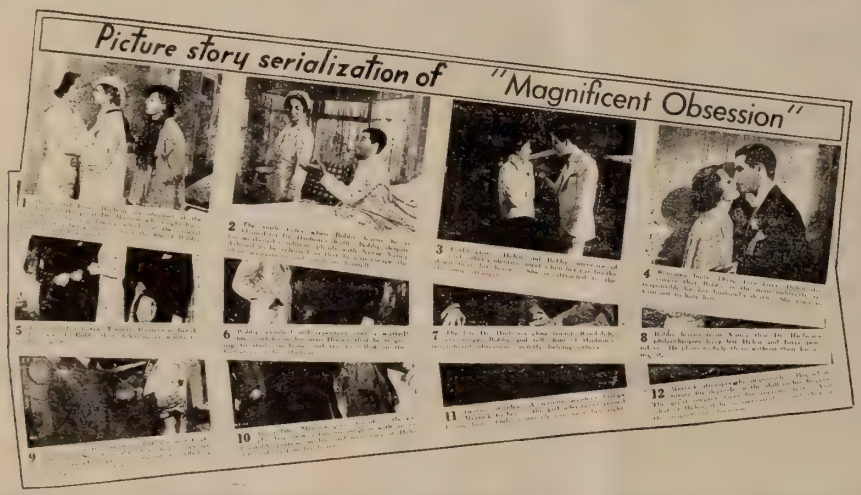
"It was a clean picture with real plot; well produced and acted; we left the show with a good taste in the mouth, if you get what we mean. —Mr. & Mrs. M. T. S.



THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY SHOWMANSHIP SECTION

A DIGEST OF THE BEST EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

ADDITIONAL "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" IDEAS



SIX DAY NEWSPAPER PICTURE SERIALIZATION

PLANT this six-day picture strip serialization of the picture with one of the local papers for a week of extra advance publicity. It tells the story in a series of four dramatic pictures with captions, each day. There are six strips. Mats of the pictures and copy are available to newspapers upon definite assurance of placement. Mats are five columns by approximately 3½ inches, suitable for tabloid or standard size newspapers. Address your request to Exploitation Department, Universal Pictures, Rockefeller Centre, New York City, noting name of newspaper and time set for publication.

Post Card to Doctors

A GREAT part of the action of "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" takes place in hospitals and the principal characters are members of the medical profession. Send a post card carrying cut illustrated, and copy below, to the physicians of your town as they will undoubtedly be interested in seeing this picture which glorifies their profession.

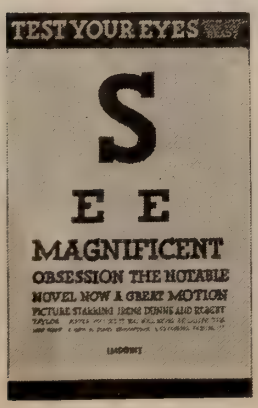
Dear Doctor:

What is the motivating force that makes some doctors world renowned physicians or surgeons, while others remain practitioners? This provocative question is dramatically answered in "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" starring Irene Dunne and Robert Taylor at the Strand, next week. You have already heard of the sensational book which has sold over 300,000 copies and in which a doctor running a great hospital sacrifices his life for a wastrel. This notable novel has now become the most discussed picture of the year. Doctors and others who help humanity will be especially interested in seeing this magnificent screen play not only because it sheds light on the ideals of the medical profession, but also because it is great, thrillingly dramatic entertainment.

Sincerely yours,

Eye Test Teaser Board

THIS eye chart stunt can be used as a throwaway and planted in your lobby and in stores for an effective advance teaser. People reading it will, naturally, have the title and catchline implanted in their minds. Print up a quantity on small cards and give them to optical store for distribution with their own ad imprinted on back or at bottom. Any good print shop can set this chart for you for the throwaways. Have your art department letter it for the lobby display.



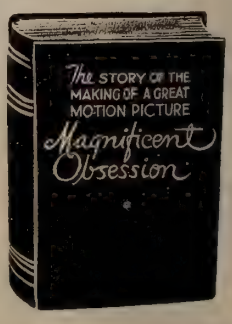
EYES OF HOLLYWOOD

USE this composite picture of the eyes of cast, for a tie-up with your local newspaper. It sells the title and cast as well as providing a good identification contest. Offer free tickets to people who correctly identify the greatest number of eyes and write the best ten word slogan for picture. You might also place this picture in your lobby as an advance teaser stunt. This picture may be obtained in mat form by asking your local Universal Branch for Exploitation Service Mat MO-3.

Identification: (1) Robert Taylor, (2) Irene Dunne, (3) Betty Furness, (4) Theodore von Eltz, (5) Henry Armetta, (6) Charles Butterworth, (7) Arthur Treacher, (8) Beryl Mercer, (9) Sara Haden, (10) Lucien Littlefield, (11) Cora Sue Collins, (12) Ralph Morgan.

Souvenir Booklets

THE dramatic story of the making of "Magnificent Obsession" illustrated with scenes and star heads. Twelve pages — 2⅞" x 3⅝" — printed in two colors throughout. A very handsome souvenir to distribute in advance of your opening, to use as a mailing piece or for distribution by local merchants, book stores and libraries. Imprint space provided on back.



Prices: 75c per hundred or $6.50 per thousand at Universal Branches.

WATCH UNIVERSAL STEP!

W. G. VAN SCHMUS, MANAGING DIRECTOR, RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL, AWARDS THE YEAR'S BEST PLAYING TIME TO UNIVERSAL'S

"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION"

NEW YEAR'S WEEK! . . . AND WILL FOLLOW THIS GLORIOUS TRIUMPH WITH UNIVERSAL'S NEW MARGARET SULLAVAN SENSATION,

"NEXT TIME WE LOVE"

From

UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.

ROCKEFELLER CENTER

NEW YORK CITY

Sec. 562, P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
Paid
Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

MANAGER
CLIFFORD THEATRE
5937 W ROOSEVELT RD
CHICAGO ILL

FOR THOSE SPECIAL MORNING SHOWS FOR THE KIDDIES ALL THIS HOLIDAY WEEK — — HOW ABOUT SEVERAL OSWALDS?

Printed in U. S. A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

VOL. 37, NO. 24

JAN. 11, 1936

ALLAN JONES who plays Ravenal
in
"SHOW BOAT"

"THRILL PILED UPON THRILL"!

Camera Thrills
(Universal)
Great Entertainment

So spirited and rapid-fire is the movement of this two-reel production that it is immensely promising as entertainment. Critical, indeed, would be the patron who would discount the picture because he has seen some of the shots before in newsreels. Thrill is piled upon thrill in such speedy sequence that it all appears entirely fresh, and Graham McNamee is at his best as narrator with such material. Charles Ford produced the picture.—Running time, 21 minutes.

"CAMERA THRILLS"

1906 1936

IN TRIBUTE TO A MAN WHO HAS BEEN A LEADER

IN THE INDUSTRY FOR ALMOST A THIRD OF A CENTURY

Carl Laemmle

30TH ANNIVERSARY

GREAT PICTURES FOR A GREAT CELEBRATION

MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION . Irene Dunne
NEXT TIME WE LOVE . . Margaret Sullavan
LOVE BEFORE BREAKFAST . Carole Lombard
SUTTER'S GOLD . . . . Edward Arnold
DRACULA'S DAUGHTER . Bela Lugosi
GREAT IMPERSONATION . Edmund Lowe
STRANGERS AT THE FEAST . Margaret Sullavan
SHOW BOAT . . . . . Irene Dunne

BOOK TODAY DO IT NOW

THIS IS UNIVERSAL'S YEAR!

I REMEMBER

(A SALUTE TO

by R. H. Cochrane, Vice

Now that we are celebrating Mr. Laemmle's Thirtieth Anniversary, let's look at his record, take him apart and see what makes him tick.

I have been associated with him all of the thirty years.

I remember him when he was much older than he is today. I mean older.

I remember him when he worked, fought and worried—and now he works, fights and grins.

I remember the first time I ever saw him. He walked into my office in Chicago, held up one finger like old Doctor Munyon and said, "I've got an idea." And he had. And he has been having them ever since. Many of them have been revolutionary and great, others good, and others still-born. He admits it when they are poor, but he glows with pride when he hits the nail on the head.

He's soft as mush in matters of heart interest. He has been worked by (literally) hundreds, possibly thousands. Anyone with a hard luck story has been able to tap his purse, even when the purse was lank and gaunt. He has been lied to and stolen from by the smoothies of the world — and he has always cooked up some excuse for forgiving them.

HIM WHEN—

CARL LAEMMLE)

President, Universal Pictures

He loves his work, in fact he's plain daffy over it. The only thing that keeps him from working all the time is his love for his family — and now and then a game of cards.

He likes people.

He suffers when his friends suffer, and he rejoices when something good happens to them. His suffering is just as keen as theirs, his rejoicing just as exuberant.

Believe it or not, he likes exhibitors! That's one thing no producer or distributor is supposed to do. But he does. He has never forgotten that he started as an exhibitor, and that exhibitors are just as human and fine as producers — and in some cases a darned sight more so.

He has never been blase one moment in his life. In his lighter hours he is as much of a kid as he was thirty years ago.

As a partner and associate of his for all these years, I salute one of the most human and humane men I ever hope to know.

That quality in him which got under my skin is the same quality which now causes thousands to join in celebrating his anniversary.

NOT EVEN

Kept them away!

READ WHAT THE WORLD'S FINEST THEATRE DID WITH UNIVERSAL'S MAGNIFICENT PRODUCTION!

CLASS OF SERVICE

This is a full-rate Telegram or Cablegram unless its deferred character is indicated by a suitable symbol above or preceding the address.

DL = Day Letter
NM = Night Message
NL = Night Letter
LC = Deferred Cable
NLT = Cable Night Letter
Ship Radiogram

WESTERN UNION

NEWCOMB CARLTON
CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD

J. C. WILLEVER
FIRST VICE-PRESIDENT

R. B. WHITE
PRESIDENT

The filing time shown in the date line on telegrams and day letters is STANDARD TIME at point of origin. Time of receipt is STANDARD TIME at point of destination.

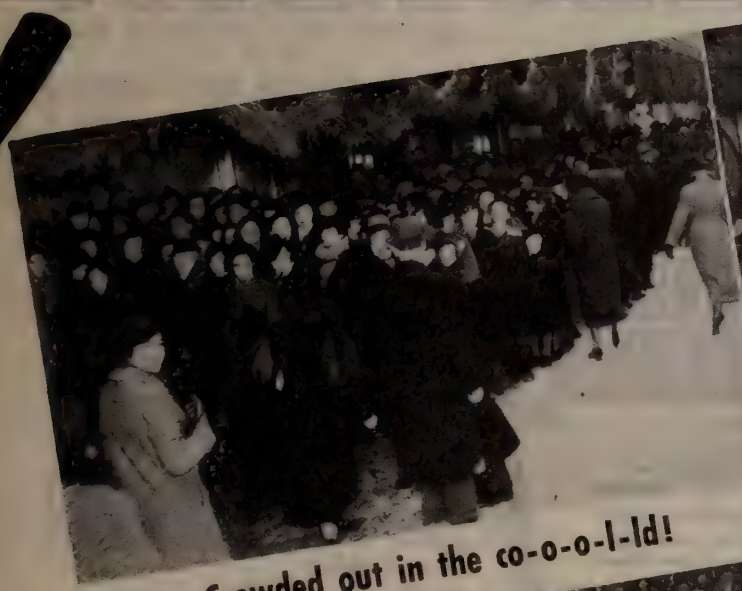
S14 PAID TWS 3 MINS=PRUV NEWYORK NY 508P DECEMBER 30 1935

CARL LAEMMLE=
UNIV PICT CORP UNIVERSALCITY CALIF=

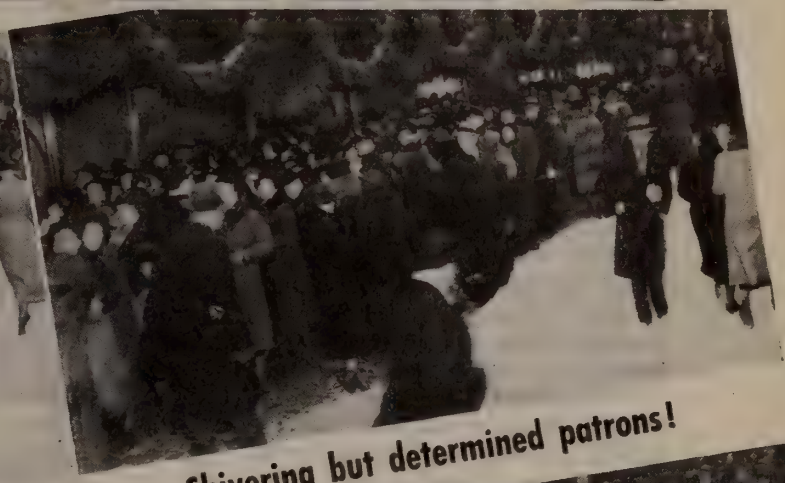
IN SPITE OF A RECORD BREAKING SNOWSTORM MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION HAS FILLED THE MUSIC HALL CONTINUOUSLY FROM OPENING PERFORMANCE WITH TWO THOUSAND STANDING INSIDE AND OUTSIDE AT ONE THIRTY STOP OUR PATRONS ARE GIVING THE PICTURE FINE PRAISE STOP THOUGHT YOU MIGHT LIKE TO KNOW HENCE THIS TELEGRAM WITH CONGRATULATIONS=
W G VAN SCHMUS MANAGING DIRECTOR
RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL.
238P

MAGNIFICE

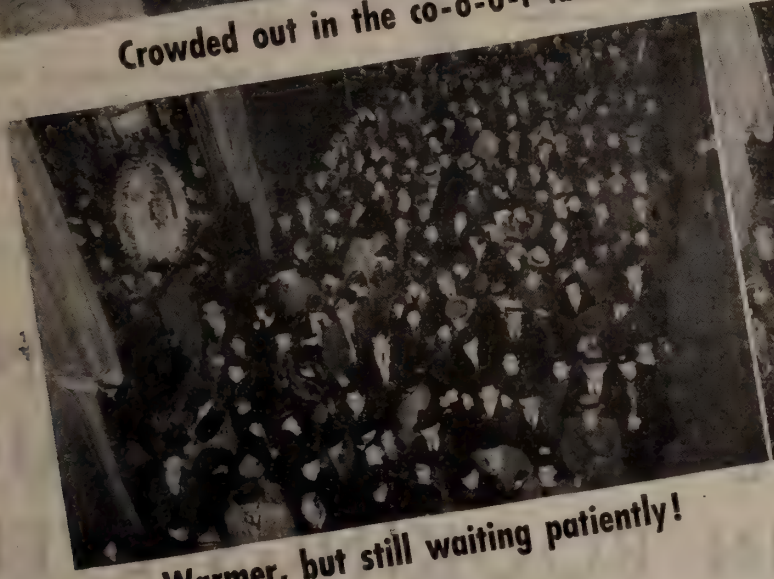
BLIZZARDS



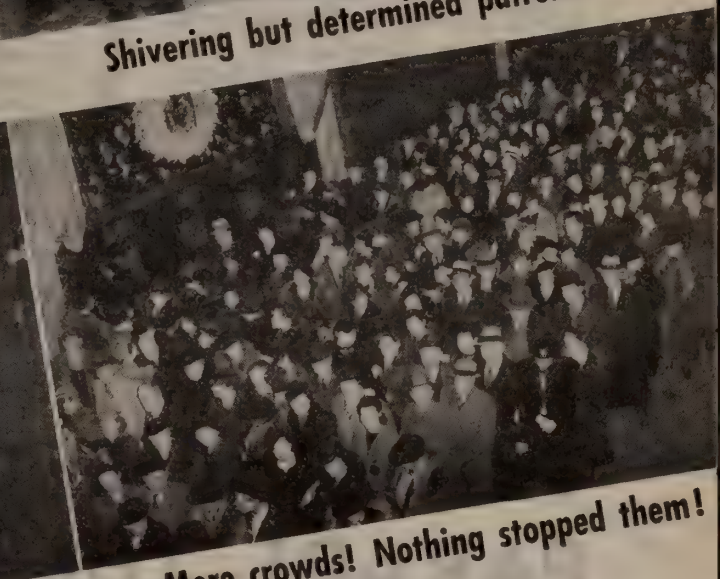
Crowded out in the co-o-o-l-ld!



Shivering but determined patrons!



Warmer, but still waiting patiently!



More crowds! Nothing stopped them!

UNIVERSAL'S FIRST GIFT OF 1936 TO THE WORLD'S BOX OFFICES!

NT OBSESSION

THE PICTURE WITH A HEART!

Right Off the Bat at Universal

The new year is opening gloriously for Universal. Production is boiling, pictures are hitting, the Carl Laemmle exploitation drive in connection with his 30th anniversary has begun! All in all it looks like a glorious year for Universal City.

* * *

Gregory LaCava, director of "She Married Her Boss," "Private Worlds," "Affairs of Cellini" and "Gallant Lady" has been signed by Universal to direct William Powell in "My Man Godfrey." The picture starts March 2nd.

* * *

"Magnificent Obsession" broke a one day record at the New York Music Hall and kept up a spanking admission pace all during New York's first bitter taste of winter. At Buffalo "Magnificent Obsession" hung up a five year record at the Lafayette. It's held over—of course!

* * *

The Jimmy Dunn-Sally Eilers picture with Pinky Tomlin, formerly referred to in the studio as "Tomorrow Is A Better Day," got a new title this week and a mighty good one. It will be released under the title of "Don't Get Personal."

* * *

Universal will release a new Mentone musical on January 22nd which is entitled "Carnival Time" with a cast including Jean Sargent, Jack Fulton, Russ Brown, Fred Sandborn, Sue Hastings' Marionettes, Washboard Serenaders, Mary Louise Harper, Biltmorettes and Eugenie Reed.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, N. Y. City
Universal Pictures Corp.
Copyrighted 1935
(All Rights Reserved)
JAN. 11, 1936
Vol. 37 No. 24

* * *

"Next Time We Love," just finished at the coast, will have as big a first run opening throughout the country during the weeks of February 3rd and 10th as "Magnificent Obsession" did on January 6th and 13th. It opens at the Music Hall on January 30th.

* * *

"Invisible Ray" opened yesterday at the Roxy and it looks like another big week at this big Universal first run house.

* * *

Cesar Romero and Betty Lawford have been added to the cast of Carole Lombard's picture "Love Before Breakfast."

* * *

Howard Winner, Universal Newsreel cameraman in Ethiopia is the first newsman in the world to go to the Ethiopian war front. Another Universal triumph.

THE "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" PARADE—THE BIGGEST LINE-UP OF FIRST-RUN BOOKINGS EVER AWARDED A SINGLE PRODUCTION! FOLLOW THE LEADERS! JOIN THE PARADE! GET IN LINE FOR A FORTUNE!—AND START YOUR ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN NOW!

First on the Railroads—

February, 1923, Chicago & Alton Railroad. First movies on moving train.

First in the Air—

October, 1929, T.A.T. between Columbus, O. and Pacific Coast. First movies on moving passenger plane.

First on the High Seas—

July, 1929, White-Star liner Majestic. First movies on moving transatlantic liner.

First Everywhere—

Including the latest Beat in a long career marked by enterprise. First movies in the N. Y. State CCC Camps on regular service, December 23, 1935, Camp Wawayanda.

"DIAMOND JIM"

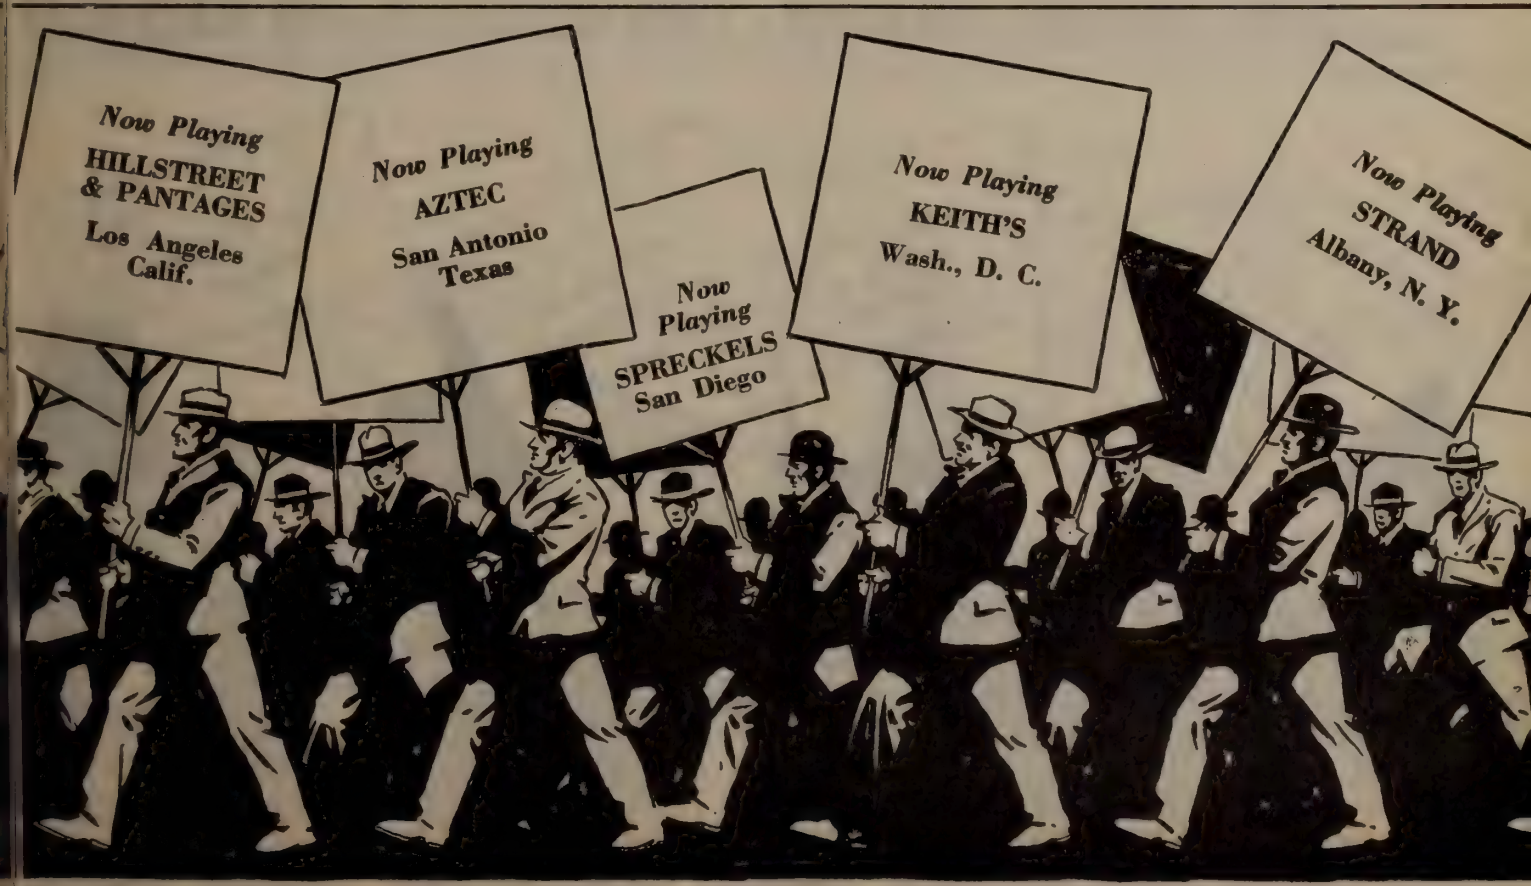
Is First CCC Program

UNIVERSAL has scored another beat in its long career of being first in everything.

"Diamond Jim" was selected for the initial program presented in C.C.C. Camps of New York State by the Motion Picture Division of W.P.A. This initial program had its first showing in Camp Wawayanda on December 23rd. Camp Wawayanda is one of the five Camps in Circuit No. 1 thru which picture will play. Up to the present time five Circuits have been organized, consisting of five Camps in each Circuit.

The occasion was made a gala affair signalizing this educational and amusement campaign initiated by the Motion Picture Division of the Federal Theatre Unit. A twelve piece orchestra entertained the enrollees in the recreation hall prior to the screening and there were a number of State notables present, including Lieut. Col. Giffen, Commanding Army Officer of the District, and Mr. Harold Dunn, Educational Director of the Second Corps Area.

The selection of the programs and the direction of the educational work in connection with them is in charge of Mrs. Marion Beaufait, Supervisor of the Motion Picture Division, Federal Theatre Project. These programs are being watched very carefully not only by other Works Progress Divisions but by educational organizations throughout the nation as they embody a new principle combining recreation and education.



THIRTY Y

WITH THIS ANNOUNCEMENT I
THOSE WHO PERSONIFY IT ENTER
UNIVERSAL IS PROUD OF BEING
INDUSTRY TODAY, IN POINT OF C
SERVICE. IT IS AN ENVIABLE HIS WITH UNFORGETTABLE TRIUMPHS.

YOUNG, VITAL AND VIGOROUS IN ITS IDEAS AND ALSO ITS IDEALS. YOUTH BE THE HERITAGES INSEPARABLE FROM UNIVERSAL'S LONG YEARS OF PR

EARS YOUNG!

)K, UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORPORATION AND

'ON THE 30TH ANNIVERSARY SEASON. NATURALLY,

HE OLDEST COMPANY IN THE MOTION PICTURE

TINUOUS EXISTENCE AS WELL AS UNINTERRUPTED

RY, RICH WITH MANY GLORIES AND RICHER STILL

UT FAR PROUDER IS UNIVERSAL OF HAVING KEPT

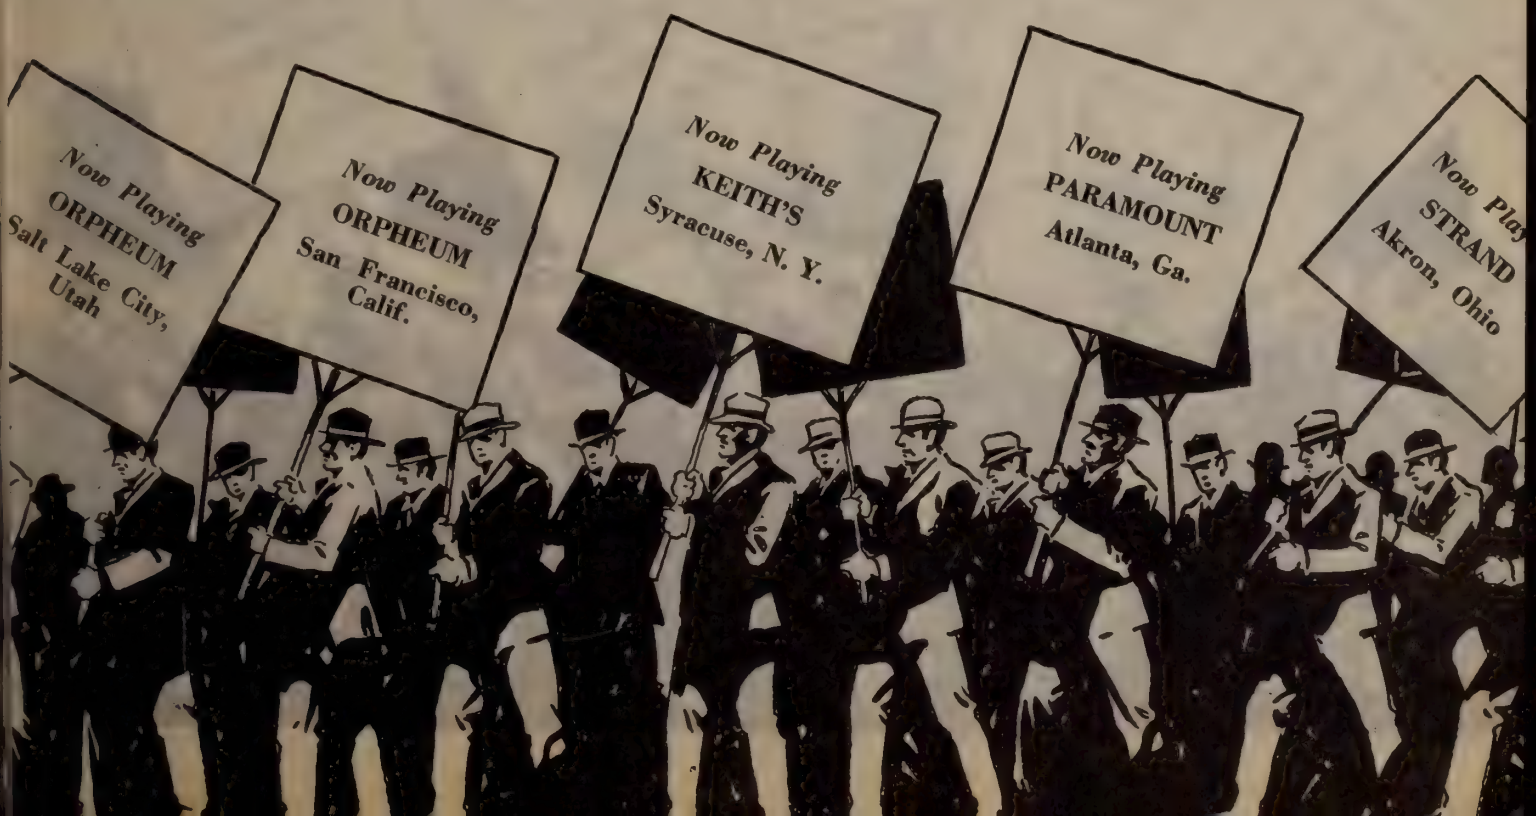
NESS AND CREATIVE ENERGY—THEY ALWAYS WILL

T-BRINGING LEADERSHIP . . . . CARL LAEMMLE

WHEN Universal's elaborate annual announcement book came out in July, its opening pages were the announcement by Carl Laemmle of the thirtieth year of the oldest moving picture company in the business.

These two pages have been reduced to the compass they now occupy here, but their message is more vital to exhibitors and more prophetic even than it was in July.

Read it again in the light of such pictures as Universal is now turning out, "Magnificent Obsession," "Great Impersonation," "Three Kids and a Queen," "Next Time We Love," "Sutter's Gold" and "Show Boat."



"Magnificent Obsession" Breaks

"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" is hitting on high in its first runs. The Music Hall in New York played to capacity during New York's first blizzard and wound up its week with the biggest gross in many weeks. The picture gave utmost satisfaction to the theatre and its patrons.

In Buffalo, the story was the same. A. C. Hyman the manager wired as follows to J. R. Grainger the moment he saw the first show in his Lafayette Theatre:

DEC 19

BUFFALO NY

J R GRAINGER

UNIVERSAL FILM EXCHANGES
ROCKEFELLER CENTER
JUST SCREENED MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION I THINK THIS IS THE GRANDEST PICTURE EVER TURNED OUT BY UNIVERSAL AND I HAVE IN MIND BACK STREET, IMITATION OF LIFE AND OTHER BIG PICTURES WHEN I SAY THIS IS A WOMANS PICTURE AND A WOMANS PICTURE IS A BOX OFFICE PICTURE I CONGRATULATE UNIVERSAL BECAUSE I FEEL SURE THAT MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION WILL RATE HIGH IN THE FIRST TEN PITURES OF THE YEAR REGARDS

A C HAYMAN
LAFAYETTE THEATRE
BUFFALO

$1,000.00 IN CASH PRIZES!
For the best campaign on any Universal Picture during Carl Laemmle's 30th Anniversary Celebration! For details see your Universal Exchange.

And then on January 6th Mr. Hayman wired to Mr. Grainger as follows:

MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION BREAKING ALL HOUSE RECORDS HOLDING OVER AFTER EIGHT DAY RUN FOR ANOTHER WEEK LOOKS THOUGH IT MAY RUN INTO THIRD WEEK STOP HAVE DATED MARGARET SULLAVAN PICTURE FEBRUARY SIXTH

A C HAYMAN

There were a lot of reasons for this wire but most of them are container in the report of Variety.

'OBSESSION' IN BUFFALO
A WOW $16,000

Records in New York and Buffalo

Buffalo, Jan. 7

(Best Exploitation: Shea Houses)

Picture business is emerging currently from the holiday mix-up of scrambled features and split weeks and looks to be okay and better for the present stanza. Special midnight showings helped increase the grosses and keep the figures above the water line. Majority of houses are feeling drop-off since the weekend.

"Magnificent Obsession" at the Lafayette has developed into a heavy sock. All records for the house are going by the boards, the nearest approach being "Sin Takes A Holiday" five years ago at 35c. top. Starting with New Year's Eve show the picture had been doing consistent turnaway business.

LAFAYETTE (Ind.) (3,400: 25) — "Magnificent Obsession" (U). Far and away the outstanding attraction of the town and best the house has had in years: near riot at probably over $16,000. Last week "Could Only Cook" (Col.) did pretty well despite the title and the switch from double feature to single; left little to complain about at over $7,000.

And this followed another smacking week during which the Lafayette, which has a grand week when it pulls Six G's, played another Universal bill. "Three Kids" and "East of Java" rolled up $8,500 according to Motion Picture Daily.

And this wasn't all. Here are words of praise for another Universal picture, this time a short, which played at the Lafayette in November. R. D. Walsh who is the publicity director for the house wrote Mr. Laemmle at Universay City about it. Here is his letter.

My dear Mr. Laemmle:

We have just completed an engagement with your cartoon "Monkey Wretches" on our program.

I personally think that this is one of the finest cartoons I have seen and compares favorably with Disney's "Three Little Pags." Our audience reaction on this short subject was wonderful.

Sincerely,

New Lafayette Theatre

(Signed) R. D. WALSH

Publicity Director

$1,000.00 IN CASH!

Prizes for the best campaign on any Universal Picture during Carl Laemmle's 30th Anniversary Celebration! For details see your Universal Exchange.

NOT SINCE "FRANKENSTEIN".

Not since FRANKENSTEIN have we advised you to use a teaser-trailer in advance of the regular trailer

Because . . .

Only the biggest pictures deserve teaser trailers!

Not until MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION has there been a show that will return at the box office every ounce of extra exploitation pressure you can give it

Use the teaser trailer on MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION

Because . . .

ONLY THE BIGGEST PICTURES DESERVE SPECIAL TEASER TRAILERS!

Sutter's Fort as it is today—It is surrounded by imposing buildings and beautiful parks and lakes in the city of Sacramento. It used to be on the bank of the river and Sutter used to unload his barges directly in the center lower part of this picture. The buildings in the rear are the Thursday Club, the Scottish Rite Temple and the Sutter Hospital.

Historic Fort Erected For "SUTTER'S GOLD"

THE most elaborate setting yet erected for scenes to form a part of "Sutter's Gold," the Universal saga of early California starring Edward Arnold, has just been completed in the San Fernando Valley.

The "set" represents Sutter's Fort at the settlement of New Helvetia in the days of '49, and is an exact reproduction of the structure which still stands at Sacramento, Calif. A heavy wall of adobe surrounds the compound, which covers nearly four acres, and the parapet supports several cannon, duplicates of those secured by General Sutter from the Russians, while the walls are slotted with apertures for firing from within.

Within the enclosure, entered by a single arched gateway, are stables, blacksmith shops, graneries, barbecue pit, well and all necessities for living within the Fort. Rudely fashioned carts and enormous casks of wine are ranged about the courtyard, and Indians sit at old fashioned handlooms, making rugs. A terrace leads to Sutter's mansion, ornately built in Spanish style, with tiled roof and wide arches, and shaded by a gigantic oak tree.

Sutter's Fort as it was in 1846 from an old print which was published in the interesting book "California in 1846"—It has just been made the capitol of New Helvetia, which was Sutter's subtle name for his empire in America.

The settlement of New Helvetia, the first definitely planned white colonization of the Great West, is springing into being on the famous "back ranch." This rudely constructed village, surrounding the fort and reproduced in exact duplication of the original through the medium of historical drawings, was established in 1840 by John Sutter. The settlement consists of a score of thatched dwellings constructed of nondescript materials, since in those days no lumber was at hand. The Los Angeles River flows past the spot on which

(Continued on Page 28)

ANOTHER UNIVERSAL SM

Margaret SULLA

Up to Greater Stardom with "C
What Now?," "The Good Fai
— Now at the Peak of He
URSULA PARROTT'S
JAMES STEWART, RA
Mitchell, Robert McWa
Ronald Cosbey. Dire
Griffith. Produced
A Universal Pictu
Carl Lae

in

NEXT TIM

SH FOR RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL!

VAN

y Yesterday," "Little Man, and "So Red the Rose" Box-Office Career in atest Story! . . . With MILLAND, Grant
, Anna deMetrio,
d by Edward H.
Paul Kohner. presented by ıle.

WE LOVE

"THE INVISIBLE MAN" WAS AN EYE OPENER. THE FANS ARE STILL TALKING ABOUT IT... BUT THE "INVISIBLE MAN" WAS A PIKER COMPARED TO THE ASTOUNDING LUMINOUS MAN IN ...

The INVISIBLE RAY

starring KARLOFF
as the luminous man and BELA LUGOSI
with FRANCES DRAKE, FRANK LAWTON
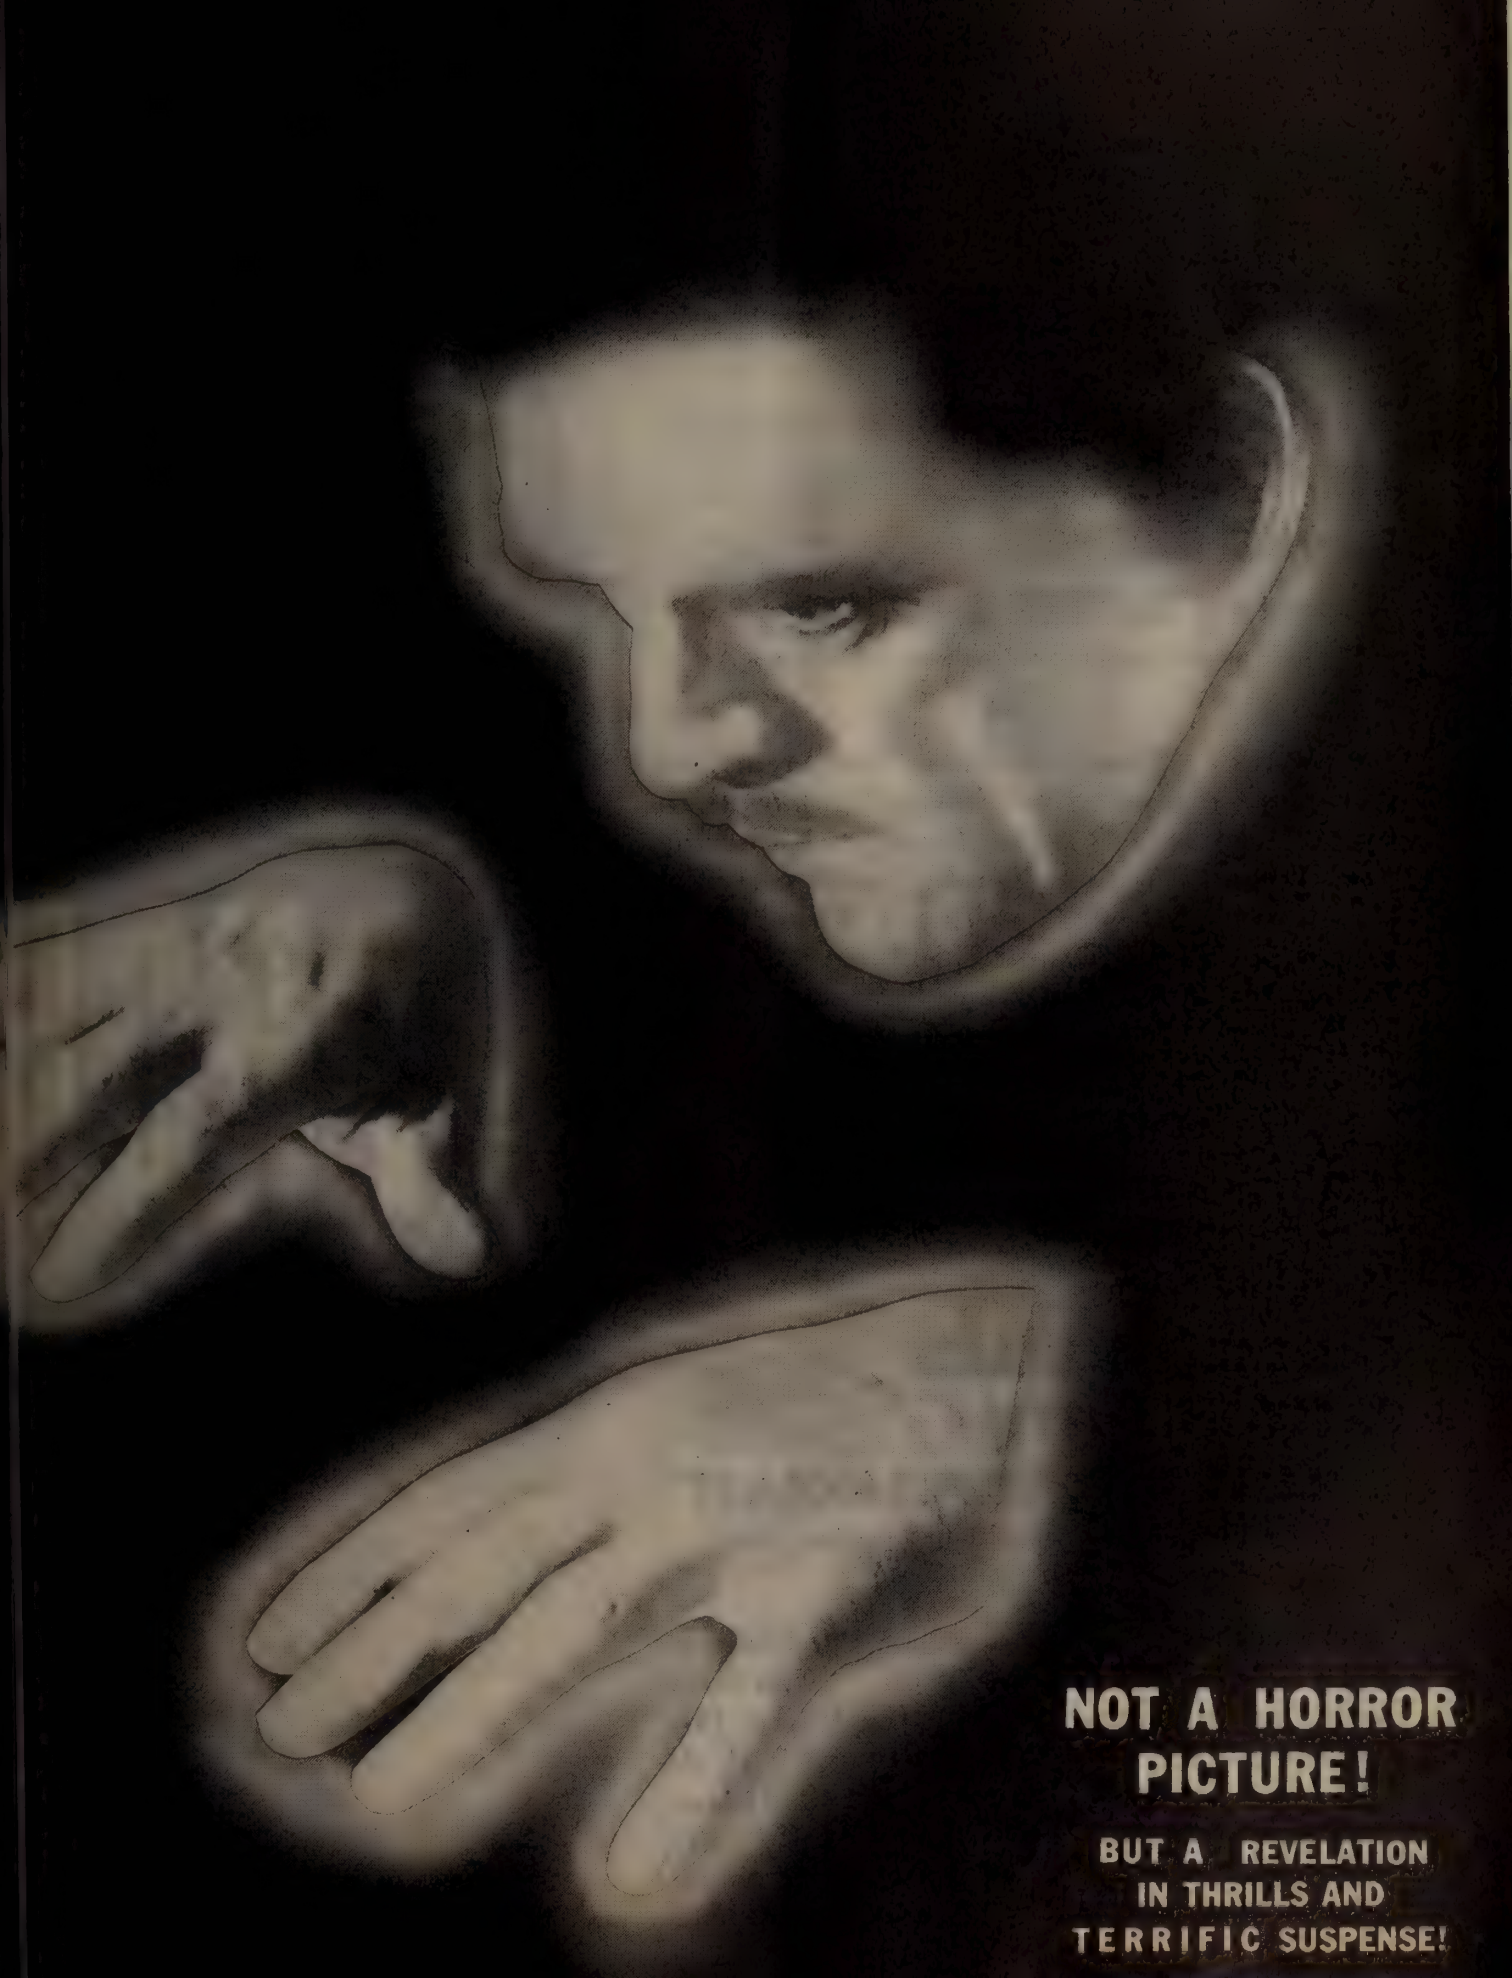
Walter Kingsford, Beulah Bondi, Violet Kemble Cooper, Nydia Westman

Story by Howard Higgin and Douglas Hodges
Screenplay by John Colton
AN EDMUND GRAINGER PRODUCTION
Directed by Lambert Hillyer

A UNIVERSAL PICTURE
PRESENTED BY CARL LAEMMLE



NOT A HORROR PICTURE!
BUT A REVELATION IN THRILLS AND TERRIFIC SUSPENSE!

HERE ARE THE PRODUCTI

....THE HITS YOU'LL SOO

EDWARD ARNOLD*
LEE TRACY
BINNIE BARNES
in "SUTTER'S GOLD"

From the epic novel by Blaise Cendrars

With

Harry Carey • Russell Hopton • Montagu Love C. Henry Gordon • Jim Thorpe • John Miljan Frank Reicher • Mitchell Lewis • Katherine Alexander • William Gould • Olaf Hytten Russ Powell • Henry Cording • Walter Long Robert Warwick • Bryant Washburn • William Janney. Adaptation by Gene Fowler. Directed by James Cruze. An Edmund Grainger Production. Presented by Carl Laemmle.

*By arrangement with B. P. Schulberg

CAROLE LOMBARD
PRESTON FOSTER
in "LOVE BEFORE BREAKFAST"

Faith Baldwin's Cosmopolitan Magazine story

With

Janet Beecher • Cesar Romero • Pat Flaherty Joyce Compton • Diana Gibson • Nan Gray David Worth • Douglas Blockley • Earl Eby Priscilla Lawson • Adamae Vaughan • Nick de Ruiz • Red Christie . . Directed by Walter Lang. Screenplay by Herbert Fields, author of "Fifty Million Frenchmen." An Edmund Grainger Production. Presented by Carl Laemmle.

UNIV

PROD

and

NS BEFORE THE CAMERAS

PLAY.... AS PROMISED!

ERSAL

UCING

IRENE DUNNE
ALLAN JONES
CHARLES WINNINGER
PAUL ROBESON
HELEN MORGAN
HELEN WESTLEY
in "SHOW BOAT" (Version of 1936)

Edna Ferber's Immortal Classic

With

QUEENIE SMITH • SAMMY WHITE • FRANCIS X. MAHONEY • MRS. HATTIE McDANIEL • MARILLYN KNOWLDEN • ARTHUR HOHL • CHARLES MIDDLETON • DONALD COOK • J. FARRELL MacDONALD . . . New music and lyrics by Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein, II . . . A Carl Laemmle, Jr. Production . . . Directed by JAMES WHALE.

JAMES DUNN
SALLY EILERS
PINKY TOMLIN
in "DON'T GET PERSONAL"

With

Spencer Charters • Doris Lloyd • George Cleveland • Lillian Harmer • Charles Coleman Charles Judels • Mike Morita • Tom Dugan Frank Austin • Torben Meyer • Alene Carroll. Produced by David Diamond . . . Directed by William Nigh low!

Paul Robeson Triumphs in "SHOW BOAT"

Paul Robeson, is not only a gentleman and a scholar, but one of the best collegiate athletes of his time, a splendid character and one of the greatest singers of a race noted for its musical genius. In this photograph Paul Robeson is shown singing "Ol' Man River" the way it will be dramatized in Carl Laemmle Junior's production of "Show Boat."

PAUL ROBESON has not only completed his role in "Show Boat" and entrained for London by way of New York but he has shown the entire sound recording end of the moving picture business a few new wrinkles.

If there is any treat in store for movie audiences greater than to hear Paul Robeson sing "Ol' Man River," Hollywood does not know what it is and the world does not know what it is. It is the tops! The whole technical crew of Carl Laemmle Junior's unit was on the "qui vive" to make this recording and the new song that Jerome Kern wrote especially for Robeson the very quintessence of recording art. This is the way the New York Times reports the accomplishment of this high purpose.

"Showboat," is progressing briskly at Universal, Paul Robeson is engaging the studio's attention at the moment so that he may complete his role and leave for his recitals in Albert Hall in London. New equipment has been installed in the Universal recording rooms to take care of his voice, which, it is indicated, will be something new to the screen, differing materially from the sound track of "Sanders of the River." If it may be revealed without threats of libel action, Mr. Robeson has become a crooner.

When he first appeared on the Universal lot, the singer had definite ideas about how his voice should be recorded for "Old Man River" and the other numbers he renders.

First the microphones were set up in the dubbing rom in the usual fa-l shion, some eight or ten feet from the singer. He recorded his numbers with his full voice, the sound mixer taking care of the volume that reached the light valves. After this was done they allowed Robeson to use his own method.

$

$1,000.00 IN CASH!

Prizes for the best campaign on any Universal Picture during Carl Laemmle's 30th Anniversary Celebration! For details see your Universal Exchange.

"Ol' Man River"

You an' me,
We sweat and strain,
Body all achin'
An' racked wid pain,
"Tote dat barge!"
"Lift dat bale",
Git a little drunk
An' you'll land in jail.

✚ ✚ ✚

Another Ethiopian Beat For Universal Newsreel Man

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—Monday Howard Winner, Universal Newsreel cameraman, will leave Addis Ababa on his way to get exclusive films by special arrangement in the Ethiopian front lines. One week ago he obtained explicit permission from Haile Selassie's government to make the trip. Winner is today flying southeastward as far as Nugelli, where he will place his camera equipment on a truck and ride for four more days, until he reaches the site of the Red Cross bombing which occurred two weeks ago, near Dolo on the southern front.

Winner was accompanied by Dr. Junos of the Red Cross.

This is the first time that the Ethiopian government has given any correspondent permission to visit the front lines.

It will require more than a week for Winner to return to Addis Ababa from Dolo. When he gets to Nugelli by truck, the plane will be waiting to hurry him back to the Ethiopian capital. The Universal cameraman is writing the details of his trip for release as a news feature.

STRANGER than FICTION

NO WONDER YOUR PATRONS HAVE FAITH IN THEM! . . . .

They have yet to see one that didn't thrill them, or fascinate them, or wasn't worth the price of admission alone!

So tell them you're booking the newest of these amazing single-reelers! It's ready!

SELL 'EM ACTION LIKE THIS A ND YOU'LL SELL 'EM SEATS!

"Love Before Breakfast" is getting under way splendidly at Universal City as a passage at arms between an actor and an actress who have proven to Hollywood time and again that they not only can dish it out but can take it,— Carole Lombard and Preston Foster. The argument here is over Douglas Blackley, a young football star, who has been chosen by his team to date up Carole Lombard. Preston Foster, who himself has been annoying Carole, objects to this new interference and in a jiffy there is a free for all fight in the coffee shop and a grand mixup, which resulted unfortunately in an honest-to-goodness black eye for the beauteous Carole.

"Love Before Breakfast" is a Riot

A MAGNIFICENT purple "shanty," the color and almost the size of an eggplant, is hanging on one of the most beautiful eyes in Hollywood as result of the funniest movie scene filmed in years. The eye decorated with the "shiner" belongs to Carole Lombard, and she acquired it from her leading man Preston Foster in a coffee-shop battle royal staged in "Love Before Breakfast" which she is making for Universal, from Faith Baldwin's popular tale, "Spinster Dinner."

This scene which is so funny that it left even hardboiled cameramen and electricians helpless with laughter comes about when a college football hero makes too much interference. He gets in the way of Preston Foster who is trying to make a hit with the fair Carole. Carole is annoyed by Foster's attentions. She tries to get away from him. In doing so she walks out of the frying pan into the fire; the fire being Douglas Blackley as a young football star who has been picked by his team to date up Miss Lombard.

The burly Foster objects to this, words get hot and bitter, Blackley's football henchmen rally round and the next moment the stars are seeing stars from a barrage of hooks and swings, Foster fighting against the field. One of his wild swings hits Carole on the eye, someone pulls the electric switch, the patrol wagon clangs up, everybody takes a ride and the next day Carole is in a beauty parlor getting cold cloth and raw beefsteak treatment for her "shiner."

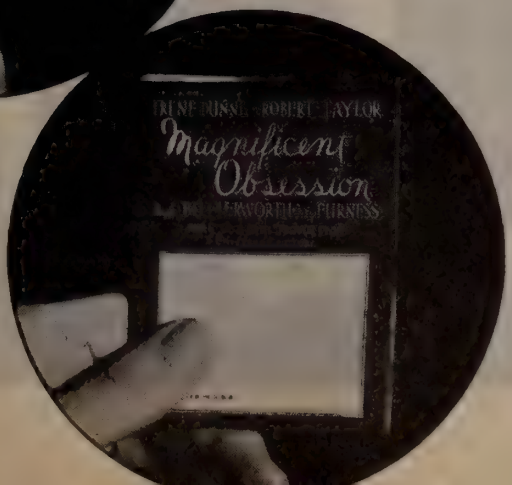
When director Walter Lang prepared to film this scene, he went in for realism. He picked eight of the huskiest football star on the extra list to match against Foster in the free for all. Instructions were to pull no punches. During rehearsals Miss Lombard was kept off the batlefield and the boys just shadowboxed to get the right pace and footwork.

Then Lang called "Camera!" and the fun began. Miss Lombard daringly walked into the fusilade of fists trying to separate the contestants and getting in an occasional slap herself as the script directed. Her black eye came unexpectedly. It was supposed to come merely from the pencil of the makeup man. Then Foster's wild swing accidently connected and no makeup man was needed.

$1,000.00 IN CASH PRIZES!
For the best campaign on any Universal Picture during Carl Laemmle's 30th Anniversary Celebration! For details see your Universal Exchange.

Above: Sample pages showing attractive style of layout, text and illustrations.

Above: Front cover of the booklet-herald.



Right: Back cover, showing space for theatre imprint.

A BOOKLET FOR A HERALD!

You won't have to hand them out to your patrons. They'll GRAB for them! . . . . These booklet-heralds cost more, but they'll bring easily five times the business an ordinary herald will! Order them now!

EAST OF JAVA

EAST OF JAVA

BOXOFFICE RATING

ADVENTURE MELODRAMA... Unusually strong on suspense and action . . . Will hold 'em on the edges of their seats . . . Bickford excellent . will please everywhere.

Universal

72 Minutes

Charles Bickford . . . Leslie Fenton . . .
Elizabeth Young . . . Frank Albertson . . .
Siegfried Rumann . . . Clarence Muse . . .

Directed by George Melford

Excellent action-adventure melodrama! This is the picture during the filming of which Charles Bickford was clawed by a lion, and when one watches some of the amazing scenes in which people are attacked by the animals, it becames evident that there was more fact than publicity to the newspaper stories of Bickford's encounter on the studio lot. For intense, violent action, I doubt that there has been a better picture of this type than "East of Java" for many months. In the early sequences, the story is engrossing enough, but from the time when a terrific typhoon wrecks the ship and casts the central characters upon a deserted island, down to the climax, the action is gripping, shocking and done so realistically that it fascinates the spectators. . . . . This is a natural for action houses. If played a second day, it should do better than the first on word-of-mouth plugging.

Universal's 1936 Baby Stars

Universal has selected its own baby stars for 1936 and Baby! here they are! Jean Rogers, who made such a hit in "Stormy" and "Frank Merriwell" starts the line on the left. Next is Diana Gibson who achieved the lead in one of the very first pictures in which she ever appeared, "Dangerous Waters," starring Jack Holt. Then Priscilla Lawson, the beauty who was discovered by the Universal Newsreel editor and who already has one good role to her credit in "Dangerous Waters" and who is now appearing in "Sutter's Gold." Last is Nan Gray who is playing the role of Sutter's daughter in "Sutter's Gold."

Rob Wagner Praises "Stormy"

(From Rob Wagner's Script)

SOMETIMES a 'B' picture without ballyhoo turns out to be far better than a more highly-touted 'A' production. "Stormy," with a simple, homely story of a boy who is crazy about horses, was meant for a program picture. But its camera portraits of the Arizona desert, the exciting scenes of the wild horses, and the naturalness of the acting lift it into the Three Star (Liberty!) class. Director Louis Friedlander found Big Production stuff waiting for him in the great herds of wild horses—you never saw so many!—and cameraman Dick Fryer certainly did his stuff by Mother Nature.

Noah Beery, Jr., in the title role, carries most of the picture with an ease which does credit to his years. His charm and intelligence give him a far more effective screen personality than a lot of Harry Handsomes. J. Farrell McDonald gives a warm, sympathetic characterization of Stormy's benefactor, while Fred Kohler is a very bad meanie, and Jean Rogers is quite lovely as the heart interest. Ray Hatton chalks up some laughs, and the direction is kept at a nice tempo. The picture is a credit to everyone connected with it, particularly to Producer-Writer Henry MacRae, who managed such a charming picture in spite of a small budget.

✚ ✚ ✚

Historic Fort Erected For "SUTTER'S GOLD"

(Continued from Page 13)

the five-acre village was built, but since it is only a tiny stream at this time of the year, the river was damned below the setting and its well filled banks now give an accurate representation of the Sacramento River as it existed in those early days. A rough pier of driftwood projects into the river, which also carries on its surface a number of cradle-like floats constructed of logs and smaller branches of trees.

Pigs and chickens wander through the "square" formed by the buildings, and the entire scene represents a triumph of the studio's technical departments on its very best.

Principal roles in the scenes filmed in this colorful setting are played by Arnold, Lee Tracy, Binnie Barnes, Harry Carey and Addison Richards, with an average of 200 extra players also appearing each day during the current week. These are mostly frontiersmen, trappers and employees of Sutter, and there are also Indians, Mexicans and Chinese. Of live stock, there are 75 horses, as well as many wide-horned steers, burros, sheep, goats, pigs and chickens. The entire scene is said to give a perfect picture of California just previous to the discovery of gold.

James Cruze is directing "Sutter's Gold," being produced by Edmund Grainger, and the picture is now in its seventh week of filming.

$

$1,000.00 IN CASH!

Prizes for the best campaign on any Universal Picture during Carl Laemmle's 30th Anniversary Celebration! For details see your Universal Exchange.

New Orleans Branch

The following exhibitors in the New Orleans Territory have used Universal Pictures continuously

For 10 Years (Records of this office do not go back further)

G. J. Dureau, Jr. (Buyer) Saenger Theatres Corporation—37 houses in Louisiana, Mississippa, Texas, Alabama, Florida
G. J. Dureau, Jr. (Buyer) Affiliated Theatres Corporation—31 houses in Louisiana and Mississippi.
M. H. Jacobs—United Theatres, Inc.—19 suburban houses in the City of New Orleans, La.

For 5 Years

Frank DeGraauw	Franks	Abbeville, La.
A. Sichtermann	U. S. V. Hospital	Alexandria, La.
V. Currier	Amite	Amite, La.
J. G. McPherson	Strand	Atmore, Ala.
J. G. McPherson	Vaudette	Brewton, Ala.
C. J. Goodwin	Rose	Bastrop, La.
J. Barcelona	Tivoli	Baton Rouge, La.
R. B. Vail	Rex	Bay Minette, Ala.
W. F. Kirkland	Southland	Bossier City, La.
A. J. Outlaw	Crestview	Crestview, Fla.
Mrs. W. Carmichael	Crystal	Crystal Springs, Miss.
J. McMahon	Realart	DeRidder, La.
J. C. Keller	Liberty	Eunice, La.
H. H. Hanna	Evergreen	Evergreen, Ala.
G. Fuller	Playhouse	Fairhope, Ala.
S. N. Jackson	Jackson	Flomaton, Ala.
G. H. Buley	Palm	Foley, Ala.
J. J. Rebstock	Golden Meadow	Golden Meadow, La.
Homer Rogers	U. S. V. Hospital	Gulfport, Miss.
R. Wright	Rosemont	Hartford, Ala.
A. H. Yeomans	Rose	Hattiesburg, Miss.
J. Heard	Milba	Haynesville, La.
Mr. W. Carmichael	Queen	Hazlehurst, Miss.
S. Cittadino	Liberty	Independence, La.
A. Lehmann	Alamo	Jackson, Miss.
A. O. Ott	Atherton	Kentwood, La.
J. Boudreaux	Royal	Labadieville, La.
Paul Blanchet	Royal	Lafayette, La.
W. W. Page, Jr.	Operating theatres in Leesville, Many, Winfield, Coushatta and Tallulah, La.
J. Pizzuto	Lutcher	Lutcher, La.
C. H. King	Pike	Mobile, Ala.
W. Kreisle	Opera House	Morgan City, La.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

W. Fonseca, Ashton; I. Harrelson, Bijou; Alsina Bros., Famous; A. E. Grosz, Cortez; W. Salles, Garden; R. Brunet, Imperial; J. Miller, Lafayette; J. Dicharry, Lincoln; F. Heiderich, Lyceum; M. Hemstreet, Queen; C. Chandler, Roxy.

P. Bylsma	Victory	Napoleonville, La.
Harry Suddath	Amusu	Burrwood, La.
D. B. Fiske	Fiske	Oak Grove, La.
E. Illings	Illings	Ocean Springs, Miss.
Paul Drake	Ideal	Ponchatoula, La.
Abraham Bros.	Happyland	Port Gibson, Miss.
S. McNiell	Majestic	Quitman, Miss.
H. Labat	Raceland and Lockport, La.
W. Harvey Hurt	Princess	Waynesboro, Miss.
W. F. Straub	Palace	Wiggins, Miss.
G. B. Elam	Princess	Winnsboro, La.
B. B. Brown	Sumter	York, Ala.

PAUL H. TESSIER, Mgr.

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
SHOWMANSHIP SECTION
A DIGEST OF THE BEST EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

Comprehensive Campaign Boosts "Magnificent Obsession" To Top Figures at Music Hall!

BACKED by a full week's advance posting throughout the city of both styles of twenty-four sheets, and unusually classy ads in the newspapers, "Magnificent Obsession" got away to a fine start in its World's Premiere engagement at New York's Radio City Music Hall. Radio breaks, special mailing pieces and hundreds of windows tied-in to boost the opening and run the engagement to top box-office figures.

Six weeks in advance of the opening members of the cast broadcast a scene from the production over the coast to coast hook up of the Columbia network during the Campbell's Soup hour. Repeated mention of the engagement was made on the coast to coast program of the Music Hall. Columnists had been carrying lines about the picture for some time and newspaper screen reporters had given it a fine build-up.

The special twenty-four sheet campaign was used to take advantage of the holiday shopping season when both pedestrian and vehicular traffic were at their peaks.

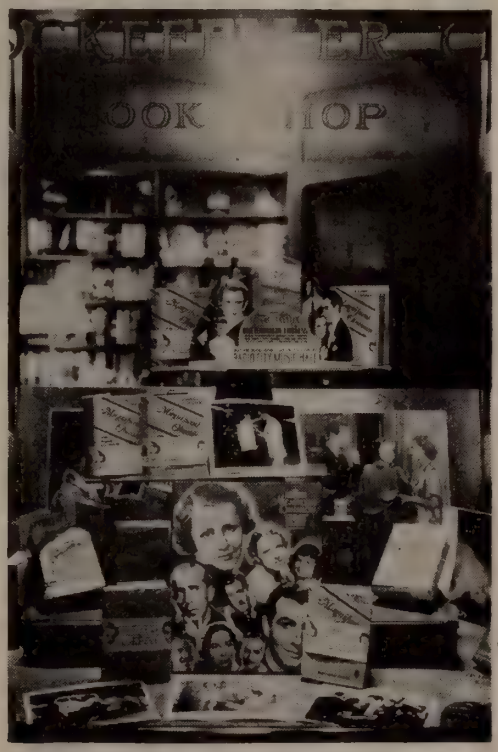
Above — Stand showing the pictorial twenty-four sheet as posted for the Music Hall engagement. Left above: the rainbow 24 sheet shared posting prominence with the pictorial. Right Crowd in the lobby of the Music Hall waiting for seats. Left: The early line-up waiting for doors to open. This scene was duplicated many times as the house filled up. Neither the stormy weather, nor the snowy streets daunted New Yorkers in their determination to see this great picture.

BOOK STORES, LIBRARIES, TELEGRAPH AGENCIES AND MAILMEN SPREAD THE WORD TO MILLIONS!

A TIE-up with Postal Telegraph resulted in two hundred and fifty window displays similar to the one shown below, and 25,000 special envelope stuffers in all New Year greeting wires delivered during the first three days of the run.

Book stores plugged the book with window displays featuring stills, deluxe 14 x 17s, hangers and copies of the book wrapped with the motion picture tie-up strip. Twenty Womrath book shops distributed 25,000 bookmarks in addition to putting displays in all windows. Brentano's, world famous book store, devoted their Fifth Avenue window to a tie-up display of the book and the twenty Doubleday-Doran shops also placed displays in their windows. Libraries found it necessary to provide extra copies of the book to supply the increased demand. The Rockefeller Book Shop window is shown at the right.

Eastman Kodak stores tied-up with the picture installing special displays in all their New York store windows.



Above: Display in Rockefeller Centre Book Shop for Music Hall engagement of "Magnificent Obsession." It is typical of the many other book windows. Left One of the 250 Postal Telegraph windows featuring picture.

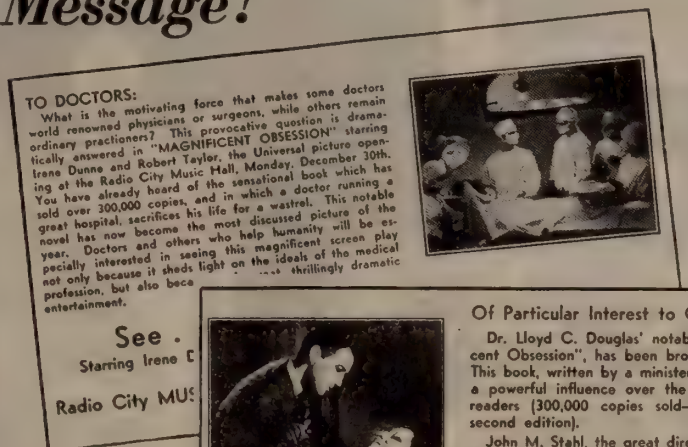
THE post cards illustrated at the right were used to reach a carefully selected list of four thousand ministers and ten thousand doctors with appeals directed particularly to them. A similar card was used to reach nurses in the larger hospitals. Because of the facts that the book was written by a minister, that its hero is a doctor and one of the principal characters is a nurse, these post cards, with their individual appeals, provide excellent campaign material. The copy used was similar to that given in the pressbook. Mats of the illustrations used are available at all Universal Branches.

Reproductions of the ads used in the Music Hall's newspaper campaign will be found on the next page.

Postal's Envelope Stuffer

The special enclosure used by Postal Telegraph in all New Year greeting messages delivered by the company's New York offices during the first three days of the run.

Post Cards Reach Ministers Doctors, Nurses With Special Message!



Mats of Illustration Available at Universal Branches

Of Particular Interest to Clergymen:

Dr. Lloyd C. Douglas' notable novel, "Magnificent Obsession", has been brought to the screen. This book, written by a minister, has been exerting a powerful influence over the lives of its million readers (300,000 copies sold—now in its forty-second edition).

John M. Stahl, the great director who gave you "Back Street", "Only Yesterday" and "Imitation of Life", has made of it a truly magnificent photoplay. Its basic theme of "secretly helping others" beautifully motivates the stirring drama of the unforgettable story. People who see it WILL NEVER BE THE SAME AGAIN.

See "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION"

Starring Irene DUNNE - Robert TAYLOR - Charles Butterworth - Betty Furness

A Universal Picture presented by Carl Laemmle

RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL Starting MONDAY, DECEMBER 30th

Print on Regulation U. S. Gov. Post Cards

RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL ADS

1

RADIO CITY
MUSIC HALL
SHOWPLACE OF THE NATION · ROCKEFELLER CENTER

WORLD PREMIERE

After you see it you will never be quite the same again!

IRENE DUNNE
ROBERT TAYLOR
IN
MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION

From the Notable Novel by Lloyd C. Douglas
with
CHARLES BUTTERWORTH · BETTY FURNESS
A JOHN M. STAHL PRODUCTION · A Universal Picture

Starts TODAY
Doors Open 9:45 A. M.

ON THE GREAT STAGE
"LUCKY VEIN", a sparkling and tuneful frolic in three scenes produced by Leonidoff, settings by Albert Johnson, introducing the Three Wiere Brothers, with Gloria Gilbert, Eddie Miller, Hilda Eckler, Corps de Ballet, the Rockettes and the Glee Club. Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Erno Rapee.

Picture at 9:50, 12:21, 2:56, 5:31, 7:50, 10:20
Stage show at 11:43, 2:14, 4:43, 7:14, 9:43

First Mezzanine Seats Reserved in Advance · COlumbus 5-4838
Rockefeller Center Parking Space, Entrances 48th & 49th Sts.

MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION

2

RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL
SHOWPLACE OF THE NATION · ROCKEFELLER CENTER

WORLD PREMIERE

You will always treasure this deeply moving, beautifully acted, completely thrilling story of love and suffering in this bewildering world of ours.

IRENE DUNNE
ROBERT TAYLOR
IN
MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION

From the Notable Novel by Lloyd C. Douglas with CHARLES BUTTERWORTH · BETTY FURNESS
A John M. Stahl Production · A Universal Picture

Starts TODAY
Doors Open 9:45 A. M.

ON THE GREAT STAGE
"LUCKY VEIN", a sparkling and tuneful frolic in three scenes produced by Leonidoff, settings by Albert Johnson, introducing the Three Wiere Brothers, with Gloria Gilbert, Eddie Miller, Hilda Eckler, Corps de Ballet, the Rockettes and Glee Club. Symphony Orchestra direction of Erno Rapee.

Picture at 9:50, 12:21, 2:56, 5:21, 7:50, 10:20
Stage show at 11:43, 2:14, 4:43, 7:14, 9:43

First Mezzanine Seats Reserved · Phone COlumbus 5-4838
Rockefeller Center Parking Space, 48th and 49th Streets

MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION

3

RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL
SHOWPLACE OF THE NATION · ROCKEFELLER CENTER

WORLD PREMIERE

In this strangely beautiful love story lies a richly emotional experience . . . and a treasure for those who are looking for hope in this confused, weary world.

IRENE DUNNE
ROBERT TAYLOR
IN
MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION

From the Notable Novel by Lloyd C. Douglas
with
CHARLES BUTTERWORTH · BETTY FURNESS
A JOHN M. STAHL PRODUCTION · A Universal Picture

Starts TOMORROW
Doors Open 9:45 A. M.

ON THE GREAT STAGE
"LUCKY VEIN", a sparkling and tuneful frolic in three scenes produced by Leonidoff, settings by Albert Johnson, introducing the Three Wiere Brothers, with Gloria Gilbert, Eddie Miller, Hilda Eckler, Corps de Ballet, Rockettes and Glee Club. Symphony Orchestra under direction Erno Rapee.

Last Times Today, "THE LITTLEST REBEL"
Doors open at 12:00 Noon. Picture at 12:20, 2:56, 5:27, 7:58, 10:29
Stage show at 1:43, 4:09, 6:40, 9:13

First Mezzanine Seats Reserved in Advance · Phone COlumbus 5-4838
Rockefeller Center Parking Space, Entrances on 48th and 49th Sts.

MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION

4

RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL
SHOWPLACE OF THE NATION · ROCKEFELLER CENTER

"Sure to delight feminine picture fans . . . a satisfying emotional experience."
—Bland Johaneson, Mirror

IRENE DUNNE
ROBERT TAYLOR
IN
MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION
with CHARLES BUTTERWORTH · BETTY FURNESS · A John M. Stahl Production · A Universal Picture

ON THE GREAT STAGE
"LUCKY VEIN", Leonidoff's sparkling and tuneful frolic in three scenes with Music Hall cast and augmented ensembles. Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Erno Rapee.

1st Mezz. Reserved · Phone CO. 5-4838

Doors Open 9:45 A. M.
Pictures at 10:00, 12:36, 2:52, 5:32, 7:51, 10:20
Stage Show at 11:38, 2:16, 4:45, 7:34, 9:43

MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION

5

RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL
ROCKEFELLER CENTER

A picture whose haunting beauty and warm humanity will forever leave their mark on your heart. The story of a love that rose above tragedy to glorious happiness.

WORLD PREMIERE, MONDAY, 9:45 A. M.
IRENE DUNNE
ROBERT TAYLOR
IN
MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION

From the Notable Novel by Lloyd C. Douglas with CHARLES BUTTERWORTH BETTY FURNESS · A John M. Stahl Production · A Universal Picture

ON THE GREAT STAGE
"LUCKY VEIN", a sparkling and tuneful frolic in three scenes produced by Leonidoff, settings by Albert Johnson, introducing Three Wiere Brothers, with Gloria Gilbert, Eddie Miller, Hilda Eckler, Corps de Ballet, Rockettes and Glee Club. Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Erno Rapee.

LAST TWO DAYS, Shirley Temple in "THE LITTLEST REBEL". Doors Open 9:30 A. M.
Picture at 9:50, 12:20, 2:25, 5:25, 7:55, 10:25, extra midnight performances at 11:55
Stage Show at 11:03, 1:33, 4:08, 6:38, 9:08 Doors Open Sunday 12:00 Noon

1st Mezz. Seats Reserved in Advance · Phone COlumbus 5-4838

MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION

(1) Two column x 11″ (2) Double column x 7″ (3) Two column x 11″ (4) Double column x 3½″
(5) Three column x 5″

ACES! ACES! ALL ACES!

BRONCO BUSTER: Oswald Cartoon—One of the best black and white cartoons on the market. Give this preferred time. Our house in an uproar.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

TWO LITTLE LAMBS: Oswald Cartoon—Above the average cartoon, concerning the two little lambs who borrow Oswald's aeroplane and do stunts at the air circus.—Harold C. Allison, Baldwin Theatre, Baldwin, Mich. Small town patronage.

TWO LITTLE LAMBS: Oswald Cartoons—A funny little cartoon with good music.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

TOWNE HALL FOLLIES: Oswald Cartoons—My, how these cartoons are improving. This one is a dandy.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

OSWALD
The LUCKY RABBIT

From
UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.
ROCKEFELLER CENTER
NEW YORK CITY

MANAGER
CLIFFORD THEATRE
5937 W ROOSEVELT RD
CHICAGO ILL

Sec. 562 P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
Paid
Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

MOST PUBLICIZED
MOST ADVERTISED
MOST RECOGNIZED of all the newsreels in the world —because it has more scoops to its credit than all the others put together!

UNIVERSAL NEWSREEL

WITH GRAHAM McNAMEE

Printed in U. S. A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
VOL. 37, NO. 25
JAN. 18, 1936

NOTHING LIKE THEM—EVER OR NOW! . . . .

The whole vaudeville bill on the screen—and better than vaudeville at its best. For instance: When you play Universal's new Mentone release, "CARNIVAL TIME," you will get such stars as JEAN SARGENT, JACK FULTON, RUSS BROWN, FRED SANDBORN, SUE HASTING'S MARIONETTES, WASHBOARD SERENADERS, MARY LOUISE HARPER, THE BILTMORETTES AND EUGENIE REED.

MENTONE MUSICALS

Minneapolis Roll of Honor

The following exhibitors in the Minneapolis and Sioux Falls Territories have used Universal Pictures continuously for

EXHIBITOR	THEATRE	TOWN & STATE
	21 Years
Archie Miller	Grand & State	Devils Lake, N. Dak.
	20 Years
John Piller	Piller	Valley City, N. Dak.
Herman Jochims	Palace	Luverne, Minn.
	19 Years
J. P. Reichling	Sun	Emery, S. Dak.
J. L. Anderson	Anjune	Plankinton, S. Dak.
	18 Years
Minnesota Amuse. Co. (Formerly F & R Circuit)		Minneapolis, Minn.
Woempner & Frank	Franklin Amuse. Co.	Minneapolis, Minn.
	17 Years
J. J. Campbell	Wonderland	Minneapolis, Minn.
	15 Years
Ben Friedman	Broadway & Rivoli	Albert Lea, Minn.
Will J. Glaser	Paradise	Faribault, Minn.
S. J. Blackmore	Granada	Duluth, Minn.
E. A. Blackmore	Lake	Duluth, Minn.
J. C. Webster	Playhouse	Harrold, S. Dak.
P. E. Casey	Rex	Kennebec, S. Dak.
Harry Dryer	Bijou & Savoy	Minneapolis, Minn.
	14 Years
Henry Greene	Lake Amuse. Co.	Minneapolis, Minn.
H. A. Rolbiecki	Broadway	Winona, Minn.
George Carisch	Mohawk	St. Paul, Minn.
	12 Years
Theodore Weisman	Crystal	Minneapolis, Minn.
Nathan Fisher	University	Minneapolis, Minn.
Frank Koppelberger	LaCrosse Theatres Co.	LaCrosse, Wisc.
Hessen Brothers	Electric	Osseo, Minn.
Roy McMinn	Capitol	Superior, Wisc.
Louis Rubenstein	Dale & Faust	St. Paul, Minn.
Oliver Rowe	New State	St. Paul, Minn.
W. L. Nicholas	Strand	Fairmont, Minn.
M. L. Marshall	Strand	Bridgewater, S. Dak.
R. R. Duba	Royal	Kimball, S. Dak.
W. F. Mailand	Mascot	Mobridge, S. Dak.

(Continued on Page 25)

THE BOX OFFICE GOES 'ROUN

$ WHOA HO LISTEN TO

VARIETY

Fancy B'way B.O. 'Obsession,' 10 Days, $135,000;

Radio City Music Hall (5,

VARIETY

Auto City Vibrates Beaucoup B. O., 'Obsession' 29G

Behind good exploitation with strong local angle on author of book, 'Magnificent Obsession,' is pulling in a terrific $29,000 this stanza at Fox.

MUSIC and AROUND

HO O-O-O THE GROSSES SING!

VARIETY

'OBSESSION' IN BUFFALO A WOW $16,000

'Magnificent Obsession' at the Lafayette has developed into a heavy sock. All records for the house are going by the boards, the nearest approach being 'Sin Takes a Holiday' five years ago at 35c. top. Starting with New Year's Eve show the picture had been doing consistent turnaway business.

Lafayette (Ind.) (3,406; 25)—'Magnificent Obsession' (U). Far and away the outstanding attraction of the town and the best the house has had in years; near riot at probably over $16,000. Last week.

VARIETY

ST. L. CHEERFUL, 'OBSESH' $14,000,

Estimates for This Week

Fox (F&M) (5,038; 25-35-55)—'Magnificent Obsession' (U). Can't miss $14,000 for a very good week.

NEW LIFE IN

No. 846 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

After vexatious and costly delays—

After meeting obstacles face to face—

After fighting for months to keep our promises to you—

After all this, the Universal hits are now beginning to stream in.

Our releases during the next few months will include one of the most remarkable series of fine box-office pictures ever released in rapid succession by any company in any year.

"Magnificent Obsession" led the parade with a list of first-run bookings which startled the whole trade.

"Invisible Ray" followed on the heels of this superb picture and the first returns indicate that even the huge records established by "Invisible Man" will be smashed.

"Next Time We Love," based on an Ursula Parrott novel, and giving Margaret Sullavan easily the best opportunity of her career will be the next to build up new sensations and new Universal fame.

THE OLD DOG

"Sutter's Gold" will come next and the parts already finished and cut are an indication that Universal will have one of the finest productions of ten years to deliver to you. The sweep of its story and the extravagance of its production values will set a dizzy pace for all producers to follow.

"Show Boat" is going to be one grand and glorious triumph. The superb music of Jerome Kern (including the new numbers for this production); the heart-throb of Arthur Hammerstein II; and the ever-living story written by Edna Ferber—these combined with the beautiful Irene Dunne, the popular Charles Winninger, and the unforgettable voice of Paul Robeson will furnish the very last word in entertainment.

The music of "Showboat" has never been treated with such technical perfection and it will establish a new high in sound-recording.

Universal goes on to glory in spite of hell and high water and rumors and rumblings.

There's new life in the old dog!

Carl Laemmle

THE BOOKING

BY PHONE BY RADIOGI

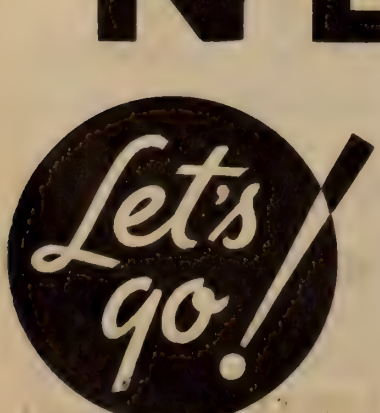
BY SPECIAL DELIVERY A

CLAMORING FOR UNIVERSAL'

"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION"!..MAI

IN URSULA PARROTT'S BES

"NEXT TIME



NEW YORK CITY, MUSIC HALL, Jan. 30 • CHICAGO, PA

BALTIMORE, KEITH'S, Feb. 6 • RICHMOND, CAPIT

ST. LOUIS, FOX, Feb. 7 • KANSAS CITY, TOWER, F

ATLANTA, PARAMOUNT, Feb. 7 • WICHITA, MILL

RUSH IS ON!

AM
BY TELEGRAM
D IN PERSON THEY ARE

BOX-OFFICE SUCCESSOR TO

GARET SULLAVAN

SELLING STORY AND NOVEL

WE LOVE"

, Jan. 30 • WASHINGTON, KEITH'S, Jan. 30 • BUFFALO, LAFAYETTE, Feb. 6
Feb. 6 • PROVIDENCE, ALBEE, Feb. 6 • BOSTON, MEMORIAL, Feb. 7
• SAN FRANCISCO, ORPHEUM, Feb. 7 • SALT LAKE, ORPHEUM, Feb. 7
March 1 • LOS ANGELES, PANTAGES AND HILL STREET, Feb. 5-12

A 2,235,877 Cover

THE beautiful colored cover of New York's Sunday News for December was Irene Dunne in "Magnificent Obsession." The illustration above is the black and white reproduction of this colored cover, which was photographed especially for the News by Eldo Mario Ermini, the leading art photographer of Italy. Ermini came to this country several years ago to make camera studies of notable American personalities. He has been decorated by King Victor Emanuel for his outstanding work in portraiture, color and moving picture photography.

The Sunday News has a circulation of 2,235,877.

The following week the magazine section of the Sunday Mirror also had a colored photograph of Irene Dunne.

BEN JACKSEN-
HAROLD LEYTON, Inc.
9168 SUNSET BOULEVARD
LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA
January 9, 1936

My dear Mr. Laemmle:

Please accept my sincerest congratulations upon Universal's latest picture, "THE MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION." It is one of the most beautiful things I have ever seen on the screen. To me it is a magnificent objective for all studios to emulate.

With very best wishes to you always, I am

Very sincerely yours,
(Signed) EDGAR MacGREGOR

What Variety Says

When one picture release dominates the four reporting pages in Variety, as "Magnificent Obsession" does in the weekly Variety of January 15, it is a matter that should concern every exhibitor in the United States. After all, the thing that exhibit-

"Obsession" Strong At $25,000.00

Los Angeles, Jan. 14.

Pantages (Pan) (2,700; 25-35-40)—"Magnificent Obsession" (U). With two previews thrown in on first three nights, this one, though not needing that aid, is headed for close to $13,000. on first week. Last week "I Dream" (RK) ran to expected pace and showed big profit with windup of $10,500.

RKO (2,950; 25-35-40-55)—"Magnificent Obsession" (U). Though running bit behind Pantages on this one, business is unusually heavy, and it's headed for the $12,000. mark. Last week "I Dream" (RKO) little shy of what was expected, but no complaints at $9,400.

"Obsesh", 13 G, Frisco OK

San Francisco, JJan. 14.

Orpheum (F&M) (2,440; 30-35-40) "Obsession" (U). Looks like a smash week for this house; ought to hit better than $13,000. Last week (2d) "Could Only Cook" (Col.) about $5,000.

Mpls. Orph. Ups 40c to 55c for 'Obsesh" and They Love It, $14,000

Minneapolis, Jan. 14.

(Best Exploitation: Minn. Orph.)

A pair of sock films, "Magnificent Obsession" and "Tale of Two Cities," is greasing the turnstiles and putting a punch into loop box-office statements currently. These two pictures are copping most of the downtown takings and lifting the theatre housing them, the Orpheum and Minnesota, well above the profit line.

For the first time the Orpheum has upped its top from 40c to 55c for a screen offering sans stage entertainment and the public response to "Obsession" seems to justify the procedure.

The Orpheum and Minnesota shared exploitation honors. The former put out 50 24-sheets and 5,000 bookmarks in libraries and book stores, distributed 10,000 Irene Dunne photos, sent telegrams to clubs and society leaders and had 20 special window displays and various tieups.

Orpheum (Singer) (2,890; 25-35-55) "Magnificent Obsession" (U)—Swell exploitation campaign and picture's own superlative merits bringing 'em in, plenty of feminine patronage for this one and advanced prices not keeping 'em away, en route to fine $14,000.

Boston Evening Transcript
BOSTON MASS.

Jan. 11, 1935

My Dear Mr. Laemmle:

May I extend through your my congratulations to whoever was responsible for the press book for 'Magnificent Obsession." It is the most compact, convenient and attractive thing of the kind that I have seen.

Sincerely yours,

(Signed) Edwin F. Melvin
Motion Picture Editor

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, N. Y. City
Universal Pictures Corp.
Copyrighted 1935
(All Rights Reserved)
JAN. 18, 1936
Vol. 37 No. 25

'About Magnificent Obsession"

ors are interested in, so far as pictures are concerned, is making money with them. "Magnificent Obsession," as anyone can see from these reports on this page, is making money for exhibitors hand over fist. Don't miss this money making picture.

"Obsesh" "Cities" 2 H.O. In St. Louis A Record

St. Louis, Jan. 14.

It's been ages since two St. Louis cinema palaces had celluloid features of sufficient b.o. at same time to hold 'em over for a second week but that is situation here this week, Fox, F & M's big first runner in midtown, is showing "Obsession" for second week to swell business and downtown Loew's with opening hour advanced to $:30 A. M. is still packing 'em in for "Tale of Two Cities," held over.

Fox (F & M) (5,038; 25-35-55)—"Magnificent Obsession" (U) (2nd week). First week was a surprise to town and word of mouth got b. o. $17,600 to count; second week is still going strong and should finish for a nice $11,000.

"Obsession" At $20,000 In Hub Magnificent

Boston, Jan. 14.

For straight film strength "Magnificent Obsession" at the Keith Memorial seems to have edge on town at $20,000 pace. Getting ace play from women on matinees, but plenty femmes are dragging in escorts for night shows to swell the take to that very satisfactory figure.

Keith Memorial (RKO) (2,900; 25-35-50)—"Magnificent Obsession" (U). Very attractive here and heading towards dandy $20,000.

$1,000.00 IN CASH PRIZES!

For the best campaign on any Universal Picture during Carl Laemmle's 30th Anniversary Celebration! For details see your Universal Exchange.

Pitsbg's $10,000 "Obsession" Is Magnif

Pittsburgh, Jan. 14.

"Magnificent Obsession" got away to great Sunday opening at Alvin, with smash proportions indicated, and certain to work into h. o. For opening session, pretty close to $10,000, best here in months, with or without stage shows, looked for and with breaks may hit beyond that.

Alvin promoted brisk campaign on "Magnificent Obsession," selling it wisely from tear-jerking angle and started getting customers conscious of it weeks ahead of time. Sold on the idea of being another "Back Street" and "Imitation of Life," both of which did swell here in past.

Alvin (Harris) (2,000; 25-35-40)—"Magnificent Obsession" (U). Got away on Sunday, first time house has had Sunday opening, and started out like a smash. Continued vigorous trade indicates at least $10,000, great and better than some weeks in which house has had stage show as well. That also means probably h. o.

K. C.'s B. O. Bally, "Obsesh" $12,000

Kansas City, Jan. 14.

Tower (Rewot) (2,200; 25-35) —"Obsession" (U) and "Black and White Revue." Management went on the billboards for the picture, and gave it extra newspaper space; better than normal, headed for near $12,000, big.

"Obsession" $17,500

Cincinnati, Jan. 14.

(Best Exploitation Albee)

Only two fresh releases at the major stands currently, and they're real b. o. "Magnificent Obsession" at the Albee, is the acer at a $17,500 tempo.

Publicity splurge of the week on "Obsession," the campaign including extra ad space.

Albee (RKO) (1,600; 35-42)—"Magnificent Obsession" (U). Irene Dunne the heavy noise, ticketed for $17,500. Fine.

"Obsession" $9,500

Baltimore, Jan. 14.

Keith's (Schanberger) (2,500; 15-25-30-35-40)—"Obsession" (U). A veritable blaze at the b. o. for the best week house has had all this season. Smashing $9,500 and will hold on for a while.

"Obsesh" $8,300, Indpls.

Indianapolis, Jan. 14.

The Indiana is in the money on "Magnificent Obsession" with a probable take of $8,300.

Indiana (Katz-Feld) (3,100; 25-40) —"Magnificent Obsession" (U). Word of mouth and reviews helping this one build along to a very good $8,300.

RIVOLI THEATRE
430 N. ST. CLAIR STREET
TOLEDO, OHIO

Mr. Dave Miller,
Universal Film Exchange,
Cleveland, Ohio.

Dear Friend Dave:

"Magnificent Obsession" should stand out as the leading picture of the year, for it has an appeal that you will not find in one out of a thousand pictures.

This letter sounds like I am trying to sell you the picture, but honestly, I think it one of the best I ever saw.

Sincerely yours,
(Signed) Howard Feigley, Mgr.

One of the most dramatic and poignant scenes ever portrayed by an author and one of the high spots of Edna Ferber's "Show Boat." The sheriff, Vallon (Charles Middleton), is accusing Julie (Helen Morgan) of having negro blood, and Steve (Donald Cook) of having married a girl with negro blood. Steve lies like a trooper and says that he has negro blood himself. In the background are Parthenia (Helen Westley), Magnolia (Irene Dunne), and Captain Andy (Charles Winninger).

Paul Robeson Tells How He Recor

By Edward Eustace

PAUL ROBESON, the giant negro actor who sings baritone and looks it, is back from his first trip to Universal City with nothing but good words for the cinema city. He went there six weeks ago to sing his famous part of Joe, the roustabout, in Universal's talkie version of Edna Ferber's "Show Boat," starring Irene Dunne. Now although filming is still going on, his role is finished and he is on his way to a European concert tour which will keep him occupied till late spring but he wants to go back to Hollywood as soon as it can be arranged. He likes everything about the place. He finds movie acting and singing the most stimulating of all the art forms he has tried and that includes playing "Emperor Jones" for Eugene O'Neill and "Othello" for the British aristocracy.

Robeson and his charming, diminutive wife, dropped into the Universal home office in Rockefeller Center to meet film executives and the press at the close of their short New York stop en route to England. He is one of the few mortals large enough to look at home among the towering Center monoliths. The average human hand disappears without trace into his gargantuan handshake. but his grip is surprisingly light and gentle. He autographs photos in a tiny copperplate script. He is very animated and entirely without self consciousness. He acted and sang as he explained how he played his "Show Boat" role for director James Whale, his enormous hands gesticulating and fingers counting the beat of the song, while thrilled stenographers peeped through the publicity office door.

This impromptu concert which would have cost $4.40 a ticket at Carnegie Hall was staged to explain how Robeson, a comparative novice in films was able to astonish Universal technicians by synchronizing his songs perfectly with the action of his "Show Boat" scenes. This is not the simple marvel is may appear to be. Singing and acting in a movie scene are not done at the same time. The songs that Robeson will sing on the screen in the completed picture, were sung by him in a little sound room, a mile from the film showboat Cotton Blossom, floating on the Los Angeles River which is doubling for the Father of Waters. It was days later when Robeson

Paul Robeson in all the glory of the major-domo of "Show Boat" in Universal's 1936 Version.

Next Week: "NEXT TIME WE LOVE"

NEXT week's Universal Weekly will be devoted largely to that great production, "Next Time We Love." All reports from the coast are to the effect that "Next Time We Love" is Margaret Sullavan's most interesting and most moving picture. Not since "Only Yesterday" has she been given a story and a role which afforded such a unique opportunity for acting. Furthermore, this remarkable actress who burst on the world as a new genius for the films, has developed in every way as an actress, a woman and a screen star. By diligent application to the mechanics of moving pictures, Miss Sullavan, who insists on finding out everything about her life work for herself, has discovered more tricks of the trade of movie acting than most cameramen and directors will ever know. When she was dissatisfied with some of the rushes in this picture, she insisted on Edward H. Griffith re-shooting them, and she knew exactly what was the matter and how to fix it.

Watch next week's Weekly for full details of "Next Time We Love."

Margaret Sullavan and James Stewart in the final scenes of Ursula Parrott's "Next Time We Love."

ed for "Show Boat" boarded the showboat and acted the scenes that go with the songs. When the music was fitted or "dubbed" in afterward, it was found that Robeson had timed his songs to the action perfectly, sight unseen and ear unheard.

This was done partly by plan, partly by natural instinct for timing, the actor explained.

"I first studied the entire script all the way through," he said,' before we started shooting at all. Then each time I sang, I talked it over with Whale what the action called for me to do while I was singing. Then I sang with that in my mind. The rest was counting out the beat to match this mental acting and how well you do that depends on your natural sense of rythm."

To illustrate, he sang a bar from "Old Man River" as it is commonly sung in a rigid, unvarying rythm. Then he sang it as he interprets it. It sounded very different but he counted the quantities on his fingers, showing his version was in exact time with the orthodox score. He sang "Tote dat barge; lift dat bale" acting out the lyrics to show how action lengthens and shortens the notes. Following this system at the studio he sang one song in the film twenty-five times for the sound track and sang it the same every time. He sang at every distance from two feet from the microphone to ten feet from it. The tests proved his voice came over best at the two foot distance and he sang there throughout "Show Boat."

Robeson sang when he acted his scenes on the Cotton Blossom also, but these notes will never be heard on the screen.

"Too bad, too," he chuckled, "Because many a time I think I sang better right there on the showboat stage than I did in the studio."

Synchronizing was again the reason for wasting these golden notes on a microphoneless set. Many singers, Robeson explained, pantomime their songs when they are acting without the microphone, just moving their lips soundlessly. These lip movements always lack something in timing and realistic expression when fitted to the tunes and that is why Robeson sings microphone or no microphone.

He enjoyed working with Jerome Kern who came to Hollywood to supervise the music and found James Whale even more enjoyable. An honor student at Rutgers as well as an All American football star, Robeson was astonished at Whales' knowledge of American history.

"Whale told me that all educated Englishmen were deeply interested in American history up to the period around the Civil War in which "Show Boat" is laid," said the actor. "The reason for this is that they believe we patterned our life on the English model up to then, especially the Southern planters and it wasn't till later that any change set in."

(See Page 27)

PS-S-ST!

DON'T PER'S

SH-H-H!

GET ONAL

is the swell, grand title of the new comedy starring

JAMES DUNN + SALLY EILERS with PINKY TOMLIN

With Spencer Charters • Doris Lloyd • George Cleveland • Lillian Harmer • Charles Coleman • Charles Judels • Mike Morita • Tom Dugan • Frank Austin • Torben Meyer • Alene Carroll. Produced by David Diamond . . . Directed by William Nigh.

A Universal Picture.

CHECK these hits NOW!

EDWARD ARNOLD*
in "SUTTER'S GOLD"

From the epic novel by Blaise Cendrars

With LEE TRACY, BINNIE BARNES, Katherine Alexander, Harry Carey, Montagu Love, C. Henry Gordon, John Miljan, Mitchell Lewis, William Gould, Jim Thorpe, Addison Richards, Olaf Hytten, Russ Powell, Henry Cording, Walter Long, Gaston Glass, Robert Warwick, Billy Gilbert, Bryant Washburn, Morgan Wallace, William Janney. Adaptation by Gene Fowler. Directed by James Cruze. An Edmund Grainger Production. Presented by Carl Laemmle.

*By arrangement with B. P. Schulberg

BELA LUGOSI and JANE WYATT in "DRACULA'S DAUGHTER"

With Edward Van Sloan (of the original "Dracula" cast). Screenplay by R. C. Sherriff. Directed by A. Edward Sutherland. Produced by E. M. Asher. Presented by Carl Laemmle.

IRENE DUNNE and ALLAN JONES

In Edna Ferber's Immortal Classic

"SHOW BOAT" (Version of 1936)

With PAUL ROBESON, CHARLES WINNINGER, HELEN MORGAN, HELEN WESTLEY, QUEENIE SMITH, SAMMY WHITE, Donald Cook, Francis X. Mahoney, Hattie McDaniel, Marilyn Knowlden, Arthur Hohl, Charles Middleton, J. Farrell MacDonald . . . New music and lyrics by Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein II . . . A Carl Laemmle, Jr. Production. Directed by JAMES WHALE. Presented by Carl Laemmle.

THE WHOLE CITY IS AT HIS

Catch him at all costs! He's the LUMINOUS MAN with the

"INVISIBLE RAY"

starring K A R L O F F
and B E L A L U G O S I with
FRANCES DRAKE, FRANK LAWTON
Walter Kingsford, Beulah Bondi, Violet
Kemble Cooper, Nydia Westman
Story by Howard Higgin and Douglas Hodges
Screenplay by John Colton
AN EDMUND GRAINGER PRODUCTION
Directed by Lambert Hillyer

A UNIVERSAL PICTURE
PRESENTED BY CARL LAEMMLE

NOT A HORROR PICTURE!
BUT A REVELATION IN THRILLS AND TERRIFIC SUSPENSE!

ERCY!
$1,000.00 IN CASH!
Prizes for the best campaign on any Universal Picture during Carl Laemmle's 30th Anniversary Celebration! For details see your Universal Exchange.

BOX OFFICES WILL CRY FOR IT!

Carole LOMBARD

In Faith Baldwin's Cosmopolitan Magazine Story

"LOVE BEFORE BREAKFAST"

With PRESTON FOSTER, Janet Beecher, Cesar Romero, Pat Flaherty, Joyce Compton, Diana Gibson, Nan Gray, David Worth, Douglas Blockley, Earl Eby, Priscilla Lawson, Adamae Vaughan, Nick de Ruiz. Red Christie. Directed by Walter Lang. Screenplay by Herbert Fields. author of "Fifty Million Frenchmen." Presented by Carl Laemmle. An Edmund Grainger Production.

A UNIVERSAL PICTURE

"Don't Get Personal," A Laugh Sock

The first still of "Don't Get Personal" with the reunited Sally Eilers-Jimmy Dunn team starring.

The Eilers-Dunn-Pinky Tomlin Feature which William Nigh Has Just Completed at Universal City Is Regarded as One of the Finest Comedy - Dramas Turned Out there This Year. It Is Chock-Full of Laughs and Surprises.

"DON'T GET PERSONALL," the picture which re-unites that popular team, Jimmy Dunn and Sally Eilers, with Pinky Tomlin and his guitar thrown in, has just been completed at Universal City by William Nigh. The underground wireless, which seldom is wrong, rates this picture very high, indeed. Hollywood is getting to regard William Nigh as a sure-fire director who wastes no time, who gets the utmost out of a story and who can be relied upon for maximum results. He's been that way for years, but Hollywood is just discovering it.

In "Don't Get Personal" he had a lot of good material to work with. In the first place, there was a story by William Thiele and Edmund L. Hartman, which fairly sizzled with interesting situations and breath-taking surprises. Then he had Sally Eilers and Jimmy Dunn, who made such box-office records in "Bad Girl" and "Dance Team" and he had the inimitable Pinky Tomlin and three of his songs, with a unique song-writing contest which is likely to be mighty interesting exploitation angle in connection with the picture. All these elements were fused beautifully into a fast-moving, wise-cracking, side-splitting comedy which is guaranteed to jerk any audience up on its hind legs with a finale which could never be predicted.

The cast of "Don't Get Personal" includes such clever players as Spencer Charters, George Cleveland, Lillian Harmer, Doris Lloyd, George Meeker and Charles Coleman.

La Cava to Direct William Powell in Universal's "My Man Godfrey"

UNIVERSAL has signed clever Gregory LaCava to direct its William Powell production, "My Man Godfrey." Present engagements of the star have been arranged to permit his starting this picture at Universal City on March 2nd. "My Man Godfrey" is a story by Eric Hatch, which was published as a novel by Little Brown in October. It had previously run as a Liberty serial under the title "Irene, The Stubborn Girl." However, Universal purchased the picture before it had been published in either medium under the title "1011 Fifth."

Zoe Akins, author of "The Greeks Had A Word For It" made the adaptation. Gregory LaCava has recently directed such pictures as "Private Worlds," "She Married Her Boss," "Gallant Lady," and "Affairs of Cellini."

Though "My Man Godfrey" is essentially a comedy and one of the funniest in years it offers such novel situations and so much real drama that it promises to be the best Powell subject yet. The role of Irene is also a very fat role which will do much to advance the popularity of the one who plays it. Binnie Barnes would be the type.

$1,000.00 IN CASH!
Prizes for the best campaign on any Universal Picture during Carl Laemmle's 30th Anniversary Celebration! For details see your Universal Exchange.

EDWARD ARNOLD HURT in "SUTTER'S GOLD" SCENE

GENERAL JOHN SUTTER tried to halt the California Gold Rush the other day and as a result Edward Arnold is limping about on a cane. Arnold, who has the title role in Universal's "Sutter's Gold," now in its sixth week of production, received painful injuries and narrowly escaped being trampled to death when he was flung under the hooves of his horse in a riot scene staged at the gate of the reproduction of Sutter's Fort which has been built on the Universal lot. Although terribly bruised and battered, X-Ray photographs revealed no broken bones in Arnold's body, but everyone was badly scared by the star's close call, including director James Cruze who was personally in charge of filming the sequence.

The scene which almost put a fatal end to production on "Sutter's Gold" required Arnold as Sutter to gallop to the gate of the Fort and try to halt the stampede of his workers for the new gold fields which have been opened on his enormous land holdings. The original gold nugget has been discovered by Sutter's own mill foreman, John Marshall, but the secret has leaked out and now all the world is headed for the Golden Gate. The great rush of 1849 is on. Sutter's men hurl him aside, drag him from his horse, beat him insensible when he tries to stop them from reaching the new El Dorado.

When the horde of extras and character men hauled Arnold to the ground, the blooded horse he was riding took fright. As the star lay helpless the excited animal pranced back over his body, the steel shod hooves crashing against his legs and body. He managed to crawl to safety as horse wranglers subdued the frightened steed. That ended shooting for the day, while Arnold rested and had his wounds dressed.

Next day, he was up and about heavily bandaged. With the assistance of Lee Tracy and a cane he was able to hobble to the projection room and look at the rushes of his accident. Then it was seen how narrow his escape had been. The cameraman George Robinson had kept on grinding and actually got one closeup, (Scene 417-1) showing Arnold's face convulsed with real pain as the steel shoes batter him. This scene and the other, (416-1) showing the complete trampling will be part of the picture when it is released.

Edward Arnold, photographed a few minutes before he was severely injured in the Gold Rush scenes.

Part of the village of New Helvetia which General John Sutter built on the Sacramento River here is reproduced on the Los Angeles River on the back lot at Universal City for scenes in "Sutter's Gold."

Carl Laemmle presents

JACK HOLT

in a Universal Adventure Sensation

DANGEROU

With ROBERT ARMSTRONG, GRACE BRADLEY, DIANA GIBSON, CHARLIE MURRAY, Ed Gargan, Walter Miller, Willard Robertson, Guy Usher, Dewey Robinson. Based on the story "Glory Hole" by Theodore Reeves. Produced by Fred S. Meyer and directed by Lambert Hillyer.

Entertainment!

S WATERS

Completing "Love Before Breakfast"

Andre Beranger, in the role of beautician, recommends treatment for Carole Lombard's black eye. The eye was a perfectly genuine article, too, and not put on by the make-up man. It was acquired in a hot scene in her picture, "Love Before Breakfast." See last week's Universal Weekly for the gay details.

SO utterly sophisticated and yet so unobjectionable and funny is "Love Before Breakfast" that a New York stage producer, William A. Brady, has already bought the play rights from Faith Baldwin. The unusual spectacle of a play and a picture from the same novel playing side by side may be the result. There is still a week of shooting to be done at Universal City before it will be laughingly finished.

The original novel is by Faith Baldwin and ran as a novelette, "Spinster Dinner," in Cosmopolitan Magazine. Its screenplay is by Herbert Fields. well known Broadway playwright, with additional dialogue by Gertrude Purcell. It was about this picture that Carole Lombard took so long to make up her mind and caused so many changes of script writers, directors, costumers, electricians and cinematographers. When it was all ironed out, however, the result was a script that was so funny that the whole of Universal studio is in uproars about it.

The cast in support of Carole Lombard includes Preston Foster, Janet Beecher, Cesar Romero, Betty Lawford, Richard Carle, Joyce Compton, Andre Beranger, John King and Bert Roach and is being made at Universal City under the direction of Walter Lang.

The plot revolves about a spritely modern young lady who knew how to protect herself in the clinches, no matter how tough the going got, and who finally was forced to make up her mind by a man who was even more sophisticated and handy in the verbal infighting than she was.

Will Certainly Get Academy Award

REGENT-STATE CORPORATION

REGENT STATE — Phil Chakeres Director and General Manager — FAIRBANKS MAJESTIC

Springfield, Ohio.

Mr. J. Weil, Director of Exploitation,
Universal Pictures Corp.,
New York, N. Y.
Dear Mr. Weil:

May I at this time congratulate first Mr. Carl Laemmle for producing a sure winner for the Academy Award for 1936. In "Magnificent Obsession" he has produced a picture that certainly will appeal to all classes.

Congratulations are also in order for you too, for the splendid press book facilities you have provided us to put this picture over.

In my particular city I am taking advantage of the fact that the author, Mr. L. C. Douglas, was a graduate of Wittenberg college, class of 1908, a local institution. I have the cooperation of the college and faculty in helping put this picture over. Hoping that Universal may continue to produce just as big and successful pictures in the coming year as she has in the past,

With kindest personal regards,

Very truly yours,
(Signed) Michael H. Chakeres

JACK HOLT TO STAR IN "INTERNATIONAL TEAM"

JACK HOLT will start on January 20th on his third Universal production. It is entitled "International Team," a spy story with a polo background, by F. Van Wyck Mason. The screenplay is by Scott Darling and George Waggner. "International Team" will be directed by Nick Grinde. Jack Holt's second picture, "Dangerous Waters," was completed last week at Universal City and will be released nationally during the week of February 24th.

Universal Newsreel Gets Exclusive War Shots

This week's Variety tells how Haile Selassie was dared into allowing Howard Winner to take the only front line shots ever permitted. This is Variety's story:

A DARE flung at Haile Selassie's government got the first newsreel cameraman to the Ethiopian front. Howard Winner, Universal cameraman, is now in Dolo, near Italian Somaliland, recently reported bombed by Italian aviators. The cryptic question, 'How do we know the Italians are bombing these hospitals?' transmitted to Haile Selassie by Charles Ford, U's newsreel editor, prompted the Ethiopian government to allow the newsreel grinder to visit the front.

He was flown from Addis Ababa, far to the north of Dolo, in the government's lone plane. Not known just what pictures Winner has obtained thus far, but significance of his visit is indicated by London Daily Mail offer, already made to Universal for 20c per word for first-hand story by newsreel cameraman. No deal made thus far by U, but company plans to sell story (probably to the N. Y. Times).

Winner, worn out with routine picture-taking in and about Addis Ababa, was getting ready to leave for Aden, in Arabia, to shoot the concentration of 35,000 British troops there when Emperor Selassie granted permission for him to visit the southern front. It's first time any newsreel cameraman got up to the Ethiopian front. No other cameraman or newspaper correspondent went with Winner.

New Mentone Is "Carnival Time"

MENTONE Productions has just completed another of its two-reel musicals for Universal release on January 22nd. This one is entitled "Carnival Time. It has a cast including Jean Sargent, Jack Fulton, Russ Brown, Fred Sandborn, Sue Hastings' Marionettes, Washboard Serenaders, Mary Louise Harper, Biltmorettes and Eugenie Reed.

Roll of Honor (Continued from Page 1)

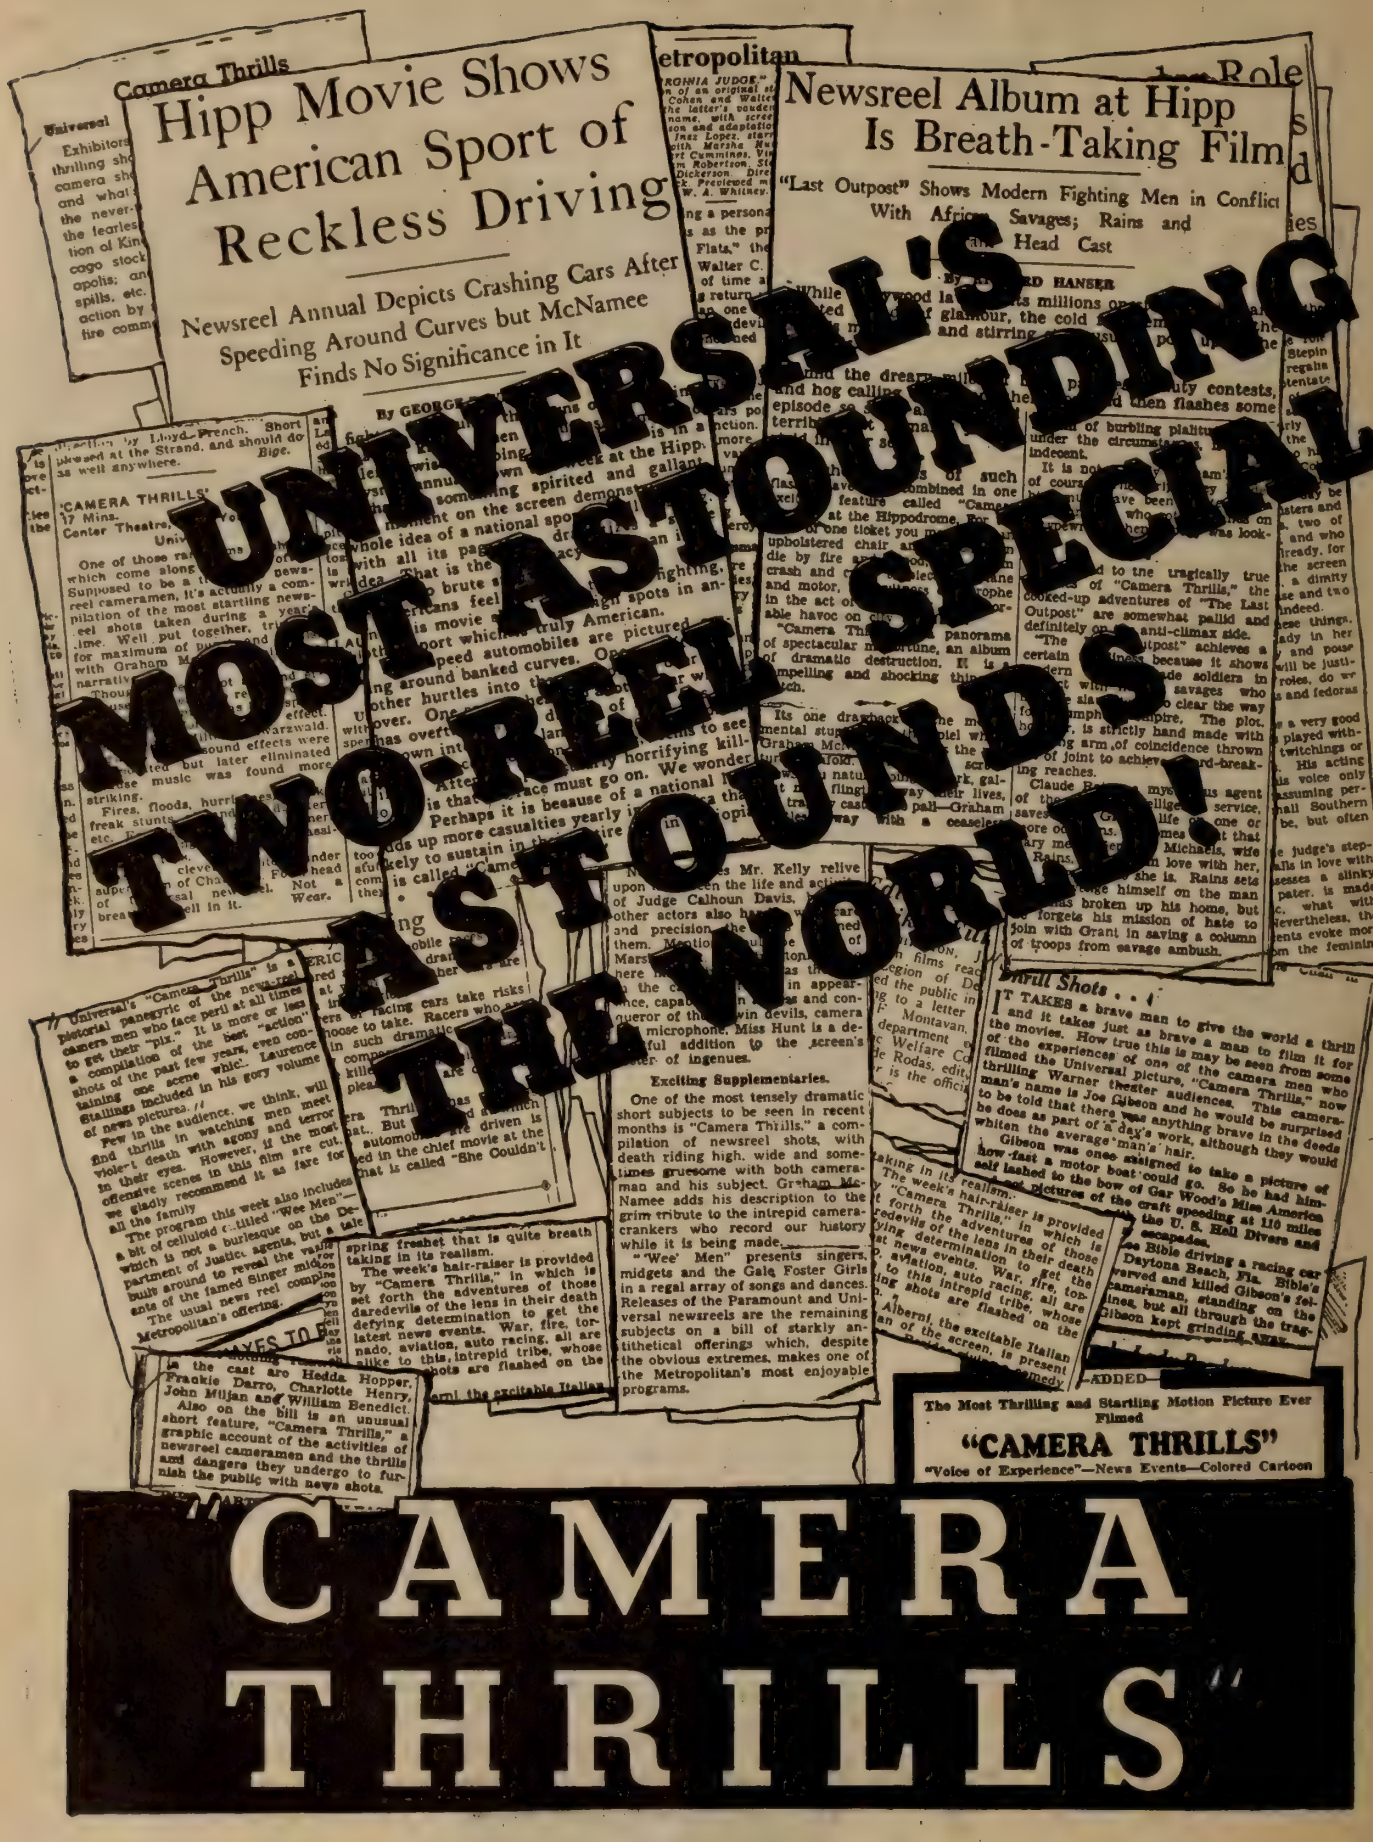
EXHIBITOR	THEATRE	TOWN & STATE
11 Years
Max Torador	Ritz	Minneapolis, Minn.
Hiller Hoffman	Bluebird	St. Paul, Minn.
E. L. Dilley	Grand	Northfield, Minn.
10 Years
D. W. Buckley	Redwood	Redwood Falls, Minn.
J. C. Quincer	Cozy	Wadena, Minn.
George Baker	Strand	Britton, S. Dak.
La Barr & Green	Stockholm	Minneapolis, Minn.
9 Years
P. H. Lund	Dreamland	Alpena, S. Dak.
8 Years
Harry Dickerman	Alhambra	Minneapolis, Minn.
Smith Brothers	Orpheum & Grand	Menominie, Wisc.
George W. Johnson	Auditorium	Red Wing, Minn.
George Miner	Miner Amuse. Co.	Chippewa Falls, Ladysmith, Rice Lake, Wisc.
Harvey Thorpe	Peoples	Crosby, Minn.
F. J. McCarthy	State & Fad	Brookings, S. Dak.
Davis & Davis	Strand	Eagle Butte, S. Dak.
Levi F. Roberts	New	Faulkton, S. Dak.
O. L. Viste		Murray Slayton, Minn.

FRANK MANTZKE, Mgr.

$1,000.00 IN CASH!
Prizes for the best campaign on any Universal Picture during Carl Laemmle's 30th Anniversary Celebration! For details see your Universal Exchange.



Hipp Movie Shows American Sport of Reckless Driving
Newsreel Annual Depicts Crashing Cars After Speeding Around Curves but McNamee Finds No Significance in It
Newsreel Album at Hipp Is Breath-Taking Film
"Last Outpost" Shows Modern Fighting Men in Conflict With African Savages; Rains and Head Cast
UNIVERSAL'S MOST ASTOUNDING TWO-REEL SPECIAL ASTOUNDS THE WORLD!
"CAMERA THRILLS"
"CAMERA THRILLS"
The Most Thrilling and Startling Motion Picture Ever Filmed "Voice of Experience"—News Events—Colored Cartoon

Meet "Flash Gordon"

Oh, Oh, look who it is—
BUSTER CRABBE

HENRY McRAE, associate producer at Universal City in charge of serials has signed Buster Crabbe, blond swimming collegiate and Olympic champion, to the much-coveted role of "Flash Gordon." Next week Universal will put this serial, from the colored newspaper strip by Alex Raymond, into production at Universal City under the direction of Frederick Stephani.

Alex Raymond is a New Rochelle artist who won the right to draw "Flash Gordon" for King Features in competition with ten of the country's best-known cartoonists. The story of "Flash Gordon" deals with the adventures of a youth who sets out on a plane to save the world from a new planet which is threatening to destroy it. A scientist has invented this plane, which he believes will deflect the enemy planet. With Flash goes a beautiful girl, Dale Arden. They land on the planet and encounter a race of super-men armed with weapons, consisting of light rays, gasses and other devices which have not as yet been invented on the earth. The king of this planet falls for the charms of Dale Arden and a sorceress Azura, mistress of Syk Castle, endeavors to entrap the handsome Flash.

The role of Dale will be played by Jean Rogers, who has just completed her third role at Universal City. The role of Azura, the sorceress queen, will be played by Priscilla Lawson, the girl who was discovered by the Universal Newsreel. Fredrick Stephani has adapted the serial to the screen, with continuity by Ella O'Neill. The cast includes Richard Alexander, Stanley Sanford, James Pierce, Duke Ford, Jr., Frank Shannon, and Lon Poff.

Buster Crabbe is an ideal selection for the role of Flash, drawn by Raymond as a physical Adonis. Crabbe is a graduate of the University of Southern California, but he spent his entire boyhood in Hawaii and has the physique which his devotion to swimming inevitably produced. He first came to the screen as "King of the Jungle" and has specialized in Tarzan roles, though he has played with distinction in such pictures as "The Sweetheart of Sigma Chi," "You're Telling Me" and "The Search for Beauty."

Buster Crabbe Who Will Play "Flash Gordon"

"Only Yesterday" Fourth Repeat

UNIVERSAL'S "Only Yesterday," according to the Hollywood Reporter, is getting its fourth repeat booking this week at the Hollywood Boulevard Theatre in Hollywood, California. Other cities have brought it back for the third time, but this is the first instance of a fourth repeat booking in the United States.

The New Songs in "Show Boat" (Continued from Page 11)

Robeson was enthusiastic about the new numbers Kern and Oscar Hammerstein have written for the movie "Show Boat." He sings four songs, "Old Man River" of course and "I Can't Help Loving That Man" with Helen Morgan. His new songs are "Ah Still Suits Me" and "Negro Peanut Vender's Street Cry."

His concert tour takes him through Great Britain and Ireland until March and he expects to do a play, "Dessalines" about the Haitian rebel king for a London theatrical society. He is also going to the Scandinavian countries and will revisit the Soviet Union. He speaks Russian which he learned right here in New York.

"It's a great language for bass singers," he boomed, applying that steamshovel handshake to all present as the interview ended.

TOWNE HALL FOLLIES: Oswald Cartoons—My, how these cartoons are improving. This one is a dandy.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

ELMER THE GREAT D
A very good black and wh
Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Io

TWO LITTLE LAMBS: Oswald Cartoons—A funny little cartoon with good music.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

BRONCO best black a this preferre
Niles, Niles ronage.

MONK means g
Mills, I and rur

MONK cartoon time, ni tre, Od

I'M TELLING YOU! . . .

I've never heard so many boosts in my young life as I've heard during the last three months. They tell me that for real laughs Oswald (that's me) has spurted ahead of every cartoon on the market—and believe, folks, it's true. Look at any one of my recent comedies—look at "Monkey Wretches," "Doctor Oswald," "Softball Game"—and you'll put your name on the dotted line for every Oswald on the line-up!

Joyfully yours

AT YOUR SERVICE: Oswald Cartoon—A good subject. These "Oswalds" can be relied on for plenty of good fun.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

E: Oswald Cartoon—
cartoon.—C. L. Niles,
General patronage.

TER: Oswald Cartoon—One of the white cartoons on the market. Give me. Our house in an uproar.—C. L. eatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General pat-

WRETCHES: Oswald Cartoons—By all his one. Running time, one reel.—L. H.
Theatre, Olive Hill, Ky. Small town tronage.

WRETCHES: Oswald Cartoons—This ves a report. It's a honey. Running inutes.—E. C. Arehart, Princess Thea-Iowa. General patronage.

OSWALD

The LUCKY RABBIT

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY SHOWMANSHIP SECTION

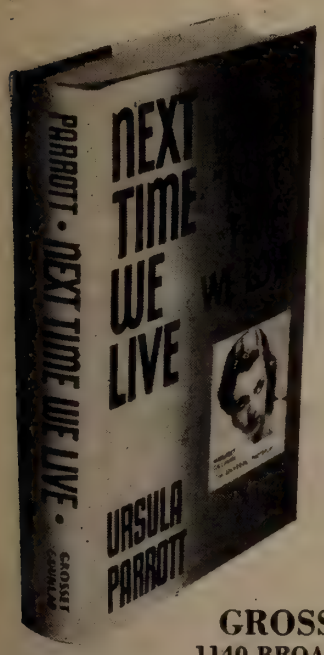
A DIGEST OF THE BEST EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

YOUR FRONT FOR "NEXT TIME WE LOVE"

PLENTY of catchy angles to sell on your front. The brilliant Margaret Sullavan in a hand picked, very popular story that fits her like a glove. The authoress, Ursula Parrott—a box-office name in itself! The screen's new leading man—James Stewart. And Ray Milland and Grant Mitchell in a tip-top cast!

Sell the novel—and sell the story with peppy catch-lines that stress the love problem many young people are wrestling with today. Here are sample lines: Youngsters caught in a Career vs Marriage whirlpool — too bewildered to fight their way out! . . . He, a crack foreign correspondent, roaming the world for tomorrow's headline—she, a brilliant young stage star sky-rocketing to fame—tangling their lives in reckless romance! Just two kids, tipsy with love and utterly blind to the realities of life! etc. See other dialogue catch-lines in pressbook.)

CAMPAIGN THE POPULAR PRICE EDITION OF URSULLA PARROTT BOOK



CONTACT local book stores and libraries and arrange for campaign cooperation on the popular priced edition. Print up book marks for them to distribute. Provide material for window displays. Promtoe two or three copies to use as contest prizes. Donate a copy or two to library for extra cooperation. Use giant book as truck or walking ballyhoo. Use replicas of book in your front and lobby displays.

Sketch at right illustrates new twist to book ballyhoo stunt. Make up replica of book as large as possible. Letter the title, author, catchline and playdate information on the covers. Engage an attractive young girl to carry it around town and pretend to read it on street cars, in waiting rooms, libraries and other places where crowds collect. Provide book stores with quantity of heralds for distribution in connection with sale of book. Give them a line about book in imprint space in return for cooperation. For information re tie-up address:

GROSSET & DUNLAP
1140 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY

DISPLAY LINES

"He travels fastest who travels alone!" . . . But what of two young people who seek different careers and are desperately in love with each other?

* * *

They couldn't afford to get married—but they did! They shouldn't have tried to lead separate lives—but they did! No one dared believe they could stay in love—but they did . . . even though oceans separated them, temptations dogged their paths and fate smashed their careers!

* * *

He, a crack foreign correspondent roaming the world for tomorrow's headlines—she, a brilliant young stage star skyrocketing to fame—tangling their lives in reckless romance!

* * *

Just two crazy kids, tipsy with love and utterly blind to the realities of life!

* * *

Ursula Parrott's exciting, romantic novel of two young people caught in the career vs. marriage whirlpool and too bewildered to fight heir way out.

* * *

Poignant story of two reckless young desperately in love, forced to live separate lives!

Orchid Lobby Board

SKETCH illustrates attractive "class" advance lobby board to play up Margaret Sullavan. Use white and gray lettering on black ground. Presentation card attached to flowers is white with black lettering. Attach two or three imitation orchids as indicated You can secure orchids in department store or novelty imitation flower store. Put plenty of "class" into the board as that is what will sell Margaret Sullavan, a class star in an important picture.

INQUIRING PHOTOGRAPHER QUERIES COUPLES

THE inquiring photographer is an old stunt, but here is a twist that should give it freshness and effectiveness. Arrange tie-up with newspaper to have a reporter and photographer interview couples around town. Have them ask questions along the following line:

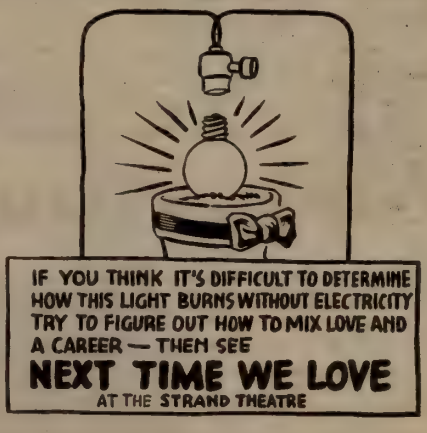
Can you have love and a career—or must you be satisfied with one or the other?

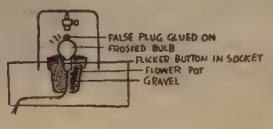
"In 'NEXT TIME WE LOVE' now at the Strand Theatre, Margaret Sullavan and James Stewart are torn between love and a career. So many modern day couples face this same problem that the Blank City Times is interviewing local couples in an effort to find out what their decisions would be.

Run picture of couple together with their answers. Try to get pictures of couples on park benches, on front porches in parked cars, etc. You might even fake an amusing picture to add to others by snapping a couple on a park bench with their arms around each other and their backs to the camera. Do not run names of this couple with answer, simply designate them as "He" and "She." If you thoroughly sell newspaper on this idea you should obtain some very effective results from it.

Store Window Displays Mystery Flicker Light For

TAKE an ordinary flower pot and run an electric wire through hole in bottom. Attach flicker button and frosted electric light bulb to wire. Fill pot with sand or colored pebbles until plug and socket are entirely covered. Take plug end from used bulb and remove all glass and filaments. Glue this on top of bulb in pot so as to give the appearance of an inverted bulb. Hang an electric light socket above pot at a distance of several inches to divert attention of those trying to figure it out. Tie a ribbon around pot and place card carrying copy given nearby. This stunt will keep people guessing and plant title and theme in their minds. Great for store window displays.





Park Bench Shadow Box

SKETCH shows advance shadow box in miniature that should attract attention and comment. Your artist can make the background, lamp-post, figures, bench, billboard, etc., our of painted cardboard. Small shrubs, foliage and grass mat can be used to add realism. Dolls can be used for the figures. Use small Christmas tree bulb in lamp post. Mount photograph of twenty-four sheet on billboard. Cut crescent moon out of background and cover with yellow transparency. Hook-up flasher light behind.

Business Girls Breakfast

EXHIBITORS have, on occasion, found this "Breakfast Show for Business Girls" a profitable stunt for important picture campaigns. Tie-up with a neighboring restaurant to supply a light breakfast in return for the publicity and a small part of the cost. Announce showing in regular ads, stating business girls can see Margaret Sullavan in Ursula Parrott's "Next Time We Love" and enjoy a delightful breakfast for the ordinary price of admission to the show. The time of the showing will be determined by the working hours in your city. Give newspapers advance stories and photographs of girls at breakfast and entering the theatre. Plug stunt in lobby in advance.

"Next Time We Love" Newspaper Contest

THE following newspaper announcement, explains details of contest to play up career vs. love angle.

NEXT TIME WE LOVE
WILL IT BE A CAREER AND LOVE—
OR LOVE ALONE?
PRIZES FOR BEST OPINIONS

In "NEXT TIME WE LOVE," coming to the Strand Theatre next week, Cicely Tyler (Margaret Sullavan) and Chris Tyler (James Stewart) both want careers, with the result that she becomes a famous actress and he a globe girdling newspaper correspondent. Both make great strides in their respective professions until they are faced with the problem: "Love or a career?" Which would you choose? In cooperation with the Strand Theatre, the Blank City Times is offering prizes for the best letters of not more than 100 words that give the best reasons for choosing either love or a career or giving solution to the problem of retaining both. Letters must reach the "NEXT TIME WE LOVE" editor not later than Thursday. Send in your letter now, then see Ursula Parrot's "NEXT TIME WE LOVE" with Margaret Sullavan and James Stewart at the Strand and learn how they decide this exciting question.

UMBRELLA STREET STUNT

This bally plugs title and romantic angle. Paint copy on giant umbrella as indicated and have attractive couple carry it through the streets. Tie hands of couple together with colored ribbon to further eye appeal when seen from front.

News Reporting Contest

ONE of the leading characters in "NEXT TIME WE LOVE" is a globe girdling newspaper correspondent and much of the footage describes his exciting adventures. You can play up this angle by contacting English and journalism classes in your local schools to sponsor, with the newspaper, a news reporting contest. Offer ticket prizes, in various groups: (1) the best news stories, (2) reviews of the picture, (3) interviews or editorials written in the theme of "love vs. a career," etc. You might induce a local journalism school to offer a discount on the terms of their course as a prize or the newspaper to offer a one-day cub-reporter's job to the winner of all three divisions.

Invite Reporters

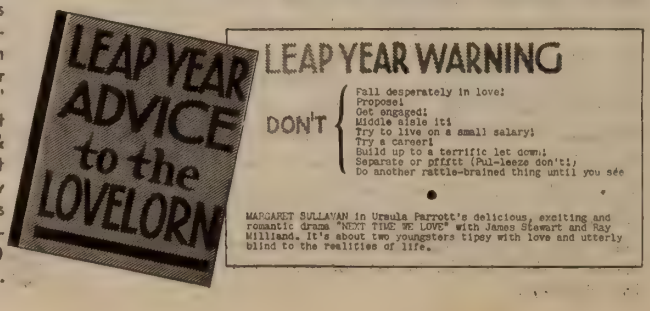
INASMUCH as James Stewart plays the part of a reporter and later a foreign newspaper correspondent, and as many of the scenes are laid in a newspaper office, you will find the local reporters and other newspaper men interested in seeing the picture. Arrange to have them presnt at a spcial party showing, as your guests. Get as many as possible to comment on the picture in their papers. A good time to hold this showing would be after the last regular showing on the first day of the run.

Baby Carriage Bally

HERE is a novel light comedy street bally that will arrest attention. Place copy shown on top and sides of perambulator. Dress "Frenchy" looking young girl like a nurse with black dress and white head piece. Have her push carriage through main streets. She might stop from time to time and pass out heralds or the leap year throwaways shown at left.

LEAP YEAR TEASER THROWAWAY

The sketch illustrates gag to use in capitalizing on Leap Year in your campaign for "Next Time We Love." Send your order direct to Economy Novelty & Printing Company at 225 West 39th St., New York City. The price is $6.00 per thousand including imprint. $5.50 in lots of five thousand.



Safety Pin Throwaway

The amusing teaser card shown here plants title and sells light comedy angle. Order direct from Economy Novelty & Printing C., 225 W. 39th St., New York City. Price is $6.00 per thousand, including pin and imprint. $5.50 per thousand in lots of 5 thousand or more.

WORLD'S OF ENTERTAINMENT!

GOING PLACES

with

Lowell Thomas

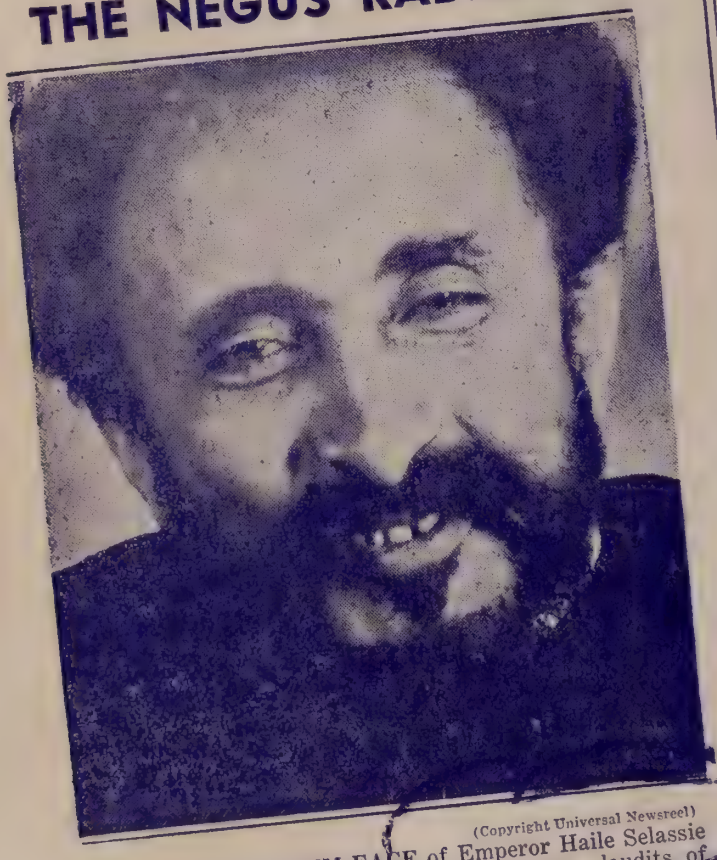
Literally brings the world to the eyes and ears of your patrons in this amazing series that combines travel, thrills, wonders and enchanting beauty!

From
UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.
ROCKEFELLER CENTER
NEW YORK CITY

Sec. 562 P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
Paid
Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

ROBERT B WENNER
22 CROSS ST
MALDEN MASS

THE NEGUS RADIATES



(Copyright Universal Newsreel)

THE USUALLY GRIM FACE of Emperor Haile Selassie breaks out in a smile as he acknowledges plaudits of crowds outside his palace at Addis Ababa. Occasion was fifth anniversary of his accession to the throne. Selassie has had something to smile about in past week, with his troops throwing back the invaders.

Even the New York Daily News, the tabloid with the largest reader circulation of any newspaper in America, relies on Universal Newsreel to get the news in the way people like it!

UNIVERSAL NEWSREEL

With GRAHAM McNAMEE

Larry Edmunds Bookshop
6658 Hollywood Blvd.
Hollywood, Calif. 90028
HO 3-3273
World's Largest Collection
Of Books on Motion Picture

Printed in U. S. A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

VOL. 37, NO. 26 JAN. 25, 1936

Special!

Margaret
SULLAVAN
in
URSULA PARROTT'S
"NEXT TIME
WE LOVE"

Read about Ursula Parrott's greatest Heroine- Margaret Sullavan

URSULA PARROTT'S

Gentlemen, meet URSULA PARROTT via the only photograph of her in existence! She wrote such phenomenal best-sellers as "Ex-Wife," "Strangers May Kiss" and "Breadwinner" . . . And now Universal brings you the most vital and the most famous of all her sensational stories!

NEXT TIME

GREATEST OF HIS CAREER!

Hit after hit is the enviable reputation of EDWARD H. GRIFFITH, who made such memorable pictures as "Holiday," "Another Language," "Animal Kingdom" and "No More Ladies." Now he tops them all with his biggest knockout, and a knockout of a cast headed by

MARGARET SULLAVAN

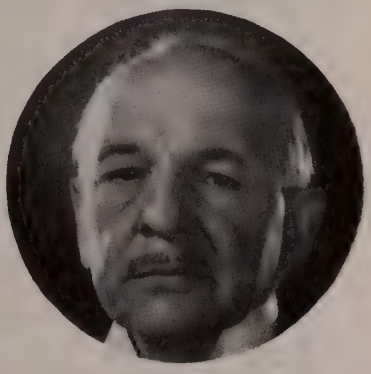
JAMES STEWART • RAY MILLAND

GRANT MITCHELL and ROBERT McWADE

JAMES STEWART

RAY MILLAND

GRANT MITCHELL



ROBERT McWADE

WE LOVE

UNIVERSAL PROMISED

No. 847 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

Although Universal is months and months late in delivering some of the best pictures it sold last Fall, not one single exhibitor so far has held it against us!

Regardless of the fact that up to date we have not delivered all that we sold, they are all signing up for 1935-1936 even faster than they did a year ago.

This very day we have signed up more exhibitors for our whole product than we had ever signed up before at the same date.

This is true in spite of the fact that we have still not carried out last year's promises in full.

It probably never has happened to any other producing company.

Universal has proof of your good will. Perhaps we have not always earned it on performance, but for some reason you seem to know that we have tried in good faith to give you more than you paid for.

This means confidence. And confidence means good will. And good will comes from nothing on earth but satisfactory performance in past years.

Thanks for this most remarkable exhibition of confidence.

We don't carry your good will on our books at a value of fifty million dollars. In our statement we list cameras,

UNIVERSAL DELIVERS

sound equipment, unused film, plant and equipment of various kinds — but the real truth of it is that your belief is worth more to us than anything we've got.

The fact that you believe in Universal puts me on a spot. It means that I've got to be as decent as you are and meet you more than half way.

I shall! I intend to make sure that Universal delivers more to you than you expected — whether late or not. I'd rather deliver a great picture late than a rotten picture on time.

That is exactly what we are doing.

You all know the story on "Magnificent Obsession." It is sweeping the country like wild-fire. It is breaking records and making money for exhibitors hand over fist. It is being held over almost everywhere it is playing. You took that picture in a big way because you had faith in Universal. We delivered. Now I am giving you Margaret Sullavan in "Next Time We Love" by Ursula Parrott. The booking records show that you are taking that picture also on the confidence you have in Universal. I assure you it will not be misplaced. Margaret Sullavan, great as she is, is a new Margaret Sullavan in this picture, and "Next Time We Love" I predict will be another splendid box office winner for you.

Thanks again for your confidence in Universal.

Carl Laemmle

100 First Runs for "NEXT TIME WE LOVE"

THE simultaneous booking of "Next Time We Love," following its triangular world premiere in New York, Chicago and Washington, promises to equal the tremendous simultaneous booking of "Magnificent Obsession." Already there are 100 bookings in the key cities and dates in subordinate runs are coming in every day now.

The first showing of Margaret Sullavan's picture, "Next Time We Love," will take place in three cities at the same time. W. G. Van Schmus, who was in Universal City when "Next Time We Love" was half completed, booked it on the strength of the part he had seen, into the Music Hall on January 30th, and that booking is being sedulously prepared for by the exploitation staff of the theatre, which has already had the honor of presenting Margaret Sullavan in three of her four pictures.

At the same time, "Next Time We Love" will open at the Palace Theatre in Chicago, where "Magnificent Obsession" played such a memorable engagement. It also opens on January 30th in Keith's Theatre in Washington, where "Magnificent Obsession" was held for a third week.

It's next opening is at the Hippodrome in Cleveland, on February 1.

In Los Angeles, the picture will follow the same course as "Mangificent Obsession," playing da yand date at the Hill Street and the Pantages, where "Magnificent Obsession" is still running to tremendous business.

The holding over of "Magnificent Obsession" has thrown the dating at the Lafayette in Buffalo back a week and it will not open there until February 13th. The same thing happened at the Paramount in Atlanta, where the picture will open on the same day.

The Circle Theatre in Indianapolis is also thrown back one week on account of the holding over of "Magnificent Obsession."

In Baltimore, "Next Time We Love," opens on February 6th at Keith's in Providence at the Albee, in Boston at the Memorial, in Kansas City at the Tower, in Salt Lake City

(Continued on Page 23)

$1,000.00 IN CASH PRIZES!

For the best campaign on any Universal Picture during Carl Laemmle's 30th Anniversary Celebration! For details see your Universal Exchange.

Back Home Again

William Koenig

WILLIAM KOENIG, for the last ten years studio manager of Warner Brothers, was appointed general studio manager of Universal City last week by Carl Laemmle. He assumed his duties on Monday, superseding Fred S. Meyer, who will be given another executive studio position. Mr. Koenig has had a unique experience in motion picture business. He started as an usher in a theatre in Milwaukee, and eventually became its treasurer, stage director, and manager. He eventually represented a circuit of theatres and then became exchange manager, after which he went to Universal City. His rise here was rapid and he eventually became studio manager.

Universal is happy to welcome Koenig back to the fold.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors

Paul Gulick, Editor

Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.

Rockefeller Center, N. Y. City

Universal Pictures Corp.

Copyrighted 1935 (All Rights Reserved)

JAN. 25, 1936

Vol. 37 No. 26

Hold-Overs Feature "Magnificent Obsession" in Opening Weeks

A LOOK at the last two weeks of Variety and every day of Motion Picture Daily confirms the impression that "Magnificent Obsession" is the season's box-office giant. It is bowling over records in every part of the country and it is being held over so consistently that it promises to be the biggest grosser of the year.

A number of theatres are already holding "Magnificent Obsession" for the third week. Third weeks are being marked up in the double run in Los Angeles at the Pantages and the Hill Street Theatres. In Buffalo the Lafayette Theatre is holding it for the third week, and Variety says "contines to pack 'em in after two weeks of capacity business."

In Detroit, after two big weeks at the Fox, the picture was brought back to the Adams, and Variety says: "is endangering the house record—excellent."

In Baltimore, Variety says: "Second week talk of the town. Splendid $6,000 after socko $9,000 on first lap. Will go third." In Washington, the picture enjoyed a second tremendous week and will probably go a third. In Philadelphia, the Boyd was building rapidly and is being held over a second week.

In Portland, Oregon, "Captain Blood" had just broken the record of the house with $8,000 for ten days, whereas "Magnificent Obsession" in one week had already taken in $10,000 in a week.

Hold-overs are also recorded at the Albee in Brooklyn, the Bradford

(Continued on Page 23)

BACK-OF-THE-SCENES

While Universal Was Photographing

"NEXT TIME WE LOVE"

● ● When "Next Time We Love" was only half completed at Universal City, W. G. Van Schmus, the managing director of the Music Hall, New York, came to Hollywood with his stage director, Leon Leonidoff. He not only met Margaret Sullavan, as this illustration shows, but he asked Edward H. Griffith, director of "Next Time We Love," to put the film together for him as far as it had gone and permit him to see it. The result was that "Next Time We Love" was booked into the Music Hall for the week of January 30th at least two months before that date rolled around.

•

● ● Margaret Sullavan has a trick of crowding herself into strange places during the filming of one of her pictures. Here she is, sitting in the doorway of the sound room listening with her leading man, James Stewart, to the sound going round and round and coming out here.

•

● ● At the right, below, Edward H. Griffith, the director, has joined Margaret Sullavan in this favorite retreat of hers and they discuss with James Stewart the next scene to be taken.

•

● ● Both Margaret Sullavan and her director were born in Virginia. Nevertheless, they are easy victims to the Continental tea habit which is one of producer Paul Kohner's innovations on the set. In the shot below, the trio is drinking to the success of "Next Time We Love" in tea cups.

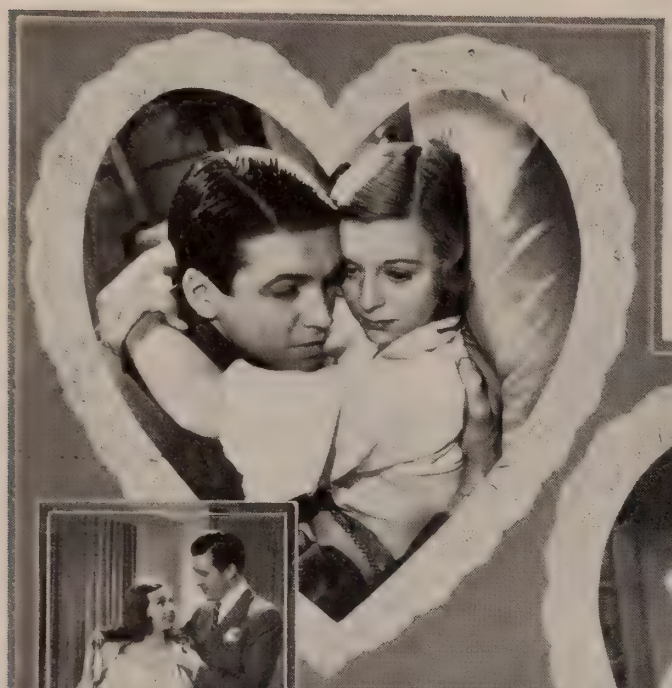
"NEXT TIM



Below, an interesting expression of Margaret Sullavan's many-sided personality, a scene from "Next Time We Love."

Margaret Sullavan and James Stewart

Margaret Sullavan and Ray Milland

Another inte... lavan express... her leading ... "Next T...

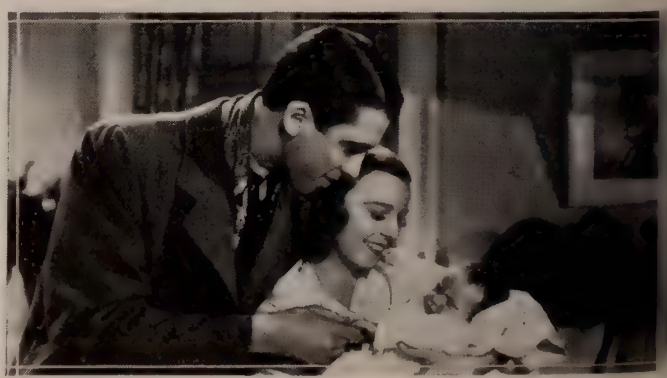
"NEXT TIME WE LOVE" is a remarkable combination of the actual experiences of two women. It started out to be the life story of only one, its author, Ursula Parrott. Miss Parrott, who wrote such stories as "Ex-Wife" and "Strangers May Kiss," married a newspaper man. Miss Parrott envisioned a career on the stage, and had every reason to believe from her initial success that acting would be her life work. Their careers clashed and it was only the most drastic of moves that saved them both.

The story of "Next Time We Love" is the story of two careers which clashed and endangered the happiness of two people who should have been ideally happy. One was a newspaper man, the other an actress. The story works itself out in a way that the true story should have taken but didn't.

Into "Next Time We Love," there-

The binding link which ties this love story together.

Margaret Sullavan and James Stewart in a dramatic scene from "Next Time We Love."



WE LOVE"

In the cut below Still another personality shows in the face of this remarkable actress, Margaret Sullavan

Margaret Sul- a scene with nes Stewart, in Love."

Margaret Sullavan and James Stewart

A scene in Margaret Sullavan's studio home.

fore Ursula Parrott has poured more of her actual experience, more of her heart and soul than in any of her other stories. It is true to life.

But "Next Time We Love" is almost as much a life story for Margaret Sullavan, its star, although there was no thought of such a thing when Ursula Parrott wrote the story. It just happens that Margaret Sullavan's life story in many particulars, has followed the pattern of Cicely Tyler. The clashing of temperaments was almost as violent in Margaret's own life story and resulted in more drastic separation than the separation of Cicely and Chris in the picture.

No wonder Hollywood is bubbling over with the idea that "Next Time We Love" is the real thing in love stories! Everyone who has seen it from Carl Laemmle, W. G. Van Schmus, J. R. Grainger and the film cutters, rate "Next Time We Love" as the best love story of the year.

A scene from "Next Time We Love."

"Next Time We Love" required an actress of infinite variety of expression, as this and other pictures show.

Ursula Parrott Approves Change In "Next Time We Love" Title

Ursula Parrott, author of "Next Time We Love," one of the most personable of all the authors. Yet this is the only portrait that Longmans-Green, her publishers, have.

THE changing of an "i" to an "o" and its amazing change of meaning in the title of her book is okeh with Ursula Parrott. So far from sticking up her pretty nose at the change and crying to high heaven, "That's just like the movies," Miss Parrott quietly approved Universal's acute change.

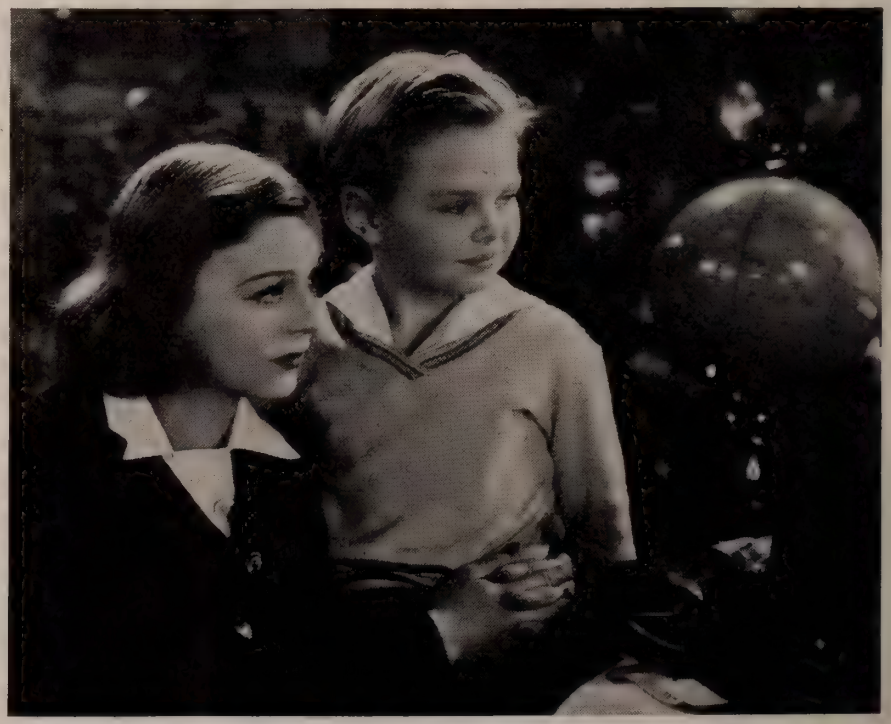
She believes that the cinema magnate who signs a fat check for an author's work and then risks some hundreds of thousands of dollars in converting that story into a film, besides the subsequent expenses of selling and publicizing it, has a right to add or subtract in finding what she terms its "common denominator of audience appeal."

Besides being the author of nine successful books and innumerable short stories, Miss Parrott has made several trips to Hollywood to work on scenario treatments, both of her own stories and of the books of other writers. "Like most authors," she says, "who sell the screen rights of their brain children, I suffered agonies the first time liberties were taken with my characters or plot situations. But after I learned the technique of transferring a story from one metier to another, while working adaptations at various studios in the film colony, I realized that the men who make pictures have put as much sincere effort and study into them, as the creators of stories put into the writing of their books. I am not one who pooh-poohs the poor producer. I find the average studio executive, instead of an ogre who bites the hand that feeds him, a level-headed business man who has something to sell and makes a comprehensive study of his market. My Hollywood experience has taught me that generally he knows fairly definitely what he is about,—and why,—and though I've had my share of heated arguments in fighting for my convictions, I've come around to understanding the reasons for certain changes in boiling down a story of 100,000 words, or more, to an hour and a half of visual entertainment which necessarily must be told in rapid action.

"When Universal altered the original name of my book, "Next Time We Live," to "Next Time We Love," frankly, I was quite distressed. The word love has been dragged into so many titles as a box-office lure. Then Carl Laemmle proceeded to explain to me why he held out for the 'o' in place of the 'i'. He maintained that the film audiences, on the whole, do not react favorably to pictures which deals with flights of fancy into spiritual realms or the hereafter. In this stark age of realism, he insisted, people are chiefly concerned with what happens here and now and they like their screen fare to reflect situations, emotions and aspirations, if not necessarily within their own experiences, at least within their own understanding.

"As my book is not a tale of reincarnation but deals with contemporary life, Mr. Laemmle feared the former title might mislead audiences into expecting—or suspecting—something quite apart from a domestic drama set in the 20the century, so I withdrew my objections. When I

(Continued on Page 23)



Margaret Sullavan and the splendid young actor, Ronnie Cosbey, who plays her son in "Next Time We Love."

Margaret Sullavan

Comes Into Her Own

THERE is a sureness of touch, a versatility of technique, and a simplicity of method in the acting of Margaret Sullavan in "Next Time We Love" that proves beyond a doubt that this brilliant actress has come into her own. She has arrived.

"Next Time We Love" is only her fifth picture. All of the others were, to a certain extent, experimental, and it is a matter of record that none of them has reached the exacting standard which Margaret Sullavan has set for herself. Miss Sullavan has always been afraid to see her own pictures. She has had most amazing doubts, the most cruel criticisms and the most topsy-turvy notions about them imaginable.

When "Only Yesterday" went into the Music Hall, she sent her negro maid to look at the picture before she would go and see it. She said to her, "If you like it, I know I won't. If you think it is terrible, I will go and see it." The maid was so enthusiastic, that it was weeks before Miss Sullavan would see her own picture, and then she wouldn't go to the Music Hall to see it.

Those who have followed Miss Sullavan's career have noted an increasing breadth of power in all but one of her pictures, and in certain sequences of this all her beauty and allure diverted attention from its short-comings. But in "Next Time We Love," the real actress, Margaret Sullavan, has been given an opportunity such as few roles offer to any actress and Miss Sullavan's experience and increased versatility have given to the role of Cicely a perfection and an artistry and a beauty of face and form that reveal for the first time the full extent of the dramatic powers of this remarkable actress, Margaret Sullavan.

The new Margaret Sullavan in her latest Universal picture, "Next Time We Love," by Ursula Parrott, an opportunity of which the talented Margaret takes full advantage.

One of the extraordinary settings in "Next Time We Love" against which the movies' greatest love story is being thrown under the guiding hand of Edward H. Griffith, the director.

Heretofore Margaret Sullavan has been the most talked of woman in Hollywood because of her independence of Hollywood life and star worship. Now she will be the most talked of actress because of her triumph in "Next Time We Love."

This production opens at the New York Music Hall on January 30th and will be in first run theatres throughout the country during the next two weeks.

Margaret Sullavan, star of "Next Time We Love," the fifth production in the meteoric career of this unpredictable screen personality.

A NEW MARGARET SULLAVAN

IF you can imagine a day into which would be compressed all the seasons of the year, then you are capable of imagining Margaret Sullavan. For she is as varied as the seasons, and changes far more swiftly. She is the one star of Hollywood whom nobody knows, for the Margaret of one hour is not the Margaret of another hour.

In all the study of the question, "What makes an actress great?" perhaps not enough attention has been given to the inner nature of the actress herself. Certainly only a woman of varied and flexible temperament could portray the range of moods required by Margaret Sullavan's role of Cicely Tyler in "Next Time We Love," in which James Stewart, Ray Milland and Grant Mitchell are featured.

"It isn't necessary that any girl wanting to be an actress should study variety of moods," said Miss Sullavan when the picture was in the making. "Every girl is so a creature of mood that any man would be amazed could he see into the heart of even the calmest-appearing girl. Therefore a girl needs only to be herself in order to have emotional resources of depth and variety.

"But people seem to object when a star is herself. People actually seem to think that my own naturalness is some form of unnaturalness. By what twisted reasoning they arrive at that conclusion, I don't know. But one think I do know—and that is I refuse to mold myself into whatever Hollywood thinks I ought to be. If people like me, I hope it is for my naturalness. And natural I will continue to be, even though it shocks people.'

Not Hard to Handle

EDWARD H. GRIFFITH rises to take issue with the rumors that have sifted out of Hollywood pronouncing Margaret Sullavan "difficult," "untamed," "willful" and "upstage." He maintains he has never been affiliated with any film luminary who gave herself more cheerfully and whole-heartedly to her work.

RAY MILLAND, one of Margaret Sullavan's leading men in "Next Time We Love," is remarkable for many reasons and in many directions.

Ray Milland, one of the leading men in "Next Time We Love," with its heroine and star, Margaret Sullavan.

In the first place, he is the "other man" in the picture, but a less villainous and snake-in-the-grass character has never been drawn on the screen than his Tommy Abbott. In the second place, he is coming into a certain amount of notoriety at the present time because of the fact that he was a member of the late King George's personal bodyguard.

In addition to being a splendid actor, he is a professional marksman with rifle and revolver. He was a sailor, a tap dancer, a champion boxer, and a fencer. There is a strange story in Hollywood that the role which made him famous on the English screen before he was brought to America was obtained at the point of a pistol. At any rate, he handles the role of Tommy Abbott with an aplomb and discretion that tremendously pleased director Edward H. Griffith and Miss Sullavan, fully bearing out the promise of his former pictures, "The Glass Key," "Four Hours to Knll," "The Gilded Lily" and "Alias Mary Dow."

The latest picture of Margaret Sullavan, taken just upon the completion of her picture, "Next Time We Love" by Ursula Parrott.

FROM thrills to tears, from laughter to tragedy, from girlish delight to mature sophistication passes Margaret Sullavan in "Next Time We Love," under the direction of Edward H. Griffith. Only a girl of Miss Sullavan's emotional capacity could have brought to life the Cicely Tyler created by Ursula Parrott's novel. She is seen first as a schoolgirl whose escapade leads to a sudden marriage. She turns toward the stage in order to suppliement the small salary her husband earns as a reporter. Complications arise when success comes and her earning capacity far exceeds that of her husband.

The characterization of the actress is colorful and one of the great screen performances of all time. It is a success comparatively easy for Margaret Sullavan to achieve, for she needed only to be herself. The real achievement lies in the star's ability to be herself in spite of all the forces which tend to lead a popular actress into artificiality.

Producer Paul Kohner has given Miss Sullavan a worthy supporting cast—in James Stewart, Ray Milland, Anne Demetrio, Robert McWade, Grant Mitchell, Florence Roberts, Christian Rub and Ronnie Cosbey, among others.

New Leading Man Lives With Ex-Hubby

ONE of th emost praisworthy characteristics of Margaret Sullavan, one of the most generous persons in Hollywood, is her desire to help anyone with whom she has come in contact. She doesn't always get credit for it, but she doesn't care about that. Two summers ago she invited her ex-husband, Henry Fonda, to play opposite her in "Coquette" at the Mt. Kisco stock company and now she is going to play opposite him in a film.

Now she is doing the same thing for another promising young man. This young man is James Stewart, her leading man in "Next Time We Love," who lives in an apartment in Hollywood with Margaret Sullavan's ex-husband, who recommended him.

AND TWO LEADING MEN

JAMES STEWART who plays opposite Margaret Sullavan in Universal's "Next Time We Love," was born in Indiana and in Pennsylvania. This "Believe It Or Not" is explained by the fact that he was born in the town of Indiana, Pa. It happened on a May 20th, and eight years later Stewart was producing and directing plays—utilizing the family basement and the children of Indiana.

So Stewart had plenty of experience by the time he directed a class play at Princeton. Strangely enough, he saw Margaret Sullavan play in Princeton. From college he went to the Falmouth Stock Company, on Cape Cod. Margaret also played on Cape Cod. His first New York break came in "Goodbye Again," This was the original name of "Next Time We Love." To Boston he went as stage manager for "Camille," with Jane Cowl.

There followed appearances in numerous stage hits—finally leading to his first screen appearance, in "Murder Man." Next came "Rose-Marie." Tested for "Next Time We Love," he has fully demonstrated his genius. He has fully justified the faith of Universal executives and of Miss Sullavan and Edward H. Griffith, his director in "Next Time We Love."

James Stewart, the other leading man of "Next Time We Love," in a scene with its star, Margaret Sullavan.

WHEREVER THERE ARE HEAR

Success made strangers of these two lovers!

In adversity they braved the whole world for each other, dared life's hardships to separate them! . . In prosperity they sought to live for themselves alone! The innermost secrets of woman's soul, tenderly and compassionately revealed by a woman, for every woman!

Carl Laemmle presents

margaret SULLAVAN

in URSULA PARROTT'S

NEXT TIME WE LOVE

with JAMES STEWART
RAY MILLAND

Grant Mitchell · Robert McWade
Ronald Cosbey · Anna de Metrio
Directed by Edward H Griffith

A UNIVERSAL PICTURE

3B

Written for the Women of Today!

Ursula Parrott's most vital character in her tenderest story! Now on the screen with all the great love and humanness that stirred the hearts of women the world over!

Carl Laemmle presents

margaret SULLAVAN

in URSULA PARROTT'S great story

NEXT TIME WE LOVE

with JAMES STEWART
RAY MILLAND

Grant Mitchell · Robert McWade
Ronald Cosbey · Anna de Metrio
Directed by Edward H. Griffith

A UNIVERSAL PICTURE

2A

It will take you into the secret corners of lovers hearts!

Carl Laemmle presents

margaret SULLAVAN

in her greatest triumph
URSULA PARROTT'S famous story

NEXT TIME WE LOVE

with JAMES STEWART
RAY MILLAND
GRANT MITCHELL

Directed by Edward H. Griffith
A Universal Picture

1C

A love story you'll cherish!

A tender drama you'll store away in the secret corners of your heart!

Carl Laemmle presents

margaret SULLAVAN

in her greatest triumph
URSULA PARROTT'S famous story

NEXT TIME WE LOVE

with JAMES STEWART
RAY MILLAND
GRANT MITCHELL

Directed by Edward H. Griffith
A Universal Picture

MARGARET SULLAVAN'S Greatest Role!

Carl Laemmle presents

margaret SULLAVAN

in her greatest triumph
URSULA PARROTT'S famous story

NEXT TIME WE LOVE

A Universal Picture

2Y

All-Human! Compelling!

Vivid! Vital! Tender!

Carl Laemmle presents

margaret SULLAVAN

in URSULA PARROTT'S great story

NEXT TIME WE LOVE

with JAMES STEWART
RAY MILLAND
GRANT MITCHELL

Directed by Edward H. Griffith
A Universal Picture

Ursula Parrott's BEST STORY!

Carl Laemmle presents

margaret SULLAVAN

in her most glorious triumph

NEXT TIME WE LOVE

From Ursula Parrott's best-seller, "Next Time We Love"

A Universal Picture

1Y

Written for the Women of Today

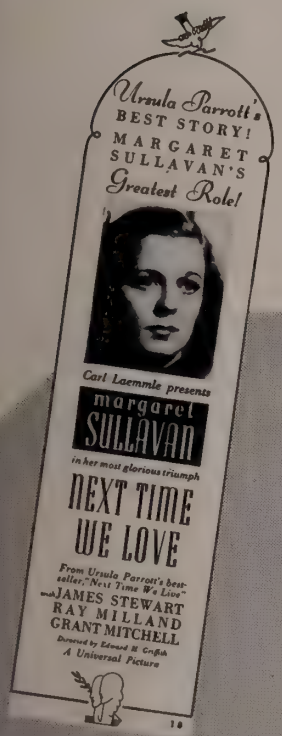
Carl Laemmle presents A UNIVERSAL PICTURE

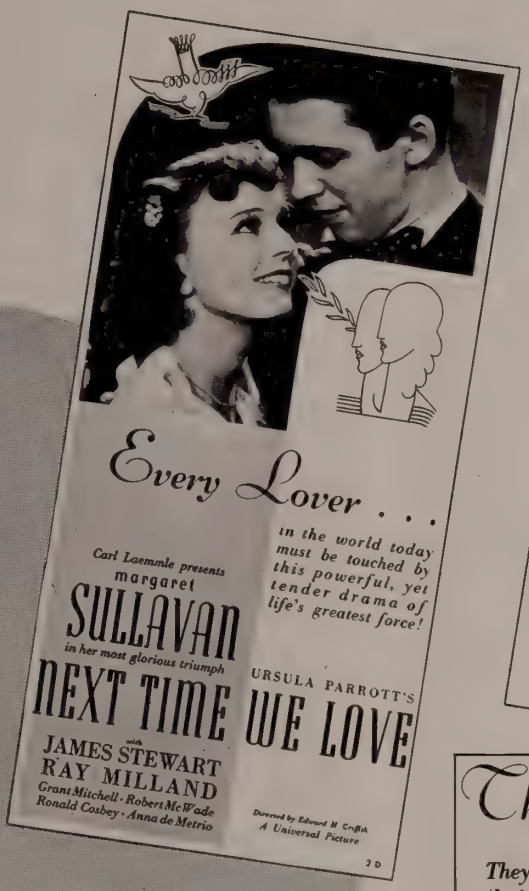
margaret SULLAVAN in NEXT TIME WE LOVE

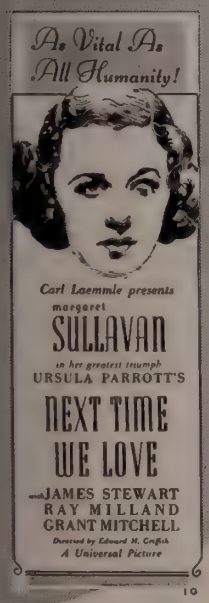
From URSULA PARROTT'S best selling novel "Next Time We Love"

3B

S—THESE WILL REACH THEM!







CARL LAEMMLE PRESENTS
MARGARET SULLAVAN
in Her Greatest Triumph
URSULA PARROTT'S
Most Famous Best-Seller
NEXT TIME WE LOVE
with
JAMES STEWART
RAY MILLAND
GRANT MITCHELL
ROBERT McWADE · ANNA DE METRIO · RONALD COSBEY
Produced by
PAUL KOHNER
Directed by
EDWARD H. GRIFFITH
A UNIVERSAL PICTURE

ORDER THE BEST LOCATIO

S NOW! THEY'RE WORTH IT!

UNIVERSA

RADIO

VAR

SCR

Published Weekly at 154 West 46th St
Entered as second-class matter Decem
COPYRIG
NEW Y

Vol. 121 No. 5

Mpls. Orph Ups 40c to 55c for 'Obse And They Love It, $14,000;

For the first time the Orpheum has upped its top from 40c to 55c for a screen offering sans stage entertainment and the public response to 'Obsession' seems to justify the procedure.

Orpheum (Singer) (2,890; 25-35-55) 'Magnificent Obsession' (U).—Swell exploitation campaign and picture's own superlative merits bringing 'em in, plenty of feminine patronage for this one and advanced prices not keeping 'em away, en route to fine $14,000. Last week, 'Dream Too Much' (RKO), $6,700, fair.

'OBSESSION' BIG $12,000 2D WK. BUFFALO

Lafayette (Ind.) (3,400; 25)—'Obsession' (U) (2d week). Still running close to top speed. With second stanza satisfactory in every way. Around $12,000. Another hot week. Last week, all attendance records for house broken; high $17,000.

PTSBG'S 'OBES IS M

'Magnific to great S with sma and certa opening $10,000, or with and w yond into

'Obsession' 29

ADD TO THESE THE MOST PHENOMENAL RECORD OF HOLDOVERS AND EXTENDED RUNS EVER CHALKED UP BY A SINGLE PICTURE!

AND KEEP YOUR EYE ON MARGARET SULLAVAN IN URSULA PARROTT'S "NEXT TIME WE LOVE"!

L STEALS

IETY

PR... 15¢

64 PAGES

N. Y., by Variety, Inc. Annual subscription, $6. Single copies, 15 cents at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

VARIETY, INC. ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.

EDNESDAY, JANUARY 15, 1936

'OBSESSION' AT $20,000 IN HUB, MAGNIFICENT

Boston, Jan. 14.

(Best Exploitation: Keith's)

For straight film strength 'Magnificent Obsession' at the Keith Memorial seems to have edge on town at $20,000 pace. Getting ace play from women on matinees, but plenty femmes are dragging in escorts for night shows to swell the take to that very satisfactory figure.

Keith Memorial (RKO) (2,900; 25-35-50) — 'Magnificent Obsession' (U). Very attractive here and heading towards dandy $20,000.

K.C.'S B.O. BALLY, 'OBSESH' $12,000

Tower (Rewot) (2,200; 25-35)—'Obsession' (U) and 'Black and White' revue. Management went on the billboards for the picture, and gave it extra newspaper space; better than normal, headed for near $12,000, big.

'OBSESH,' 13G, FRISCO OK

Orpheum (F&M) (2,440; 30-35-40) —'Obsession' (U). Looks like a smash week for this house, ought to hit better than $13,000

Chi $50,000 with 'Obsesh' Magnif at $27,000,

In two other spots the pictures are the heavy money-makers. 'Magnificent Obsession' heads into the high water figures at the Palace and from indications on its opening days, it looks a cinch for at least a two or three weeks' gallop.

Palace (RKO) (2,500; 25-35-55-65)—'Obsession' (U), and vaude. Weaver Bros. heading the vaude. Picture is packing 'em, crowding the register to its biggest slice of money in many weeks. Looks like a holdover at $27,000, on almost completely adult draw

For L. A. 'Obsession' Strong at $25,000.

Pantages (Pan) (2,700; 25-35-40) —'Magnificent Obsession' (U). With two previews thrown in on first three nights, this one, though not needing that aid, is headed for close to $13,000 on first week.

'OBSESH,' 'CITIES' 2 H.O. IN ST. L. A RECORD

St. Louis, Jan 14

(Best Exploitation: Fox)

It's been ages since two St. Louis cinema palaces had celluloid features of sufficient b.o. at same time to hold 'em over for a second week but that is situation here this week Fox. F&M's big first runner in midtown, is showing 'Obsession' for second week to swell business.

Fox (F&M) (5,038; 25-35-55)—'Magnificent Obsession' (U) (2d wk). First week was a surprise to town and word of mouth got b.o. $17,600 to count; second week is still going strong and should finish for a nice $11,000.

Radio City Music Hall (5,989; 40-60-85-99-$1.10-$1.65) — 'Magnificent Obsession' (U) and stage show. Dec. 30 for 10-day run and ... around $135,000, ex... six shows New ... ction, 'Lit... days,

'Obsesh' $8,300, Indpls.

The Indiana is in the money on 'Magnificent Obsession' with a probable take of $8,300.

Indiana (Katz-Feld) (3,100; 25-40)—'Magnificent Obsession' (U). Word of mouth and reviews helping this one build along to a very good $8,300.

'Obsession' $17,500, Cincy

Cincinnati, Jan. 14.

(Best Exploitation: Albee)

Only two fresh releases at the major stands currently, and they're real b.o. 'Magnificent Obsession,' at the Albee, is the acer at a $17,500 tempo.

Albee (RKO) (3,300; 35-42)—'Magnificent Obsession' (U). Irene Dunne the heavy noise, ticketed for $17,500, fine.

'Obsession' $9,500,, Balto

Baltimore, Jan. 14.

Keith's (Schanberger) (2,500; 15-25-30-35-40) — 'Obsession' (U). A veritable blaze at the b.o. for the best week house has had all this season. Smashing $9,500 and will hold on for a while.

'Obsession,' 10 Days, $135,000: ...un B. O.,

Behind good exploitation ... strong local angle on autho... book, 'Magnificent Obsession' pulling in a terrific $29,000 stanza at Fox, while Paul ...pled with 'Bride Comes ... good for about $28,00... ...ch. Latter flic...

...0

got away ...g at Alvin, ...s indicated, ...nto h.o. For ...ty close to ... months, with ...ws, looked for ...y even hit be... too, keeping up ...h 'Splendor' and

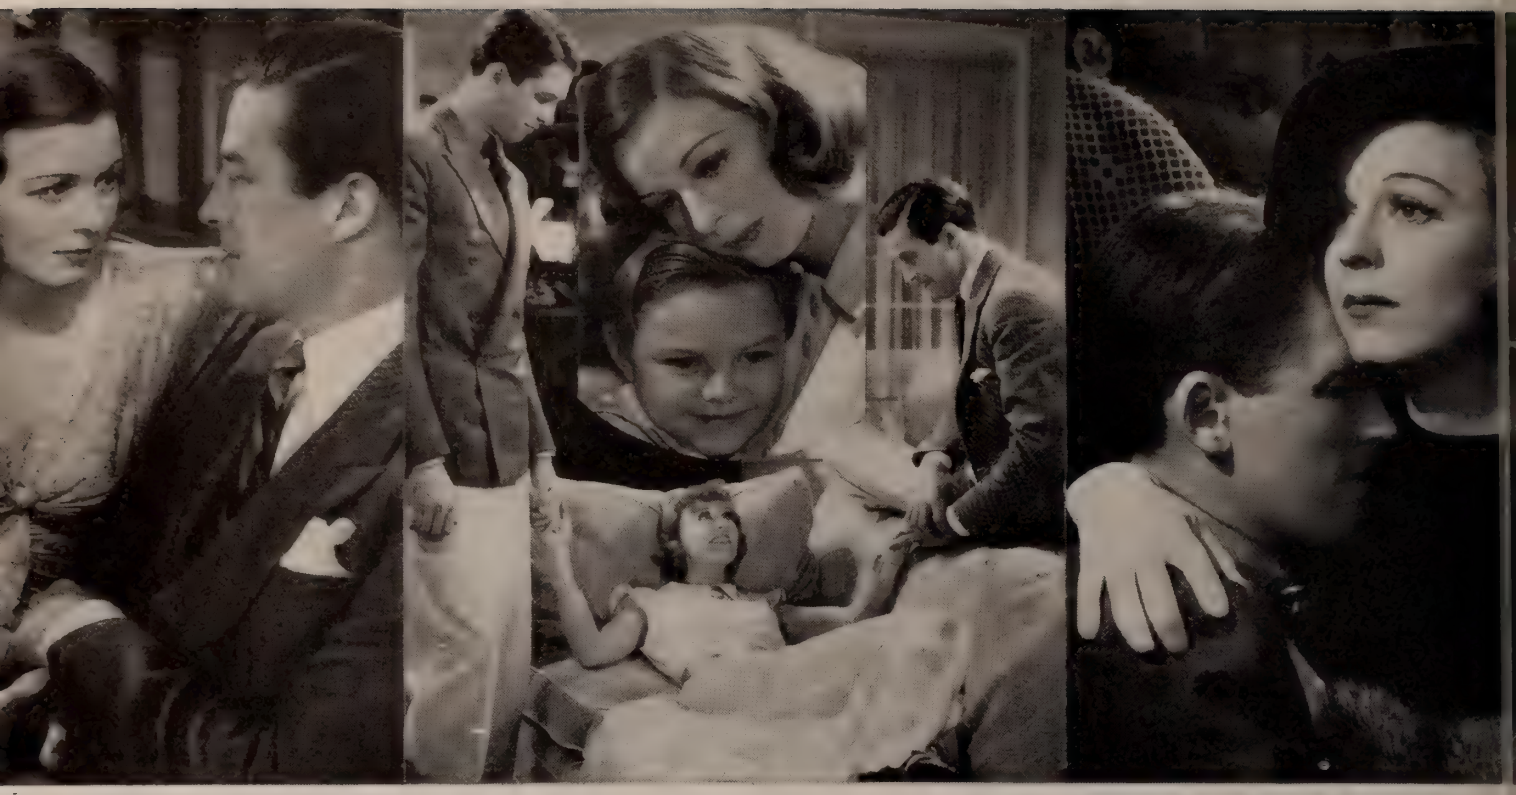
This Week

...2,000; 25-35-40)—...ession' (U). Got ...y, first time house ... opening, and started ...sh. Continued vig... ...dicates at least $10,... ...d better than some ...h house has had stage ...ll. That also means ...o.

...al ...session' $9,000,

...e (FP) (2,700; 50)—'Mag... ...t Obsession' (U). Big femme ... and Irene Dunne, local fa... ..., might get a five-figure gross. ... at least $9,000 is sure.

...BSESSION' IN ...



A composite of stills from Margaret Sullavan's production, "Next Time We Love," showing her two leading men, James Stewart and Ray Milland, and a lovely inset picture of Margaret and little Ronnie Cosbey, who is her son in the picture.

"Tailspin Tommy" Thrills Grown Ups in Ashland

LITHIA THEATRE
ASHLAND, ORE.

Jan. 3, 1936

Universal, Portland, O.

Dear Croddock:

Here's some good news. Your serial TAILSPIN TOMMY, which we just started in Ashland opened fine; kids all talking about it and adults are taking to it also.

This is the first time that I have seen adults get any interest in a serial. My usual experience wit them has been groans when they flashed on screen. Photography, acting and recording better than any serial I have ever seen to date. Wish to start TAILSPIN TOMMY in Week January 25."

LEE B. RYAN

Lithia Theatre

Ashland, Ore.

How Universal Newsreel Tip Tipped up Addis Ababa

IN the Weekly of December21, there appeared a story about the panic which overtook Addis Ababa when the telegram of Charles Ford to his cameraman, Howard Winner, was read in the capital of Ethiopia. It seemed that they imagined the editor of the Newsreel had advance information of an Italian strafing of the capital. Now comes a letter from Winner himself, telling Mr. Ford just exactly what happened when his telegram reached there. It is amusing, to say the least and shows what effects rumors have in every corner of the world. Here is the letter:

Addis Ababa, Ethiopia
December 14, 1935

Dear Mr. Ford:

Just a line to give you a brief idea of what a commotion your recent cablegram caused. Perhaps you read about it in the papers.

Well, I took the telegram, and a couple of people saw it and read the part about ADDIS ABABA NEXT SUGGEST YOU PICK OUT SHELTER NOW and failed to read the PRESUME. Without my knowing it they went to the government officials and governor and told them that a newsreel cameraman had received a telegram stating that Addis Ababa would be bombed. The next morning at 6 AM I was awakened by a loud banging on my door and my interpreter yelling "Geta, Geta." (which means Master, Master.) I opened the door and he excitedly told me that everybody was leaving town that the Italian planes were coming. Naturally, I got dressed, threw the cameras into the car and drove into the town. Well, what a sight. Taxis were running here and there charging $30. to take people to the surrounding hills, natives were moving their belongings out of their homes, all the police were on duty, natives were loading old rifles, white people rushing to the mountains, the Egyptian consul left town in his pyjamas, the Empress and Crown Prince fled from the palace, the schools sent pupils away in trucks, the chief of the radio station ordered that all the equipment weighing 60,000 pounds be removed from the radio station, machine guns were mounted around the palace, and newspapermen who were accustomed to getting up at

(Continued on Page 23)

A Book Like This for "Next Time We Love"

EVERY newspaper office is talking about the "Magnificent Obsession" booklet. It created such a splendid impression where it was received, that the Exploitation Department of Universal has decided to issue the same information material on "Next Time We Love."

The "Magnificent Obsession" booklet is illustrated in the cut at the left. It had a beautiful cover and its pages were arranged in the same way that the catalogues of cover papers are made, each page extending out beyond the preceding page.

The form of the "Next Time We Love" brochure will be slightly different and the book will differ considerably in size and shape, but it will contain the same information about the stars, the director, the author, the principal players and the facts that every reviewer will want to have at his finger tips about Margaret Sullavan's greatest picture to date. If the Editor of your paper doesn't receive one, let us know immediately and we will forward it to him.

Here is the fancy little booklet which was sent to motion picture editors in connection with "Magnificent Obsession" and which many of them have characterized as the most splendid piece of publicity ever to come into their hands.

"MAGNIFICENT" HELD OVER EVERYWHERE

(Continued from Page 6)

in Newark, the Alvin in Pittsburgh, the Fifth Avenue in Seattle, of which Variety says: "Almost 10,000 certain —terrific." The Tower in Kansas City, where it broke the record the first week; in Minneapolis, the big run at the Orpheum extended for a Loop run in the smaller World Theatre and according to Variety "is likely to reach dandy $4,000, biggest biz in months." Half that is regarded as pretty good. According to Variety, it pulled a "tremendous" 15,000 at the Orpheum.

The story is the same in almost every situation with hold-overs, extended runs and re-bookings. Already the picture has been re-booked for later runs in four different spots.

100 First Runs for "NEXT TIME WE LOVE"

(Continued from Page 6)

at the Orpheum, in St. Louis at the Fox, San Francisco at the Orpheum, in Richmond, Virginia, at the Capitol and State simultaneously; in Portland, Maine, at the Strand; in Pittsburgh at the Fulton, in Rochester at the Century, in Akron at the Palace, in Albany at the Strand, Detroit at the Fox, Louisville at the Strand, Memphis at the Palace, New Orleans at the Saenger, Philadelphia at the Boyd, Birmingham at the Alabama, Hartford, Conn., at the Majestic; Waterbury, Conn., at the State; Little Rock at the Capitol.

In Newark, the picture will play at the Bradford immediately after the Music Hall engagement is over.

During the week of February 14th there is another flock of bookings, bringing the total well over 100.

How Universal Newsreel Man Scared Ethiopians

(Continued from Page 22)

10 AM were around at 6 AM. After a few hours and things subsided a bit, I began to have my troubles. Everybody wanted to know where I got the telegram. The officials wanted to arrest me but they couldn't prove that it was my fault. Now I am known and pointed out as the 'man who got the telegram.'

Things are plenty dead around here and I doubt very much if they will ever bomb this place.

Give my regards to everyone.

Very truly yours,

Howard Winner

Ursula Parrott Agrees

(Continued from Page 10)

write a novel, I have in mind the reading public; I never give a thought to whether or not the story will be suitable for films. If it does happen to be considered good screen material, I want it to be a success, so why not cooperate with the producer, especially one who has put 30 years of his life into giving the public what it likes. The story, itself, I'm assured, has been altered very little."

HITS
UNIV IS M

RSAL

KING MORE AND MORE!

CAROLE LOMBARD

In Faith Baldwin's Cosmopolitan Magazine Story

"LOVE BEFORE BREAKFAST"

With PRESTON FOSTER, Janet Beecher, Cesar Romero, Betty Lawford, E. E. Clive, John King, Bert Roach, Pat Flaherty, Joyce Compton, Diana Gibson, Nan Gray, David Worth, Forrester Harvey, Richard Carle, George Andre Beranger, Douglas Blockley, Earl Eby, Jay Belasco, Priscilla Lawson, Robert McKenzie, Adamae Vaughan, Nick de Ruiz, Red Christie, Marion Wolfe. Directed by Walter Lang. Screenplay by Herbert Fields, author of "Fifty Million Frenchmen." An Edmund Grainger Production. A Universal Picture presented by Carl Laemmle.

▼ ▼

EDWARD ARNOLD* in "SUTTER'S GOLD"

From the epic novel by Blaise Cendrars

With LEE TRACY, BINNIE BARNES, Katherine Alexander, Harry Carey, Montagu Love, Addison Richards, C. Henry Gordon, John Miljan, Mitchell Lewis, William Gould, Jim Thorpe, Olaf Hytten, Russ Powell, Henry Cording, Walter Long, Gaston Glass, Robert Warwick, Billy Gilbert, Bryant Washburn, Morgan Wallace, William Janney. Adaptation by Gene Fowler. Directed by James Cruze. An Edmund Grainger Production. Presented by Carl Laemmle.

*By arrangement with B. P. Schulberg

▼ ▼

IRENE DUNNE in "SHOW BOAT"

(Version of 1936)

Edna Ferber's Immortal Classic

With ALLAN JONES, PAUL ROBESON, CHARLES WINNINGER, HELEN MORGAN, HELEN WESTLEY, QUEENIE SMITH, SAMMY WHITE, Donald Cook, Francis X. Mahoney, Hattie McDaniel, Marilyn Knowlden, Arthur Hohl, Charles Middleton, J. Farrell MacDonald, Charles Wilson, Mary Stewart, Harry Barras, Clarence Muse . . . New music and lyrics by Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein II . . . A Carl Laemmle, Jr. Production. Directed by JAMES WHALE. Presented by Carl Laemmle.

THE STARS OF "BAD GIRL"
JAMES DUNN
With PINKY
TOMLIN

RE TOGETHER AGAIN!

nd SALLY EILERS

Don't GET PERSONAL

Plus Spencer Charters • Doris Lloyd • George Cleveland • George Meeker • Charles Coleman • Charles Judels • Mike Morita • Tom Dugan • Frank Austin • Torben Meyer • Alene Carroll. Produced by David Diamond . . . Directed by William Nigh. A Universal Picture Presented by Carl Laemmle.

Consistently Good!

ALWAYS FULL OF LAUGHS—AND THAT'S WHAT OSWALDS ARE MADE FOR!...

"Just take a squint at my latest howl,
'SOFT BALL GAME'!"

OSWALD

The Lucky Rabbit

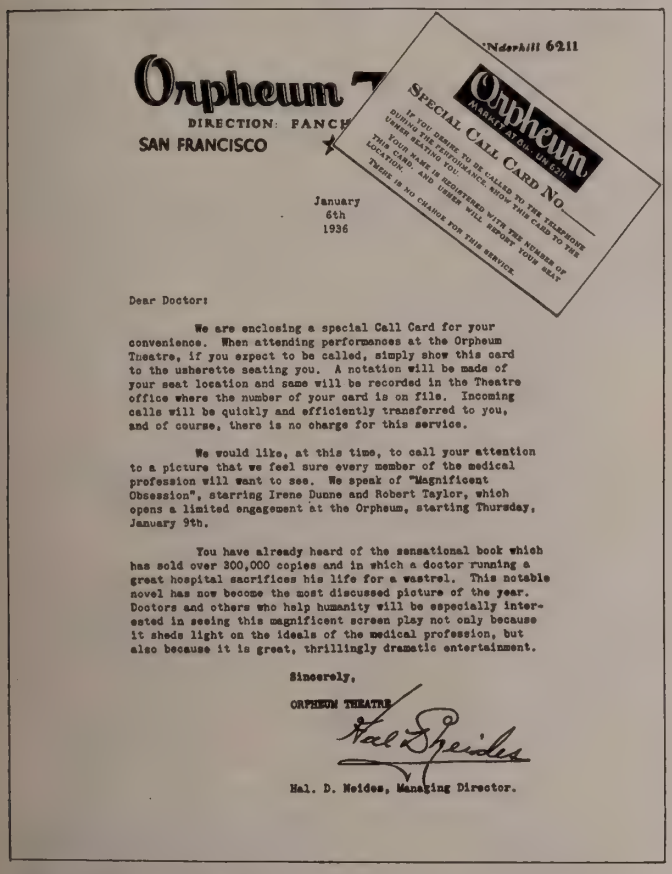
THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
SHOWMANSHIP SECTION
A DIGEST OF THE BEST EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

BENDHEIM'S BILLBOARD BARRAGE! NEIDES' NEW DOCTOR SERVICE!

New Angles from Richmond and San Francisco

ALL theatres running "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" are availing themselves of the Doctor tie-up angle outlined in the pressbook by writing special letters to the doctors drawing attention to the fact that the motivating force of the story is a doctor who sacrifices his life to help others.

It remained for Hal Niedes, Managing Director of the Orpheum Theatre, San Francisco, to put this idea to special use, and at the same time evolve a new doctor service courtesy at his theatre. Along with the letter concerning "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION," Mr. Neides included a special numbered call card for the doctor receiving the letter. On arriving at the theatre the doctor shows his numbered card to the usher seating him. His name is registered with the number of the card, together with notation of his seat location. If the doctor is called at the theatre, it is a simple matter to advise him without undue disturbance.



Orpheum
DIRECTION: PANCH
SAN FRANCISCO

Underhill 6211

Orpheum
SPECIAL CALL CARD No.____
PRESENT AT BOX OFFICE

IF YOU DESIRE TO BE CALLED TO THE TELEPHONE DURING THE PERFORMANCE SHOW THIS CARD TO THE USHER SEATING YOU. YOUR NAME IS REGISTERED WITH THE NUMBER OF THIS CARD, AND USHER WILL REPORT YOUR SEAT LOCATION. THERE IS NO CHARGE FOR THIS SERVICE.

January
6th
1936

Dear Doctor:

We are enclosing a special Call Card for your convenience. When attending performances at the Orpheum Theatre, if you expect to be called, simply show this card to the usherette seating you. A notation will be made of your seat location and same will be recorded in the Theatre office where the number of your card is on file. Incoming calls will be quickly and efficiently transferred to you, and of course, there is no charge for this service.

We would like, at this time, to call your attention to a picture that we feel sure every member of the medical profession will want to see. We speak of "Magnificent Obsession", starring Irene Dunne and Robert Taylor, which opens a limited engagement at the Orpheum, starting Thursday, January 9th.

You have already heard of the sensational book which has sold over 300,000 copies and in which a doctor running a great hospital sacrifices his life for a westrel. This notable novel has now become the most discussed picture of the year. Doctors and others who help humanity will be especially interested in seeing this magnificent screen play not only because it sheds light on the ideals of the medical profession, but also because it is great, thrillingly dramatic entertainment.

Sincerely,

ORPHEUM THEATRE

Hal D. Neides

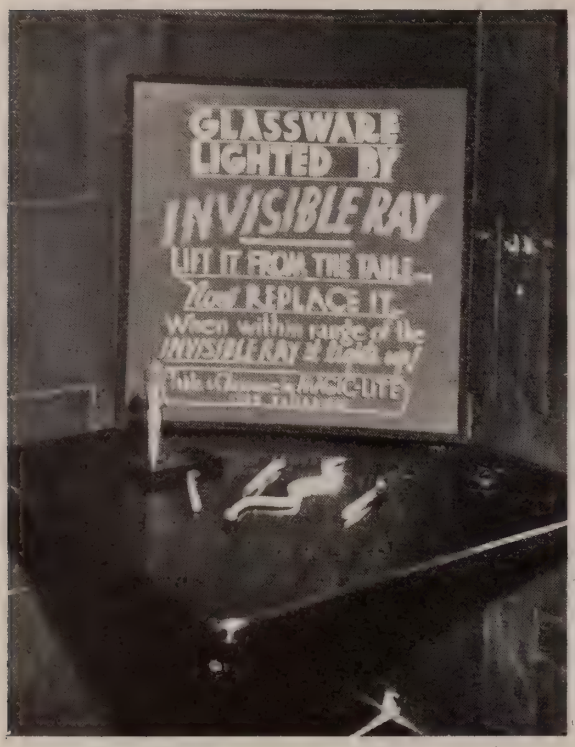
Hal. D. Neides, Managing Director.

Left: Hal Neides' letter to San Francisco doctors on "Magnificent Obsession" and special "call" service which he inaugurated with this picture. Superimposed on letter is the special service card.

Below: Worth four twenty-four sheets to bill this picture! That's what Sam Bendheim, Jr., of the State and Capitol Theatres, Richmond, Va., thinks of "Magnificent Obsession." The giant billing was posted ten days in advance and held during the run.

"LIBERTY" TRUCK FLEET HELPS SELL "OBSESSION"

Here's how the Buffalo distributor of "Liberty" cooperated with George McKenna, manager, and Dick Walsh, p. a., at Hayman's New Lafayette Theatre, in their "Magnificent Obsession" campaign. In addition to the bannered trucks, 500 "Liberty" carriers distributed 40,000 accessory roto heralds.



KINZLER CAPITALIZES ON FREAK PUBLICITY FOR "RAY" AT ROXY

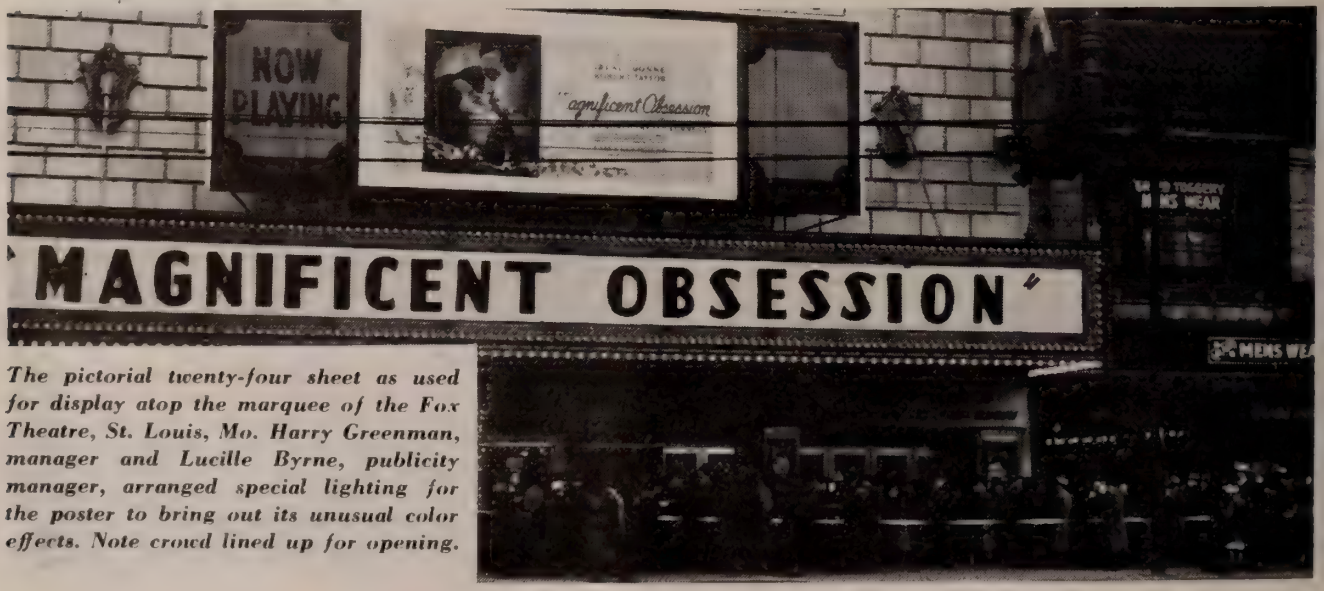
WHEN "THE INVISIBLE RAY," Universal's new Karloff mystery thriller, played at the New York Roxy Theatre, a tie-in was made with the great amount of newspaper publicity released at the Scientists' Convention concerning invisible rays that would bring death and destruction in the next war, blast cities, and, on the other hand, also prove a boon to civilization in other ways. These newspaper headlines were clipped and mounted on lobby boards where they attracted considerable attention tied up with stills from the Universal picture.

In the newspaper advertising, Morris Kinzler stressed the many intriguing scientific angles of the picture by using small dramatic illustrations with punchy "see" lines underneath each.

A tie-up was made with Movie Action Magazine which featured the story in its current issue. 2,000 cards were printed drawing attention to the story in the magazine and its run at the Roxy. These were planted at news stands throughout the metropolitan area.

As a lobby stunt, the Magic-Lite Company loaned the Roxy one of its amazing invisible ray tables with a set of mysterious glassware that lights up without any apparent electrical connection. A sign advised patrons that the glassware was lighted by the invisible ray. They were told to lift the articles and replace them. As they lifted them away from the table they would become dark. As they moved them closer to the table to set them down, the wierd light glowed from the glassware causing much excitement and plenty of word-of-mouth advertising.

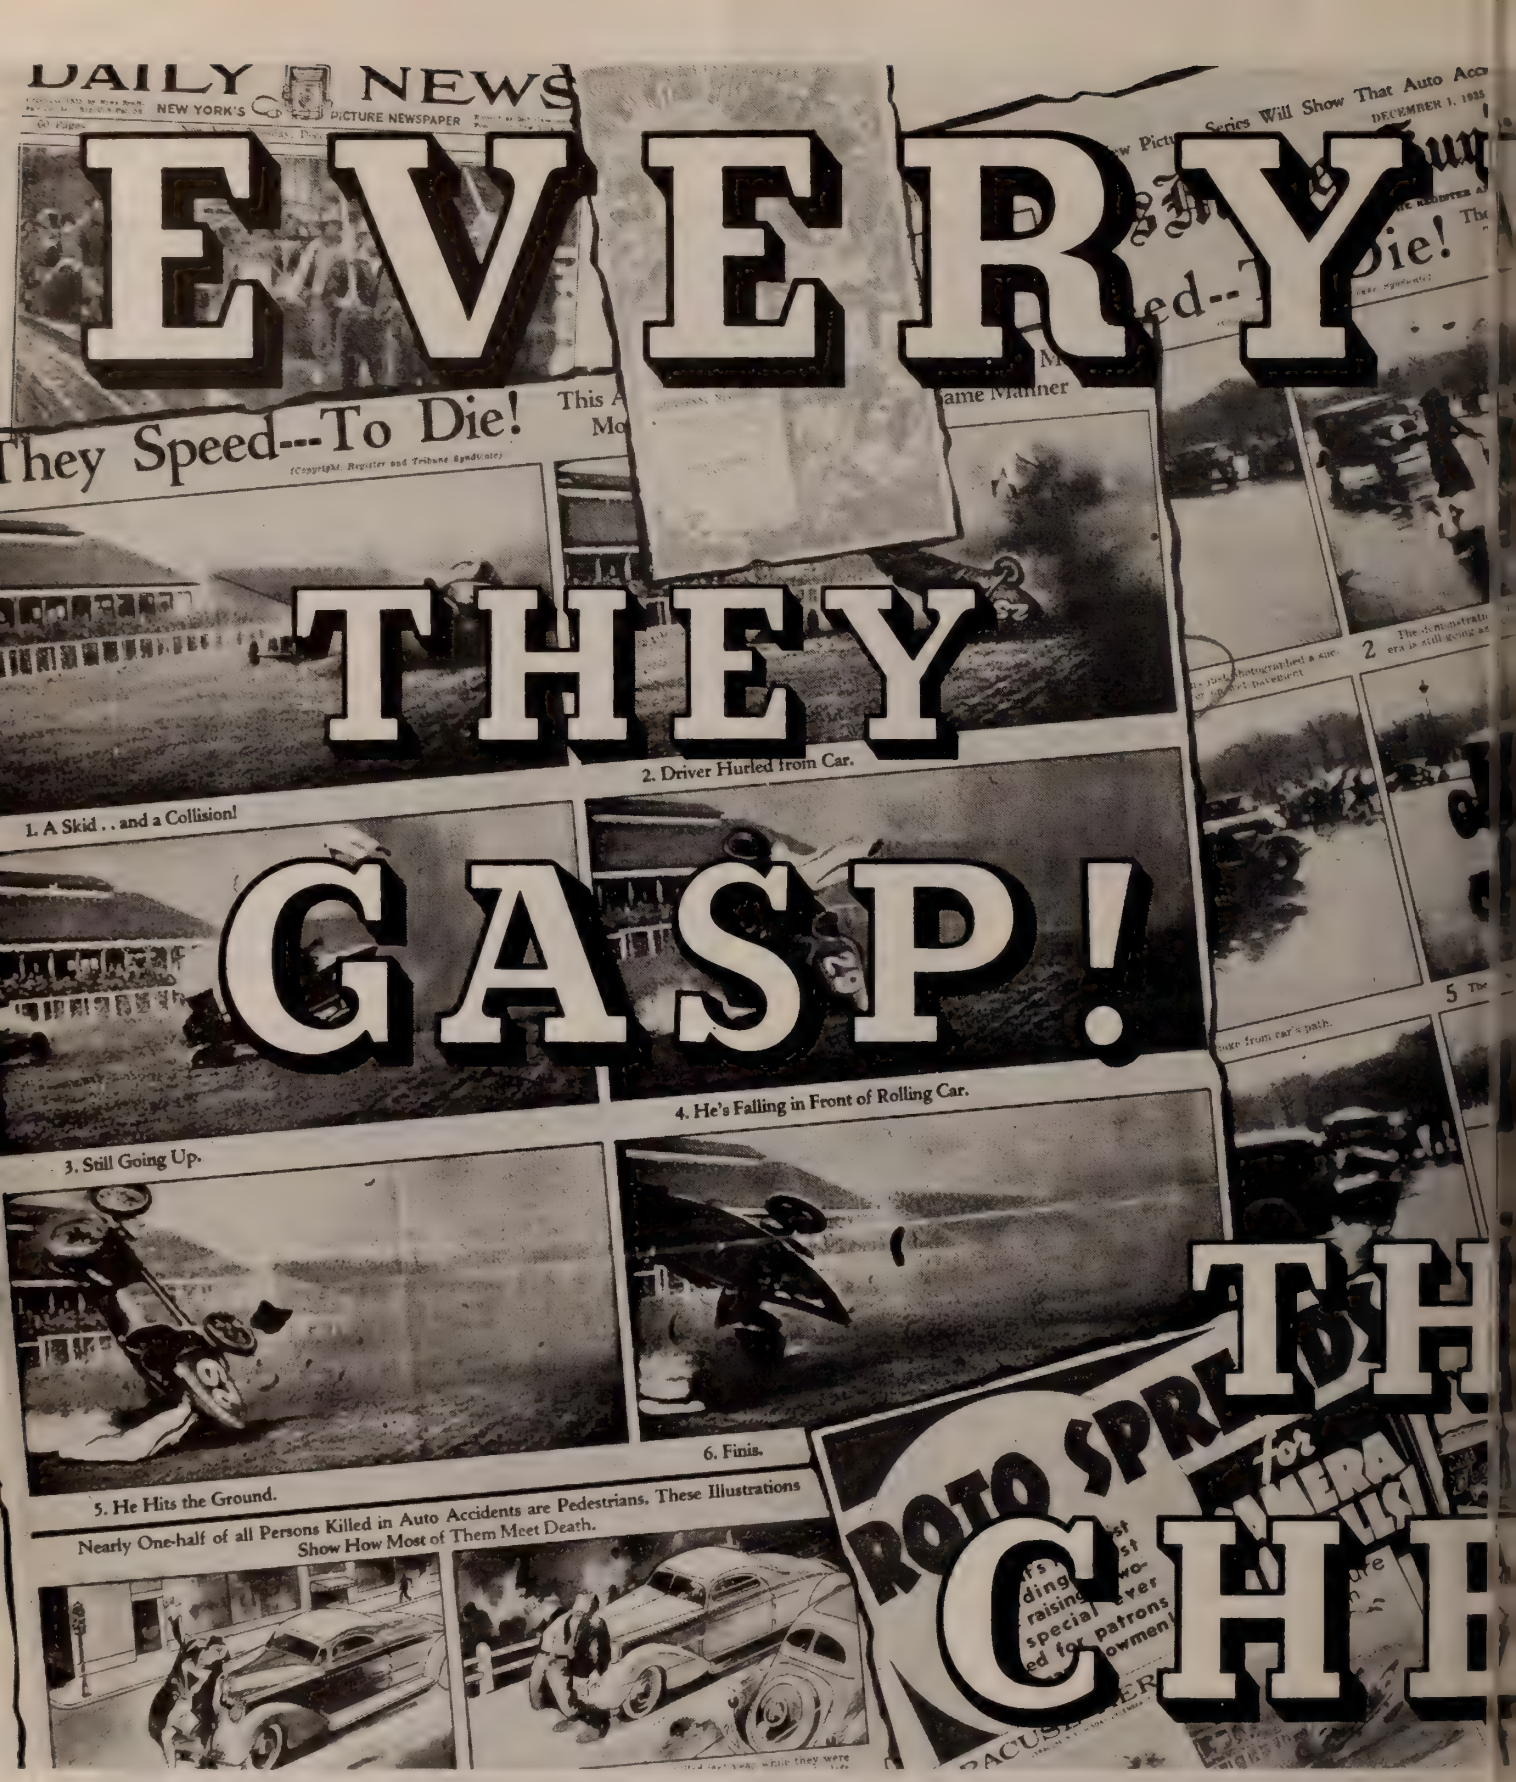
Universal, always pre-eminent in the field of mystery thrillers, has issued a very comprehensive pressbook on "THE INVISIBLE RAY" outlining many tried and proved stunts and numerous new ones.



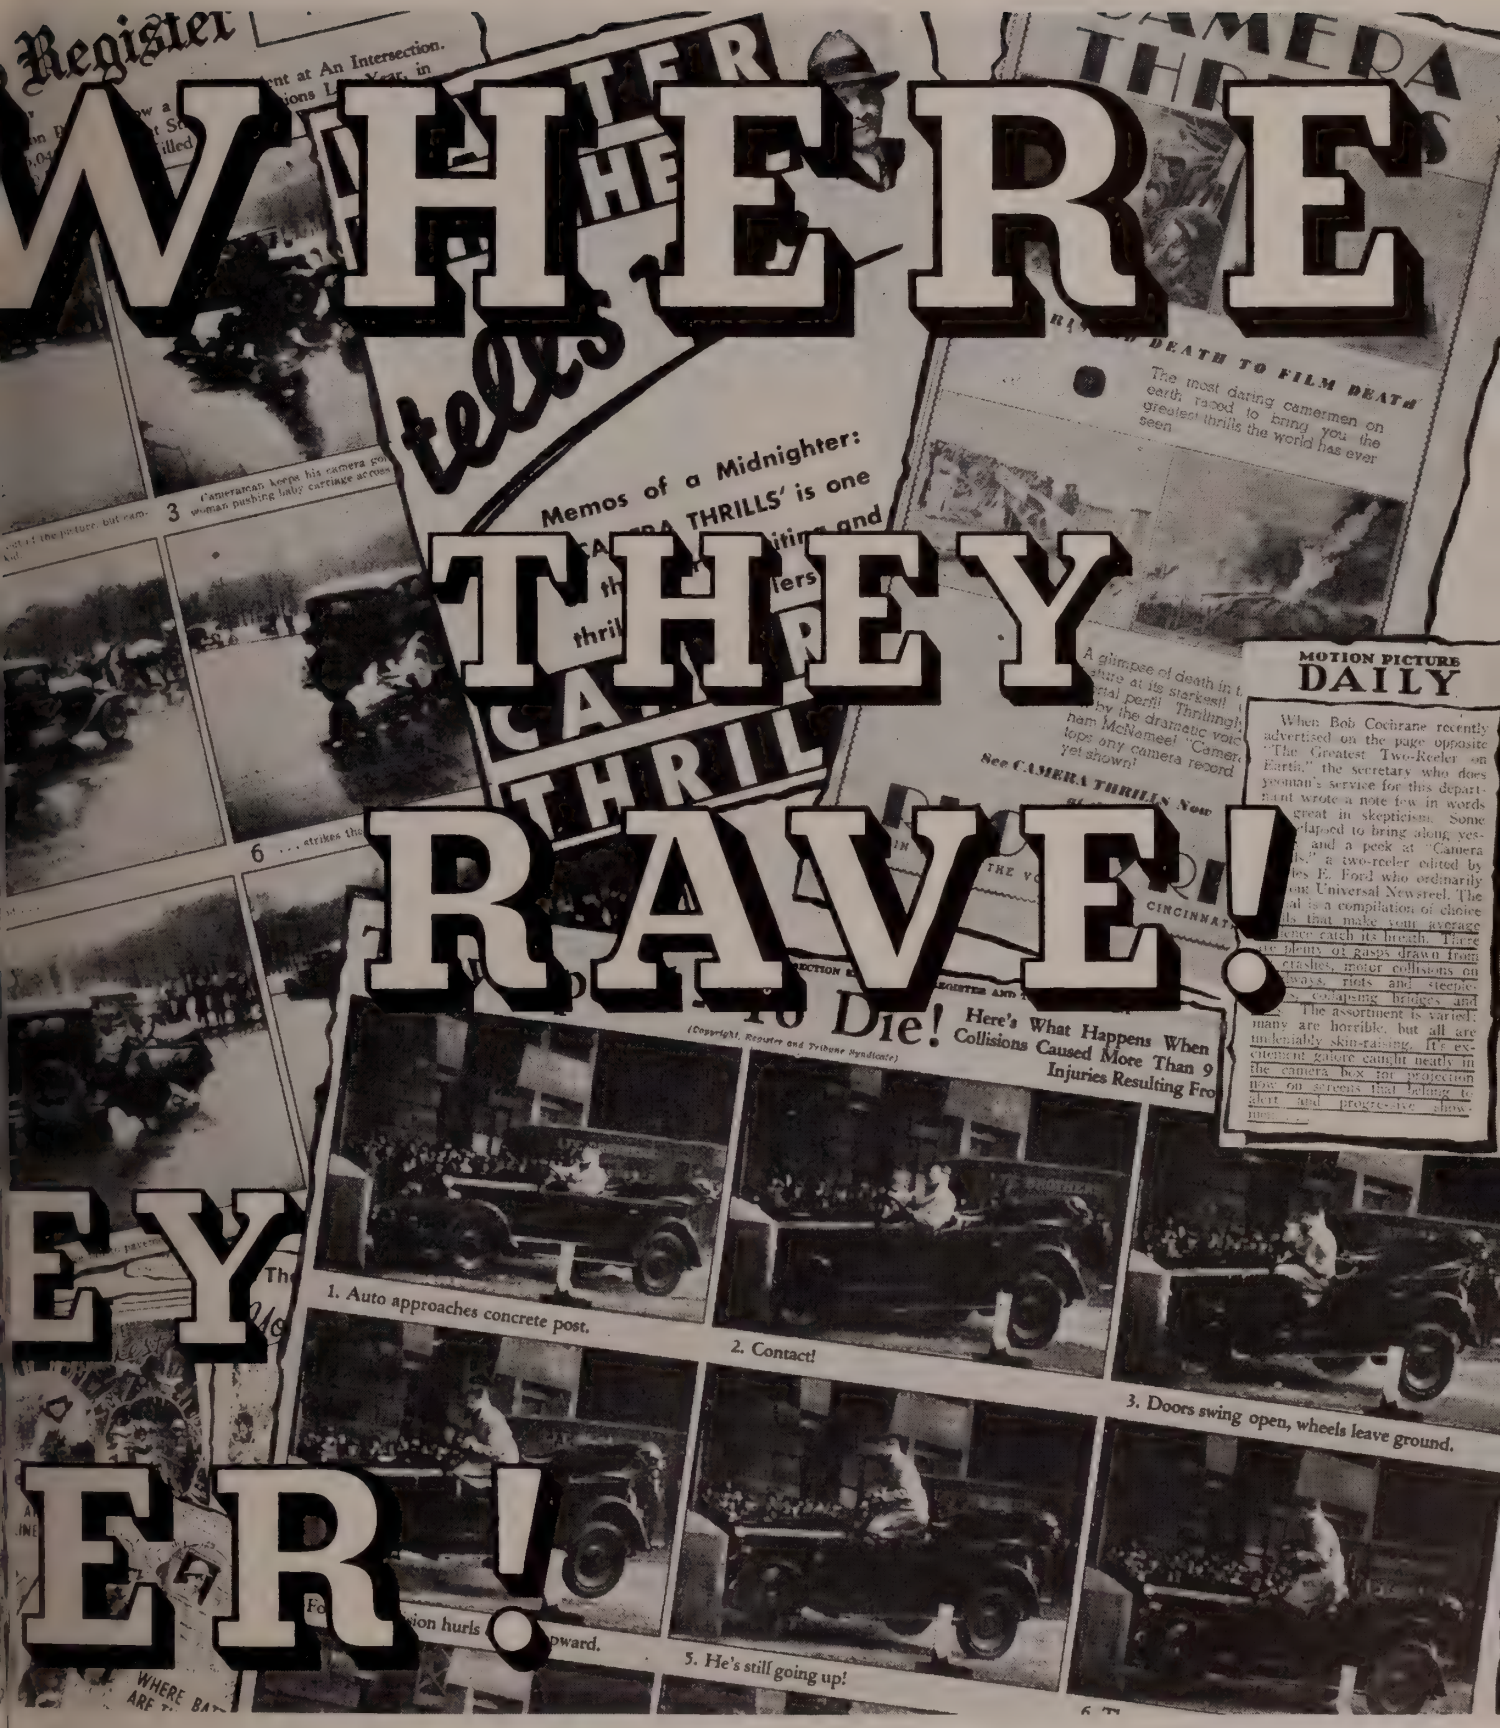
The pictorial twenty-four sheet as used for display atop the marquee of the Fox Theatre, St. Louis, Mo. Harry Greenman, manager and Lucille Byrne, publicity manager, arranged special lighting for the poster to bring out its unusual color effects. Note crowd lined up for opening.

"OBSESSION" INSPIRES THE AD MEN!

Due to the great reduction in size, the reproductions of these ads make them appear less handsome than they actually are, without however obscuring the excellent layouts and copy. (1) Three column x 10" from Orpheum, San Francisco (2) Four column x 4" from Alvin, Pittsburgh (3) Two column x 15" from Pantages and Hillstreet, Los Angeles (4) Two column x 4" teaser ad from Denver Theatre, Denver (5) Three column x 9½" from Albee, Cincinnati (6) Double column x 11" from Uptown, Toronto, Ont.



"CAMERA THRILLS"



THE MOST ADVERTISED, PUBLICIZED AND PATRONIZED
TWO-REEL WONDER IN THE HISTORY OF THRILLDOM!

From

UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.

ROCKEFELLER CENTER

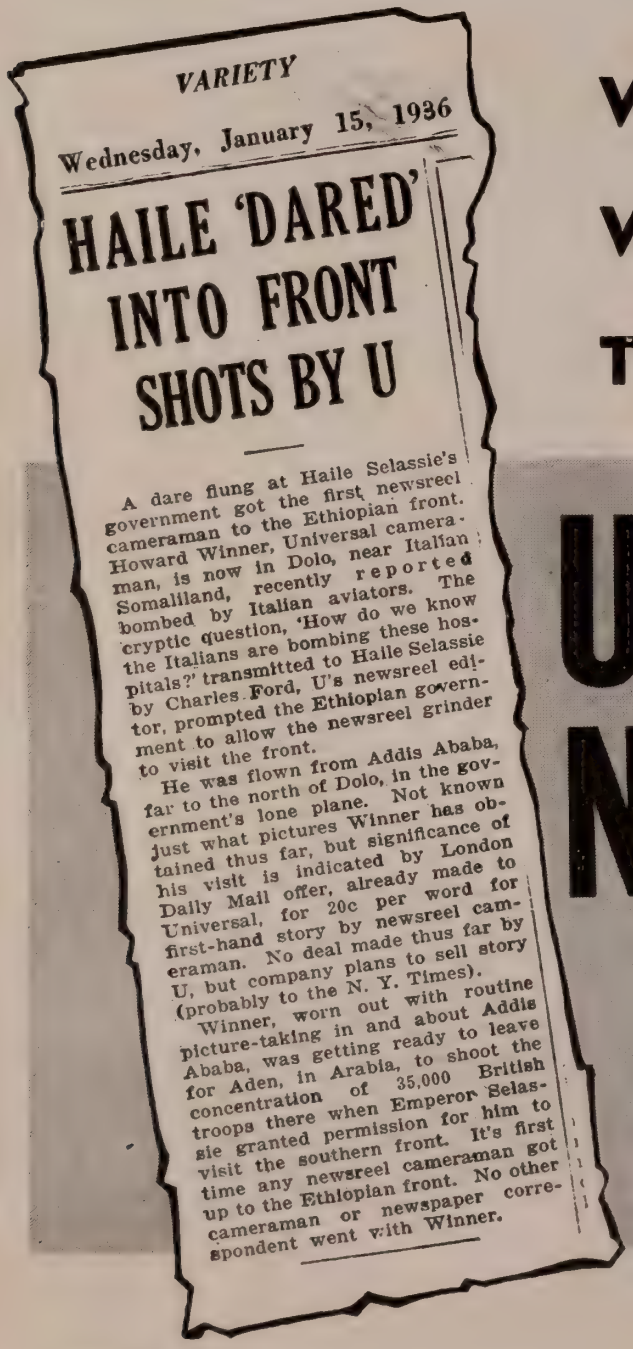
NEW YORK CITY

ROBERT B WENNER
22 CROSS ST
MALDEN MASS

Sec. 562 P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE

Paid

Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.



VARIETY

Wednesday, January 15, 1936

HAILE 'DARED' INTO FRONT SHOTS BY U

A dare flung at Haile Selassie's government got the first newsreel cameraman to the Ethiopian front. Howard Winner, Universal cameraman, is now in Dolo, near Italian Somaliland, recently reported bombed by Italian aviators. The cryptic question, 'How do we know the Italians are bombing these hospitals?' transmitted to Haile Selassie by Charles Ford, U's newsreel editor, prompted the Ethiopian government to allow the newsreel grinder to visit the front.

He was flown from Addis Ababa, far to the north of Dolo, in the government's lone plane. Not known just what pictures Winner has obtained thus far, but significance of his visit is indicated by London Daily Mail offer, already made to Universal, for 20c per word for first-hand story by newsreel cameraman. No deal made thus far by U, but company plans to sell story (probably to the N. Y. Times).

Winner, worn out with routine picture-taking in and about Addis Ababa, was getting ready to leave for Aden, in Arabia, to shoot the concentration of 35,000 British troops there when Emperor Selassie granted permission for him to visit the southern front. It's first time any newsreel cameraman got up to the Ethiopian front. No other cameraman or newspaper correspondent went with Winner.

WHERE THERE'S A WILL AND A WAY, THERE, ALWAYS, IS—

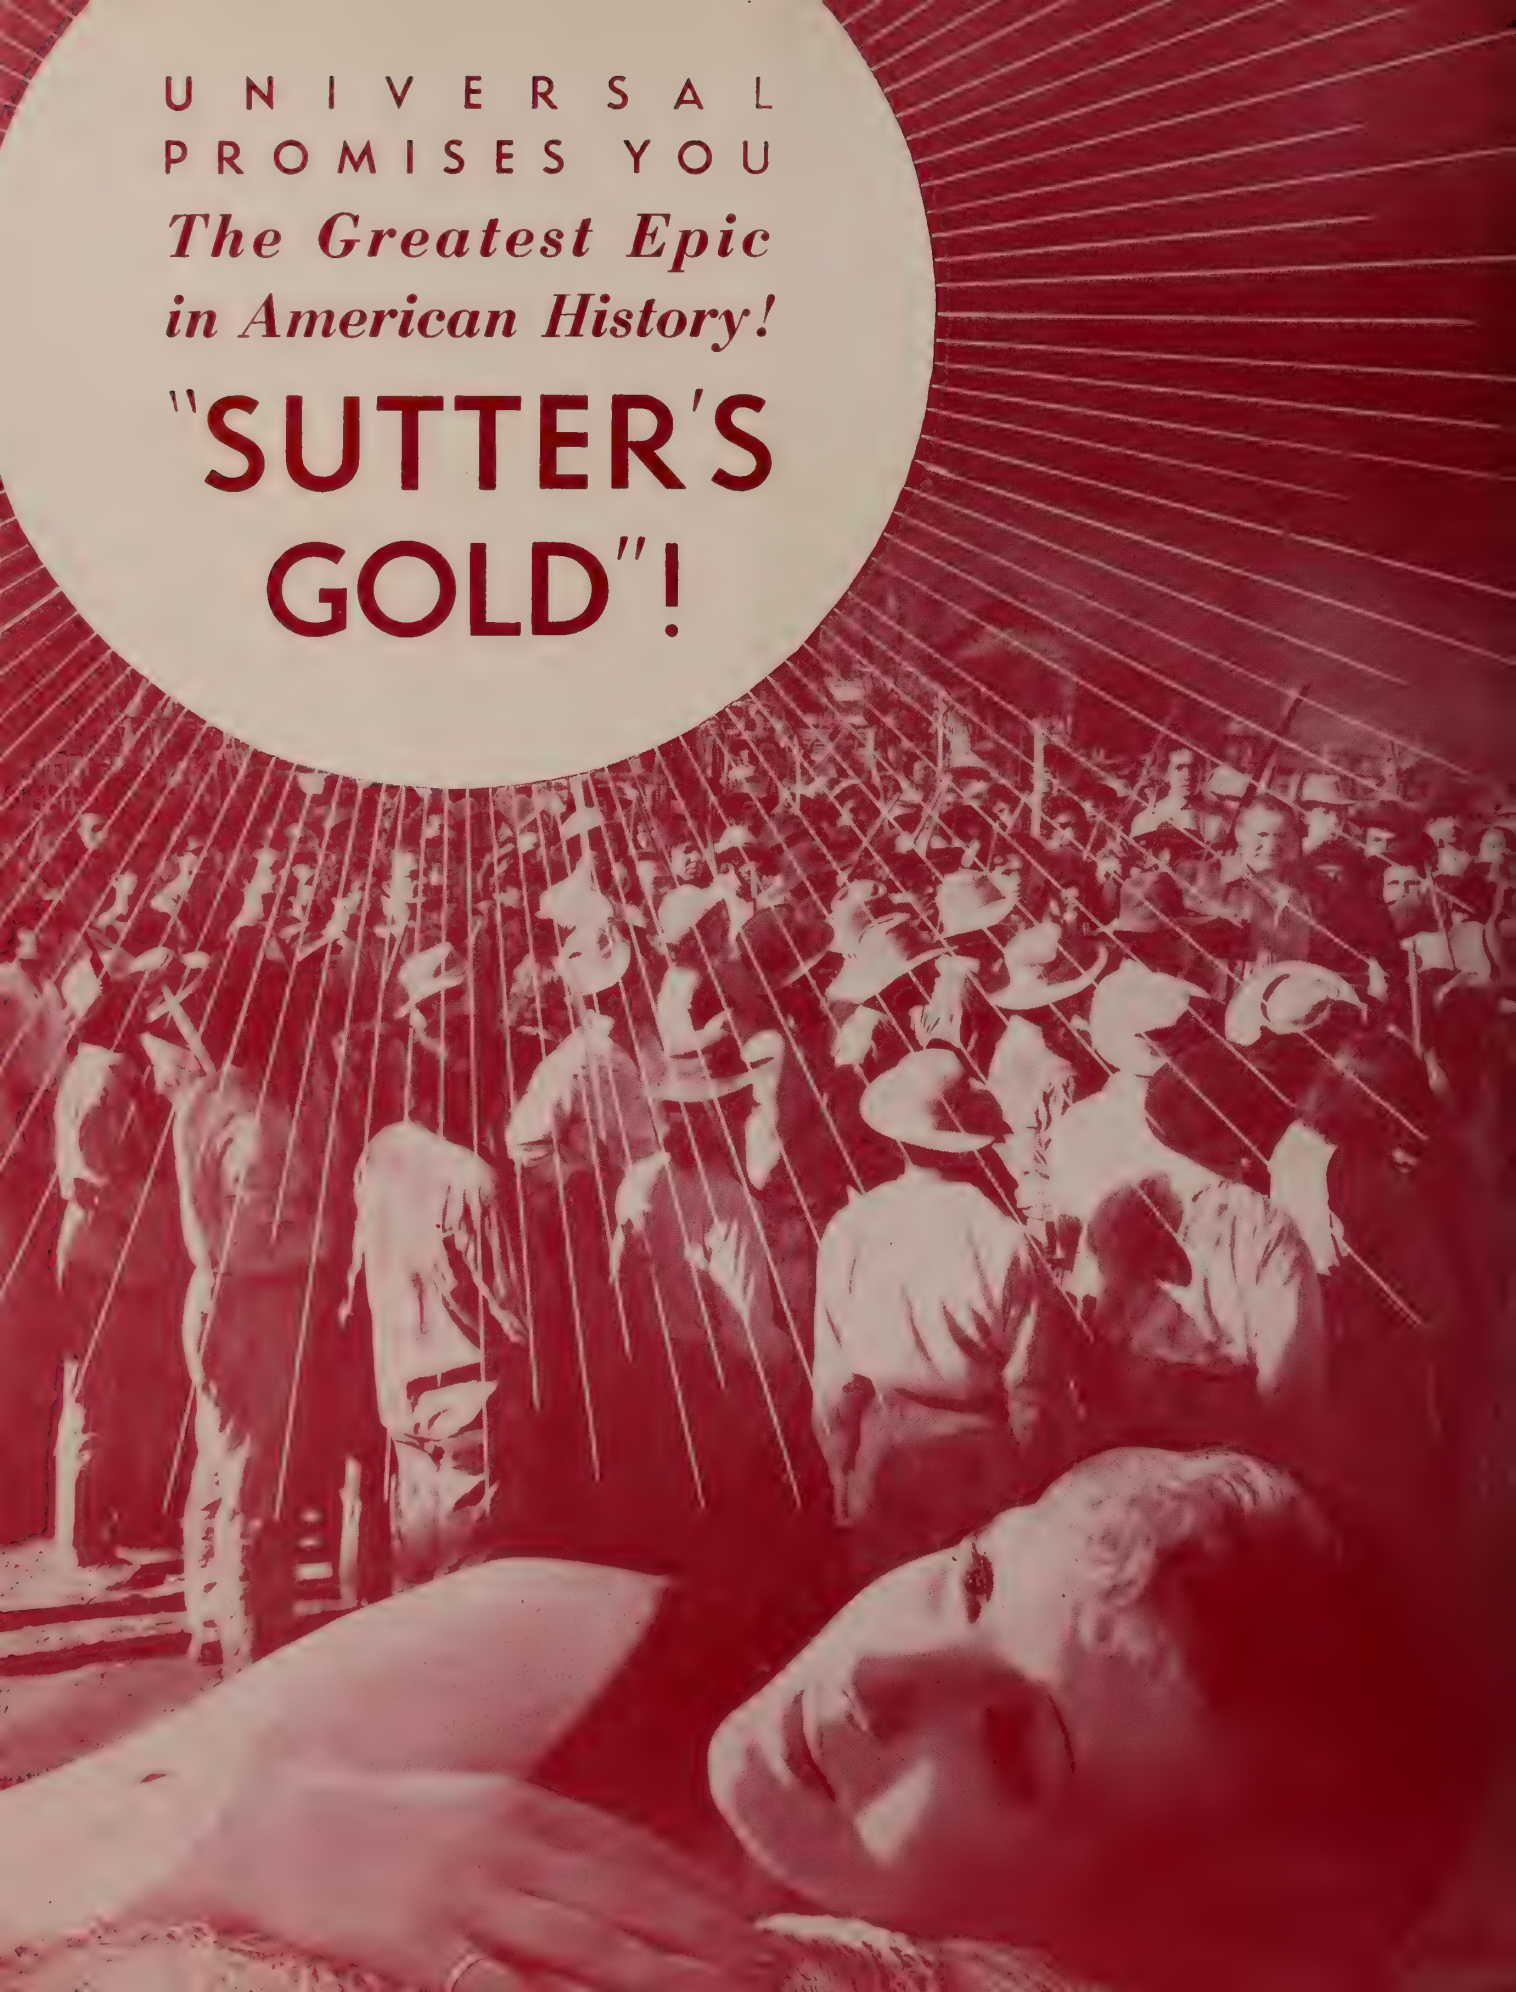
UNIVERSAL NEWSREEL

with

GRAHAM McNAMEE

Printed In U. S. A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
VOL. 38, NO. 1
FEB. 1, 1936



UNIVERSAL
PROMISES YOU
The Greatest Epic
in American History!
"SUTTER'S
GOLD"!

IF YOU'RE A PROJECTIONIST AND A "RIGHT GUY"...

PLEASE LISTEN TO THIS:

- Innumerable exhibitors and exchanges have received complaints from their projectionists about the unnecessary and destructive practice by some booth-men of scratching, punching holes and otherwise mutilating film for change-over cues, when prints are already marked with standard change-over cues.

- Aside from the enormous cost of replacing the damaged film, this practice delays delivery of reels and works great hardships on other projectionists.

- All we can do is appeal to your sense of fairness. Please be as considerate of the other fellow as we are of you.

UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.

AN OPEN LETTER

(Especially Those

No. 848 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

I quote a paragraph from the Motion Picture Herald:

"The right of an independent exhibitor to show two pictures on a single program without contractual interference from the large distributors was upheld for the second time within a year by a decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia late last week in the so-called Perelman case."

In other words, the court upholds double features.

Why quarrel about it? Why quibble about it? Why not be decent about it?

Forget your hatred of certain exhibitor organizations and I mean even such organizations as are headed by men who make a fat living out of stirring up trouble between producers and exhibitors.

Why not forget greedy men? Why not deal, for a change, with plain principle?

Practically, you realize that there is no real argument against the use of double features. If the movie fans want them, they are going to get them, no matter what any court says. If the movie fans dont want them, they wont live, still regardless of court decrees.

Just pretend that you own only one theatre. Pretend that your opposition gets the very best of the first run

TO PRODUCERS!

Who Own Theatres)

pictures. Pretend that you cannot get any of these first runs. In such a case what would you do? The chances are a million to one that you would jump to double features to save your hide.

And that would be a pretty smart thing to do. In fact anything you could do to save your business would be smart.

Now then, you have tried to lick the independent theatre by gobbling up all the first runs. He licked you with double features. Then you tried to lick him by running double features yourself. In many cases you amazed yourself with excellent results. In others you flopped. Then you tried to get help through the courts and you tried to outlaw double features.

Why not admit that the other fellow has as much right to live as you have?

Universal is hurt as much as it is helped by double-featuring; but it still feels that the exhibitor who wants to run double features has a right to do his damndest to exist.

Lick your competitor if you have brains enough, but dont rely on brawn. Play fair. In these days the courts wont stand for anything else. Dont lead with your chin. Be humble. Live and let live. Dont be too darned smart.

Carl Laemmle

BUSINESS IS

held over

BALTIMORE, 2nd wk.
BOSTON, 2nd wk.
BROOKLYN, 2nd wk.
BUFFALO, 3rd wk.
CHICAGO, 2nd wk.
HARTFORD, 3rd wk.
HOUSTON, 2nd wk.
KANSAS CITY, 2nd week
LOS ANGELES, 2nd week
LOUISVILLE, 2nd wk.
NEWARK, 2nd wk.
NORFOLK, 2nd wk.
PHILADELPHIA, 2nd week
PITTSBURGH, 2nd week
PORTLAND, ORE., 2nd week
RICHMOND, 2nd wk.
ROANOKE, 2nd wk.
SAN DIEGO, 2nd wk.
ST. LOUIS, 2nd wk.
SAN FRANCISCO, 2nd week
TORONTO, 2nd wk.
TROY, 2nd week
WASHINGTON, D. C., 2nd week

"Obsession" Held At Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 22.—"Magnificent Obsession" hit Hollywood Boulevard like a whirlwind, and before the second week at Pantages was over the take was more than double the first week par, $7,500. It held up to a par $8,000 in its second week at the Hillstreet.

"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" (Un
HILLSTREET—(2,700), 25c-40c, 7 da, 2nd week. Gross: $8,000. (Average, $8,00
"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" (Univ.)
PANTAGES—(3,000), 25c-40c, 7 days. 2nd week. Gross: $7,500. (Average, $3,200)

MOTION PICTURE DAILY

"Obsession" $6,500 In Minneapolis

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 20. — "Magnificent Obsession" was the big noise of the week here. It ran the Orpheum gross up to $6,500, over par by $1,000.

"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" (Univ.)
ORPHEUM—(2,900), 25c-40c, 7 days. Gross: $6,500. (Average, $5,500)

"Obsession" Leads Milwaukee Picku

AUKEE, Jan. 20. — Busin last week and "Magnificent C on" rode to town on an $8,8 ke for nine days at the Warner, th was $3,800 above par.

"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" (Univ.
WARNER—(2,400), 25c-40c, 9 day Gross: $8,800. (Average, $5,000)
"A TALE OF TWO CITIES" (M-G-M
WISCONSIN—(3,200), 25c-40c, 8 day Gross: $8,500. (Average, $8,000)

"Obsession" Sets Record in K. C.

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 20.—"Magnificent Obsession" at the Tower more than doubled par by taking $14,500. It was the best week by far in the history of the house.

"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" (Univ.)
TOWER—(2,200), 25c-35c, 7 days. Stage: Jack Major, Howard Weslee and his Debutantes, and the Three Sizes. Gross: $14,500. (Average, $7,000)
"AH, WILDERNESS" (M-G-M)
MIDLAND—(4,000), 25c-40c

"Obsession" Grabs $15,696, Buffalo

BUFFALO, Jan. 19. — "Magnificent Obsession" was the big money-maker here in a post-New Year week of stimulated box offices. It drew $15,696 to the Lafayette, more than doubling par, and was held over.

"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" (Univ.)
LAFAYETTE—(3,300), 25c, 7 days. Gross: $15,696. (Average, $6,000)

'Obsesh' 14G. Both Hold

Boyd (2,400: 40-55)—'Magnificent Obsession' (U). Figures to build with femme trade and ought to get second week; $14,000 likely. Last week 'Dangerous' (WB) got 80-80

'Obsesh' Sensash in 3d Week at Lafayette to $9,000

Buffalo, Jan. 21.

Best Exploitation: Buffalo)

Downtown grosses only avere in current week. Lafayette continuing with 'Magnificent Obsession' for third week.

Lafayette (Ind) (3,400; 25)—'Magnificent Obsession' (U) (3rd wk). Continues to pack them in after two weeks of capacity business, and should do around $9,000 for its final stanza. Last week, second week for the feature got $11,500.

'OBSESSION,' $10,000, BIG IN PORTLAND, ORE

Portland, Ore., Jan. 21.

Estimates for This Week

Broadway (Parker) (2,000; 25-40) —'Magnificent Obsession' (U). Great $10,000. [illegible] in 10 days [illegible]

Keith's (RKO) (1,830; 25-35-60)—'Obsession' (U) (2d week). Holding up to big $9,000. Last week same pic got sock $15,000.

Palasco (Radin) (1,100; 25-35-50)—last week for $13,500, nifty.

Adams (Balaban) (1,700; 25-40)—'Obsession' (U). Back here after big session two weeks ago at Fox, and pic is endangering house record; excellent $7,500.

(20th) fairly good at $3,400.

Circle (Katz-Feld) (2,600; 25-40) —'Magnificent Obsession' (U). Repeat directly following its run at the Indiana.

Tower (Rewot) (2,200; 25-35)—'Magnificent Obsession' (U) (2d wk) and 'Rumbaland Revels,' revue. In second week, hitting strong, $11,000 great after a record $14,850 fir seven days.

if you happen to

MAGNIFICEN

MAGNIFICENT!

Obsession" Sensational On the Coast

Los Angeles, Jan. 19.—"Magnificent Obsession" cracked a few records in sensational day and date runs at the Pantages and Hillstreet. The take at the former, $12,400, was $9,200 over normal. At the latter the $11,500 gross was $3,500 over average.

"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" (Univ.)
HILLSTREET—(2,700), 25c-40c, 7 days.
Gross: $11,500. (Average, $8,000)
"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" (Univ.)
PANTAGES—(3,000), 25c-40c, 7 days.
Gross: $12,400. (Average, $3,200)

San Francisco, Jan. 20.—"Magnificent Obsession" was about the biggest sensation this town has had in some time. It piled up $13,000 at the Orpheum, practically doubling the normal take, in spite of the fact that all the other first runs except two were in a slump.

"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" (Univ.)
ORPHEUM—(2,440), 15c-25c-35c-40c, (Average, $6,800) days. Gross: $13,000.
"DANGEROUS" (W. B.)

Obsession" Pulls $7,000, Louisville

"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" (Univ.) 7 days.
STRAND—(1,500), 15c-25c-40c, ($2,500)
Gross: $7,000. (Average,

"Obsession" Pittsburgh's Hit, $12,500

Pittsburgh, Jan. 20.—"The Magnificent Obsession" at the Alvin was far ahead of anything here last week, claiming around $12,500, more than double average, for the biggest thing this house has had since "Steamboat 'Round the Bend." It got away to a great start, continued to build and was held over.

"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" (Univ.)
ALVIN—(2,000), 25c-40c, 7 days. Gross: $12,500. (Average, $5,500)

"Obsession" Pulls $17,500, Cincy Top

Cincinnati, Jan. 20.—"Magnificent Obsession" was the high spot of the week with $17,500 at the RKO Albee, plussing average by $5,500. It will be returned.

"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" (Univ.) 7 days.
RKO ALBEE—(3,300), 35c-42c, ($12,000)
Gross: $17,500. (Average,
"COLLEG [illegible] (Para.) 7 days

VARIETY

'Obsesh,' Hot H.O.

Pantages (Pan) (2,700; 25-35-40-55)—'Magnificent Obsession' (U) (2nd week). Very big night trade with mats far above average, cinch $7,500.

RKO (2,950; 25-35-40-55)—'Magnificent Obsession' (U) (2nd week). Fitting far above holdover business and should easily reach $7,500 mark, more than average that good pics in the house on initial stanza.

Estimates for This Week

Alvin (Harris) (2,000; 25-35-40)—'Magnificent Obsession' (U) (2d week). Flicker was a b. o. smash from word go.

Keith Memorial (RKO) (2,900; 25-35-50)—'Magnificent Obsession' (U) (2d week). Holdover aiming at $10,000, good; first week very good at $20,100.

Palace (RKO) (2,500; 35-55-65)—'Obsession' (U) and vaude. Picture holding over with new vaude lineup headed by Jane Froman. Sweet $23,000.

'OBSESH,' $18,000, BEST IN SNOWBOUND NEW'K

Newark, Jan. 21.

(Best Exploitation: Branford)

An ice storm Saturday followed by heavy snow and sleet Sunday did no good at all here especially with Newark's desire to do all its business on week-ends. It is a question how much of the lost business will be made up during the week. There is one hit picture here, 'Magnificent Obsession.'

World (Stefles) (350; 25-35-40-55)—'Magnificent Obsession' (U). Moved here from Orpheum for extended loop run and likely to reach dandy $4,000, biggest biz in months.

ext. runs

ALBANY
ALTOONA
ATLANTA
CHICAGO
(after holdover)
CINCINNATI
CLEVELAND
COLUMBUS
DULUTH DETROIT
DAYTON
EVANSVILLE
FT. WAYNE
FT. WORTH
INDIANAPOLIS
MILWAUKEE
MINNEAPOLIS
MONTREAL
NEW ORLEANS
READING
SALT LAKE CITY
SAN ANTONIO
SAN FRANCISCO
(after holdover)
SEATTLE
SYRACUSE
SIOUX FALLS
TOLEDO UTICA

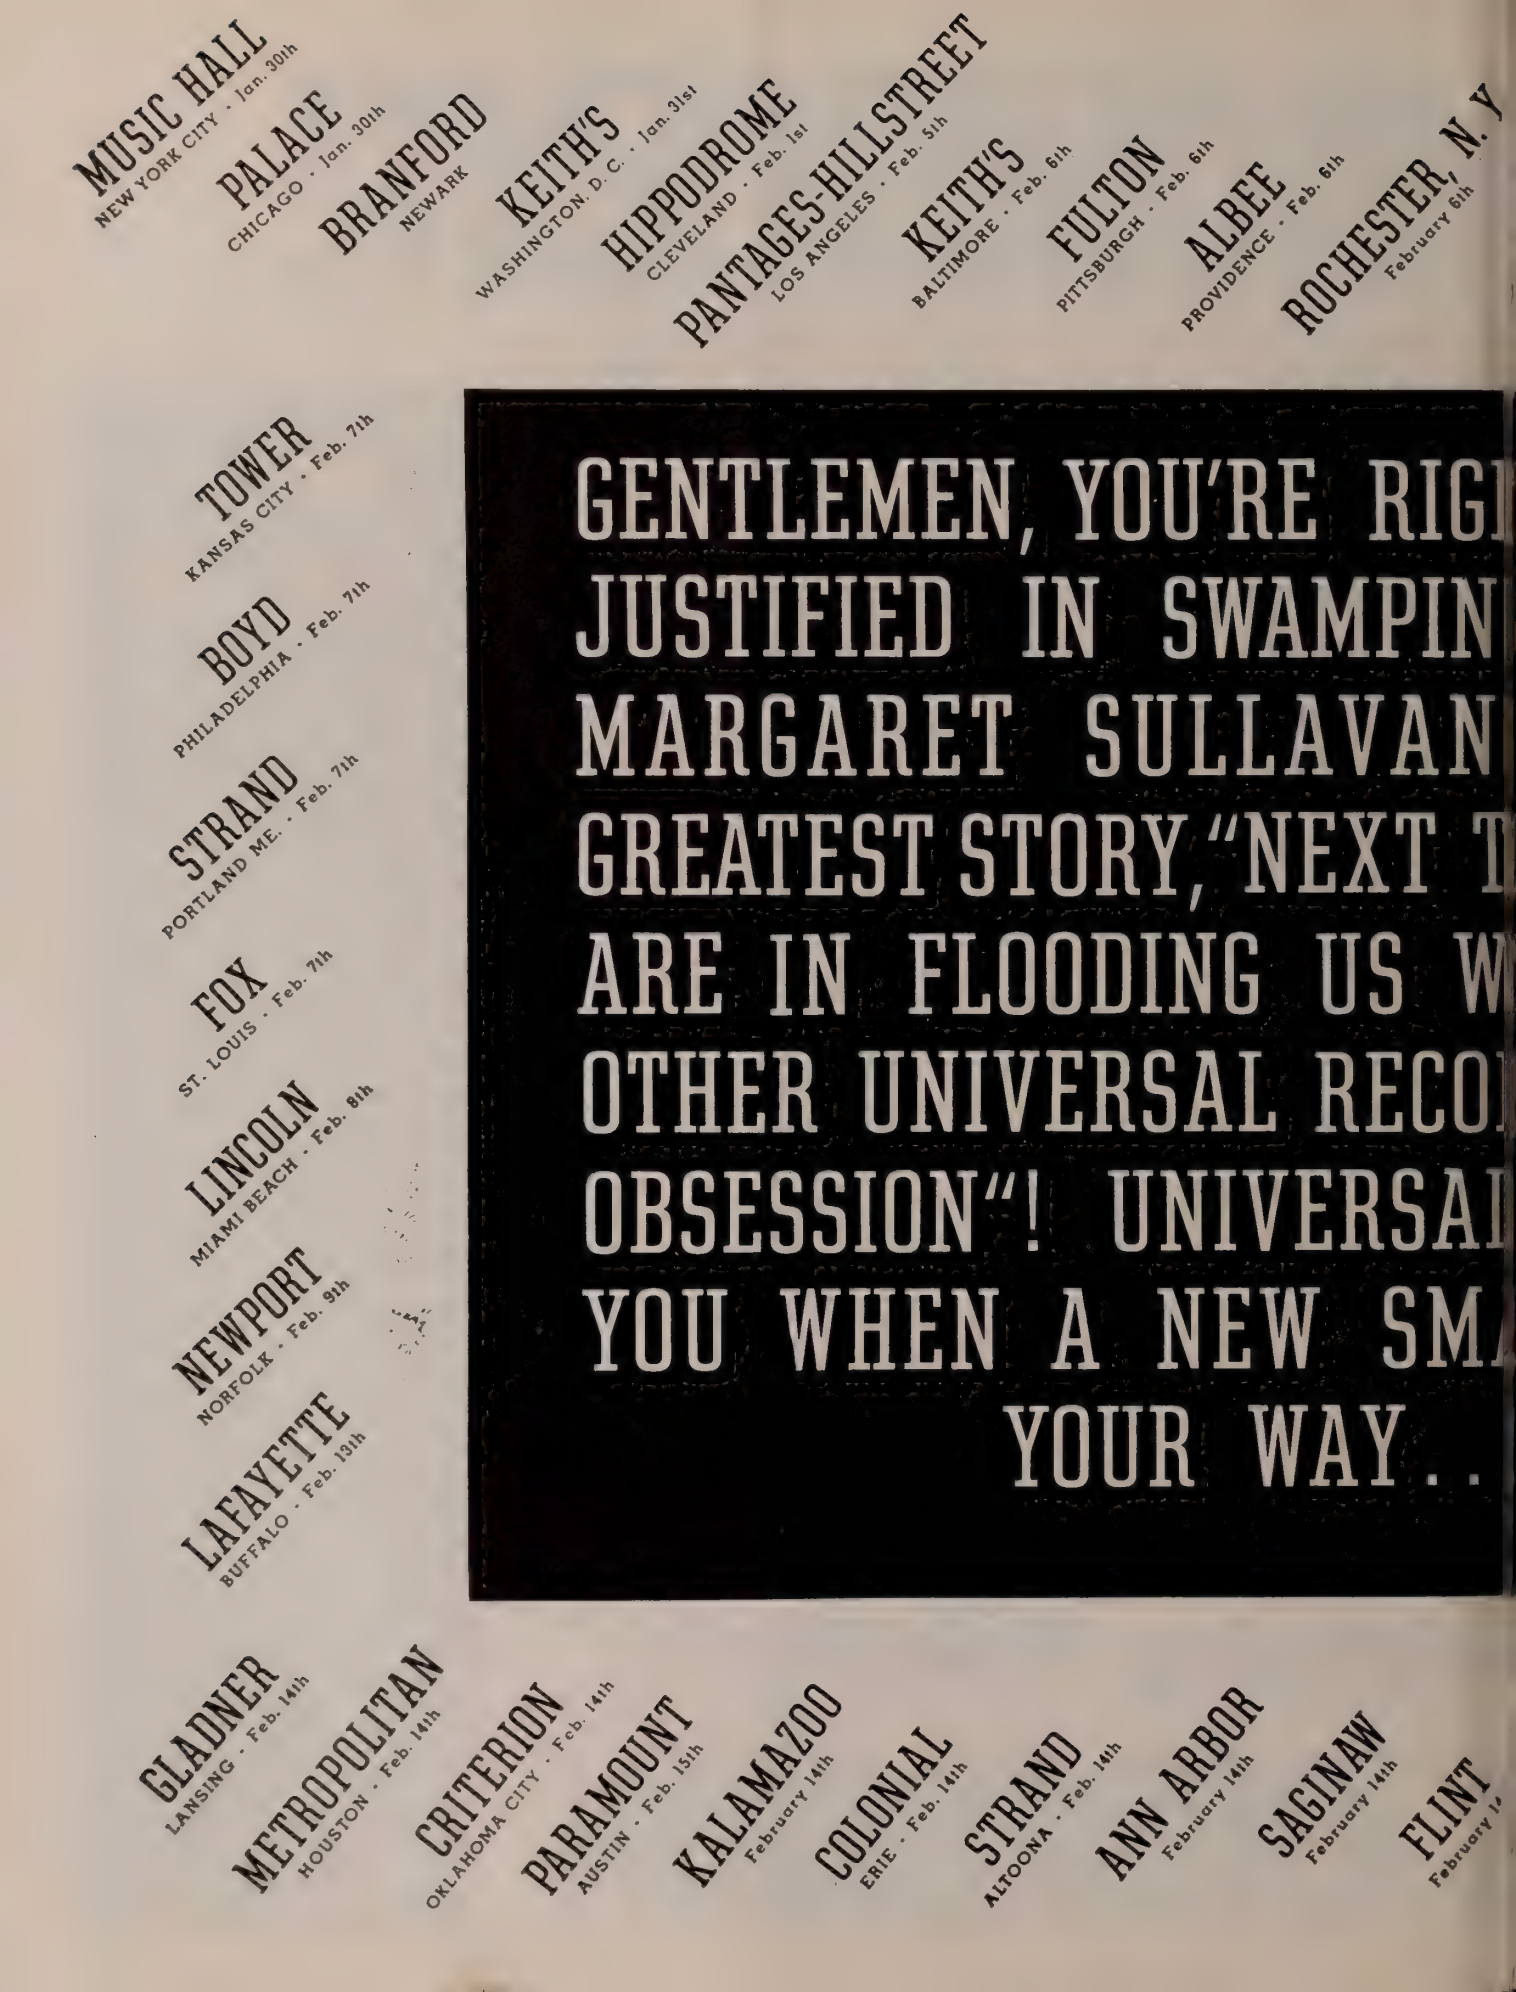
e playing Universal's

T OBSESSION



MUSIC HALL
NEW YORK CITY - Jan. 30th
PALACE
CHICAGO - Jan. 30th
BRANFORD NEWARK
KEITH'S
WASHINGTON, D.C. - Jan. 31st
HIPPODROME
CLEVELAND - Feb. 1st
PANTAGES-HILLSTREET
LOS ANGELES - Feb. 5th
KEITH'S
BALTIMORE - Feb. 6th
FULTON
PITTSBURGH - Feb. 6th
ALBEE
PROVIDENCE - Feb. 6th
ROCHESTER, N. Y
February 6th
TOWER
KANSAS CITY - Feb. 7th
BOYD
PHILADELPHIA - Feb. 7th
STRAND
PORTLAND ME. - Feb. 7th
FOX
ST. LOUIS - Feb. 7th
LINCOLN
MIAMI BEACH - Feb. 8th
NEWPORT
NORFOLK - Feb. 9th
LAFAYETTE
BUFFALO - Feb. 13th
GENTLEMEN, YOU'RE RIGI
JUSTIFIED IN SWAMPIN
MARGARET SULLAVAN
GREATEST STORY,"NEXT T
ARE IN FLOODING US W
OTHER UNIVERSAL RECO
OBSESSION"! UNIVERSAI
YOU WHEN A NEW SM YOUR WAY..
GLADNER
LANSING - Feb. 14th
METROPOLITAN HOUSTON - Feb. 14th
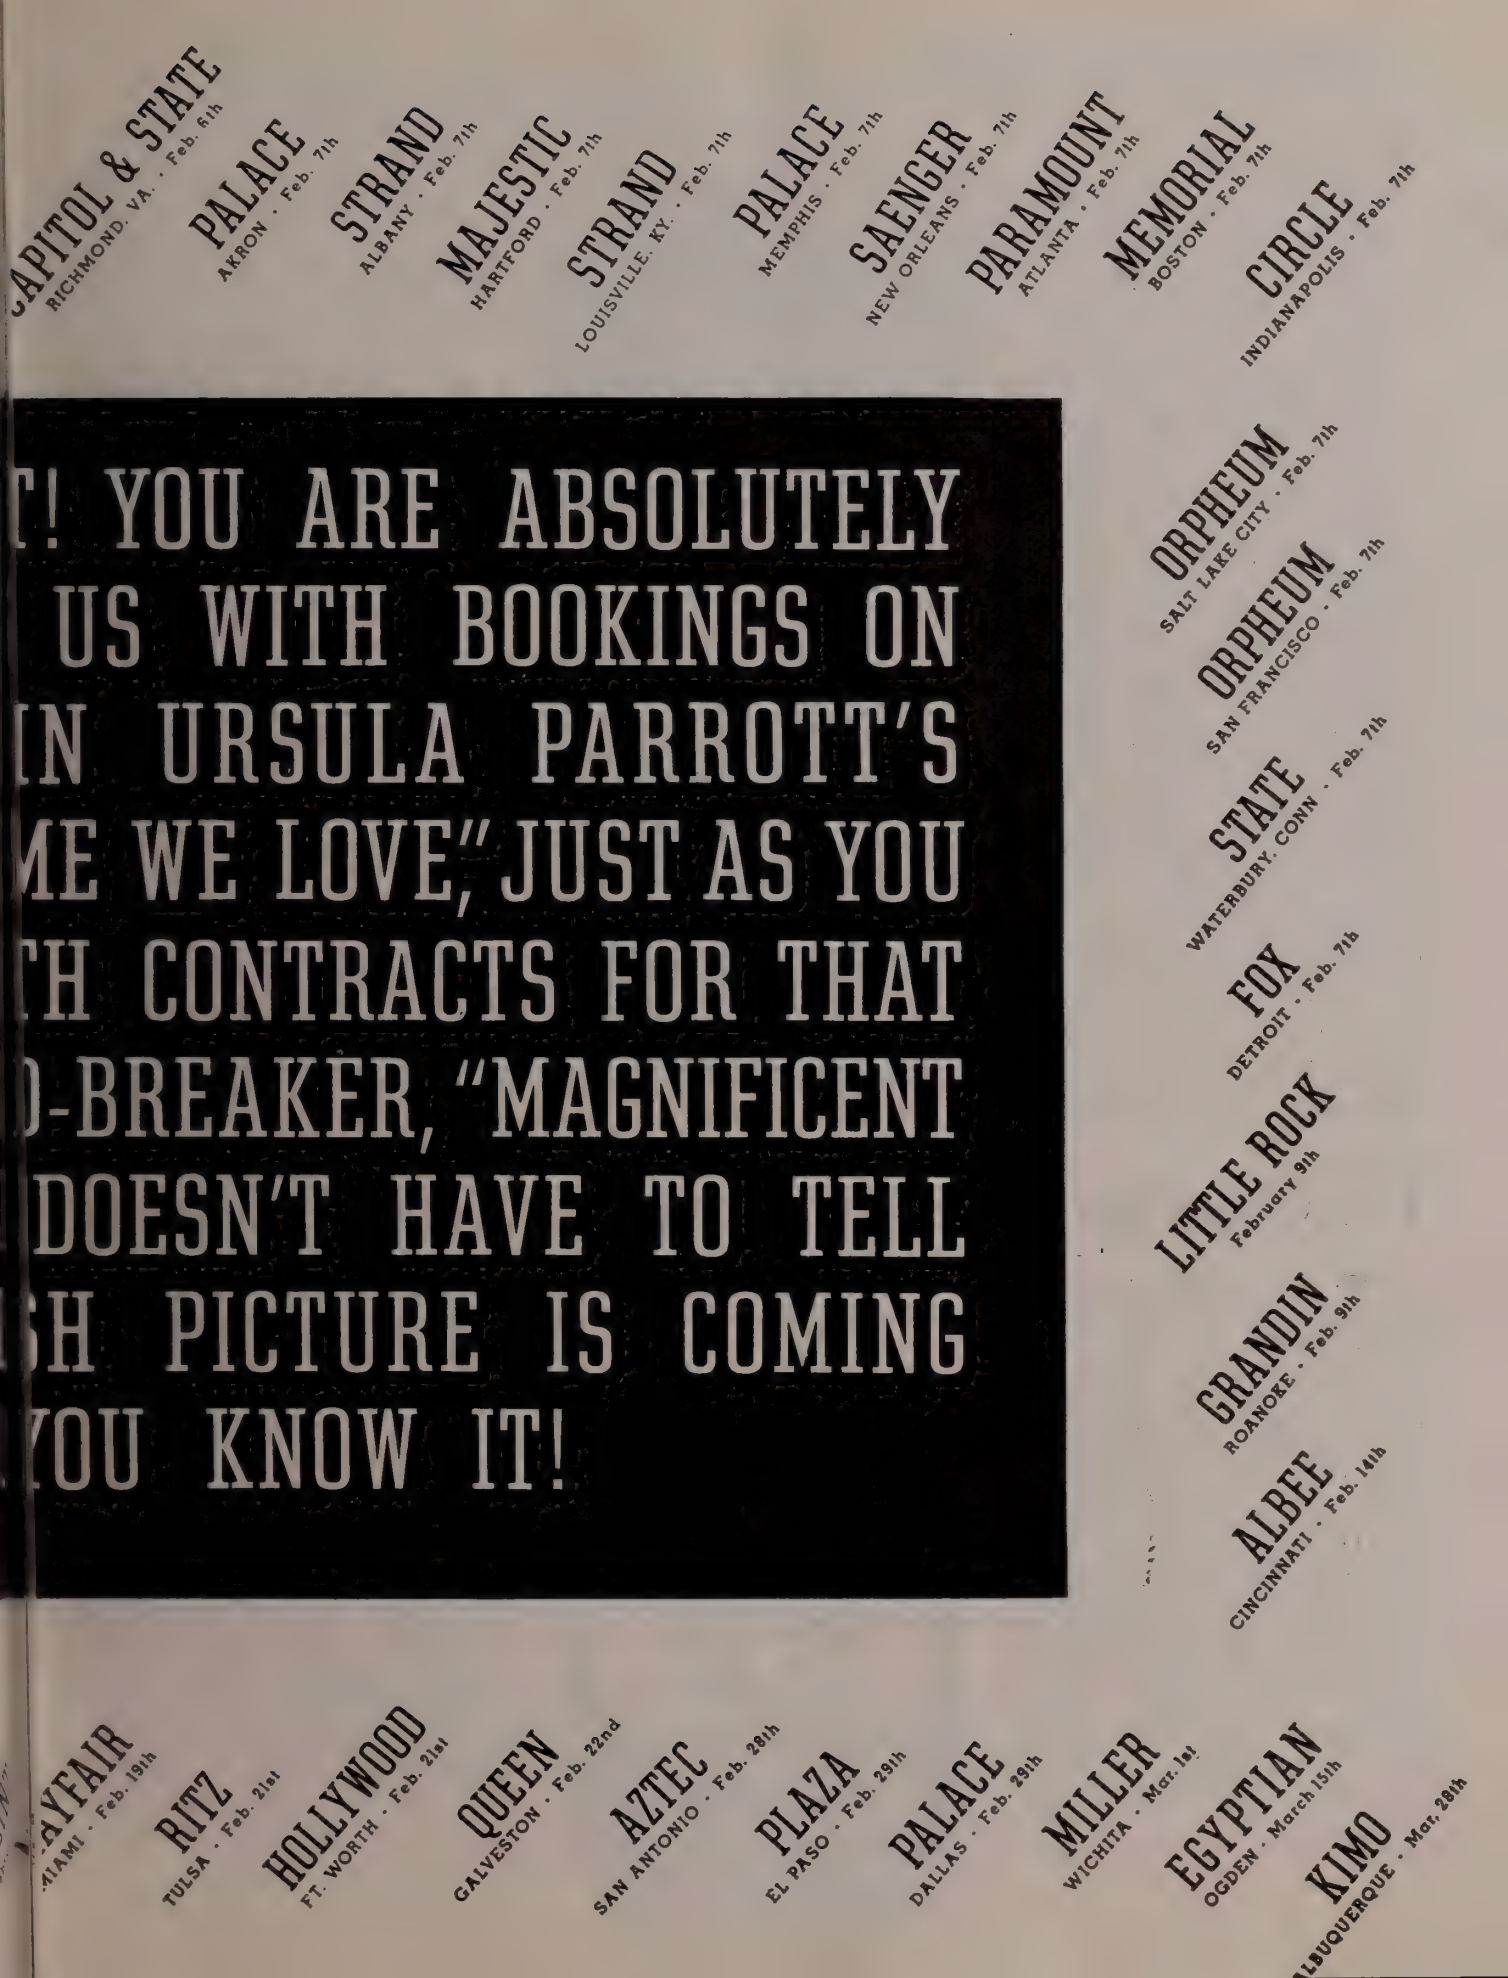
CRITERION
OKLAHOMA CITY - Feb. 14th
PARAMOUNT
AUSTIN - Feb. 15th
KALAMAZOO
February 14th
COLONIAL
ERIE - Feb. 14th
STRAND
ALTOONA - Feb. 14th
ANN ARBOR
February 14th
SAGINAW
February 14th
FLINT
February 1



CAPITOL & STATE
RICHMOND, VA. · Feb. 6th

PALACE
AKRON · Feb. 7th

STRAND
ALBANY · Feb. 7th

MAJESTIC
HARTFORD · Feb. 7th

STRAND
LOUISVILLE, KY. · Feb. 7th

PALACE
MEMPHIS · Feb. 7th

SAENGER
NEW ORLEANS · Feb. 7th

PARAMOUNT
ATLANTA · Feb. 7th

MEMORIAL
BOSTON · Feb. 7th

CIRCLE
INDIANAPOLIS · Feb. 7th

T! YOU ARE ABSOLUTELY US WITH BOOKINGS ON
IN URSULA PARROTT'S
ME WE LOVE," JUST AS YOU
TH CONTRACTS FOR THAT D-BREAKER, "MAGNIFICENT DOESN'T HAVE TO TELL
SH PICTURE IS COMING
YOU KNOW IT!

ORPHEUM
SALT LAKE CITY · Feb. 7th

ORPHEUM
SAN FRANCISCO · Feb. 7th

STATE
WATERBURY, CONN · Feb. 7th

FOX
DETROIT · Feb. 7th

LITTLE ROCK
February 9th

GRANDIN
ROANOKE · Feb. 9th

ALBEE
CINCINNATI · Feb. 14th

AYFAIR
MIAMI · Feb. 19th

RITZ
TULSA · Feb. 21st

HOLLYWOOD
FT. WORTH · Feb. 21st

QUEEN
GALVESTON · Feb. 22nd

AZTEC
SAN ANTONIO · Feb. 28th

PLAZA
EL PASO · Feb. 29th

PALACE
DALLAS · Feb. 29th

MILLER
WICHITA · Mar. 1st

EGYPTIAN
OGDEN · March 15th

KIMO
ALBUQUERQUE · Mar. 28th

Exposes Cartoonist Secrets

Lowell Thomas Makes Trip to Screen Cartoonland to Satisfy Millions of Curious Movie Fans in Unique Picture.

ALL the cartoon characters and their creators can get ready for the big blow-off. Lowell Thomas has exposed them. For years, everyone who goes to the movies has wondered how the screen cartoon characters are made to move in such lifelike manner; how they obtained the marvelous suggestion of perspective, third dimension, color; and how they are made to talk and sing like human beings. Every moving picture man has had to answer millions of questions, many of which he didn't know the answers to himself, and many articles have been written, but no one has absolutely shown the interior of a screen animator's studio workshop and brains the way Lowell Thomas is going to show them in Number 18 of his "Going Places." It will have an audience of sixty-five million people, because that is the number of moving picture goers who want to know the facts that Lowell Thomas is going to tell them after a trip to Cartoonland in which he obtained and photographed the most intimate secrets of screen animators' work.

The title of this number 18 of Going Places is "Cartoonland Mysteries" and it will be released on February 17th.

Helen Morgan, one of the stars of "Show Boat," has completed her role in this Carl Laemmle, Jr., production, and arrives back in New York in a blizzard. She is appearing nightly at the House of Morgan.

KARLOFF COMING

KARLOFF, Universal star and horror man of the movies, left Hollywod on Thursday for London by way of New York. He will arrive here in time to appear on Rudy Valee's broadcast on February 6th.

Universal has negotiated a new contractual arrangement with Karloff which will insure for Universal three pictures for next season's Universal line-up. Universal has loaned Karloff to Gaumont-British for one picture which he will make this winter. He will sail from New York on Saturday to make "The Man Who Lived Again." His latest Universal picture is "The Invisible Ray" and the next will probably be "Bluebeard."

J. R. Grainger Returns with New Universal Plans

JAMES R. GRAINGER, general manager of distribution for Universal, arrived in New York on Friday morning, after a four weeks' trip to Universal City. While there, he arranged with Carl Laemmle for the balance of the productions for the present season's feature line-up, for four outstanding serials for next season's program, and made the preliminary arrangements for the feature line-up for 1936-37. He immediately went into an executive session with F. J. A. McCarthy, eastern sales manager, Sieg. Wittman, eastern district manager, A. J. Herman, New England district manager, Harry Graham, southern district manager, and Clair Hague, Canadian general manager.

Mr. Wittman's offices are Cleveland, Cincinnati, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Washington and New York; Herman's are Boston, New Haven, Albany and Buffalo; Graham's are Atlanta, Charlotte, Memphis, New Orleans, Dallas and Oklahoma City; and Clair Hague's are Toronto, Calgary, Montreal, St. John, Vancouver and Winnipeg.

In Chicago Wednesday, where Mr. Grainger stopped off for a day, he held a one-day convention with E. T. Gomersall's central division managers. The men who attended this one-day's meeting at the Blackstone Hotel included H. M. Herbel of Chicago, Louis Patz of Des Moines, Morris Gottlieb of Detroit, Floyd Brown of Indianapolis, William Benjamin of Kansas City, Saul Resnick of Milwaukee, Frank Mantzke of Minneapolis, J. J. Spandau of Omaha and J. E. Garrison of St. Louis.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, N. Y. City
Universal Pictures Corp.
Copyrighted 1935
(All Rights Reserved)
Vol. 38 No. 1
FEB. 1, 1936

Will Celebrate Carl Laemmle's 30 Anniversary

MONDAY, February 24th, the anniversary of the day on which Carl Laemmle opened his famous White Front Theatre in Chicago, has been decided upon as the date of the industry's tribute to Carl Laemmle on his 30th anniversary in the moving picture business.

For this occasion, the high spot will be a luncheon to be given on the "Phantom of the Opera" set at Universal City, to which two hundred of the moving picture city's executives, stars, directors, and many of Carl Laemmle's present and former employees in the moving picture business have been invited.

The guests will enter the studio through a reproduction of the lobby of this famous White Front Theatre, which opened on Milwaukee Avenue with 290 seats, all rented from an undertaker down the street. Decorations and souvenirs will be appropriate to the occasion. They will symbolize the unique beginnings of the man who stands today as the only pioneer in the moving picture business who is still active and actively directing the company which he started and brought from this small beginning to an international institution, which is known far and wide as the bulwark of independence in motion pictures,—Universal Pictures Corporation.

Unique present which Carl Laemmle received from Monroe Isen and the managers of South America under his direction, on the occasion of Mr. Laemmle's sixty-ninth birthday. This scene is in his office at Universal City, with Fred S. Meyer making the presentation. The picture of Mr. Laemmle is carved on mahogany and was made by a famous Buenos Aires sculptor, who worked on it for three months.

"'INVISIBLE RAY' Good B. O." HOLLYWOOD REPORTER

WITH a strong theme, dramatically transcribed to the screen, and a story crammed with suspense, "Invisible Ray" should prove heavy appeal for average audiences. It is of commercial caliber and a magnet that will draw them in for that something new in entertainment.

The picture is about a scientist who discovers a powerful sort of radium, as strong to heal as to destroy. He discovers to his horror that having absorbed this deadly substance, it means death to all he touches. He becomes luminous in the dark, but is temporarily saved from death by a co-worker who finds for him an antidote. However, this and the knowledge of his affliction, coupled with the approaching horror of his lingering death, snaps his mind. He returns to Paris; learns of his wife's love for another man, and diabolically plots their deaths. The lovers are saved by an impassioned appeal from his mother. Abounding in highlights, several scenes are memorable for dramatic intensity. One sees the mother's and a child's sight restored; the crippled made to walk. In contrast, mountains are melted and the power to destroy is evident.

The part of the scientist is played by Karloff with moving intensity. This is a new Karloff in a new sort of role, full of vivid character contrasts, and it will win him hosts of new admirers. Bela Lugosi as the co-worker is superb in his role. Frank Lawton returns again to Universal with another fine performance as the youthful lecturer lover, while Frances Drake rises to a new high in her understanding and fine delineation. As Karloff's wife, hers is the burden of the earlier scenes and they were unfalteringly enacted, with poise and restraint.

Walter Kingsford and Beulah Bondi as titled expeditionists added excellent performances. A standout job of restrained acting was turned in by Violet Kemble Cooper as Karloff's mother. Daniel Haines superbly enacted a safari number one boy. Georges Renevant, Paul Weigel, Adele St. Maur all give fine support.

$

$1,000.00 IN CASH!

Prizes for the best campaign on any Universal Picture during Carl Laemmle's 30th Anniversary Celebration! For details see your Universal Exchange.

DON'T GET

Starring

JAMES DUNN and SALLY EILERS

With PINKY TOMLIN • Spencer Charters • Doris Lloyd • George Cleveland • George Meeker Lillian Harmer • Charles Coleman . . . Directed by William Nigh. Produced by David Diamond. A Universal Picture. Presented by Carl Laemmle.

PERSONAL

LAUGH-PACKED WITH LOVE!
LOVE-PACKED WITH LAUGHS!
SPEED-PACKED WITH THRILLS!

And that necking, scrapping, singing team of "Bad Girl" together again—and greater than ever before, as a team or individual stars!

Trade Critics Rave Over "Next Time We Love"

The trade press has had its first view of Margaret Sullavan in "Next Time We Love." As we go to press, we are able to quote from three of the industry's critical trade paper reviews. They are all unrestrained and wholehearted "raves" about "Next Time We Love." On this page and the next will be found excerpts from the reviews of the Hollywood Reporter, the Motion Picture Daily, and the Daily Variety.

SHOULD GET IMPORTANT COIN

Daily Variety, January 28

"NEXT TIME WE LOVE," is the best Margaret Sullavan picture, and close to the best production Universal has ever turned out, for sheer dramatic merit. It has powerful emotional appeal in its delicately and poignantly told semi-tragic love story, and is a natural for women, fully as strong in this respect as U's current heavy grosses, "Magnificent Obsession."

Artistically and as compellingly fine theatrical entertainment it can scarcely be overrated. Also it rockets James Stewart into top ranks as a skillful, intelligent, discriminating actor able to handle himself with conviction and feeling over wide range of requirements.

Certainly the picture will add high credit to Edward H. Griffith as director-producer, as well as new laurels to Miss Sullavan, Stewart and Ray Milland in the player bracket. Sharing producer credit is Paul Kohner. It needed an exceptionally attuned combination to get on the screen the quality which Melville Baker got into his script from the Ursula Parrott original, "Say Goodbye Again."

Griffith's flawless and penetratingly sympathetic direction develops to highest degree the dramatic tenderness, conflict and heartbreak latent in the story and never veers from credibility of motive and legitimate behavior of characters to the slightest degree. It will stand up amongst the finest directorial triumphs of the screen, as sensitive as it is powerful.

Miss Sullavan is superb in the role of Cicely Tyler. More affecting emotional encounter between two people has seldom been done in films than between her and James Stewart. Performances are beautifully finessed. Playing of Ray Milland, as the sympathetic family friend who secretly loves the wife, is also of top calibre. Character is effectively restrained and catches every implication for a most moving performance.

One of the finest things about the picture is that it extracts highest entertainment values out of splendid love story without once descending to cheap note.

NEWSPAPER SERIAL, BOOK AND MOVIE

"Next Time We Love" has had four lives. First, it was a serial in McCall's Magazine; next it was a newspaper novelization; then it became a book, and then a movie.

As a newspaper serialization it has played in many of the country's leading newspapers, including the New York Daily Mirror. If it has been run in your town, it should be a great advantage to your box-office, and if you would like to have it run, get in touch with McClure's Newspaper Syndicate, 345 Hudson Street, New York, N. Y.

"Sullavan Shines In Poignant Yarn"

HOLLYWOOD REPORTER

A POIGNANTLY real and moving love story of young America that comes so close to home as to enlist the sympathetic response of everyone. Honest craftsmanship, an entire absence of cheap hokum and a production that is nearly perfect in every element makes this unpretentious picture an artistic and entertainment standout. Theatre-goers of all classes will take it to their hearts and that means mounting takes at the box office, as the word gets around.

Margaret Sullavan, starred in the role of a rational and understanding sweetheart and a devoted wife torn by the complexities arising from long separations and rival careers, sensitively, sincerely and winningly realizes the fineness and beauty of the character.

The direction of this narrative by Edward H. Griffith is a notably sincere, restrained and sensitive work. The photography of Joseph Valentine is of high excellence throughout and the production of Paul Kohner certainly shows no skimping or lack of taste.

The supporting cast is a delight. James Stewart as the earnest young reporter torn between love and his career, is finely convincing and genuine. Ray Milland, as a friend who hides his love for Margaret through nine years of unselfish devotion to her, is just about perfect.

✚ ✚ ✚

"Brilliant In Its Dramatic Power"

M. P. DAILY

Brilliant in its dramatic power to stir the sincerest of human emotions, this is a story of a beautiful love brought face to face with life's sternest realities. Tastefully produced, intelligently acted and directed, the dialogue is the sole interpretive medium. Nevertheless, the gripping quality of the story held the attention of a preview audience in hushed silence throughout.

Miss Sullavan's, Stewart's and Milland's performances are artistic to the last degree, a quality vividly substantiated by McWade, Florence Roberts, Ann Demetrio and Christian Rub in support.

Melville Baker's screen play is a faithful transcription of the original's sincere human interest character. Director E. H. Griffith's job is a fine example of understanding craftsmanship. Paul Kohner produced.

Certain to click with women patrons, the show is a valuable asset in any theatre where fine screen merchandise is appreciated.

✚ ✚ ✚

"LOVE BEFORE BREAKFAST" Is Completed—Has Them Hanging On the Ropes With Laughs

EDMUND GRAINGER, Universal producer, yesterday brought to successful conclusion two big productions which had taxed the resources of the studio for weeks. The pictures are "Sutter's Gold," in which Edward Arnold is starred, and "Love Before Breakfast," starring Carole Lombard.

"Love Before Breakfast," is by Faith Baldwin and has been in production for seven weeks under the direction of Walter Lang. It is a lavishly mounted screenplay of an entirely different type. It is a sophisticated, wise-cracking comedy in which Miss Lombard is presented as a young lady very wise and very sure of herself—until it comes to deciding which of two men she shall marry. Preston Foster, who plays the leading male role, and Cesar Romero are the other two points in a hectic love triangle, and the star's supporting cast also includes Janet Beecher, Richard Carle, Betty Lawford, Bert Roach, Joyce Compton and many others. The action takes place in New York City and the waters of Long Island Sound, and in storm scenes at sea Miss Lombard underwent experiences such as few stars would attempt. It is regarded as a masterpiece of screen comedy that will hang the customers on the ropes as it has convulsed the production crowd at Universal City with its laughs all month.

Carole Lombard and Preston Foster in "Love Before Breakfast."

JUST WHEN EVERYBODY was beginning to think there was too much sameness in cartoons,

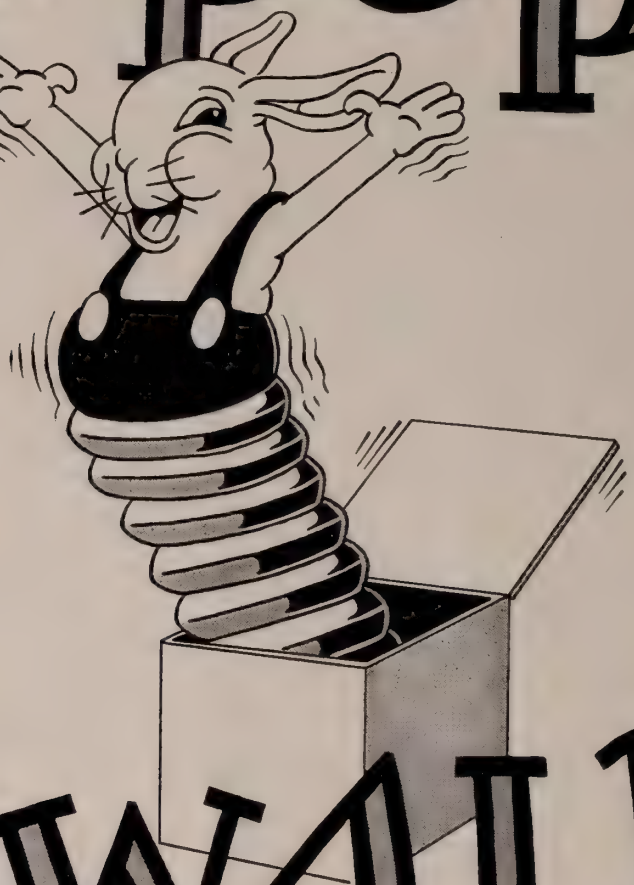
UP POPS OSWALD



with the cleverest, cutest, funniest situations and tricks the cartoon world has ever seen!

Just take a look at OSWALD THE LUCKY RABBIT in "SOFTBALL GAME"
at your nearest UNIVERSAL exchange, and you'll see what we're talking about!

Cleveland Roll of Honor

The following exhibitors in the Cleveland Territory have used Universal Pictures continuously for

12 YEARS

EXHIBITOR	THEATRE	TOWN & STATE
John Papulias	Olympic	Steubenville, O.
Joe Cala	Strand & Valentine	Canton, Ohio
Stotter-Berkowitz	Ambassador & Ritz	Cleveland, Ohio

10 YEARS

C. G. Velas	Capital & Temple	Bellaire, O.
Al Ptak	Lyceum	Cleveland, O.
S. Vermas	Yale & Eclair	Cleveland, O.

9 YEARS

E. E. Bair	Ohio	Uhrichsville, O.
John Pekras	Capitol-Rivoli-Dreamland	Elyria, O.

8 YEARS

L. Eick	Elzane	Martins Ferry, O.
Morris Kaplan	Arion-Waldorf-Superior-Crown	Cleveland, O.
Mrs. Zeigob	Dreamland	Lorain, O.
F. C. Buben	National & Palace	Akron, O.
Hart and Krichbaum	Rialto & Norka	Akron, O.
G. A. Ritzler	Lyric	Lima, O.
R. E. Young	Palace	Perrysburg, O.
J. A. Beidler	Royal-Eastwood-E. Auditorium-Westwood-Park	Toledo, O.
George L. Fleischman	World	Toledo, O.
Lefkowich-Greenberger	Strand-Standard-Lyric	Cleveland, O.

7 YEARS

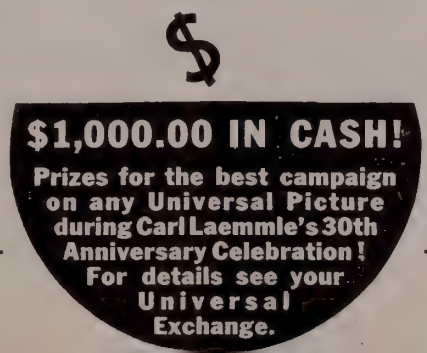
J. B. Simmons	Bijou	Toledo, O.
A. G. Constant	American & State	E. Liverpool, O.
R. Wallace	Columbia-Strand-Morrison-Alliance	Alliance, O.
George Shenker	Pearl	Lorain, O.
A. P. Botzum	Orpheum	Akron, O.
C. N. Belden	Thornton	Akron, O.
J. B. Simmons	Bijou	Toledo, O.

6 YEARS

Dan Steiniger	New Home	Bridgeport, O.
Sam Fine	Mt. Pleasant	Cleveland, O.
Abe Cohen	E. Palestine	E. Palestine, O.
J. Ramicone	Gem	Akron, O.

5 YEARS

Sol Bernstein	Ritz	Mansfield, O.
Chas. Settos	State	Marion, O.
V. G. Secord	Union	Richwood, O.
W. J. Kotowiz	Ross	Rossford, O.
Mrs. M. Rihacek	Tivoli	Toledo, O.



DAVE MILLER, Mgr.

Carole
LOMBARD
In Faith Baldwin's Cosmopolitan Magazine Story
"LOVE BEFORE BREAKFAST"
With PRESTON FOSTER, Janet Beecher, Cesar Romero, Pat Flaherty, Joyce Compton, Diana Gibson, Nan Gray, David Worth, Douglas Blockley, Earl Eby, Priscilla Lawson, Adamae Vaughan, Nick de Ruiz, Red Christie. Directed by Walter Lang. Screenplay by Herbert Fields, author of "Fifty Million Frenchmen." Presented by Carl Laemmle. An Edmund Grainger Production.
IT'S BOX OFFICE!

AND THIS IS NO

Jan. 23, 1936 THE Hollywood REPORTER

BEST 'U' GROSSES IN 4 YRS FOR 'MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION'

Topping Previous Highs 20 Percent

New York.—"Magnificent Obsession" is doing the biggest business throughout the country of any Universal picture in four years.

The film has played two weeks or is in a second week in these cities: St. Louis, Los Angeles (two houses), Richmond (two houses), Chicago, San Francisco, Minneapolis, Boston, Washington, Cleveland, Kansas City, Salt Lake City, Hartford, Indianapolis, Detroit, Baltimore, Atlanta, Philadelphia, Louisville, Pittsburgh, New Orleans, Toledo and St. Paul.

In Minneapolis the picture registered nearly four times the business of "Imitation of Life," previous high grosser. In Houston, Grand Rapids, Cleveland, Seattle, Syracuse and Rochester, "Obsession" did better in three days than "Imitation of Life" or "Diamond Jim" did in a week.

In every one of nearly 85 playdates to date "Obsession" has topped any previous Universal high gross picture by at least 20 percent.

3,951,098 See 'Obses'

IN accordance with the most recent statistics, there are something like seventy million people in the United States who go to moving picture shows. "Magnificent Obsession" has been rolling up amazing attendance records for the last two weeks in spite of the most severe weather which this country has ever seen in almost all parts of the United States. By actual compilation of box-office returns which come into the Universal offices, the amazing fact has been adduced that in the last two weeks, 3,951,098 people have paid admission to see "Magnificent Obsession" in the 102 situations in which it has already played.

An astonishing number of these theatres have held picture over or have extended their runs.

Reproductions of lead-off article in the Hollywood Reporter, admitting that "Magnificent Obsession" is a country-wide wow in every respect with hold-overs, extended time, records broken and re-bookings in almost every situation.

Amazing Record of This Week

THE second week of "Magnificent Obsession" runs over the country is even more marvelous than the first. In spite of the worst weather in years in many situations "Magnificent Obsession" last week continued to pile up phenomenal grosses breaking records and setting precedent for new highs that will be records for some time to come. In practically every situation new hold-overs or extended runs are reported. Absolutely unheard of runs were recorded in many spots.

Among the new openings Winnipeg stands out with almost as much business the first day as "Bride of Frankenstein" got in a week—and the "Bride" business was excellent for that theatre. This business beats everything in the history of this house. It was held for a second week. A report on opening in Miami states that business there tops everything for past several months. Another wire on Vancouver opening reports new record there for opening day's business.

In Chicago the picture played two weeks at the Palace and then was shifted over to the Garrick for an extended run. Business first week in Garrick was tremendous indicating picture may continue here for some time.

"Obsession" was held for a third week in Washington, a third week in 'Frisco, a third week in Baltimore, a third week in Hartford and a third week in Pittsburgh. Also Toronto.

The 'Frisco run is tremendous. It is held for a third week in the Orpheum and then goes to the Embassy for an extended run.

Here are the second week hold-overs; Newark, Brooklyn, Portland, Houston, Toronto, San Diego, Philly (held at Boyd 2nd week and then moved to Keith's); Altoona, Salt Lake City (Orpheum one week, moved to Studio and held over 2nd week there giving picture really three weeks run here) New Orleans, moved to Tudor after big week at Saenger and held for second week at Tudor, giving picture three weeks in first runs here.

Unusual extended runs are reported in more than 25 situations.

CALLED OUT THE POLICE

MIAMI, FLA.

J R GRAINGER UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP
IT WAS NECESSARY TO CALL OUT EXTRA POLICEMEN TO KEEP TRAFFIC ON LINCOLN ROAD MOVING LAST NIGHT DUE TO TREMENDOUS CROWD TRYING TO GET IN TO OUR NEW LINCOLN THEATRE FOR OPENING MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION HAVE ALREADY ARRANGED TO DOUBLE LENGTH OF RUN KIND REGARDS

WOMETCO THEATRES SIDNEY MEYER

THE HALF OF IT

Amazing Reports from This Weeks "Variety"

Denver, Jan. 28

"Magnificent Obsession" is packing them in at the Denver and goes to the Aladdin for a second week, after which it may move to Broadway. Broke a house record for the past three years for midweek opening, and keeping up hot pace. Standouts every day and to sidewalk by 7 P. M. opening day. Picture has what it takes to drag in women and where women go the men will too.

* * *

Cleveland, Jan. 28

Allen (RKO) (1,872; 25-40)— "Obsession" (U) Transferred from Hipp, still going strong, for good $4,000.

* * *

Portland, Ore., Jan. 28

Broadway (Parker) (2,000; 25-40)— "Obsession" (U) Launched into second big week and going strong for $5,000., may hold longer. First week big $8,600.

* * *

Chicago, Jan. 28

Garrick (B & K) (900; 35-55)— "Obsession" (U). Comes into this house after two big sessions at the Palace. Indications also strong here for follow-up. Around $7,500.

* * *

Brooklyn, Jan. 28

Albee (3,500; 25-35-50)—"Magnificent Obsession" (U) (2nd week) and "East of Java." Doing pretty well, maybe $13,500. Last week $11,000., good.

* * *

World (Steffes) (350; 25-35-40)— "Magnificent Obsession" (U) (3rd week) Hot box office stuff for cold weather, en route to big $3,000. Last week, $2,700., good after $15,000 first week at Orpheum.

* * *

Philadelphia, Jan. 28

Boyd (2,400; 40-55)—"Obsession" (U) (2nd week). About $10,000. Last week $15,000, despite weather.

Omaha, Jan. 28

Omaha (Blank-Tri-States) (2,100; 25-40)—"Obsession" (U). In the town spotlight with grand campaign behind it and an extra evening of show ing as it opened Wednesday night (22). To stay at least seven and a half days and should reach top money at near $10,000, remarkable in this weather. "Here's to Romance" makes it a double bill.

"MAGNIFICENT" TERRIFIC AT 16 BELOW

– WIRE –

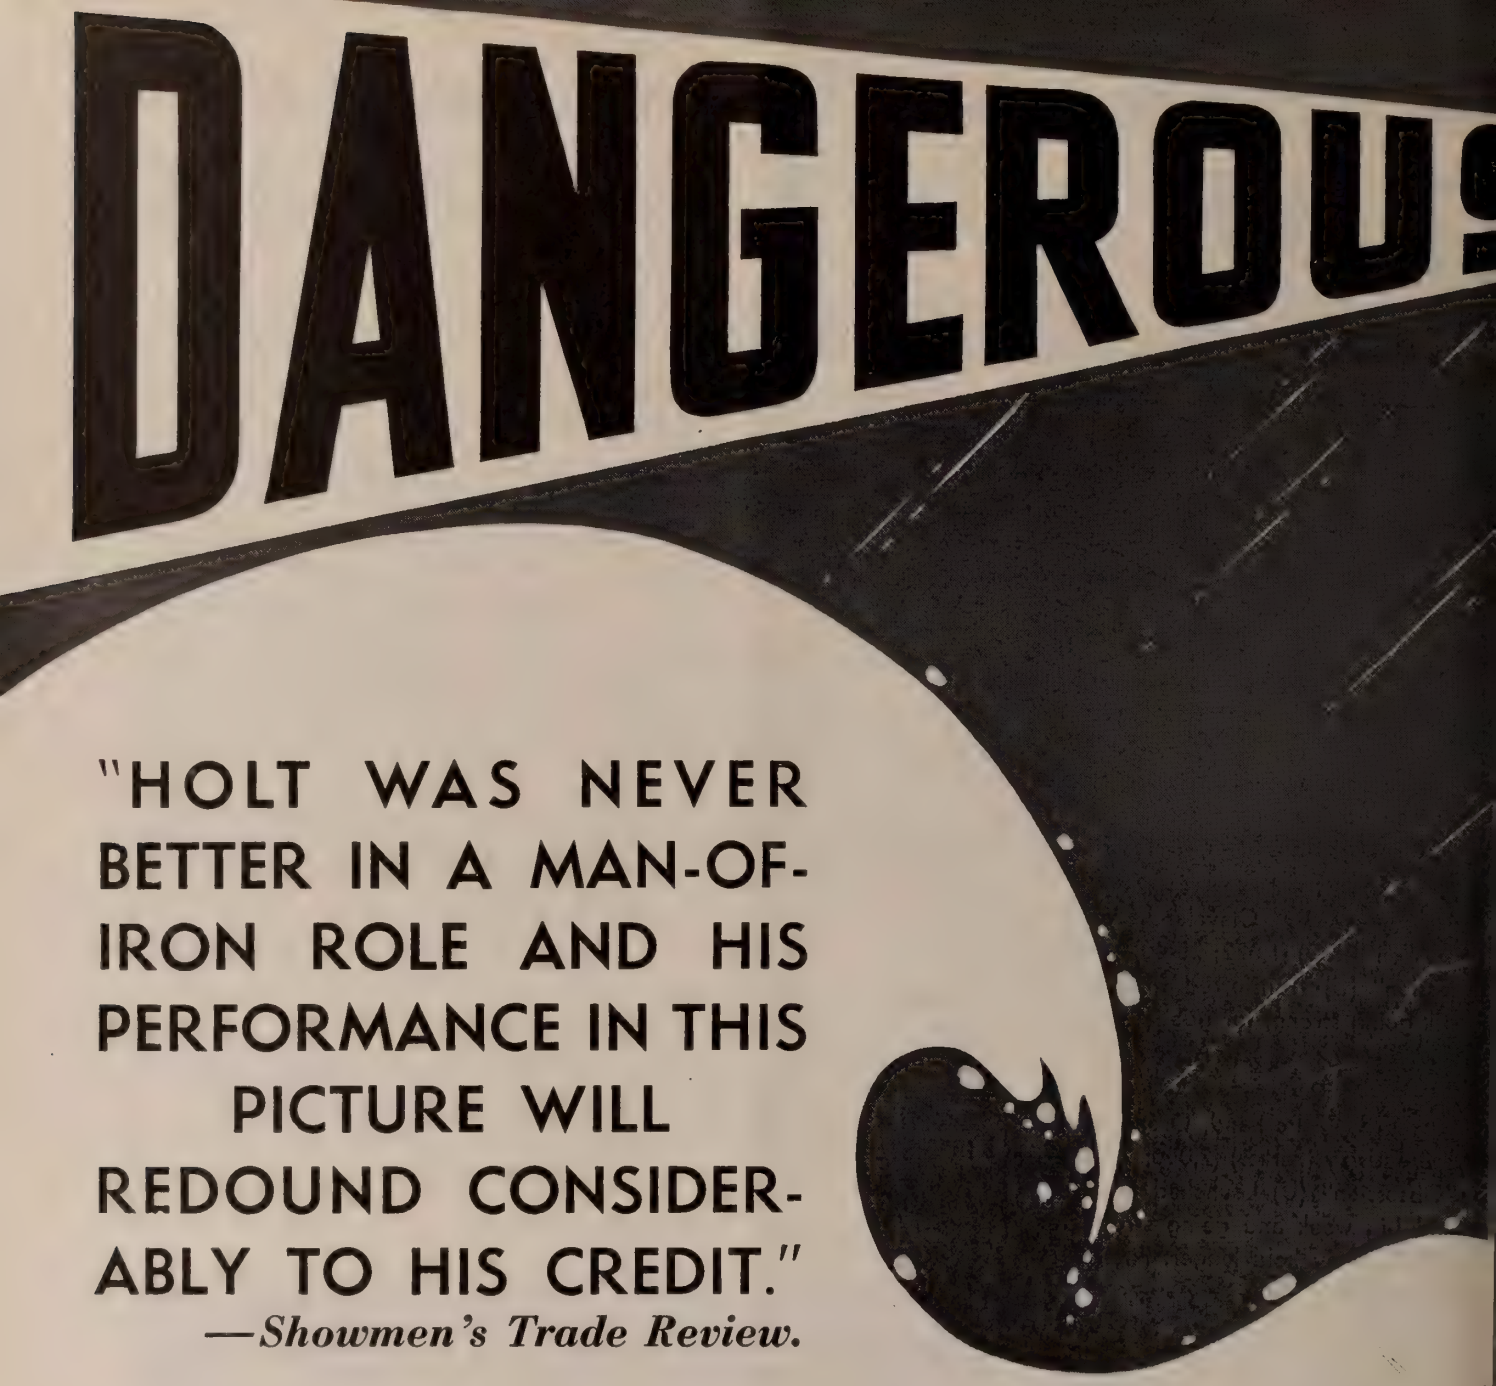
JANUARY 23 1936 OMAHA NEBR

UNIVERSAL PICTURES NEW YORK NY
WITH WEATHER TEN BELOW OPENING MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION TODAY TERRIFIC LOOKS LIKE RECORD DAY STOP SENDING PHOTOGRAPH CROWDS JAMMING THEATRE FOR EIGHT OCLOCK LAST NIGHT WHILE THERMOMETER REGISTERED SIXTEEN BELOW ZERO

TED EMERSON
OMAHA THEATRE

Here is the gala premiere of "Magnificent Obsession" at the Omaha Theatre, Omaha, Nebraska, shot at eight o'clock at night, with the thermometer registering sixteen below zero. The wire above is confirmation of the interest that "Magnificent Obsession" excited in Omaha in spite of the weather.

DANGEROUS



"HOLT WAS NEVER BETTER IN A MAN-OF-IRON ROLE AND HIS PERFORMANCE IN THIS PICTURE WILL REDOUND CONSIDERABLY TO HIS CREDIT."
—Showmen's Trade Review.

"GOOD PRODUCTION, DIRECTING, ACTING . . . WILL THOROUGHLY FULFILL ALL REQUIREMENTS . . . CONSIDERABLY ABOVE AVERAGE." — Hollywood Reporter.

WATERS

with Jack HOLT

ROBERT ARMSTRONG, GRACE BRADLEY, DIANA GIBSON and CHARLIE MURRAY, Ed. Gargan, Walter Miller, Willard Robertson, Guy Usher. Based on the story "Glory Hole" by Theodore Reeves. Produced by Fred S. Meyer and Directed by Lambert Hillyer. Presented by Carl Laemmle. A Universal Picture.

NEW YORK TIMES GIVES S

THE auditoriums of 4,000-odd American theatres presented a strange sight yesterday afternoon. In fact, they do every Saturday afternoon. More than a million youngsters, ranging in age from 5 to 17, undeterred by the line on the marquee which read "Special Kiddies' Matinee," thronged the neighborhood cinema temples to scream and shout. Garbo or Colbert or Gable may have been on the screen but the children had no time for them. They were there to see Chapter 6 of "The Mystery Rider" or "Gordon of Ghost City" or " The Adventures of Frank Merriwell." Art may come and art may go, but in the lives of young America the serial is the stable fare of the screen.

From the days of "The Perils of Pauline" and "The Diamond from the Sky," the chapter play has been a substantial, though unheralded, factor in celluloid entertainment. Politely despised by the artistically inclined of Hollywood, their title cards have carried the names of many of the industry's more famous players and directors. The serials have kept studios open in months of depression; they have saved the financial lives of thousands of exhibitors week after week. One man, Henry McRae, known in the industry as "the serial king," has made a fortune out of them. Most important, they are credited with giving generation after generation the habit of "going to the movies." When talkies came in the children were driven from the theatre; one serial, "The Indians Are Coming," was worth $20,000,000 to the industry, according to Will Hays for it started the youngsters back to the movies.

Any one seeking a diverting afternoon can do no better than to find a neighborhood house on Saturday which advertises "Special Kiddies' Matinee." During the showing of the feature they will be unable to hear a word of dialogue uttered by the Duses of Hollywood. But when the serial flashes on, pandemonium ceases instantly. The audience hangs on every word. There may be screams of delight and surprise. At exciting moments the shrieks of the customers may be ear splitting, but the bedlam in the theatre will be so synchronized with the dialogue and action on the screen that if a pin dropping in the play is a vital part of the plot, it will be heard distinctly. Both the audience and the producers know their serials.

* * *

The mature customers of today remember Pearl White, Ruth Roland, Helen Holmes and Marie Walcamp, the "big four" of early serials. They

WATCH

for the line-up of

MONEY-MAKING

Universal Serials

for Next Season.

See Next Week's

Universal Weekly.

Douglass W. Churchill, Los A Tells Why the Serial Has Be New Movie Au

As the Crow Flies

Wherein Two Georges Die, but Have Only Death in Common

by ERNEST L. MEYER

New York Post

FRIDAY, JANUARY 24, 1936 SECOND SECTION

THE LYONS DEN

Which Chins Roars, and Nash Provides One for the Book

by LEONARD LYONS

FRANK MERRIWELL AT FARDALE

By GILBERT PATTEN — The Original "Burt L. Standish," Creator of Frank and Dick Merriwell

Bart Hodge's Cruelty To Dog and Little Tad Resented by Our Hero

Installment One—Entitled:

THREE BOYS AND A DOG

A BRAKEMAN opened the forward door of the smoking car and cried:

"Fardale! Fardale!"

Bart Hodge yawned and snapped his half-smoked cigarette to the floor. Letting his feet down from the leather-covered seat before him, he straightened up and gazed distastefully through the car window at the frame houses of the small town the train was pulling into. Then he lifted his hand to attract the brakeman's attention.

"Hey, you!" he called. "Come and take my bag."

A Laugh for Frank

A hand gripped Hodge by the shoulder and swung him around face to face with another boy about his own age.

This is the way the New York Post ran the first of its new "Frank Merriwell" stories. There are thirty of them in all. You may be able to get your newspaper to run these stories. It would be swell exploitation for your serial.

The Merriwell Serial Gets Newspaper Break

ALL the time Universal was making "The Adventures of Frank Merriwell," Gilbert Patten, its author, was re-writing the stories and putting them into shape for a new newspaper serialization. This guy Frank Merriwell, although he never actually lived, seems to have a fantastically long life. He is like a cat. He has already had three lives, one in the dime novels, one on the radio, and one on the screen, and now he is coming into a fourth existence in the newspaper syndicate which the Bell people are putting out to newspapers all over the country.

What is happening in the Post will happen soon in every large city. If your theatre is just starting or going to start this serial, it would be a clever exploitation move on your part to get in touch with the Bell Syndicate.

RIALS A GREAT BIG BOOST

es Correspondent of the Times o Popular And How It Created ces All the Time.

remember, too, Jack Holt, Grace Cunard, Lottie Pickford, Antonio Moreno, Anita Stewart, Kathleen Williams, Tom Santschi, Laura La Plante, Priscilla Dean, Art Acord, Ella Hall, Harry Carey and a dozen other celebrated names. They may cause embarrassment if they remember that Janet Gaynor, Irene Castle, Betty Compson, Reginald Denny, Helen Ferguson, George Brent and Doris Kenyon were one with Rin Tin Tin as stars of the chapter plays.

But if these people would rather not mention the days when they lived "on the other side of the tracks," not so with the directors. From the serial lots came John Ford of "The Informer," W. S. Van Dyke of "Thin Man" and "Rose Marie," Frank Lloyd of "Mutiny on the Bounty," Chester Franklin of "Sequoia" and Robert Z. Leonard, Alfred Green, Edward Sedgwick and John Blystone. It was a great school for the making of motion pictures. The drama was elemental, but it was drama. With the serial as a basis, the refinement could come later. There are trends in serials as there are in all forms of the photoplay. Mysteries, Westerns and tales of the Northwest Mounted Police have lived through the years, but topical subjects and momentary heroes have their careers as well. Currently, the fantastic is desirable. But, when they were in the public eye, Gene Tunney, James J. Corbett, Red Grange and Ernie Nevers all were heroes of chapter plays. Success, for a serial producer, depends upon the ability to leap on the thing most engrossing to youth. Last year it was "Tailspin Tommy"; this year it's "Flash Gordin." Flash went to work at Universal this week.

No one seems to remember which was the first successful serial. McRae has been with Universal over twenty years, and before that he was with Colonel William Selig, and serials were a going institution when he joined the Laemmles. They reached their full flower around 1915, when the leading serial queen of the moment always was sure to defeat even Queen Mary Pickford in popularity contests. Then for eight or nine years they merely existed. McRae, who was head of Universal, believed that they would come back and always kept a serial company working even though the profits were not what they had been. But, good times or bad, they never lost money—something that cannot be said of any other form of Hollywood's art.

* * *

McRae thinks that the pictures of the Twenties were basic enough to be understandable to children and, being silent, permitted the youngsters to read their own interpretation into them. But, with the coming of sound, the young audiences fled. The industry was in a state of excitement around 1929-30 because the children were not going to the the-

(Continued on Page 27)

"Flash Gordon" Starts

THIS week at Universal City Henry McRae put into production Universal's fourth and concluding serial of the year, "Flash Gordon." Buster Crabbe was a splendid selection in the title role, and McRae is surrounding him with a splendid cast and with sets and machines of such marvelous interest and ingenuity that the kids of the land are going to go for "Flash Gordon" in the biggest kind of a way.

This is the way the studio critic at Universal City describes opening day's work on "Flash Gordon":

"The picture starts off impressively. It is quite overwhelming in the amount of strange electrical and radio paraphernalia. This includes various kinds of instrument-boards, long-spark static machines and all kinds of those queer, spectacular mechanical, electrical and radio gadgets that have such fascination. Most of the footage shows the interior of the rocket ship that is shot from Earth to another planet. Buster Crabbe is very much like Flash Gordon in looks. Jean Rogers is a fine ornament to the picture as well as able to do many stunts that the part calls for. She has a lot of nerve and confidence and is no doubt the best serial girl in every way since Marie Walcamp . . . Frank Shannon is very well cast as Prof. Zarkov. He is a bearded, wild-eyed, foreign looking fellow, and just queer enough to be convincingly psychic and scientific. All swell stuff and looks like the best serial in years."

HENRY McRAE

The New York Times in the accompanying article calls him the serial king, and that is just what he is. He is now making "Flash Gordon."

"YOU CAN COUNT

ON THIS ONE"! Says Showmen's Trade Review

LOOK YOU CAN BOOK IT TODAY!

SLUGS IN TWO SIZES
(Order by number)

2 COL. NO. 3 1 COL. NO. 4

2 COL. NO. 5 1 COL. NO. 6

2 COL. NO. 1 1 COL. NO. 2

(Fill out, sign, detach and mail to your Universal Exchange)

To:
BRANCH MANAGER
UNIVERSAL FILM EXCHANGE
CITY_____STATE_____

Date_____1936

Yes, Sir! I want to book "Camera Thrills" on

_____

_____

_____

Also send me the following accessories:

_____ 1 Sheets	_____ Sets 11 x 14 Photos	_____ Sets 8 x 10 Photos
_____ Press Books	_____ No. _____ Ad mats	_____ No. _____ Ad mats
_____ No. _____ Ad mats	_____ No. _____ Ad mats	_____ No. _____ Ad mats
_____ No. _____ Ad mats

CONFIRM BOOKING AND RUSH AD MATERIAL IMMEDIATELY

SIGNED_____
MANAGER

THEATRE_____ CITY_____ STATE_____

Buck Jones Biggest Western Money Maker

THE BOX OFFICE CHECK-UP OF 1935

BIGGEST MONEY-MAKING WESTERN STARS

BUCK JONES . .	104%	[redacted] . .	26%
[redacted]	100%	[redacted] . . .	6%
[redacted] .	51%	[redacted] . . .	3%
[redacted] . . .	28%	[redacted] . .	2%
[redacted] .	27%	[redacted] . . .	2%

These rankings are based on the poll of exhibitors naming "The Biggest Money-Making Stars of 1934-35." Complete results of which appear on pages 84-85.

104%

CHAMPION OF THE WESTERN STARS! LEADER AMONG ALL OTHER BOX OFFICE LEADERS! ...UNIVERSAL IS PROUD OF HIM!...

Adjudged Biggest Money Making Western Star in Nation Wide Poll of Independent Exhibitors Conducted by the Motion Picture Herald.

THE independent exhibitors of the country, in an extensive poll conducted annually by the Motion Picture Herald, ranked Buck Jones, Universal western star, twenty-fourth in the list of the biggest money making stars of 1934-35. It is significant of note that Jones received the highest rating of any western star in this poll, having 104%. This percentage figure refers to the number of citations with respect to the total votes cast by the participating exhibitors.

It is important to note that, although Buck has twenty-fourth place, he is twenty-third in the list, as two of the winners, Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, were adjudged both as a team and as individual stars. A glance at the winners discloses the interesting fact that Buck Jones is immediately preceded on the list by such outstanding personalities as Grace Moore and Katherine Hepburn.

This poll which rates Buck Jones so high is the absolute voice of the box-office speaking through the independent exhibitors. The figures taken in at the box-office on each of these stars were the basis of the voting, not any personal opinions of these exhibitors. And in order that the voting might be entirely unbiased, only independent theatre owners were asked to participate in the voting, those without producer or distributor affiliation.

No other western star comes anywhere near Buck in standing in this poll,—in fact the next on the list has a percentage of 51, the third western star having a 28% rating, and others ranking 27, 26, 6, 3%, three having 2%, and one rating 1%.

Buck Jones is at present busy at Universal City making "For the Service," a story by Isidore Bernstein, founded on the real life and tradition of one of the most colorful figures of the West. Buck Jones is directing the picture himself.

N. Y. Times Gives Serials A Great Big Boost

(Continued from Page 23)

atre. McRae believed that the time of the serial's renaissance was at hand and he threw "The Indians Are Coming" into production. Tim McCoy was the star. The plot utilized sound for the Indian language and capitalized on the sign language of the aborigines. It was a terrific success, and Hays wrote McRae that the picture was worth $20,000,000 to the industry because it brought the kiddies back.

Universal pays anywhere from $3,000 to $17,000 for picture rights to a good character. "Frank Merriwell" cost $5,000 and "Flash Gordon" cost $10,000. The stars receive from $1,000 to $5,000 a week and from six to eight weeks is the shooting schedule. Sound has added about 50 per cent to the cost and they now are budgeted at from $165,000 to $250,000 each. Their earning capacity is unlimited if released through the proper channels. There have been more million dollar profits from serials than from any other kind of picture.

Concocting the plays requires a special genius. McRae estimate he has made more than 100 of them, assisted by Ella O'Neill, who has been with him since 1914. Miss O'Neill had been a practicing attorney in Chicago and a specialist in languages.

The Best Giveaways of All–FAN PHOTOS!

They'll come and get 'em—if you give them these duo-tone prints of Universal stars, which you can order at your local exchange for only $6.50 per thousand . . . Tell your patrons on what days you'll distribute them—and watch your business jump!

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
SHOWMANSHIP SECTION
A DIGEST OF THE BEST EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

COCKS USES DOZEN 'OBSESSION' ANGLES

Enthusiastic members of Akron's Irene Dunne fan club attending special showing of "Magnificent Obsession" tendered them by Manager Harvey Cocks. They planted signs throughout Akron.

CHALK up another bullseye for Harvey Cocks, Manager, Strand Theatre, Akron, Ohio on his outstanding campaign on "Magnificent Obsession," which brought hold-over business.

Topping his excellent showmanship was a special screening for Akron's ministers and the locally famous Irene Dunne club, resulting in fast word-of-mouth advertising. The most prominent clergymen used the theme of the picture as subject for their sermons, while the Irene Dunne admirers boosted the picture in Akron's social circles.

The "Identify The Eyes" contest, as Cocks used it, attracted an exceptional amount of attention. The copy was blown up to 40 x 60 size and placed in the window of the city's principal jewelry and optical store (photo below). Tickets were offered for the best solution.

The book clinched cooperation from dozens of the city's finest stores and circulating libraries which devoted entire window displays to the novel and inserted bookmarks in all books.

Other tried and proved angles well utilized by Cocks were: circularizing of local doctors with postcards; Postal Telegraph tie-up for window displays; distribution of special heralds, and a radio dramatization of scenes from the picture. Duke Hickey, Universal exploiteer, assisted Harvey Cocks.

Gasoline Tie-Up On "Magnificent Obsession"

Fourteen hundred newspapers throughout the Middle West area are running twelve hundred line ads tying up Standard Red Crown Gasoline and the Universal picture "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION." The illustration of the ad shows Irene Dunne and Robert Taylor in a speeding roadster topped by a teaser line "What Have You Dunne?" It appears, further down in the ad, that Irene Dunne filled her tank with Standard's new fast-starting gasoline. Hence the fine tie-up.

Wartha's Big Safety Tie-Up for Michigan City!

Daily Gives "Magnificent" Obsession" Serialization Smash Free Space!

WHEN "Magnificent Obsession" played the Lake Theatre, Michigan City, Ind., Manager Art Wartha arranged an outstanding publicity tie-up that carried an appeal for every man, woman and child in the city. The local newspaper was in the midst of an editorial safety campaign and was propagandizing increased accident insurance. This suggested to Wartha a tie-up with the accident sequence in the picture. He landed his idea in grand style, as the full page ad, at left, illustrates. The newspaper offered ten thousand dollar accident insurance, to the first fifty persons who applied, at the rate of only 10c. a month. The theatre, as an added inducement, offered tickets to "Magnificent Obsession."

The full page ad also carried the first announcement of the "Magnificent Obsession" picture-strip serialization, which the paper ran the week before the picture opened. Free three and four column space was devoted to the serialization every day. Reproduction of one of the Dispatchis pages, below, shows how this cooperative stunt literally "stole" the theatrical pages

BARNEY JOFFEE CAPTURES THE CHOICE WINDOWS WITH HIS OLD GOLD TIE-UP

BARNEY JOFFEE, that very alert Managing Director of the Tower Theatre, Kansas City, Mo. grabbed over five hundred choice window displays for his "Magnificent Obsession" campaign through a neat tie-up with Old Gold cigarettes. Special window pasters were used, supplemented by stills from the picture.

Other big features in Joffee's comprehensive campaign included posting of 24-sheets, planting of ten thousand bookmarks in stores and libraries and arranging for free distribution of 30,000 roto heralds by Liberty Magazine dealer, local laundry, and a chain of 5 and 10 cent stores. Fine Barney.

3rd WEEK! HOLD-OVER ADS!

(1)

LAFAYETTE

Due to Tremendous Popular Demand It's Held Over

. . . 3rd AND POSITIVELY FINAL WEEK'S SHOWING STARTS TODAY

IRENE DUNNE
ROBERT TAYLOR
in
MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION

(2)

RKO KEITH'S A WASHINGTON INSTITUTION Opposite U. S. Treasury on 15th St

Congratulations to you IRENE DUNNE

In "Roberta" you appeared on our screen for five solid weeks

NOW WE PROUDLY ANNOUNCE THE . . .

3RD WEEK for your picture

"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION"

A UNIVERSAL PRODUCTION WITH

ROBERT TAYLOR

this tenth issue of "The MARCH of TIME"

(3)

Of Course, IT STAYS a 3rd WEEK!

SO ALL MAY SEE!

A picture whose haunting beauty and warm humanity will forever leave their mark on your heart The story of a love that rose above tragedy to glorious happiness . !

"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION"

—with—

IRENE DUNNE
ROBERT TAYLOR

AFTER YOU SEE IT YOU WILL NEVER BE QUITE THE SAME AGAIN

TUDOR

(4)

CROWDS

"SPLENDID" —Mae Tinee
"FINE AND HUMAN" —Doris Arden
"MAGNIFICENT" —Rob Reel
"EXCEPTIONAL" —Carol Frish

AGREE WITH THE CRITICS THAT THIS IS A MAGNIFICENT PICTURE!

2ND AND FINAL WEEK BEGINS TODAY!

IRENE DUNNE ROBERT TAYLOR

In Universal's production of the Lloyd C. Douglas novel

MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION

CHARLES BUTTERWORTH
Betty Furness, Sara Haden
Ralph Morgan, Henry Armetta

ALL-NEW STAGE SHOW!

Lovely Lark of Stage, Screen and Radio

JANE FROMAN IN PERSON

THE 3 SLATE BROTHERS
FRED SANBORN
Jeff Sayre and Lillian
TED ADAIR & CO.
Ruth Lang, Pearl Reynolds
E. La Monterete, Eleanor James

OPENS 10:45 Price Changes 2 & 6:30

RKO PALACE

RANDOLPH NEAR LA SALLE

(5)

MAGNIFICENT!

2ND BIG Week

MAGNIFICENT Entertainment!

MAGNIFICENT!

No story was ever more powerful, no romance ever more enchanting than this emotional masterpiece from a great author, by a genius director, and with an inspired cast of stars!

MAGNIFICENT!

IRENE DUNNE
ROBERT TAYLOR

LLOYD C. DOUGLAS'

MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION

A JOHN M. STAHL Production from the best-selling novel by Lloyd C. Douglas, with Charles BUTTERWORTH BETTY FURNESS Henry Armetta, Sara Haden Ralph Morgan

NEW PRICES 25c TIL 2 35c TIL 7:30

FOX

(6)

HELD OVER!

CROWDS! CROWDS! CROWDS!

Record Crowds Are Storming Our Doors . . . Acclaiming This Picture the Greatest in 10 Years!

2ND BIG WEEK STARTS SUNDAY

Women weep and strong men thrill to an emotional experience that makes "Magnificent Obsession" more than a great Love Story

Irene DUNNE Robert TAYLOR in "Magnificent Obsession" with Chas. BUTTERWORTH

25¢ TIL 1 P. M. Plus 1c Tax

BEWARE! OF THE INVISIBLE RAY

PLUS BERNIE ARMSTRONG at The Wurlitzer

ALVIN

(7)

It Stays! for ANOTHER WEEK!

Daily crowds have thrilled to this soul searing story of a woman's soul held up to all humanity

IRENE DUNNE ROB'T TAYLOR in "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" with CHARLES BUTTERWORTH BETTY FURNESS HENRY ARMETTA

ADDED! MARCH OF TIME LATEST ISSUE NO. 10

KEITH MEMORIAL TWO ENTRANCES: WASHINGTON at TREMONT

(8)

2nd BIG WEEK! PANTAGES HOLLYWOOD R-K-O HILLSTREET

IRENE DUNNE ROBERT TAYLOR IN MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION

(1) Two column x 4" third week from Lafayette, Buffalo.. (2) Three column 7½" from Keiths, Washington, D. C. (3) Two column x 9½" from Tudor, New Orleans. (4) Double column x 7½" from Palace, Chicago. (5) Two column x 8" from Fox, St. Louis. (6) Double column x 5½" from Alvin, Pittsburgh. (7) Double column x 4½" from Memorial, Boston. (8) Eight column x 1½" from Hillstreet and Pantages, Los Angeles.

SING! SHOUT! CHEER!

FOR HERE SHE COMES! UNIVERSAL'S 1936 VERSION OF THE GREATEST MUSIC DRAMA THE WORLD HAS EVER KNOWN!

"SHOW BOAT"

From

UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.

ROCKEFELLER CENTER

NEW YORK CITY

Sec. 562 P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE

Paid

Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

MANAGER
CLIFFORD THEATRE
5937 W ROOSEVELT RD
CHICAGO ILL

"First" Again!

THE Hollywood REPORTER

U Cameraman Back In Ethiopian Zone

New York.—Howard Winner, Universal Weekly's star cameraman, has returned safe and sound to Addis Ababa. He is the first cameraman in the world to secure permission from Emperor Hailie Selassie to film scenes on the Ethiopian war front.

He has shot 1,000 feet of exclusive film showing damages to the Red Cross units, also dead and wounded, and troops actually in action under airplane and rifle fire.

because it's

UNIVERSAL NEWSREEL

with

GRAHAM McNAMEE

Printed in U. S. A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
VOL. 38, NO. 2
FEB. 8, 1936

SWEEP!
POWER!
MAJESTY!
BOX OFFICE!

THAT'S

UNIVERSAL'S

"SUTTER'S

GOLD"!

WHAT THE PICTURE DID FOR ME

MOTION PICTURE HERALD

DIAMOND JIM: Edward Arnold, Binnie Barnes—This was an unusual attraction and pleased the majority. Played December 14.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

DIAMOND JIM: Edward Arnold— Fine show. I advertised it big. Edward Arnold is plenty good. Hurry, Universal. with "Sutter's Gold."—Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala. Small town patronage.

HIS NIGHT OUT: Edward Everett Horton, Irene Hervey—A very funny program picture. Good entertainment and gave good satisfaction —Bert Silver, New Silver Theatre, Greenville, Mich. City and country patronage.

SMOKING GUNS: Ken Maynard—Ken Maynard, our national farm hero who appeals to the ladies as well as to the men, always draws the crowds. Universal has given us, so far, the best western attractions. We are playing "Strawbery Roan" for the third time.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

STORM OVER THE ANDES: Jack Holt, Mona Barrie—A very fine flying picture by a star that never made a poor picture. Gave good satisfaction to all. Played January 3-4.—Bert Silver, New Silver Theatre, Greenville, Mich. City and country patronage.

STORMY: Noah Beery, Jr., Jean Rogers—A great novelty picture; one of the best. Beery, Jr., is some actor; carried this star part like a veteran, and all the cast was extra good, and more horses than you ever saw in any picture. J. Farrell MacDonald was fine. I did not like the snakes in the picture, but there are people that like them. Played December 27-28.—Bert Silver, New Silver Theatre, Greenville, Mich. City and country patronage.

STORMY: Noah Beery, Jr., Jean Rogers—The sweetest outdoor picture produced in many moons. Tops all Friday-Saturday business. By all means play it, and step on it. Will be liked by all classes. Running time, 68 minutes. Played December 13-14.—Mrs. Mary E. Lind, Ute Theatre, Rifle, Col. Small town patronage.

THREE KIDS AND A QUEEN: Henry Armetta, May Robson—Boy, oh boy, what a picture and did the fans eat it up. Second day tripled opening day. Congratulations, Universal, for giving us a picture like this. Running time, 90 minutes. Played December 31-January 1—Mrs. Mary E. Lind, Ute Theatre, Rifle, Col. Small town patronage.

WEREWOLF OF LONDON: Henry Hull—A good picture of the "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" type that our patrons came out to see in goodly numbers. We double billed it with "It Happened In New York," which made a nice combination. Where this type of picture is wanted it can be depended on to please.—J. E. Stocker, Myrtle Theatre, Detroit, Mich. Neighborhood patronage.

WHO MAKES THE

No. 849 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

Buck Jones is the answer.

Buck Jones makes the best western pictures.

Buck Jones stands head and shoulder above all others.

You cant get Buck Jones pictures anywhere except through Universal.

Universal realized long ago that Buck Jones was the best bet in western pictures; and Universal sewed him up to make pictures for Universal customers—and for nobody else!

You'll have to take the word of the Motion Picture Herald for it.

Recently the Motion Picture Herald asked all independent theatres to vote for their most popular western star.

Universal has nothing to do with the contest. In truth, we didn't even realize that the darned vote was being taken.

BEST WESTERNS?

All of a sudden the result was announced. Buck Jones won the contest by getting a vote of 104 percent.

I always thought 100 percent was perfect.

But this Buck Jones fellow got a vote of 104 percent.

It sounds funny, but it happens to be true. Buck Jones got a vote which is better than perfect. Ordinarily I would think there was something phoney about such a vote — but it was all based on box office results.

I would have voted for Buck Jones myself because he is such a white man. But the vote mentioned above was not based on his decency but on his box office value.

Independent theatres voted. Nobody else was permitted to vote. And the result showed Buck Jones at the top with 104 percent. I dont know where he got that extra four percent, but I do know that he got the 100 percent as the result of pure box office merit.

Universal is Buck Jones' manager. If you force us to sell you the Buck Jones pictures we are ready to be reasonable. We wont charge you a cent more than 104 percent!

Carl Laemmle

BEST! POWE
POIGNANT!
TOUCHIN

"'NEXT TIME WE LOVE' IS ROMANTIC DRAMA WITH STRONG APPEAL . . . EMOTIONALLY STIRRING . . . RICH IN WARM INTEREST . . . RANKS HIGH AMONG THE FINER EXAMPLES OF CINEMATIC ENTERTAINMENT"!

—N. Y. Americar

"'NEXT TIME WE LOVE' TOUCHING FILM THE MATINEE AUDIENCE IN THE MUSIC HALL WAS PROFOUNDLY STIRRED BY IT AND THE LADIES WEPT PLEASURABLY"

—N. Y. Daily Mirro

"SENSITIVE AND INTELLIGENT . . . MISS SULLAVAN GIVES A PERFORMANCE IN THE LEADING ROLE THAT CAN ONLY BE DESCRIBED AS BOTH HONEST AND BEAUTIFUL"

—N. Y. Herald Tribun

"A GRAND PICTURE FOR WOMEN TO CRY OVER AND GENERALLY ENJOY THEMSELVES . . . MISS SULLAVAN HAS NEVER LOOKED SO LOVELY NOR ACTED WITH MORE SURENESS . . . PROVIDES SIGHS ROMANCE AND TEARS"! —N. Y. Su

MARG

in Her Greatest Triump

NEXT T

with JAME

ROBEI

Produced by

RFUL! A NATURAL! STRONG!
! BRILLIANT! BEAUTIFUL!
G! SENSITIVE! GRAND!

" 'NEXT TIME WE LOVE' IS THE BEST MARGARET SULLAVAN PICTURE, AND CLOSE TO THE BEST PRODUCTION UNIVERSAL HAS TURNED OUT, FOR SHEER DRAMATIC MERIT. IT HAS POWERFUL EMOTIONAL APPEAL IN ITS DELICATELY AND POIGNANTLY TOLD SEMI-TRAGIC STORY, AND IS A NATURAL FOR WOMEN, FULLY AS STRONG IN THIS RESPECT AS U'S CURRENT HEAVY GROSSER, 'MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION' " !
—Daily Variety

"BRILLIANT IN ITS DRAMATIC POWER TO STIR THE SINCEREST OF HUMAN EMOTIONS, THIS IS A STORY OF A BEAUTIFUL LOVE BROUGHT FACE TO FACE WITH LIFE'S STERNEST REALITIES. TASTEFULLY PRODUCED, INTELLIGENTLY ACTED AND DIRECTED"!
—Motion Picture Daily

" 'NEXT TIME WE LOVE' FINE. SULLAVAN SHINES IN POIGNANT YARN. REAL AND MOVING LOVE STORY OF YOUNG AMERICA THAT COMES SO CLOSE TO HOME AS TO ENLIST THE SYMPATHETIC RESPONSE OF EVERYONE"!
—Hollywood Reporter

CARL LAEMMLE PRESENTS

ARET SULLAVAN

URSULA PARROTT'S Most Famous Best-Seller

TIME WE LOVE

EWART • RAY MILLAND • GRANT MITCHELL
WADE • ANNA DE METRIO • RONALD COSBEY
L KOHNER Directed by EDWARD H. GRIFFITH
A UNIVERSAL PICTURE

AH! THE SIGHS IN IT!
OH! THE LOVE IN IT!
WHEE! THE FUN IN IT!
ZOOM! THE SPEED OF IT!

Carole LOMBARD

in

LOVE BEFORE

with

Preston FOSTER

Janet Beecher, Cesar Romero, Pat Flaherty, Joyce Compton, Richard Carle, Forrester Harvey, Betty Lawford, John King, Diana Gibson, Nan Gray, David Worth, Douglas Blockley, Earl Eby, Priscilla Lawson, Adamae Vaughan, Nick de Ruiz, Red Christie, Marion Wolfe. Directed by Walter Lang. Screenplay by Herbert Fields, author of "Fifty Million Frenchmen." Presented by Carl Laemmle. An Edmund Grainger Production.

From Faith Baldwin's Cosmopolitan Magazine Story!

BREAKFAST

"Obsession" Brought Back to the Tower, K. C.

The lobby of the Tower Theatre, Kansas City, at the opening of "Magnificent Obsession." It played to two record-breaking weeks and yesterday it was brought back for another run, the quickest re-booking on record.

FOUR WEEK RUNS ON "MAGNIFICENT"

"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" remains the outstanding money picture of the year, in spite of winter's deadliest thrusts. People just flock to the theatres that are showing "Magnificent Obsession." A lot of them are holding it for four week runs.

Most significant of the bookings so far is Loew's Theatre in Hartford, which is just finishing a triumphant fourth week in a house in town which never before held a picture for four weeks.

At the Orpheum in San Francisco, the picture played fourth week and is going immediately into the Embassy, where it will continue its run.

In Minneapolis, after a splendid first week at the Orpheum Theatre, it has completed its third week at the smaller World Theatre to continuously turn-away business.

In Chicago, the Garrick Theatre, after two tremendous weeks at the Palace, is completing its second week, making four great weeks on the Loop. Here is what Variety says about the engagement:

"Obsession" Sets Record For Small Garrick

Garrick (B&K) (900; 25-35-55-65)—"Obsession" (U) (4th week). Remarkable from every angle; drawing the femmes in droves. Repeat business and all-day trade keeping picture in the high money mark throughout stay. Broke house record last week at $9,100 and will touch close to $9,000 this week. Could stay longer, but is being yanked to avoid day-and-dating with the neighborhoods.

There are also a lot of repeat bookings. The Tower Theatre in Kansas City, where it played to capacity brought the picture back yesterday; the Strand in Stamford, Conn., repeats it on February 13th, and there are repeat bookings at the Strand in Akron and the Palace in Toledo.

✚ ✚ ✚

STILL BEST SELLER

IN the keen competition of more recent publications, that amazing "Magnificent Obsession" is still holding its own after four years as a best seller. It is now in its thirty-fifth edition. The New York Times every Monday reports the best sellers in the fiction division in the largest cities of the United States. Surprisingly enough, in Washington, D. C., "Magnificent Obsession" is well up to the top of the list; in Atlanta, it is the first on the list.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, N. Y. City
Universal Pictures Corp.
Copyrighted 1936
(All Rights Reserved)
Vol. 38 No. 2
FEB. 8, 1936

The Chronicle-Universal Newsreel to Be Offered

Graham McNamee to Be Talking Reporter in Newspicture Presentation Every Week at Coliseum Theater

Arrangements have just been completed between The Chronicle and the Universal Pictures corporation whereby a newspaper newsreel, to be known as The Alaska Chronicle-Universal newsreel, will be distributed and shown twice a week in leading motion picture theaters of this Territory beginning Sunday at the Coliseum.

The reel will be outstanding in its presentation of important news events in picture form, and in its handling of interesting scenes and activities all over the world.

The Alaska Chronicle-Universal newsreel is the latest and most modern development of a new form of journalism—screen journalism. It will be in the nature of a "screen supplement" to The Chronicle which will enable the public to see the important and interesting news events and activities they have read about in the columns of this newspaper.

In linking with the Universal newsreel organization, The Chronicle is taking advantage of a world wide set-up of expert cameramen, trained film editors and newsreel technicians who have demonstrated their ability to produce a newsreel without equal on the screen. They are all veterans in the newsreel field, and are noted as having developed many innovations in the handling and presentation of screen news.

In every section of the United States, and in every part of the globe, will be an Alaska Chronicle-Universal newsreel cameraman ready at all times to film outstanding events. Whether it be a riot, a fire, a hurricane or a celebration, if it's news, it will be photographed and rushed to the newsreel's headquarters. It is only by unlimited effort and expense, as well as initiative, daring and determination on the part of the cameramen, that news pictures of important happenings can be made and speeded to the screen.

McNamee Announces

One of the outstanding features of the Universal newsreel will be the narrative description and sidelighting of the news by Universal's talking reporter.

The adding of a descriptive voice to newsreel pictures was originally initiated by Universal, and it marks the greatest innovation in the newsreel field since the inception of sound-films. Other newsreels have since adopted the method, but The Alaska Chronicle-Universal newsreel has as its talking reporter the best known voice in the world, that of Graham McNamee, noted radio and sports announcer.

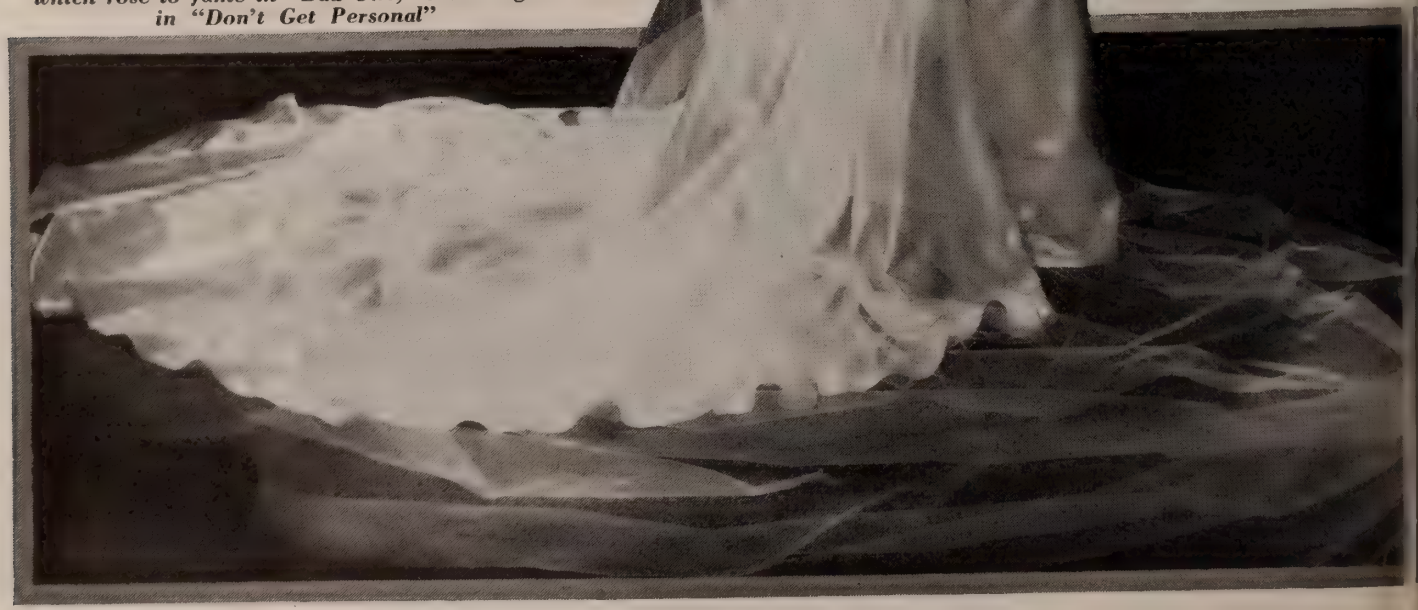
McNamee's interesting comment and pithy descriptions of events shown in the reel, and his remarkable ability to dramatize the news, will make The Alaska Chronicle-Universal newsreel an important part of the offering at the Coliseum.

From North Pole to South, from one end of the world to the other, it has the biggest newspaper co-operation of any and all newsreels!

"Don't Get

Sally Eilers and James Dunn, the lovable team which rose to fame in "Bad Girl," shines again in "Don't Get Personal"

It took yards of satin to fashion wedding gown Sally Eilers wears.



Personal"

JAMES DUNN and Sally Eilers, the great lovers of "Bad Girl" and "Dance Team," are re-united after a three year separation in Universal's "Don't Get Personal." The team which rose to stardom and box office popularity by their memorable work in "Bad Girl" and won for that picture the Photoplay and Motion Picture Academy awards for the best picture of the year, has a glorious re-union in this rollicking, lovable story, "Don't Get Personal," which tops all their previous performances and combines comedy, romance and adventure in one smash hit.

With Pinky Tomlin, the Oklahoma crooner, actor and composer, whose overnight rise to fame is the movie sensation of the year, being featured with Dunn and Eilers, the keen story moves spontaneously along. Two new songs are introduced by Tomlin in the picture, "I Won't Take No for an Answer" and "Barnyard Serenade," which he also composed.

The story opens in New York, with Dunn and Pinky Tomlin in bankrupt circumstances, with no assets but two college degrees and a battered flivver. While trying to sell their services, by way of the auction block, they cross the path of Sally Eilers, who has failed to make good in the big city, and is about to go back home. She saves them from a sour spinster by bidding for them herself, to limit of her last five dollars.

Just before the Lochinvar act in "Don't Get Personal"

•

Sally Eilers and James Dunn re-united.

Sally Eilers in the role of Jinxey is ordered out of the commandeered calaboose by Pinky Tomlin, while James Dunn looks on the ordering with approval.

Their unconventional trek across the country to return their benefactress to the bosom of her family in London, Ohio, is the basis for much of the intriguing action of the story. As the plot develops, Dunn, who is convinced that he hates Miss Eilers, and blames her for the complications she has added to his already complicated affairs, tries many times to "lose" her on the way, so he can return to New York and a promised job. When he finally succeeds, Miss Eilers turns the tables on him by taking the car with her.

Forced to follow her to redeem their only means of transportation, the boys are faced with a situation which leads to a thrilling and exciting climax.

ACTUAL BOX OFFICE THAT IN A PERIOD OF 4,800,000 PERSONS
SEE "MAGNIFICENT

BY DIRECT WIRE FROM

WESTERN UNION

CLASS OF SERVICE

This is a full-rate Telegram or Cable-gram unless its deferred character is indicated by a suitable symbol above or preceding the address.

SYMBOLS

DL = Day Letter
NM = Night Message
NL = Night Letter
LC = Deferred Cable
NLT = Cable Night Letter
Ship Radiogram

GB24 29 NL=PITTSBURG PENN JAN 12 1936
J R GRAINGER=
ROCKEFELLER CENTER NEWYORK NY=
OBSESSION OPENED ALVIN TODAY TO BIGGEST SUNDAY SINCE ADVENT OF SUNDAY SHOWS STOP LINES A BLOCK LONG AN HOUR BEFORE OPENING STOP POSITIVE HOLD OVER FOR SECOND WEEK REGARDS=
A BARNETT

NA15 31=B OMAHA NEBR 227P JAN 23 1936
J R GRAINGER, UNIV PICTURES CORP=
ROCKEFELLER CENTER NY=
WITH WEATHER TEN BELOW OPENING MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION TODAY TERRIFIC LOOKS LIKE RECORD DAY STOP SENDING PHOTOGRAPH CROWDS JAMMING THEATRE FOR PREMIER EIGHT OCLOCK LAST NIGHT WHILE THERMOMETER REGISTERED SIXTEEN BELOW ZERO=
TED EMERSON OMAHA THEATRE.
352P

N6 21=FB CLEVELAND OHIO 1130A JAN 14 1936
FRANK MCCARTHY=
UNIVERSAL FILM EXCHGS
WITH IT AT THE RIVOLI THIS WEEK IT IS MAGNIFICENT WITH IT ELSEWHERE IN TOLEDO IT WOULD SURELY BE AN OBSESSION=
WM N SKIRBALL.
1156A

NH30 23 DL=CK PITTSBURG PENN JAN 14 153P
J R GRAINGER, UNIVERSAL FILM EXC=
MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION OPENED HARRIS ALVIN SUNDAY TO TREMENDOUS BUSINESS STOP DOUBLED ANY PREVIOUS SUNDAY STOP CONTINUING EACH DAY TREMENDOUS GROSSES CONGRATULATIONS AND REGARDS=
JOHN H HARRIS.
304P

N12 95 DL COUNT QNS=W BALTIMORE MD 1236P JAN 8 1936
J R GRAINGER=
UNIVERSAL PICTURES=
WHEN I ARRIVED AT THEATRE LAST NIGHT FOR THE OPENING OF "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" I HAD TO USE THE STAGE ENTRANCE AS I COULD NOT GET THROUGH THE LOBBY ON ACCOUNT OF THE CROWD STOP QUITE A FEW REFUNDS WERE MADE TO THE OVERFLOW STOP RECORD BUSINESS SHOULD BE ENJOYED THANKS
J L SCHANBERGER.
118P

Jan. 23, 1936 THE Hollywood

BEST 'U' GRO
FOR 'MAGNIFIC

Topping Previous Highs 20 Percent

New York.—"Magnificent Obsession" is doing the biggest business throughout the country of any Universal picture in four years.

The film has played two weeks or is in a second week in these cities: St. Louis, Los Angeles (two houses), Richmond (two houses), Chicago, San Francisco, Minneapolis, Boston, Washington, Cleveland, Kansas City, Salt Lake City, Hartford, Indianapolis, Detroit, Baltimore, Atlanta, Philadelphia, Louisville, Pittsburgh, New Orleans, Toledo and St. Paul.

In Minneapolis the picture registered nearly four times the business of "Imitation of Life," previous high grosser. In Houston, Grand Rapids, Cleveland, Seattle, Syracuse and Rochester, "Obsession" did better in three days than "Imitation of Life" or "Diamond Jim" did in a week.

In every one nearly ... Naydates to date "Obsession ... ed any previous Univ... picture by at lea...

B. & K. Hold "Obsession"

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—"Magnificent Obsession," which ran two weeks at the—Palace to heavy business, was rushed into the Garrick on a moment's notice by B. & K. for a third Loop week. The picture had been doing such good business the B. & K. executives thought this the wise thing to do. Previous bookings prohibited the Palace from holding the picture over another week.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY

Obsession" Leads Providence Take

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 26.—Heavy sno... storms cut into first run receipts ... week, but "Magnificent Obsessi... made a good showing by garne... $7,800, up by $800, at the Maje...
The only other downtown at... tion to get into the profit column... a dual consisting of "R...

REPORTS SHOW ONLY 3 WEEKS HAVE PAID TO OBSESSION"!

EPORTER

ES IN 4 YRS T OBSESSION?

"Obsession" $5,500 Draw In St. Paul

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 27.—"Magnificent Obsession" was in the money in a big way in St. Paul where it garnered $5,500 at the Orpheum, passing par by $1,500. At the World here it took average $3,000.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY

"Obsession" Frisco Lead In 2nd Week

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—In a week of dull grosses in Frisco "Magnificent Obsession" was the only attraction to get into the profit column. It was $200 over normal on a take of $7,000 for its second week.

The Warfield, without a stage show and with reduced admissions and a dual bill, eked out $19,000.

Total first run business was $66,100. Average is $74,400.

Estimated takings:

MOTION PICTURE DAILY

"Obsession" Again Louisville's High

LOUISVILLE, Jan. 27.—In its second week at the Strand "Magnificent Obsession" did the best business grossing $5,500.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY

"Obsession" Breaks Records in Denve

DENVER, Jan. 24.—"Magnificent Obsession," at the Denver, broke all house records for the past three years, topping everything since Harry Huffman has had the house. A total of 6,402 saw the picture the first day, and the evening standouts were out to the street. Huffman is planning to keep the picture three weeks, taking it to the Aladdin next week and back down town to the Broadway the third.

Last week's picture. "King of Burlesque" is remaining for a second week at the Broadway, following seven days at the Denver.

Did $11,765 in Twin City

"Magnificent Obsession" gross at the Orpheum, Minneapolis was $11,765 and not $6,500 as reported by MOTION PICTURE DAILY. The picture then moved to the World where it is doing capacity business despite thermometers recording 36 below zero.

"Obsession" Pulls $13,400, Houston

HOUSTON, Jan. 29. — "Magnificent Obsession" was the money-maker of the week. It had a take of $13,400 at the Majestic and was held over for a second week. This is $6,400 above par.

held over

ALTOONA, 3rd wk.
BOSTON, 2nd wk.
BROOKLYN, 2nd wk.
BUFFALO, 3rd wk.
CHICAGO, 2nd wk.
HARTFORD, 4th wk.
HOUSTON, 2nd wk.
KANSAS CITY, 2nd wk.
LOS ANGELES, 2nd wk.
LOUISVILLE, 2nd wk.
MEMPHIS, 2nd wk.
NEWARK, 2nd wk.
NEW ORLEANS, 2nd wk.
NORFOLK, 2nd wk.
PHILADELPHIA, 2nd wk.
PITTSBURGH, 3rd wk.
PORTLAND, Ore., 2nd wk.
PORTLAND, Me., 2nd wk.
RICHMOND, 2nd wk.
ROANOKE, 2nd wk.
SACRAMENTO, 2nd wk.
SAN DIEGO, 2nd wk.
ST. LOUIS, 2nd wk.
SAN FRANCISCO, 3rd wk.
SEATTLE, 2nd wk.
TORONTO, 3rd wk.
WASHINGTON, D. C., 2nd wk.
WINNIPEG, 2nd wk.

ext. runs

AKRON
ALBANY
ATLANTA
CHICAGO
(after holdover)
CINCINNATI
CLEVELAND
COLUMBUS
DENVER
DULUTH DETROIT
DAYTON
EVANSVILLE
FT. WAYNE
FT. WORTH
INDIANAPOLIS
LANCASTER LONG BEACH
MADISON
MILWAUKEE
MINNEAPOLIS
MONTREAL
NEW ORLEANS
PHILADELPHIA PROVIDENCE
READING
SALT LAKE CITY
SAN ANTONIO
SAN FRANCISCO
(after holdover)
SEATTLE
SYRACUSE
SIOUX FALLS
TERRA HAUTE
TROY
TOLEDO
WILMINGTON
UTICA

BROOKLYN DAILY EAGLE, FRIDAY, JANUARY 3[illegible]

Music Hall and Br[illegible]

THE SCREEN

NEW YORK POST, SATURDAY, JANUARY 25, 1936

James Stewart Hailed As First Star of 1936

Universal Actor Opposite Margaret Sullavan in "Next Time We Love" Was Magician Once

A young man who worked his way through college as a [illegible]

BROOKLYN DAILY EAGLE,

PICTURE PARADE

By MARTIN DICKSTEIN

They Re-Christened Her Brain-Child 'Next Time We Love,' but Ursula Parrott Thinks Movie Producers Are Okay

Unlike most [illegible] been reproduced on [illegible] Parrott does not [illegible] underso in the [illegible] Parrott is the auth[illegible] yesterday at the Ri[illegible] Love. Would [illegible] that, but she was[illegible] "I believe that [illegible] authors work, and [illegible] writing that story [illegible] a right to add or su[illegible]

GREAT NEWSPAPER BREAK for

By WINSTON BURDE[illegible]

'Next Time We Love' Arrives at the M[illegible]
—Brooklyn Strand and Local Par[illegible]
Also Offer New Films

[illegible] of "Next Time We Love" this [illegible]screen bid Sullavan [illegible] Straporarily without a leading [illegible]ady. Director Mitchell Leisen [illegible] shooting [illegible] scenes without return.

William K. Howard will direct [illegible] Touhand, Allan Skipworth, [illegible] Barbier, and George Ralf, [illegible] Concertina." His last film was the [illegible] Mary Burns, Fugitive."

Edmund Lowe is in town on his way to the GB studios in England for "The Invisible Menace." Ray Milland of "Next Time We Love" will sail aboard the Manhattan next Wednesday for France, where his brother is R. He will return within [illegible] six weeks for "The Old Maid." Helen Morgan, just back from Hollywood and "Showboat," tonight returns to her House of Morgan. Ray Francis will return to Hollywood in a fortnight for "Caesar's Wife," a story by Charles Kenyon and Rowland Leigh.

Edmund Lowe is in town on his way to the GB studios in England for "The Invisible Menace." Ray Milland of "Next Time We Love" will sail aboard the Manhattan next Wednesday for France, where his brother is R. He will return within six weeks for "The Old Maid." Helen Morgan, just back from Hollywood and "Showboat," tonight returns to her House of Morgan. Ray Francis will return to Hollywood in a fortnight for "Caesar's Wife," a story by Charles Kenyon and Rowland Leigh.

This little tale [illegible] for supporting [illegible] It concerns [illegible] make bright [illegible] a chance [illegible] supports. Because [illegible]

[illegible] OF [illegible]CS

SUNDAY MIRROR MAGAZINE SECTION

5 PAY NO MORE

New York, Sunday, January 5, 1936

Copyright, 1936, in the United States of America by Daily Mirror, Inc.

All rights reserved under International Copyright Reproduction forbidden.

NEW YORK EVENING JOURNAL WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 29, 1936

STAR OF 'NEXT TIME WE LOVE'

SUNDAY MIRROR Sunday, January 26, 1936

SULLAVAN MOVIE NEXT ON MUSIC HALL SCREEN

Margaret Sullavan in "Next Time We Love," Universal's picturization of Ursula Parrott's "Say Goodbye Again," will come to the screen of the Radio City Music Hall on Thursday.

This is the fourth time in Miss Sullavan's career that her photoplays have had their world premieres at the Music Hall. The others were "Only Yesterday," "Three Man, What Now?" and "The Good Fairy."

In "Next Time We Love," Miss Sullavan has as her leading man James Stewart and Ray Milland. Walter Connolly, Charles Ruggles, Anita de Metrio, Robert McWade, Florence Roberts, Bonnie Cosbey and Christian Rub.

The picture was directed by Edward H. Griffith.

British Actor Due Here Today

[illegible], the British actor who plays the chief supporting role in Universal's "Next Time We Love," starring Margaret Sullavan and James Stewart, arrives from Hollywood today and will remain in New York just long enough to attend the premiere of this Ursula Parrott story at the Music Hall on the 30. He will then sail for

Margaret Sullavan, whose starring picture, "Next Time We Love," will open tomorrow as the week's attractions at the Radio City Music Hall

NEW YORK EVENING JOURNAL

See [illegible] And

Sullavan Film Due Thursday at Radio City

Sullavan in Universal's

MISS SULLAVAN, the brilliant [illegible] appears above in the Sunday Mirror series of natural color photogr[illegible]

THE NEW YORK SUN, FRIDAY, JANUARY 24, 1936.

Picture Plays and Players rsula Parrott Considers Seeing Her Latest Talkie, 'Next Time We Love.'

but hit only a few best-seller lists. Miss Parrott evidently is not used to being on only a few best-seller lists. Her books are popular.

She had thought she wrote about half a million words a year. Checking up on 1935 she found it was only 480,000. She used to try to start writing each morning at 9 o'clock until she met a doctor at a

NEXT TIME WE LOVE"

at the Roxy: Margaret Sullavan (beton) stars in "Next Time We Love" at the Music Hall, starting Thursday.

NEW YORK AMERICAN

JANUARY 14, 1936

MISS SULLAVAN'S LATEST FILM ROLE ALMOST THE TRUTH

REGINA CREWE, Editor N. Y. American.

EVENING JOURNAL • • America's Greatest Evening Newspaper • • WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 29, 1936

STORY OF STAND-INS -:- By ROSE PELSWICK

Sullavan Film Glorifies Old 'Pop' Case

A bit silly, this Hollywood success story, but true.

A "stand-in," as all you well informed movie fans know, is studio slang for a player who goes on the set in place of the star and stands as a target while the electricians focus the blazing lights. But the idea isn't limited entirely to the stars; even the chairs and tables in Hollywood have doubles. And while either human or furniture stand-ins seldom get a chance to rise from the ranks, a battered old soft drink box, used to save wear and tear in a costly Circassian [illegible] rose [illegible] the screen play [illegible] with music by [illegible] Sidney Clare, Pinky [illegible] Troy Sander and Mr. [illegible]

ROSE PELSWICK.

"Next Time We Love," a Universal picture, produced by Paul Kohner from a Ursula Parrott story, opens Thursday at the Radio City Music Hall with a cast which includes Margaret Sullavan, James Stewart, Ray Milland, Grant Mitchell, Anna Demetrio and Robert McWade. The film, adapted for the screen by Melville Baker, with music by Franz Waxman, was directed by Edward H. Griffin.

"Ho" a French film, directed [illegible] Renoir-Levy and Marie [illegible] will have its American [illegible] was [illegible] immediately [illegible] the cameras started shooting. But when Director Edward H. Griffith shot the scene in close-[illegible] he allowed Old Hickory to [illegible] the action out, since the [illegible] appear on the [illegible] to the shank [illegible] exactly the [illegible] Miss Sul-

EXHIBITORS throughout the country are commenting on the outstanding publicity campaign which has been heralding the release of Universal's "Next Time We Love," starring Margaret Sullavan with James Stewart and Ray Milland in the chief supporting roles, and directed by Edward H. Griffith. New York City is the first place where it hit but it will spread over the country as the openings begin to pop.

Three days in advance of the New York premiere at the Radio City Music Hall, January 30th, the New York Evening Journal announced plans for a contest tieup with the picture to run or a whole week on its daily amateur page. The contest, open to the public at large, invites contributors to submit reviews of the picture or original drawings or articles about any member of the cast. The authors of all manuscripts accepted for publication receive a pass for two admissions to the film, in addition to cash payments ranging from two to twenty-five dollars.

"The reason we picked the Radio City Music Hall," says the amateur page editor, in the Journal of January 27th, "is because next Thursday, January 30th, this picture which gives a life-like and accurate portrayal of newspaper life, begins there. And we want you to see it, you budding newspaper folk. The story is written by Ursula Parrott who used to be a newspaper writer before she turned novelist. The film, itself, is directed by a former news editor, and several of the cast are regular writers on the Pacific Coast papers."

This unusual break in the Journal, with its circulation of 639,941, insured eight consecutive days of news space, in addition to other stories in the regular scren columns. On January 29th, Rose Pelswick, motion picture editor, devoted 97 lines under a signed heavy typed heading of "Furniture Stand-ins," to a history of unique props used by director Edward H. Griffiths in the beautiful settings for this production. A 3 column portrait of Margaret Sullavan faced the article on the opposite page.

Here are some other fine splashes. In the Sunday American of January 26th, beneath an 8 column banner heading of ' 'Margaret Sullavan Gives A Silent Cheer For Her Studio Directors," and the sub-head of "Work for Universal Pictures Gives Petite Star a Batting Average of

(Continued on Page 28)

DAILY MIRROR

Friday, January 24, 1936

Loaned, She Cannot See Premiere

By BLAND JOHANESON.

Universal's screen production of "Next Time We Love," starring Margaret Sullavan and [illegible] Edward H. [illegible] have its work [illegible] the Radio [illegible] Jan. 30. [illegible] had [illegible] to [illegible]

FILM PARALLELS LIFE OF ITS STARS

"Next Time We Love" quite recognizable. Mr. Griffith has a way of keeping to the originals of his pictures. The ending, Miss Parrott rejoiced to hear, was practically intact, only its background slightly changed. Her voice sounded more [illegible] as she repeated:

"Yes, really, I think I'll go to see this one."

METROPOLITAN OPERA

Fifty-Hour Week.

She didn't see the others simply because, although understanding and sympathizing with the problems of an adaptor, she knew even the necessary changes might distress her.

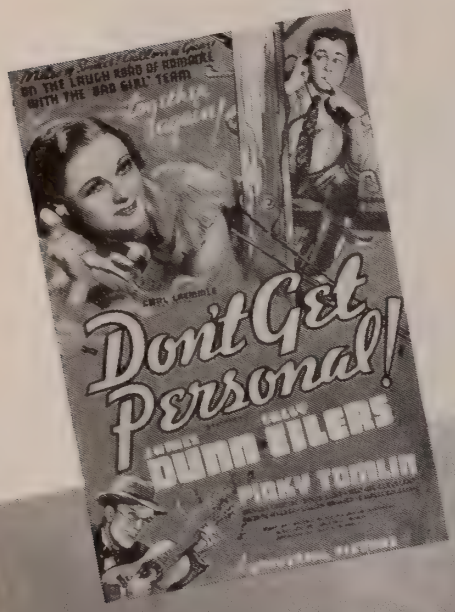
"It would be hard to realize just why," she said, "they had changed things that meant so much to you, that you'd worked over so hard."

She does work hard, too, some fifty hours a week. Experienced in giving interviews [illegible]

Absentee Author.

She doesn't go to see [illegible]

WHAT A TITLE! AND HERE'S



CARL LAEMMLE presents

James DUNN

"TEAM

"don't get with Syncopation

HOW TO SOCK IT OVER!

A glittering high spot in "Sutter's Gold." General Sutter excitedly showing to the Countess the nuggets of gold just discovered in his millrace. The first discovery of gold in California, a discovery which ruined Sutter, and forms the climax to one of the most gripping stories in the annals of pioneer America.

"SUTTER'S GOLD" His Best Work Says James Cruze

DIRECTOR James Cruze's current motion picture assignment is proving an even more pretentious and colorful epic than the memorable 'The Covered Wagon" which brought him into the front rank among screen directors 15 years ago. Cruze, master of out-of-doors historical drama, is now on the final month of picturizing Cendrars' story of the founding of a golden empire—"Sutter's Gold"—for Universal.

Another high spot, the raising of the first American flag in California, atop Sutter's Fort.

Under the production guidance of Edmund Grainger, "Sutter's Gold" is establishing some unusual production records. First its story relates the historical truth that the discovery of gold, while it brought fortune to thousands and established a new empire, brought disaster to the sturdy pioneer who had just realized the dream of his life when glittering nuggets were found on his rich lands. Hence, "Sutter's Gold" offers an entirely new picture of the days of '49 and presents a different story of Western America's most colorful era —a story of tense moments, gay romance and conflicting emotions.

In addition "Sutter's Gold" has required some of the most pretentious sets Universal has ever erected for a film play and the reproduction of famous historical landmarks and the re-enactment of several events of vital importance to the development of the golden state of California. Besides Director Cruze has employed more actors of more widely varied types than any picture made since sound films came into vogue. In the first two months of producing "Sutter's Gold" Cruze employed 578 South Sea Islanders, ranging from Maoris, Samoans to Tahitians and Hawaiians; 241 Russians (including a real Russian Princess and two former major generals of the Czar's Imperial army) 143 Swiss and Austrian type actors, 531 Western types, 265 horsemen, 217 Spanish and Mexican types, 43 actors with speaking roles.

"Love Before Breakfast" Has A New Game

PEOPLE who see Carole Lombard in her new Universal picture, "Love Before Breakfast," will be intrigued by the new match and bottle game she introduces in this picture. This is the way this famous blonde plays the match and bottle game, which has spread over California like badminton and mantlepiece bridge.

First you take a bottle and empty a number of packages of Swedish matches (probably made in Japan). Also, it promotes the interest in the game if the participants empty the bottle before playing.

Any number can play. Each player begins with a stated number of matches, say fifty. A tower of matches is built on top of a bottle neck, each player in turn placing one match on the pile. The first hundred matches are the hardest.

If a person tries to put a match on the pile and it falls off, he loses his chance and has to pay a stipulated amount into the kitty. A similar forfeit has to be paid by those who knock off matches previously placed. In addition, such an offender is out of the game. The person who has not had any matches fall off wins when he places his final match safely. Got a match, mister?

Carole Lombard teaches the match and bottle game to Janet Beecher and Richard Carle who support her in "Love Before Breakfast."

"MAGNIFICENT" FOUR WEEKS IN HARTFORD

EDITOR UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

HARTFORD, CONN.

DAY LETTER—FEB. 5, 1936

MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION IS FINISHING THE FOURTH AND FINAL WEEK OF ITS RUN AT LOEWS THEATRE IN HARTFORD IT IS ONE OF THE MOST POPULAR PICTURES WE HAVE EVER SHOWN IT HAD A TREMENDOUS OPENING FOLLOWING A STRONG ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN IN WHICH THE UNUSUAL COMBINATION OF STARS IRENE DUNNE AND ROBERT TAYLOR THE SUCCESS OF THE NOVEL FROM WHICH IT WAS MADE AND THE FACT THAT JOHN M STAHL WHO MADE BACK STREET ONLY YESTERDAY AND IMITATION OF LIFE WAS ITS DIRECTOR WERE STRESSED THE PICTURE GAINED MOMENTUM AFTER THE GREAT OPENING AIDED BY WORD OF MOUTH ADVERTISING HOLD OUTS WERE A NIGHTLY OCCURRENCE AND WE HELD THEM OUT MANY AFTERNOONS AS WELL THE PICTURE DURING ITS LONG RUN HAD STIFF COMPETITION BUT SEEMED TO MAKE NO DIFFERENCE THE CROWDS CAME IN GREAT NUMBERS AS IF THERE WERE NO OTHER PICTURES IN TOWN PERHAPS THE BIGGEST FACTOR IN ITS SUCCESS WAS ITS STRONG APPEAL TO WOMEN BY THE END OF THE FOURTH WEEK MOST OF HARTFORDS WOMEN AND GIRLS WILL VERY LIKELY HAVE SEEN IT MEN TOO LIKED IT VERY MUCH IF UNIVERSAL CAN PRODUCE MORE PICTURES LIKE MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION IT WILL BE A HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL YEAR FOR BOTH UNIVERSAL AND THE EXHIBITORS—

GEORGE E LANDERS MANAGER LOEWS THEATRE.

"NEV

JACK

With ROBERT ARMSTRONG, GRACE BRADLEY, DIANA GIBSON and CHARLIE MURRAY, Ed Gargan, Walter Miller, Willard Robertson, Guy Usher, Dewey Robinson. Based on the story "Glory Hole" by Theodore Reeves. Produced by Fred S. Meyer. Directed by Lambert Hillyer. A Universal Picture presented by Carl Laemmle.

ER BETTER..."

. . . raves Showmen's Trade Review — and other trade papers, too! See it today!

Holt

in

NGEROUS WATERS

THE SERIAL SCOOPS

UNIVERSAL, CHAMPION PRODUCER OF CHAPTER-DRAMA, AGAIN STARTLES THE ENTIRE INDUSTRY BY CAPTURING THE GREATEST PROPERTIES IN SERIAL HISTORY AT A STAGGERING PRICE!

NOW APPEARING IN HUNDREDS AND H
SUNDAY. READ BY MILLIONS, YOUNG A WHEN THEIR FAVORITE ADVENTURE STR

OF THE CENTURY!

NDREDS OF NEWSPAPERS DAILY AND OLD—AND EACH A POTENTIAL PATRON
THUNDER TO LIFE ON THE SCREEN!

"SHOW BOAT" FULL OF GLAMOR

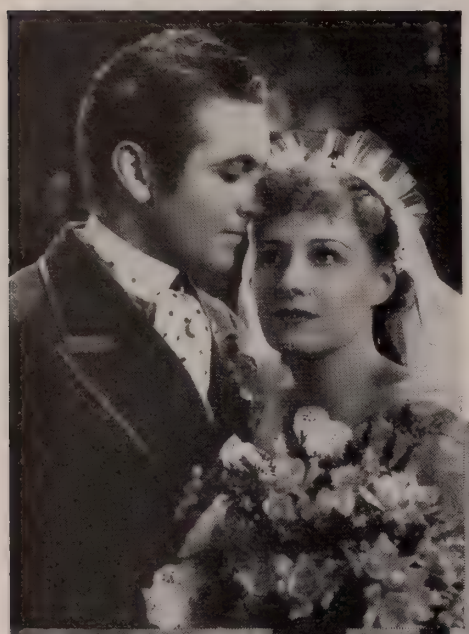
ONE of the largest and most colorful motion picture sequences ever filmed was completed at Universal Studios this week when Director James Whale placed his stamp of approval on parade and levee scenes for the Carl Laemmle, Jr. production of "Show Boat" and turned his exposures over to the cutting department for rough assembly and future editing.

Long before Whale began his planning of camera angles, more than 500 technical workers with designs and blue prints prepared by art Director Charles D. ("Danny") Hall, began the transformation which turned a barren five acre area into a typical river town of the South in 1885.

At one end of the great expanse sprang a portion of the Mississippi River, gouged out of the earth by three giant steam shovels that worked continuously for two weeks, and filled with water pumped from a dammed portion of the nearby Los Angeles river. Scores of laborers readied the levee by filling and arranging hundreds of sacks of sand while countless others assisted in the proper placing of cotton bales and other typical properties. For fully one-half mile from the levee ran the main street of the town of Booneville, correct in every detail from the park with its festooned band-stand and inevitable cannon.

Crews of carpenters set about constructing exact reproductions of two old river boats, one of the showboat "Cotton Blossom" which made theatrical history at the turn of the

(Continued on Page 28)



The lovers, Ravenal and Magnolia, elope from the show boat.

Gala scene of the parade of Andy Hawks minstrel troupe in the Mississippi River-town of Boonville, where the show boat is tied up at the levee, will set a record for color.

UNIVERSAL ANNOUNCES BIGGEST SERIAL YEAR

WHEN Universal announces its serials, the serial year has begun—and not before. No exhibitor with the experience of the last few years to guide him would think of buying serials until he knew what Universal had to offer him. This issue of the Universal Weekly contains the announcement of Universal's serial line-up for 1936-1937.

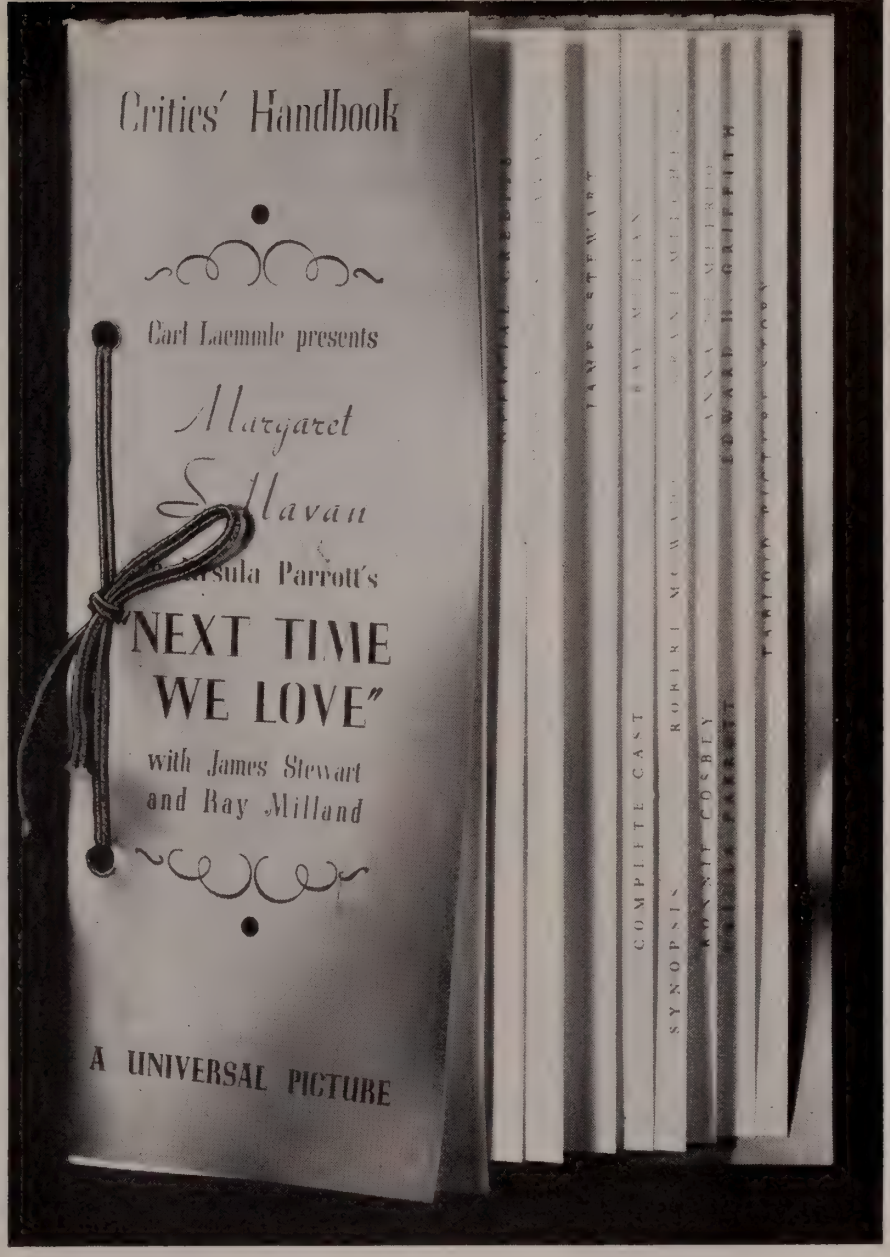
As usual, Buck Jones will introduce the serial year with a fifteen episode serial, and that is the biggest fact to be reckoned with by any exhibitor who runs serials. Thousands of them made money with "Gordon of Ghost City," and with "The Roaring West." Thousands of them will make money with "The Phantom Rider," which will be the Buck Jones serial for 1936.

"The Phantom Rider" will have all the hard riding, dare-devil action, split second danger and thrill for which this star is noted, and in addition will have the inestimable value of Buck Jones' increasing popularity and the dominating position that he occupies with respect to all western stars. Buck Jones is the biggest serial bet in pictures. He is a whole season in himself.

One serial, however, does not make a season. Universal has planned for four crackerjack serials for 1936-1937. The other three will be made from internationally known, widely publicized and storyful newspaper strips. The first of these is "Ace Drummond," outlined by Captain Eddie V. Rickenbacker. After the name of Lindbergh, there is no better known or thoroughly admired birdman than Eddie Rickenbacker, the ace of the Lafayette Esquadrille, who was also a brilliant automobile racer before he went into the War. Though he is Vice-President and general manager of a great trans-Atlantic air service, he frequently steps out of character to break records and he is responsible for the story material which formed the basis of "Ace Drummond," many of whose experiences are parts of Rickenbacker's own life history.

The second is "Jungle Jim," drawn drawn by the same young artist who created "Flash Gordon." In this new strip, Alex Raymond has taken his graphic pen into the jungle and devised a set of characters which virtually carry the hero of "Flash Gordon" into a Tarzan setting which is tremendously complimentary to the splendid physique, athletic powers and handsome mien of this hero, who will be carried over bodily into the "Jungle Jim" serial.

The third strip is "Secret Agent X-9." Further details concerning this strip will be told in another issue.



Another Splendid Exploitation Aid

The critics are just recovering from talking about the brochure Universal sent out on "Magnificent Obsession." The book illustrated above is just off the press, performing the same office for "Next Time W Love." Every critic in the first-run situations has received a copy. Nevertheless, your exchanges have extra copies of these for any moving picture editor or feature writer in your city. If they haven't received them, apply immediately to your exchange.

Exhaustive material of every publicity nature is incorporated in this invaluable little booklet on "Next Time We Love" and it is beautifully gotten up and printed. Don't overlook using this critics handbook. It adds prestige to a gorgeous picture and points up the splendid exploitation campaign you will of course put behind the picture.

Winnipeg Roll of Honor

The following exhibitors in the Winnipeg Territory have used Universal Pictures continuously for

THREE YEARS

THEATRE	TOWN	MANAGER
Beacon	Winnipeg, Man.	T. Pacey
Lyceum	Killarney, Man.	W. J. Hellis
Lyceum	Port Arthur, Ont.	G. McComber
Lux	Humboldt, Sask.	S. Bailey
Lyric	Minnedosa, Man.	Leon Asper
Mac's	Winnipeg, Man.	Mrs. J. Christie
Northland	Flin Flon, Man.	C. C. Plummer
Oak	Brandon, Man.	A. C. Digney
Park	Winnipeg, Man.	R. Besler
Princess	Melville, Sask.	J. Zaitzow
Roxy	Neepawa, Man.	C. Fallis
Star	Tisdale, Sask.	W. Hellofs
Uptown	Winnipeg, Man.	D. Gauld (Allied Amuse. Cir.)

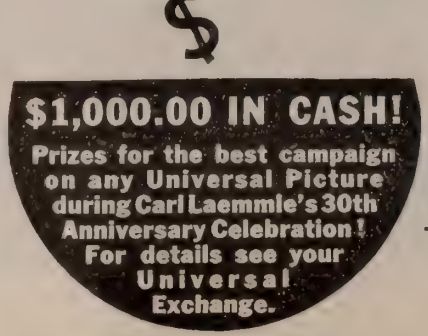
FIVE YEARS

Furby	Winnipeg, Man.	M. Triller
Hi-art	Weyburn, Sask.	R. Sutherland
Olympia	Assiniboia, Sask.	N. Rotshtein
Orpheum	Estevan, Sask.	J. A. McKenzie
Orpheum	Moose Jaw, Sask.	H. D. Marrs
Plaza	Winnipeg, Man.	Allied Amuse. Cir.
Province	Winnipeg, Man.	H. N. Jernberg
Plaza	Shaunavon, Sask.	L. B. Durham
Rialto	Winnipeg, Man.	H. Ginsberg
Rose	Winnipeg, Man.	Allied Amuse. Cir.
Roxy	Winnipeg, Man.	Allied Amuse. Cir.
Roxy	Yorkton, Sask.	N. Rotshtein
Roxy	Saskatoon, Sask.	N. Rotshtein
Royal	Fort Francis, Ont.	O. C. Polenske
Transcona	Transcona, Man.	I. Triller

TEN YEARS

Classic	Winnipeg, Man.	G. Graham
College	Winnipeg, Man.	Universal Cir.
Colonial	Winnipeg, Man.	J. Schwartz
Corona	Winnipeg, Man.	J. Pearson
Elite	Kamsack, Sask.	W. Popham
Grand	Melfort, Sask.	Miss S. M. Assaly
Lyceum	Winnipeg, Man.	Universal Cir.
Palace	Winnipeg, Man.	Allied Amuse. Cir.
Playhouse	Portage la Prairie, Man.	Mr. C. W. Taylor
Rex	Regina, Sask.	M. Bloom
Starland	Winnipeg, Man.	Universal Cir.
Strand	Prince Albert, Sask.	P. W. Mahon

F. L. VAUGHAN, Mgr.



THE BOX OFFICE CHECK-UP OF 1935

BIGGEST MONEY-MAKING WESTERN STARS

BUCK JONES . .	104%	[redacted] . .	26%
[redacted]	100%	[redacted] . . .	6%
[redacted] .	51%	[redacted] . . .	3%
[redacted] . . .	28%	[redacted] . .	2%
[redacted] .	27%	[redacted] . . .	2%

These rankings are based on the poll of exhibitors naming "The Biggest Money-Making Stars of 1934-35." Complete results of which appear on pages 84-85.

104%

CHAMPION OF THE WESTERN STARS! LEADER AMONG ALL OTHER BOX OFFICE LEADERS! ...UNIVERSAL IS PROUD OF HIM!...AND YOU'LL BE EVEN PROUDER OF HIS NEWEST WESTERN FEATURE FOR UNIVERSAL!

BUCK JONES in "SILVER SPURS"

With Muriel Evans
Directed by Ray Taylor

Great Newspaper Break for "Next Time We Love"

(Continued from Page 15)

1000%, Regina Crewe writes two full columns of 287 lines about the happy combination of Southern star and Southern director in the making of "Next Time We Love." The New York Sunday American has a circulation of 1,021,329, and the story is being syndicated in out-of-town Hearst papers, as well. Miss Crewe also carried another feature of 70 lines in a week day issue, telling how closely Margaret Sullavan's role of Cicely Tyler, an actress, resembles certain experiences in the star's own life.

Bland Johaneson chose this same subject for a 75 line signed story in the Mirror, (circulation 554,939) of January 24 under the title of "Film Parallels Life of Its Star." A previous issue of the Sunday Mirror, (circulation 1,183,349) used a full page portrait of Margaret Sullavan, in colors, as the cover of its Magazine section. Also, on January 24th, Eileen Creelman of the Sun, (circulation 293,663), spread a 165 line interview with Ursula Parrott across three columns. The popular novelist discussed the advantageous reasons for changing the original title of her book from "Next Time We Live" to "Next Time We Love" in its screen version. On January 25th, Irene Thirer, motion picture editor of the New York Evening Post, (circulation 121,083), devoted a column and a half of 95 lines to a biography of the youthful Princeton graduate who plays opposite the star, the double column bold-face title being, "James Stewart Hailed As First Star of 1936." This will be followed by another Post story scheduled to appear shortly,—Miss Thirer's personal interview with Ray Milland, who plays the "other man." The British actor has been spending three brief days in New York, recently, prior to sailing for a vacation abroad.

Added to these exceptional breaks are innumerable shorter reading notices and a number of photographs of members of the cast which have been appearing, repeatedly, in every morning and evening newspaper in Greater New York. Universal is justly proud of this highly successful space-grabbing campaign and it is to be hoped that key cities, everywhere, will jump aboard the "Next Time We Love" publicity bandwagon.

"SHOW BOAT" FULL OF GLAMOR

(Continued from Page 24)

century, the other a fast passenger packet important to the popular Edna Ferber story.

Ready for the action, Whale called for 1200 extras, both colored and white, ranging from the pickaninny age to 70 and more, and all garbed in the colorful costumes of that period. They constituted the welcoming committee, dancing and shouting as the battered old showboat swung 'round the bend to be moored alongside the levee. They whooped greetings to Charles Winninger, as Cap'n Andy, and other members of his "happy family," Helen Morgan, Paul Robeson, Helen Westley, Sammy White, Queenie Smith, Francis X. Mahoney, Donald Cook, Hattie McDaniel and others who lined the rail of the floating theatre.

Using Universal, Joe Lavery Makes Money

BY using Universal pictures, Joe Lavery of the Lafayette Theatre of Haverill, Mass., has brought his theatre up from what might almost be called a "dump" to a position of prominence in the town of Haverill, a place where people are certain to get good entertainment and a house which instead of three changes a week, can on occasion keep a picture for four weeks.

A year ago when Lavery first signed Universal, he was making three changes a week. Three months ago he kept "Imitation of Life" in the Lafayette Theatre for four weeks to exceptionally good profit. Lavery expects to keep "Magnificent Obsession" for just as long and is looking forward to a four weeks' run for Margaret Sullavan in "Next Time We Love."

The Lafayette Theatre, Haverill, Mass., which Joe Lavery raised from a fourth grade to a first-run theatre by the use of Universal pictures. He is looking forward to four weeks' run on "Magnificent Obsession" and "Next Time We Love"

The Lafayette Theatre is a house of 500 seats. With the money which he has been making with Universals he has re-decorated and re-furnished his interior and built a new front.

"IT'S A SENSATION"!

MOTION PICTURE HERALD

Universal

CAMERA THRILLS: Universal Special—Here's a short that packs more thrills than a dozen features. Not the most pleasant picture to look at, but every foot packs a wallop, of the kind that strikes right at the heart. For those who can take it, it's a sensation. Even those who can't will admit it is a mighty tribute to the newsreel cameraman, whose courage made this all possible. Running time, 21 minutes.—M. R. Harrington, Avalon Theatre, Clatskanie, Ore. Small town and rural patronage.

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY SHOWMANSHIP SECTION

A DIGEST OF THE BEST EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

TWO PHONE CHARNINSKY

Lou himself! In phone at right getting reports on how his stunts on "STORMY" are working out. In phone at left cashier telling him how crowds are talking about his "INVISIBLE RAY" display. Between the two he is dictating plans for his next week's picture.

Charninsky's Front Rates Orchids!

JUST take a look at the front on "The Invisible Ray" designed by Louis Charninsky, Managing Director, Capitol Theatre, Dallas. What a honey for completeness! There are no less than eight outstanding exploitation features represented, each of which would do any showman proud!

At the extreme left is an electrical display, set up through the cooperation of the Dallas Light and Power Co. and the Southern Methodist University physics department. High voltage transformers, placed on a table behind plate glass for protection, produced jumping sparks. Warning and explanatory signs added to the intrigue.

The mechanical man, and ballyhoo man, dressed in metallic helmet and cloth cape similar to that worn by Karloff in picture, were used for an entire week around town and out front. The "invisible fish" display followed along the lines suggested in the pressbook, using clear water with a sign explaining the presence of invisible fish and asking the people to look for them. At the right side is a telescope focused on poster mounted on adjoining building. Behind Charninsky, looking through the telescope, is "The Luminous Man" poster, available at all Universal Branches. Notice the 24-sheet poster cut-out above the front, and the six sheet cut-outs on either side, in which red and green flashers were used behind the eyes.

Charninsky, to interest the chemistry and physics students in the high schools and colleges, held a special invitation preview for the instructors who were asked to tell their students about the scientific angle of the picture.

Newspaper ads and displays in windows around town played up the scientific angle.

"Obsession" Safety Campaign Angle Attention-Getter!

Manager Bert Leighton, Grand Theatre, receiving the first signed pledge from the Mayor of Lancaster, who also endorsed the safety drive which was part of the big "Magnificent Obsession" campaign.

Lancaster Mayor Endorses Leighton's "Safe Driving" Pledge

BERT LEIGHTON, that very ambitious showman at the Grand Theatre, Lancaster, Pa. built a stunt around the suggested "Magnificent Obsession" safety campaign, that carried the endorsement of the Mayor, was approved by the City Council, received the cooperation of the local clubs and Boy Scout troop, was publicized by the newspapers, and reached every adult and youngster in the city.

Leighton inaugurated his unique campaign with the promise of whole-hearted support from the Mayor and an endorsement of his plans. Then five hundred special cards, carrying traffic rules and advice to pedestrians, were tacked on the lamp posts around town. At the same time the boy scouts distributed 5,000 safety pledges to halted motorists, which were to be signed and returned to the theatre. Both the tack and pledge cards carried the picture imprint.

The stunt was picked up by the newspapers which reproduced the photograph of the Mayor submitting the first signed pledge, scenes from the picture, and daily safety reminders.

Tie-up paragraph on card read: "See "Magnificent Obsession" at the Grand Theatre, Starting Friday—See the terrific penalty paid for one careless step and one careless driver! Be careful!"

Syracuse Traffic Lights Boost "Magnificent Obsession" for Tubbert

ALL Syracuse traffic lights served as a strong reminder to all motorists and pedestrians that "Magnificent Obsession" was to be seen at the Keiths Theatre. Manager William J. Tubbert made this exceptional stunt possible by tying up with the Police Commissioner's latest safety campaign. Tubbert provided the special cards, shown in the photograph above, and the Commissioner had them hung directly below all signal lights.

San Francisco News Gets Behind Neides "Safety-or-Else" Drive

HERE'S another example of how a wide-awake showman took advantage of a local newspaper drive for increased vigilance in traffic. Hal Neides, Manager, Orpheum Theatre, San Francisco took stills of the accident scene from "Magnificent Obsession" to the editor of the News, explained the big part this plays in the story and in this manner landed the two column break with additional stories daily for an entire week.

Neides put on an exceptional campaign for the picture, which was held over for a fourth week.

THE SAN FRANCISCO NEWS

Price of One Careless Moment

ROBERT TAYLOR IRENE DUNNE

In a scene from the "Magnificent Obsession," now playing at the Orpheum Theater. The picture drives home a valuable lesson on the need for eternal vigilance in traffic.

* * * *

Two sweethearts seated in the box seats of a car have a lovers' quarrel, followed by her tears, the girl steps out of the car and is struck down by a passing machine.

For this one careless moment which unwittingly have easily established permanent tears of total blindness caused by a brain concussion. In a split second made years later that the only friend who has become an internationally famous surgeon, performs an eyesight restoring operation by which her sight is restored.

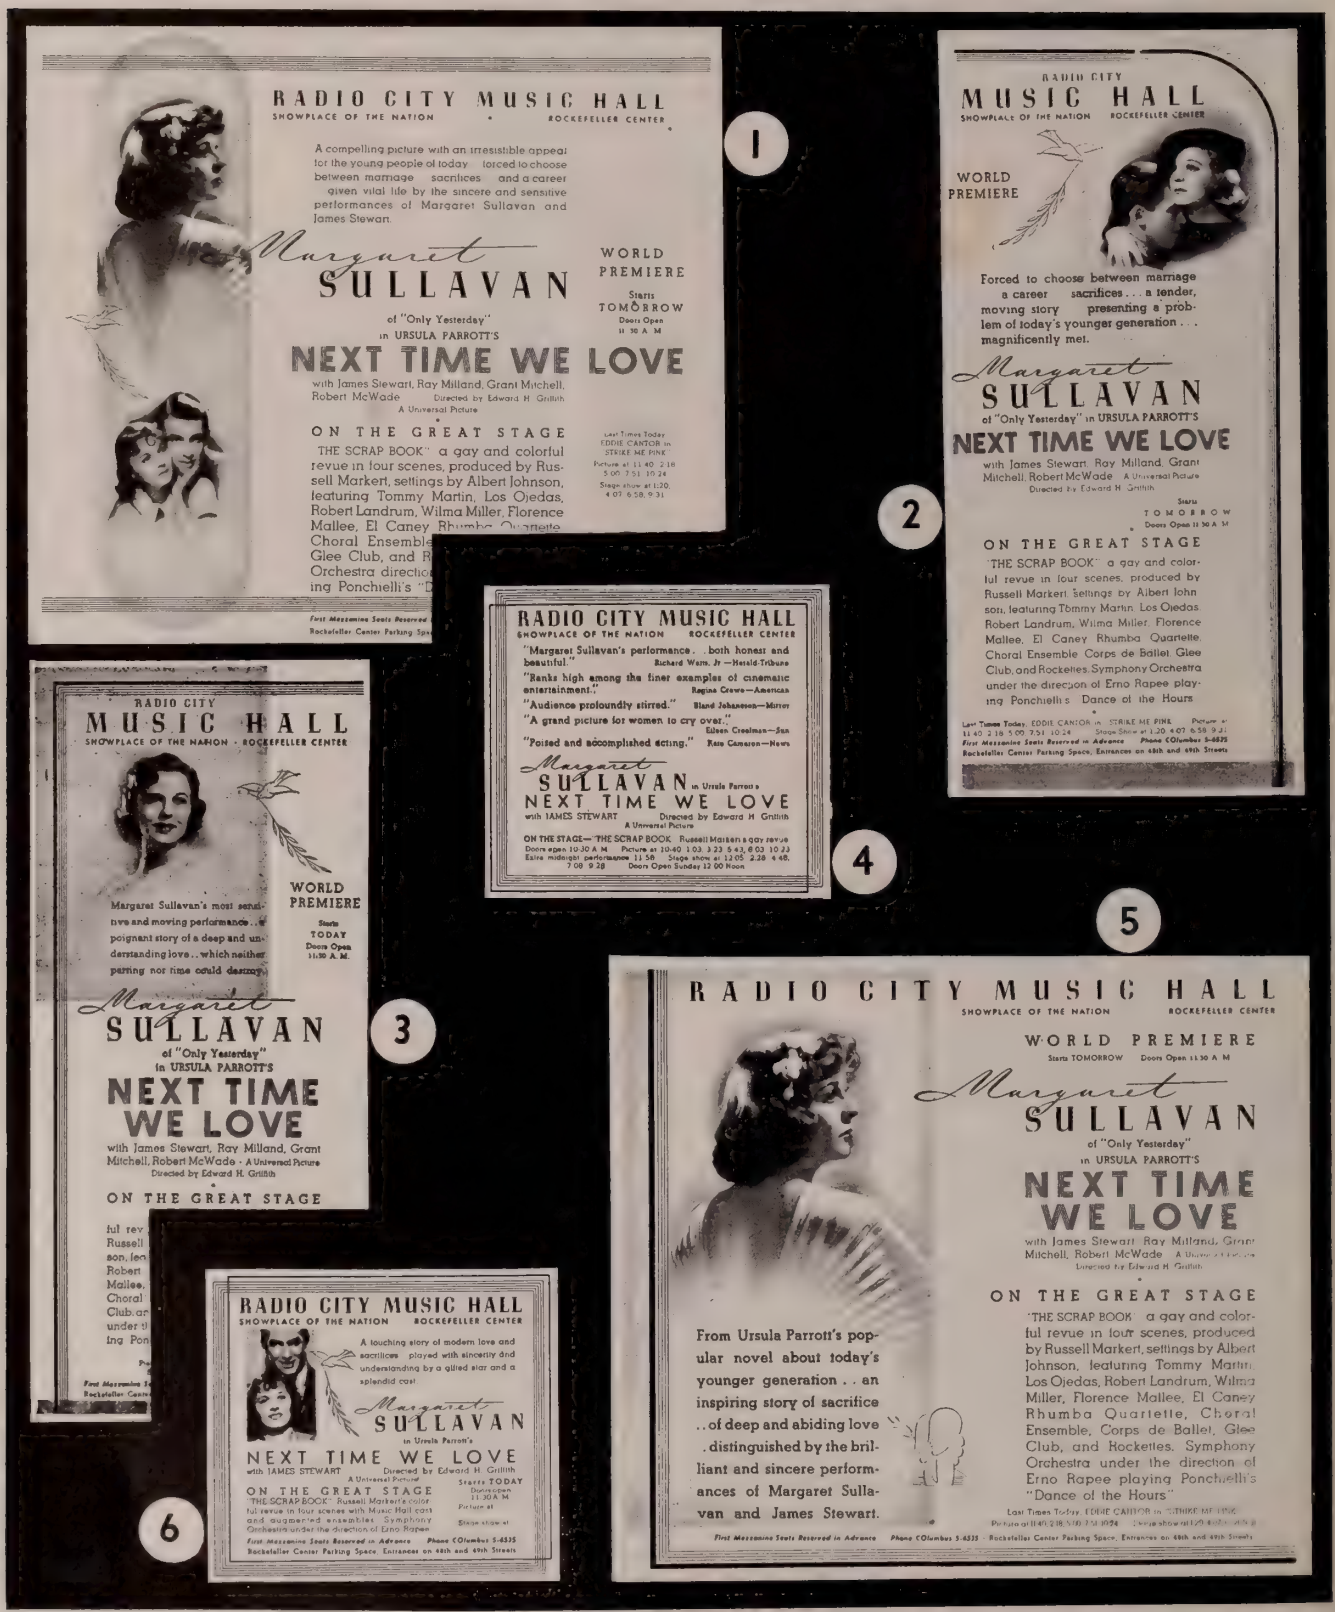
Magnificent Obsession, now playing at the Orpheum Theatre with Irene Dunne and Robert Taylor. Much human drama is unfolding drama seems a reminder of the need for eternal vigilance. Modern...Illustrated statistic the grim...

The Orpheum management is exerting all powers to get over Safety-or-Else...wonderful chance to...

Saint...Bench in the wide...tracks...Small tacks driven in...to reduce traffic...Stacks and stacks of...are stockpiled...San Francisco...

This episode is a scene from the...

RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL ADS



(1) Four column x 7½" (2) Two column x 9" (3) Two column x 9"
(4) Two column x 3½" (5) Four column x 7½" (6) Two column x 3½"

BOAT ♪ HERE COMES THE SHOW

BOAT ♪ HERE COMES THE SHOW

BOAT ♪ HERE COMES THE SHOW

Carl Laemmle presents Edna Ferber's

"SHOW BOAT"

(Version of 1936)

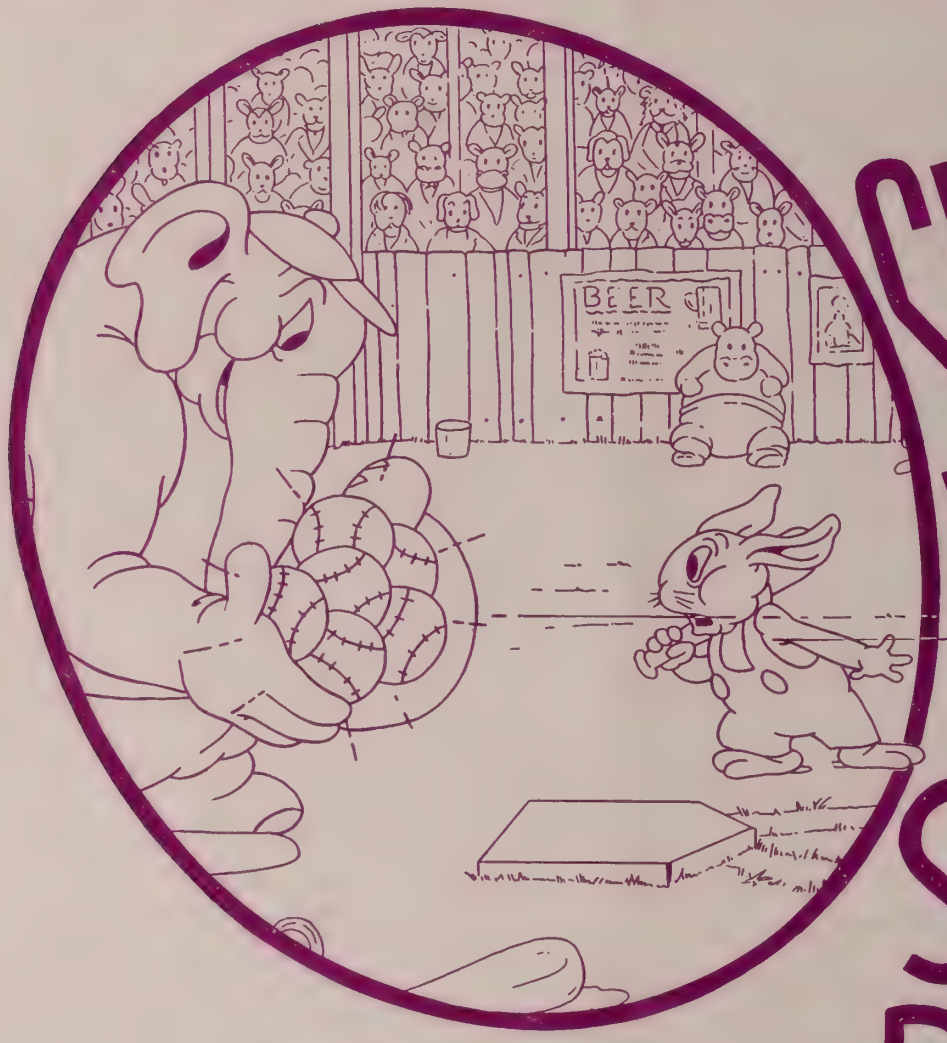
Starring IRENE DUNNE and ALLAN JONES

With PAUL ROBESON, CHARLES WINNINGER, HELEN MORGAN, HELEN WESTLEY, QUEENIE SMITH, SAMMY WHITE, Donald Cook, Francis X. Mahoney, Hattie McDaniel, Marilyn Knowlden, Arthur Hohl, Charles Middleton, J. Farrell MacDonald, Clarence Muse . . . New music and lyrics by Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein II . . . A Carl Laemmle, Jr. Production. Directed by JAMES WHALE. A Universal Picture.

From
UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.
ROCKEFELLER CENTER
NEW YORK CITY

Sec. 562 P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
Paid
Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

MANAGER
CLIFFORD THEATRE
5937 W ROOSEVELT RD
CHICAGO ILL



SWING in SOFT BALL GAME

They're clamoring for cartoons as never before! So give them one of the very best the industry has to offer!

Printed in U. S. A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

VOL. 38 NO. 4

FEB. 22, 1936

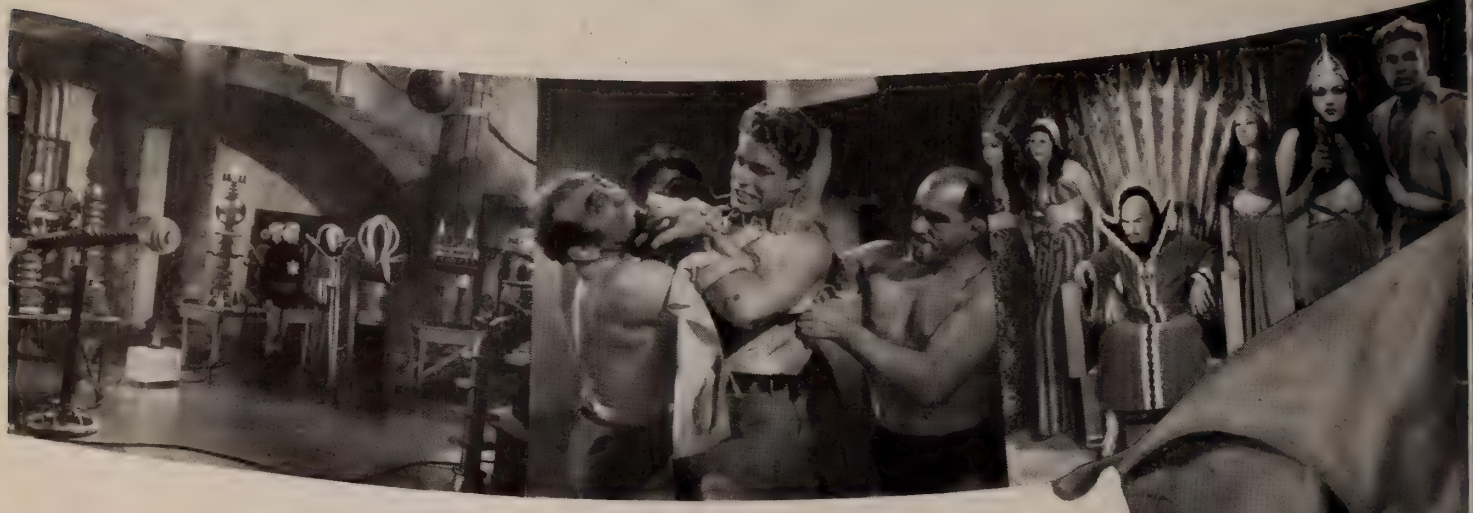
BUSTER CRABBE

in

Universal's Greatest Serial

"FLASH GORDON"

HURTLING, ROARING ONTO YOUR SCREEN AT LAST!..THE SERIAL BACKED UP AT BOX OFFICES WITH THE MIGHT OF NEWS-PAPERS' AND RADIO'S GREATEST MILLIONS!



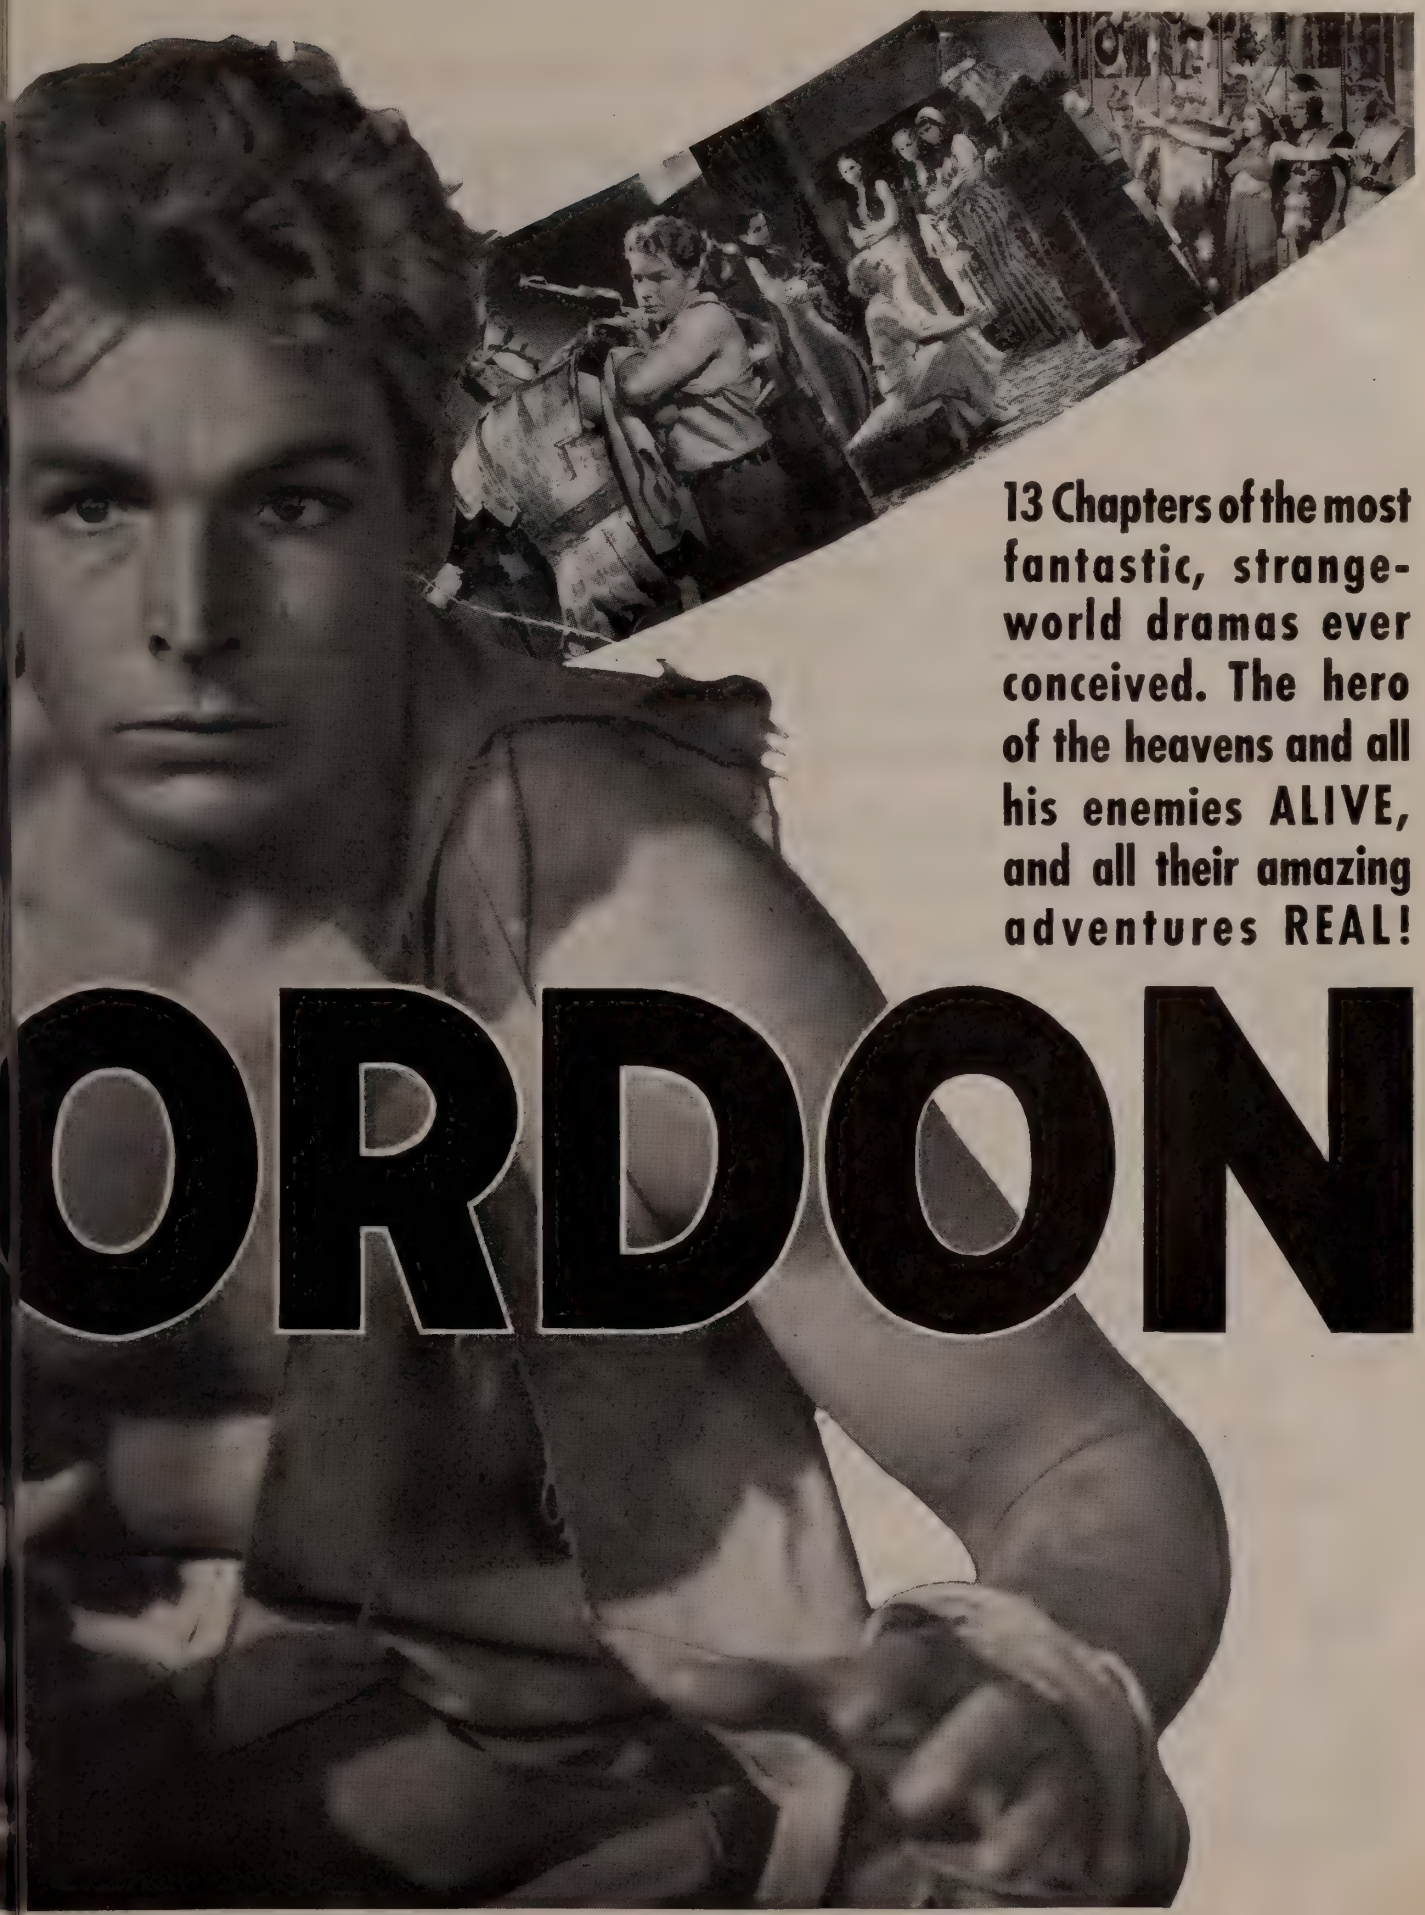
FLASH G

UNIVERSAL'S
Serial Sensation!
With

BUSTER CRABBE

JEAN ROGERS • PRISCILLA
LAWSON • CHARLES MIDDLETON

Based on Alex Raymond's phenomenal King Features newspaper strip...
Directed by FREDERICK STEPHANI
Produced by Henry MacRae



13 Chapters of the most fantastic, strange-world dramas ever conceived. The hero of the heavens and all his enemies ALIVE, and all their amazing adventures REAL!

ORDON

NOW THE GREATEST

No. 851 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

I go on record right here and now in declaring that "Flash Gordon" is the greatest moving picture serial ever made. I ought to know. I have seen more serials and made more serials than anybody in this business.

Furthermore, I like serials. I have been making them and liking them for twenty-three years, but I like "Flash Gordon" better than any serial we have ever made and better than any serial I have ever seen.

"Flash Gordon" will start a new era in serials. We knew we had a great subject when we bought "Flash Gordon" from King Features. It had already done a great deal to convince newspapers that color was a practical, interesting and profitable expenditure because "Flash Gordon" was one of the very first full page color adventure strips.

I instructed Henry MacRae to put everything he had into "Flash Gordon." He has done it.

We engaged Frederick Stephani, an artist, an author and a director, rolled into one, to direct it with the assistance of the veteran Ray Taylor. We constructed the most novel settings, backgrounds, scientific instruments, airplanes, rocket ships and gyroscopes. The boys, young boys and old boys, will go mad about them, and so will the girls.

SERIAL EVER MADE!

The technicians have made the supposed planet of Mongo extraordinarily real and terrifically thrilling. No Jules Verne story ever moved me more than the episodes I have seen of "Flash Gordon"

Then we set out to capture the greatest cast that a serial ever had. Buster Crabbe is ideal for "Flash Gordon." Everybody says so, including the artist, Alex Raymond, who created the "Flash Gordon" character.

Jean Rogers was never more lovely, and she is fast earning the reputation of being the accepted and crowned serial queen. Priscilla Lawson, Charles Middleton, are all expertly cast for the spectacular and gripping roles they play.

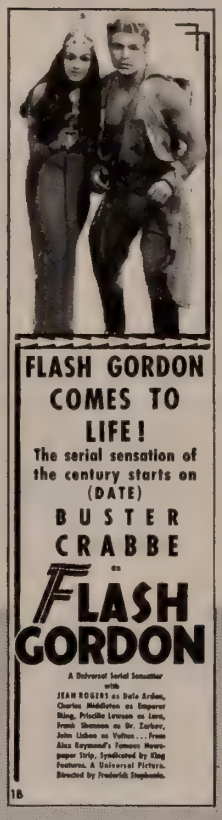
All this makes for an extraordinary serial. But the best of all is that "Flash Gordon" has the same air-tight continuity that any feature picture would have. No improbable, haphazard "hop-skip-and-jump" method of telling this story.

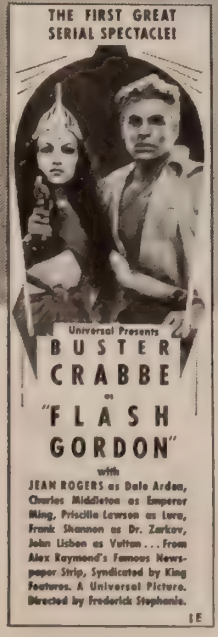
It is a serial, a detective yarn, an adventure feature, and a bang-up entertainment rolled up into thirteen weeks of mounting profits for exhibitors.

Whether you've ever run a serial in your life or not, here's one you've got to run.

Carl Laemmle

LET'S GO TO PRESS! FLASH!





An ad for every type of Campaign

GORDON! FLASH GORDON!

A slug for each episode, in one or two column sizes!

NEVER A SERIAL LIKE THIS!

"FLASH GORDON" ON THE SCREEN!

The kind of serial everybody will pay money to see. Parents as well as the kids! It'll be the big money-maker of 1936. Watch!

TO EXHIBITORS EVERYWHERE:

Dear Friends:

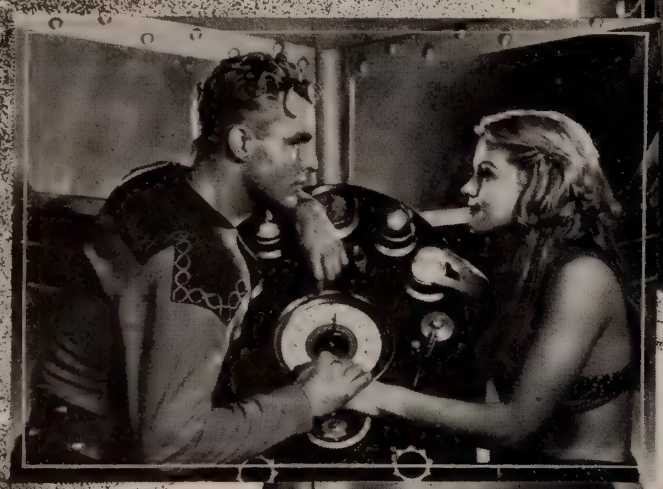
I have been making serials for years, but take it from me, I have never tackled anything so completely fascinating as FLASH GORDON, starring the inimitable Buster Crabbe. You have my word for it that it contains more different kinds of blood-stirring thrills, more variety of background, more convincing acting, and more plausibility of story, than any serial I have ever produced.

I have studied kids. I think I know what they want, and they are going to find it in FLASH GORDON. The older folks are going to like it too, because with all its weird, fantastic scenes and and effects, it is made to seem real.

Sincerely,

HENRY MacRAE.

Flash Gordon Rockets Way to Screen



King Kala and his shark men welcome Flash. At the right hand corner of the opposite page is Buster Crabbe as Flash.

FLASH GORDON has risen to the third plane of hi eventful existence. First he made his way from Ale Raymond's mind and brush into the newspaper stri read by millions of people. Then he rocketed up to th mysterious planet of Mongo. Now he has hurtled hi adventure-blazoned orbit to motion pictur screens of the entire country.

"Flash Gordon has been given the pro portions of a living person in Universal chapterplay of the sam name, the character being por trayed by Buster Crabbe. All th breath-taking incidents of Flash' stirring career have been enacte before the camera and will soo be shown in more theatres tha ever showed a serial before.

According to advance informa tion from Hollywood, the sequen es retain the vivid highlights of th original narrative. The rocket shi makes its dangerous trip to th strange world of Mongo. Flash an his friends combat Ming, wh

THE stills on these two pages will give readers of the Universal Weekly some idea of how extraordinary this entire serial of "Flash Gordon" is going to be. The top one is from the court of King Thun, ruler of the shark men, and the bottom one is the temple of the principal deity of the imaginary planet of Mongo with the High Priest marrying Dale to the cruel emperor Ming.

Buster Crabbe as Flash and Priscilla Lawson as Aura.

Poor Dale is de-humanised for the forced wedding ceremony.

Theodore Lorch as the High Priest

Jean Rogers as Dale Arden

Charles Middlet as Emperor Mi

In Stirring Adventures on Strange Planet

vaingloriously calls himself "Emperor of the Universe." Aura carries out her jealous plans against Dale Arden. Both girls are very beautiful.

Dr. Zarkov invents all his miraculous rays and machines, including the apparatus that makes Flash invisible. All the splendors and marvels of Ming's awe inspiring palace have been reproduced. Vultan's City in the sky looms up in shining magnificence, declares the Hollywood studio bulletin service to exhibitors.

King Thun battles against Flash, who conquers his air armade. Kala's Shark Men hold Flash captive in the underwater kingdom, where he subdues the Octosac. Strange beasts like the Gocko are defeated in struggles with Flash.

Ray guns spew forth streams of destruction. Rocket ships hurl devastating bombs on gyro ships. The submarine Hydrocycle explores undersea depths. Everything that takes place can be viewed through the spaceograph. How the cameramen performed all their magic remains a secret of the studios.

The miracles of the heavens and the sea have been photographed for the motion picture. To bring these things to pass, Universal engaged most expert cameramen, astronomers and expert illusionists.

Duke York, Jr. as King Kala

Priscilla Lawson as the Princess Aura

Frank Shannon as Dr. Zarkov

Prince Barin, Dick Alexander shows Flash and Aura the Sky City.

FLASH "FLASH GORDO

N" ALL OVER TOWN!

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY SHOWMANSHIP SECTION

A DIGEST OF THE BEST EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

Organize Flash Gordon Adventure Club to Step Up Campaign

THE club idea is a very profitable campaign factor when playing serials. When the club is kept alive it maintains interest in the picture for the entire length of the run and is helpful in many ways in stepping up the campaign. It gets your message over right into the homes, builds good will and enlists the cooperation of the best citizens.

Call an organization meeting a week or two before you open with the first chapter. Give out membership cards and announce any special plans you have worked out such as parade, contests, etc. Rouse the youngsters' enthusiasm and you will have them working for you during the thirteen weeks of the picture's run.

A big parade staged on the opening day will go a long way to build up interest and start talk about "FLASH GORDON." Offer autographed photos of Buster Crabbe, or other souvenirs, to the first two or three hundred in line. Offer prizes for the most imaginative costume, patterned after those worn by the characters in the picture or cartoon. Arrange to have several marchers carry banners, signs tacked on sticks, poster cut-outs, etc., to sell the picture and the club. Promote a local boys band to provide music for the parade.

Suggest Newspaper Sponsor Club

YOU may find that the local newspaper running the FLASH GORDON cartoon, has a FLASH GORDON CLUB already organized. If so work with it closely, suggesting stunts, contests, etc. explained on the following pages. Offer prizes for new members and arrange a special night for them to see the opening chapter. If the newspaper does not have a club try to sell them on the idea of sponsoring one in connection with the motion picture and the cartoon, as a good circulation stimulator.

The members can be of assistance to you in selling the picture by distributing heralds, spreading talk about it and getting new members. Offer a prize for the best herald distribution job and for the most new members. Make the youngsters realize they are an important factor in the club and they will work hard at making it a success.

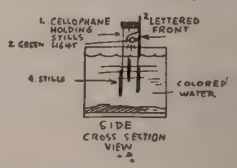
GIANT GONG FOR FRONT

THE giant gong shown in the sketch can be made from a large piece of sheet metal or tin suspended from marquee or lobby ceiling by ropes. Man, costumed similar to warriors in picture, strikes it with heavily padded stick at frequent intervals. Poster cut-out head can be mounted on gong. Title and other copy is painted on.

A large hoop over which is stretched a piece of sheepskin or other hide, (like a drum) will also serve the purpose.

UNDER WATER STILL DISPLAY

AN ordinary home aquarium, oblong in shape, will serve the purpose for this display of stills in water. Mount the cut-out stills (No. 126—Ep. 4; No. 116—Ep. 3; No. 119—Ep. 3.) on pieces of glass or on celophane. This material can also be used to suspend the stills in the water as it will not be noticeable and will add to the strange effect. Color the water with a green or bluish dye and illuminate the tank from behind with green and yellow flicker lights. See sketch for other details and copy.



DISPLAY OF QUEER GADGETS

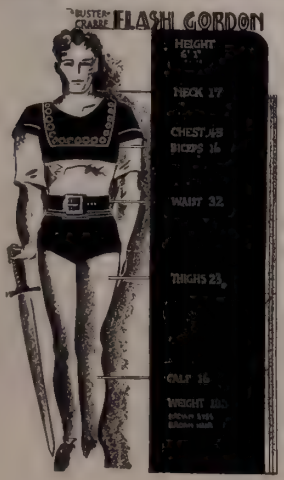
THROUGHOUT FLASH GORDON new and amazing mechanical and electrical gadgets, ships, weapons, and other objects are introduced. Many of these can be easily and inexpensively reproduced for an interesting advance lobby display. They will also make excellent material for an illustrated newspaper article of the "popular science" type. See sketch for arrangement of models and copy. The local physics teacher can help you arrange a series of weird gadgets with sparking devices, whirring noises and strange colored lights. Coils, tubes and giant spark jumpers should be included. The more grotesque they are the better as the display should be representative of the highly developed electrical world found by Flash Gordon on the mystery planet, Mongo.

ROCKET SHIP SHADOW BOX

USE compo board for the face of this display. Cut out the centre in the shape indicated, and cover with muslin scrim, varnished. The rocket ship is cut-out of cardboard and mounted on the scrim. In the back is a shaded yellow light to illuminate cabins and tail of rocket ship. Surrounding planets effect is obtained by a moving band perforated with various size circles, around a blue light. As the light comes through these perforations it will be thrown on the varnished muslin in large sizes where it is at a distance and small sizes where it is close. Use copy indicated.

Find Local Flash Gordon

INASMUCH as Buster Crabbe, who plays the title role of FLASH GORDON, is a marvel of physical perfection, it should prove an interesting newspaper tie-up to find the local boy who most closely resembles the character. The newspaper can receive and publish photographs of the entrants and then provide a voting coupon for readers to use in selecting the winner. He could be feted around town at dinners, dances, sports events, etc. Use the measurements shown and achievements of Buster Crabbe as a guide to help voter to select the winner. The stunt should be started well in advance and the winner presented on your stage opening night.

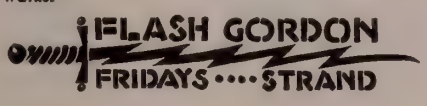


ROCKETSHIP MODEL BUILDING CONTEST

TIE-UP with newspaper and local schools or hobby clubs for a model building contest featuring the FLASH GORDON rocket ship. Offer prizes for the best constructed model, the most practical and the one most closely resembling Flash Gordon's. Models can be made of wood, metal or other media as the contestant chooses, and can be of any size. Entries should be photographed for the newspaper and then put on exhibit in your lobby. If there is a local store selling model making material tie-up with them for a window display and cooperative newspaper ads.

STREET STENCIL

CUT the stencil shown below in heavy oiled paper. Paint on fences, curbings and other spots near theatre. If permission is obtainable stencil right in middle of sidewalks.



News Flashes in Lobby

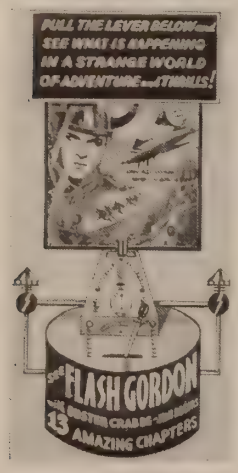
YOUR local radio man can assist you in rigging up this "advanced radio receiving station" in your lobby. Disguise a conventional loud speaker so as to make appear fantastic, or of greatly advanced design. Set up several "prop" dials and other radio gadgets, bulbs, lavender lights, flashes, etc., to add to the realism and interest. The "messages" can be sent from a "mike" located in the office or other concealed spot. Assign a house attache to "operate" the dials at frequent intervals. Another man at the "mike" comes in with catchline "news flashes" ostensibly from Flash Gordon on the mythical planet, "Mongo." In order to make it appear more genuine get static interference in the messages every once in a while. Use background and copy as shown in the sketch.

Coloring Contest

PLANT this contest with the paper as a special bid for the interest of the youngsters. Offer prizes for the best coloring job done on the still shown in the outline drawing herewith. This drawing is available in two column mat form at your Universal Branch. Ask for Exploitation Service Mat No. FG-1.

Magic Mirror Stunt

THE magic mirror is made by using two glasses, one with plain (unprotected) silver or gold backing, and the other as a protection. This will make the glass reflect except when a light is flashed behind it at which time it will be transparent. Mount poster cut-outs behind the glass. When anyone throws the switch it will flash the light and make the cut-outs visible. Sketch explains other details.



CATCH LINES

Roar through space aboard the rocket ship with "FLASH GORDON" and his pals! Shoot through the stratosphere at bullet's speed! Land on the mystery planet Mongo!

* * *

Greatest chapter play scoop in motion picture history!

* * *

SEE: The death fight between shark and octopus! The city in the sky! The hydrocycle submarine! The undersea Empire! Strange shark men!

* * *

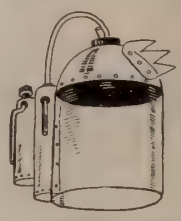
Your favorite cartoon hero comes to life in the first mighty chapter play spectacle!

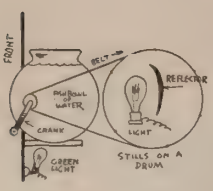
* * *

Nothing like it ever before attempted on the screen! Breath-taking! Awe-inspiring. The greatest movie sensation of the century!

Street Ballyhoo

THE ballyhoo shown in the sketch is right out of the picture. Local tinsmith will probably be willing to help you with the helmet for the fun of it and an opportunity to exercise his ingenuity. The frame work is covered with colored celophane. Coils, tubes, and any other queer looking looking gadgets should be attached as shown in the sketch. Local costumer can provide the balance of outfit at small cost. Use signs as shown.



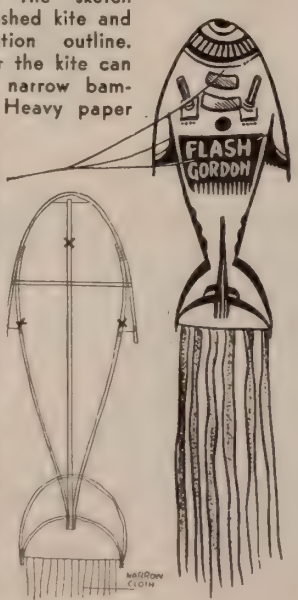


Stills Shown Through Illuminated Water

STILLS, mounted on a transparent drum rotating directly behind a bowl of clear water, provide an eye-catching display for your lobby or store window. The bowl, an ordinary fish bowl will do, is set against the centre hole cut-out of the face of the display. In the centre of the drum which sets BEHIND the bowl, is a large light. Directly above the bowl is a colored flicker light, while below it is a heat light lamp surrounded by a vary colored drum which is rotated by the heat of the lamp throwing colored light into the water. Use copy as indicated. The effect of showing stills through illuminated agitated water is quite startling and especially appropriate for this picture. It will appeal to most grown-ups as well as youngsters.

MODEL KITE CONTEST

OFFER prizes for the best kite models patterned after the FLASH GORDON rocket ship. The sketch shows the finished kite and the construction outline. The frame for the kite can be made of narrow bamboo or ash. Heavy paper or cloth can be used for the covering. Narrow strips of cloth provide the tail. Coloring should be carefully considered in awarding prizes. A mat of drawings, for newspaper or throwaway printing, is available at Univlersal Branches. Ask for Exploitation Service Mat No. FG-2

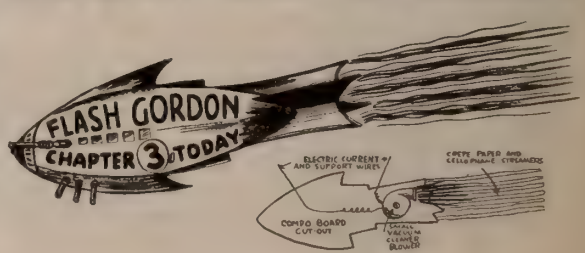


Prizes For Best Letters on What Happens Next!

IN every chapter of FLASH GORDON there is a striking climax in which the hero gets himself into a situation from which it seems he will not possibly be able to extricate himself. Tie-up with the newspaper on this angle for a letter contest offering prizes for the best letters explaining how the writer thinks FLASH GORDON will manage to get out of his precarious situation. The letters which come closest to the actual action which follows in the next chapter should be awarded the prizes. There is so much fantastic action in this serial such a contest will prove of unusual interest, giving, as it does, a wide field for the youngsters' imaginations. It will also act as a booster to get them into the first chapter. "Flash Gordon" novelty guns and toys make good contest prizes. The newspaper can publish the winners and you can mount them around production stills in your lobby, but not until after you have run that chapter. Doing this will interest other youngsters in similar contests on succeeding chapters.

ANIMATED ROCKET SHIP IN LOBBY

MAKE a compo-board cut-out of rocket ship as shown in sketch. Hang from lobby ceiling by wires that carry current to vacuum blower. Mount a small smoke pot behind the exhaust pipes to add to the effectiveness of the stunt.



The INDUSTRY will CELEBRATE CARL LAEMMLE'S 30th ANNIVERSARY on MONDAY at UNIVERSAL CITY

CARL LAEMMLE

ON February 24th, two days after Washington's Birthday, Carl Laemmle celebrates his thirtieth anniversary in the motion picture business. The historic occasion will be observed with fitting rites at Universal City where the veteran showman will be honored by the industry he helped to found. On the huge "Phantom of the Opera" set, a special reel from "Sutter's Gold" will be shown and two hundred of the studio's executives, stars, directors and employees, past and present, will attend a luncheon, the high spot of the day's festivities. They will enter through a reproduction of the lobby of the White Front Theatre, Mr. Laemmle's first picture house which he opened in Chicago on February 24th, 1906.

From this start, made appropriately two days after the birthday of the father of our national independence, Carl Laemmle went on to become the greatest independent in the film industry. Back in 1909 and 1912 he won independent producers the right to exist by fighting a veritable war of independence in which his cameramen had to be hired as much for their skill with their fists as for lens artistry.

Hiding his cameras in iceboxes, shooting exterior scenes from express wagons, crouching all night in Fort Lee cellars with R. H. Cochrane his partner, then as now, to conceal their precious equipment from the Film Trust gangsters, Laemmle lived more like a serial hero in those pioneer picture days than like the benign executive now known as Uncle Carl. He carried the fight to Cuba and the U. S. Supreme Court, where his victory in the famous Latham Loop case made possible the development of the films to the giant industry of today by breaking monoply forever. Twenty-four years after those stirring times finds him still very much in the movie picture, the perennial flower in his lapel and films like "Next Time We Love," "Love Before Break-

(Continued on Page 28)

Internationalists to Universal City

THREE of Universal's European production staff arrived on the Ile de France this week and will continue to Universal City. It is Mr. Laemmle's thought that having the experience of international pictures, the technique of foreign taste and tempo, they will be able to interject into pictures that quality of internationalism which will bring to sound pictures again the universal appeal that the

(Continued on Page 28)

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, N. Y. City
Universal Pictures Corp.
Copyrighted 1936
(All Rights Reserved)
FEB. 22, 1936
Vol. 38 No. 4

How People Will Talk

This is a warning: people will talk!

And how they'll talk!

But the more they talk, the more other people will flock to your theatre to see if it's true.

And it is true!

The funniest scene in "Love Before Breakfast" (or any comedy ever produced) is the one in which Preston Foster fights for the love of the bewitching Carole Lombard—and Carole emerges with a shiner!

Not just a black eye, but, as the boys say, "a beaut' of a lamp." It glistens, it sparkles, it illuminates the ravishing features of the alluring Miss Lombard. And it proves to your patrons what a grand comedienne she is—easily as funny as she is beautiful, and that's a lot.

Not since Jimmy Cagney first plopped a grapefruit into a dame's "kisser" has there been such a talked-about scene as this new and genuinely funny one in "Love Before Breakfast." They'll laugh, they'll howl and they'll talk. We repeat: How they'll talk!

For it's not a malicious shiner, mind you. It's delivered by Mr. Foster to prove that he loves the fractious Miss Lombard, who thinks she hates him. It's the first time that such a persuader has been tried in pictures, and in such a way. Needless to say, it's convincing.

That's why Universal feels perfectly justified in calling "Love Before Breakfast" the picture with a punch. And as far as the box office is concerned, it's a bigger sock in the eye than Miss Lombard's!

THE GREATEST EPIC OF T

SU

Starring EDWARD ARNOLD with LEE TRACY

ADDISON RICHARDS, Harry Carey, John Miljan, Mitchell Lewis, Bryant Washburn, R
Nan Gray. Based on novels by Blaise Cendrars and Bruno Frank. Screenplay by Ja Presented b

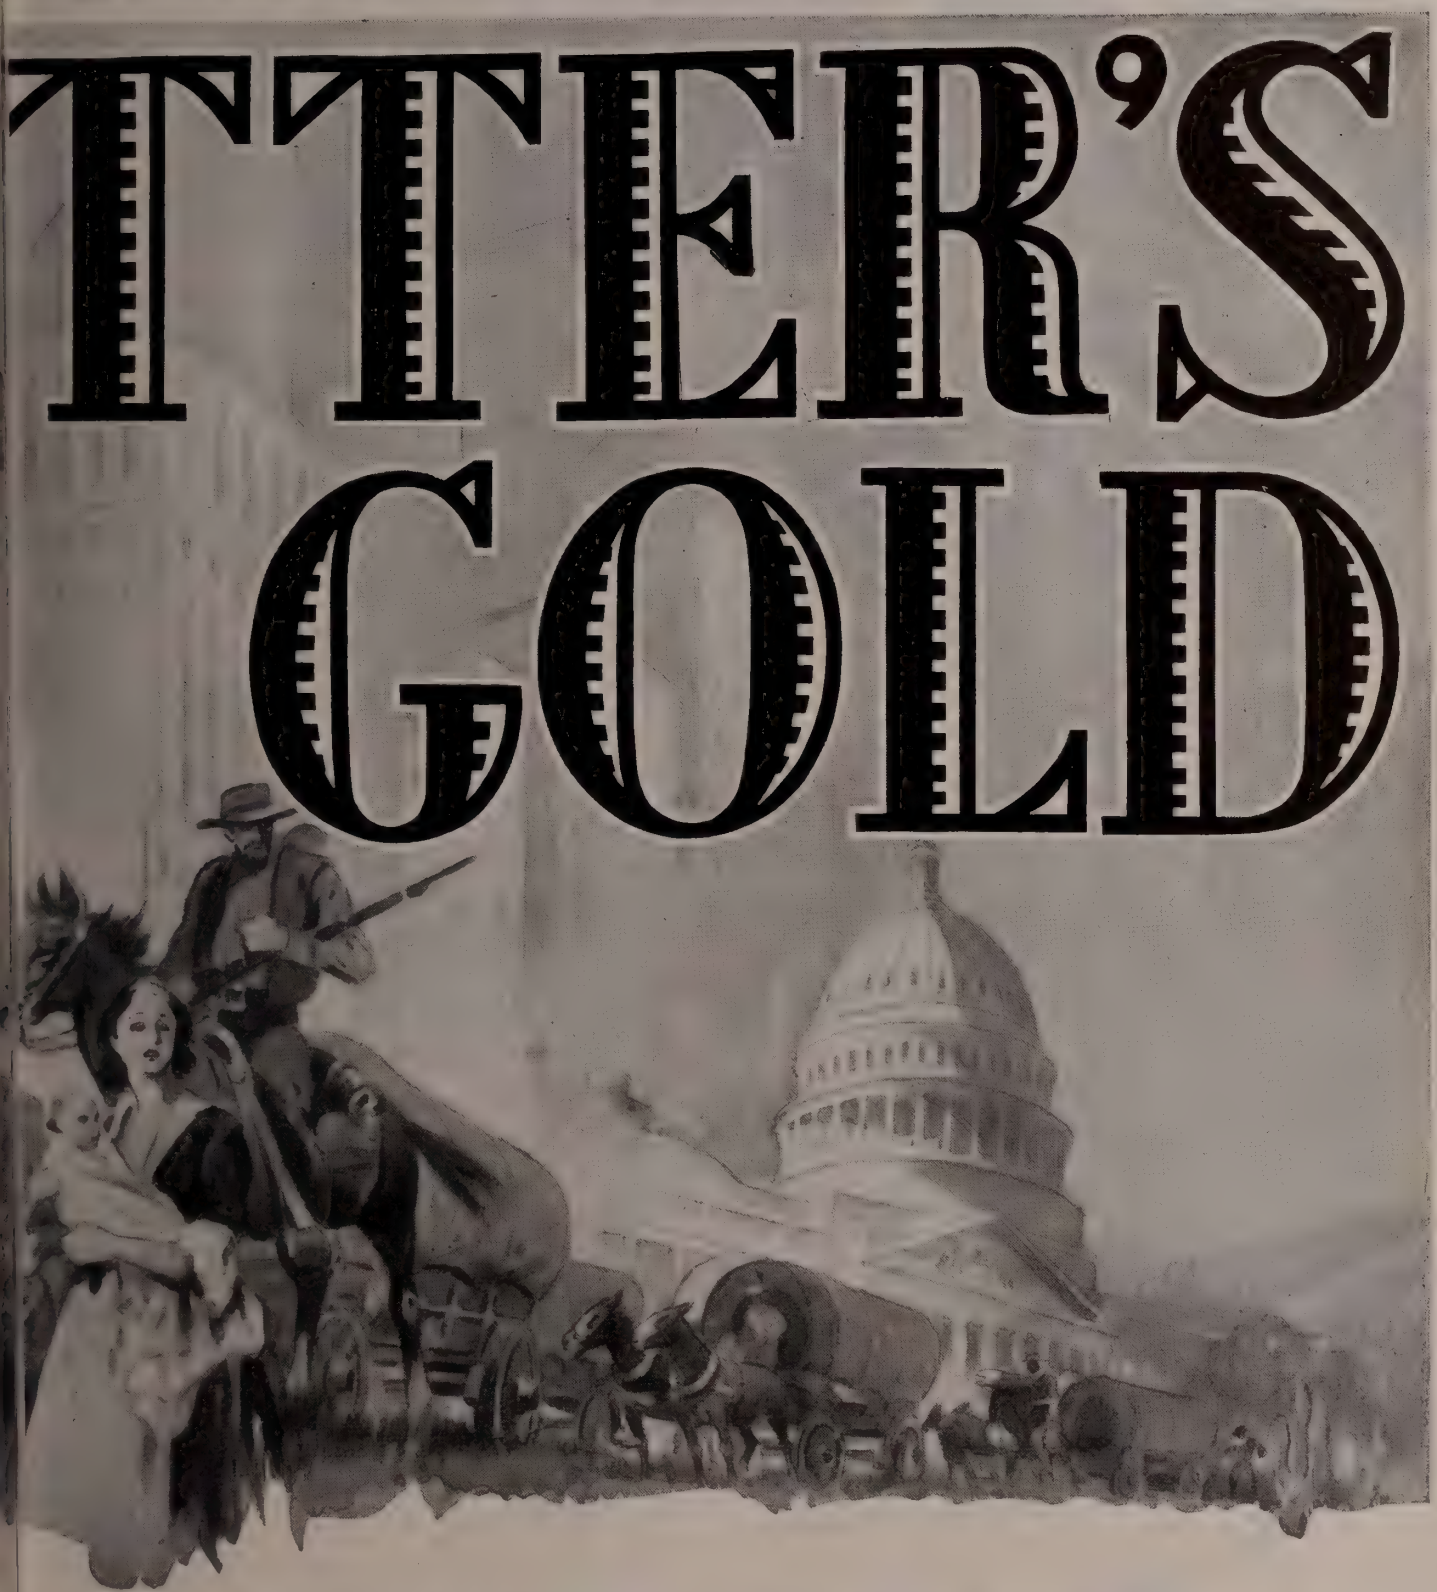
HEM ALL — UNIVERSAL'S

TTER'S GOLD



INNIE BARNES + KATHARINE ALEXANDER, MONTAGU LOVE, Warwick, Gaston Glass, Russell Hopton, Frank Reicher, William Janney, Sidney Bracy dland and Walter Woods. An Edmund Grainger Production. Directed by James Cruze. l Laemmle.

*(By arrangement with B. P. Schulberg)

The NATION'S Say

THREE KIDS AND A QUEEN: May Robson, Henry Armetta—An ace high piece of good film fun. Enough of everything to suit any audience. We'd like to toss a bouquet to lovely little Charlotte Henry. Why can't we see more of her? Small draw. Played January 15-16.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

DIAMOND JIM: Edward Arnold, Binnie Barn Outstanding picture, so different from the reg run that should be appreciated. Running time, reels. Played December 30-31.—Rudolf Duba, R Theatre Kimball, S. D. Small town patronage

REMEMBER LAST NIGHT: Edward Arnold, Constance Cummings—This one is so smart, it is ahead of everything in a long time. Smart dialogue, smart, snappy direction and execution, and smart sets make it one of the best entertainments released by anyone. Box office fair only. Cast all of them 100 per cent.—W. H. Brenner, Cozy Theatre, Winchester, Ind. General patronage.

AFFAIR OF SUSAN, THE: Zasu Pitts, Hugh O'Connell—This is a good one. Very funny. Both Pitts and O'Connell are funny comedians. Story made for laughs and they get them. Everyone tickled and satisfied. Clean comedy. Played January 10-11.—Bert Silver, The New Silver Theatre, Greenville, Mich. City and country patronage.

FIGHTING YOUTH: Charles Farrell, June Martel —Good football picture. Good story and good cast. Ann Sheridan was good in her role.—Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala. Small town patronage.

STRAWBERRY ROAN: Ken Maynard—Played it third time in 11 months to record crowds. If they ever want to have any more memorials, I say don't forget "Strawberry Roan." Hats off to Universal.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

OLD AGE PENSION: Henry Armetta—Most exc ing comedy we have run for some time; full of laug ter. Running time, 22 minutes.—Rudolf Duba, Ro Theatre, Kimball, S. D. Small town patronage.

STORMY: Rex, Noah Beery, Jr., Jean Roger Of its kind there has been none better.—Russell A mentrout, Clark Theatre, Louisiana, Mo. Gene patronage.

BORDER BRIGANDS: Buck Jones—Drew better than the average picture. Has plenty of action and is all right for small towns or country. Played January 4.—George Lodge, Green Lantern Theatre, Claymont, Del. Small town patronage.

STORM OVER THE ANDES: Jack Holt, Mona Barrie—A good action picture. Airplane sequences especially good. Story bears some resemblances to "The Last Outpost" in basic theme. Played January 14.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

SPEEDY JUSTICE: Mentone Musical Comedies— Fine two-reeler.—Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala. Small town patronage.

EXHIBITORS

SWEET SURRENDER: Frank Parker, Tamara, Helen Lynd—An exceptionally good musical with more story value than that of the average picture of this type. Frank Parker has a pleasing personality and his voice is, of course, just about perfect. Helen Lynd, pert and blond, won favor with our patrons for her comedy contributions to the film. The lack of box-office names necessitated our doubling this with another feature, but it is strong enough to stand alone.—J. W. Noah, New Liberty and Ideal Theatres, Fort Worth, Texas. General patronage.

ON YOUR RADIO DIAL: Mentone Musical Comedies—A fine musical two-reeler.—Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala. Small town patronage.

STORM OVER THE ANDES: Jack Holt, Mona Barrie—A picture worthwhile Good Friday and Saturday show Running time, 9 reels. Played December 20-21.—Rudolf Duba, Royal Theatre, Kimball, S. D Small town patronage.

IMITATION OF LIFE: Claudette Colbert—Played this one late. Even so it pleased the majority and it surely is a great show. Different from all other pictures.—Marion F. Bodwell, Paramount Theatre, Wyoming, Ill. Small town patronage.

LADY TUBBS: Alice Brady—Here is a pip. Good for three days and strong at the finish. Alice can sure produce the hilarity. Can remember featuring her as a star back in 1915 and she is still going strong. A genuine trouper. Good luck to her. Running time, 70 minutes. Played January 12-14.—D M. Reardon, Globe Theatre, Holyoke, Mass. General patronage.

STORMY: Noah Beery, Jr., Jean Rogers—A gem of the photographer's art. Some of the scenes are fairly breath-taking in their beauty and magnitude. Nice little story, well acted, all combined to make this a real joy to screen. Our patrons liked it immensely and told us so. Running time, 68 minutes. Played January 3-4.—M. R. Harrington, Avalon Theatre, Clatskanie, Ore. Small town and rural patronage.

LADY TUBBS: Alice Brady, Anita Louise, Douglass Montgomery—The best comedy that we have played for some time. The plot is not interesting, but Alice Brady with her humor keeps the audience in a happy mood. The old English lord is good, too, dontche know, by jove. Sub-zero weather and stormy so we did not net film rental. Played January 10-11. —O. Ingmar Oleson, Sons of Norway Theatre, Ambrose, N. D. Small town patronage.

PRINCESS O'HARA: Jean Parker, Chester Morris—Dandy picture. Well worth playing. Played to above average business. Typical small town picture that should have been a special.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

BRONCO BUSTER: Oswald Cartoons—Some very good music in this cartoon and plenty funny. Running time, seven minutes.—Alice Simmons, Lyric Theatre, Jefferson, Texas. General patronage.

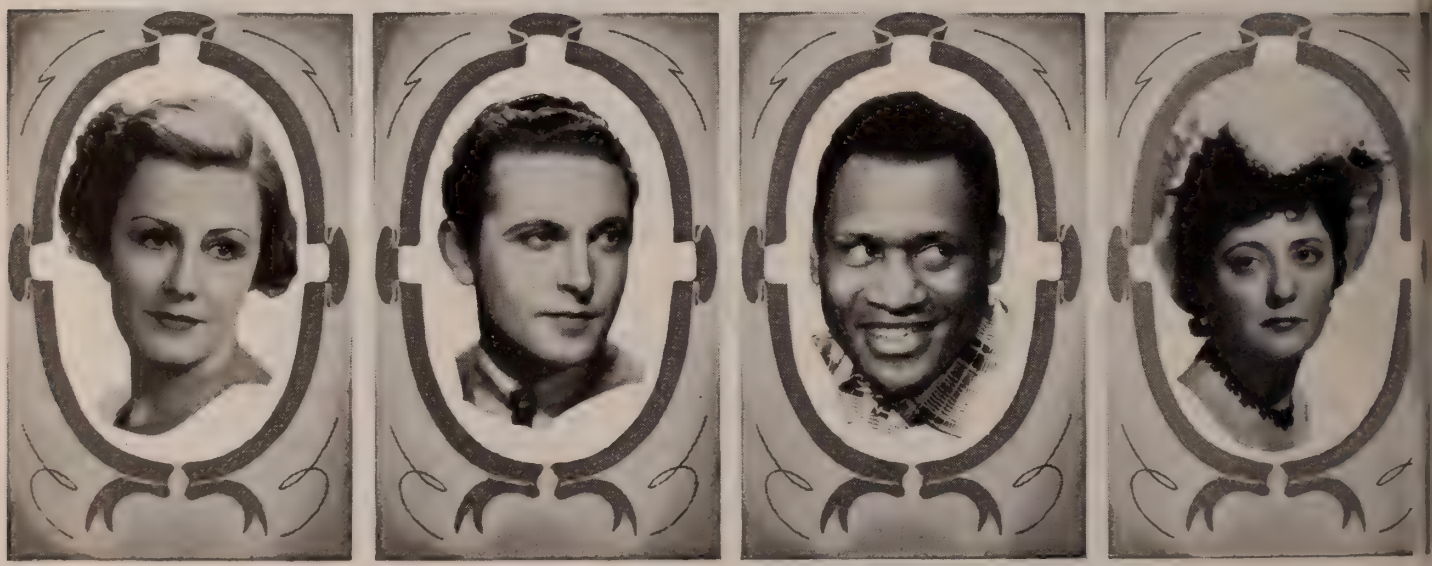
FATHER KNOWS BEST: Sterling Holloway—A fair short comedy drama. Running time, 22 minutes. Rudolf Duba, Royal Theatre, Kimball, S. D. Small town patronage.

TOWNE HALL FOLLIES: Oswald Cartoons—Oswald is one of the best cartoons on the market. This one is very good.—Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala. Small town patronage.

STORMY: Noah Beery, Jr., Jean Rogers—Here's a picture that brought them in and sent them home happy. You don't have to be a western fan to like this show. Don't be afraid to step on this picture. Played January 1-2.—Ted Stump. Elted Theatres, Absarokee and Columbus, Mont. Rural patronage.

UNIVERSAL ANNOUNCES THE SU

SHOW



Carl Laemmle presents Edna Ferber's immortal classic (Version of 1936), Starring

IRENE DUNNE with ALLAN JONES and Charles Winninger

REME TRIUMPH OF FILM HISTORY!

BOAT

Also in the feature cast, PAUL ROBESON, HELEN MORGAN, HELEN WESTLEY, QUEENIE SMITH, SAMMY WHITE, Donald Cook, Francis X. Mahoney, Hattie McDaniel, Marilyn Knowlden, J. Farrell MacDonald, Clarence Muse. PRODUCED BY CARL LAEMMLE, Jr. Screenplay and lyrics by Oscar Hammerstein II. Music and new songs by Jerome Kern. Directed by JAMES WHALE.

MOVIES SET A NEW COLOR VOGUE

Sutter's Gold, a Rich, Radiant, Gleaming Golden Yellow, Created by Margaret Hayden Rorke of Textile Color Card Association

MORE and more feminine eyes are turning toward Hollywood for guidance in matters of fashions. And now out of the west has come another star to guide the perplexed followers of vogue along the path of fashion. And this time it is color. It is the first of the season's authoritative edicts for Spring colors. Yesterday, Margaret Hayden Rorke, who created it, sent out the pronouncement of the Textile Color Card Association of the United States, to its thousands of agencies throughout the world, announcing the new color, Sutter's Gold. It is a rich, glamorous hue, recalling the colorful days of the discoverey of gold in California, and was inspired by that amazing adventurer, John A. Sutter, whose life history is now being filmed in California by James Cruze. Edward Arnold plays the role of Sutter, and with him are Binnie Barnes, Lee Tracy and a cast of over one hundred name parts and 5,000 extras.

Through the manifold avenues translating fashion ideas into garments, the new color will rapidly manipulate itself into gowns, stockings, hats, shoes, gloves, handbags, parasols, handkerchiefs, interior decorations, and even the upholstery of automobiles. Samples of the color, swatches as they are known to the trade, are already in the hands of manufacturers, dyers, spinners and weavers, all laudably vying with each other to be the first to bring the new color to life and milady's assistance. Binnie Barnes, one of the stars of the picture, has placed an order in New York for a complete outfit and hopes to be the first lady in the land to exhibit the new Sutter's Gold color in her attire.

The first demonstration of the effect of the screen on color was a color known as Phantom Red, also created by Madame Rorke and established as a standard fashion color by the Textile Color Card Association of New York, of which Mme Rorke is Secretary and Managing Director. Phantom Red for the first time in history opened up department store windows to the exploitation of a motion picture, and resulted in a tremendous amount of advertising lineage in the newspapers and translated itself into twenty-two accessories for milady's toilette.

Margaret Hayden Rorke occupies a place in feminine fashions which is as arbitrary and all-powerful as that of all the dictators of Europe and much more potent than its crowned heads. She is America's uncrowned queen of color. It is she who tells, often a whole year in advance, just what colors American women will wear. Furthermore, she disseminates this knowledge to manufacturers far enough ahead so that they will be able to coordinate all the accessories to women's apparel in the creation of harmonious costume effects.

Margaret Hayden Rorke, dictator of colors for women's costumes, and secretary and managing director of the Textile Color Card Association of the U. S., Inc., creator of the color, Sutter's Gold.

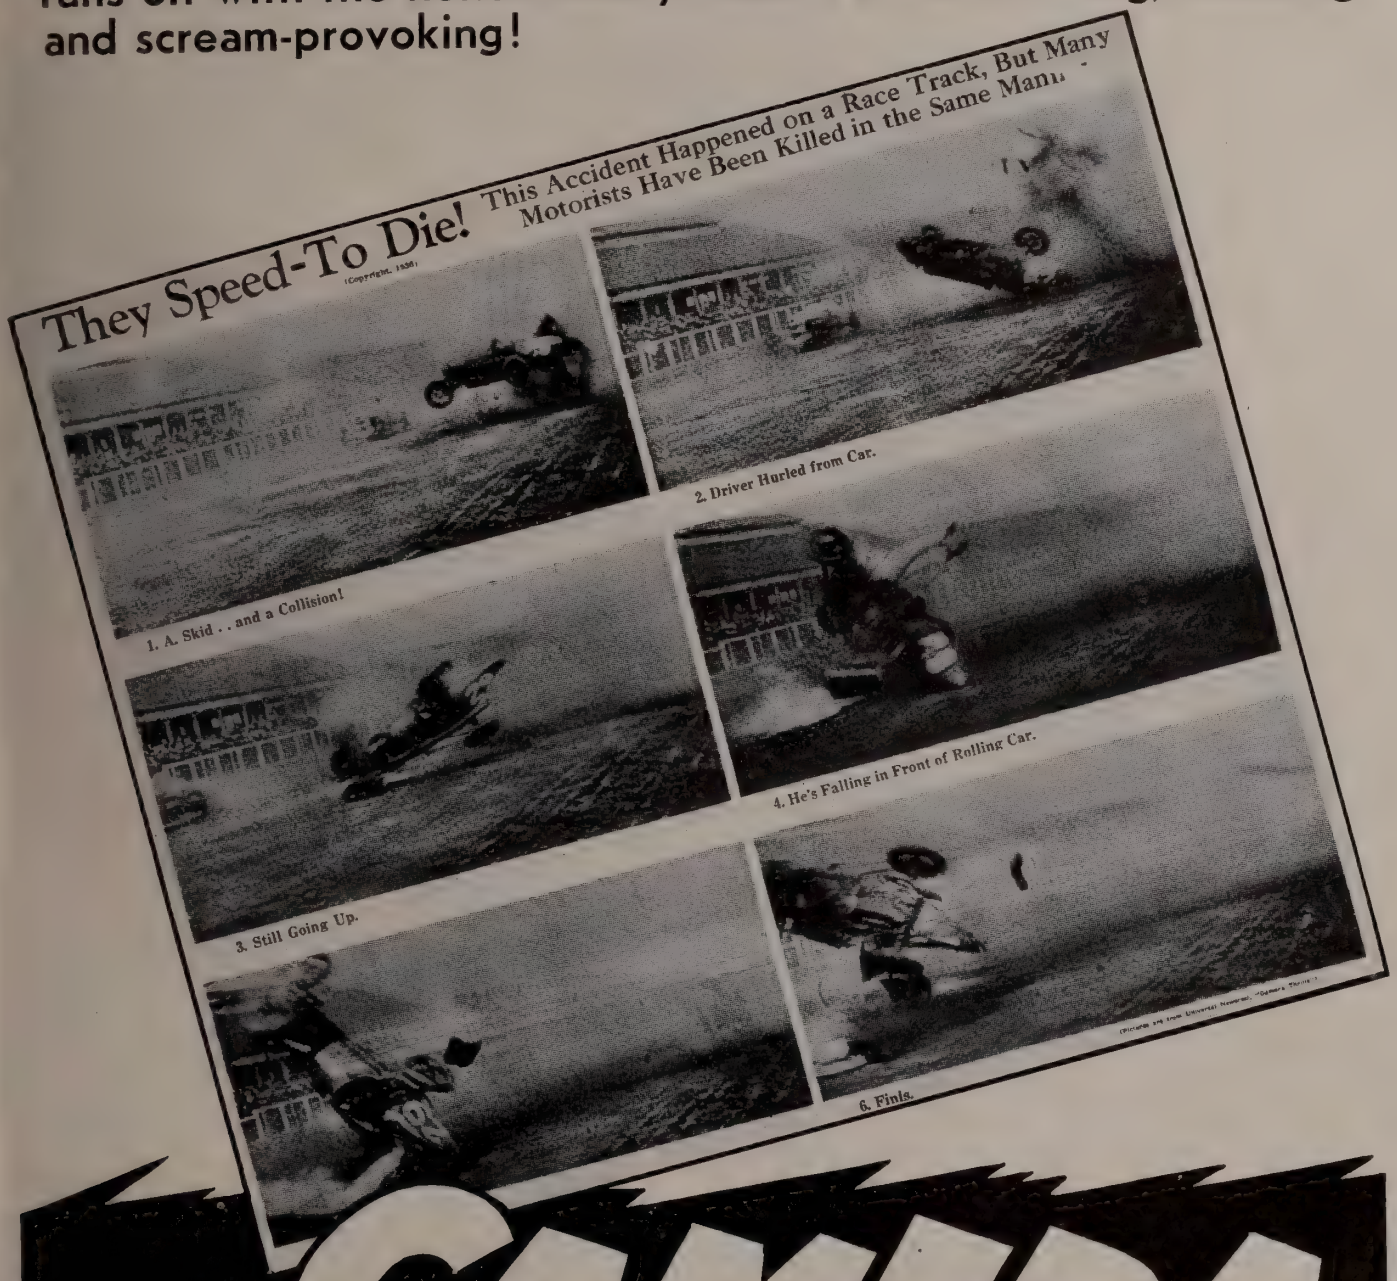
"WHAT PRICE PAROLE"

REVEALING some of the 'rackets' of the American parole system and how criminals too frequently play on the sympathies of influential reform and social workers Carl Laemmle of Universal plans the early release of a sensational dramatic filmplay "What Price Parole?" soon entering production.

Written after more than six months of research and study of hundreds of parole records by Robert Dillon and Sally Unterberger "What Price Parole?" has been written for the screen by Kubec Glasmon. Glasmon is well known for his powerful dramatic stories, his most recent "Show Them No Mercy." Other of his well known screenplays are "Public Enemy" and "The Crowd Roars."

IT STEALS THE SHOW!

On the screens, in the news sections, in the roto sections – it runs off with the honors every time! It's that startling, shocking and scream-provoking!



CAMERA THRILLS

UNIVERSAL'S 2-REEL WONDER!

THE PICTURE WITH THE UNFORGETTABLE PUNCH!

Carl Laemmle presents

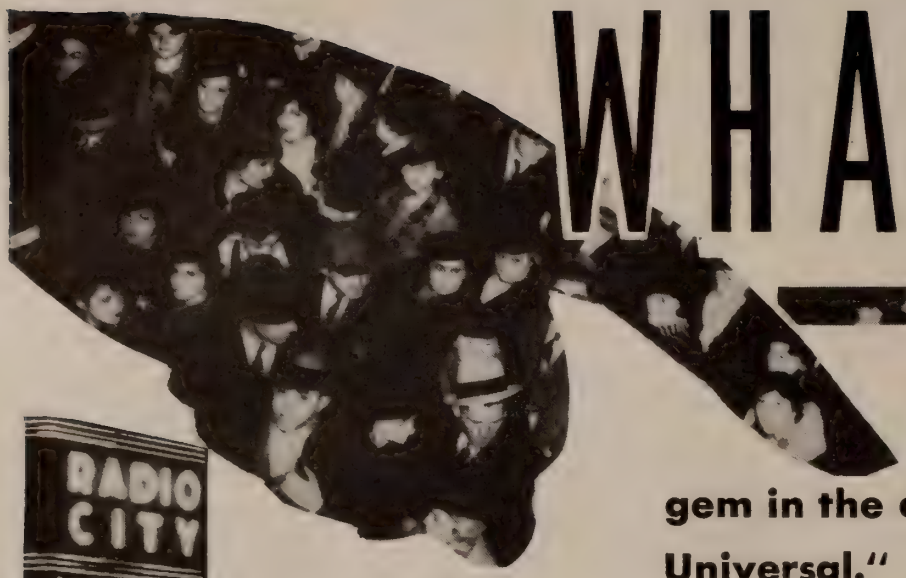
role

LOMBARD

in Faith Baldwin's

"LOVE BEFORE BREAKFAST"

Featuring PRESTON FOSTER with Cesar Romero, Janet Beecher, Bert Roach, Joyce Compton, Richard Carle, Forrester Harvey, Betty Lawford, John King, Adamae Vaughan, Priscilla Lawson, Nick de Ruiz, Earl Eby, Red Christie, Nan Gray, David Worth, Marion Wolfe. From the Cosmopolitan Magazine story, "Spinster Dinner." An Edmund Grainger Production. A Universal Picture directed by Walter Lang.



WHAT THE

"Splendid. 'Next Time We Love' is another gem in the already studded crown of Universal."

—Jimmy Starr, Los Angeles Herald Express

"Heart-warming, human and understandably emotional . . . a generally superior attraction."

—Red Kann, Motion Picture Daily

"A natural for women, fully as strong in this respect as U's current heavy grosser, 'Magnificent Obsession.'"

—Arthur Ungar, Daily Variety

MARGARET SUL

"NEXT TIME WI

BIG-TIMERS SAY

ABOUT UNIVERSAL'S SUCCESSOR TO "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION"

"Ranks high among the finer examples of cinematic entertainment." —Regina Crewe, N. Y. American

"'Next Time We Love' has been made into a beautiful, thoughtful film . . . expertly acted, sympathetically directed."

—Carol Frink, Chicago Herald and Examiner

"A grand picture for women to cry over and generally enjoy themselves . . . Miss Sullavan has never looked so lovely nor acted with more sureness . . . provides sighs, romance and tears."

—Eileen Creelman, N. Y. Sun

SULLAVAN "NEXT TIME WE LOVE"

Gloria Holden, New York Theatre Guild Player, who has the title role in "Dracula's Daughter," in the first scene from this eerie production, which is heralded as the vampire picture to end all vampire pictures.

"DRACULA'S DAUGHTER" GOES INTO PRODUCTION

"DRACULA'S DAUGHTER," sequel to the famous "Dracula" by Bram Stoker, got under way at Universal City this week, with a number of players added to the cast, with two important roles still unfilled. Otto Kruger and Marguerite Churchill have the romantic leads, Gloria Holden, New York Theatre Guild stage player, has the title role, Edward Van Sloan has his original role of the Professor, Lambert Hillyer is directing from a story by Garrett Fort, and Irving Pichel is Sandor.

The new players are Gilbert Emery, Halliwell Hobbes, Hedda Hopper, Claude Allister, Gordon Hart, Billy Bevan and Nan Grey. Incidentally, Universal has lifted Nan Grey's option, being distinctly pleased with the work of this nineteen-year-old Dallas player who has been on probation at Universal City for the last six months. She has been in a number of pictures, the most important of which was "Sutter's Gold," in which she played the role of Sutter's daughter, Ann Eliza.

"Dracula's Daughter" carries on the weird legend of vampirism established by Count Dracula. This human fiend has finally ben brought to eternal rest by the driving of a stake through his heart, but in this sequel his daughter has inherited the curse and roams the land in the darkness using all the arts of her beauty and allure to satisfy her horrible blood lust. In her relentless quest, she encounters a handsome young nobleman, played by Otto Kruger, who becomes strangely fascinated by her wiles, and then follows one of the strangest love stories ever thought of.

The INDUSTRY will CELEBRATE

(Continued from Page 15)

fast," "Sutter's Gold" and "Show Boat" in circulation or soon to be released.

The personal history of Carl Laemmle reads like a history of the movies. His list of "firsts" would warm a collector's heart. He experimented with the first talking and the first color pictures in America twenty years before they were finally perfected; was the first to use the star system; made the first film to be shown on Broadway, the first to be roadshowed, the first long feature and the first to be reviewed by New York drama critics. The first screen work of such stars as Lon Chaney, Janet Gaynor, Fay Wray, Margaret Sullavan and others too numerous to mention, was done on his contract lists.

By 1915 the company was established at Universal City, California.

Like the British Empire, the sun never sets on Carl Laemmle's possessions. Although one of the world's most indefatigable globe trotters with sixteen transatlantic voyages to his credit he has not visited all the far flung outposts of his cinema domain. For instance he has never seen his South American or Oriental offices. A simple man of simple tastes, he enjoys life at his California estate, Dias Dorades among his children and grandchildren. He likes a sociable game of cards. But most of all he loves to make movies. The years have not lessened that desire.

At the threshold of his thirty-first year in the industry, Carl Laemmle, if he chose could still truthfully use the slogan he employed on his first advertisement, "I am the moving picture man."

Our best to you—Carl Laemmle.

Internationalists to Universal City

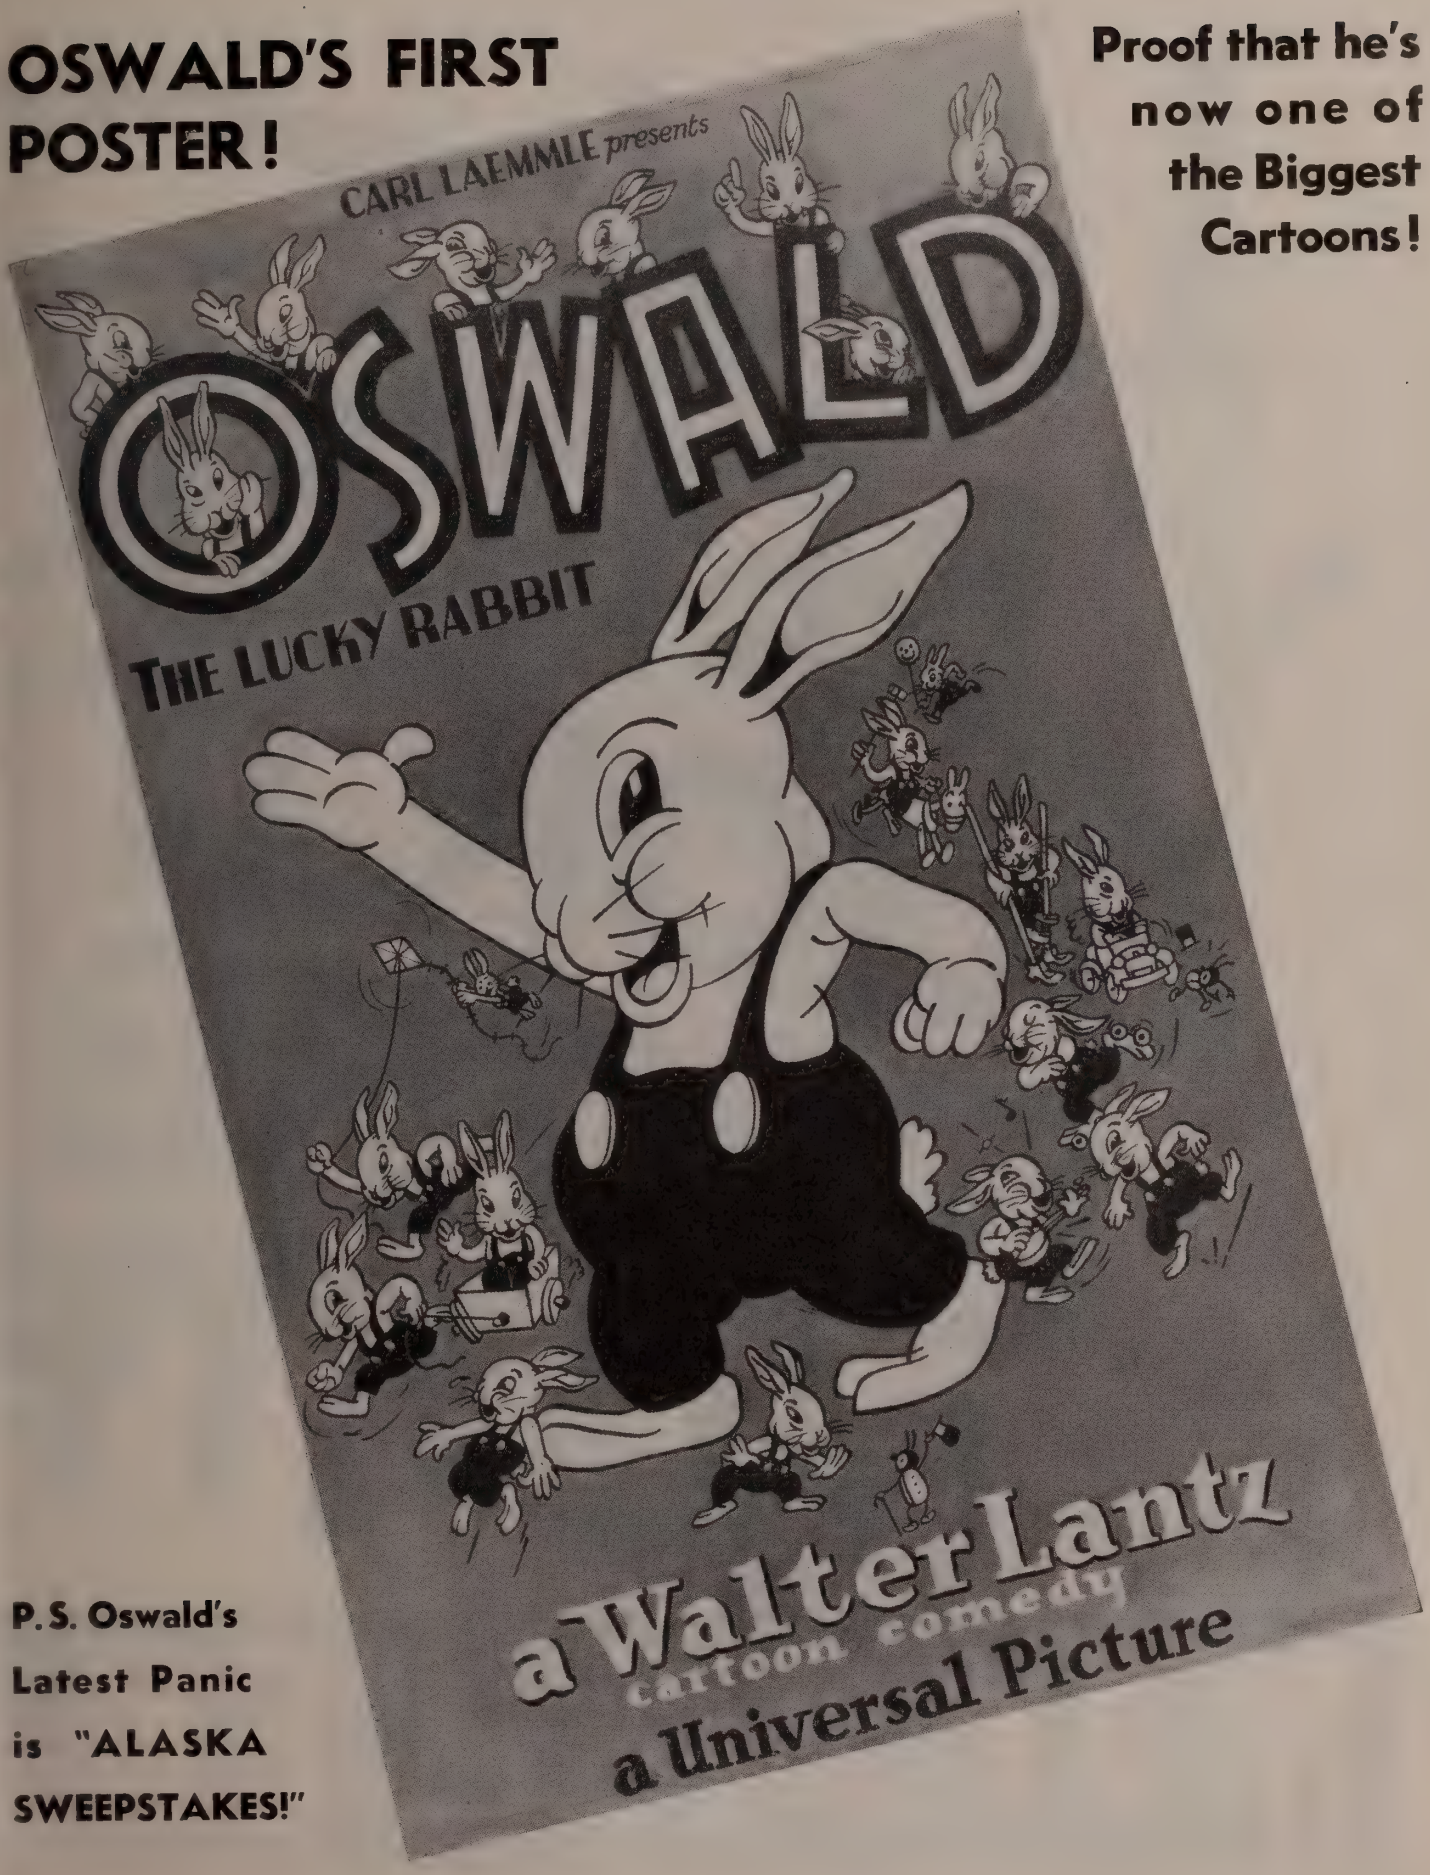
(Continued from Page 15)

silent pictures once had. N. L. Manheim, export manager, made a special trip to Europe to arrange Universal's foreign affairs to permit detaching these three personalities and sending them to Universal City.

The three personalities are Joe Pasternack, trained at Universal City, and in charge of production at Vienna and Budapest for the last four years. He is the producer of all of the Francesca Gaal pictures, all extremely popular in Europe. The second is Herman Kosterlitz, the director of the Francesca Gaal pictures, and an author of wide experience as well. The third is Gregor Rabinovitch, who produced "Be Mine to Night." Rabinovitch is the greatest figure today in the European film world.

OSWALD'S FIRST POSTER!

Proof that he's now one of the Biggest Cartoons!



P.S. Oswald's Latest Panic is "ALASKA SWEEPSTAKES!"

Look
Y'BETTER
BOOK IT
BY THE MONTH
MAGNIFICENT

BY DIRECT WIRE FROM

WESTERN UNION

1223-S

SYMBOLS
DL = Day Letter
NM = Night Message
NL = Night Letter
LC = Deferred Cable
NLT = Cable Night Letter
Ship Radiogram

CLASS OF SERVICE

This is a full-rate Telegram or Cablegram unless its deferred character is indicated by a suitable symbol above or preceding the address.

NEWCOMB CARLTON
CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD

J. C. WILLEVER
FIRST VICE-PRESIDENT

R. B. WHITE
PRESIDENT

The filing time shown in the date line on telegrams and day letters is STANDARD TIME at point of origin. Time of receipt is STANDARD TIME at point of destination.

NH18 13=NEWORLEANS LA FEB 6 1240P

J R GRAINGER=
UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP=

MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION ABOUT TO ENTER SECOND MONTH TUDOR NEWORLEANS ESTABLISING ALL TIME RECORD=
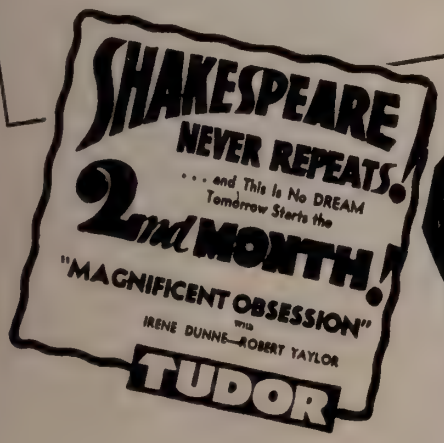
MAURICE F BARR.
151P..



NEW ORLEANS STATES
(Founded January 3, 1880)
Issued Every Week-Day Evening

'Magnificent Obsession'

NOW in its fifth week, first in the Ranger and at present in the Tudor theater, "Magnificent Obsession" has set a record in New Orleans. True, "Birth of a Nation" in 1916 ran 18 weeks in the Tulane theater at road-show prices, but this is not a fair comparison. The theme, the bursting patriotism of those days and the fact that this was the first of the great dramatic spectacles of the cinema built the foundations for that tremendous run. Great pictures are more the rule than the exception now; and it takes a superlative appeal to win more than the nine-longed week after week, one is tempted to believe in miracles.

• • •

"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" is a noble dramatization of the novel of the same name, one of the most inspiring fiction books of the century. To an amazing degree, the cinema has caught the soul-uplifting message of the author. The audience's response proves the desire of the people to see and hear that which is best and noblest. For dollars and-cents reasons, if for no others, that is what the actors and producers wish to create. It is ridiculous to say that they are interested only in appealing to the trivial and the lower emotions. No base cinema has had such a run as "Magnificent Obsession." The producers are always seeking for the best, and the many great and outstanding pictures prove it. When the public does not support them, it is because something is lacking. We don't know what that something is; the producer who could give the exact formula would be the wealthiest and greatest man in the world; but the hope is always to achieve the miracle.

• • •

SO THIS comment is not only upon the "Magnificent Obsession" of the cinema, but also upon the magnificent obsession of the people—the great general average who patronize the popular-price motion picture houses—their magnificent obsession for the true, the beautiful and the good.

OBSESSION

Dallas Roll of Honor

The following exhibitors in the Dallas Territory have used Universal Pictures continuously for

EXHIBITOR	THEATRE	TOWN
	24 Years
A. W. Lilly	Colonial	Greenville, Texas
	22 Years
Mrs. E. J. Callahan	Auditorium	Crockett, Texas
H. S. Cole	American	Bonham, Texas
	20 Years
W. C. Dorbandt	Dixie	Athens, Texas
Mrs. R. T. Hooks	Select	Mineola, Texas
	18 Years
C. H. Cox	Crystal	Gilmer, Texas
	16 Years
Harold Werner	Queen	Trinity, Texas
	15 Years
Interstate Circuit, Inc.	Majestic Bldg.	Dallas, Texas
Robb & Rowley Theatres	312 S. Harwood	Dallas, Texas
Mr. T. M. Dunn	Grand	Mineral Wells, Tex.
Texas Consolidated Theatres	Majestic Bldg.	Dallas, Tex.
Mrs. M. McSpadden	Grand	Electra, Texas
Mr. Lance Davis	Majestic	Rotan, Texas
Mr. Roy Howell	Howell	Coleman, Texas
Mr. L. C. Todball	Texan	Ft. Worth, Texas
Mexican Amusement Co.	Colon	El Paso, Texas
Mrs. H. H. Covington	Star	Teague, Texas
Leeman Marshall	Lyric	Terrell, Texas
Theo. Miller	Palace	Mt. Vernon, Texas
R. S. Pryor	Skinny's	Austin, Texas
J. R. Preddy	Texas	Austin, Texas
Mr. Rubin Frels	Uptown	Victoria, Texas
Will Horwitz	Texan	Houston, Texas
Robert Wygant	Heights	Houston, Texas
Johnnie Miller	Miller's	Navasota, Texas
A. Martini	Martini	Galveston, Texas
J. G. Long	Franklin	Bay City, Texas
	13 Years
Henry Sparks	Grand	Cooper, Texas
	10 Years
Oscar Korn	O. K. Theatres, Inc.	Dallas, Tex.
Mr. M. Larmour	National	Graham, Tex.
Mr. C. Richardson	Princess	Olney, Tex.
Mr. Henry Reeve	Mission	Menard, Tex.
Mr. L. Rickter	Gayety	Ft. Worth, Tex.
John M. Sayeg Estate	Plaza	Ennis, Tex.
Suburban Theatres, Inc.	Highland	San Antonio, Tex.
Paul Garza	Obrero	San Antonio, Tex.
R. N. Smith	Mission	Menard, Tex.
D. L. Young	Dittman	Brownsville, Tex.
C. D. Edwards	Crescent	Sour Lake, Tex.
L. B. Brown	Regal	Gatesville, Tex.

ED. OLSMITH, Mgr.

EXCLUSIVE!

RAIN OF BOMBS KILLS AND MAIMS RED CROSS WORKERS

(Photographed by Howard Winner, Ace Universal Newsreel Cameraman)

DOLO, ETHIOPIA—Exclusive, authentic pictures graphically show the flaming terror hurled against a Red Cross field unit near Nugelli by Italian airmen. Bombs and machine-gun fire kill and cripple Swedish doctors and their Ethiopian assistants. Scores of wounded soldiers die as the raiders ignore Red Cross flags. These scenes are among the most amazing ever made by a newsreel cameraman.

GRAHAM McNAMEE

as the talking reporter

UNIVERSAL NEWSREEL

From

UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.

ROCKEFELLER CENTER

NEW YORK CITY

Sec. 562 P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE

Paid

Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

MRS I A VINCENT
PLAYHOUSE THEATRE
ROSSBURG FALLS VT

RAY KNIGHT AND ALL HIS —CUCKOOS— ARE ON THE SCREEN IN UNIVERSAL'S NEW MENTONE!

These are the Ray Knight radio nuts your patrons will flock in to see in

"SIGNING OFF"

RAY ("Cuckoo") KNIGHT • LOIS RAVEL • MABEL PEARL'S CHANSONEERS • ZEB CARVER TROUPE THREE BRODELL SISTERS JOSEPH WILTON • HARRY ACKERMAN • MARSHALL GRANT.

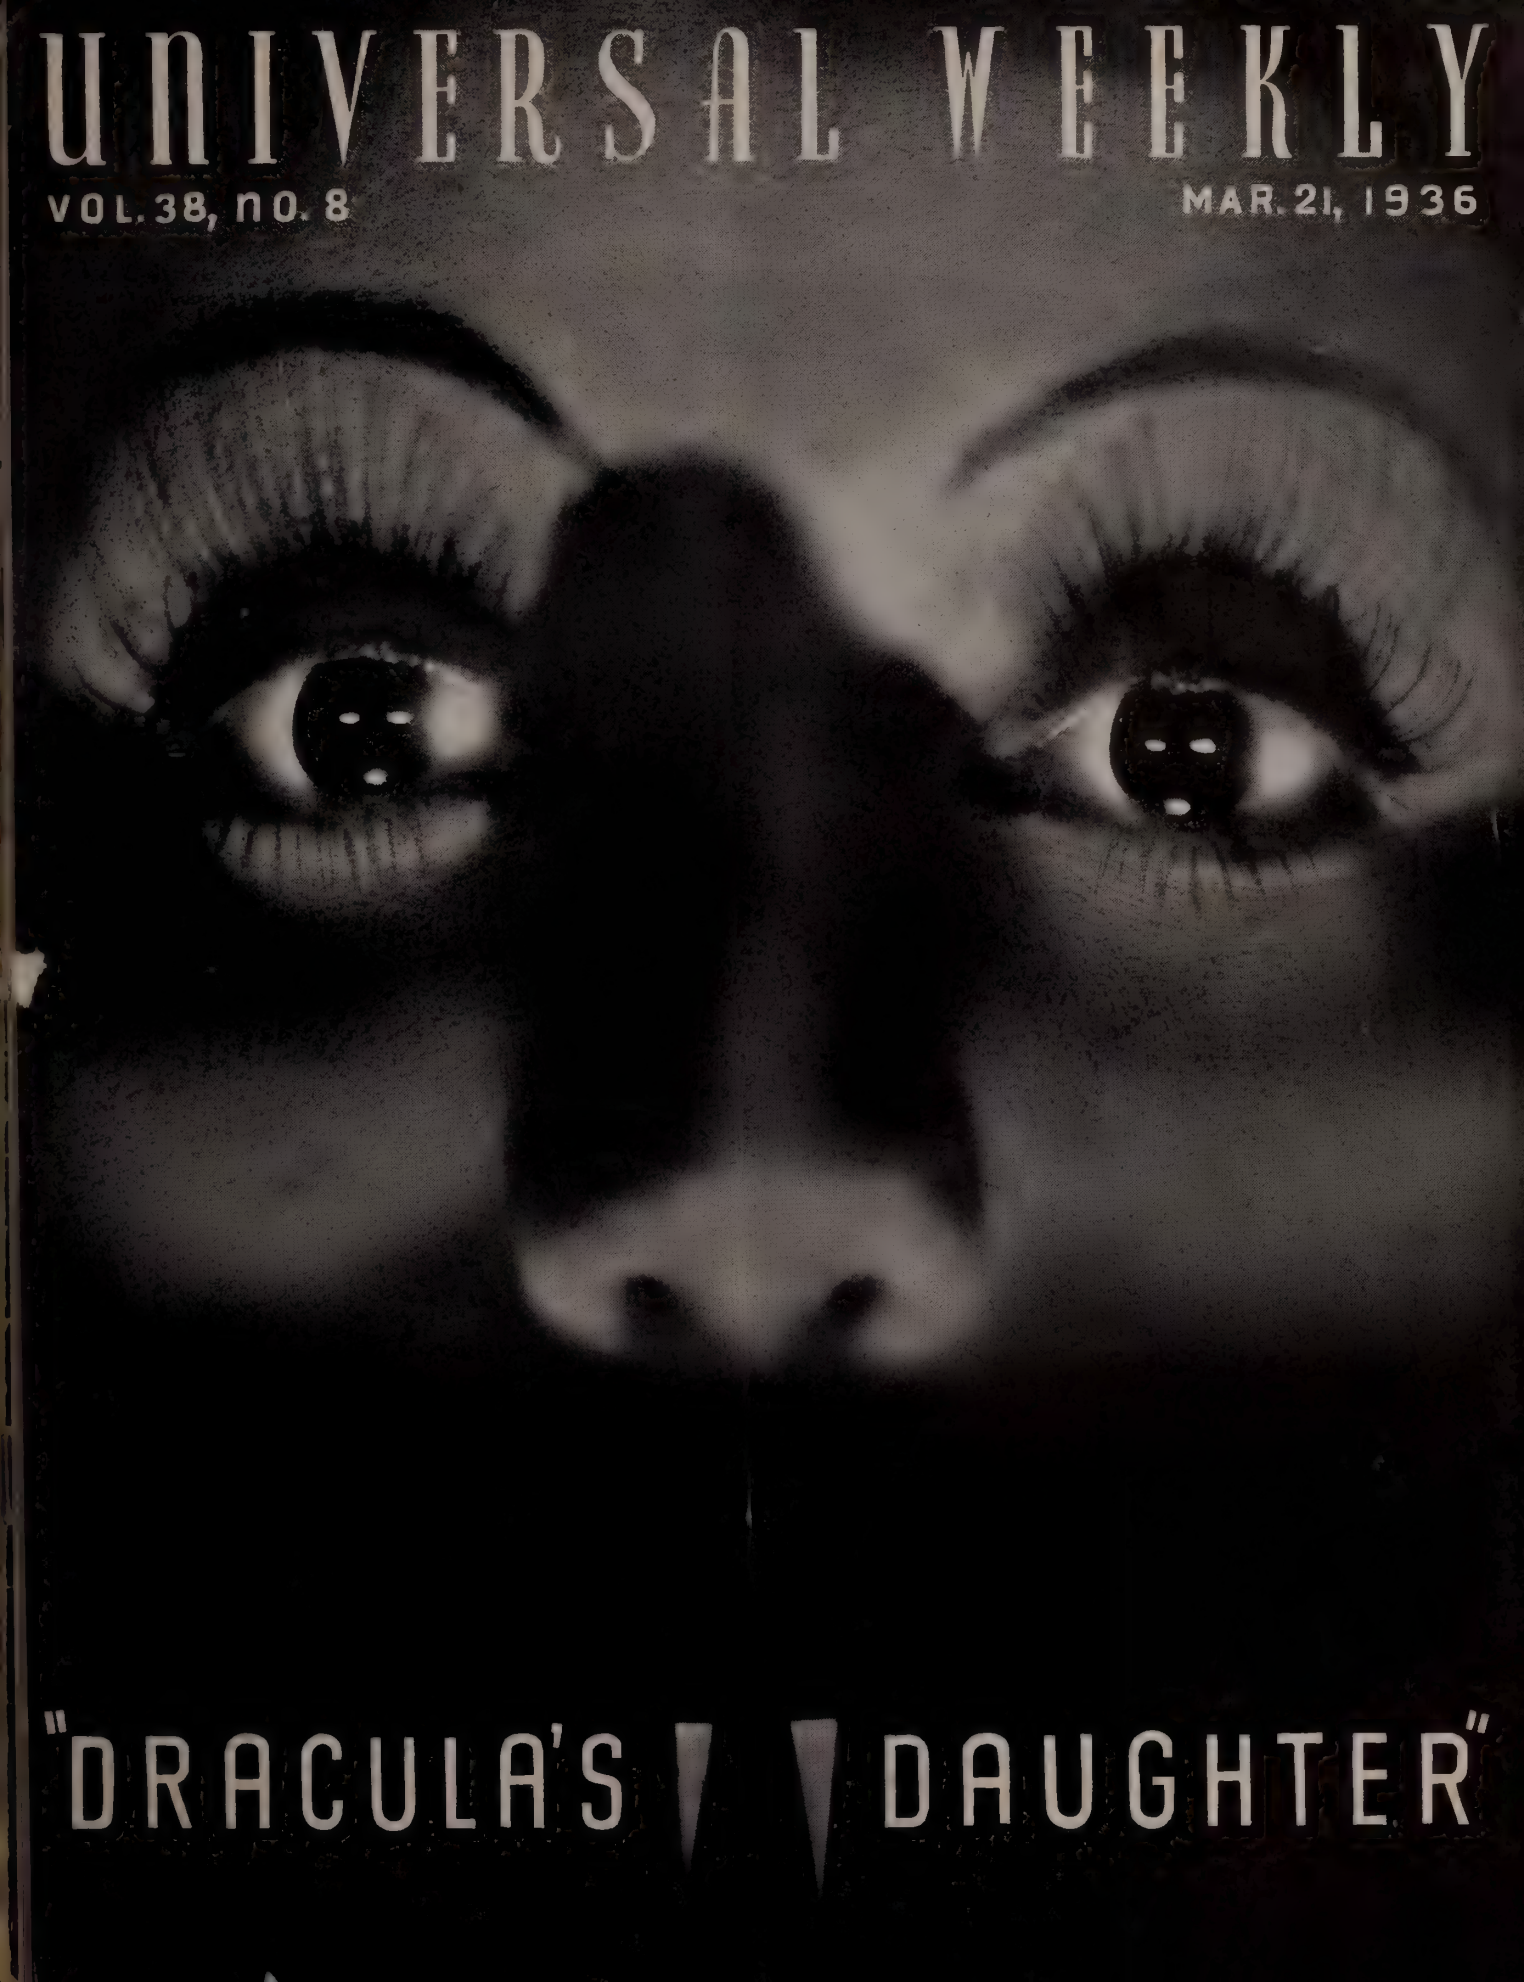
MENTONE MUSICALS

Printed in U. S. A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

VOL. 38, NO. 8

MAR. 21, 1936



"DRACULA'S DAUGHTER"

ANOTHER MENTONE MARVEL!

Starring

ARMIDA

Yost's Varsity Eight

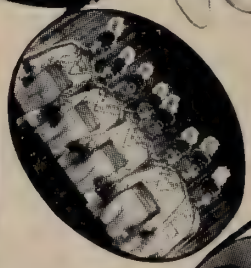
PETER HIGGINS

O'Donnell & Blair

WHITE & BURNS

The Robbins Family

UNIVERSAL
presents



Mentone MUSICALS

"PLAYING FOR FUN"

Montreal Roll of Honor

The following exhibitors in the Montreal Territory have used Universal Pictures continuously for

25 Years

EXHIBITOR	THEATRE	TOWN
G. Martineau	Royal	Valleyfield
I. Rosenbloom	Royal Alexandra	Lachine
R. L. Vallee	Premier	Sherbrooks
B. C. Salamis	Fairyland	Montreal
C. O. Auclair	Rex	Montreal

20 Years

O. E. Fontaine	Empire	La Tuque
A. Bey	Elite	Thetford Mines
A. Capandrites	Cameo	Montreal
D. Berzan	Centre	Montreal
J. Cytrynbaum	Perron Hall	Montreal
S. Athanasiou	Star	Montreal
F. Perras	Crystal	Montreal
Jos. Cardinal	King Edward	Montreal

15 Years

Famous Players Cndn Corp.	Capitol	Montreal
Famous Players Cndn Corp.	Palace	Montreal
Famous Players Cndn Corp.	Loew's	Montreal
Famous Players Cndn Corp.	Capitol	Quebec
United Amusement Corp.	Circuit of 21 theatres	Montreal
A. Rosenberg	Canada	Montreal
Mrs. G. Duclos	Rex	St. Jerome
E. Lavigne	Capitol	Aylmer

12 Years

Jules Duhamel	Passe Temps	Montreal
Ed. Beaumont	Classic	Quebec

10 Years

J. E. Gagnon	Francais	Quebec

8 Years

United Amusement	Granada	Sherbrooke

5 Years

C. O. Auclair	Hollywood	Montreal
Messrs. Brock & Laurie	Princess	Cowansville
Chas. Campbell	Noranda	Noranda
U. S. Allaire	Victoria	Victoriaville

3 Years

J. S. Dunning	Park	Verdun
J. S. Dunning	Century	Montreal
Leo Choquette	Starland	Waterloo

2 Years

J. P. Cloutier	Parisien	Louiseville

D. LEDUC, Manager

FLASHES FROM

No. 855 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

Every day I find on my desk a complete report of scenes shot in our studio the day before.

Just read a few of these flashes from the daily shots on "Flash Gordon" . . . the most unique serial ever made.

"The action in these rushes is all in the underground palace. This palace, being under water, must necessarily be water-proof. It was constructed accordingly.

In olden movie days it would have been dark and gloomy, but now it is built in the modern manner. Steel plates and rivets. Port-holes and bulkheads, as on a modern ocean liner. Lots of electric light, plenty of white paint, nickel-plated trimmings, beautiful cellophane drapes, fine rugs and other swell interior decorations. A real palace and no fooling.

"In another scene there is a scientific aspect with imposing laboratory equipment, electrical, astronomical, chemical, hydraulic and radio-active.

"Wonderful serial material.

THE RUSHES!

"Flash and his girl drop through the trap into some water in another scene and right away they are set upon by the shark men. These shark men (don't tell anyone) are a group of professional swimmers engaged specially for this submarine stuff. They are fine big fellows with perfect figures. They wear close-fitting silver helmets and nothing else but swimming trunks.

"It is amazing what a lot of preliminary work and study has gone into this serial, carefully figured out before it ever started. Brand new ideas in props and special scenery They all had to be made. They could not be bought.

"This serial is an entirely new thing and everything in it is new. Nothing like it was ever made before, either in serials or features."

I receive pages and pages like that every day about the best serial ever made. It is "FLASH GORDON."

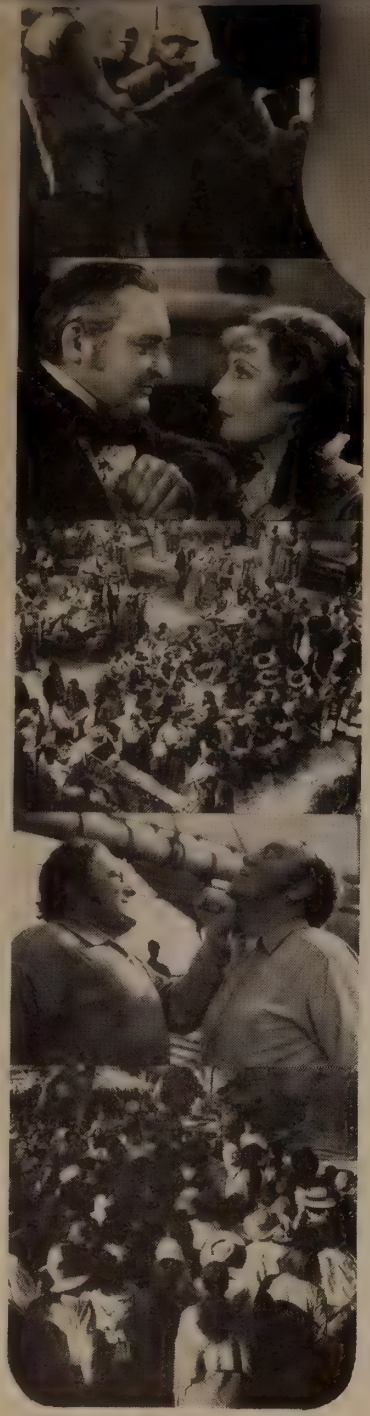
See it, no matter whether you ever played a serial or not.

Carl Laemmle

THE RUSH FOR PAPER IS ON! UNIVERSAL IS WORKING THE PRESSES DAY AND NIGHT TO MEET THE AVALANCHE OF ORDERS FROM EXHIBITORS IN EVERY PART OF THE COUNTRY! THAT'S THE TIP-OFF, GENTLEMEN! YOU COULD TELL IT FROM THE

THE POSTERS ARE READY!

POSTERS ORDERS ON "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" AND YOU CAN TELL IT FROM THE ORDERS ON "SHOW BOAT"! THEY KNOW IT'S TREMENDOUS AND THEY'RE GOING TO SMASH IT OVER FOR EVERYTHING IT'S WORTH – AND THAT'S PLENTY!



The MOST GLORIOUS of ALL EPICS!
SWEEP! POWER! MAJESTY! that's SUTTER'S
GOLD
The PICTURE THAT CAN NEVER DIE!

Concerning UNIVERSAL PICTURES

¶ Carl Laemmle, founder and president of Universal Pictures Corp., and J. Cheever Cowdin, president of Standard Capital Company today announced that operating control of the Universal Company's world organization and facilities have been sold to Standard Capital Company and Charles R. Rogers. In exercising an option which the purchasers have held for nearly five months the new group obtain control of 90 percent of the Universal Stock and will take over the active management of the entire Universal producing and distributing organization within twenty days.

●

¶ Mr. Cowdin has announced that with Mr. Laemmle's retirement, R. H. Cochrane, Vice President of Universal since its inception will become president of the parent corporation and Charles R. Rogers will become executive vice president in charge of production. William Koenig, recently signed, will continue as general manager of production and James R. Grainger, general sales manager will continue in that post.

¶ Mr. Grainger is now in Hollywood to confer with Mr. Rogers and Mr. Koenig relative to Universal productions for the balance of the current season and for 1936-1937. There will be no production recess at Universal City studios, rather an increase in production activity is planned.

●

¶ In retiring Mr. Laemmle stated that the harmonious and industrious cooperation given him by Mr. Cochrane during 30 years of Universal progression has made him extremely happy to learn that Mr. Cochrane will guide the future destinies of the company. Furthermore Mr. Laemmle has expressed complete sympathy and satisfaction with the management and has assured the new group that his services and counsel will be available at any time, wherever and whenever required and that his desire to be of help to the further advancement of the organization is in no manner affected by his relinquishment of active control of Universal.

✚ ✚ ✚

"Love Before Breakfast" Held at the Roxy

"LOVE BEFORE BREAKFAST," held over at Roxy. So well did the prospect of "Love Before Breakfast," after a swell advertising and publicity campaign, hit the fancy of New York that it was held over at the Roxy. With the exception of "The Invisible Man" and "Diamond Jim" it played to the greatest business at the Roxy in the last four years, on a Friday, Saturday and Sunday. It had to play an extra late show on Sunday night to accommodate the clamoring crowds.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, N. Y. City
Universal Pictures Corp.
Copyrighted 1936
(All Rights Reserved)
MAR. 21, 1936
Vol. 38 No. 8

Universal Borrows Lombard and Bennett

UNIVERSAL has made two great castings which insure the box office appeal of two of the coming pictures. These two stars are Carole Lombard and Joan Bennett. Miss Lombard, who is making such a hit in "Love Before Breakfast" at all theatres is going to star with William Powell in "My Man Godfrey." Joan Bennett will star with Joel McCrea in "Money from Heaven." McCrea has just scored a hit in "These Three."

DECLARES HOLIDAY FOR "SUTTER'S GOLD"

Governor Merriam of California Orders State-Wide Celebration in Honor of Universal's Production

GOVERNOR Frank F. Merriam has declared that California will celebrate "Gold Week" from March 25 to 31 in honor of "Sutter's Gold." All loyal sons of the Sunset Commonwealth are oiling up their old '49 stage coaches, polishing the mementoes of the period, brushing off the clothes their granddaddies wore, for a parade to commemorate the era when gold was discovered in California.

Governor Merriam's proclamation stating his reason for the celebration of "Gold Week," says in part: "The picture depicting the life and times of John A. Sutter will stimulate interest again in the customs and traditions that made early California history both colorful and romantic.

"Sutter's Gold," the production which involved extensive documentary research, skillful executive management and devoted individual and group performance, merits popular approval and support. It extols the personal qualities of the Western pioneers and at the same time praises the broad vision and courageous character of the founders and builders of California. It inspires devotion to the ideals of the men and women who laid the foundations of an enduring civilization.

" . . . This picture permits us to review the stirring events of one of the most striking and important periods in the story of American Progress and thereby confers a distinct honor upon our State.

"Accordingly, it is appropriate that we give official recognition to this event."

"Sutter's Gold" will be shown in Sacramento at the Alhambra Theatre on March 25.

The celebration will open officially at noon on March 25th at the Southern Pacific depot upon the arrival of their "Tenderfoot Special" which will bring the stars of the picture, news-

(Continued on Page 29)

Executive Department
State of California

Proclamation

¶ The Picture depicting the life and times of John A. Sutter will stimulate interest again in the customs and traditions that made early California history both colorful and romantic.

¶ "Sutter's Gold" the production of which involved extensive documentary research, skillful executive management and devoted individual and group performance, merits popular approval and support. It extols the personal qualities of the Western pioneers and at the same time praises the broad vision and courageous character of the founders and builders of California. It inspires devotion to the ideals of the men and women who laid the foundations of an enduring civilization.

¶ The presentation of the World Premiere of this picture permits us to review the stirring events of one of the most striking and important periods in the story of American Progress and thereby confers a distinct honor upon our State.

¶ Accordingly, it is appropriate that we give official recognition to this event.

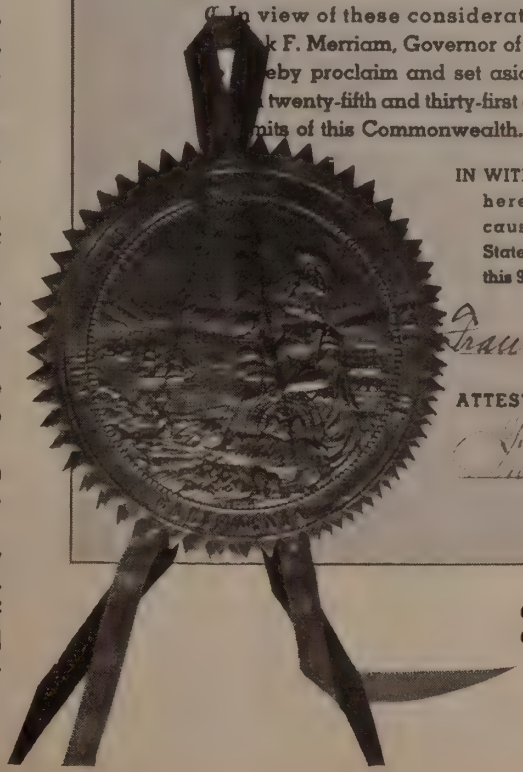
¶ In view of these considerations, now, therefore, I, [illegible]k F. Merriam, Governor of the State of California, [illegible]eby proclaim and set aside the period between [illegible] twenty-fifth and thirty-first as "Gold Week" within [illegible]nits of this Commonwealth.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 9th day of March, A.D., 1936.

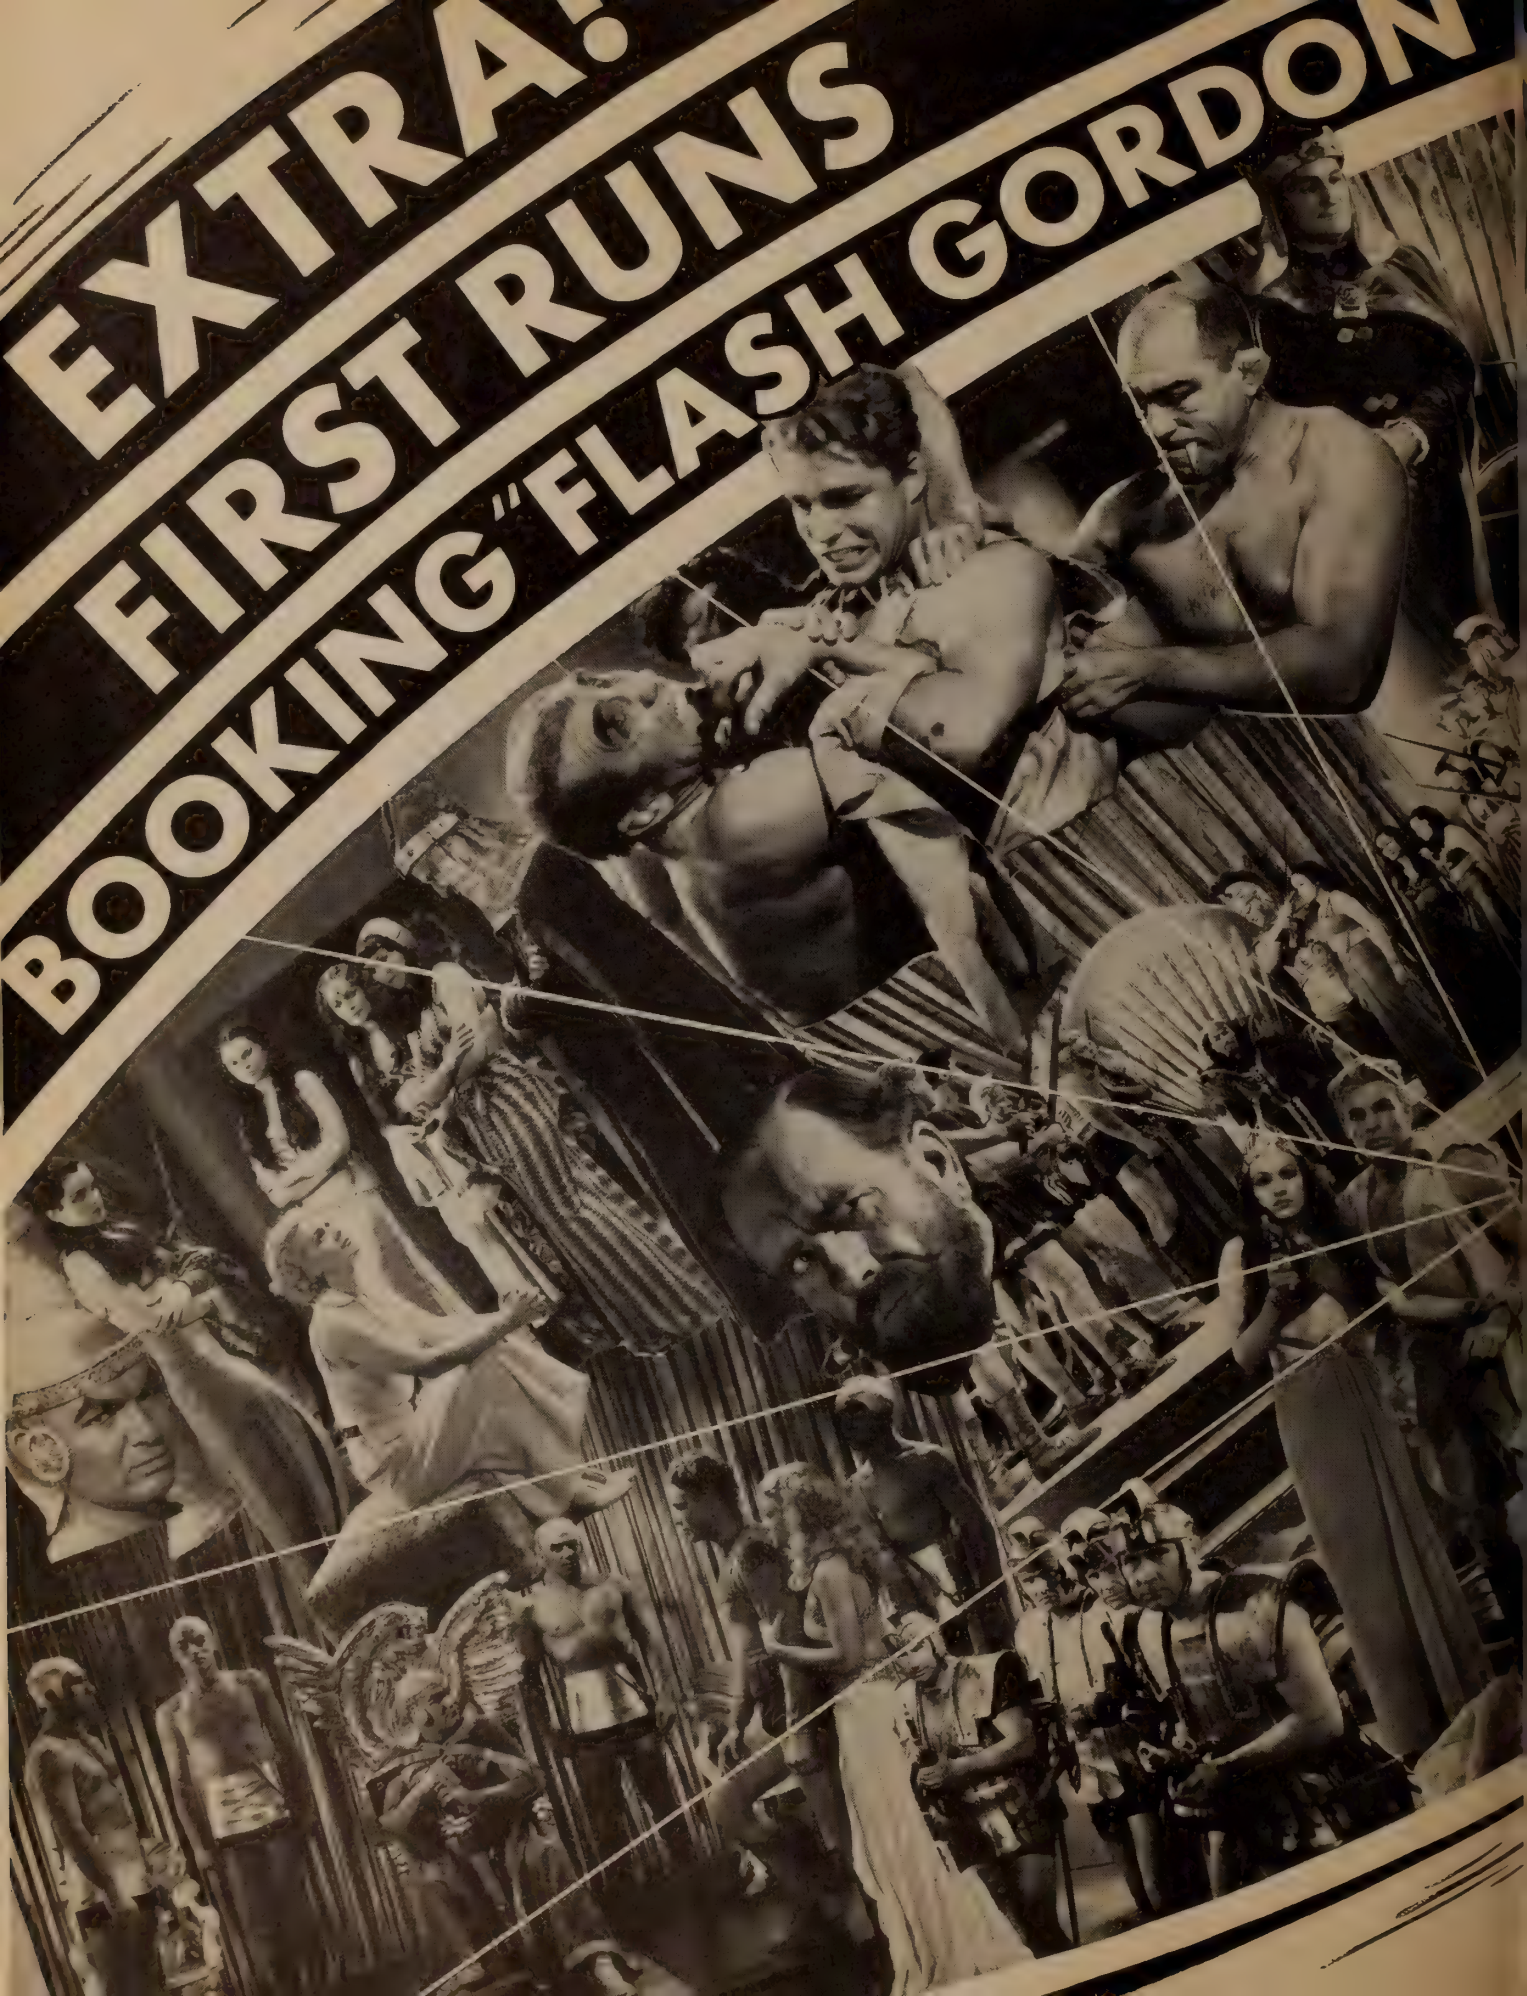
Frank F. Merriam
Governor of California

ATTEST:

[illegible]
Secretary of State



Copy of the executive order of the Governor, proclaiming California statewide celebration.



EXTRA!
FIRST RUNS
BOOKING "FLASH GORDON

Pantages and Hillstreet Theatres in Los Angeles! The Fox Theatre in San Francisco! And other houses following suit! For the first time in their history! For the first time in the history of serials!

UNIVERSAL'S
SERIAL SUPREME

FLASH GORDON

Starring BUSTER CRABBE as "Flash Gordon". With Jean Rogers, Priscilla Lawson, Charles Middleton. Based on Alex Raymond's King Features newspaper strip. Directed by Frederick Stephani. Produced by Henry MacRae.

DRACULA'S D TOPS

Gloria Holden in the title role of "Dracula's Daughter."

If anyone who saw "Dracula," that tremendous thriller which started a cycle of thrilling success and box-office profit, thinks that that was the tops in the horror business, just let them see the flaming, five hundred year old daughter do her stuff in Universal's sequel, "Dracula's Daughter!"

Marguerite Churchill, victim, in "Dracula's Daughter."

One of the creepy situations which makes "Dracula's Daughter" out-Dracula "Dracula"

FRIDAY the 13th marked the end of "Dracula's Daughter!" And a fitting day it was, too, to mark the close of the career of this devastating vampire, a worthy successor to Old Man Dracula. On that day, the last shuddering scene was shot and the relentless arrow put the quietus on Gloria Holden in the role of the beautiful she-vampire, in Universal's newest thriller.

But if Friday the 13th is supposed to bring with it broken mirrors and other omens of bad luck, they could not be found anywhere near the "Dracula's Daughter" sets. For no mirror of any description was permitted in any of the luxurious settings in which Miss Holden moved. The reason for this is that in accordance with the best tradition and folk lore, a vampire does not cast a shadow nor show any reflection whatsoever in a mirror. And in order to avoid any suspicion of the horrible truth of her vampirism, the daughter of Dracula shunned mirrors as scrupulously as she did wolfbane, garlic, the cross, and other vampire-proof devices.

Even the mysterious accident which befell director Lambert Hillyer on Friday the 13th, when a huge lamp toppled over on his head and sent him for two hours to the Universal City Hospital for treatment, did not add anything to the famous fatality tradition of "black Friday, For Hillyer was back on the set in time to finish the picture on schedule, and everyone is certain that "Dracula's Daughter" easily tops her old man, "Dracula."

Settings fully in accord with the strange mood of the story form the backgrounds for "Dracula's Daughter." Otto Kruger, Marguerite Churchill, Irving Pichel, and Edward Van Sloan play featured roles together with Gloria Holden.

Much of the action takes place in London and the mysterious moors near Whitby, and these scenes, taking place only at night, are blanketed in gloomy fog. There are the ruins of Carfax Abbey, where the body of Drcula is burned by his daughter on a funeral pyre and fearful shadows dance in the vaults of shattered masonry. Fog enshrouds London while a female vampire stalks her victims, intent on feasting on their blood.

AUGHTER
Her Old Man

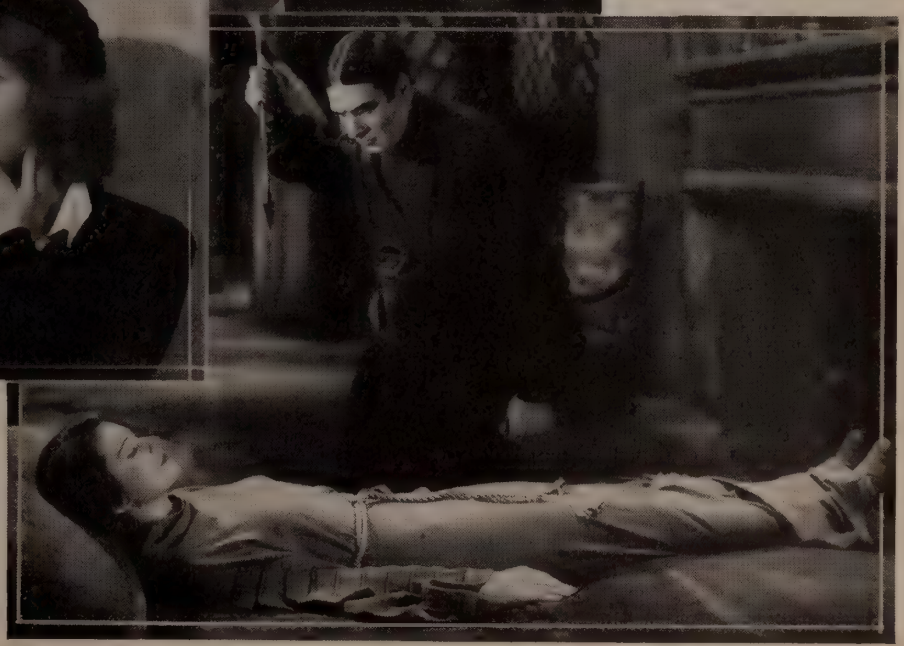
Many scenes are laid within and about the ancient castle of Dracula in Transylvania, a great structure which for 500 years has been falling in gradual decay. Dust and cobwebs are everywhere, and the atmosphere is literally hair-raising when human beings invade the stronghold of the vampires. There are scenes of ominous portent in the London apartment of the vampire, the strange "home" where no mirror is ever permitted and where the loathsome creature lives with her gaunt manservant. Other settings are of the normal world, but these, by contrast, only serve to make the others more forbidding.

"Dracula's Daughter," suggested by Oliver Jeffries, is based upon the Bram Stoker story, "Dracula's Guest," with screenplay by Garrett Fort. It was produced by E. M. Asher.

Otto Kruger, using a scientific mechanism to rescue his secretary from the vampire's clutches.

A test of wills between Gloria Holden and Otto Kruger, both of whom are featured in "Dracula's Daughter."

The method by which the vampire places her victims in her power.



A fitting end to the 500-year-old daughter of Count Dracula.

CESAR ROMERO

He is the actor who is in the highest demand of any player in Hollywood. His fan mail is enormous. He is the most eligible bacheler in the movie colony. To be seen with him at a cafe or at a dance immediately starts one of those tintillating, tantalizing, thrilling romantic rumors on which Hollywood scribes depend to sell the papers. Because the romantic Romero was seen twice with Adrienne Ames at the Bamboo Room, every feminine pen in Hollywood started to quiver.

ONE unfailing barometer of the public's taste as far as screen stars is concerned is the fan magazine. Just as soon as a barrage of inquiries is turned upon the editors and "answer men" of these books, which cater exclusively to the movie fans of the country, the particular actor who is the object of all these questions is definitely headed for stardom. Right now, the favorite of the fans is Cesar Romero. The home office of Universal is besieged with requests for photographs, biographical data and production news about Romero from the magazine editors, and "what color are his eyes, his hair, how tall is he, is he married, what is his favorite food?"—all these and many more questions were fired at them via the fan magazines whose readers want to know.

ROMERO HEA

Another barometer of popularity is a particular Hollywood institution. If an actor who is under contract to one studio is often sought by other studios for important roles, that is a definite, infallible sign that he is popular. They would always rather trust another studio's reactions than speculate on their own. And there are extraordinarily cogent reasons why this is a great barometer. Now it happens that of all the actors at Universal except Henry Armetta, the one most frequently sought by other studios, is Cesar Romero. They show him even more attention than the fan magazine editors.

And the object of these attentions is busily engaged at Universal City right now in another role which will bring him one step nearer that stardom which will be his inevitably. He has progressed by virtue of his splendid acting ability, his hard work and his striking appearance, to the point where he is more in demand as leading man by the various studios in Hollywood than any actor since the days of Valentino. And, incidentally, the one thing which both Romero and Universal fear most is that he may be typed as "the second Valentino." That boast or threat, whichever it is, has killed the chances of too many good actors.

Cesar Romero playing in "Diamond Jim" with Binnie Barnes, who had the role of Lillian Russell.

)ED for STARDOM

Although Romero is the perfect Latin type, tall, dark, handsome, he was born in New York City. He started his professional career, as Valentino did, by dancing in "Lady Do" and other musical comedies in New York. But his work on the screen has been of a serious, varied nature, and he will in no way be confined to the handsome-lover type of role, as was Valentino. Any role which requires deft, skillful handling and a vibrant personality may be given to Romero with the assurance that he will shine in the part. In the past, he has played the dashing, devilish, hero villain type, who does not always win the girl, although he does win the admiration of every girl in the audience. He has played with such stars as Marlene Dietrich in "The Devil Is a Woman," with Rochelle Hudson in "Show Them No Mercy," with William Powell in "Rendezvous," with Tibbett in "Metropolitan," with Ronald Colman in "Clive of India," Arliss in "Cardinal Richelieu," Leslie Howard in "British Agent," with Powell and Myrna Loy in "The Thin Man," and with Edward Arnold and Binnie Barnes in "Diamond Jim." His work with Carole Lombard in "Love Before Breakfast" was so clever and so bristling with the sparkle which was a perfect foil for Carole's own vivacity and magnetism, that Universal has decided to groom Romero for future stardom. He has something which the public applauds, and that "something" in his case is very definitely personal magnetism and acting ability.

The role upon which Romero is engaged now is with Edward Everett Horton in "Unconscious," and also prominent in the cast is Glenda Farrell. Here Romero will undoubtedly have an opportunity to play a lighter, more humorous part than any which has fallen to him before, but it will be another indication of this player's versatility and adaptability to a role. Watch Romero: he's headed for stardom.

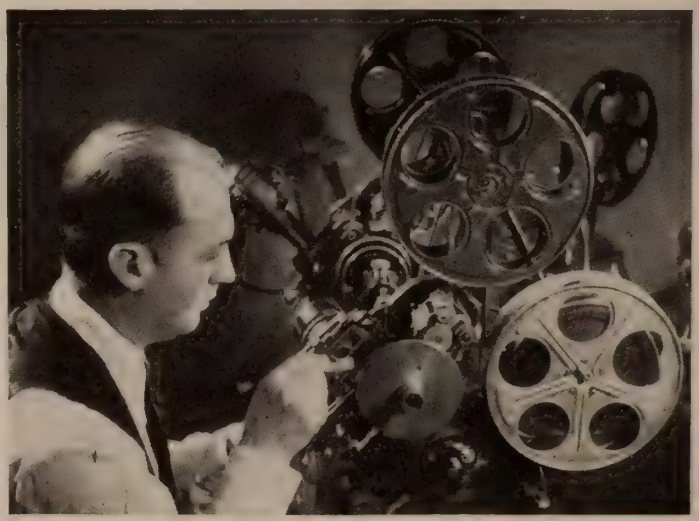
Here is that popular Romero, requisitioned by Paramount to play opposite Marlene Dietrich in "The Devil Is a Woman."

The latest role for Cesar Romero on the screens is that most delectable of comedy-dramas, "Love Before Breakfast" with Carole Lombard. Romero has a role which for most men would be regarded as difficult and unsympathetic. But Romero makes so much of it that all the critics mentioned him particularly and praised his work highly.

Here's The Way Cartoons Are Made

Here is the group which supplies the noise and sound effects which are such a necessary part of every cartoon. Walter Lantz with his expert corps of sound effect makers giving the appropriate dialogue and sound for the centipede in his remarkable pitching act in "Going Places" No. 18 with Lowell Thomas called "Cartoonland Mysteries."

ONE of the greatest tributes paid to "Cartoonland Mysteries," No. 18 in the series of "Going Places" with Lowell Thomas, was paid by W. G. Van Schmus of the Radio City Music Hall. Mr. Van Schmus has just booked "Cartoonland Mysteries" into the Music Hall and it will play there as soon as the next show is made up. The trade reviewers have all given this interesting and novel expose of the way moving picture cartoons are made, the highest of ratings.



Walter Lantz himself, one of the pioneers in cartoon making, examining the exposed film through the Movieola.

And no wonder the reviewers enjoy and recommend this interesting subject. Everyone who sees cartoons in moving picture theatres has wondered how they are made. No matter how much you are interested in the antics of Oswald the Lucky Rabbit, of Mickey Mouse, of Pop-Eye the Sailor, and all of the other cartoon characters, you wonder how they are made to move so naturally, and yet so grotesquely, how the sound is produced, recorded and synchronized, how the sound effects are obtained, and how the story is put together into one laughable and enjoyable piece of entertainment.

Lowell Thomas, in his trip to Cartoonland, answers all of the questions which people have been asking for years and years. He satisfies their curiosity. He tells you the methods that are adopted in one of the great moving picture studios. He introduces you to Walter Lantz, who is the creator and manipulator of Oswald the Lucky Rabbit, and by means of one of Oswald's releases, he gives you the low-down on how Oswald and all the other cartoon characters get that way. This is the first picture actually showing the public how all this is done. It is a public benefaction.

$TEP OUT!

You're durn tootin' you're going places with a company that can give you six socko productions in a row! And you know darn well that that company is none but — who made, and is making, these big box-office babies . . .

UNIVERSAL,

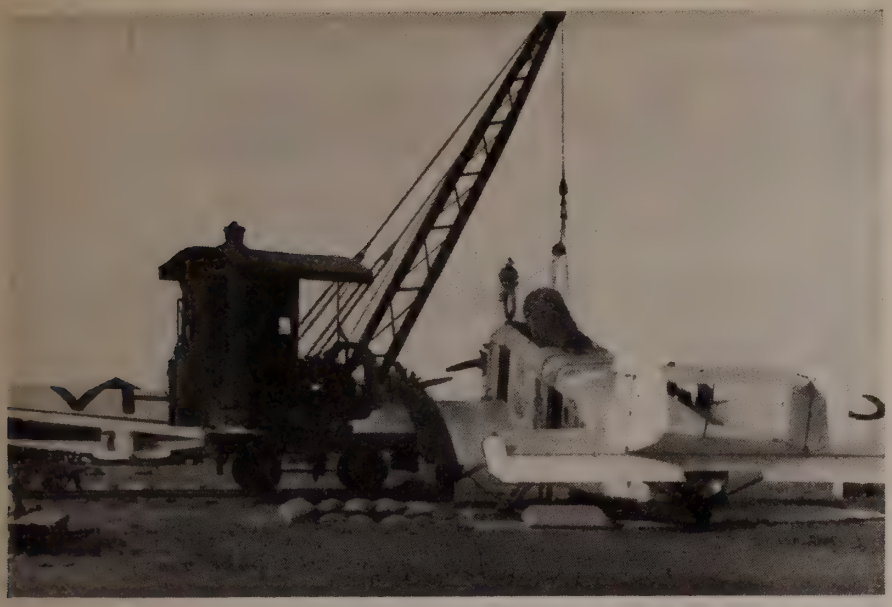
IRENE DUNNE
ROBT. TAYLOR
IN
"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION"
MARGARET SULLAVAN
JAMES STEWART
IN
"NEXT TIME WE LOVE"
CAROLE LOMBARD
PRESTON FOSTER
IN
"LOVE BEFORE BREAKFAST"
EDW. ARNOLD
LEE TRACY
BINNIE BARNES
IN
"SUTTER'S GOLD"
OTTO KRUGER
MARGUERITE CHURCHILL
IN
"DRACULA'S DAUGHTER"
IRENE DUNNE
ALLAN JONES
PAUL ROBESON
CHARLES WINNINGER
IN
"SHOW BOAT"

Look!..

Look at what "Magnificent Obsession" is still doing. Nine weeks in Minneapolis! Seven weeks in New Orleans! Five weeks in San Francisco! Four weeks in Chicago! Four weeks in Hartford! So far the biggest grosser, the longest runner of 1936! And now Universal follows it up with five more, among them such tremendous achievements as "Sutter's Gold" and "Show Boat." So step out, brother, step out with U-N-I-V-E-R-S-A-L !



"GUINEA GOLD"

A Splendid issue of "Going Places" with Lowell Thomas, Produced by Charles Ford. This One Is No. 19 of the Series.

A dredge which was brought in pieces by this same airplane helping to unload supplies which have been flown in from the coast to the richest of all of the new gold fields which are situated in savage New Guinea.

The natives of New Guinea, none of whom profits especially from the gold or ever knew it was there, watching the great droning birds bringing civilization to their age-old isolation.

NOW that "Sutter's Gold" has brought the subject of gold back into current conversation in the United States, Lowell Thomas in his most recent "Going Places" No. 19 takes the moving picture world to a place that very few white men have visited. It lies in the island of New Guinea and in the very central plateau of that island. This plateau is guarded by the most gigantic, heavily wooded and unapproachable mountain ranges and in addition by savages who have the pernicious habit of using poison arrows and blow guns. They don't know or like white men. They are utterly primitive, barbaric, cannibalistic and savage.

In the midst of this Pacific island, white men in some way discovered gold. As was the case in "Sutters' Gold,"it was an irresistible lure. White men just had to get there to get the gold. Lowell Thomas shows how they do it and, strangely enough, it is entirely by airplane. The huge hydraulic machinery was flown in entirely by airplane. The supplies are brought by airplane. The miners are brought by airplane. The gold is brought out by airplane to the harbor of Markham River.

Lowell Thomas not only shows you these supplies going in and the gold going out, but he shows you the natives, their war dances, their methods of hunting, primitive agriculture, their unique way of living, and the deadly way in which even the youngest boys can handle a blow gun.

Truly, "Guinea Gold" is almost as thrilling as "Sutter's Gold."

Reviews of "Guinea Gold" appearing in trade papers last week rate this subject very high in the series of "Going Places."

The dredge which brings up the guinea gold from the riverbed. Every bit of this machinery and building material was brought by airplane from the coast.

NO MATTER HOW

JIMMY STARR SAYS: "RATING: SPLENDID...PRODUCER EDMUND GRAINGER DESERVES A BOW FOR THE SMARTNESS OF PRESENTATION...CAROLE LOMBARD IS AT HER BEST, WHILE PRESTON FOSTER IS A CINCH TO HIT THE RAVE CLASS...WALTER LANG'S DIRECTION IS FIRST RATE.... 'LOVE BEFORE BREAKFAST' SHOULD BE ON EVERYBODY'S MOVIE MENU!"

WALTER WINCHELL SAYS: "I SAW SOME OF CAROLE LOMBARD'S NEXT PICTURE, 'LOVE BEFORE BREAKFAST,' AT THE ROXY PREVIEW. YOU CAN SAFELY LIST IT AMONG THE HITTRACTIONS!"

"LOVE BEFORE
IS STILL A SOCK

YOU LOOK AT IT!

BREAKFAST"

IN THE EYE!

A UNIVERSAL PICTURE

This is beautiful Doris Nolan who has just been signed by Universal from a Broadway Hit.

Lombard and Ryskind Added to Wm. Powell for "My Man Godfrey"

SO tremendously was everyone at Universal City impressed with the ability, beauty and courage of Carole Lombard, as exhibited in her Universal picture, "Love Before Breakfast," that it is no wonder they made every effort to get her for another picture. These efforts have come to a satisfactory conclusion. As a matter of fact, the outcome of the negotiations is thoroughly satisfactory not only to Universal but to Paramount because Universal again loaned Margaret Sullavan to Paramount in exchange for Carole Lombard.

Margaret Sullavan will play the disputed lead in "I Loved a Soldier," which greatly relieves Paramount's situation. Carole Lombard has been assigned to co-star with William Godfrey in "My Man Godfrey" which Carl Laemmle, Jr. will place in production on April 6th.

"My Man Godfrey" is a novel by Eric Hatch which was published serially in Liberty under the title of "Irene, the Stubborn Girl." The story is extraordinarly well adapted as a co-starring vehicle. Yesterday also Morrie Ryskind was engaged to write the screenplay, from which Gregory LaCava will direct.

It was Morrie Ryskind who wrote the screenplay for "Anything Goes," and in collaboration with George S. Kauffman, the screenplay for "A Night at the Opera." Also with Mr. Kaufman, he won the Pulitzer Prize for the stage play, "Of Thee I Sing." "My Man Godfrey" will be a fertile field for Ryskind's facile pen.

Universal Puts A Selections for F

DAN KELLEY, Universal's casting director, has just flown back to Hollywood from a New York raiding trip, where in competition with every big company, he scored two triumphs to add to the recent Chicago radio scoop.

The two New York players who have just signed long-term contracts with Universal are Doris Nolan and Jeanne Dante. Doris Nolan is the young actress who has just made a tremendous hit in "The Night of January 16th" at the Ambassador Theatre and whom every big company in the business tried to sign up. A. H. Woods made a trip to California to find just the proper actress for this role, and discovered Miss Nolan playing in "Daughter of Cain" in a small legitimate theatre in Hollywood. Miss Nolan opened in the Woods play in Los Angeles and when the play came to New York she was a sensation.

The other New York actress is Jeanne Dante, the ingenue who is now playing the role of Ann Hilton in "Call It a Day" at the Morosco Theatre. Miss Dante has a run-of-the-play contract with the producers of "Call It a Day" and therefore will not be able to undertake her first Universal picture until the play closes. Her first professional engagement was with Alice Brady in "Brass Ankles." Then came "Thunder on the Left," "Birthday," and after a summer of stock in Pawling, N. Y., she went into "Call It a Day," in which she is likely to be the outstanding hit

✚ ✚ ✚

John Wayne Signed for Eight Universal Adventure Pictures

UNIVERSAL has signed a contract with Trem Carr as the producer of a series of adventure melodramas starring John Wayne for next season's Universal line-up. There will be eight pictures in the series, which will be made at Universal City under the supervision of Trem Carr's associates as soon as Wayne is through with his present contract.

The first of the eight pictures will go into production at Universal City some time in July. The stories will be purchased by the Trem Carr organization. None of them will be western pictures, and the character of the productions will be entirely away from the kind of pictures that Buck Jones will make for the same Universal program.

ent On Youth In ure Movie Stars for some time to come, probably lasting the summer.

In addition to these two, Universal has a number of young players just starting in whom it has the utmost confidence. One is Marla Heath, a brunette with dark eyes who, from certain angles has a strong resemblance to Katherine Hepburn. She is one-quarter Cherokee Indian. Her name has just been changed to Marla Shelton. She has been cast in "Unconscious" with Edward Everett Horton. Another is Shaindel Kalisch, the young radio star and Chicago stage player who played for ten weeks in the Chicago run of "Girls in Uniform." She is very small, weighing only one hundred pounds, has dark hair and eyes and a gorgeous soprano voice. Her name will also be changed.

Another is Arthur Jacobson, whose name has just been officially changed for screen purposes to Henry Hunter. Both Hunter and Marla Shelton have been cast in support of Edward Everett Horton and Glenda Farrell in "Unconscious," which went into production at Universal City Monday under the direction of Arthur G. Collins.

These players together with Jean Rogers, Diana Gibson, Nan Grey and Priscilla Lawson, none of whom is over twenty-one years old, show the determined effort which Universal is making to train and produce screen stars from the younger generation.

✚ ✚ ✚

Will Direct 'What Price Parole'

LOUIS FRIEDLANDER, who directed Universal's highly praised "Stormy," has been engaged to direct "What Price Parole" by Universal. This story, by Robert Dillon and Sally Unterberger, reveals a number of the rackets that have developed behind the American system of paroling prisoners. It was written after six months of research in New York and California, with the stories of hundreds of parole records from which to draw examples. The story was written for the screen by Kubec Glassmon, well known for such stories as "Show Them No Mercy," "Public Enemy" and "The Crowd Roars."

"What Price Parole" will have an all-star cast and is expected to go into production on March 23rd at Universal City.

This is Jeanne Dante, the clever engenue who is still appearing in "Call It A Day" at the Morosco.

Joan Bennett Signed

UNIVERSAL has engaged Joan Bennett to play the role in "Money from Heaven," which had been originally planned for Margaret Sullavan, but which the famous Sullavan-Lombard swop between Universal and Paramount prevented. "Money from Heaven" is the title under which Louis R. Foster's story, "It's a Small World," will be released. It will go into production next Monday with Joel McCrea being co-starred with Joan Bennett, directed by Alfred E. Green. "Money from Heaven" has been adapted to the screen by Samuel Hoffenstein, E. E. Paremore and Doris Malloy, E. M. Asher, who produced "Magnificent Obsession" and "Dracula's Daughter," will make the production.

Joan Bennett has been advancing in popularity by leaps and bounds this year by the only process that makes stars profitable at the box-office,—good pictures. Some of her recent ones are "Two for Tonight," with Crosby, "Big Brown Eyes," "She Couldn't Take It," which just played the Center Theatre, and "13 Hours by Air," which will be released this month.

Joel McCrea was featured in "Splendor" and "Barbary Coast" with Miriam Hopkins, and with Claudette Colbert in "Private Worlds." He is also in a big role in "These Three," now at the Rivoli Theatre in New York.

BRING

it's alive!

MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION: Irene Dunne, Robert Taylor—Ladies and gentlemen, here is a picture. It's one of those occasional pictures that your patrons know in advance through the grapevine system that it's good. Get behind it with all the guns you have. We struck that state's worst blizzard with it but will bring it back soon as possible. Running time, 13 reels.—E. C. Arehart, Princess Theatre, Odebolt, Iowa. General patronage.

it BACK

YOU, TOO, PROBABLY PLAYED

"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION"

IN BLIZZARD WEATHER. BUT WHETHER YOU DID OR NOT—BRING IT BACK! GIVE IT YOUR LONGEST PLAYING TIME! MANY THEATRES ARE DOING IT! BECAUSE IT'S ALIVE! BECAUSE THERE'S STILL LOTS OF BOX-OFFICE SOCK IN IT! LOTS OF IT!

UNIVERSAL
BALANCES AME

TELEPHONE BLUES: Universal Comedies—Clever singing and dancing. Very good. Running time, two reels.—Rudolf Duba, Royal Theatre, Kimball, S. D. Small town patronage.

MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION: Irene Dunne, Robert Taylor—I haven't been reporting lately, but it would be an injustice to Universal if I passed this up. This is positively the finest and most satisfactory picture this season. I don't remember when (if ever) of hearing so many raves as they give on this and it's got one whale of a draw. Congrats and thanks to Universal, John Stahl, Robert Taylor, Irene Dunne and all. It's the surprise package of the year. Running time, 112 minutes. Played February 23.—Joe Hewitt, Lincoln Theatre, Robinson, Ill. General patronage.

MOTION PICTURE HERALD

ICA'S BOX OFFICES

MONKEY WRETCHES: Oswald Cartoon—This was certainly a dandy. These Universal cartoons are now the best black and white cartoons on the market.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Ia. General patronage.

GREAT IMPERSONATION, THE: Edmund Lowe, Valerie Hobson—Extraordinary. It is as much like reading a book, and Edmund Lowe along with the balance of the cast turns in a fine performance. —W. H. Brenner, Cozy Theatre, Winchester, Ind. General patronage.

HIS NIGHT OUT: Edward Everett Horton, Irene Hervey—Amusing program comedy that was well liked by our patronage. The dialogue is particularly clever and Horton turns in his usual character-ization of the befuddled timid soul.—J. W. Noah, New Liberty and Ideal Theatres, Ft. Worth, Texas. General patronage.

"SHOW BOAT" Ends With Smash Dances

The colorful major-domo of the show boat, played by Paul Robeson, in one of the costumes which was designed for him by the famous Doris Zinkeisen, standing at the entrance to the show boat. In next week's issue, Universal Weekly will tell you something about this Doris Zinkeisen, as well as all other fascinating things about Universal's 1936 "Show Boat"

UNIVERSALis filming one of the largest and most colorful spectacle numbers of "Show Boat" at Universal City studios this week. With more than three weeks of studio rehearsals behind them, 175 white and colored dancers, under the supervision of dance director Leroy Prinz are today facing the huge batteries of cameras for ensemble numbers which will take four days on the famous old "Phantom of the Opera" stage. With the shooting of these scenes, either Monday or Tuesday, the 1936 version of "Show Boat" will be finished.

The spectacular number is divided into two parts and traces the development of the American dance from the negro shuffle of the south through the various forms which it has influenced right down to modern times. The music used is "Gallivantin' Around," a new song written by Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein II and is introduced into the production by Irene Dunne, playing for the first time in her life in blackface.

Leading the choruses is Sunnie O'Dea, young Broadway dancer, who made her debut recently in "Strike Me Pink." In "Show Boat," she plays Kim, the daughter of Magnolia in Edna Ferber's story. The production was held up for several days because in her enthusiasm, Miss O'Dea turned an ankle and Director Whale was depending on her dance for a finale.

Among the 175 dancers are Ann Meril, who acted as stand-in for Helen Morgan during the famous night club entertainer's scenes as Julie, Nelcha Colt and Carla Laemmle. Stanley is also in the cast.

NEXT WEEK

The issue of March 28th will be devoted exclusively to the greatest production effort that Universal has made since "All Quiet on the Western Front," the Carl Laemmle, Jr. production of

"SHOW BOAT"

60 THRILLS

PER MINUTE

THE SHOCK CHAMPION

OF THEM ALL!

NEWARK (N. J.) LEDGER

'Camera Thrills' at The Branford

Carrying a content of 60 thrills to the minute, with Graham MacNamee, noted radio announcer and talking reporter of the screen supplying the rapid fire comments on the action, "Camera Thrills," Universal's new feature comes to the Branford Theater, today.

These thrills were collected by Universal cameramen from the four corners of the earth. Many of them were shot at risk of life or limb by these newsgatherers of the films while on the job covering revolutions, dangerous strike riots, fires and airplane crashes. Transporting such film after photographing, by ocean liner, fast plane, speed boat and automobile constituted a thrill in itself suitable for a chapter in the feature. The picture was prepared for the screen by Charles E. Ford, head of Universal Newsreel.

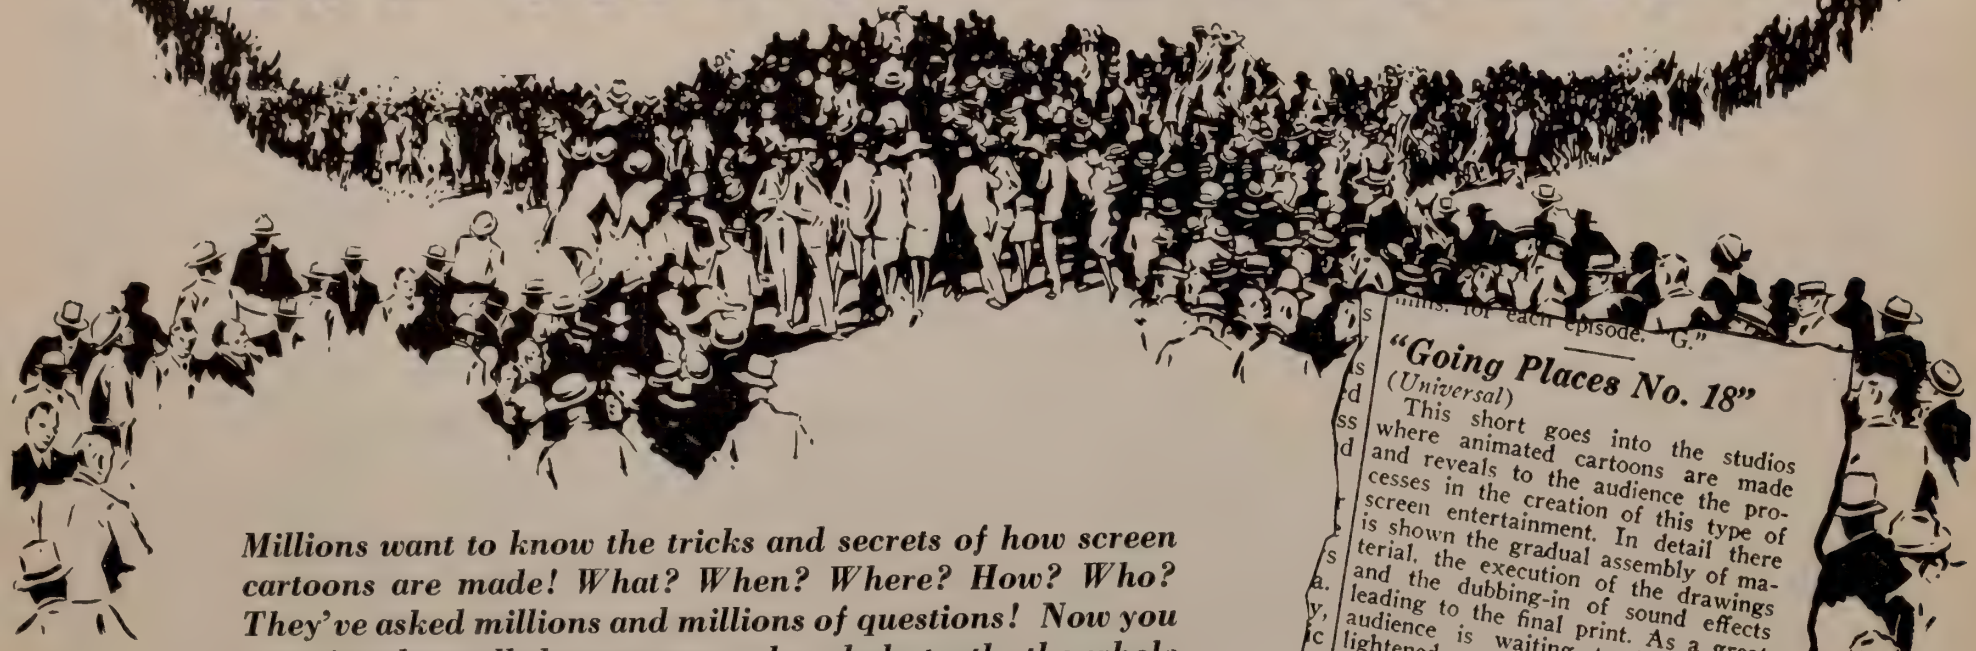
Among the most sensational scenes of "Camera Thrills" are the assassination of King Alexander of Jugoslavia and French Minister Barthou as they rode through the streets of Marseilles, the burning of the steamship, Morro Castle, the Chicago Stockyards fire, the fighting in the San Francisco strike, where cameramen were forced to wear bullet proof vests and steel helmets in braving the danger zone, and testing of bullet proof glass

CAMERA THRILLS

WE WANT TO KNOW!

WE WANT TO KNOW!

WE WANT TO KNOW!



Millions want to know the tricks and secrets of how screen cartoons are made! What? When? Where? How? Who? They've asked millions and millions of questions! Now you can give them all the answers – the whole truth, the whole sensational, exciting truth – and clean up while doing it!

...ninutes for each episode. "G."

"Going Places No. 18"
(Universal)

This short goes into the studios where animated cartoons are made and reveals to the audience the processes in the creation of this type of screen entertainment. In detail there is shown the gradual assembly of material, the execution of the drawings and the dubbing-in of sound effects leading to the final print. As a great audience is waiting to become enlightened on this subject, this should be found interesting by all. Lowell Thomas delivers an informative and interesting narrative.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY

"CARTOONLAND MYSTERIES"

BOOKED BY RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL!

GET IT BY ORDERING "GOING PLACES" No. 18!

Declares California Holiday for "Sutter's Gold"

(Continued from Page 9)

paper representatives from both the Bay District and Southern California, and many other motion picture executives. The reception at the depot will be conducted by the Junior Chamber of Commerce and will be staged in typical 1849 style with everyone attired in pioneer garb. Brief messages of welcome will be given by the Governor, Mayor, and City Manager.

Following the ceremonies at the depot, the visitors will be placed in stage coaches, wagons, and on horses for a parade which will pass up K street to 12th street and thence to the Hotel Senator.

All of the major transportation companies are advertising the "Sutter Gold Days Celebration" at all of their points of service adjacent to Sacramento. The Southern Pacific Company has already printed and is now selling a special "$10.00 All-Expense Ticket" throughout the Bay District.

Early in the evening another larger parade will pass through the business district and out to the Alhambra theatre for the premiere. Several prizes are to be offered for the best floats, costumes, etc., which are entered in this evening parade. A special entertainment program in front of the theatre will be offered upon the arrival of the parade at that point.

Immediately following the premiere showing of "Sutter's Gold" at the Alhambra, all who wish will be invited to attend the "Sutter's Gold Days Ball" at the Hotle Senator. Present plans call for Governor Merriam and Binnie Barnes, the feminine star of the picture, to lead the grand march at this ball.

The entire program of events throughout the day will be photographed in sound by the newsreel cameramen and will be shown in all parts of the country during the two weeks immediately following. This celebration will act as an excellent 'opening gun' for the great celebration planned for 1939 at which time California will celebrate its 100th anniversary.

Portrait of Johann August Sutter, by Buchser, in the Musee des Beaux Arts, in Soleure, Switzerland, reproduced from a photograph of the original in the possession of Sutter's granddaughter, Mrs. M. Van Wolbeck. This famous painting hung in an obscure Inn in Switzerland for nearly 50 years before it was discovered under a thick layer of dust and removed to the Soleure museum.

An enlarged reproduction of this famous painting of the famous Californian is being prepared at Universal City. It will be presented by Mr. Laemmle to Governor Merriam at the premiere of "Sutter's Gold" at the Alhambra Theatre in Sacramento. Eventually it will hang in the permanent museum which the State of California established in the old Sutter Fort and which is capably and hospitably presided over by Henry C. Peterson.

WINS $50.00

A. E. Thompson, projectionist of the Ritz Theatre of Hillsboro, Texas, has made a suggestion in acordance with Carl Laemmle's oft-repeated request. Mr. Laemmle is willing to pay for any suggestion made by a projectionist, a theatre manager, or operator, who has an idea which can be utilized and which will tend to improve either Universal Pictures or pictures in general. Mr. Thompson has made such a suggestion, Mr. Laemmle has accepted it, and has sent Mr. Thompson a check for fifty dollars.

Screen Stars Back Universal Championship Basketball Team

IN recognition of their winning the A. A. U. basketball championship of Southern California with a record of 20 straight victories the Universal Pictures All-Stars are now competing in the National A. A. U. championships in Denver under the sponsorship of several well known screen personalities. On Wednesday, in their second game they defeated the strong Penn A. C. of Philadelphia by 32-27.

The Universal team, third in the 1935 national titular race has a chance for a trip to the Olympic games in Berlin this year. The players are all studio employees. Their sponsors are, in addition to manager, Jack Pierce, Karloff, Irene Dunne, Carl Laemmle, Jr., Buck Jones, Director James Whale, Edward Everett Horton, Binnie Barnes, Cartoonist Walter Lantz, Dance Director LeRoy Prinz, Producer E. M. Asher, Producer Fred S. Meyer, Curley Robinson and General Manager William Koenig. It is the strongest team on the west coast.

Carrying the blue and gold of Universal studios and the Oswald rabbit mascots to the Denver championships are Frank Lubin (1935's high scoring player of the National Tournament). Carl Knowles, Carly Shy, Art Mollner, Duane Swanson, Don Piper, Sam Balter and Lloyd Goldstein, all former college basketball stars. Jim Needles of Loyola has served as coach for the Universal team.

* * *

Governor's Lady Wears Sutter's Gold

WALTER STUNZI of the Stunzi Silk Company is the first dress goods manufacturer to dye silk in one of the season's newest and most fascinating colors, Sutter's Gold. This color was devised by Mme Margaret Hayden Rorke and it was inspired by Universal's picture depicting the romantic history of General John A. Sutter.

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY SHOWMANSHIP SECTION

A DIGEST OF THE BEST EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

EXPLOITATION NEWSREEL OF THE WEEK

Out in Omaha, Ted Emerson, Manager and Charles Schlaifer, p. a. of the Omaha Theatre, gave the "Magnificent Obsession" safety driving stunt a new twist and netted their campaign a nice break. A tie-up was made with the Bee-News, top notch newspaper, advocating safer driving. Each day a number of their reporters gathered the license numbers of motorists who carefully observed the traffic rules, and after eliminating duplicates, their names were obtained from the police department and published in the columns of the newspaper.

* * *

By arranging a special preview of "Magnificent Obsession" for Cleveland's ministers, Al Beckerich and Mort Goodman, manager and p. a. of the Hippodrome Theatre received their wholehearted thanks, praise and cooperation. A number of the ministers used the theme of the picture as the basis of their weekly sermons, their church's weekly calendars carried notice of the showing.

* * *

L. M. Threet, Manager, Texan Theatre, Lufkin, Texas, following a pressbook suggestion, built this venetian blind shadow box on "Magnificent Obsession" in his lobby three weeks in advance of play date. A small motor animated the display, changing it from position one to two. During the run, the display was moved to a prominent drug store window.

SPRECKELS GAGS "LOVE" IN LOBBY

Realistic Display Kids Marriage Problem

THIS inexpensive, unique lobby stunt, engineered by Manager Al Sobler and Publicity Manager Marian Gronaw, for "Next Time We Love" at the Spreckels Theatre, San Diego, drew much attention and thought from patrons. The young man, wearing the apron tended the life-like doll in the baby crib and at the same time read "The Modern Parent." The sign read: What Happens To Romance—When the Wife Becomes the Breadwinner and the Husband Becomes the House-Maid? Copy then ran into details of the Ursula Parrott story on which "Next Time We Love" is based.

Sobler's comprehensive campaign also included a substantial boost in the newspaper advertising space, posting of 24-sheets, distribution of bookmarks through the public and circulating libraries, and house to house distribution of accessory roto heralds.

National Ads For 'Next Time We Love'

Maxwell House Coffee Tie-up

AS a campaign aid for "Next Time We Love," Universal has completed a national tie-up with Maxwell House coffee. An offstage scene showing Margaret Sullavan, the star, and Edward H. Griffith, the director, drinking a cup of Maxwell House coffee was used as the basis of the display. The full page ad shown, reproduced in four colors, was placed in the American Weekly Magazine, which reaches three million homes, and in the colored sections of numerous other top rank newspapers. To assist theatres in landing grocery windows when they play the picture, Universal has also made this photo one of the set of accessory tie-up stills, available at all exchanges.

Dallas News Ties Up To "Great Air Mystery"

THE greatest newspaper in the Southwest has joined the ranks of the many outstanding publications co-operating with Universal Pictures in the exploitation of the "TAILSPIN TOMMY" chapter play "THE GREAT AIR MYSTERY." The tie-up was engineered by Louis Charninsky, ace showman of the Capitol Theatre, Dallas, Texas. "TAILSPIN TOMMY" has been a feature of the Dallas Morning News since its inception.

In return for trailer run on the Capitol Theatre screen, telling audiences to follow the exploits of "TAILSPIN TOMMY" in the Dallas Morning News, the paper gave wide publicity to the serial and underlined the cartoon with healthy sized ads telling the readers to see the serial at the Capitol Theatre. A fine tie-up for the newspaper as well as the theatre.

SAN FRANCISCO — Hal Neides wins more exploitation honors for his campaign on "THE INVISIBLE RAY" at the Orpheum Theatre, San Francisco, Calif. In addition to a nice set of newspaper ads, Neides gave the picture an extended advance boost in his lobby and on the screen. Here is pictured one of Neides stunts. An ordinary house spot-light was tricked up with a sheet metal housing and some weird paint to catch the eye. A magenta gelatin added mystery to the light which was supposed to represent the Radium X-ray. The signs added to the intrigue.

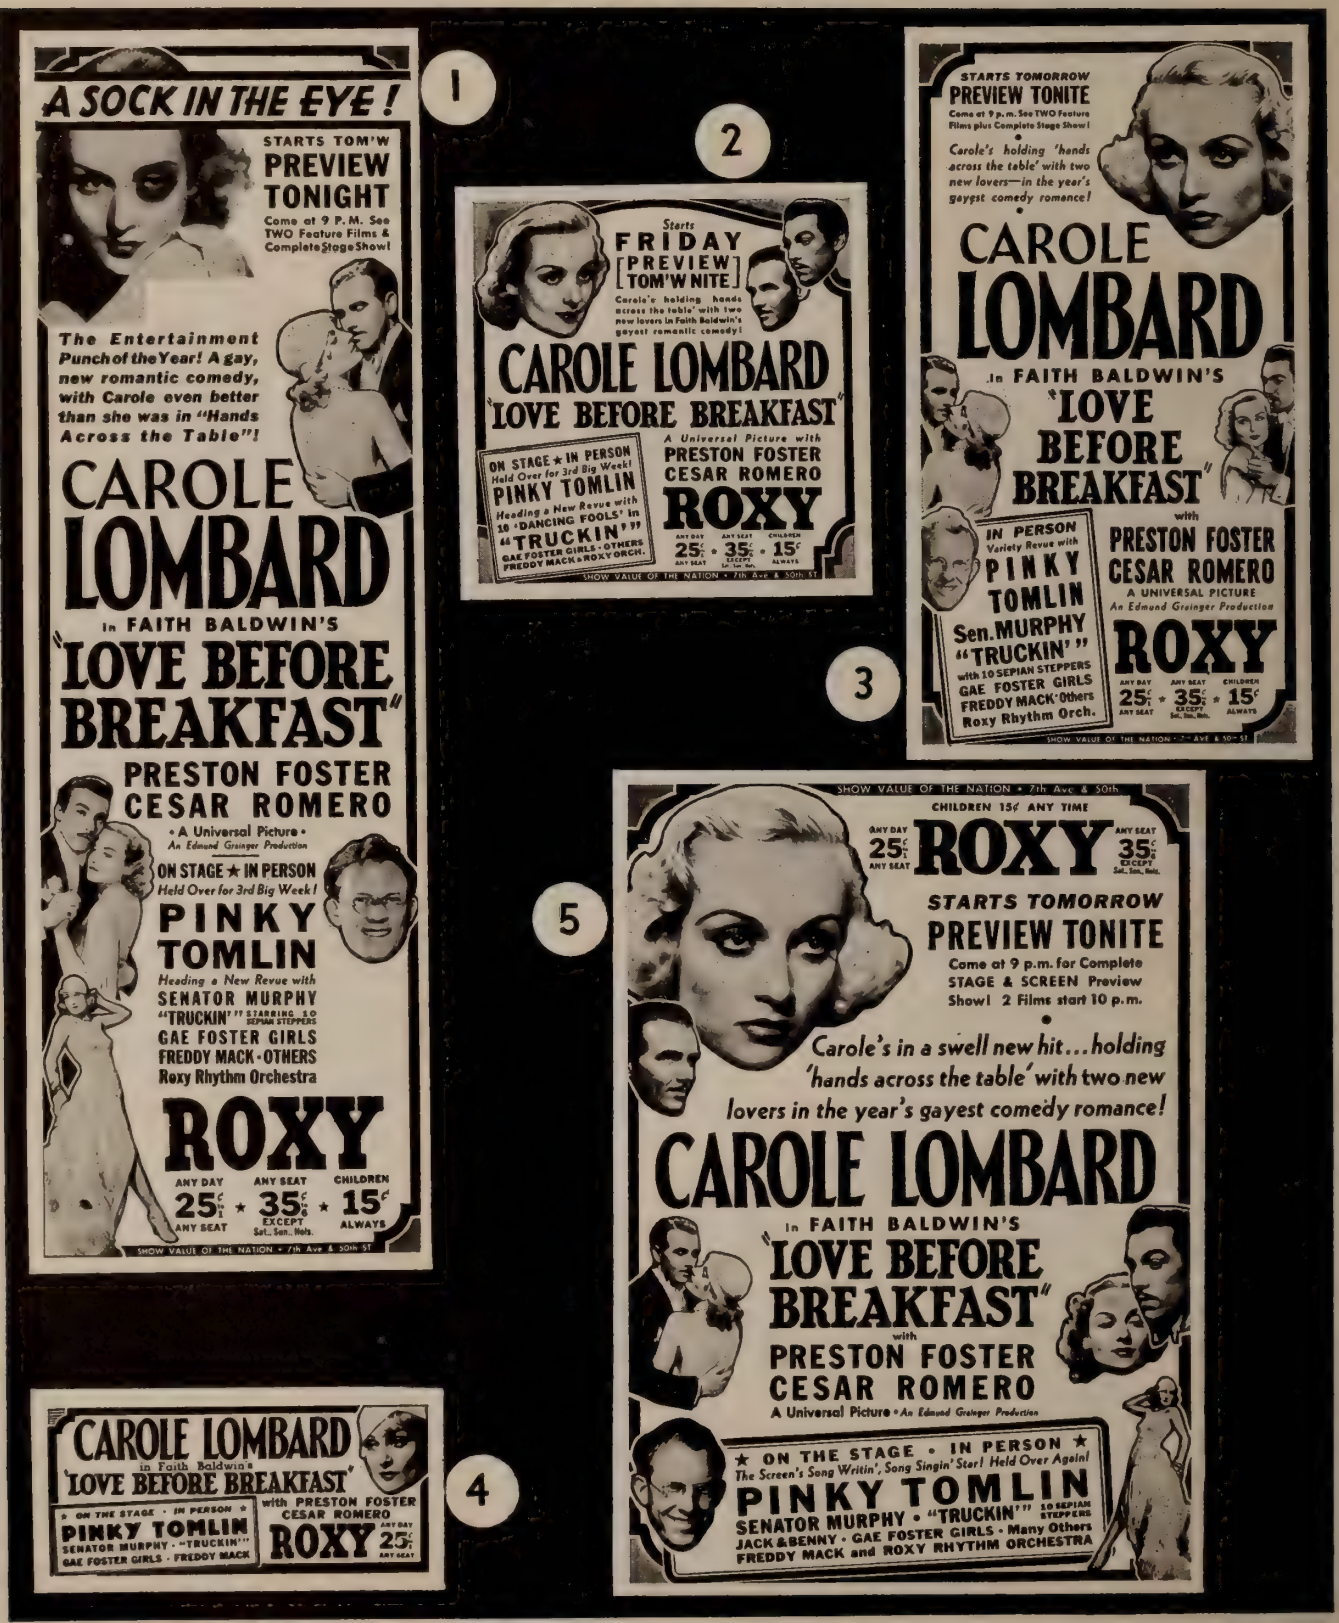
CANTON—All Canton, Ohio, trolley cars were bannered with the news that "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" was showing at the Alhambra Theatre. "Doc" Elliott used the cars as one item in his city-wide boost of this great picture. A preview for a special group of people was held, to which officials and employees of the trolley lines were invited in appreciation of their assistance. In addition to the banners on the side, jumbo window cards were used on front and back of the cars.

The local ministers, also invited to the preview, were much enthused with the picture, and in return made mention of it during the weekly service.

JERSEY CITY — This beautiful arch display on "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" is the handiwork of the crack art staff of the Stanley Theatre, Jersey City, N. J., under the direction of R. Keuhn, manager, and Bob Deitch, publicity manager. The background of the metallic letters was of rich black velour.

Radio dramatization of picture was used on local station two days before the opening.

PUNCHY ROXY, N. Y. ADS BY MORRIS KINZLER



(1) Two column x 13¼" (2) Double column x 4½" (3) Two column x 8 (4) Two column x 2" (5) Three column x 9"

ALWAYS THERE FIRST!

WHEN IT HAPPENS

WHERE IT HAPPENS

UNIVERSAL NEWSREEL

with

GRAHAM McNAMEE

From

UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.

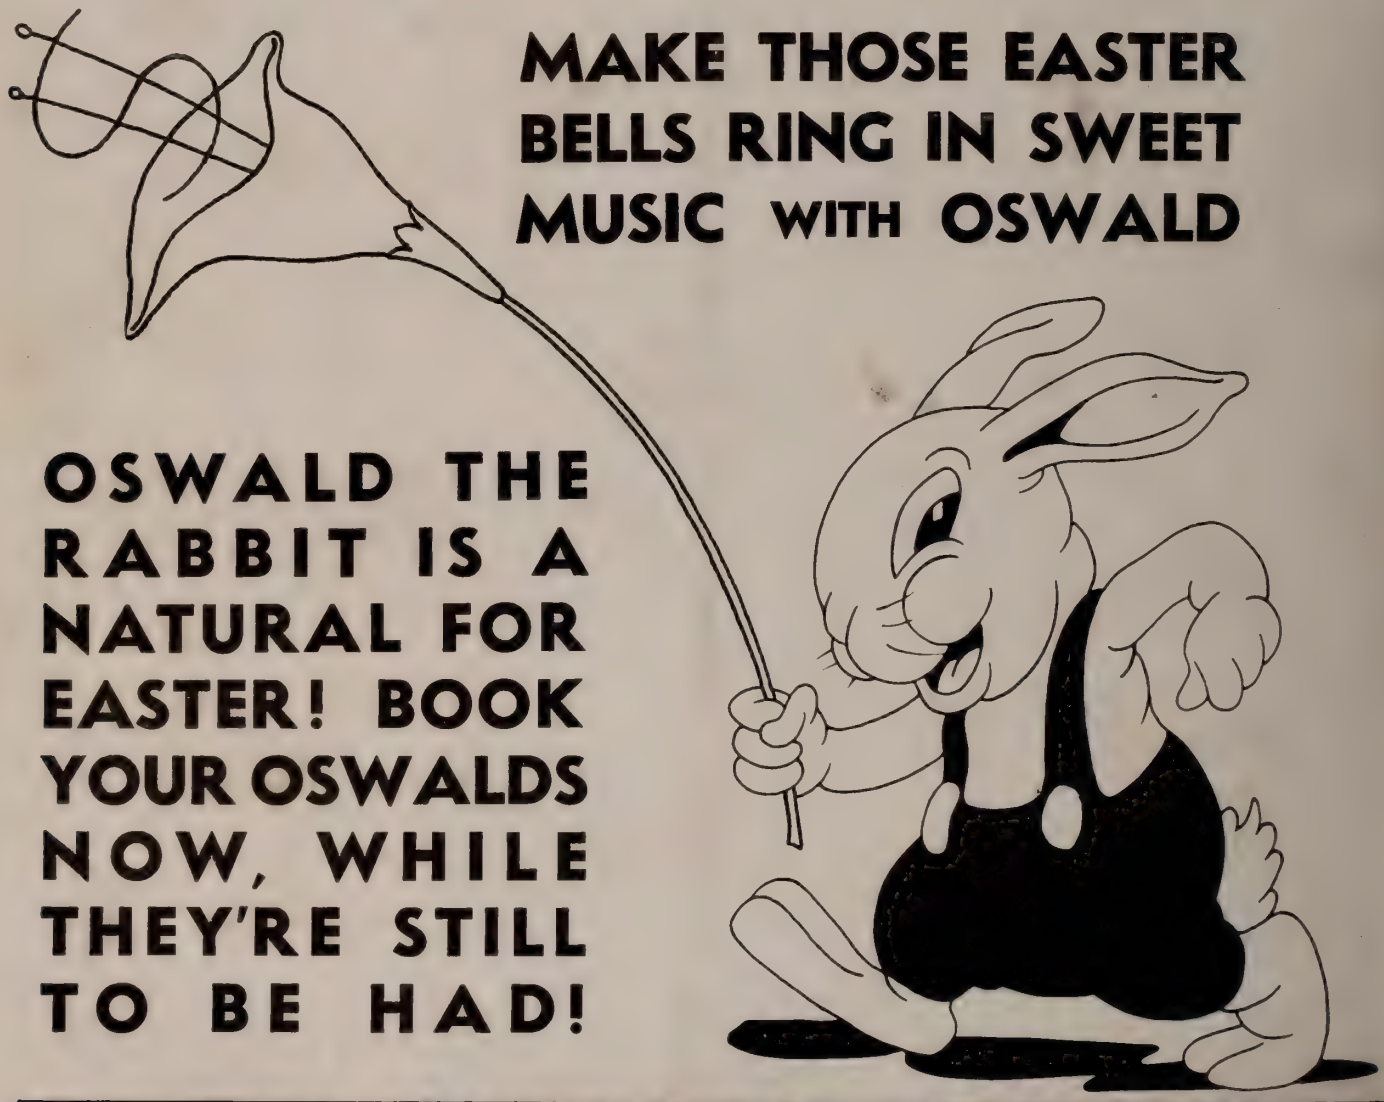
ROCKEFELLER CENTER

NEW YORK CITY

MANAGER
BAY SHORE THEATRE
BAY SHORE L I N Y

Sec. 562 P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
Paid
Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

MAKE THOSE EASTER BELLS RING IN SWEET MUSIC WITH OSWALD



OSWALD THE RABBIT IS A NATURAL FOR EASTER! BOOK YOUR OSWALDS NOW, WHILE THEY'RE STILL TO BE HAD!

OSWALD The LUCKY RABBIT

Printed in U. S. A.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
VOL. 38 APRIL 25, 1936 NO. 12

HERE COMES THE SHOW BOAT!

Irene Dunne and Allan Jones in "SHOW BOAT"

AFTER PRISON—WHAT?

It's coming—the Big House Drama with the Powerhouse Punch!

ROLL OF HONOR

The following exhibitors have used Universal Pictures continuously Since in Business

FAMOUS PLAYERS CAN CORP. LTD—Vancouver territory.

ROYAL THEATRE	VANCOUVER, B. C.	Mr. W. P. Nichols
REX THEATRE	VANCOUVER, B. C.	Mr. W. P. Dewees Amalgamated Theatres, Ltd. Owner)
ILO ILO THEATRE	CUMBERLAND, B. C.	Mr. E. W. Bickle
EDISON THEATRE	NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C.	Mr. F. L. Kerr
LONSDALE THEATRE	NOR. VANCOUVER, B. C.	Mr. R. J. Dawson
OPERA HOUSE	OCEAN FALLS, B. C.	Pacific Mills, Ltd. Mr. T. W. Bourns Pacific Mills, Ltd. Vancouver, B.C. (Buyer)
PATRICIA THEATRE	POWELL RIVER, B. C.	Mr. Myron C. McLeod
PROVINCE THEATRE	REVELSTOKE, B. C.	Mr. H. W. Cooper
RIALTO THEATRE	LADYSMITH, B. C.	Mr. Jas. Haworth

For Ten Years

BRITANNIA THEATRE	BRITANNIA BEACH, B. C.	Barbara Theatres, Ltd. Mr. T. D. McLellan

For Three Years

FRASER THEATRE	VANCOUVER, B. C.	Mr. A. Young
Now managed by son		Mr. L. Young

R. A. SCOTT, Mgr.

GRAND

Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk Written by The Motion Picture Daily

"Show Boat" is musical drama certain to thrill. Lavishly, but tastefully, produced; intelligently directed, its acting splendid, the picture impressively combines entertainment and commercial essentials completely assuring class-mass popularity.

The motivating story is deeply human in character, continually keyed to stir tender and sympathetic emotions as well as a love drama hitting right at the heart. Its music, particularly Paul Robeson's singing of "Ol Man River," was received by a preview audience with thunderous applause and actually is an artistic masterpiece. The melodies rendered by Allan Jones, Irene Dunne and Helen Morgan, in addition to the charm of the score and the choral features, potently embellish the appealing plot power.

The scope of modern production technique, allowing the fullest in effects, faithfully preserves and accentuates the full qualities of the original story by Edna Ferber. The script and lyrics by Oscar Hammerstein, 2nd, and the music by Jerome Kern, plus the cast selections by Carl Laemmle, Jr., the producer, placed in the hands of James Whale, the director, afford opportunity for the greatest effort in his career.

His handling extracted the full values which the vehicle provided. As the picture was shown here, and accepting a preview audience's reactions as a gauge, everyone associated with the production will share in the credit of participating in what is probably the most important Universal production in years.

GROSSES

The preliminary sequences portray gaiety, color, glamour and excitement of the arrival of Charles Winninger's showboat. The dramatic trend enters as Donald Cook thrashes Arthur Hohl for trifling with his wife Helen Morgan. Preluded by Robeson's rendition of "Ol' Man River" to hint further at dramatic contrast, romance enters with a tuneful meeting of Jones and Miss Dunne.

Convincing performances, contributed by Miss Dunne, Jones, Winninger, Miss Westley, Miss Smith, White, Miss Morgan, Robeson and the lengthy supporting cast, leave nothing to be desired. Similarly, the music is a treat, certain to charm any and all in both specialty as well as in choral numbers. It has a quality of lasting impression. For spectacle "Show Boat" has logically woven in all the color and excitement of the showboat era along the Mississippi, plus the cabaret and theatre glamour of the day. Dance arrangements by Leroy Printz are always in the spirit of the picture's mood.

A show that will grip the imagination and sate the appetite of any kind of audience, "Show Boat" is destined for grand grosses if showmen will only put half the effort into the selling that the producers, writers, directors and players did in the making.

SHOW
BOAT

(VERSION OF 1936)

Released

May17

by

FULL SPEED AHEAD!

UNIVERSAL

HUGE

READ THE HEADLINES! READ EVERY LINE
ABOUT THE LINE-UP BUSINESS IT'S DOING!
WAY ABOVE AVERAGE EVERYWHERE THAT THEY BACK IT UP WITH THE SWELL CAMPAIGNS IT DESERVES!

SUTTER'S GOLD

"Sutter" Huge San Francisco Hit, $11,800

SAN FRANCISCO, April 12.—"Sutter's Gold" turned out to be a huge hit at the Orpheum. Local patriotism helped along the exploitation and brought the natives out in droves. The $11,800 take was over par by $5,000.

Week Ending April 1:
"SUTTER'S GOLD" (Univ.)
ORPHEUM—(2,440), 15c-30c-35c-40c. 7 days. Gross: $11,800. (Average, $6,800)

HIT!

M. P. DAILY

"Sutter" Big In Denver and Is Held Over

DENVER, April 3.—"Sutter's Gold" grossed $10,000 at the Denver, above par by $3,000, and was moved to the Broadway for a second week. The take was especially noteworthy because there were two snowfalls and three days of unusual cold.

"SUTTER'S GOLD" (Univ.)
DENVER—(2,500). 25c-35c-50c. 7 days. Stage band. Gross: $10,000. (Average, $7,000)

BOXOFFICE

"Sutter's Gold" Wins Frisco High Honors

AVERAGE IS 100%

San Francisco — For highest percentage, "Sutter's Gold" at the Orpheum took honors, grossing 135 per cent. The Warfield with "Rose Marie" had one of the best weeks since stage shows were abandoned, drawing 125 per cent. For the first time the feature was not double-billed since the non-stage policy was inaugurated several months ago.

VARIETY

Broadway (Huffman) (1,500; 25-40)—'Sutter's Gold' (U), following a week at the Denver. Garnering $1,500, good for second run.

OSWALD GOES IN FOR QUINTS!

The Lucky Rabbit! He's Five Times as Funny in his Newest Release---

"BARNYARD FIVE"!

2 New Managers For Universal Exchanges

JAMES R. GRAINGER, general manager of distribution for Universal announces two new exchange managers, both men being advanced from previous positions in the Universal organization.

Walter S. Quade, salesman in the Oklahoma City office, with a splendid record of achievement, has been appointed to the position of branch manager of that office. This appointment was occasioned by the resignation of R. I. Payne. Mr. Payne has been with the Universal for over twenty years, having started in the Dallas office as an office boy. Mr. Payne is resigning

(Continued on Page 29)

Here is Universal's newest male star, Henry Hunter, whose ability and success on the radio first attracted Universal to him. A talent scout made a trip to Chicago to sign him up and now he is under long term contract, playing his first featured role with little Ann Preston in the problem picture, "Paroled"

Carole Lombard is back at Universal City. There is a whole production crew there which enjoyed hugely her last visit while she was making "Love Before Breakfast." This girl is not only a great actress, but a great trouper and has the faculty of making everyone in her company a willing slave. Miss Lombard started this week the production of another picture in which she will have even greater scope for acting and for trouping. The new picture is "My Man Godfrey," in which she is co-starred with William Powell.

Irene Dunne almost got into grand opera and she never quite got over wanting to be in grand opera. When anyone from the Metropolitan comes to California, she looks at them in just exactly the way that she is looking at Lotte Lehmann in this picture. Miss Lehmann, Metropolitan Grand Opera star, is on a concert tour in California and visited Irene Dunne on the "Show Boat" set while the picture was being made.

UNIVERSAL WEEKLY

A Magazine for Motion Picture Exhibitors
Paul Gulick, Editor
Published Weekly by the Motion Picture Weekly Publishing Co.
Rockefeller Center, N. Y. City
Universal Pictures Corp.
Copyrighted 1936
(All Rights Reserved)
APRIL 25, 1936
Vol. 38 No. 12

MOTION PICTURE HERALD HAILS

¶ THE OLD AND THE NEW of American entertainment are contrasted with the emphasis that sound has brought to the screen in Universal's new version of "Showboat," the subject of this Herald Pictorial Preview. Above is the "entire company" on the old river boat; below, an ensuing and elaborate scene on the New York stage with Kim (Sunnie O'Dea) in debut. On the opposite page: Allan Jones, starred as Gaylord Ravenal, with Irene Dunne as Magnolia, and Charles Winninger as Cap'n Hawks, skipper, the role he created in the original stage play. The novel was by Edna Ferber and the late Florenz Ziegfeld produced the stage version and a revival. Universal made it on the screen first as a silent production and later with a part sound treatment. Thus, the forthcoming picture represents the fifth presentation of the story on stage and screen.

GREAT PICTURE – "SHOW BOAT"

April 18, 1936 MOTION PICTURE HERALD 17

'SHOWBOAT' and AMERICANA

by GUS McCARTHY in Hollywood

WOVEN of material 100 per cent American in character, re-creating the glamour of one of America's grandest and best loved institutions, the river showboat, and capturing the glitter of the American stage during the brilliant era bridging two centuries, "Showboat" returns to the screen in Universal's third picturized version of the Edna Ferber novel which the late Florenz Ziegfeld had brought to the stage and then presented a second time in revival.

The locales and settings which constitute the backgrounds promise to be as interesting as the story. An old river showboat has been faithfully duplicated for the earlier sequence. The ensuing locales, the residence districts, night clubs and theatres of Chicago, New York and Paris, will be presented as they were at that time.

Musical drama is the substance of the picture. The motivating story is a sympathetic, emotion inspiring dramatic romance. It blends love interest and drama that has pathos for its keynote. Comedy contrast is homey, human humor. Music, as featured in solo and chorus, incidental to action and incorporated in the score, combines the appeal of old favorite airs, the charm of Negro spirituals and folk songs and the allure of specially prepared modern numbers. Dancing revives the rhythmic grace of old fashioned cake-walks, soft shoe and sand dances and contrasts them with the flashing tempo of modernism.

The story is the romance of two persons and the drama of many. It tells of a love that thrilled to the ecstasy of youth and the joy of parenthood; a love that knew the happiness of triumph, the despair of disappointment, fear of poverty and the tragedy of desertion. It tells of a man who was afraid and a woman who was the soul of courage.

But "Showboat" is not a somber story. For every moment of drama, and that entertainment quality is sometimes stark in its tear provoking quality, there are just as many minutes of gayety, life and joy. Paul Robeson singing "Old Man River" may touch the more tender emotions, but there is a bubbling brilliance continually accruing to Charles Winninger as Cap'n Andy Hawks, skipper of the "Cotton Blossom." The love drama of Irene Dunne as Magnolia and Allan Jones as Gaylord Ravenal calls to sympathy but the fun Sammy White and Queenie Smith provide is surely capable of spreading smiles.

The story is now being brought to the screen in the full scope that modern technique has made possible. It has been given costly production.

Stage and screen play, together with lyrics, having been prepared by Oscar Hammerstein II with music by Jerome Kern, "Old Man River," "Make Believe," "Old Fashioned Wife" and "After The Ball" are among the old numbers that will be heard in addition to three new Hammerstein-Kern numbers. Dance numbers, arranged by LeRoy Prinz, span the range from the stately effects of yesteryear to the intricate arrangements of today. More than fifty sets were constructed to accommodate the production. With James Whale as director, the cast also includes Helen Westley, Donald Cook, Hattie McDaniel, Francis X. Mahoney, Charles Middleton, Arthur Hohl, Helen Morgan (also in her stage role), J. Farrell MacDonald, Marillyn Knowlden, Sunnie O'Dea, Mae Beatty, Clarence Muse, a score or more well known names in minor parts, a Negro chorus of 200 voices, fifty dancing girls and 3,500 extras.

"My Man Godfrey" Starts Brilliantly

ERIC HATCH

Author of "My Man Godfrey," which is now in production at Universal City with William Powell and Carole Lombard starred. This will be the first of Eric Hatch's novels to reach the screen. He had hopes of another screen story until a new production boss discovered that the Hatch story was a pet of his predecessor. Then both the story and Mr. Hatch were dismissed unceremoniously. Mr. Hatch saw "My Man Godfrey" safely in production before he left Universal City after three months' work on the adaptation.

ERIC HATCH, the author of "My Man Godfrey," has just returned to New York from a three months' sojourn at Universal City. During his stay there Mr. Hatch collaborated with Gregory LaCava and Morrie Ryskind on the adaptation of his story to the screen. Before he left, Mr. Hatch became convinced that Universal was going to make a great production of his story. Furthermore, he firmly believes that the story will carry out his own ideas of what a moving picture story from "My Man Godfrey" should be like. He is tremendously enthusiastic about Gregory LaCava and thoroughly approves of all of the suggestions for production which he made. Furthermore, he is delighted that Morrie Ryskind is going to put the story into script form.

Hatch has been compared by critics to P. G. Wodehouse. But where Wodehouse is thoroughly a Briton, Hatch is as thoroughly American. His is the humor of the Long Island cocktail party, of the raised eyebrow, but best of all, it is the humor of incident. That is what makes his material so eminently pictureable.

Before he left the coast, he had an opportunity of seeing the remarkable set which the Universal production department built to represent the Waldorf-Astoria, where the first big comedy scene takes place. The scene is the Jade Room of the Waldorf, where the Park Avenue society, to which the rich Bullocks belonged, were playing a new game called Scavenger Hunt. As the author describes it, "it merely consists of hunting for and finding a prescribed list of things you couldn't possibly want after you found them." One of the things required was a 'forgotten man." That man eventually turned out to be "My Man Godfrey." And William Powell is "My Man Godfrey."

Eric Hatch also saw the sets which Universal had built for the next episode of the story, which takes place in the odd community made of packing cases and castoff sheet iron and old shingles, where a group of down and outers once lived in the dried up reservoir in Central Park. The setting is one of the most comical and intriguing ever built at Universal City.

"My Man Godfrey" went into production on Monday and already the Waldorf scenes have been completed. The cast in support of William Powell and Carole Lombard is growing every day, and now includes a number of very well known names. Alice Brady is the principal featured player. She plays the role of Angelica. Gail Patrick has the role of Cornelia, Carole Lombard's older sister; Eugene Pallette, the role of Alexander Bullock, Irene's father; Mischa Auer plays Carlo, the dilettante, who devoted himself so ostentatiously to Mrs. Bullock. John Light has the role of Faithful George, Cornelia's beau. Others in the cast are Jean Dixon, Pat Flaherty, Robert Perry, Eddie Kane, Jane Wyman, Selma Jackson and David Horsley.

In addition to directing "My Man Godfrey," Gregory LaCava will act in the capacity of producer as well. "My Man Godfrey" will therefore be known as a Gregory LaCava Production.

The Grandest Entertainment in Years Is 'SHOW BOAT'

WESTERN UNION

APRIL 22 1936 AM 8

R H COCHRANE
UNIVERSAL PICTURES
1250 SIXTH AVE
NEWYORK NY

BROTHER TO BROTHER I AM TELLING YOU THAT SHOW BOAT IS THE GRANDEST ENTERTAINMENT THAT I HAVE SEEN IN YEARS IT HAS EVERYTHING THAT YOU AND I AND EVERYBODY ELSE LOVES TO SEE ON THE SCREEN PAUL ROBESON SINGING OL MAN RIVER WILL SEND THE CHILLS UP YOUR SPINE AND IRENE DUNNE AND ALLAN JONES ARE SIMPLY DELICIOUS THROUGHOUT ENTIRE PICTURE THE WHOLE THING IS SO DELIGHTFUL THAT I HAVENT WORDS TO DESCRIBE IT JOE WEIL FEELS EXACTLY AS I DO CHARLIE ROGERS DESERVES FULL CREDIT FOR HOLDING PICTURE TO GIVE IT GRAND FINISHING TOUCHES

PHIL COCHRANE

'Nobody's Fool'

Is the New Title For Edward Everett Horton

FOR a week now, the Edward Everett Horton picture has been marking time at Universal City, awaiting, a releasing title. Yesterday Universal decided to release it under the title of "Nobody's Fool." The picture, while in production, had been called "Unconscious." Its shooting schedule was completed last Saturday under the direction of Arthur G. Collins.

"Nobody's Fool" is the title of a small town hero whose well-meaning enthusiasm eventually triumphed over two fighting racketeering real estate gangs. The hero, all unconscious of the terrific danger into which his innocense guided him, also snatched a fortune and a beautiful girl out of the encounter.

In support of the comedian, Irving Starr, the producer, engaged Cesar Romero, Glenda Farrell, Warren Hymer, Henry Hunter, Diana Gibson, Marla Shelton, Pierre Watkin, Robert Middlemass and Ed Gargan.

TOP NOTCH WESTERN

LOOKING 'EM OVER IN MOTION PICTURE DAILY

April 21, 1936

"FOR THE SERVICE"
(Universal)

When it comes to giving the patrons what they want in the line of western adventure, Buck Jones can always be relied upon to do the stuff. This production has all the elements —a good plot, plenty of spectacular action and excitement—to make it a top-notch western.

The story concerns the troubles of the "scouts" as they try to make the recently settled west safe for the oncoming pioneers.

Beth Marion ably plays the romantic lead opposite Clifford Jones. Others in the cast include such notables as Frank McGlynn and Fred Kohler, scout and bad man, respectively. The photography by Allen Thompson and Herbert Kirkpatrick is spectacular and has moments that becomes impressive.

What a Pleasure "Magnificent Obsession"

Majestic Theatre
Lexington, Nebraska
April 17th, 1936

Universal Film Exchanges, Inc.

Dear Mr. Spandau:

What a pleasure to enclose this check to Uncle Carl for the overage on "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION." What a pleasure to have your patrons so pleased with the picture, make personal effort in your behalf to tell their friends to see it, which was done here in so many instances we couldn't even count them. What a pleasure to put on extra ushers and doormen, and a special policeman on the street, to merely give service to those who were finding their way through traffic, to see "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION." What a pleasure to have about one half of your first show crowd just remain seated, refuse to leave, until they had seen about half of the second show, many remaining throughout the whole second show. What a pleasure to personally know many many folks who came the second night, and several the third night, to see it again and again. What a pleasure to have many patrons come to us, personally, and compliment us on the pictures we are bringing to Lexington, and especially compliment us on "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION." What an unfortunate thing that we didn't show it for six days instead of four days, in this little town of 2800 people.

What a pleasure to know that your staff successfully exploited "MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION" so that the territory knew we were to show it these four days. What a pleasure to have your theatre staff tell you they wanted a special morning showing of the picture so they could relax and see it and enjoy it as they couldn't do so on our regular performance, while handling the big crowds.

Very respectfully yours,

R. E. FALKENBURG

This is the town of Unalaska, situated on the westermost tip of the vast arm of the territory of Alaska which points across the Bering Sea to Asia. One of the most essential industries of this little village is the theatre. A courageous individual by the name of John W. Fletcher operates this theatre, which is called the Cameo Hall, and which you will

Furthest North Theatre Paid Off the Mo

THIS is a success story out of the Far North. It is the story of the success of a little theatre and its manager, who had the darn good sense to use Universal pictures exclusively. John W. Fletcher is the name of the man who operates this little theatre in the little village of Unalaska. It is undoubtedly the furthest north and the furthest west of any theatre in the United States.

Unalaska is a small town and it has irregular communication with the outside world. In the winter, its inhabitants are particularly dependent on amusement, and its theatre is absolutely dependent on unusual attention and service from an exchange. Lots of prints have to be tied up for weeks and months at a time in order to serve this one account. However, L. J. McGinley, Universal manager, in Seattle, has taken a personal interest in the welfare of this game manager, and his fight to make a living, and to serve his community with the best of amusement in this far away spot.

The result of the care which McGinley has given to this account and the splendid way in which Fletcher has utilized this service, is that Universal pictures have turned a losing proposition into a profitable one, have paid off the

With "Show Boat" Carl Laemmle, Jr. Retires from Universal Pictures

R. H. COCHRANE, the new president of Universal Pictures announces that Carl Laemmle, Jr., has retired from Universal Pictures, where he has been a producer for the last three years. His retirement took place with the preview of "Show Boat," which is his last production for Universal.

This preview was held at the Alexander Theatre of Glendale, California. The next day Lew Harris, the manager, sent this telegram to Carl Laemmle, Jr.:

"HAVE JUST PREVIEWED IN MY THEATRE 'SHOW BOAT'. STOP CONGRATULATIONS. IT IS TREMENDOUS. STOP. PRODUCTION AND DIRECTION GRAND STOP. EVERY PLAYER MADE INTO A STAR AND MISS DUNNE IN HER FINEST PERFORMANCE. PAUL ROBESON STOPPED SHOW WITH RIVER SONG. STOP. BIG BOX OFFICE SURE.

The breaking of what might almost be called a life-long relationship of Carl Laemmle, Jr. and Universal was not unexpected. With the purchase of his father's interests, Carl Laemmle, Jr. also disposed of his own holdings in the company and has plans for future work which he will announce upon completion of a long deferred vacation trip. The young producer and the executives at Universal City parted with the pleasantest of relationships and good wishes on both sides.

Carl Laemmle, Jr. was born in Chicago two years after his father entered the motion picture business there as an exhibitor. It is no exaggeration to say that he was born into the industry. He took an intense interest in it from the time he could talk. His father brought his moving picture problems home with him to his domestic circle, where they were freely discussed. Carl Laemmle, Jr.'s first work at Universal City was the writing and outlining of a series called "The Collegians." In 1928, he was made an assistant to Henry Henigson, then general manager of Universal City, and in 1929 he was appointed general manager of the studio. Tis first big production was the play, "Broadway,' and under his management Universal produced such pictures as "All Quiet on the Western Front," "King of Jazz," "Dracula," "Frankenstein," "Back Street," "Only Yesterday" and "The Invisible Man."

Last year Carl Laemmle, Jr. relinquished the duties of general manager to become an individual producer with his own unit on the Universal City lot. Under this arrangement he made "The Bride of Frankenstein," "Remember Last Night" and "Show Boat."

see marked with an arrow in the right hand side of this extremely interesting panorama photograph of the sprawling little village in its land-locked harbor. Universal pictures took it out of the red. The service was supplied to Unalaska by the Universal Exchange in Seattle, Wash., by L. J. McGinley, manager.

age Using Universal Pictures Exclusively mortgage on the Cameo Hall, and in Mr. Fletcher's own words, "The Cameo is now free and clear. The jinx was whipped on Universal product. I am more than proud of that. I have never been in business for myself before." Further in his letter to Mr. McGinley, Mr. Fletcher says "I feel that I have friends both in you and in Universal. You have both been swell to me. My service has been splendid. You have filled my orders with exceptional skill and knowledge of what I could use and the shipments have come to me promptly.

"You may be interested to know that many of my patrons tell me that they come to my theatre sometimes almost entirely because of the Universal Newsreel and Graham McNamee. They also like the Mentones and "Stranger Than Fiction," and Oswald goes over big with our people here in Unalaska. I am absolutely content to run Universal pictures alone, and who wouldn't be, after the experience that I have had?

(Signed) John W. Fletcher"

Universal pictures are not only universally used in the United States, but they are used throughout the world.

"We Found Love"
New Universal Title

UNIVERSAL has decided upon another title, this time for a picture to be released early in next season. The new title is "We Found Love." The title was given to Louis R. Foster's story, "It's A Small World," in which Joan Bennett and Joel McCrea are being featured. "We Found Love" is being directed at Universal City by Alfred E. Green and is being produced by E. M. Asher. The screen play is by Samuel Hoffenstein. E. E. Paramore and Dorris Maloy. There are a number of interesting people in the cast of "We Found Love," Elisha Cook, Jr., the young Broadway sensation of "Ah, Wilderness!" has the role of Skeeter and his work so far has caused Universal to sign him up on a long-term contract. Alison Skipworth has an important role. Others include Andy Clyde, Henry Armetta and Reginald Denny.

For a short space, "We Found Love" was known in the studios as "Money from Heaven." It is the story of a thousand dollar bill.

Turns Camera On Self
Oliver Has An Act to Grin

(This interesting story, with its intriguing title, appeared in the Morning Telegraph of Tuesday, April 21, 1936, and is the latest news about the Universal Newsreel cameraman, David Oliver, and his flair for the comic.)

BECAUSE he's adept at dual roles that of cameraman and actor—David Oliver, ace Universal newsreel cameraman, has been given a contract to play gag parts in forthcoming editions of the "celluloid news." He also will continue to grind his crank, but this is the first time in newsreel history a cameraman has been given an award of this kind.

It all started when Oliver, who had been assigned to take pictures of several sweepstakes winners, thought it would be funny to get a shot of some one who had not won anything. To achieve this, he took the role himself. Disappointed, discouraged and thoroughly funny, his portrayal of the loser appeared in local theatres only a few weeks ago. It scored such a hit with audiences that he repeated —this time as hick farmer strolling down Fifth avenue on Easter Day. Oliver, clad in cutaways, a ludicrous tie and undersized top hat, narrated what a "wonderful thing Easter is" and told of the sartorial tortures that went with the Easter parade.

In both instances Oliver's cameramen sidekicks did the "take." The Easter promenade was such a hit that Universal gave him the new contract.

"Gag" shots, as they are called, have made sporadic appearances in newsreel releases for the past three years.

And Oliver, the Universal ace, frankly admits he'll "kick his camera in the pants" if his comedy parts continue to click.

From news cranker to comedy—funny men have come from all other walks of life. The newsreel men are getting a well-earned break.

SHE'S EXOTIC!
SHE GIVES YOU THA
DRACULA'S with OTTO KRUGER
GLORIA HOLDEN
Marguerite Churchill, Edward Van Sloan,
Gilbert Emery, Irving Pichel, Billy Bevan

SHE'S HYPNOTIC!

T WEIRD FEELING!

DAUGHTER

Based on the BRAM STOKER story "DRACULA'S GUEST" • Suggested by OLIVER JEFFRIES • Directed by LAMBERT HILLYER • Produced by E. M. ASHER

A UNIVERSAL PICTURE!

"Paroled" Is a Daring Picture

ONE out of every forty-five persons in the United States has a criminal record . . . has served time in prison!

This amazing revelation was just recently made by national statisticians.

What happens to each of these "one out of 45" when they are paroled from prison? Where do they go? What do they do?

"Paroled" gives a sensational and entertaining answer to those questions.

Revealing the inner workings of the modern prison parole systems, subject today of country-wide controversy, it

(Continued on Page 29)

Louis Friedlander, and Cameraman Robinson, photographing the Universal movie debutantes, Ann Preston and Henry Hunter, in "Paroled."

"Paroled" is a story of the way the parole system works out. The scene above is the setting of the parole board room in the prison. The parole board is in session and the guard is bringing a prisoner is to be examined. If he passes the examination, he will be paroled. The prisoner is Noah Beery, Jr.

Grant Mitchell and Henry Hunter in "Paroled."

Henry Hunter, Noah Beery, Jr. and Alan Baxter in a gripping scene from Universal's problem picture, "Paroled."

"Crash Donovan" Full of Thrills

Nan Gray, the youngest leading woman in pictures, plays opposite Jack Holt.

●

John King looks swell in the motor cycle cop's uniform, and Eddie Acuff, below, is subbing in for Andy Devine.

DEATH rides the highway in "Crash Donovan," the thrilling Universal drama which stars dynamic Jack Holt in the role of a motorcycle officer, rookie member of the California Highway Patrol. The background of the screenplay is his course of training and his eventual entry into a world of shrieking sirens, accidents and sudden death.

In the opening sequences of the story Holt is seen as a daredevil motorcycle stunt rider with a carnival, finally deciding to join the motorcycle patrol when he falls in love with the daughter of its commander. Later he contemplates returning to the carnival when he learns that the girl has given her heart to his riding partner on the police force, when their attention is suddenly diverted to the apprehension of a gang of smugglers, whom they pursue over the highways at 80 miles an hour.

Dynamic Jack Holt, star of "Crash Donovan," in a typical Jack Holt pose.

Chasing the criminals to their stronghold in the country, Holt and his brother officer finally descend upon them in a rousing climax filled with exciting events. In addition to its thrilling drama, "Crash Donovan" furnishes an interesting picture of the hazardous work of the motorcycle police.

Through the co-operation of E. Raymond Cato, chief of the California Highway Patrol, and Inspector W. F. Cannon of the Los Angeles County division, the pick of the state's motorcycles were appearing with Jack Holt in "Crash Donovan."

The entire drill team of the Highway Patrol, comprising thirty-two expert riders under the leadership of Drillmaster George Kidwell, appeared in a succession of spectacular motorcycle drills, and a score of other officers worked in various other sequences throughout the picture. Technical advisor on the film was Officer George Stinson, protege of Madame Ernestine Schumman-Heink and nationally known as "the singing cop."

Holt's supporting cast in "Crash Donovan," includes Nan Gray, youngest leading lady in pictures, John King, Eddie Acuff, Hugh Buckler, Douglas Fowley, James Donlan and Paul Porcasi, and the picture is being directed by William Nigh.

The distraught individual in the center is Douglas Fowley, one of the most capable actors in pictures, who started on the Universal lot and is now back there again.

BALABAN AND K
ALL UNIVERSAL
SERIALS for 18 CHICA

These are the Serial Chan

- BUCK JONES
- ACE DRUMMOND
- JUNGLE JIM
- SECRET AGENT X-9

AND NOW PLAYING AT

UNIVERSAL'S "FLA

ATZ SIGN UP
'S 1936-37
GO THEATRES!

pions they'll play:

World's greatest action star in "THE PHANTOM RIDER", ifteen chapters of thrill-packed, dangerous adventure.

From the amazing King Features newspaper cartoon strip by Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, in 13 smashing chapters.

Another famous King Features newspaper cartoon strip ead by millions; 12 chapters of roaring thrills and action!

King Features syndicated cartoon strip—12 chapters of heroic adventures with undercover operators!

THESE ARE THE THEATRES THEY'LL FEATURE THEM IN:

HARDING
VARSITY
MARYLAND
REGAL
NORSHORE
NORTOWN BELMONT
GATEWAY TERMINAL SENATE
CENTRAL PARK
BERWYN
STATE MANOR
LA GRANGE
CRYSTAL
COVENT
LAKESIDE

& K HOUSES

SH GORDON"

"THE PHANTO

Buck Jones' B

Here is the "Phantom Rider" himself.

Incidentally, "The Phantom Rider" will be Henry MacRae's sixty-second continued film drama. "The Phantom Rider" will be directed by Ray Taylor, whose success with Universal serials and with Buck Jones in particular has been little less than phenomenal.

Buck Jones has two beautiful leading ladies as principal support. One is Marla Shelton, the new Three on a horse. Diana Gibson, Marla Shelton and Buck Jones, all of whom are appearing in the Buck Jones lead-off serial for next season, "The Phantom Rider."

EVERY serial season is right if Buck Jones opens it. The eminent western star, the greatest bet in western pictures today, will open Universal's current serial season with "The Phantom Rider." Buck Jones opened last year's Universal season with "The Roaring West," the season before that with "The Red Rider," and the one before that with "Gordon of Ghost City." A Buck Jones serial is one of the most profitable investments that any moving picture house can make. "The Roaring West," "The Red Rider" and "Gordon of Ghost City" proved this beyond a doubt.

The new serial, "The Phantom Rider," is, in script form, the most imaginative and thrilling serial which Buck Jones has ever made. Its first episode fully lives up to the script. It is so full of everything that makes a western serial click, so full of climactic incidents, so genuinely suspenseful that Henry MacRae will produce it in fifteen episodes instead of the customary twelve. The story was written by George Plympton, Basil Dickey and Ella O'Neill, who have turned out many extremely successful Universal serials. Mr. MacRae himself is cooperating in writing the screenplay of the serial.

It's this kind of thing that makes every one of the fifteen chapters of "The Phantom Rider" thrilling.

M RIDER"
st Seller

beauty who is one-quarter Cherokee Indian and for whom Universal envisions a tremendous success on the screen. Miss Shelton has been scoring success ever since she was fourteen years old and was a licensed radio operator. Athletics is her long suit. She is right at home in the saddle and with fire-arms. The other leading lady is Diana Gibson who has spent a year in minor roles and is best remembered as the leading lady for Jack Holt in "Dangerous Waters."

The cast includes, in addition such players as Eddie Gribbon, Harry Woods, Joey Ray, Frank LaRue, George Cooper, Helen Shipman, Charles LeMoyne, Jim Corey, Tom Carter, James Mason, Charles King and Paul Regas.

Briefly, the story concerns the unusual experiences of a government detective. This detective, of course, is Buck Jones. He has been sent into the cattle and mining town of Maverick to bring to justice a band of outlaws who are terrorizing the ranchers, the nesters and the mining prospectors. They have been unusually successful at it. Jones comes to town in the guise of Buck Grant, a nester, and proceeds to clean out the outlaws and save the settlers.

Where was the "Phantom Rider" when this took place? See the next episode!

BALABAN & KATZ BOOK SERIALS

ON the strength of Universal's announced line-up for next season, the Chicago exchange has sold to the Balaban and Katz houses a deal for the four new 1936-37 serials. They will play in the eighteen important Balaban and Katz Chicago Theatres. Balaban and Katz is operated by some of the country's shrewdest showmen and it is the first time that this important circuit of de-luxe operatives has ever contracted for a group of four serials at one time. This is one of the most significent events in modern serial history and is only a foretaste of the way in which really outstanding serials are being regarded by moving picture showmen throughout the country.

In addition to the interest-compelling program which Universal has outlined for next season, the Balaban and Katz booking was also inspired by the success of "Flash Gordon" in its houses. "Flash Gordon" was recently sold to Balaban and Katz and it is now playing with unprecedented results for this sensational serial.

Two other significant events show the new trend toward serials and the remarkable success which "Flash Gordon" is exerting in this trend. One of them is the booking of "Flash Gordon" into the RKO Majestic Theatre in Columbus, Ohio. The Majestic is a big first-run house which has never in all of its existence run a serial. It booked "Flash Gordon" in the first place rather against its will and it booked it for the children's morning matinee only. However, there was so much favorable coment even while the serial was being advertised and so much interest demonstrated to the management, that RKO decided to use it four days for regular afternoon shows. Then "Flash Gordon" opened. On the opening day, it created so much enthusiasm among the adults as well as the children that it was shown at every performance during the week, not limited to the four days only and each of the subsequent episodes will also be run the entire week.

The second significant event is the booking of "Flash Gordon" into the Paramount Theatre of Los Angeles. The Paramount is the ace first-run down town theatre of Los Angeles. It plays Fanchon and Marco shows and is Paramount's show window in Los Angeles. It also books the top features of other companies. The booking of "Flash Gordon" is for the full seven days of the week and it started off there April 16th.

These two new first-run bookings are "Flash Gordon" boosters.

MOST TIMES ON SCREEN

Strangely enough, the actor who will be on more moving picture screens throughout the United States during the the coming year than any other actor or actress, is Buck Jones. He is assured by his contract with Universal for features and "The Phantom Rider" serial, of more screen appearances than any other star. He will play in six western features and by reason of his appearance in a minimum of 4,000 theatres a portion of twenty-three weeks out of every fifty-two, he will achieve this unparalelled record.

Serial Season Starts

NOW that "The Phantom Rider" is well under way at Universal City, Henry MacRae and Barney Sarecky, who will share the serial production burden between them, are making their plans for the other three serials of the year.

The next serial to go into production will undoubtedly be "Ace Drummond," the King Features strip which was suggested by Captain Eddie Rickenbacker. Barney Sarecky has signed Ray Trempe to work on "Ace Drummond."

The other two serials are also King Features stories. One is "Jungle Jim,, and the fourth is a detective serial strip "Secret Agent X-9."

UNIVERSAL

THROUGHOUT

MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION: Irene Dunne, Robert Taylor—A 110 minutes of real and reel entertainment. John Stahl has put real time and effort in making this box office smash hit. The throbs will get the ladies. The men must be sold. The following brought out more men admissions than in the last two years. What every father should see and preach to his son. Have a father and son matinee. Running time, 110 minutes.—Perry L. Lessy, Diamond Theatre, Philadelphia, Pa. Neighborhood patronage.

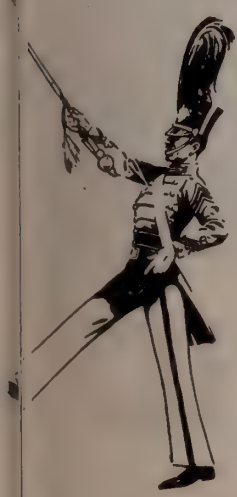
MEET THE PROFESSOR: Mentone No. 10-A—This one gave it to the ladies with plenty of fun all around.—Rudolf Duba, Royal Theatre, Kimball, S. D. Small town patronage.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS: These shorts are a good buildup for any feature. Can be billed with any feature and have heard no complaints on any of these singles yet. Running time, 10 minutes.—Ken Higgins, Capitol Theatre, Harrisville, N. Y. Small town and CCC Camp patronage.

THE NATION!

REMEMBER LAST NIGHT: Edward Arnold, Constance Cummings, Robert Young— It has eighty minutes of sidecars, jitters, hangovers and grand fun. In other words, Universal has produced a novel and entertaining picture. Our patrons enjoyed it.— J. W. Noah, New Liberty and Ideal Theatres, Fort Worth, Texas. General patronage.

MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION: Irene Dunne, Robert Taylor—I think that this is one of the best pictures that I ever looked at and while we didn't do any record breaking business, I know that the picture was the talk of the town for a week or more and if we decide to play a return on it, I am positive that it will do more business on the return than it did on first-run. You can't go wrong on a picture like this, and the later you play it the better. We ran it hot.— Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.



BUCK JONES

WHAT A COWBOY! WHAT A KID!

Buck and Billy . . . last names Jones and Burrud . . . One a fearless son of the range, the other a homeless fightin' little feller whom they'll remember from "Three Kids and a Queen" . . . A couple of swell guys in a grand new, brand new, rip-roarin' Western comedy - drama!

An Universal Western Feature produced by Buck Jones Productions. Directed by Ray Taylor

THE COWBOY AND THE KID

HERE'S a WESTERN with COMEDY

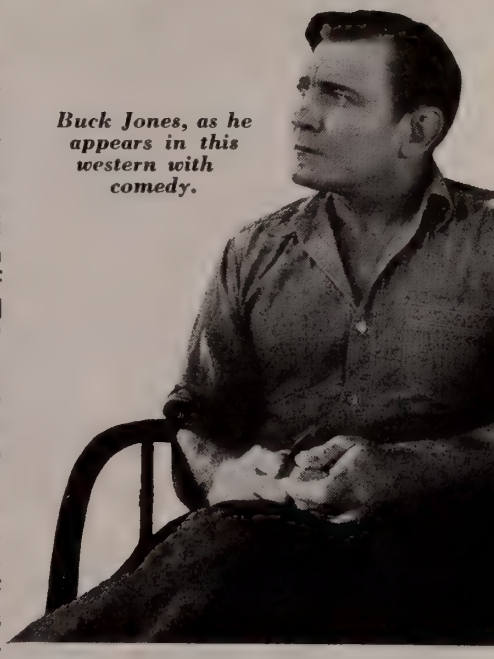
Billy Burrud making his first appearance in a western picture.

THE picture scouts send word from Hollywood that the newest Buck Jones film is not merely a Western, as the public generally calls them, with fast riding, exciting action and a thrilling climax. The latest advice about "The Cowboy and the Kid" is that it is loaded with laughs, as well as stirring drama. Coast correspondents declare that it is entirely different from any Western turned out previously. They attribute the reason for this change from the beaten path to eleven year old Billy Burrud.

The Buck Jones script was written originally as a Western with a little comedy in occasional spots. As the filming went on, the actors ad libbed during the humorous sequences and the rushes showed they were even funnier than expected. Billy Burrud proved to have such a flair for comedy that Buck Jones had more scenes written in for him. You see it was his own story anyway.

The youngster did a swell job. Each day's rushes were more amusing than the day before. The comedy angle grew stronger until it dominated the serious side of the story. Buck Jones decided to play the hunch all the way and built up the humorous sequences even further. There have been cases where an actor ran away with a scene. This is an instance where the scenes ran away with the script. Finally Buck changed the title to "The Cowboy and the Kid," because he felt that Billy Burrud's work rated it.

The opening scene of "The Cowboy and the Kid" starts with Buck telling his gang of cowboys, "There will be no rough stuff." Then he goes into a Chinese laundry for his wash. He can't find the ticket and brushes aside the laundryman to read the secret signs himself. After he manages to wreck the laundry, the sheriff produces a ticket—this one is in English ordering Buck to appear in court.



Buck Jones, as he appears in this western with comedy.

The judge tells Buck to take his gang out of town and he promises to reform. As he leaves, Buck slips some cartridges into the stove. Boom go the cartridges and off goes Buck on his horse, with the sheriff high-tailing after him. He is guilty of contempt of court, with a bang.

Then there is the barrel scene. Buck hides from the sheriff's posse by climbing into a barrel. A dog, barking at him, threatens to betray his location. Buck, trying to reach out to pet the dog to quiet him, tips over the barrel. It rolls down hill to the hitching post and Buck climbs aboard his horse to escape.

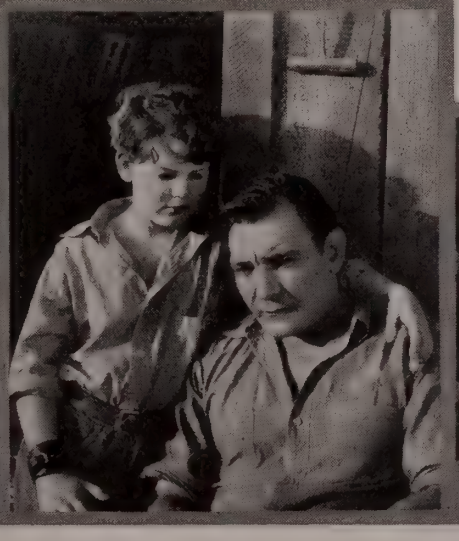
Buck and Billy Burrud go out on a pie grabbing expedition. Buck

(Continued on Page 29)

Buy the May 9th Colliers

Every exhibitor who runs westerns should buy a copy of Colliers, dated May 9th. It will be on the stands on May 1st. This issue contains the real life story of Buck Jones, as told to Kyle Creighton. Put it up in your lobby when next you are advertising a Buck Jones picture.

The leading lady, Dorothy Revier



Billy Burrud in "The Cowboy and the Kid."

Billy strives to comfort his pal, Buck Jones, in "The Cowboy and the Kid."

"VERY GOOD"! says Motion Picture Herald

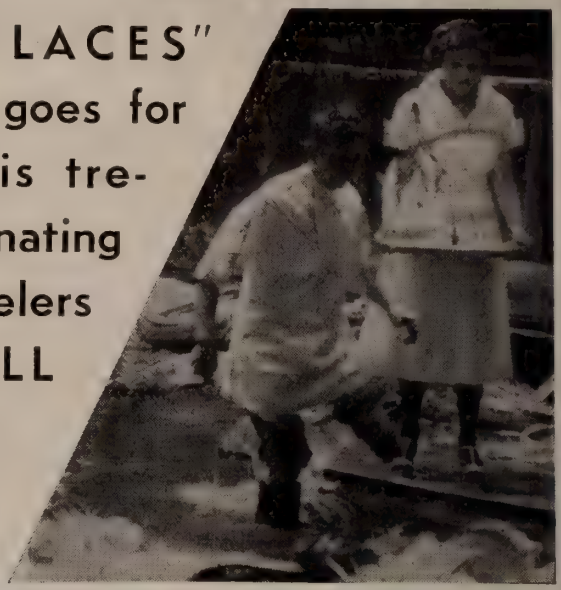
about "GOING PLACES" No. 20,—and that goes for every one of this tremendously fascinating series of one-reelers with LOWELL THOMAS!



GOING PLACES

"PAROLED" IS A DARING PICTURE

(Continued from Page 18)

shows how paroles are obtained and what happens to convicts thus freed once they go forth to begin life "outside" again.

In authentic, fair and unusually entertaining manner "Paroled" depicts the injustices, heartbreak and temptations encountered by a young man bearing the stigma of an ex-convict. It also forcefully reveals some of the dangerous red tape of the parole system of today and the skulduggeries and abuses it is subject to by confirmed criminals and grafting politicians.

Between the two it gives thrilling and dramatic answer to those who may or may not believe that "once a criminal; always a criminal."

Aside from its superb quality as a screen drama, "Paroled" has another angle of unusual interest for theatregoers. Making their screen debut in the featured roles of the picture are Ann Preston and Henry Hunter, recruits from radio and who for the past four years have been heard together on national radio chains in scores of plays and dramatic skits.

Other important parts in the picture are taken by such well known players as Alan Dinehart, Grant Mitchell, Noah Beery, Jr., Berton Churchill, Christian Rub, Alan Hale, Alan Baxter and others. Five authors, Kubec Glasmon, Horace McCoy, Joel Sayre, Robert Dillon and Kay Morris collaborated in writing the screen play. Louis Friedlander directed.

Two New Managers

(Continued from Page 9)

to enter the exhibition end of the business in his home town of Dallas. He is to be associated with the Griffith Enterprises. He has the best wishes of the entire organization.

In place of Jack Rue, who resigned Monday as manager of the Salt Lake City office, Mr. Grainger has appointed Charles Feldman as manager. Mr. Feldman was formerly a crack salesman in the San Francisco office.

Unique Service by Unique Theatre

THE Unique Theatre of Gunnerson, Colorado, is certainly unique. Here is a stunt that they pulled during the winter, which probably no other theatre in the United States can match. The proprietor of the Unique Theatre established a free taxi service to patrons of his theatre. Gunnerson isn't a very big place, but it gets mighty cold up there. B. H. Snyder the manager knows almost all his patrons by name and where they live. He felt that his plan would leave little excuse for anybody sitting home because the radiator was frozen up or that the members of the family were liable to catch cold going to and from the theatre. So he put a sign in the lobby of the Unique Theatre in a prominent place which read as follows:

"Wait for the free taxi. No frozen radiators. No frozen fingers. Take advantage of this unique service. Call the theatre and say, 'Send your taxicab to 622 North Colorado. I want to go and see SUTTER'S GOLD.' WE GET YOU, WE TAKE YOU, TO AND FROM UNIQUE THEATRE FREE OF CHARGE."

This plan worked out splendidly and not only made money for the theatre, but it made a lot of friends, which is almost as important to a theatre in a small town, or in any town.

Incidentally, the Unique Theatre runs Universal Pictures and has just signed a new Universal contract.

HERE'S A WESTERN WITH COMEDY

(Continued from Page 27)

lifts a pie from a window sill and discovers it is too hot to hold. While he is juggling it, the cook comes along with a shot gun and a dog. Billy scoots for cover and Buck runs in the opposite direction to distract attention from Billy and let him escape. Buck, trapped, runs into the house with the cook on his heels. Dashing from room to room, he suddenly comes upon a cute blonde school teacher who is dressing. And Buck has never even been introduced. He leaps from the house with the cook firing a two barrel salute after him.

Billy Burrud goes to school and Buck meets the same cute school teacher, face to face, a second time. She remembers where she saw him last and Buck is too flusterd to remember his own name. Later, the teacher gives Billy a problem in mental arithmetic. Buck, outside the window, tries to signal an answer to Billy. Billy's lips are forming the right answer when he sees Buck's signals. The teacher catches the wigwagging, too. Billy gives the wrong answer and the teacher says, "You tell your private instructor that he got zero in arithmetic today at school."

Buck and Billy try to wangle a chicken dinner from a hotel chef, who tells them they will have to de-neck the chickens if they want to eat. They get tender-hearted over the fate of the birds and set them free. A whole carload of them. That day the hotel has to change it menu to ham.

THE UNIVERSAL WEEKLY
SHOWMANSHIP
SECTION
A DIGEST OF THE BEST EXPLOITATION IDEAS OF THE WEEK

'FRISCO WINDOWS GLITTER WITH "GOLD" DISPLAYS

SAN FRANCISCO'S main streets were all aglitter with "Sutter's Gold" when the very active Hal Neides started on a wide-spread window getting campaign for his Orpheum Theatre engagement. A number of these displays were based on fashions designed in the new "Sutter's Gold" color. Others, in jewelry stores, were based on comparative displays of gold ore from the days of '49 and "old gold," recently purchased by the store. The florists, on the "Sutter's Gold" narcissus, and the book stores, on the novel, were hit with equal gusto and brought equally fine results. Reproduced on this page are three typical windows, Hale Bros. Department Store, O'Connor & Moffat Department Store and Albert S. Samuels Jewelry Store.

In all displays, reproductions of old-time newspapers furnished as an accessory by Universal, stills, lobby cards, enlarged photos and ancient mining equipment, borrowed from museums, were used. The old-time newspapers were also used as the basis of a giant lobby flash.

The historical atmosphere of the picture was called to the attention of all school children with letters to teachers and officials.

Left:— Display in Samuel's Jewelry Store, showing valuable gold ore mined in the days of '49 and recent "old gold" purchased by the store. Note prominent spot given reproduction of old newspaper carrying first notice of gold discovery.

Above:—Fashions in the new "Sutter's Gold" color on display in Hale Bros. Department Store, San Francisco.

●

Left:—O'Connor and Moffat's display of fashions in "Sutter's Gold," with atmosphere added by using ancient mining equipment.

SPRECKELS STAGES "HOUSEWIVES' MATINEE" FOR "BREAKFAST"

Array of 81-piece breakfast set in the lobby of the Spreckels Theatre, San Diego, provided by the local Sears, Roebuck store as contest prize for "Love Before Breakfast" Housewives' Matinee.

AL SOBLER and Marian Gronaw, the showmanship team at Lou Metzger's Spreckels Theatre, San Diego saw in "Love Before Breakfast" an opportunity to make a particular play for the housewives' business. This they did in grand style, landing the local Sears, Roebuck department store for big cooperation.

A special showing, tagged the "Housewives' Matinee," was decided on. A week before the opening, announcements were made, at both the theatre and the store. At the showing a beautiful 81-piece breakfast set, provided by the store, was awarded. The entry tickets were distributed at the store with each purchase made. The prize set and a similar one were displayed in the theatre and store lobbies, attended by pretty girls in house dresses and aprons, who described the prize and plugged the picture and special showing to customers. The stunt was also played up in Sears' newspaper ads and publicity.

Another stunt which attracted exceptional interest was the black eye street ballyhoo. Two attractive "Carole Lombard" blondes were used, each with one of their eyes painted to look like a "shiner." They carried black suitcases with catchlines, picture and theatre credits.

NEWSPAPER PLUGS JANCKE'S BIG "SUTTER'S GOLD" TREASURE HUNT

GOLDEN, COLO. boasts one of the best mining schools in the world and is the center of a large mining district. This gave Manager Walt Jancke, Gem Theatre, his "Sutter's Gold" campaign keynote.

Jancke hit on the idea of a "Sutter's Gold" treasure hunt for the youngsters. The local newspaper cooperated on the stunt, plugging it daily. The youngsters were instructed to meet in front of the theatre, the Saturday morning of the engagement, dressed in the best prospector costume they could find, and equipped with tools for digging buried treasure. The treasure in this case was previously hidden silver coins. Prizes were given to the youngsters dressed in the best "old timer" costume.

When the boys and girls turned out bright and early, they were given claim stakes to plant on the spot they were digging. The stakes carried the theatre name, title and play dates and plug for the stunts. They were also used as title teasers on all roads around town.

The mining school loaned Jancke valuable ore samples, fifty year old carbide lamps, picks, shovels, etc., which were spotted in prominent store windows with tie-up display cards. Take a bow Jancke.

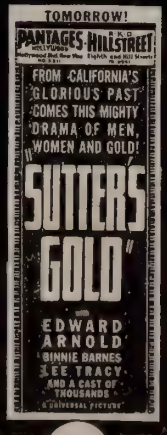
What The Ad Men Are Doing With "Sutter's Gold"

1

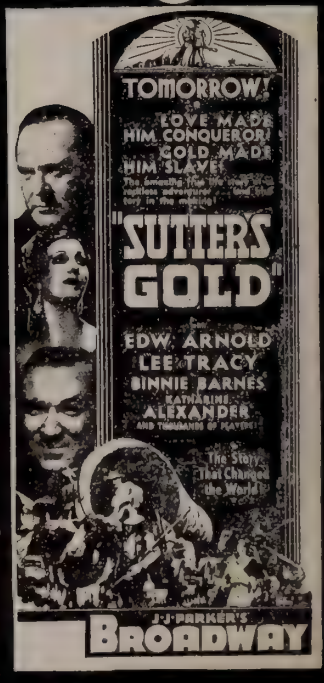
2

3

4



5



6

(1) Two column x 6" hold-over from Orpheum, San Francisco (2) Two column x 5" from Stanton, Philadelphia. (3) Three column x 11" from Keiths, Washington, D. C. (4) Four column x 15" from 5th Avenue, Seattle. (5) Single column x 5½" from Pantages and Hillstreet, Los Angeles. (6) Two column x 8½" from Broadway, Portland, Ore.

GET READY!

HE'S COMING AT YOU—WITH THAT LOOK THAT MEANS

BUSINESS!

Jack HOLT

in

"CRASH DONOVAN"

From
UNIVERSAL PICTURES CORP.
ROCKEFELLER CENTER
NEW YORK CITY

Sec. 562 P. L. & R.
U. S. POSTAGE
Paid
Permit No. 949
New York, N. Y.

[redacted] TOWNSEND
[redacted] ST
PENN YAN N Y

PROOF!

EMBASSY
(NEWSREELS)

Flood pictures continue to dominate new newsreel layout here this week, with Universal copping laurels ——— Universal's sky tour included graphic views of Hartford, Middletown, series of strategic dams in Mass., and views over inundated New Hampshire cities. Damage wrought by high waters as revealed after rivers regained their banks touched on in Johnstown scenes from same company. Same is true of U coverage about Harrisburg.

STOOGE NEWSREELER

Clip from Universal's newsreel last week titled 'The Sweepstake Loser,' is current laugh hit on Broadway. Spontaneous laughter incorporated in staged interview brought second week's showing for it at the Music Hall and the Roxy. U clip is close-up interview of David Oliver, regular staff cameraman, who recites, dead-pan, his experience with sweepstakes this year.

Clips from Variety—and praise in both!

Walter Winchell

Memos of a Midnighter: ...The wow of the week in that newsreel episode at the Trans-Lux is a Sweepstake guy who didn't win...The audience rocks from laugh spasms...

Walter Winchell goes overboard in his N. Y. Daily Mirror column!

THAT THE LIVEST, MOST VERSATILE SHOW ON ANYBODY'S SCREEN IS...

UNIVERSAL NEWSREEL!

Printed in U. S. A.

Scanned from the collection of Alicia Seymour

Coordinated by the Media History Digital Library www.mediahistoryproject.org

Funded by a donation from
The Libraries of Northwestern University and Northwestern University in Qatar